the [illegible] emigration bound to New Orleans, would [illegible] passing through Mobile, and that a large [illegible] merchandise would take the same route, to [illegible] experiment of the city, and also thus defeat [illegible] of the quarantine. The committe came [illegible] conclusion that, should that system be recommended, the approach by the lakes must be guarded. At [illegible] Balize, in the Balize bay, no protection is required [illegible] vessels of small tonnage only entering it during the winter months, and returning without [illegible] to the city.

Besides the difficulties arising from the peculiar position of New Orleans, interests of vast magnitude are [illegible]. Close up New Orleans, throw restrictions in the way of commerce, and what will be the consequence? Let the Mobile and Ohio Railroad be completed, and goods destined for the South West will probably reach their market by that route, whilst Western produce, now almost exclusively sent to New Orleans, will reach the sea by Mobile, to meet the drafts drawn on the West.

On the other hand, the fearful mortality of last summer has produced such vague fears for the future, and thrown so much discredit on the city, that New Orleans, just emerging from the fetters thrown upon her by bad legislation, and the apathy of her own citizens, is now threatened with general emigration, should such scenes as we witnessed last summer occur again.

Impressed with these views, your committee resolved to spare no efforts to arrive at a full knowledge of the history of the late epidemic, and of the preceding ones.

A circular was addressed to the physicians of New Orleans, propounding them a series of questions, and requesting their early consideration. We are sorry to be compelled to say that we did not receive from the profession that assistance which we had the right to expect. To Drs. Cartwright, McFarland, Cenas, Fenner, Ney and Coxe, we are indebted for able opinions, and to the Sanitary Commission we owe valuable documents. They placed in our hands the result of all their researches and labors, and were untiring in their efforts to enable us to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion.

From a careful perusal of this mass of evidence, from opinions antagonistic to each other, it became a task of no little difficulty to solve the question. That the epidemic of last year was yellow fever is admitted; that the first cases originated in the city of New Orleans is probable; that it became modified under peculiar circumstances, so as to assume a type unknown before—asserted by some to be contagious, by others to be infectious, and by a third class to be neither—is also an undeniable fact. For your committee, it spread through the country and on plantations, contrary to its usual habits, is due to its infectious character, or, in less learned, but clearer terms, to its communicability by the inhalation of a vitiated air; and, without entering into the details of the able theory of Dr. Cartwright, on the production of algoid organisms, it suffices for us to acknowledge the transportability of that vitiated atmosphere to explain the rapid spread of the last epidemic to our most remote corner. We see the disease invariably following the course of travel, and spreading from the river banks gradually into the interior. We see that whenever, in a small town or a family, a case is imported, (the city of Donaldsonville excepted, where the population had been acclimated by a former visitation) others rapidly follow, and having no fixed theory to defend, we humbly acknowledge the transportability of the disease. That persons liable to it have approached and nursed the sick without having the fever, is no proof of its non-contagiousness, or non-infectiousness, those being exceptions to the general rule; and as we believe that it requires a certain physical pre-disposition in an individual to succumb to the most contagious malady in order to catch it. That yellow fever originated in New Orleans we have admitted, (although not certain of it,) and became modified for causes which cannot be explained, no one will deny. And if searching among our records we look for the causes of this modification, we have it in Dr. Cartwright's able pamphlet, confirmed by the testimony of other physicians. Shall fever either impressed upon yellow fever its character, or modified its own type. The ship Northumberland, from Liverpool, reached New Orleans early in May, with 400 emigrants on board, and we have it stated that the sick with ship fever, on reaching the Balize, took the pallid countenance of yellow fever patients. We conclude that diseases can be modified under peculiar circumstances and atmospheric influences. That the ordinary yellow fever was modified by the presence of typhus to a considerable extent, and assumed that fearful character which it took shortly after the arrival of the Northumberland.

That yellow-fever proper cannot be imported and spread "without the existence of an atmospheric predisposition to that disease," your committee does not doubt. The single fact of the landing at Cadiz, in 1802, by Admiral Gravina, of five hundred patients with yellow fever, without the disease having been communicated to a single individual, would be a conclusive proof, even if unsupported by the opinions of the ablest writers on this subject.

But under those same atmospheric circumstances will it appear in the midst of our resident population without importation. And if it does, will it not linger slowly amongst us until fuel is thrown to it?

Last summer two thousand emigrants were carried off before a single resident of New Orleans was attacked, and it is a well established fact that unacclimated persons are more or less liable to the disease in its beginning, in proportion to the time they have resided here.

If it be once admitted that the generation or propagation of the fever requires fuel, where is the difficulty to prevent the landing of emigrantts in our midst at certain seasons of the year. We hold that to ship them to this port in the summer is immoral and unchristian, and that our safety as much as theirs requires that they should not be allowed to enter our port, where death awaits them. Compel, the captain of a ship arriving here in the summer, to land his passengers at the quarantine ground, with provisions for their support, or quarantine such vessels until the sickly season is passed, and emigration to this port in the summer will soon cease.

If we cannot prevent yellow fever here; if it be a disease of a strictly local origin; if the cleaning of of our streets, the draining of our swamps, and all sanitary measures must fail, we may at all events contract the sphere of its action by depriving it of that infectious character which it took in 1853. We are not aware that ever before this disease spread on plantations, and even in the piny woods. Our own observations, the testimony of our oldest citizens, confirm us in the belief that prior to last summer our country parishes, (villages excepted,) have enjoyed a complete exemption from it.

To attempt to explain it by asserting that the spread of emigrants in the country was its cause, would only prove the contagiousness of the fever. Never were foreigners before liable to it, in the pure atmosphere breathed on our plantations, nor were they ever before capable of communicating the disease there, when they had brought the seed in their system.

The ship Augusta reached here on the 17th of May last, and it is admitted that the ten or twelve first cases of yellow fever originated among her crew. Two cases were reported shortly after her arrival, in another part of the city, with no communication with the ship. It is not, however, impossible that those, however resembling yellow fever, may have arisen from other causes. Your committee does not say that the Augusta imported the disease, but state the facts, and leave to others to draw inferences.

Yellow fever is not the only scourge which has depopulated our State. Typhus, small-pox, measles, cholora, are frequent visitors, and to check them is not less important than to arrest ravages of yellow fever.

How far quarantine can be a protection against them, experience alone can demonstrate. It has failed in Europe against cholera, nor have military cordons been more successful. To attempt to prevent the spread of a purely epidemical disease, in contries contiguous to each other, where the vitiated atmosphere is carried from one point to another by every gust of wind, would be tantamount to an attempt to arrest the clouds themselves in their flight. That the same result would be met with here under the same circumstances, is highly probable; but can that vitiated air cross the thousands of miles that separate us from Europe, without being altered, unless confined in the close, ill-ventilated hull of a ship, where it maintains its violence by constant propagation.

Dr. Cartwright states that in more than one hunpred instances, cholera has been checked on plantations by removal of the negroes, with their bedding and clothing, in the open air. Could not the same result be attained by following the same precautions with emigrant ships.

Typhus, measles and small pox are admitted to be of infectious character, and we believe that there is little doubt that these diseases can be propagated, it not by patients affected with them, at all events by their bedding and clothing saturated with their impure emanations, confined in the close hull of a ship. The mortality proceeding from those causes alone, would justify the system we recommend.

The opinion of the medical men of New Orleans cannot be a guide for us, bacause few deemed the subject worthy of their consideration, and those for whose kind assistance we are indebted for what information we have, do not agree together.

Although the protection afforded by quarantine inspires less confidence than it formerly did abroad, we still find our Eastern neighbors enjoying the benefit of an uninterrupted good health, and from their adhering to a system considered by many as exploded, we conclude that they think it advantageous and necessary.

European writers may well attack a system useless to them; the tide of emigration flows not from us to them, but from them to us. They need no regulations to protect them from the introduction of diseases generated on board of ill-ventilated ships, where living beings are packed so closely that the air which they breathe is soon deprived of a portion of its oxygen, and becomes contaminated by the emanations of accumulated bodies They need no protection against diseases constantly generated in the damp cellars inhabited by their half-starved and half-clothed population. No wonder that their medical men have protested against a useless and expensive burthen. But how different is our position? Our balmy climate, our rich soil, our free institutions, our extended arms to the oppressed of all the world, are more than sufficient attractions. Thousands of emigrants reach our ports daily, and from here diverge in every direction. But in what state do they arrive, after a passage of from fifty to seventy days, during which their constitution has been undermined by bad diet, bad water and foul air, the records of the Charity Hospital, and the Sexton's graves alone can tell. If they do not bring with them in their soiled garments all the diseases which they have contracted at sea, or imported from home, they are at least in the condition required to generate or propagate them all.

Let them fall in our midst during the damp days of December, under the medicinal influence of Mississippi water, with a few sporadic cases of cholera among us, or during the warm days of August, with every atmospheric predisposition to yellow fever, and what will be the consequence? A fearful epidemic of either kind!

Immigration is to New Orleans what the Nile is to the Egyptians. Left to itself it is a torrent whose turbid waters carries death and destruction—properly directed and dammed up, it is a source of wealth and prosperity.

Independent of the reasons assigned in this report your committee think that some consideration is due to the wishes of the great majority of our constituents. And should a system of quarantine have no other effect than to restore confidence, and prove to our neigobors our firm intention of eradicating the evil, we would not hesitate in recommending it. We owe to the States with whom we are in daily intercourse, in return for their produce, liberally forwarded, something more than mere abstract theories. We have numerous competitors for the rich trade of the Mississippi valley, and experience has already taught us that our market is not the only one they can reach. New Orleans has arrived at a critical crisis, and rather than shut our eyes and fold our arms, we prefer to meet it boldly. From all points railroads are stretching their iron arms to wrest from her her golden harvest, and should another epidemic visit us before the memory of the last is effaced, her prosperity would receive a severe check.

It behooves the enlightened citizens of New Orleans, and her authorities, to join with us, and by due enforcement of proper sanitary regulations, assist us in restoring her wonted reputation for health. By the documents annexed, it will be seen that the Chamber of Commerce, in answer to our inquiries, has met nobly the issue, and declared that quarantine would be no obstruction to commerce, and of great benefit to the city, thus supporting our position, and setting at naught all objections to the system on that score.

In a few days the Sanitary Commission of New Orleans will present a report, joining in our conclusions.

Your committee recommend a system of quarantine which, whilst it will tend to promote the public health of the State, will throw as little restriction as possible in the way of commerce.

Mr. Kittridge, on the part of the same committee, introduced the following

COUNTER-REPORT

Of the Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana "to inquire into the best mode of preserving the health of this State."

The undersigned, members of the Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Representatives, to whom was referred the "inquiry into the best mode of preserving the health of the State," beg leave to submit the following report:

In taking into consideration the best mode to be adopted to preserve the health of New Orleans, and of the State, and to prevent the spread of epidemic diseases, we approach the subject with great diffidence, being fully impressed with the importance of the inquiry, and the minute and extended research necessary properly to elucidate its numerous and varied bearings, that a correct judgment may be formed as to the expediency or policy of establishing quarantines.

In this place we wish to render our acknowlegments for the results of long experience, extended inquiry and research, in relation to the subject in hand, kindly given to your committee, and to the undersigned personally, by the Sanitary Commission, and by individual members of the medical profession of New Orleans.

We would also observe that in making a report for the guidance of Legislative action, we do not deem it proper or useful to go into a long detail of the theories entertained by the medical profession in regard to epidemic diseases; but we shall endeavor to come to some conclusions from the facts and the conditions necessarily attendant upon the origin and progress of yellow fever, cholera, &c.

However, in pursuing this inquiry, our first aim should be to understand the nature and origin, or at any rate, (whether truly understood or not,) to form an opinion as to the nature and origin of the principal epidemic disorders, and the laws governing their extention or propagation. Our decision upon this branch of the inquiry will mainly determine the expediency or inexpediency, the use or uselessness of establishing quarantines to effect the end in view.

We presume that few, if any, will deny the proposition that the cause or specific poison which produces most of the epidemic diseases which man is heir to, and to which our attention is called in the present inquiry, exists in and is propagated by the atmosphere.

We may also assume as a truth, affirmed by observation and experience, that as a pre-requisite for the extensive spread or propagation of epidemic diseases, a peculiar epidemic atmosphere must exist midst, brought about, perhaps, by meteorological or [illegible] influences.

This last proposition we mention as the most satisfactory explanation of the great spread of epidemics at certain periods, over large sections of country, and the total exemption of the same localities, under apparently the same conditions and circumstances.

We may instance New Orleans, for the last six years having had free and irrestrictive commercial intercourse with all the world, with no epidemic yellow fever for the first five years, but within that period an epidemic cholera, and at the end of it, an epidemic yellow fever.

How why, under nearly the same apparent circumstances and conditions, did New Orleans escape the last named disease for five years, and be desolated by it on the sixth? The only answer we can give is expressed above.

But the query at once arises, does what may be called (for want of a better term,) an epidemic atmosphere, obviate the necessity of inquiring into the local conditions requisite for the propagation of the late epidemic? In our view, we say, by no means. For whether we take it for granted, (but for inquiry alone,) that the specific poison of yellow fever is never sufficiently eliminated and concentrated by the long continued action of heat and moisture upon decaying vegetables matter, to produce yellow fever, and consequently the disease is not of domettic, but of foreign origin. Yet we may bear in mind these truths.

1st. That the yellow fever never takes its origin or propagates in a pure atmosphere.

2d. That whether it requires one or more causes and conditions for its existence and propagation, a poisoned atmosphere arising from decomposing vegetable matter, or freshly exposed earth in whtch it is combined, long acted on by heat and moisture, is always necessarily present,

3d. That epidemic yellow fever, cholera, influenza, &c., depending on atmospheric constituents for their origin and propagation, are not contageous, as the term is generally understood, viz: a disease depending upon a specific poison, generated by and emanating from a person and producing its like in another.

4th. That the yellow fever can be and has been of domestic origin in hundred of instances, in different localities and periods, during the last hundred years.

There seems to be a vague idea entertained pretty generally by the people that a disease pervading, epidemically, widely extended and varied localities, with such virulence, must be propagated by and have its origin in contagion. But if the above propositions are truths, they will find that the means of propagating the cause, if not the cause itself, must and does exist in their midst.

As before observed, we do not intend to enter into details, but will give conclusions, based upon the examination of facts and conditions, for and against contagion as the propagating principle of yellow fever, cholera, &c., entertained by a large majority of the medical profession throughut the world at the present time.

Some of these conclusions we will mention here;

Dr. Gillkrest, Inspector-General of Army Hospitals in Great Britain, having had this subject under special consideration, has come to the conclution that no proof in the least conclusive has been adduced in any country, of the contagious properties of yellow fever or cholera, but quite the contrary.

The Board of Health of London have recently put forth a document, stating "that from reports made to them the fear of infection may be practically disregarded.

In 1849 the authorities of Guy's Hospital, in London, closed their doors against the admission of cholera patients, when surrounded by the sick and dying from that disease, through fear of contagion, but at this time that institution receives more cases of cholera than any other hospital in that city, having found that it has no contagious property.

Dr. Furlonge, who has had much experience in regard to yellow fever in the West Indies, declares that "none" of the medical profession there believe in the contagion of yellow fever.

We have now come to the point where the question naturally presents itself, viz: If yellow fever, cholera, &c., are not contagious, and always require certain constituents of the atmosphere of domestic or local origin, to supply a basis or medium of the diffusion or propogation of these epidemic diseases, what means must be adopted most likely to insure the health of the State?

We answer emphatically, keep the atmosphere pure in all localities by the removal of all decaying vegetable matter, freshly exposed earth, mould, &c., liable to be acted on by heat and moisture separately and combinedly, for long periods.

New Orleans, as the great emporium of the State, may be cited as an example where cleanliness would be most likely to mark its effects, and prove the proposition above assumed.

In what condition are the streets, gutters, yards, lots and lodgings for the poorer classes in New Orleans and its suburbs?

The gutters of the whole city and suburbs are teeming (no net teeming but generally in a perfectly quiescent state) with all the filth that 150,000 people are able to scrape into them—even to a portion of the outheavings of water closets.

A large portion of the streets and gutters in the outskirts of the city proper and suburbs, are unpaved, and frequently knee-deep in mud and vegetable matter. One-half the lots in the city and suburbs are from six inches to a foot lower than the surrounding side-walks—which after every rain are flooded with water mixed with vegetable matter, forming hundreds of filthy ponds—surrounded by a tight fence, eight feet in height—and thus to remain until dried up by the intense rays of the Sun at 120 deg. of heat by Fahrenheit.

We would here ask—could any sane man expect a pure and healthgiving atmosphere, to exist under such circumstances?

If all the chemical sciences on earth was brought in requisition, a more effective laboratory could not be devised for the concoction of impure air calculated to destroy human life—than now exists in the city of New Orleans and suburbs.

Added to this, the poorer classes are suffered to live in hamlets located in mud and filth—that would endanger the swinish, and by comparison must inevitably be followed by disease and death in the human species.

This being the local condition of New Orleans we are asked—how a salubrious atmosphere is to be insured: and what are the means proposed?

We would suggest—First, that every street in the city and its suburbs should be paved—Second, that every lot in the city and suburbs should be graded to a height above that of the surrounding side walks, rounded in the centre, and then paved with brick—laid in a thick coat of hydraulic cement (especially every lot built on or enclosed)—Third, thorough drain by ditching or grading, all the swamp lands in the rear of the city—exposing no more swamp lands to the action of the Sun's rays—by felling the timber—(its natural protection) thereby creating a source of "malaria" equal to the famous Pontine marshes near Rome—Fourth, erect a sufficient number of water-works in the river—to throw a constant stream of fresh water down every gutter in the city and suburbs—at all times, when the river is too low to flow the water without the works—Fifth, a better construction of the dwellings of the poorer classes—airy and well floored high and dry above the surface of the earth.

When this is done, the people of New Orleans may boast of the cleanliness of their city and the comparative salubrity of the air they breathe, with a more confident security from the epidemic diseases that they have heretofore been subject to.

We would here further remark, that the people of New Orleans have no other ground to hope for exemption from the scourge of epidemics than by adopting the above mode suggested.

That we are convinced that no quarantine regulations will have any protecting effect in preserving the health of the city of New Orleans or the State from the spread of epidemic diseases.

That the only possible good to be derived from any sanitary regulations would be by the appointment of a health officer, to be stationed at the Balize, to go out with the Pilots, and while the vessels are coming into the river to examine as to the existence of ship fever and small-pox, (and these diseases only.) In case of ship-fever and small pox, clean the ship, wash the bodies and clothes of the well, and send them on their way rejoicing—the sick to be detained under some cheap airy shelter, until well enough to travel.

We believe no possible benefit can be derived from even the simplest, or most complete system of quarantine at any other locality, and the process above suggested at the Balize is not put forth, to operate as a system of quarantine, but for the sole purpose of preventing the landing of the sick and filthy immigrants into the already crowded and illventilated tenements of the poorer classes in New Orleans.

SALE OF SCHOOL LANDS.

Mr. Lacoste called up the following bill, entitled

AN ACT

For the relief of Antoine Joseph Buras, of the parish of Plaquemines.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That Antoine Joseph Buras, of the parish of Plaquemines, be and he is hereby authorized to purchase from the State of Louisiana, at the minimum price of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, the section sixteen, in township nineteen, South of range number sixteen, East of the Mississippi river, in the parish of Plaquemines, on which the said Buras has resided and cultivated before the public lands were surveyed:

Mr. Lacoste—I shall take great pleasure in explaining the object of this bill. It is intended, as its title indicates, for the relief of Mr. Buras, of the parish of Plaquemines. This person is a poor man who has a large family to support. He has resided on the land specified in the bill for the last fifty years, and has built on it a small cottage, in which he resides with his family. What is desired is to permit him now to purchase this land at the minimum price of $1 25 per acre. I do not see that there can be any objection to this.

Mr. Moore—I see great objection to it. It would be, in effect, repealing an act of Congress. Under a law of Congress every 16th section of land is donated to the township in which it may happen to be situated, for educational purposes, and cannot be sold without a vote of the people of the township authorizing such sale. If this gentleman resides on the land, he can afford to give a higher price for it than any one else. It would be the easiest thing in the world for the Superintendent of Public Education to order an election by the voters in the township. If there are only seven persons in the township they have a right to vote on the question. If they authorize the sale of the lands it is all right. But let it be done in the regular way. By passing this bill we would be virtually repealing an act of Congress and would be interfering with the whole tenor of legislation on educational subjects.

Mr. Lacoste—When I explain the position of that family, I am sure that no gentleman will vote against the bill. It is a very poor family, depending for support entirely on its own industry. The old man has ten children dependant on him and themselves. We ought to do this thing for them. It would be an act of benevolence which no Senator would ever have cause to regret.

Mr. Munday—I should like to hear from the Committee on Education whether they think this thing can be done. I ask because there is a case of the same kind in my own parish. Last year the Legislature passed a law, putting up at auction every certain portion of the school lands. The Sheriff is now about to proceed to make the sale in accordance with the law. This is a precedent at once. I should like to do this favor for this old man if we can do it. But if it is not legal there would be no use in passing the bill.

A motion was made to lay the bill on the table.

Mr. Martel—I call for the reading of the bill.

The bill was read.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

Mr. Munday—As I said before, I should like to do this favor for this old man; but I should like to offer an amendment, in the first place, to the effect that a vote of the people of the township be taken beforehand on the question of sale.

Mr. Lacoste—That is the very way to kill the bill. It will give the people too much trouble.

Mr. Moore—The land is given to us by Congress for educational purposes. That is the consideration for the grant. It is a trust fund held by us for a special purpose. What right have we to dispose of it in any way not authorized by the act of donation? How can we, as grave Senators, sit here and deliberately entertain such a proposition? Why, sir, we have not a shadow of a right to do it. The land is given to us on trust. You have as much right to take money out of my pocket as to divert these lands from the objects to which they are donated. They are given to the children of the township. We are only the trustees. We have no right to take the land away from them to give it to any individual whatever. I am astonished that such a thought can be for a single moment seriously entertained.

Mr. Lacoste—I accept the amendment of the Senator from East Feliciana.

Mr. Martel—As I understand the law of Congress, it is this:—When it is desired to sell any of these school lands, the sence of the voters of the township in which the land is situated, is taken. If they authorize the sale, the land is sold at one, two or three years credit. That is the law. Now, sir, I ask, why should we do a thing of the kind proposed by the bill, for the benefit of a solitary individual? It would be a precedent frought with danger. The land might be worth fifty times the amount at which it is proposed to sell it. Why should we take this sum from our public schools? Is it for public services that we are called on to do this thing? If so, the Legislature has no right to extend its charity so far. Congress vested the right to these lands in the people of the various townships. It has given to them the title for the support of their public schools. Shall the Legislature divest them of that right? A strict construction of the Constitution shows that we have no power to do it. We have a right to authorize the Directors to dispose of these lands for the benefit of the schools, but we have no right to give them away. I am opposed to such legislation as that contemplated in the bill.

Mr. Moore—I shall call for the yeas and nays upon this bill. We shall see who will vote for it, and who not.

On motion of Mr. Munday, the following proviso was added to the end of the bill:

Provided, That the consent of a majority of the voters in the township shall be obtained previous to issuing the pre-emption.

On motion of Mr. Lacoste to pass the bill as amended, Mr. Hodge called for the yeas and nays.

Hon. W. W. Farmer in the chair; Messrs. Lacoste, Lacey, Munday and Wickliffe—4 yeas.

Messrs. Braud, Defreese, Evans, Hodge, King, Kenner, Kittridge, Lauve, Lawes, Macmurdo, Martel, Moore, Palfrey, Taylor and Trudeau—15 nays.

Consequently the bill and proviso were rejected.

EMANCIPATION OF A MINOR.

Mr. Wickliffe, without previous notice, asked and obtained leave to introduce an act to emancipate Mary S. Saunders, a minor, and wife of Andrew S. Herres.

Mr. Trudeau—I object to the passage of that bill. I have already stated what is the law on this subject, and how the object can be accomplished by a recourse to the judicial tribunals of the State. I do not see why the time of the Senate should be taken up with these applications inflicting expense on the State, when there is in existence a general law which provides for all such cases. The thing ought to be done by family meeting as directed by law. They are the proper parties to act in the premises. I am not opposed to this bill more than to any other of the same kind; but I am opposed to all of them. It is not right to take the decision of these questions out of the hands of a family meeting. We should not compel them to sacrifice their right of action. It is dangerous to the interests of society. I hope the bill will not pass.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Wickliffe—In my opinion, of all humbugs known to our law, the family meeting is the worst. As to the expense of the matter, I shall say that we might have passed the bill while the gentleman has been talking about it. The gentleman says the emancipation can be granted by a family meeting. Well, sir, everybody knows that. But this bill was introduced at the request of the lady and her family, in order to enable her to pass title to her sister, so that their business can be settled up while she is here.—For my part I cannot see any objection to the bill.

I hope the gallantry of the gentleman will induce him to withdraw his opposition to the bill, and let it go through.

The bill passed.

The first section was read as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That from and after the first day of April, 1855, no mortgage shall be enforced or exist against a third person acting in good faith, unless the mortgage is duly recorded in the office of the Recorder of Mortgages. This record shall be made in order to affect landed property and slaves attached thereto, in the parish where such property is situated, and to affect other slaves in the parish where the debtor has his domicil, or usual residence.

Mr. Wickliffe offered the following:

First section of House bill as a substitute for the above first section.

AN ACT

To provide for the registry of legal and tacit mortgages.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That no legal or tacit mortgage shall have effect unless written evidence thereof be inscribed in the mortgage record, in the manner and form prescribed for conventional mortgages; and then only for the amount for which the same may be inscribed.

Mr. Hodge—I move to lay the whole subject on the table.

Mr. Trudeau—I think that is disposing in rather a preemptory manner of a subject of great importance.

Mr. Hodge—I do not make the motion with a view of cutting off discussion. If any gentleman wishes to make a speech I will, temporarily, withdraw my motion in order to enable him to do so. I merely made it in order to get a test vote.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

The question now recurred on the first section of the substitute.

Mr. Lacey—I move to lay the first section of the substitute on the table subject to call.

Mr. Wickliffe—I doubt the parliamentary right of the Senator to make that motion. It would be equivalent to laying on the table indefinitely.

Mr. Lacey—I do not want to do that.

The motion to lay the first section of the substitute on the table was carried.

Mr. Hodge—I now renew the motion to lay on the table the first section of the bill before the Senate.

Mr. King—I would ask if the gentleman has a right to make that motion. He has just moved to lay the whole subject on the table, which motion was voted down. Can he now move to lay a part on the table?

The President—Yes, sir.

The motion was lost.

Mr. Trudeau—I shall now move this substitute for the first section.

SECTION 1st. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That all married women who have tacit mortgages on the estates of their husbands, either for the receipt or alienation of their dotal or paraphernal property, and who shall not have caused the same to be recorded in the office of the Recorder of Mortgages of the different parishes where their husbands property is situated, on or before the first day of April, 1855, shall loose all rights of enforcing the same against third persons acting in good faith; provided that all mortgages against the tutors of minors, curators of absentees, or interdicted persons, which shall not have been recorded on the 1st day of October, 1855, shall become void against third persons in good faith.

My object is to meet and obviate the constitutional objection. I agree with the Senator from East Baton Rouge and the Senator from St. Martin that the bill (the substitute) is unconstitutional as it stands, because it specifes no given time at which it is to take effect. The Legislature may pass a law requiring the registration of these mortgage; but it must make the registratrion obligatory within a given time. My amendment makes it necessary to record these mortgages within a given time, and if not done within that time the rights resulting therefrom are forfeited. It does not apply to minors, because they have vested rights, but only to married women. The Legislature has also the right to declare vacant, at a certain period, the offices of all tutors, administrators, curators, &c. This is not unconstitutional. The objection urged by the Senator from East Baton Rouge (Mr. Lacey) is the only ground on which the bill can be considered unconstitutional. I offer the amendment in order to meet those objections. I think it remedies them.

Mr. Ryan—The amendment may be good, but the reason given for it is not good. I do not wish to discuss the point now, though I think I can show the truth of my position. But whether I can or not is not the question. The gentleman says he exempts minors from the operation of his amendment because they have vested rights, and includes married women because they have not. By it, married women are to lose their claims, unless these be registered within a given time. I would ask whether the married woman has not vested rights just as much as the minor? Suppose she has $200,000 in the hands of her husband, is not her claim upon it a vested right? The fact is, that minors and married women stand in the same position in this respect. Minors have a vested right in the property of their tutors, married women in that of their husbands. One has vested rights just as much as the other. If the bill is unconstitutional with regard to minors and their tutors, by the same reasoning it is unconstitutional with regard to married women and their husbands. If it is unconstitutional because it attacks the vested rights of minors, by a parity of reasoning, it is unconstitutional because it attacks the vested rights of married women. These have as many vested rights as minors, and their interests should be as strictly guarded. I should really like the gentleman to indicate the difference that has caused him to make such a distinction in the bill. I am as much in favor of protecting the rights of one class as of the other and unless the gentleman can show some real and tangible difference I shall be compelled to vote against his amendment. For my part, I do not think the bill unconstitutional, and I shall, at the proper time, give my reasons for this opinion. I have merely made these few remarks in order to show that the reasons urged by the gentleman from Jefferson (Mr. Trudeau,) are not good; that married women, while under the tutelage of their husbands, have the same vested rights as minors, and are equally as unable to protect those rights. This is the reason why the law is the same for both. How then can the gentleman make any difference between them? I cannot see any good reason. I may be in error, and if so, I wish the gentleman would be kind enough to show me where the error lies.

Mr. Trudeau—The gentleman misunderstood me; I said that the first section is unconstitutional because it does not make it imperative that the mortgages should be registered within a certain specified time. It thus cuts off those rights at once, and is therefore a divesting of vested rights, and consequently unconstitutional. The Legislature has a right to terminate certain vested rights, at a given time, if the conditions of registration be not complied with. But it must be made obligatory and prospective. It cannot destroy them all at a blow, without giving a reasonable time. Minors are not in the same position as married women. There is in fact a great difference between them. The bill declares that at a certain time the office of the tutor shall become vacant. That is not unconstitutional, All existing rights are preserved by the bill, if the conditions of the law be complied with. It only says that at a given time the office of the tutor shall be vacated and new security given. Nobody will say that is unconstitutional. But with married women the case is different, because the bill does not make it obligatory on them to do the act within a given time, under penalty of losing their rights.

Mr. Lacoste—We are here to protect the rights of women and children, not to destroy them. The existing law is a good law, and secures that object. The only effect of the proposed change would be to benefit the lawyers. They would make plenty of money while the widows and orphans would be left a prey to their rapacity. It is best to let the bill slumber on the table. If it comes before us I shall certainly vote against it.

Mr. Moore—I am sorry to trouble the Senate with any more remarks on this subject, but I feel compelled to say that that amendment contains one of the objections which I have to the bill. The original bill was drawn with great care and talent. That much at least can be said in favor of it. The other I think, is perhaps more simple. By the substitute of the Senator from West Feliciana it is provided that the mortgage must be recorded at the domicil of the person. By this bill it must be recorded in every Parish where he has property. The former if simple, the latter, complex. If we adopt the simple bill the registration will have to be made only at the domicil of the husband But under this a man might get a certificate of sale of property, and then what recourse would there be? Our statute books are now full of legislation for the benefit of the merchant, and the laboring classes. One gentleman has told us that labor is not protected in this State. I contend, sir, that labor is better protected in Louisiana than in any other State in the Union. The merchant has a lien on the crop of the planter, which passes through his hands. That is a tacit mortgage.—Yet nothing is said about it. We hear no complaints in relation to it, because it is for the benefit of the commercial class. I repeat, sir, that nowhere else in the world is the laborer so well protected as in Louisiana. If he works on a farm he has his lien; if he builds a house he has his lien. These are tacit mortgages; yet no complaint is uttered against them. The workman who contributes the smallest thing to the building of a house has a privilege, yet no complaint is made about that, although it is a tacit mortgage It is better, I admit, that all mortgages should be recorded, yet this bill is so complex that it gives opportunity for more frauds than can be perpetrated under the present system. A man may receive the money of his ward and go to a distant parish and purchase land with it. He then procures a certificate from the Recorder of Mortgages that there is no mortgage on that land. The minor is thus deprived of his rights, and has no recourse. Thus it will be seen that there will be opportunity for greater frauds than can be committed under the present system. It is imposible, as has justly been said, to frame a law under which frauds may not be perpetrated. But is it not better to let money-lenders look after their own rights, than to leave the minor to look after his? The law should take care of the weak—the strong can take care of themselves. Money-lenders will be particular to search out every fact which may affect their interests. They will not be apt to loan their money till they have first procured the renunciation of the coife. I am opposed to the amendment, as I think it makes the bill worse than it was before. Without that amendment it would be much more perfect, and therefore a better bill. But I think it would be better to bear the ills we have, than fly to those we know not of. I am an old man, and may not be able to see clearly into these questions; but I am of opinion that under this bill more frauds would be committed than are now complained of.

Mr. King—Do I understand the gentleman to say that he will vote for a bill which requires the mortgages to be recorded only at the domicil of the tutor.

Mr. Moore—Provided it includes only future mortgages, I will.

Mr. King—That is a very essential difference between us. The proposition of the gentleman would leave us still under that beautiful system of Spanish law which calls so loudly for reform, and which are by no means suited to our free trade notions and republican institutions. The gentleman and I see this subject through very different optics. He says the bill is intended especially for the benefit of money lenders. I say it will benefit, chiefly the money borrowers. Why is not money be had on property here, on as good terms as in New York? The reason is obvious—the security is not as good, because the title is not secure. I say, again, that the bill is not intended for the benefit of money lenders. Mr. Roselius himself recently lost a large amount by the operation of a tacit mortgage, and he is no professional money lender. I think the mortgage ought to be recorded in every parish where the party owns property. He may have none in the parish of his domicil, and then there would be no security. And, moreover, the question of domicil is one of the most uncertain known to our law, and gives rise to frequent controversies, which are exceedingly difficult to be decided. In the first place, a man may have no property at his domicil, and then it may be very difficult to discover where his true domicil is. At the same time he may have millions in other parishes, and yet not be bound for a cent, if the proposition of the gentleman prevail. Every Senator will see the effect of such a provision.

The gentleman speaks of liens and privileges enjoyed by laborers and merchants. He seems to forget that there is an article of the Code which provides that all privileges for more than $500 must be recorded. The section of the original bill is nearly the same—it does specifically what this does negatively.

Mr. Lacey—I object to the amendment for the same reason as I objected to the first section of the original bill. I think it is calculated to destroy the rights of minors and married women. With those I will not consent to interfere. They should stand inviolate and be considered inviolable. I only ask the evidence of these rights recorded for the benefit of third parties. The amendment says that unless these mortgages be recorded they shall lose their force and effect. This I consider a violation of the fundamental law of the State; and if not a violation, it is, at least, extremely impolitic. If I can obtain the support of the Senate, I shall move to strike from the original bill, all that portion from the 1st to the 9th line inclusive, which reads thus:

"SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That from and after the first day of April, 1855, no mortgage shall be enforced or exist against a third person, acting in good faith, unless the mortgage is duly recorded in the office of the Recorder of Mortgages."

That portion of the bill I shall try to have stricken out. What will be the consequence if I succeed? The mortgage will remain in force just as it does now; no rights will be invaded, yet we shall be able to force on record every mortgage in existence in the State. Do Senators not see that we thus obtain our object without invading vested rights? Is it not evident to the Senator from New Orleans, himself. We shall force these mortgages on record and thus make an advance to the system we are seeking. I shall not argue the question of constitutionality again. I did that, as I conceive, fully enough in the remarks I had the honor to offer to the Senate during the former discussion. If the Senate refuse to strike out that provision; if gentlemen disagree with me and show by their votes that they think the amendment constitutional, I shall yield my own opinion, and cheerfully vote in favor of the bill as it is presented.

I repeat that, at the proper time, I shall move to strike out that portion of the bill which, in my view, interferes with vested rights, and therefore violates the fundamental law. Whether we shall enact a law to force all mortgages on record, is a matter of policy. I, for one, am in favor of it. But I am not willing to take the bill as I find it. Let us leave vested rights unimpaired. Let us leave existing mortgages untouched, but force the evidence of them on record. This is the great object to be attained. This is what we are striving to effect. But let us not interfere with the rights of minors and married women—let us not violate the fundamental law—let us not divest vested rights, but leave them in full force and all their force and power.

Mr. Hodge offered an amendment to the amendment of the original bill, providing that all persons required to record their bonds in the office of the corder of Mortgages in the different parishes where they may own property; making it the duty of the clerk of Court in which such bond may be given, to forward a copy, within five days, to the Recorder of Mortgages, for registration, and making every Recorder or Clerk who may neglect this duty, liable for any damages that may ensue from such neglect.

Mr. King—That is the law now. Clerks are now compelled to give bond. I have already discussed this subject fully, and I think I have alluded to every point of the difference, so that I do not feel inclined to enter into another elaborate argument on the subject. I will, however, make a few remarks. The Senator from St. Martin, and the Senator from East Baton Rouge wish the bill to apply only to future mortgages. As it stands, it puts an end to the system of tacit mortgages after a specified and reasonable time. Their idea is to leave existing mortgages untouched, and make the bill affect only those which may accrue hereafter. The objection to this is that it postpones the benefits of the bill to an almost indefinite period—that is to say till all the married women now living are dead, and all the minors become majors. Nor, sir, I am willing to take half a loaf rather than no bread; and I will accept the proposition of the gentlemen as a last resort, though I tell them it will be trifling with the hopes and expectations of the public

Mr. Hodge—As I have not here'ofore spoken on this bill, I propose now to say a few words by way of showing why I am in favor of the amendment. At the last session I found myself among the opponents of this measure because I did not wish the mortgage rights of any class of our population to be impaired. Now, I hold that those rights are impaired by this bill. I do not oppose the bill because I consider it unconstitutional. On the contrary, at the last session, I declared that I thought it constitutional. But it was then urged, with great propriety, that it would be bad policy on the part of the Legislature to take their rights from those who are incapable of protecting themselves, in order to secure those who are. The Senator from New Orleans, (Mr. King) said this morning that our present system is derived from the Spanish law, but that it is not consistent with our free trade ideas. Now, sir, I venture to say that if we abolish the tacit mortgage system it will place minors not only in a worse position than that they occupy now, but in a worse one than they occupy in any state in the Union. Even with this hydraheaded monster, the tacit mortgage system, minors are worse protected here than anywhere else in the United States. During the course of a long practice I have seen very few instances in which any individual was injured through the enforcement of a tacit mortgage by a minor, while the mind of almost every Senator must be crowded with instances in which minors have been robbed. And yet you wish to take away the only safeguard and protection that they now enjoy. How can you expect a minor, in his infancy, to see that the provisions of this bill are enforced? How can you expect him to know that the record has been made? He cannot do it; he is entirely at the mercy of his tutor. Does the gentleman suppose that a tutor will put himself to any particular trouble to have inscribed what may prove an incumbrance on his property? The supposition would be absurd. For my part, I can say that I have never known a tutor to perform faithfully his duty to the letter, and it is not to be supposed for a moment that he would take any great pains to encumber his own property. The gentleman says it would be the duty of the District Judge to see the provisions of the law fulfilled. But the minor cannot see that the Judge performs his duty. My amendment devolves that duty on the clerk, and makes him responsible for its fulfilment. It makes him liable for all damages which may result if he neglects his duty. I do not, I cannot, suppose that the Senator from New Orleans, notwithstanding his inimical position to them, wishes to injure the minor. But he has set his heart on breaking down the existing law, and he seems so fixed in his determination to effect that object that he overlooks other important consequences. But if he should succeed, new lustre will be added to his name, as one who achieved success when others, who had made the same effort, signally failed. The people of Louisiana have always had sympathy with the weak and unprotected, and therefore every previous attempt to break down their rights, has been frustrated.

But, to return to the amendment. Will the gentleman say that any clerk would take the responsibility of withholding a copy of the tutor's bond when he would be made liable for any damages that might result? It is unreasonable to suppose that he would. But it is not unreasonable to suppose that, when everything is left in the tutor's hands, he would see his power to defraud the minor, and combine with the clerk to effect his object. It has been done, and would be done again. The policy of our legislation should be to protect those who are unable to protect themselves. The weak have claims upon our sympathies; the strong can better afford to secure themselves. It is not so much our duty to legislate for the benefit of those who are able to take care of themselves, as for the benefit of those who are not.

I shall say nothing on the constitutional aspect of this question. I cannot see that much injury would be done to the creditor except in that class of liens of which there is no written evidence. I do not know any instance of an honest creditor being injured by one of those tacit mortgages. It is easy to ascertain and to know of their existence as under the most stringent bill that can be formed. But if you wish to compel a man to send his bond to the Recorder of Mortgages for registration, why is it not as easy to impose the duty on the Clerk of Court? It would be just as easy in the country parishes, and even in the city of New Orleans, because there all succession business is transacted in one court. In the country parishes it would be as easy to have the bond recorded in the office of the Clerk as in that of the Recorder of Mortgages. In the first place it should be ascertained if the tutor has given a bond. That bond would operate as a mortgage when recorded. The bond must of course be made before it can be recorded. I would make natural tutors give bond as well as any others. As far as married women are concerned, I confess there is much difficulty in the question. But if the gentleman is desirous of attacking the system, I will go for abolishing all those mortgages. When a man assumes the position and responsibilities of a husband it is natural to suppose that he has a sufficient interest in the welfare of his wife to induce him to administer her affairs well and faithfully. With these remarks, sir, I shall conclude.

Mr. Ryan—I have heard much said in the course of this debate about the bond that is to be given. Now, sir, what is the signification of a bond? The bond of a tutor is different from that of an administrator. A bond, moreover, does not operate a specific mortgage. If I am a tutor for a minor having $150,000 in land and slaves and personal property, I give bond only for the personal property. Suppose a minor has personal property to the amount of $85,000, and real property amounting to $115,000, I give a bond only for $35,000. Gentlemen talk of a bond as being the record of a mortgage. Why, nothing more than the appointment is recorded. No bond can be given sufficient to cover all the property of the minor. Here, sir, is the law contained in art. 330 of the Code.

"Every tutor, except the father and mother, shall give to the Judge, who either appointed or confirmed him, good and sufficient security for the fidelity of his administration."

This security must be in amount equal to the amount of the credits, money and other movable effects stated in the inventory, and such other sum as the Judge shall deem sufficient to cover any loss or damage, which the tutor may occasion to the minor by his bad administration.

"The bond of the tutor is then only given for the amount of the credits, money, and movable effects belonging to the estate of the minor. In the case of an administrator the bond is given not only for this amount, but for the amount of the whole estate and a fourth more. Thus, an administrator of an estate worth $100,000, gives a bond for $125,000. This is the law. It cannot be contradicted. I do not say that the tutor is not compelled to give a bond, but simply that it is not sufficient in amount to afford a perfect security. If, under this bill, we only demand the bond now required by law, we shall give no security to the minor.

I except to the amount of the bond in the case of tutors. It is different, as I have said, with administrators. The reason of the distinction is that the tutor is not bound to administer the slaves and lands. He may hire them out or lease them. By the law everything that is not real estate is considered movable property. These distinctions are made by the law. Horses, mules, cattle, &c., are movable by nature, but in many cases they are immovable by destination, and then the tutor is not called on to give bond for them. Thus, he does not give any bond for the stock attached to a plantation. He gives bond only for those effects which are movable by law.—Will it do any good to record this bond? If I am wrong in what I have said let any lawyer correct me. I say, sir, that this bond would be no sufficient security. It does not operate as a mortgage. There is no mortgage except that which, as soon as the tutor is apaointed, attaches ipso facto to all his property, for any maladministration of which he may be guilty. If the gentleman wishes to amend so that the mortgage shall date from the day the tutor receives the money, instead of from the day of appointment, a very desirable object would be attained. Suppose I am a tutor to a minor—I may not receive any money for twenty years, but I may sell property to-day, and the minor has a mortgage on it, though I do not owe him a cent. This is an evil and ought to be remedied. If we wish to benefit some, let us not injure others.

Mr. Hodge—The amendment is to the effect that the bond must be recorded, so that it may not be destroyed, and the rights of minors thus impaired.

Mr. Ryan.—I am arguing on the supposition that the bond is recorded. Now all that can be recorded is that on a certain day John Doe, or Richard Roe was appointed tutor to the children of J. H. This does not specify the amount of the mortgage, nor can the bond cover it. The mortgages does not result from the bond. It works tacitly, and may be for a hundred or a hundred thousand dollars. The bond is all that can be recorded. No specific mortgage results from the appointment of a tutor. It is general, attaching to all his property, and acts so silently, though it may speak out some day. I repeat, that a bond given by a tutor, is inadequate for purposes of protection. In this respect it is different from the administrator's, or the curator's bond. If this bond only is to be recorded, God help the rights of minors, as they will only be protected to the extent of the little personal property they may happen to own. I want to see the evidence of every minor's indebtedness recorded. But I do not wish to destroy, or to interfere with the rights of the minor and the married woman Let us approach the subject as becomes Senators, calmly and reflectingly; let us endeavor to frame such a law as will meet the wants of this community without being guilty of injustice towards any. Let us try to do good to all, and inflict injury on none. If we do this we shall have accomplished everything that can be expected at our hands. No man, sir, will rejoice more than I at the adoption of some system by which the recordation of every man's indebtedness will be secured. Let not the law itself be the instrument and the protector of fraud; let us devise some way to make these mortgages open instead of concealed. But while I am anxious to do this, I am also anxious to protect those who have been thrown upon the cold charity of strangers; whose natural tutors have been consigned to the tomb, and who are left desolate and unprotected. Never, by my vote, will I assist in giving them up to be defrauded by unprincipled and designing persons.

Mr. Trudeau—This question has now become so complicated that it is scarcely comprehensible. First, we have the original bill, introduced by the Senator from New Orleans, (Mr. King,) and then the substitute introduced by the Senator from West Feliciana, (Mr. Wickliffe,) and then numerous amendments one of which I believe, is before the Senate. I should like to narrow the limits of the discussion to the particular section or question under consideration. We have ample time before us in which to consider and discuss the sixteen sections into which these bills are divided; though I must admit that if we take as much time on each of them, as we have already consumed, we would never get through. When we come to the 4th section I shall offer an amendment which I think will prove acceptable. I am opposed to both bills as they stand, though I think they can be amended, and combined, so as to form a bill which will pass. It is said by one gentleman that there is room for a contestation in the very first section, and that point had been discussed. No one can deny that our present legislation is very injurious. In New Orleans it has the effect of depreciating the value of property, and therefore makes money hard to procure. By modifying this system so as to diminish the risk, and increase the security, you will lower the rate of interest, which our legislation has tended to raise to such an inordinate degree. The fact is that persons compelled to borrow money are now left to the tender mercies of a few note shavers, who take care never to risk anything and never to lose anything. Let us throw open the gates of competition, and invite capital from abroad, and we shall soon have it flowing in upon us in streams; for, the security being equal, money will always seek those markets in which it commands the highest rate of interest. It would be good policy to relieve the city of New Orleans from this tax which is now imposed on her by the high rate of interest which prevails in consequence of our system of law. Gentlemen may be opposed to this bill, but they cannot well be opposed to the principle which is the basis of it. I am opposed to the amendment because the effect of it will be to entail the evils of the present system upon us for thirty years to come. Let our children legislate for themselves and let us legislate for ourselves. I shall conclude, sir, by remarking that I hope gentlemen will confine the discussion to the question before the Senate.

The amendment of Mr. Hodge was laid on the table.

Mr. Lacey—I now move to strike out the first section of the bill.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Wickliffe—I move to recommit the bill in order that a bill may be reported back to us, on which the Committee itself is agreed.

Mr. King—This bill was unanimously reported by the committee. I see no hope of getting a nearer approach to agreement than a unanimous vote.

Mr. Wickliffe—They do not poll a very unanimous vote here.

Mr. King—The same thing might happen over again. I hope there will be no recommitment. If Senators want to pass the bill, let them pass it; if not, let them kill it. But there is no use to recommit it.

Mr. Lacey—I move to lay the motion to recommit on the table.

The motion was laid on the table.

Mr. Hodge—I now move to lay the rest of the bill on the table.

Mr. Lacey—I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. King—I second the motion to lay on the table. We have taken the head off the bill, and we might as well bury it decently.

The motion to lay on the table was carried.

Mr. King gave notice that to-morrow he would move a reconsideration.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. Griffin, on the part of the Committee on Internal Improvement, &c, to whom was referred an act for the relief of James H. Barbin, Francis B Barbin, Fabius Ricord, of the parish of Avoyelles, and of Charles Pitts, of the parish of Orleans, reported favorably.

On motion of Mr. Griffin, the rules were suspended, the bill underwent its several readings, and it passed.

Mr. Braud, from the Committee on Agriculture and Commerce, to whom was referred an act to appoint weighers of cotton and sugar for the city of New Orleans, made the following report, which was read:

The Committee on Commerce and Agriculture, to whom was referred a bill entitled an act to appoint weighers of sugar and cotton, in and for the city of New Orleans, beg leave to report that they have examined with care the various provisions of said act, embracing, as they do, a radical change in the present system of buying and selling sugar and cotton, and hence is a matter of great importance to those whose interests are immediately affected thereby.

By this bill the Governor is authorized to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, twelve weighers of sugar and cotton for the city of New Orleans, to continue in office for two years, and who shall give bond and security in the sum of $5000 for the faithful discharge of their duties; and the said weighers thus appointed shall have power to appoint one or more deputies to aid and assist in the discharge of the duties of said office, each weigher to be responsible for the faithful conduct of said deputy.

The magnitude of the interests which will be affected by the premises of this bill, demands the serious consideration of the Legislature, and the State should not interfere with the established usages of the trade, until it can be shown that the present mode of delivery of cotton and sugar, in the city of New Orleans, is alike unfair to the purchaser and seller.

The committee have heard of no complaint of a nature to induce them to invoke the aid of the State in selecting public officers to perform that which is now done by weighers, selected by those most immediately interested.

The passage of this act would, in the opinion of the committee, be creating a monopoly of the most odious kind, as the appointing power would, to a great extent, be in the hands of the twelve weighers chosen by the Governor, each of whom is empowered to choose one or more deputies, and the whole number thus chosen to weigh 1,600,000 bales of cotton, and 150,000 hogsheads of sugar, annually received in New Orleans, would not probably be much less than 100.

But apart from this objection, your committee sees no good reason why parties engaged in the purchase and sale of sugar and cotton in New Orleans, should not be left to employ their own agent to weigh the same, as in other parts of the State. If it is intended to apply the premises of this bill to the city alone, why should it not have equal force throughout the State? A large part of the crop of sugar, say quite half, is disposed of on plantation, weighed and delivered there. If the system of weighing in New Orleans is wrong, it is equally as important to both buyer and seller to have correct weights of the sugar sold on plantation. These two modes of the delivery of the same article would tend to throw discordance either on the one or the other.

By the present system of disposing of sugar and cotton, the factor is the direct agent of the planter, and ought to be presumed to take the same care of his interest in selecting a proper weigher, as in obtaining the best price for the article sold. The direct responsibility of the weigher to the factor, and the factor to the planter, seems to your committee to be much more precise when the weigher is selected by the factor, than if he were appointed by the State.

Any unfaithfulness on the part of the weigher would lead to the loss of his place, whereas if appointed by the State, the remedy would be beyond his control.

The bill furthermore provides that each hogshead of sugar and bale of cotton shall be branded with the name of the weigher, and gross weight thereon. &c. Those formalities would only further complicate the purchase and sale of both articles by unnecessarily retarding their delivery It is doubtful if one-half of the quantity of either sugar or cotton could be thus delivered, than is done by the present method, and in the crowded state of the levee and cotton presses during a large portion of the busy season, the inconvenience would seriously affect the dealing in these articles.

In conclusion, your committee look upon the various premises of the bill as so many restrictions placed upon the commerce of the State, instead of leaving a healthful competition, both as regards the nature of the services to be performed and the compensation.

The committee therefore report against the adoption of the bill, and beg leave to be discharged from further consideration of the subject.

Mr. Lacy, from the Committee on Public Buildings, made the following report:

To the Hon. W. W. Farmer, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate:

The Committee on Public Buildings, to whom was referred the consideration of the joint resolution relative to the improvement of the grounds surrounding the State House, and the alteration of the ceiling of the House of Representatives, begs leave to report that the committee of your honorable body met the committee of the House, with the view of taking into consideration the resolution herein above referred to, and it was the unanimous opinion of the joint committee, that the State House grounds should be surrounded by a suitable iron fence, with a brick foundation, capped with granite; that the ground be properly graded, and planted with trees and shrubs, and otherwise improved; that the banquet around the square of the capitol be paved with suitable brick, laid in cement, with stone curbing; and the inside walk, leading from each gate to the State House, be covered with shells laid in cement. The joint committee was also of the unanimous opinion that it is inexpedient to make any alteration in the ceiling of the Hall of the House of Representatives, and that the small building now occupied by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House be destroyed.

And the committee of your honorable body further report to the Senate that the joint committee did authorize its chairman to invite proposals for estimates, plans, and specifications of the works herein above referred to, and to pay the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars of the estimates, plans and specifications which may be adopted by the committee; provided such estimates, plans and specifications be finished on or before Thursday, the 9th February, 1854; that on the day last mentioned, several plans, estimates, &c., were laid before the committee, and after due deliberation, it was unanimously resolved that the plans, estimates and specifications of Charles Ritter, be adopted by the committee, which plans, estimates and specifications are returned by the committee to the House of Representatives, whence the original resolution proceeded.

Your committee further represents unto your honorable body, that according to the estimates of the said Ritter, the expense of the work recommended by your committee will be as follows:

Iron Railing—1600 feet, with brick base and granite cap	$13,498 40
Sidewalks—Grading, sloping, paving, curbing, &c	4,331 84
Improvement of the Grounds—For grading the ground, making walks, and planting trees	3,800 00
Total amount	$21,630 24

being the cheapest estimate submitted to the commee.

Your committee cannot close this, their report, without stating to your honorable body that in Mr. Ritter the committee found one highly qualified, not only for the making of the plans, specifications and estimates, called for by the committee, but to carry out the works contemplated therein; and your committee don t hesitate to express as their opinion, that it would be of great advantage to the State to accept the offer made by the said Ritter to perform such works at the sum set forth in his accompanying estimate.

Your committee, believing that it has fully discharged the duty assigned it by the resolution of both Houses, begs leave to be discharged from the further consideration thereof, and respectfully recommends to your honorable body the adoption of the resolution annexed to this report, and the passage of the bill accompanying the same.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
Geo. S. Lacey,
M. Boatner.

Resolved, That the sum of one hundred and twenty-five dollars be paid to Charles Ritter, or to his order, out of the contingent fund of the Senate, for plans, specification and estimates furnished by him to the Joint Committee of both Houses, which, together with a like amount to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, will make the sum agreed to be paid to the said Ritter by the aforesaid committee.

On motion of Mr. Lacey the report and resolution was adopted.

Friday, February 24, 1854.

The Claim of J. H. Maddox.

Mr. Lacey, from the Judiciary Committee, made the following report:

To the Hon W. W. Farmer, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate.

The undersigned members of the Judiciary Committee of your honorable body, to which was referred the petition of J. H. Maddox, and the report of the Committee on Claims, enquiring into the legality of the demands set up by said Maddox, beg leave to report.

That in the opinion of this Committee, it was almost impossible, in passing upon the egality of the claim, to discard from consideration the facts applicable thereto; the conclusion of the committee, as to the legality or illegality, had to depend, in a great degree, upon the existence or non existence of a peculiar state of facts, and the committee found itself forced, by the presence of circumstances which it could not control, to enter upon a field of investigation, not perhaps contemplated at the time the memorial and report aforesaid was submitted to the committee.

The first question which presented itself to the mind of the committee was: "Could the State of Louisiana enter into a contract with an individual?" It seemed to the committee that when the State entered into an arrangement with an individual, it divested itself, so far as it concerned the several transactions connected with that arrangement, of its sovereign character, and acquired the character and position of a private citizen. Its powers, its privileges, and its prerogatives were, so far as that transaction was concerned, lost, and the State was placed on a level with the party opposed, and reduced to the position of one who can and does contract. This opinion was greatly strengthened by the decision in 4 Gill and Johnson, McC. Rep. Canal v Rail-road Company, wherein the doctrine is laid down, that a sovereign State, or the General Government in its sovereign capacity, can contract with an individual. The committee does not doubt the correctness of the position, and unhesitatingly reports to the Senate, that the State of Louisiana could enter into a contract with a private individual.

"Has any contract been made and entered into by and between the State of Louisiana, on the one part, and the petitioner Joseph H. Maddox, on the other?"

At the session of the Convention of 1852, by which body the State was represented, the claimant was appointed printer, (page 5,) and the "character" and price of his work was fixed, as will be seen by reference to the Report of the special Committee on page 20 of the journals of the Convention.

The quantity was established by two resolutions, subsequently adopted, one of them July 20, 1852, (page 50) providing that the printer to the Convention, should print 1000 copies of the debates in English, and 500 copies in French, and the other, passed July 31, 1852. (page 86) declaring that one thousand copies of the debates in English and five hundred in French, be printed in addition to the number already ordered.

These facts established, on the part of the State, the choice of Mr Maddox, as printer to the Convention, and develop the character, quantity and price of the work, she called upon him, through the Convention, to perform—the entry by the petitioner, upon the duties of his office, shows his acceptance of the tendered trust upon the stipulated terms; and the whole when thrown together, established upon these principles of law, which the State herself has laid down as guides to others, that a contract had been entered into between herself and Mr. Maddox.

A contract consists of a proposition, and the consent to it; and the agreement is complete, when the acceptance of the person to whom it is proposed, "is made known"—no technical words are needed to create, or to define it, the mere operation of the mind is required, and that operation, in cases similar to the present, may be shown, by any legal evidence. Civil Code 1791, 1794.

To the minds of the Committee it was clear, that the State of Louisiana could enter into an agreement with the petitioner and that she did legally and actually contract with him, for the printing of 2000 copies of the debates in English, and 1000 in French, upon the following terms: for the printing of two hundred copies in book form, in French and English, and printed in minion, and compared with the matter published in the journal, the pages to have eighty-one lines in length, including the title, the blank line under the title and the foot line, the books to be stitched and bound in the same manner as law books, $2 50 each page; and for every 200 copies after the first 200, two dollars per page; and the Committee in the investigation of this matter, having arrived thus far, towards a final conclusion, next directed its attention to the solution of the following points, viz:

Has the applicant, Joseph H. Maddox, held himself ready at all times, to comply with the duties devolving upon him, relative to the printing of the debates, and the insertion thereof in the daily and weekly paper; has not the State failed in the performance of the conditions stipulated on her part; and does the readiness on the part of Maddox, and the failure on the part of the State, entitle the former to indemnity?

The first testimony to which the Committee referred, was the affidavit of the applicant himself, in which he states "that in order to hold himself in readiness to finish this contract with the State, he was unable to give his time and attention and means to other work—that he had to keep matter setting up for a long time, and consequently unable to use the types. The next evidence was the testimony of Thadeus D. Vanhorn, who states under oath, "that the office commenced the printing and publishing of the debates of the Convention, and continued to print while copy was supplied by the Reporter Edwards. That deponent frequently called upon Mr. Edwards, to obtain the manuscript of the proceedings from the Reporter, but could get nothing from him after the first few pages.

The sworn statements of L. Graham were next considered, by which it was shown, "a small portion of copy was furnished the office by Mr Edwards, the Reporter of the Convention, which was put into type and struck off at once; after this he could get no more manuscript from the Reporter; he had to keep the matter standing, and waiting for him, and could use the type for no other purpose."

In the early part of the Legislature of 1853, Mr. McCay, introduced into the Senate, a resolution instructing the Librarian, to correspond with the Reporter of the late Convention, and learn the reasons why the debates of that body, had not been reported and printed. Under this resolution, the Librarian opened a communication with Mr. Edwards, the Reporter, under date May 7, 1853, and received in reply to the same the answer of the Reporter of June 13, 1853. In this reply Mr Edwards says: "That as soon as I may be able, or fortunate enough to recover my health, so far as to enable me to write a page without entirely losing the subject, I shall review the writing of the debates and continue them until completed." Not long after this time Reporter died, without having made a manuscript of the debates.

The claimant answered the call upon him in accordance with the facts of the case, expressing his desire to proceed with the work, which he was prevented from doing, by the Reporter not furnishing him with the copy. The evidence herein above referred to, satisfied the Committee of the good faith and readiness, which existed on the part of Maddox, and left it no room to doubt, that the State, through its convention, or rather through her officer, the Reporter for such convention, had been guilty of omissions, laches and delays, and had been clearly put in default by the printer Maddox. Then arose the question, does the readiness on the part of the claimant and the failure on the part of the State, entitle the former to indemnity?

The Legislature of the State of Louisiana in article 1924 of the Civil Code, has declared that "the obligations of contracts extending to whatsoever is incident to such contracts, the party who violates them is liable, as one of the incidents of his obligations, to the payment of damages which the other party has sustained by his default, and as the Committee could discover no good reason why the State should be subjected to a less stringent rule than the one which she has laid down for the government of her citizens, they have concluded that it would be but common justice to hold her up to the payment of any damages or losses, which may have been produced by her laches; nor is this conclusion arbitrary and unsupported by authority; on the contrary precedents, sustaining the opinion of the Committee, may be found both in legislature and judicial forums. 6, New Hampshire Reports, page 494, Marsterton vs Mayor, 7, Hill, N. York Reports. In the latter case, the question of damages was well discussed, and the right of indemnity fully determined, that so far as private individuals are concerned.

Judd v. Comstock, N. Y. Reports, p. 411.

The history of the above case is this:

James Jones and Edward Jones sued Judd in the Court of Common Pleas of Cattaragus county, for the price of labor.

The defendant contracted with the State to complete certain sections of the Genesee Valley Canal. He entered into a sub contract with the plaintiffs for a part of the same work. The work of the canal, including that on which the plaintiffs were engaged, was stopped by the Canal Commissioners before they had completed their job, and they never finished it. The Legislature passed the act to "preserve the credit of the State," which put an end to the original contract between defendants and the State.

The performance of the required condition having become impossible by the act of the law, the Court held that the plaintiffs were entitled to indemnity, as the non fulfillment of the contract resulted from no fault of theirs.

Subsequently, the Legislature refunded Judd the damages obtained by defendants in this case, the Committee then considered some remarkable precedents under the Federal Government. Under a contract with the War Department, Nimrod Farron and others stipulated to erect a certain fortification on Dauphin Island. The contractors proceeded to the execution of the work. They made all the necessary preparation for the performance of their contract. The requisite appropriation was withheld by Congress, the work was discontinued, and the contractors dismissed. For this breach on the part of the Federal Government, the contractors claimed full indemnity. By an act of Congress the claim was referred to a Commissioner to ascertain the amount of profits which would have resulted from the completion of the work. The Commissioner, Mr. Swan, a lawyer of eminent ability, made his award, allowing full profits. This award was sanctioned by Congress. Nimrod Farron & Co. received under this award as profits, upwards of $70,000, in consideration of the violation of the contract on the part of the Federal Government. See report H. R., second session 25th Congress, doc 56.

So, also in consequence of the failure of the Federal Government to designate the spot in which the fortification was to be erected. In this case the Commissioner decided that it would be just and reasonable, that profit should be allowed to the contractors which might have been made by the employment of their laborers.

See also the act for the relief of Peter Barges, United States Statutes at Large, vol. 6, 760.

Again, Blair & Rives were in 1840 elected printers to the H. R. United States. It became necessary during the vacation to publish a compendium of the census. Mr. Webster, not considering that this work came under the contract of Blair & Rives, as printers to the House of Representatives, placed it into the hands of Thomas Allen, the editor of the Madisonian at that time, to be done. Blair & Rives protested against the exercise of such a power on the part of Mr. Webster, and claimed that they were the proper parties to execute the work, upon which they petitioned Congress for full compensation, as if they had completed the whole work. This claim was settled by a full indemnity.

Reference may also be had to the report in Congress for allowing damages when the government failed to fulfill its contracts, &c., &c. See 2d session 22d Congress, vol 1, doc No. 1. See American Jurist, October 1833, act 3, page 251, for an able disquisition as regards the fulfillment of a contract by the Government, in which the doctrine is recognized that the Government is answerable in damages on the allowance of profits whenever, by its own actions or its officers, a contract is violated

The Committee do not feel authorized to conclude this report without referring fully to the details of the case connected with the Chickasaw Indians By the treaty of Pontotoc, 20th April, 1816, the Chickasaw Indians stipulated to remove West of the Mississippi river, and the General Government to furnish them with the means of doing so. To carry into effect the stipulation, a contract was entered into with Capt Buckner. When the Chickasaws assembled at Memphis, only 300 could be persuaded to go by the boats, the balance of the tribe refused to do so, and traveled by land to the country allotted to them West of the Mississippi. For all these Indians who thus went by land, Captain Bucker charged the same price for transportation as if they had gone in his boats, and for this he was allowed and paid the sum of $37,749, in other words he was paid for transporting on boats Indians who had traveled through by land.

With these facts and authorities before the Committee, it could not refuse to acknowledge that the claimant is entitled to indemnification, and are, moreover, constrained to say, that the measure of such indemnity ought not to be less than the damage sustained by Mr. Maddox, and the amount of profits which would have resulted from the completion of the stipulated job.

The Committee has not felt itself authorized to investigate the "quantum" of the claim, and in order that the question and others, material to the matter in hand, be properly and rigidly investigated, the Committee prays your honorable body to pass the accompanying resolution.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed: GEORGE S. LACEY,
B. L. HODGE,
THOS S. McCAY.

Resolved, That the Committee on Claims be instructed to ascertain the amount which Joseph H. Maddox is entitled to demand from the State on his alleged claim, and that they be also instructed to inquire whether the sum of $3010, received by him under an act of the last Legislature, was not received in full payment of all he demanded against the State, growing out of the printing of the debates, and the publication of the same in the daily and weekly paper.

On motion of Mr. Lacey one hundred copies of this report were ordered to be printed.

Mr King, from the same Committee, submitted the following

MINORITY REPORT.

To the Hon. W. W. Farmer, President of the Senate—

The undersigned members of the Judiciary Committee to whom was referred the legality of the claim of Joseph H. Maddox against the State, as Printer to the Convention, ask leave to present the following report:

The history of the present claim is understood by us to be substantially as follows:

When the State Convention to frame a new Constitution for the State, assembled in 1852, they resolved to elect a Printer for the Convention At the election which subsequently occurred, the present claimant was elected Printer by the Convention. The Convention also elected a Reporter to report the debates of the Convention. The Reporter died before he finished making the reports. During the last session of the Legislature, Mr. Maddox presented his bill for printing such of the debates as had been finished by the Reporter, and was paid for the same by an appropriation amounting to about $3010. He had been previously paid for all other printing done by him for the Convention. At the present session he again appears before us and urges a claim, as we understand, which will amount to upwards of fifteen thousand dollars, additional compensation, based upon the following considerations:

He alleged that the Reporter of the Convention died without having furnished him with the debates of that body. He further alleges that if the said Reporter had furnished him the debates to print, he would have made the above amount of profits by printing the same.

He also alleges that in order to get prepared to do the printing of the Convention, he was under the necessity of incurring considerable expenses, in purchasing the requisite type, &c, for the execution of the work. For this outlay he contends he is entitled to some indemnity.

Every question of law must be determined in reference to some statement of the facts. The foregoing are believed by the undersigned to be the material facts involved in the proposed inquiry, to wit: the legality of the claim in question.

Under the above circumstances, the undersigned are of opinion that Mr. Maddox, by his election, became a public officer of the Convention. The duties of his office were to print such matter as was furnished to him by the Convention.

The principle that public officers, so far as the sovereign State is concerned, have no vested right either in the tenure of their office or the duties assigned to them, has been too long settled, both by legal authority and the practice of all governments, to be now controverted. In illustration of this principle we need only refer to the history of Louisiana. Under the mandates of their sovereigns the Spanish and French officers gave up their places and government to the officers of the United States at the time of the execution of the treaty of cession. The judges appointed for life and the other officers of the territorial government, in like manner, yielded their places upon the admission of Louisiana into the Union. The judges appointed for life under the Constitution of 1812, and other officers whose terms of office had not expired, gave up their places upon the organization of the government under the Constitution of 1845.

More recently, we have seen the Governor of the State, the Judges of our Courts, and many other officers, whose terms of office had not expired, yielding their places to their successors under the Constitution of 1852. None of these persons would probably have yielded their offices, if it had been understood they had a vested right in their offices, which it was understood that not even the sovereign power could disturb or divest. The tenure of an office is always subject to the sovereign will of the Government when legitimately expressed.

The law is equally certain with regard to the duties of an office. The sovereign power may add to them or diminish them, without in either event giving rise to any legal claim for increased compensation or damages for diminished revenues. If the officer considers himself aggrieved by the change he always has a very ready remedy for his grievances, to wit: his resigning. It is the settled law of this country, that every civil officer may resign when he pleases, and neither the President of the United States, nor any other power in this government, can compel him to serve against his will.

Such being the well settled principles of law, it only remained to apply them to the case of Mr. Maddox.

The Convention being an assemblage of the people of the State in their highest sovereign capacity, had the undoubted right to dismiss him at their pleasure, without giving rise on his part to any legal claim against the State. Their right either to increase or diminish his duties was equally certain.

Public officers have no right to complain of the exercise of this power, for they are presumed to be cognizant of the incidents necessarily coupled with their acceptance of office. Mr Maddox became bound by his acceptance of the office, to do whatever printing the Convention gave him to do. If he could not comply with this obligation, it was his duty to resign If he printed the matter furnished him he had against the State a claim for the stipulated compensation. If such a claim had existed against an individual, he would have had a legal right to recover it, and could do so by suit in the proper court. Beyond this, he had no legal right whatever. The idea that he had a legal right to recover from the State what he might have made, if the Convention had given him more business to do, is to our minds preposterous. Every officer of the State might urge claims to extra compensation upon similar grounds, especially where his emoluments are derived from fees of office—for most of them might say with great propriety, that they could have done more work and have made more money if the State had given them more to do.

We now propose briefly to examine the equitable claim of Mr. Maddox.

Every person who becomes a candidate for a public office guarantees to the public that he is able and competent to perform the duties of that office. The competitors of Mr Maddox for the office doubtless represented themselves, and probably were competent to comply with this implied guaranty. Whether it cost Mr. Maddox one cent or a million of dollars to get ready to comply with this guaranty, is a matter with which the State has no concern whatever. If he was not competent and prepared to comply with the duties of the office, he should never have accepted it. He should have left the field open to others, who would have probably gladly undertaken it and have complied with the duties of the office. He has, therefore, on this account, no shadow of equitable claim.

As for his claim for what he might have made if the Convention had furnished him with more printing to do, he might with equal propriety ask for the profits he might have made upon a reprint of all the books in the State Library. Upon the same basis, our printer for this session might bring in a claim for profits which he might have made, not upon all the documents which he might think we ought to have published, but also upon all the documents he might think we should have written. Such a position, we think, unworthy of further refutation.

We have been referred in the memorial of the claimant to various legal authorities. After a cursory examination, we think it is apparent they are wholly inapplicable to the present case.

Most of the cases referred to were where the State had actually made a special contract with an individual.

There is no doubt that a sovereign may enter into a special contract, and when made is under all the moral obligations that would bind an individual under similar circumstances. But we have previously shown that such is not the relation between the State and a public officer.

A public officer is always under the control of the sovereign authority, and there is no contract either as to the tenure, the duties or emoluments of his office and cannot legally complain of the exercise of this power by the sovereign. The idea of a contract in the present case, is not at all justified by the facts or by the theory of our form of government.

The case of Blair & Rives is not one in point. They were the lawful printers of Congress. The Secretary of the United States gave printing, to which they were entitled by the laws, to another person. In so doing, the Secretary of State acted contrary to the law, and deprived them of work and profits to which they were legally entitled.

Mr. Maddox does not complain that printing to which he was entitled by law, was given to other persons. To make the two cases at all analogous, he should have shown that the Secretary of the Convention or some other subordinate officer of that body, gave out printing to which he was entitled, to some other person, and that the recipient of these illegal favors had made profits to which the printer of the Convention was lawfully entitled. Mr. Maddox makes no such allegations. The cases are not analagous, and the authority is inapplicable.

In conclusion, we beg leave to express the opinion that there is not a particle of foundation for the claim of Mr. Maddox, neither in law nor equity; it is wholly unsupported by either justice or precedent.

An account shall be opened in the books of the Treasurer and Auditor, of all money raised and received under this act, and shall be kept forever as a separate fund.

And if any free negro shall refuse to pay said tax, then the Collector shall institute legal proceedings against said delinquent, as in other cases of delinquent tax payers, and in the absence of property, it shall be lawful when execution is issued, to seize and take into custody the person of said delinquent, and to hire the same out at public auction, or to such person or persons as will advance said tax and costs, for the shortest term of service from said free negro.

MONDAY, February 27, 1854.

After the reading of the journals, Mr. Moore said:

Before the Clerk carries the bills to the other House, I consider it my duty to move a reconsideration of the vote on the bill I introduced the other day to repeal a certain section, of a certain act in reference to the public lands. I was in a state of excitement at the time, about a bill I had introduced, concerning the withdrawal of certain public lands from sale, and I find the effect of the bill would be to stop the sales of all lands. I had no such intention. I was led into the error by the observation of those around me. I am always willing to rectify my mistakes when I find I am in error.

The vote was reconsidered and the bill laid on the table indefinitely.

THE JUDICIAL SALES BILL.

Mr. King, from the majority of the Special Committee to which was referred the bill to regulate the Succession Sales in the parish of Orleans, made a report accompanied with a bill.

Mr. Kenner—

I wish to make a remark, personal to myself, in relation to the bill reported by the committee. It will be recollected that on my motion, the orginal bill introduced by the Senator from New Orleans,

Digitized by Google

(Mr. King) was referred to a Special Committee. The President of the Senate did me the honor to name me as a member of that committee This was three or four weeks since. I will now state, for the information of the Senate, that I never have been told by the Chairman of that committee, or by any one else, when a meeting was to be held. Every thing, so far as I knew anything about it, was kept strictly secret, and the first I hear on the subject as the report of the committee. I was exceedingly anxious to take part in the deliberations of the committee. I wished to propound certain inquiries which I thought important and necessary to a full elucidation of the subject, and I wanted also to present a counter report. I say this with all due respect to the committee. I wish to be guilty of no discourtesy, but I consider it my duty to state the facts of the case to the Senate, leaving members to draw their own inferences.

Mr. King—

I must say, sir, that I regret extremely that the gentleman feels himself agrieved by the action of the committee; but I do not see why he should think himself peculiarly slighted From the date of the appointment of the committee up to this moment, I do not believe there has been a time when all the members were present On Friday last, a meeting of the committee was called, and if the gentleman had been here, he would certainly have been notified of the fact; and I can say sincerely, that nothing would have given me greater pleasure than his presence at the meeting. I am as unwilling to inflict a discourtesy on any one as the gentleman himself, and I think I have equally as just an appreciation of what is due to my brother Senators. But it was absolutely necessary for the committee to meet at some time. The session was drawing to a close; there was a larger number of members then present than there had previously been at any one time and I thought that was the proper moment to call them together. I did not see any necessity to defer the meeting, since delay might have again reduced the number of members in attendance.

Mr. McCay—

As the Senator from Ascension, (Mr. Kenner) seems desirous of making a report, in order to have his views on this bill spread upon the journal, I move to make it the order of the day for Wednesday next, with leave to Mr. Kenner to make a report.

Mr. Rivers—

I move that the bill be recommitted.

Mr. Kenner—

I would remark, in reply to the observations of the Senator from New Orleans, (Mr. King) that the committee has been formed for several weeks, and that no meeting was called, although I was here all the time, for a long period. I met the gentleman on Thursday last, and told him of my intention to leave, so that he must have known of my absence, yet it appears he took advantage of that fact to call the committee together and make a report.

Mr. McCay—

I see no objection to the motion of the Senator from Concordia. I think we ought to give the gentleman from Ascension a chance to propound those important interrogatories, I second the motion to refer the bill to the same committee.

The bill was recommitted.

COLLECTION OF TAXES.

Mr. Macmurdo reported favorably on the bill for the relief of the Sheriff of the parish of St. Landry, and said:

I will state my reasons for making this report. The parish of St. Landry is several years in arrears, in the making her tax returns to the Auditor's office. The new sheriff is willing to take on himself the duty of collecting the back taxes for those years, but in order to enable him to do it, he requires an extension of the time in which he is compelled to make returns. The Finance Committee thought not only that the request was reasonable, but that it would be of benefit to the State to grant it, because thereby a large amount of taxes would be secured which otherwise might be lost

The bill passed.

RAILROAD BONDS.

Mr. Macmurdo called up the following bill, to authorize the city of New Orleans to issue bonds in favor of the Jackson and Great Northern, and the Opelousas railroads, in place of the taxation.

An Act providing for the subscription by the city of New Orleans to the Stock of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, and the Stock of the New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad Company.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State Louisiana, in General Assembly convened: That it shall be lawful for the Common Council of the city of New Orleans to subscribe to the stock of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, in a sum not exceeding two millions of dollars, and also to subscride to the stock of the New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad Company, in a sum not exceeding one million five hundred thousand dollars.

Sec 2 Be it further enacted, &c.; That any ordinance authorizing such subscriptions shall contain the following provisions, to wit:

1st. A statement of the number and amount of shares for which the city subscribes.

2d. That the subscription of the city shall be made by the Mayor, and shall be payable in bonds of said city for one thousand dollars each, having twenty years to run, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, with interest coupons attached payable semi-annually in New Orleans or New York, as the Company entitled to receive them may prefer, transferable by the endorsement of the President and Secretary of said Company, and convertible into the stock of said Company, at the option of the holder, at any time within ten years after their date.

3d. That a special tax on real estate and slaves shall be levied in January of each year, sufficient to pay the annual interest on said bonds, specifying the rate of said tax, which shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as the consolidated Loan Tax of said city; and all ordinances, resolutions or other acts, passed by said council after the first day of January in each year except an ordinance to impose said consolidated Loan Tax, shall be null and void, unless a resolution imposing a special tax for the payment of the interest on said bonds issued to the Railroad Companies, herein named, shall have been previously passed. Provided, that no levy of a tax for the payment of interest on said bonds, shall be made after the payment of dividends of six per cent. per annum on the stock of said Companies, held by the city, as hereinafter provided, which dividends shall be applied by the City to the payment of the interest. And provided further, that whenever the dividends on said Railroad Stock of the City shall amount to more than six per cent. per annum, the excess, after the payment of interest, shall be applied to the purchase of the City bonds issued under the provisions of this act; it being understood that when dividends for less than six per cent. per annum are received on the railroad stock of the city, a tax for interest shall be levied for the difference only between the amount of the said annual dividends and the amount of the annual interest.

4th. That immediately after the passage of the ordinance authorizing the subscription, and its approval by the voters of the city, as hereinafter provided, the Mayor shall cause bonds to be issued to each of said Railroad companies for a per centage of the City subscription equal to the per centage which may have been previously called by the Board of Directors of said Railroad Companies, respectively, on the subscriptions of private stock holders in the city of New Orleans; and thereafter, that he shall cause bonds to be issued to each of said Companies for the same per centage that may be demanded from private stockholders, under any subsequent call of said Boards

5th. A repeal of an ordinance of the Common Council of New Orleans, approved May 13th, 1852 entitled "An ordinance providing for the subscription by the city of New Orleans to the stock of the New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad Company," and of an ordinance approved May 17th, 1852, entitled "An ordinance providing for the subscription by the city of New Orleans to the stock of the New Orleans Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company." Provided, the repeal of said ordinances shall not be so construed as to relieve the city from the liability to collect and pay over to said Railroad companies that portion of the Railroad tax, imposed under said ordinances, for the year 1853, which has not yet been collected and paid over to said companies.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c.; That the City bonds issued to said Railroad Companies shall be received by them as cash, and said Railroad Companies shall issue to the city of New Orleans, therefor, certificates of stock for an amount equal to the amount of the bonds received; and the stock of the said companies, thus issued to the city of New Orleans, shall remain forever pledged for the redemption of said bonds; provided, however, that any holder of said bonds, who may desire to convert them into the capital stock of the Railroad Company to which they may have been issued, shall, on application to the Treasurer of said city, and on surrender to him of the bonds to be converted, receive from said Treasurer a transfer of the stock represented by the bonds surrendered, and said bonds shall be immediately cancelled.

Sec. 4 Be it further, enacted, &c; That no ordinance passed by the Common Council, in conformity with this act, shall be valid or take effect until it shall have been approved and ratified at an election to be held for that purpose by order of the Common Council, by a majority of the voters of the city, who have the right, under existing laws, of voting at city elections. Said election shall take place within fifteen days after the passage of the ordinance—be preceded by a public notice of ten days, to be published by the Mayor in two or more of the city newspapers, and shall, in all respects where not herein otherwise provided, be conducted in the manner prescribed by law for city elections: Provided, that if the Common Council refuse to subscribe to the stock of the Railroad Companies herein named, in the manner set forth in this act, it shall be lawful at any subsequent period, and as often as the Council may deem proper, at intervals of not less than two months, for said Council to reconsider the premises, and should the ordinance, when finally passed by the Council, be rejected by the vote of a majority of the duly qualified voters of the City when first presented to them for ratification, the Council may, at any subsequent period, and as often as they may deem proper, cause the sense of the voters again to be taken, in the same manner as at the first election, at intervals of not less than two months.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c; That no ordinance passed by the Common Council, in conformity with this act, shall be submitted for ratification to the voters who have the right by law to vote at City elections, until the Boards of Directors of said Railroad Companies shall have notified the Mayor in writing, of their consent to accept said ordinance; provided, their acceptance of the ordinance, before it shall have been submitted to the voters of the City for ratification, shall be null and void, in the event of the rejection of the ordinance by said voters.

Sec. 6 Be it further enacted, &c.; That any bonds which may have been issued by either of said railroad companies, and secured by a pledge of the railroad tax, for the year 1854, 1855, 1856 1857, or 1858, levied under the ordinance of the Council, referred to in the second section of the act, and approved May 13th and May 17th, 1852, shall be cancelled by the company which issued the same, before said company shall receive from the city any of the bonds authorized to be delivered for subscription to the stock of said company, by virtue of the act; or if said company prefer, they shall have the right to deposit in the State Bank of Louisiana, an amount in cash sufficient to pay said bonds, so secured by a pledge of the railroad tax, and the interest on said bonds until their maturity; and on the exhibition to the Mayor of the railroad tax bonds cancelled by the company, and a certificate from the cashier of said Bank showing the amount of cash specially deposited for the redemption of the railroad tax bonds not cancelled, and the interest thereon, until maturity, the Mayor shall, if satisfied that the whole of the bonds of the company, secured by a pledge of the railroad tax, have been cancelled or provided for by a deposit in the manner herein directed, deliver the City bonds to which said company may be entitled, on account of the subscription of the city.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c.; That the Common Council shall, in the month of May of each year, elect, by joint ballot, three citizens of New Orleans as directors of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, and the same number as directors of the New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad Company, who shall serve as such for one year, or until their successors shall be elected; provided, no member of either Board of the Common Council or officer of the corporation shall be eligible as a director; and provided further, that on the conversion into stock of one-third of the bonds issued to said companies by the city, the Common Council shall elect but two directors in each of said companies. When two thirds of said bonds shall have been converted, the Council shall elect but one director, and when the whole of said bonds shall have been converted, the Council shall no longer elect any directors.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, &c.; That this Act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Mr. Evans—

I have not been furnished with a copy of the bill, and therefore I cannot say that I comprehend it thoroughly. If I understand its provisions correctly, I shall vote against it. When the bill passes, the city will issue bonds and the people will be taxed to pay the interest on them sooner than under the late law. They are already taxed heavily enough for railroad purposes and there is no necessity to hurry the taxation.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Macmurdo—

The gentleman seems to be in error as to the effects of this bill It does not, as he supposes it does, impose additional taxation, nor does it increase the amount of the State subscription.—The object of the bill is simply to substitute bonds having a long period to run for the direct taxation which is now imposed.

Mr. Evans—

But it raises the amount more speedily. For instance, as soon as these bonds are issued to the company, by the city, the State becomes a subscriber to the amount of one-fifth of an equal sum Of course, therefore, this happens quicker than if we adhere to the existing law, under which a certain amount is raised yearly by taxation.

Mr. Macmurdo—

That is true to a certain extent. But the gentleman must remember that all this does not increase the amount to be drawn from the State Treasury. The State issues her bonds having forty years to run. That is the method she has adopted.

The Secretary read the bill.

THIRD SECTION.

Mr. Delcase—

I do not understand that section. I do not like to vote against the bill or any section of it, but it seems to me that, under that section, there is a chance that the State may suffer loss. I should like the gentleman to explain it.

Mr Macmurdo—

I do not see how the effect alluded to by the gentleman can be produced.

Mr. Defreese—

Will not the State suffer by the depreciation of her stock consequent on the issue of these bonds.

Mr. Macmurdo—It is expected that the security will be of such a kind as to make it equal to six per cent. stock. I do not see any thing to apprehend from the difficulty feared by the gentleman.

FOURTH SECTION.

Mr. Defreese—

Under this law, who is to pay the expenses of these numerous elections?

Mr. Wickliffe—

I move to strike out "two" and insert "three." That will be often enough to hold those elections. I am opposed to tiring out the patience of the people by calling them so often to the polls. The bill may be unpopular; it may be rejected by the people of New Orleans. Why then should we call on them to vote on it again and again.

Mr. Macmurdo—

There can be no doubt of the favorable action of the people of New Orleans on this proposition The time stipulated between the elections is fixed at two months, on account of the necessity of prompt action on the part of the railroad companies. If, by chance, one Council should be opposed to it, and refuse to submit it to the people, another Council may be disposed to do it.

Mr. Evans—

The bill gives the people of New Orleans the power to regulate the action of the State, by placing in their hands the power to decide when the bonds shall be issued by the State.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The gentleman is mistaken in that. The State is already a subscriber.

Mr. Evans—

But if this proposition be adopted by the people of New Orleans, the State will be compelled to issue her bonds sooner than she otherwise would.

Mr. Macmurdo—

That makes no difference. Whether the bonds are issued now or next year, they fall due and are to be paid at the same time.

Mr. Kenner—

I would state to the Senator from West Feliciana, (Mr. Wickliffe) that the Common Council of New Orleans are the representatives of the people of that city. They will, of course, not be willing to harass their constituents unnecessarily. The fears of the gentleman are more imaginary than real.

Mr. Palfrey—

Before the bill is read any farther, I should like to be informed on one point, which I do not, at present, thoroughly understand. How are the rights of real estate owners to be disposed of in reference to the acquiring of stock in the companies by the payment of taxes under the existing law. The act of 1852, says:

"Sec. 4 Be it further enacted, &c.; That if any subscription be made under the terms of this act, the stock so subscribed shall not belong to, nor be administered by the parish, or municipal corporation by which the subscriptions shall be made, but said stock shall belong to the tax payers who shall have paid therefor; and the tax receipt of each tax payer shall entitle him to a certificate, transferable by delivery from the corporation, to which subscription has been made, for an amount equal to the amount of his tax paid; provided, however, that said police jury, or municipal corporation shall be empowered to require such bond and security, and in such sums, from the sheriffs, or collectors of said tax, as they may deem necessary."

The tax payers who have already paid are entitled to a proportionate amount of script. By the bill, the right to that stock is to be conferred on the city alone. I should like to have information on this point. I confess myself easily satisfied.

Mr. Macmurdo—

All such persons as are referred to by the gentleman, will continue to hold the script which has been issued to them. The city will take the rest as provided in the bill. The sixth section makes provision for the manner in which the script already acquired is to be redeemed. The section reads thus:

Sec. 6 Be it further enacted, &c.; That any bonds which may have been issued by either of said railroad companies, and secured by a pledge of the railroad tax, for the year 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857, or 1858, levied under the ordinance of the Council, referred to in the second section of this act, and approved May 13th and May 17th, 1852, shall be cancelled by the company which issued the same, before said company shall receive from the city any of the bonds authorized to be delivered for subscription to the stock of said company, by virtue of the act; or if said company prefer, they shall have the right to deposit in the State Bank of Louisiana, an amount in cash sufficient to pay said bonds, so secured by a pledge of the railroad tax, and the interest on said bonds until their maturity; and on the exhibition to the Mayor of the railroad tax bonds cancelled by the company, and a certificate from the cashier of said Bank showing the amount of cash specially deposited for the redemption of the railroad tax bonds not cancelled, and the interest thereon, until maturity, the Mayor shall, if satisfied that the whole of the bonds of the company, secured by a pledge of the railroad tax, have been cancelled or provided for by a deposit in the manner herein directed, deliver the City bonds to which said company may be entitled, on account of the subscription of the city.

Mr Moore—

Do I understand that there is a provision allowing the city to take, from individuals, the stock already acquired by them?

Mr. Macmurdo—

Not at all. They continue to hold their stock, if they choose.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I have a proviso to offer, providing that the books of the companies be at all times open to the inspection of the Common Council of the city of New Orleans.

Mr. Moore—

By the charters of the companies every stockholder possess that right now.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I must say that I do not like to oppose the Senator from West Feliciana, (Mr. Wickliffe) but I feel constrained to take the sense of the Senate on a motion to lay his proviso on the table. By the charters of the companies, as the Senator from St Martin, (Mr. Moore) has very justly observed, every stockholder has this right now.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I have read in the city newspapers that not long ago, the Council of New Orleans appointed a committee to make a similar investigation, but the company refused to grant permission to the committee to examine the books, saying that the city was not a stockholder, and had no interest in the matter. By this bill, the city becomes a stockholder, but the company may get rid of this by saying that, it is only a substitution of one form for another, and that, therefore, the city, in its corporate capacity, still has no interest. The company may get round the matter in this way.

Mr. Macmurdo—

Every one who was conversant with the facts at the time, remembers why that demand of the Council was refused by the Company. The city was not a subscriber at all, and therefore had no right to make such a demand. The company admitted, in the broadest terms, the right of every stockholder to examine the books. No citizen who had paid the tax, and thus become a stockholder, would have been refused.

Mr. Moore—

As I said before, every stockholder in the company, has a right to examine the books. By the operation of this bill, the city itself becomes a stockholder, and certainly would have a right, through the council, to institute such an examination.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Who represents the individual stockholders? It was said before, that the Council represented them. If they had a right, individually, to examine the books, why had they not a right to do it in bulk as represented by the Council, and what reason was there for the refusal of the Company? I believe if the people had met, and appointed a delegation to make that examination, the Company would still have refused. I want the people, at all times, to have the right of making an examination, in order that they may see whether there has been any foul play. If they subscribe a large amount of money they ought at least to have the privilege of seeing how it has been expended.

Mr. King—

It seems to me that the amendment of the Senator from West Feliciana, (Mr. Wickliffe) will only have the effect which is produced by the already existing law. The gentleman is certainly right in principle. It is in accordance with justice that the stockholders should, at all times, have the right of examining the books of the Company. But there is no necessity for encumbering the bill with amendments which only re-enact the existing law. And moreover, should we adopt this amendment, it might delay and even endanger the bill. It must be recollected that if it be amended the bill will have to go to the other House, and as it is late in the session, this delay might endanger its final passage. The Company is bound, at any time, to submit its books to the inspection of the stockholders. If it refuse, it could easily be compelled to comply.

The bill passed without the amendment.

COLONIZATION.

The following bill was then taken up:

An Act to aid the colonization in Africa of the free people of color in this State.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives, of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That His Excellency the Governor of this State, the Secretary of State, and the Auditor of Public Accounts, and their successors in office, be and they are hereby constituted and denominated "The Colonization Board," any two of whom shall constitute a quorum.

That said Board is hereby authorized to receive donations and bequests, and all taxes raised in this State for colonization, and to apply the funds so received, to the removal of such free negroes to the coast of Africa, as are by law required to be removed, and such others as may choose to remove.

That said Board may sue and be sued in any Court in this State; that said Board shall report all its proceedings to each meeting of the General Assembly, and particularly of all money how received and how disbursed, with the name, residence, age, and sex of each free colored person removed to Africa under this act.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, &c; That an annual tax of one dollar be, and the same is hereby laid upon each free colored person, found within this State, of twenty-one years of age and upwards; That said tax shall be assessed, collected and paid into the Treasury by the same officers, and in the same manner as other State taxes, and it shall be the duty of the Tax Collectors to collect the same, for which service they shall receive five per cent. on the amount collected. An account shall be opened in the books of the Treasurer and Auditor of all money raised and received under this act, and shall be kept forever as a separate fund.

And if any free negro shall refuse to pay said tax, then the Collector shall institute legal proceedings against said delinquent, as in other cases of delinquent tax payers, and in the absence of property, it shall be lawful when execution is issued, to seize and take into custody the person of said delinquent, and to hire the same out at public auction, or to such person or persons as will advance said tax and costs, for the shortest term of service from said free negro.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c.; That whenever the said Board shall be satisfied from the shipper's receipt or otherwise, that any free negro shall have been removed from this State to Africa, or shall have been embarked therefor by the Colonization Society, then the said Board are hereby required to issue their warrant on the Treasurer, payable to the authorized Agent of the Colonization Society, for one hundred dollars for each free negro person so removed, and for subsisting the same a limited time in Africa. And the Treasurer shall pay said warrant on demand; Provided, that the total amount shall at no time exceed the amount appropriated by the provisions of this act.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, &c; That the sum of ten thousand dollars be, and the same is hereby appropriated out of the fund created by this act, for carrying out the objects therein specified.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c.; that this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Martel—

I move to lay the whole bill on the table. I would state that I oppose this bill on the ground of unconstitutionality. I shall call the yeas and nays, with a view of testing the question, whether the bill is not, in the opinion of the Senate, unconstitutional, under Article 30 of our State Constitution, which says:

"All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose amendments, as in other bills; Provided, they shall not introduce any new matter under color of an amendment, which does not relate to raising revenue."

Mr. King—

I move to trike out all that part of the second section after the word "tax-payers" in the seventeenth line. I make this motion in order to save the bill, as I believe it may not pass the other House if it retain its present form.

Mr. Kenner—

Let us not act from any such motive as that. Let us vote for what we think right, without reference to the probable course of the other House, and take the chance of that body's being as sensible as we are. I think that is the proper way Let us act in accordance with our own convictions of right and wrong.

Mr. Ryan—

I would inform the gentleman that I, for one, am not influenced by any such motive, and I am in favor of striking out. I will mention an instance, to illustrate my reason: suppose the case of a free negro, perhaps too old or infirm to labor for his support, and therefore compelled to live on charity—is he to be sold or hired out in case he cannot pay the tax? I think an exception ought to be made in such a case.

Mr. Moore—

The law makes no distinctions.

Mr. Kenner—

I will give my reasons for wishing to retain those words in the bill It is well known that there are two classes of free negroes among us—the resident and the migratory. The latter are those we ought to reach; those who come here only in the winter, and remain but a few months, during which time they may disseminate the most pernicious and fatal doctrines, not only among negroes of their own class, but likewise among our slaves. It is they, whom we ought to reach, and whom we can reach in no other way than in that contemplated by this bill.

Mr. Rivers—

It is very true, as the gentleman remarks, that the migratory class is the one we want to reach. They are the ones who come here and spread doctrines among our slave population not exceeded in atrocity even by those contained in that infamous book of Mrs. Stowe. We want to get hold of those worthless fellows, and sell them or hire them out if they do not pay the tax.

The amendment was rejected, and the bill passed to its third reading.

LITERARY EDUCATION.

The following bill was taken up.

An Act for the advancement of Literary Education.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That whenever the citizens of any parish in this State, shall raise by subscription or otherwise, the sum of eight thousand dollars or more, in cash, for the purpose of building or endowing a College, for either males or females, and shall produce to the Auditor of Public Accounts, the certificate of the Police Jury, of the fact, then the Auditor shall issue his warrant in favor of such College, to one-third of the amount so raised by subscription, for the purpose of aiding such College: Provided, the State will not aid but one college in any one parish.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, &c.; That in case of a rivalry for the location of such College, the Police Jury shall give their certificate, and the Auditor of Public Accounts shall give his warrant in favor of the one, which shall have raised the greatest amount.

Mr. Defreese—

I move to amend by striking out the word 'eight' in the fifth line, and inserting 'one.'

Mr. Rivers—

What good would one thousand do?

Mr Defreese—

I might answer the question by asking what good eight thousand would do?

Mr. Kenner—

We can all very readily perceive that a man might effect an object with eight thousand dollars, which he could not accomplish with one thousand. The gentleman himself would certainly find a great difference between the two cases.

A motion was made to lay the amendment on the table.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Macmurdo—

Before the bill is passed I should like its author to explain how he means to provide for the expenses which will accrue under it. If every parish in the State should take advantage of this bill, at least $100,000 would be required to be drawn from the school fund.

Mr. Defreese—

I do not think it would be taken from the school fund.

Mr. Macmurdo—

So much the worse, for then it would have to be taken from the general fund.

Mr Evans—

I think the State could not devote its money to a better use. It is a very modest sum which is asked, small, indeed, when compared with the reasonably-to-be-anticipated benefits. Gentlemen vote money by the hundreds of thousands for plank-roads, railroads, and enterprises of a similar nature, yet hesitate to appropriate an insignificant sum to an important object like this. I think the cause of education is at least as important as that of railroads and plankroads. I think it as important that the people should be educated as that plankroads and railroads should be built.

Mr. Defreese—

I am as much in favor of popular education as the gentleman from Claiborne (Mr. Evans) and also of high schools and colleges. But I think we should first have common schools to a greater extent than they now exist among us. We should develope our common school system before we commence establishing high schools and universities. Very few parishes will take advantage of this bill. Those parishes which are too poor to take advantage of this bill will be taxed as heavily as those which enjoy all its benefits. I should prefer it to be so framed that all the parishes might be able to reap its advantages. That was the reason for the amendment which I proposed a few moments ago. If the public money is squandered in this way, I should prefer schools established with the small sum of $1000, rather than have none at all. The Senator from Claiborne thinks this bill equally as much entitled to public favor as those railroad projects to which he has alluded. I do not agree with him in this position. This bill, of doubtful expediency at best, will not increase the value of property, or add to the wealth of the State. Railroads, on the contrary, increase the value of real estate for thirty miles on each side of their track. The merits of the project are, therefore, entirely different.

I do not depreciate education. I am as well convinced of its benefit and necessity as any Senator on this floor. I should like to see a college in every parish if they could all be supported. But, let me ask, how many parishes can raise the $8000 required by the bill? There are some, undoubtedly, which could; but even they might be prevented. You all know the disturbances and disagreements which exist in many of the country parishes in consequence of the jealous feeling which subsist between different and rival towns. There are, sometimes, two or three of these little towns in the same parish, and contentions would arise among them in regard to the location of the seminary. Each one would make an effort to raise the $8000, and though jointly they might succeed, yet separately either one would be unable to do it. Those, even the rich parishes, might be unable to take advantage of the law. But suppose they should be able to agree in this matter, who would be benefitted by it? Why, only those who are to send their children to private schools, or to institutions of learning abroad. Will it benefit that class which feels the burthen most, and is least able to bear it? or the class composed of those persons who are able to avail themselves of the advantages of schools in other places? If we take money from the school fund for any purpose, all should enjoy its benefits. All cannot be benefitted by one school in each parish, as there are many tax-payers, good and worthy citizens, who could not afford to send their children to these institutions. I regret to be compelled to oppose any proposition emanating from my esteemed friend, the author of this measure, but for the reasons I have given I feel constrained to decline giving it my support.

Mr. Evans—

The argument of the gentleman, if it be valid against this measure, would be equally applicable to the whole system of popular education. But after all, his argument amounts to very little. If any parish be too poor to take advantage of the provisions of the bill, its inhabitants can send their children to a neighboring parish, which may be more fortunate. In this way all would be enabled to enjoy its benefits.

Mr Key—

The bill does not, in any respect, conflict with the general law. If any parish succeed in raising this sum for the purpose of establishing a school of a higher character than the ordinary common schools, it should be indulged and encouraged in so laudable an undertaking. We are in the habit of appropriating sums of money for various purposes which we consider of public utility. We have, for instance, given large amounts for the University of Louisiana situated in the city of of New Orleans. Many of our people are not able to send their children there, and it is nothing more than reasonable that we should enable them to enjoy the same advantages which we have placed within reach of others. If any parish should raise the amount of money required by the bill, the State could do no better than to give the small sum proposed.

Mr. Palfrey—

I desire to offer an amendment, which I presume will not encounter any objection, and which will make the section a little clearer, without altering it in any material way.

The amendment was adopted.

Mr. Defreese—

I would move, if in order, to strike out eight and insert three. I do not wish to make a factious opposition to the bill, but I want to put it in such a shape that all the parties can derive advantage from it.

Mr. Moore—

I will state some of my reasons for voting against this bill. If we are to endow colleges, this is a very good way of effecting our design. But there are objections to the measure. Our taxes are already so great that they reach three times the amount they were in 1845. In my section of the State we pay three times as much taxes, while our property is worth very little more than it was. I am willing to do anything for the advancement of popular education. I am now an old man, but it is not long since I served as a director of our public schools, and I am willing to be taxed for their support. But I am not willing to see our money squandered in objects of doubtful expediency. Even merit is frequently given to teachers who do not teach the children. We divide the money in proportion to the number of pupils, and thus parishes which pay little receive much. What we want is a good system of primary education. Till we have secured that it is useless to build or endow colleges. I shall propose that this money be taken out of the school fund belonging to each parish, and then if a parish wants to take advantage of the bill it can do so. So far as my parish is concerned, I am confident the people do not want a college till they have good common schools. Now, I regret to say, the schools are misdirected, instead of directed. I have seen common schools in some sections of the country well conducted, but they are not so in my parish. The gentleman from Concordia (Mr Rivers) says there are no schools in his parish, yet it probably pays a larger proportion than any other parish in the State. I repeat that I am not opposed to education. On the contrary, I should like to see its blessings diffused among all the people. I feel deeply on the subject. I came to this State a poor boy of thirteen years of age, and from that day to this I have never been to school. I can, therefore, appreciate the evils of non education. I repeat that what we want is a good system of primary education. We certainly do not need colleges till we have pupils to send to them. Let me ask, who would be benefitted by this measure? Not the poor, surely. They are not able to send their children to a boarding school and support them there. They have already paid largely, and in addition pay a poll tax.

Now we would treble the tax for the benefit of a very small portion of the community, perhaps not amounting to one fourth.

Mr. Rivers—

I have no objection to this bill, provided it does not interfere with our present school system. I shall propose an amendment to follow the other proposed amendment providing that the State shall in no case be liable for more than the third of $8000, and with this amendment I move that the whole subject be referred back to the Committee on Education.

Mr. Martel—

I move to lay the amendment of the gentleman from St Martin on the table.

Mr. Rivers—

I again move to recommit the bill with all the amendments proposed, to the Committee on Education, so as to have it put into such a shape as to meet the exigencesof the case.

The bill was recommitted.

MOTIONS IN ARREST OF JUDGMENT.

The bill to prevent motions in arrest of judgment, after the rendering of a verdict, was taken up

Mr. Wickliffe—

I am opposed to that bill. I am opposed to taking from the criminal any of the rights he enjoys under the common law.

Mr. King—

This, sir, is a subject of no trivial importance, but one which demands our most anxious attention. We all know that one of the most common expedients to which criminals resort, in order to escape punishment, is an arrest of judgment, after being convicted, on account of some flaw in the indictment. After the verdict is rendered, the lawyer looks at the indictment, finds some flaw, and says, "My client cannot be convicted under this." He then makes a motion in arrest of judgment, and thus the criminal escapes, and goes unwhipt of justice. In several of the States this is not the case. The accused person is compelled to make his objections to the indictment before the cause goes to trial. The gentleman says he wants the criminal to retain all the rights he enjoys under the common law. I, on the contrary, want crime prevented or punished. I wish the criminal to reap the just reward of his violation of the law. In England even, the birth-place of the common law, this absurd system has been abolished. I would state here, what, however is doubtless known to all, that our Constitution prevents a person from being placed twice in jeopardy for the same offence, so that if he escape once, after a verdict rendered, there is no way of bringing him to justice. When once discharged on a motion for arrest of judgment, he is free from prosecution thenceforth. This absurd anomaly ought to be abolished here, as it has been in England. We should not shape our legislation to favor criminals, but rather to punish or prevent crime. If the opposite theory is the true one, we might as well abolish our criminal law at once, and permit crime to be perpetrated with impunity. I have often heard persons express sympathy with criminals. I, sir, have none of it. It is a false sentiment, and tends to encourage crime. I have no desire to see a criminal go unwhipt of justice. As to the dangers to be anticipated from abolishing the misnamed rights, they are purely imaginary. I venture to say that not once in a thousand times is a criminal convicted unjustly.

Because the prosecuting officer may have omitted to cross a t or dot an i, is no reason that the culprit should go unpunished. It is no good reason for permitting the ends of justice to be defeated.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The gentleman seems to think that I want criminals to go unpunished. He is laboring under a mistake. I wish to see crime punished as much as he can desire it; but at the same time I want every man to enjoy all the rights which are now extended to him by the common law—that law which has its glorious guarantee in the charter wrested from the tyrant John by the stout Barons at Runnymede. The gentleman says that under this system many criminals go unwhipt of justice. There is no doubt that such may sometimes be the case. But if an ignorant or negligent attorney knows not how to draw up an indictment, let the State suffer, not an individual. There is the law, its mandates are positive and intelligible. Let the District Attorney, the officer of the State—let him do his duty in accordance with the law, and no criminal can escape through such a cause.

Mr. King—

If the gentleman wishes to defeat this bill, let him do so fairly. If the country wishes this absurd feature of the law retained, let it be retained. The reason for this bill is that when a criminal is discharged for such a cause as this he cannot be brought to trial again. Therefore he ought to be made to say, beforehand, whether he considers the indictment defective and not permitted to make the objection after a verdict has been rendered. This certainly does not interfere with any rights of the accused. It is not unreasonable; it does not prevent his having a fair trial. It cannot be unfair that he should make his objection before the rendition of the verdict; and that is certainly the sensible course to pursue. A criminal should not be suffered to escape through the tricks of lawyers. It seems to me, however, that I am discussing what must be evident to the common sense of every man. A scoundrel, guilty of every crime, is not likely, when brought to trial, to mention a defect in the indictment before the jury goes out, when no good, a means of escape is presented by remaining silent till after that time. But when the verdict is rendered, he comes forward and says: "this is all an idle mockery, there is a flaw in the indictment, and I could not be convicted under it." Thus he escapes the reward of his crimes—he goes free into the world with the blood of his fellow-man upon his hands, or enriched by the spoils of his victim, and ready to commit fresh outrages on society.

Mr. McCay—

I would suggest the propriety of deferring this bill. It is, as the gentleman remarks, a subject of no trivial importance, and therefore ought not to be lightly considered. I am at all times loth to consent to a change of the common law without grave reasons in favor of the change. In this case, I am under the impression that my colleague has not stated the law accurately. He seems to imagine that the omission to dot an i or cross a t, would vitiate an indictment. This is a mistake. The process is much the same as in civil cases; by a demurrer beforehand, and a motion in arrest of judgment afterwards. In the city of New Orleans, three-fourths of the criminals go to trial without having counsel, and it is only through the intervention of some friend that witnesses are summoned in their behalf. The court, on the spur of the moment, appoints some lawyer to defend them, and he of course being ignorant of all the circumstances of the case cannot do justice to his extempore client; in addition to which, he is usually a novice, having little experience or knowledge of the law, though he may be an aspirant anxious for some opportunity to distinguish himself. Being appointed at such a moment he has no opportunity to examine the indictment, and therefore I compelled to do it after the jury has retired. The gentleman may think this all wrong; he may tell us that scoundrels frequently escape with blood upon their hands; but is that not better than that the innocent should suffer, or even the guilty be deprived of his rights.

Digitized by Google

Mr. King—

The motion in arrest of judgment is never made until after the verdict is rendered Now, sir, I repeat, what I said before, that not in one case in a thousand is an innocent person convicted by a jury; though frequently rascals are suffered to escape I contend that the law allows too much latitude already, and that we ought not suffer criminals to escape on account of some informality in an indictment which might be objected to as well before the verdict as after it. What I said about crossing a t and dotting an i though it seems to have been understood literally by my colleague, was of course intended only metaphorically; and so, I trust, the Senate understood it As to the defective indictment, it ought to be objected to before the trial, and not afterwards, when it would be fatal to the ends of justice.

The bill was ordered to be printed.

AFRICAN COLONIZATION—SPECIAL ORDER OF THE DAY.

The Senate resumed the consideration of a bill entitled:

An act to aid the colonization in Africa of the free people of color in this State.

On motion of Mr King, the second section of the bill was reconsidered.

Mr. Martel moved to lay the bill indefinitely on the table, and called for the yeas and nays.

Hon. W. W. Farmer, President of the Senate, in the chair;

Messrs. Martel, Lacoste and Richardson—3 yeas

Messrs Clifton, Defreese, Evans, King, Kenner, Key, Kittridge, Lawes, Macmurdo, Munday, Moore, Pulfrey, Ryan, Rivers, Scott, Taylor and Wickliffe—17 nays.

Consequently, the motion to lay on the table was lost.

Mr. King moved as an amendment to the 2d section, to strike out in the 4th line, the word "upwards," and insert the words "under sixty."

And to insert in the 10th line, after the word "collected," the words "The Assessors shall receive a like compensation for assessing."

Mr. Defreese moved as an amendment to insert at the end of the 13th line, after the word "fund," the words "chargeable to the said fund."

Mr King moved to strike out all after the words "Tax payers," in the 17th line, until the end of the section.

On motion of Mr. Rivers, Mr King's motion was laid on the table.

Mr. Wickliffe offered the following to be inserted at the end of the section under consideration:

Provided, that the provisions of this bill shall not apply to any free man of color who bore arms in the service of the United States, in the war of 1814 and 15, or to the widow of any such person.

Resolution relative to a daily mail between New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

TUESDAY, Feb. 28th, 1854.

THE MOBILE RAILROAD

Mr. Macmurdo—Mr. President, I should like that the bill reported from the Internal Improvement Committee, to authorise the city of New Orleans to subscribe to the stock of the Pontchartrain Railroad, be made the special order of the day for Friday next.

The bill was made the order of the day for Friday.

Mr. Rivers introduced a resolution instructing the Committee on Elections to inquire and report whether Mr. Martel, Senator from St Landry and Calcasieu, held, at the time of his election, or holds now, a commission as Notary Public.

The resolution was adopted.

THE SECURITIES OF LECKIE.

Mr. Macmurdo, from the Committee on Finance, presented a report and said:

I will say a few words explanatory of the nature of the case. It appears that Mr. Leckie, formerly Sheriff of the parish of Rapides, was a defaulter to the amount of $9,000, and absconded to California. Of course, the persons who were on his bond as security became liable for that amount. One of those gentlemen, now a member of this Senate, introduced a resolution to inquire what amount was really due by Leckie. It appears that he had paid in money at the Auditor's office which was never credited. The amount was contained in a letter to J. E. Layet, then Clerk of the Auditor, but who is since dead. The securities are of course entitled to this credit. The Committee determined to deduct this amount, and bring in a bill for the remainder, which the securities are ready to pay. This will be a settlement to which no objection can be made, and the Committee has unanimously reported in favor of it.

The bill passed.

THE SEAMEN'S HOME.

I hold in my hand a memorial, rather informal in its shape to be sure, which I beg leave to read to the Senate. It is in the form of a letter addressed to myself, and asks that the Seamen's Home Association, of the city of New Orleans, be exempted from taxation.

The memorial was referred to the Finance Committee.

SCHOOL FUND IN UNION AND DE SOTO.

A bill to regulate the disposal of the school fund in the parishes of Union and De Soto was taken up.

Mr. Wickliffe—Before the bill passes I should like to have some information in regard to it

Mr. Deffreese—The bill was introduced by the Representative from Union parish, in the other House. I am not able to give any very definite information in regard to it myself, having been only requested to call it up by that gentleman. It appears, as far as I understand this matter, in disposing of the school fund for that district. This bill, I believe, is designed to remedy the evil

Mr Wickliffe—I do not feel disposed to interfere in local legislation, when it does not make an exception to some general principle of law. But this bill, I think, may make an exception to our general law, for the benefit of one parish It interferes with our settled law in regard to the school fund.

Under the general law of the State, the census of children is made by, or under the charge of the Superintendent of Public Education. The State is divided into school districts, and the Superintendent divides the money in accordance with the amount due to each. This bill takes from the Superintendent the power he now has of dividing out the money, and confers it on the Police Jury of a certain parish Now, sir, if we establish a school system, we doubtless institute that which we think best adapted to the wants of the people. Let us then adhere to it. If it is defective, let us amend it. If we cannot keep it up, let us amend the Constitution and abolish it entirely But let us not make this special exception in favor of one particular parish. I am opposed to such legislation, and am therefore opposed to the bill.

Mr. Deffreese—I have examined this bill, and I find nothing objectionable in it. It is purely local in its nature, and does not concern or affect in the slightest degree any other part of the State.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Education.

BILL TO AMEND ART 1546 OF THE CIVIL CODE.

The bill to amend Art 1546 of the Civil Code was taken up

Mr Krug—I will trespass for a few moments on the time of the Senate for the purpose of explaining the nature and object of this bill. It is intended to affect certain provisions of the law in respect to donations inter vivos. Under the present law the birth of a child to the donor revokes ipso facto any donation he may previously have made. Every one can see that the effect of this must be in many cases exceedingly injurious, as well as unjust towards persons who have, in good faith, accepted donations, and I cannot see what reasons of general policy could dictate or justify the provision. I myself know of cases in which great hardship has been the result of this law. I will mention an instance by way of illustration. A man of fortune had a sister, to whom, when unmarried, he made a donation of $30,000. Subsequently to this event he married, and his wife had a child, and in consequence the donation he had previously made to his sister was revoked, although he did not even know of the existence of the Article of the Code, by which this effect was produced. Let gentlemen turn to the Article and read it for themselves. It says:

Art 1546. Donations inter vivos are liable to be revoked or dissolved on account of the following causes:

1. The ingratitude of the donee.

2. The non-fulfillment of the eventual conditions which suspend their consummation,

3. The non-performance of the conditions imposed on the donee.

Digitized by Google

4. The donor's having children after the donation

5 The legal or conventional return.

Thus it will be seen that a revocation takes place by the simple fact of the donor having children. This revocation takes place without reference to the fact of the property being in third hands. The effect of this is to make the title of such property insecure, at least, while there is any possibility of the donor having an heir. There are various ways in which very serious injury may be done by this law. I know a gentlemen who has given large sums to various charitable institutions. Suppose he should marry and become a father, those institutions might be seriously injured, if not actually broken up. Why, sir, this law is absurd in preventing a man from making what disposition he pleases of his own property, at a time when he has no children. It is mere child's play, and should not be suffered to mar our statute book. When a man gives a thing he gives it, and that should be the end of it. But our law does not allow this. It says that under certain contingencies a man's property shall return to him nolens volens, even after he has given it away.

Mr. Moore—I have no objection to the amendment. I always thought the law was impolitic.

THE COLLEGE OF NEW ORLEANS.

The bill to incorporate the College of New Orleans was taken up.

Mr. King—As this is the first bill of the kind that has come before us this session, I shall seize the occasion to express my views of the subject; and in the first place, I deem it necessary to state that I am opposed to all legislation of that kind, inasmuch as there is a general law which makes all necessary provisions, and under which a corporation can be formed. For $2 50, before a Notary Public, the parties making this application to us can get just as good a charter as we can give them. Now, sir, what is the use for us to be passing these acts of incorporation, when the thing can be done just as well before a Notary, without troubling us? There is not the slightest necessity to encumber our statute book with legislation of this kind, which is not only useless, but expensive. The time of the Legislature consumed in this way, and the cost of printing, would be enough to procure a hundred of these charters in the manner directed by law. I do not make these remarks on account of having any particular hostility to this particular institution. On the contrary, I find that the names of many of my personal friends, highly estimable gentlemen, for whom I entertain the greatest respect, are signed to the application which has been laid before us. But, however much I might be disposed to accommodate those gentlemen, I cannot let this bill pass without expressing my opinion of it. Having done that, I consider that I have done no more nor less than my duty.

Mr. Lacey—I must say that I do not participate in the objections which the gentleman has raised against the passage of this bill. It is, as its title imports, simply a bill to incorporate a seminary of learning in the city of New Orleans. I am astonished that the gentleman should oppose it, particularly when he puts his opposition on the ground of mere expense. Why, sir, what is the expense, the paltry expense we may incur in the process of passing this bill, in comparison with the benefits of education and the advancement of learning? I, sir, in consideration of the respectable character of the gentlemen who have attached their signatures to this application, shall vote for the bill without hesitation!

Mr. Moore—I am astonished, sir, at the remarks which have fallen from the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. That gentleman ought to know, if any one should, that we have, as the Senator from New Orleans has well remarked, a general law providing for the manner in which charters of incorporation may be obtained without making application to the Legislature. If there is any use in having this general law, it ought to be complied with. Therefore, parties ought to go before a Notary as the law directs, and obtain their charters, without annoying us. I took the same position in the early part of the session in regard to bills for objects which were already covered by a general law, but I found my efforts were useless, and I ceased saying anything about the matter. Having briefly expressed my opinions in relation to this bill, I shall say no more about it.

The bill passed.

INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

On motion of Mr. King the following bill to "provide for the internal improvements of the State," was taken up.

AN ACT

To provide for the Internal Improvement of the State, and for making the necessary levees and drainage, to reclaim the swamp and overflowed lands of the State.

He shall further give bond to the State for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, to be approved of by the Auditor of Public Accounts, and by him preserved, with one or more solvent sureties, for the sum of fifty thousand dollars. The sureties may bind themselves separately for specified amounts; provided the number does not exceed twenty, in which event they may be sued or proceeded against separately, reserving them the right afterwards of suing other sureties to compel them to contribute pro rata, excluding sureties who may have become insolvent to make up their share of the amount paid on said bond.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c, That should any Civil Engineer, elected under this act, fail to qualify for entering on the duties of his office, according to this act, for the space of forty days after he has been duly declared to be legally elected, the Governor may regard such failure as neglect, or refusal to fill the office, and may proceed to appoint another to fill said office, as in case of vacancy. All vacancies in said office shall be filled for the unexpired term by the appointment of the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, if the Senate be in session. If the Senate be not in session then the Governor may appoint a person to fill the said office until the next session of the Senate.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, &c., That no person shall be eligible to the office of Civil Engineer of the State who is not, at the time of his election, a legal voter in elections for State officers, who is not also well versed in the science and practice of civil engineering, or who is a public defaulter.

Sec 5. Sec 6. Be it further enacted, &c., That the Civil Engineer shall perform all the duties now required of the Engineer of the State. He shall have charge, supervision and control of all public works of internal improvement carried on by the State; he shall have charge of all books, maps, papers, documents, plans and surveys pertaining to the said office, or which have heretofore pertained to the office of Engineer of the State. He shall have charge and control of all boats, vessels, machinery, implements and other things pertaining to works of internal improvement, carried on, either heretofore or hereafter. He shall have charge, supervision and control of the slaves belonging to the State, or which may hereafter belong to the State, that have been or may be employed on works of internal improvement. He shall supply them with the necessary food, clothing, medical attendance, and such other things as may be deemed requisite or useful. All expenses incurred, in relation to the said slaves, to be paid out of the appropriations from the internal improvement fund, upon his warrant certifying their correctness, approved by the Auditor of Public Accounts. It shall also be the duty of the Civil Engineer of the State to supervise and to examine the progress, condition and prospects of all public works in which the State may be interested, not otherwise specially provided for, and to report fully thereon annually to the Legislature, with such suggestions and recommendations as he may deem it advisable to make. It shall further be his duty to use to the best advantage, for the interests of the State, all the means placed under his control for public works of the State.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c., That he shall appoint and dismiss at pleasure all officers and persons authorized by law to be engaged on the works of internal improvement carried on by the State.

He shall employ out of the funds appropriated for Internal Improvements, commanders and crews of vessels, superintendents of special works, and laborers, whenever in his opinion they are necessary. The compensation to such employees, to be the lowest rate at which suitable persons can be procured; but he shall never retain such persons longer than they are actually engaged upon the public works. The wages of such persons to be paid upon the warrant of the Civil Engineer, and his certificate that the service has been performed, and that the sum is justly due, approved by the Auditor of Public Accounts.

Sec. 8 Be it further enacted, &c., That the office of the Civil Engineer shall be kept at the seat of government, and that suitable apartments therefor shall be assigned him in the State House; and that the office of Engineer of the State, as previously existing, is to be abolished and superseded by the entering of the Civil Engineer upon the duties of his office.

Sec. 9. Be it further enacted, &c., That in order to enable the Civil Engineer to keep his office always open, he shall be allowed to employ an Engineer to assist him in the duties of his office, who shall be allowed a salary at the rate of eighteen hundred dollars per annum for the time he is employed, payable quarterly, upon the warrant and certificate of the Civil Engineer, approved by the Auditor of Public Accounts.

It shall further be the duty of said Civil Engineer to keep in his office books, subject at all times to examination by the public authorities of the State, the Governor, the Treasurer, Auditor of Public Accounts, and Attorney General, which shall exhibit in the simplest form the pecuniary transactions of his office, and detailed statements of receipts and disbursements thereof. The said books and all other muniments and archives of the office to be transmitted to his successor. He shall also keep on file in his office, all plats, surveys and plans of public works of internal improvement, constructed by the State.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, &c., That the Civil Engineer of the State shall devote his whole time to the duties of his office; that he shall not be entitled to any other fees of office than the salary given him by law, and that he shall not be allowed by law to sue for or recover any compensation for his professional or other services performed by him while in office.

Sec. 11. Be it further enacted, &c., That the said Civil Engineer of the State shall have under his supervision and control all works done by the State for the purpose of reclaiming the swamp and overflowed lands, and preserving the same from inundation, and shall apply the funds arising from the sale of the lands donated for the above purposes in the manner and places deemed by him most appropriate and useful.

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, &c., That for the purpose of accomplishing the ends contemplated by the acts of Congress, donating lands to the State to aid in draining the swamp lands therein, and to protect the same from inundation, the State shall be divided into four (4) levee and draining districts as follows:

The first district shall consist of all that portion of the State South of the 31st degree of North latitude and east of the Mississippi river.

The second district of all that portion of the State South of the 31st degree of North latitude, and west of the Mississippi river.

The third district shall consist of all that part of the State lying between the Western boundaries of the parishes of Catahoula, Caldwell, Washita and Union, and the Mississippi river.

The fourth district shall consist of the remainder of the State not included in the other districts.

Sec. 13. Be it further enacted, &c., That the funds arising from the sale of the said swamp and overflowed lands shall be appropriated and divided among the several districts created by the previous section, as follows:

To the first district
To the second district
To the third district
To the fourth district

It shall be the duty of the Civil Engineer to specify in all warrants upon the swamp land fund, the district on account of which the warrant is drawn, and to apportion the expenses not properly chargeable to any particular district, between the districts according to the proportion of the fund allotted to each

Sec. 14. Be it further enacted, &c, That to enable the said Civil Engineer to prosecute vigorously the work of leveeing and reclaiming the swamp and overflowed lands, he shall have power to employ an Assistant Engineer for each of the above districts, whenever in his opinion their services may be necessary; the said Engineers each to be paid monthly or quarterly, at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, for the time they are actually engaged on works for the above purposes, upon the warrant and certificate of the Civil Engineer of the State, that the said Assistant Engineer has been actually engaged on the said works, and that he has justly earned the money drawn for the payment of his salary. He shall have power to dismiss the said Assistant Engineers whenever he thinks proper, and it shall be his duty to dismiss them whenever they are not actually and actively employed in the above described public works. The said Assistant Engineers shall not, for the term they are thus employed, be engaged in any other business, but shall devote their time and attention to the duties of the office filled by them. They shall not be allowed to sue for or recover in law any fees or compensation for other personal or professional services rendered by them while in office

Sec. 15. Be it further enacted, &c., That the said Civil Engineer of the State shall have power to employ whenever he may consider the public interest requires it, such other assistance as he may deem necessary. In doing so it shall be his duty to obtain the said assistance, at the lowest possible rate, at which adequate services can be obtained The said assistance to be paid for upon the warrant of the said Civil Engineer, certifying that the persons claiming the same have actually performed the services on which the claim is based, and which justly entitle them to the compensation demanded The Civil Engineer shall keep no person in employment longer than his services are absolutely necessary.

Sec. 16. Be it further enacted, &c., That the two funds, to wit: the internal improvement fund and the fund arising from the sale of the swamp and overflowed lands donated by Congress to the State, shall be forever kept separate and distinct The Civil Engineer shall always charge the service performed to the appropriate fund, and shall specify in every warrant drawn by him, out of which of the two funds it shall be paid.

Sec. 17. Be it further enacted, &c., That all works undertaken for the purpose set forth in the preceding sections, shall be let out by the Civil Engineer of the State, to the lowest bidder, after thirty days advertisement thereof in the State paper, and in one or more papers published in the parish, in which the work is to be done, or if there be no paper published in the said parish, then by printed notices posted at the seat of justice, in said parish, and at least three other public places in said parish; said work to be let out at a stipulated price per cubic yard. The bids must be made in writing under seal, and opened only in the presence of a Justice of the Peace, or three other persons who are owners of land in the parish, after the time has elapsed. The advertisement must indicate to bidders the form and manner of making their bids, and specify the work to be done, and the time in which it is to be finished, and the time and place at which the bids are to be opened; provided that the Civil Engineer may reject all bids made when he considers them unreasonable.

Sec. 18. Be it further enacted, &c., The Civil Engineer shall require of every person, or firm, or body corporate or politic, who may undertake any work contemplated by this act, for reclaiming and preserving the swamp lands from inundation, a bond, with good security, payable to the State of Louisiana, conditioned for the faithful performance of the work, sufficient in amount to secure the completion of the work. The said bond, when forfeited, to be sued for by the District Attorney or other competent officer of the State, who shall receive ten per cent of the amount collected thereon, which, after being paid into the Treasury, must be credited to the swamp land fund.

Sec. 19. Be it further enacted, &c., If the persons or persons, or body corporate or politic, to whom the work may be adjudicated, do not comply with the previous section, the contract shall be re-advertised by the Civil Engineer in the parish in which the work is to be done, for ten days or longer, if, in his discretion a longer time can be allowed, for new bids; and after receiving them, if any be made, may adjudicate the contract to the lowest bidder, rejecting any bids made by the recusant bidder at the first sale, but including all other bids made at the first sale, and shall so continue to re-advertise until some person takes the contract, and complies with the law. After the adjudication of a contract is made, the Civil Engineer shall immediately notify the contractor, if at the place mentioned by him in his advertisement (or the agent named by the contractor) of the acceptance of the bid. Every bidder must either be in person at the place and time designated by the advertisement for the opening of bids, or be there represented by an agent—unless the Civil Engineer deems it advisable to relieve him therefrom. The Civil Engineer may, if he considers the bids unreasonable or much too high, reject the whole of them and refuse to adjudicate the contract.

Sec. 20. Be it further enacted, &c., That all contracts for building levees and other works which are capable of division, shall be let in sections not exceeding five thousand dollars in value; so as to enable resident planters and others to take portions of said work. But if, after the bids are all received, the Civil Engineer shall deem it advisable to accept a bid for the whole work, or a bid embracing more than one section, he may do so, although the same may be higher than the lowest bid for a separate section thereof. If the aggregate of the bids for the separate sections of the contract be less than any bid for the whole or of several sections, and the bidders are all ready to comply with the law, by giving the requisite security for the fulfillment of the contract, then the Civil Engineer shall adjudicate the contracts to the bidders for the separate sections.

Sec 21. Be it further enacted, &c., That the provisions of the foregoing sections, relative to the letting out of contracts, shall not be considered applicable to sudden emergencies, such as crevasses and the like. In such cases the Civil Engineer may incur any reasonable amount of expense, if in his discretion it be deemed advisable, and that the expenses to be incurred are necessary and properly chargeable to the swamp land fund.

Sec. 22. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of the said Civil Engineer to determine the locality, extent and dimensions of the necessary levees and drains, to protect and reclaim the swamp and overflowed lands of the State; provided that when any objection shall be made by the proprietor of the land, where the levee is to be made, as to the locality of said levee, the same shall be fixed by the said Civil Engineer, in conjunction with four of the nearest resident land proprietors, or in the absence or disability of any of said proprietors, from being minors, women, or any other cause, the nearest four proprietors that can be obtained, who are willing to act when the location of a levee or other public work shall have been once fixed in this manner, the owner of the land upon which it is to be done shall not be allowed to stop or hinder by any process of court, any work thus undertaken, after the work shall have been actually commenced.

Sec. 23 Be it further enacted, &c., That whenever the Civil Engineer shall have determined to make or repair any levee under the provisions of this bill, the person or persons, body corporate or politic, bound by law to make or repair the said levee shall be bound to pay one-half the price thereof, which, when collected, shall be paid into the State Treasury, and be credited to the Swamp Land Fund. In case of suit, the District Attorney or other officer of the State, who prosecutes the suit, shall be allowed ten per cent on the amount so collected. Any person or body thus bound to pay one-half of the price of building said levee, shall have the right to pay the same in work, to be estimated by the cubic yard, at the same rate at which the contract is adjudicated—this option however must be exercised either before the contract is adjudicated, or before the contractor has furnished his bond. The person or body desiring to avail themselves of this privilege, must do the work at the time and place designated by the Civil Engineer, and for any default in this respect the foregoing privilege shall be forfeited, and the party thus defaulting be held bound to the State, or to individuals, for all damages arising therefrom. Any person or persons, or body, may avoid the payment of one half of the price of building the levee as above specified, by abandoning to the State, by notarial act or other instrument in writing, the entire tract of land owned by him or them on which the levee is to be built. The land so abandoned shall be disposed of in such a manner as may be hereafter directed by law, for the benefit and credit of the swamp land fund.

Sec. 24. Be it further enacted, &c., That the Civil Engineer may be removed from his office by impeachment or address, upon conviction for any malpractice, fraud, or corruption in office, for which he may be prosecuted by information or indictment, he shall be fined at the discretion of the court, and imprisoned at hard labor or otherwise, not less than one year. He shall, ipso facto, be deprived of his office, and the Governor shall proceed to appoint another to fill the vacancy.

Sec. 25 Be it further enacted, &c, That the Civil Engineer shall annually, during the first week of each session of the Legislature, make a full report of his receipts and disbursements, and of his acts and doings, in reference to the affairs of his office, accompanied with such suggestions and recommendations as he may deem useful or interesting to the people of the State.

Sec. 26. Be it further enacted, &c., That this act shall remain in force until superseded by the entering into office of the Board of Public Works, provided by the Constitution of the State.

Sec. 27. Be it further enacted, &c., That the act approved April 30th, 1853, entitled an act to reclaim and drain the swamp and overflowed lands donated to the State of Louisiana, by act of Congress entitled "an act to aid the State of Louisiana in draining the swamp lands therein," approved March 2d, 1849. shall be considered as repealed, and superseded by this act, so soon as the Civil Engineer of the State, provided by this act, shall enter upon the duties of his office.

Mr. King—

In order that gentlemen may understand the design of this bill, and as all now present were not here when the bill was originally introduced, and therefore having probably not reflected on the subject, do not thoroughly understand the policy which it is intended to develope, I propose to devote a few moments to an explanation of the object it is intended to consummate, and the reasons which have produced it in its present shape. In the first place, to speak generally, this bill is intended to put our internal improvements, and the administration of our levees and our swamp lands, under an arrangement combining efficiency and economy in as high a degree as these requisites can be attained. And here let me correct an error which seems generally to pervade the public mind as to the amount of the swamp land fund, and internal improvement fund, and the revenue to be reasonably anticipated from them. Extravagant ideas have been formed and cherished on this subject, and I regret to say that they are destined not to be realized. The returns, contained in the Report of the Treasurer to the Legislature, show that the whole amount of the revenue of the internal improvement fund, for the last year, was about $15,000. Very great expectations have been raised in regard to the extent of the swamp land fund, and of the millions which were to flow into it from a sale of those lands. But expectation has also been disappointed in this point. The greatest annual revenue to be reasonably anticipated from this fund, according to the best authorities, is about $75,000. The community, deceived by the extravagant calculations which have been put forth in relation to these funds, look to us to build and keep all levees in repair, throughout the State, out of the small sum of seventy five thousand dollars a year. This, sir, is a most egregious mistake on the part of the public. The amount of revenue derived from our funds is much too small to allow us to effect any great degree of good in that way. Our true policy, therefore, is to be as economical as possible while providing for the highest degree of efficiency that can be obtained with the small means at our disposal. Above all, we should set our faces against the squandering of our money in large salaries to numbers of, perhaps, superfluous officers. What is the system proposed by the bill? The revenue of the two funds, as I have already shown, amounts to $90,000; that is to say, $15,000 from the internal improvement fund, and $75,000 from the swamp land fund. At present, for the administration of the internal improvement fund, we have an Engineer to whom we give a salary of $3,000 per annum; an Assistant, who receives $3,000, while the contingent expenses of the office are placed at a thousand more, making in all the sum of $6,000 for the very first step in our system of internal improvements. In addition to this amount, we have to pay the salaries of the captains of our boats, the cost of running the boats, and the expense of maintaining the State hands. It must be recollected also that all these officers are salaried by the year, while it is only during a part of the year that work is done by them. Why should we have a host of officers who are of no use, but to reduce still farther our already sufficiently attenuated funds? By this bill, from six to eight thousand dollars per annum will be economized out of the internal improvement fund, and our expenses which now amount to twelve thousand dollars per annum, will be reduced to five or six thousand.

I come now to the Swamp Land Commissioners. By the system established under the act of last year, we have three Commissioners of the Swamp Land Fund. If we continue the system we shall have four, because it will be necessary to divide the third district. Thus we shall have four Commissioners at $1500 each, making $6000 for the four; and four Engineers at $3000 each, making $12,000 for them; the amount for salaries for Commissioners and Engineers amounting to $18,000. This is for salaries alone. In addition to this, we have other incidental expenses, such as traveling expenses, hotel bills, &c., all of which are put down as incidental expenses. These cannot amount to less than $5000 per annum. Add five thousand to eighteen thousand, and you have twenty-three thousand dollars as the amount expended under the present system, in salaries and contingent expenses alone. And for what is all this? Why, merely for the head work, only for the purpose of showing how the rest of the money is to be spent. Yes, sir, we spend nearly $25,000 just to find out a way to spend the remaining $50,000; for the mere head work of the system, without touching the practical portion, without building a foot of levee, without clearing out a single bayou, without draining a single acre of swamp land. Let me ask if that is the system which Senators desire to encourage by their votes?—a system by which $25,000 out of $70,000, and $12,000 out of $15,000 are spent merely in order to show how the remainder of the $90,000 shall be used. Why, sir, any sensible man could tell how that amount of money might be most advantageously expended, and not work more than one-tenth of his time. Any man of ordinary comprehension could do it. Now, sir, what I propose, and what is embodied in the bill before the Senate, is to amalgamate the swamp land and internal improvement fund, and put them under the same management, thus reducing the expenses of administering them much below the amount which is now required. And in order to carry out this idea, I propose to have a competent and responsible man at the head of the system, who shall exercise full control over its operations I believe of all the systems that can be devised for the management of our internal improvements, that which is called the one man system is the best. I do not believe in Boards of Public Works I think they are inefficient, and would be an incumbrance rather than an auxiliary. What we want to make a system effective is responsibility; and where we can cause the responsibility to rest on a single individual we best secure the object. When we can put our finger on one person and be able to say, "This is the man who is responsible," we are sure to secure more efficiency than when the responsibility is divided among three or four different persons. In this way, and this way alone, can we carry out the great republican principle of responsibility to the people. When four or five persons are charged with the same duty, we cannot tell whom to blame, or whom to praise; and public opinion would necessarily be confused, and might be disregarded with impunity. But where one person stands up before us as the responsible party, justice is sure to be done, and punishment would be meted out to him if he deserve it. Of all the systems that have been proposed, that which confide the management of our public works to a Board, is by far the worst, for the reasons which I have stated, and for others, upon which I will not now enlarge.

The bill I have introduced embodies the contrary idea. It provides for a responsible head; a person who shall have full control over the whole system. I think this plan is the best that can be devised, both for economy and efficiency. Its simplicity is a guarantee that it will work easily, and I think I am within bounds when I say that it will save $25,000 or $30,000 per annum, in the mere machinery of the system. This certainly is a consideration which should recommend it to the favor of Senators. The money of these funds should not be squandered as it now is, in the support of a cumbrous and useless machinery. If properly administered, it might make Louisiana the garden of the world, and secure for her a position which would be gratifying to every patriotic citizen. But this will never be done if we squander our money, and overlook the means and opportunities which fortune has thrown in our way. These funds constitute a sacred trust, placed in our hands by the Federal Government for the use and benefit of the State. We violate that trust, and neglect the intentions of the donors if we squander the money in salaries, instead of applying it to the building of levees and the draining of overflowed lands. Gratitude to the Government which has placed these means in our hands, should induce us to do every thing to carry out the intentions of the donors. I trust I have so explained my ideas to the Senate that I have made the object of this bill intelligible. I do not claim perfection for it, but simply that it embodies and gives practical effect to to that system which I consider best adapted to our wants. It may be that some of the details are objectionable, or may not meet with favor. If so, they can easily be amended.

Mr. De Russy—

In rising to make a few remarks in reply to the observations which have fallen from the Senator from New Orleans, I may commence by saying that I have, as yet, not had time to examine attentively the bill which he has brought forward, and for which he invokes the favor and support of the Senate. I must say, however, that my impressions of it are unfavorable. He begins, and indeed ends, with decrying the existing system, in order apparently to make his own more acceptable. On looking over the gentleman's bill, I find that he has provided for a Civil Engineer, and an Assistant Engineer. Now what is the use of this Assistant Engineer? Is he to spend, or help spend that money which the gentleman said could be spent effectively by one man, who need not work more than half of the time? We now have Engineers and Commissioners. If the gentleman wishes to unite and economise, let him unite and economise here. Let the Commissioner and the Engineer be one officer; let the Engineer be the Commissioner and the Commissioner the Engineer. Here is a point for economy. We can have the Engineer and Commissioner in one, and thus save a large amount of money. The bill proposes a Civil Engineer to be elected by the people. Now, sir, I ask if an elective Engineer might not be a sectional man? There would certainly be various favorite candidates in various localities. New Orleans would certainly present one or two, and so would other parts of the State. But an Engineer could only be elected from one part, and what would be his feelings? He would certainly feel grateful to those who had supported and elected him, and would probably, if influenced by those motives which generally animate human beings, do all in his power to serve them, perhaps to the disadvantage of others. Thus he might favor one part of the State, and neglect the rest. I look on this as the worst system that could be devised. The bill proposes to unite the two departments which now exist; that is, the internal improvement department and the swamp land department, and the gentleman informs us that this union would produce an individual and concentrated accountability, which would make the system more certain and more secure. I must say that I differ with him in opinion on that point. I think nothing would tend to greater uncertainty and insecurity, than the combination, in one person, of the disburser and the recipient. The gentleman cannot show any efficient systems in which these functions are united. On the contrary, policy, sanctioned by experience, has always dictated their separation.

The bill then says that the Engineer, to be eligible, must be a resident of this State and a voter, and that he must give security to the amount of $50,000. There are many poor men who might make very competent Engineers, yet could not give the security required by the bill. And I do not see why we should prevent the possibility of availing ourselves of the talents and experience of Engineers of other States, by imposing the restrictions proposed by the gentleman. And again, he seems to think very highly of the responsibility which, he contends, is established by the bill. For my part, I have been accustomed to a different system of accountability. Payments are generally made by drafts, and a monthly account is rendered to show what balance may be on hand, and what amount has been expended.

Last year I had something to do with drawing up a bill for the regulation and management of our internal improvements, but it did not prove acceptable to the Legislature. I was not contumacious; I did not insist on forcing my views on unwilling minds, and I have not revived my bill this year; but, on the other hand, I cannot join in the objurgations of the gentleman against the system now in operation. I see no reason to blush for what has worked well, and met all reasonable expectations during the last twelve months, and which, with certain amendments that will be offered at the proper time, will be as good a system as can be formed, besides having the advantage of being already in successful operation. At all events, I consider it much superior to the bill which has been offered by the Senator from New Orleans.

I think, should I undertake to examine that bill critically, I could detect faults and defects in almost every section. It does not even fulfill that requisite of economy claimed for it by the Senator. Just economy is evinced when we accomplish an end or an object with the expenditure of the smallest sum. But this is not reached by the bill. The gentleman says we are about to organize four districts. It is true, we will do so if we have the opportunity; and he does the same thing in his bill. If we have land enough to require a division into four districts, we must go to the expense which this fact renders necessary.

To conclude, I would propose to lay this bill on the table, subject to call, or fix it for some day when another bill will be submitted for consideration.

Mr. Ryan—

I would ask if any other bill has been proposed?

Mr. De Russy—

Another bill has been proposed in Committee, which I much prefer to this one. It retains the present system, with some amendments.

Mr. Ryan—

I move to amend the gentleman's motion by making this bill the order of the day for to-morrow.

Mr. Rivers—

Will the gentleman withdraw his motion for a moment, as I wish to offer a resolution in order to get the sense of the Senate on the relative merits of the present system, and that proposed by the Senator from New Orleans (Mr. King.) I wish to do this simply to test the sense of the Senate in regard to the Commissioner system, and the one-man system.

Mr. King—

The best way to achieve the purpose which the gentleman has in view, is to take the vote on the bill at once. The bill is of too much importance to be delayed, and procrastination can do no possible good. If gentlemen want to kill the bill let them do it at once and in an open manner, and not retreat behind the veil of delay. Procrastination is the most treacherous instrument of defeat. I shall trouble the Senate with a few words in regard to the objections urged by the Senator from Natchitoches. One of the principal seems to be that a bill is to be introduced which he likes better.

Mr. De Russy—

There will be such a bill introduced.

Mr. King—

That is no good reason for delaying action on this bill.

Mr. Moore—

I suppose the Senator from Natchitoches alluded to a bill which I introduced into the Committee, and which has been before it for a long time.

Mr. King—

That is true. The bill referred to by the gentleman has been for some time before the Committee. But I understand the gentleman to say that he did not desire it to be reported, as he wished to vote on this bill. That bill, I believe, was drawn in haste, and only affected one of the evils of the swamp land act now in force, without effecting a thorough amendment. But I must say that I should, with great reluctance, have undertaken this work, if I had thought that no better system could be devised than that which is now in existence. I do not want to patch up that, when we can make a much better one by beginning anew. In the bill now before the Senate, I have endeavored to present a system which would combine efficiency and economy in the management of our internal improvement system. Having thus accomplished the duty imposed on me, I think it not an unreasonable request to ask that a vote be taken on it as soon as possible. One of the objections brought forward by the gentleman is, that the Engineer must, under this bill, be a citizen of the State. It strikes me as extremely strange that any Senator should make such an objection as that. It is not remarkable, and it cannot, I think, be considered objectionable, that this bill should require the chief disbursing officer—the person through whose hands all the money will pass, to be a citizen.

The objection which the Senator makes in the case of an Engineer, it seems to me would apply equally well to the restriction of a similar kind, imposed on all the other State officers. Why should we look beyond the limits of our own State for an Engineer? Have we not within our own State numbers of intelligent, experienced and competent men who would accept the place? Or must we seek one in some other State, perchance beyond the ocean itself? The Senator objects also to the requiring of security. It seems to me that this objection rather strangely contrasts with the declaration of the gentleman that the bill did not provide for a sufficient pecuniary responsibility. Now, sir, let me ask again, how could we entrust vast interests like these to the hands of foreigners, unacquainted with our wants, and perhaps unmindful of them? We should not do it, sir. We have talent sufficient in our own State to preclude the humiliating necessity of searching beyond her borders for men to fill our offices. We have many men capable of performing the duty, and willing to do it. Still, another objection brought forward by the gentleman is that the Engineer, when elected, must be chosen from some particular locality. Yet how can that objection be avoided under any system? If appointed will he not still be from some particular locality? And will not the person appointing be likewise from some particular locality? If, therefore, he would be liable to sectional influences and partialities in the one case, he would be equally liable to them in the other. The gentleman himself is known to be an accomplished Engineer. He is from the Northern part of the State; but should he be chosen that would not affect his eligibility or his capacity to fill the office and discharge its duties. I know, sir, that some persons are opposed to making the tenure of office depend on a popular election; but I had not supposed that the objection would ever come from this side of the House—from members of a party which confides in the intelligence of the people. The President of the United States is elected by the people; the Governor of the State, its principal officers, and the Judges of our Courts, are elected by the people; the officer who presides with so much ability over the deliberations of this body is elected by the people; we ourselves hold our seats on this floor by the suffrage of our constituents, and shall we be told that the people are not competent to elect a Civil Engineer? What singular characteristics and qualities must be possessed by this officer that peculiar wisdom is necessary in those who are to elect him? Must he be pointed out to us by a star in the heavens, and wise men from the East precede his coming? I, sir, believe that the people are competent to make a judicious choice even in this case, and I think they have as just a right to elect him as any other officer of the State.

I do not believe we should retain a system which is impracticable for good, and which is only useful for the expenditure of money—a system under which, if wrong be done, and injury perpetrated, no one can be held responsible.

Mr. De Russy—

I must beg the attention of the Senate again for a few moments, while I reply to some of the remarks which have fallen from the Senator from New Orleans. The bill introduced by the gentleman provides that the Engineer shall give a bond, and he appears to think this a very important feature, although he says himself that it has been reduced from $50,000 to $25,000. It must be remembered that the Engineer will have control of the entire funds—the swamp land fund and the internal improvement fund—having the right to pay out all sums for any purpose. The bond required appears to be of some consequence, but when we reflect that it is only for $25,000 we see at once that it is possessed of no tangible substance.—Why, sir, this officer will have control of perhaps a million dollars, and yet he is to give a bond for only $25,000. What, sir, does a bond like that amount to?

Another position of the gentleman is in regard to the manner in which the Engineer is to be chosen. The gentleman insists that he must be elected, and entertains us with a disquisition on the abstract right of the people to choose their own officers. It is well enough to talk that way at the polls on election day, or on the stump, in order to catch votes, but it does not suit the Senate chamber, and cannot affect reasonable minds. I, for one, am not afraid to take this position. I cannot admit that the people, as yet, have not a right to elect an Engineer, though if this bill passes they would have it. Moreover, I do not believe that they would attach any importance to this right, which appears so invaluable to the gentleman, but, on the contrary, are not disposed to interfere in matters which they do not understand. I am confident that in my section of the State the people have no such desire, or if they have, I am very much mistaken in them. For my part, I would not truckle to any such supposed feeling.

Another thing—if this officer be elected, he will undoubtedly be liable to local and sectional influences. He would not feel the same kindness towards a section which had opposed him, as towards another which had voted for and elected him. Such a result would be natural.

Now, sir, if motives of economy have dictated this bill, I can say that the object can be attained in a much easier way, by simply discharging some of the valueless and superfluous officers who are now employed. The gentleman informs us that the revenue of the internal improvement fund is $150,000. I would ask whether two officers are needed to spend that amount of money? If we have one Engineer, and give him a good salary, no Assistant is needed. When I was here last year he had none, and there is no necessity that the law should authorize it. In organizing the four districts which in my opinion will be necessary, I am sorry that an increase of salary for the Commissioner and Engineer will be needed, for I am in favor of economy as well as the gentleman from New Orleans.

As for the traveling expenses to which the gentleman has alluded, I suppose he will admit that traveling is necessary, and cannot be done without incurring expense. And will not the Engineer, under his bill, be compelled to travel? And will he not incur expenses on account of it? If not, he will not do his duty. And if economy be so much an object, a good way to effect it will be, as I have before suggested, to combine the offices of Engineer and Commissioner.

The gentleman has thought proper to stigmatize the existing system as impracticable. I differ with him on that point. I think it is in the main a good system, though it needs some amendments. During the last year it has worked much better than I expected it would. Much work has already been done, and enough for the whole of next year has been carved out. What necessity is there, then, for a change? And if we must change, let us take time for deliberation—not do the thing in such hot haste. Let us make a system which will have some permanency—not one that will require repeal at the very next session. At all events I must say that I would not give our present organization for the one proposed by this bill.

Mr. Moore—

I feel it incumbent on me to make some explanation of the position I hold in reference to this bill, although I have no intention to make a lengthened speech on the subject, or taking a prominent part in the discussion. I feel it necessary, as allusion has been made to the bill which I introduced in the early part of the session, to claim the indulgence of the Senate for a few moments. As the gentleman from New Orleans, (Mr. King,) had taken much trouble in the preparation of his bill, I consented, out of courtesy to him, that mine should lie over until after his should be introduced. I believe it was generally conceded that the swamp land bill, of the last Legislature, needed amendment. In its existing form it was in some respects impracticable, and even unintelligible. Convinced of these evils, I undertook to draw up a bill which should remedy them. I must here state that to the present system, I prefer the Board of Public Works as contemplated by the Constitution. I believe the State should be divided into districts, and Commissioners elected by the people as directed by that instrument, and that they should be paid not an annual salary, but a per diem for the time they are actually on duty, and that a competent Engineer, or Engineers, should act under their direction. But the action of the other House convinced me that it would be useless to draw up a bill under that article of the Constitution. The question then arose in my mind whether we should let the present system remain as it is, encumbered with all its imperfections, or amend it so as to meet the exigencies of the crisis. It was evident to me that the internal improvement department could go on but a short time longer, as the fund would be exhausted Then we have to throw the Engineer into the hands of the Commissioners, or the Commissioners into the hands of the Engineer. For that purpose I thought this bill more economical. The Engineer's department of the internal improvement fund, costs in salaries, &c', $15.000. The expenses of the swamp land, at the rates of the last year, would amount to $16,000, thus making an aggregate annual expenditure of $31,000. By the bill the total amount for salaries, contingent expenses, &c., is placed at $20,000. But the $31,000, under the present system, will probably be increased by the sum of about $5,000, made necessary by the creation and addition of another district, which we are told, is absolute y necessary. This would raise the expenditures to at least $36,000, thus presenting the contrast with the other bill in a still more unfavorable light.

Now, sir, my opinion is that if we are determined to destroy or disregard that article of the Constitution which commands the establishment of a Board of Public Works, we ought to adopt in its stead the cheapest system that is offered, which combines, with economy, the requisite efficiency. I agree with the gentleman from New Orleans in all that he has said concerning the impropriety of spending large sums of money in useless salaries, and I think that the existing system will cost $36,000 per annum in that way alone. As I have said before, I prefer the Board of Public Works, as provided for by the Constitution, to any other system, if it be properly organized, so that the members shall be paid a per diem and mileage. Under that system the late Board of Public Works cost only $1600 per annum, and it consisted of nine members. No contingent expenses, except about $100, were allowed or found necessary, and yet that Board did a vast amount of work. If we do repeal the Article of the Constitution to which I have alluded, let us substitute something beneficial in its place. The bill before the Senate certainly presents the most economical and practical plan for managing our internal improvements, although some objections to it may undoubtedly be pointed out.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The proposition of the Senator from Concordia (Mr. Rivers,) meets my decided approbation. If understand it, it is this: He proposes to offer a resolution to test the sense of the Senate as to the relative merits of the present system and the one-man system proposed by the bill of the Senator from New Orleans, (Mr. King.)

Now, sir, on the score of economy, to which the Senator from New Orleans attaches so much importance, I must think this more acceptable than his proposition. If gentlemen will examine that bill attentively, they will find that it will in practice be more expensive than the existing system which he has denounced so roundly for its expensiveness. By one section of the bill the contingent expenses are allowed at $4000.

Mr. King—

That has been stricken out.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I take the bill as it is. I don't know anything about the amendments of the Committee. The bill which has been laid before us is the one on which I am speaking. Again, by this bill the Assistant Engineer is to receive $1800, and the other $2500. Thus, altogether, the amount to be expended in salaries is upwards of $7000. Then the necessary clothing and food must be supplied for the hands, which will of course cost money, and then additional laborers are to be employed. I am opposed, besides, to vesting so much power in one man. The gentleman says it insures responsibility. Responsibility!—and to whom? To no one that we have been informed The gentleman knows well enough that this responsibility, upon which he has dilated at such length, is a mere idea. I will now refer to other sections of the bill. Look, for instance, at the 14th:

Section 14. Be it further enacted, &c., That to enable the said Civil Engineer to prosecute vigorously the work of leveeing and reclaiming the swamp and overflowed lands, he shall have power to employ an Assistant Engineer for each of the above Districts, whenever in his opinion their services may be necessary; the said Engineers to be paid monthly or quartarly at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, for the time they are actually engaged on works for the above purpoers, upon the warrant and certificate of the Civil Engineer of the State, that the said Assistant Engineer has been actually engaged on the said works, and that he has justly earned the money drawn for the payment of his salary. He shall have power to dismiss the said Assistant Engineers whenever he thinks proper, and it shall be his duty to dismiss them whenever they are not actually and actively employed in the above described public works. The said Assistant Engineers shall not, for the term they are thus employed, be engaged in any other business, but shall devote their time and attention to the duties of the office filled by them. They shall not be allowed to sue for or recover in law any fees or compensation for other personal or professional services rendered by them while in office.

By this section, Assistant Engineers for each district may be appointed for each district, but paid only for the time they are employed at the rate of $3000 per annum. We all know, sir, that a competent Engineer cannot be procured for less than $3000 per annum, if even for that. The reason is evident. An Engineer, in the first place, must be an educated man, and in addition, he should have a large experience in his profession. For the services of such there is a large demand throughout the country, and all of them can make more money than the sum proposed to be paid. The section also says that the Engineers must give all their time to the State. This would involve a cost of at least $12,000, in the aggregate. I repeat, it is morally impossible to get a good Engineer for less than $3000 a year.

Next we come to the 15th section, which reads thus:

Section 15. Be it further enacted, &c., That the said Civil Engineer of the State shall have power to employ, whenever he may consider the public interest requires it, such other assistance as he may deem necessary. In doing so it shall be his duty to obtain the said assistance at the lowest possible rate, at which adequate services can be obtained. The said assistance to be paid for upon the warrant of the said Civil Engineer, certifying that the persons claiming the same have actually performed the services on which the claim is based, and which justly entitle them to the compensation demanded. The Civil Engineer shall keep no person in employment longer than his services are actually necessary.

The gentleman talks of responsibility, and yet presents us with such a section as that. I am opposed to vesting unlimited control in one man. The gentleman speaks of accountability, and to whom? Let him point out to whom this officer will be accountable for the faithful exercise of the vast powers which are confided to him It will be recollected that on the last night of the session of 1852 the Senate appointed a Committee to sit during the recess for the purpose of making inquiries and procuring information in reference to our levee system. The honorable gentleman who introduced this bill thinks that the Chairman of that Committee is entitled to $25,000, and he actually brought forward a bill granting a portion of that sum. I remarked that if passed it would be the entering wedge by which the State would be compelled to pay the whole of the $25,000. If the services of Mr. Ricker, for traveling up and down the river a few times, and taking soundings, are worth $25,000, what would the services of the Engineer, under this bill, be worth? I repeat that on the score of economy, the system proposed by the gentleman is the most objectionable of all. He says that the Board of Commissioners costs $23,000 per annum. I forget the exact statement made by the Senator, but I think it was something like that amount. Will the gentleman from St. Martin, (Mr. Moore) inform me what he said on that point?

Mr. Moore—

I said it would cost $21,000.

Mr. King—

That is what I said.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I would ask the gentleman whether, under his bill, he expects the Engineer to be possessed of powers of ubiquity—whether he expect him to be in half a dozen different parts of the State at the same time. Why, sir, it is a moral impossibility for the Engineer to perform these duties in person He will necessarily have more duties than he can attend to. I, sir, am opposed to the amalgamation proposed by the bill, as much as he is in favor of it. I do not believe the people desire it. I wish to carry out the intentions of Congress, in making this grant, efficiently and faithfully, and I believe much good will result from it. I therefore wish the State to be divided into four districts and each officer to be accountable for his administration. But this bill invests one officer with powers such as the Czar of Russia himself would blush to claim. He has the absolute control of the whole fund, the appointment of all subordinate officers and the payment of all monies. And yet the gentleman talks of responsibility. Listen to what the bill says:

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c., That he shall appoint and dismiss at pleasure, all officers and persons authorized by law, to be engaged on the works of Internal Improvement carried on by the State.

He shall employ, out of the funds appropriated for Internal Improvement, commanders and crews of vessels, superintendents of special works, and laborers, whenever in his opinion, they are necessary. The compensation of such employees to be the lowest rate at which suitable persons can be procured; but he shall never retain such persons longer than they are actually engaged upon the public works. The wages of such persons to be paid upon the warrant of the Civil Engineer, and his certificate that the service has been performed, and that the sum is justly due, approved by the Auditor of Public Accounts

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, &c, That the office of the Civil Engineer, shall be kept at the seat of Government, and that suitable apartments therefor, shall be assigned him in the State House; and that the office of Engineer of the State, as previously existing, is to be abolished, and superceded by the entering of the Civil Engineer upon the duties of his office.

Are you in favor of giving to one man the power to dispose of the whole fund as he pleases? I have been elected by the voters of my district. My feelings are naturally inclined towards them. I feel the control of their wishes and opinions, and do not consider myself responsible to the Legislature. I am responsible, alone, to the people of that district from which I am elected. A Commissioner elected by the people would feel under obligations to the section which had supported and elected him, and would there bestow his favors. The gentleman talks about popular election. The Senator from Natchitoches says that is not the proper way to choose an Engineer, and I agree with him. The people are not apt to know as well the capacity or the standing of an Engineer, and they might not make a good choice. I am in favor of blotting out from the statute book all such Buncombe as that with which the gentleman has regaled us. I give great weight to the opinions of practical engineers. There are engineers here and as long as they oppose the bill, I shall oppose it for it.

Mr. Ryan—

This bill appears to me to be one of great importance to the general welfare of the State, and I represent a section which is as deeply interested in the subject as any other portion of Louisiana. In casting my vote, I shall endeavor to banish every feeling except for the public good. I shall indulge in no allusion to the faults of others, nor seek to strengthen my cause by making accusations of inconsistency. Such a course is no argument against this bill or any other. I do not know any thing of the history of the Ricker expedition. But I think it unworthy of a Senator to cite the support of that measure or the reverse as an argument for or against this bill. Even if a Senator may have erred on that question, even if he may have been guilty of inconsistency, that is no reason why he should be twitted with it at this moment, in debate on a subject which has no connection whatever with that expedition. I, sir, shall dismiss from my mind every such consideration and cast my vote on this bill, entirely with reference to its own intrinsic merits. Because the Senator from New Orleans may have been wrong on one occasion, does not necessarily prove that he is wrong now. That certainly is no question with me, and ought not to be a question with any Senator on this floor. The discussion relates, or should relate, solely to the administration of a certain fund, and the administrative powers to be confided to certain officers. Now, sir, I believe that the legislation of the last session was radically wrong. I respect the Senators who participated in passing the bill, and believe that they were actuated by the best of motives; but I must regard their work as defective and unsuited to our exigencies, I think, therefore that a radical change is needed. The intention of Congress in passing the law under which the swamp lands were donated to the State was that all the people of the State should receive the benefit of the donation. If, at the time, a law had been passed, prohibiting the sale of any of these lands until they should be improved, and thereby be made cultivable and valuable, we should have had something to speak of. Had we adopted the plan of reclaiming the lands, and then put them up at auction, we should receive a vast amount in return, would fill our treasury, and pay off our debt. Thus the intentions of the donors would be fulfilled. But the last Legislature thought proper to adopt a different course; a course not at all in accordance with the wishes and intentions of the donors. I am opposed to the motion which has been made by the Senator from Concordia. I should prefer that the bill be deferred till to-morrow, and then acted on. This is a subject which requires that we should meet together in a spirit of harmony; in that true spirit of conciliation which should animate an American Legislator, and guide all his official actions. It is a duty imposed on us alike by the dictates of policy and honor, to carry out the provisions of the act of Congress, by which these lands were donated to the State. For this purpose, we should come together amicably, and discard from our bosom every feeling of envy. An impartial judge will find from this discussion that there is reason on both sides; that neither is entirely wrong, and neither entirely right. Let us then come to the best conclusion to which we may be directed by the lights which have been presented to us. Neither system is perfect; for perfection belongs not to the nature of man. It behooves us then to make the best bill we can And let me say here that, no one is more averse than I am to that species of demagoguery which is more expressively than elegantly called Buncombe. I always desire to see the people in the full enjoyment of all their just rights; but I never loose my self respect, nor stoop to pander to the mob. Of that, I have never been guilty. I hope, then, that in this august assemblage of Senators, convened to legislate for the prosperity and glory of the State, I shall never again hear the word Buncombe. If the bill introduced by the Senator from New Orleans is a good one, let us pass it. I do not suppose there can be any valid objection to the election of an Engineer by the people. Gentlemen may talk about sectional influences and sectional partialities; but is not the Executive, if he be invested with the power of appointment, liable to be surrounded by baneful influences, is he not apt to yield to the solicitations of friends and favorites; and does not the tenure of office in such cases depend on an irresponsible agency, the more hurtful because unseen? Let us leave the election of this officer to the people, to those whose interests he is destined to protect; and not confide it to an Executive, who seldom in his appointments, is able to obey the dictates of his own judgment; but yields to the influences of the irresponsible counsellors who surround him.

Mr. Moore—

I wish to correct an error in the calculations which have entered into this discussion. In making my estimate of the expenses, I took it for granted, that there would be four districts, and too assistant engineers. I find that I was mistaken, and therefore made an error of $4,400. In looking over the report of the State Engineer, I find that, during the last year, he expended $10,600. However, in either case, the relative cost remains the same. The expenses of both being reduced, the comparison in favor of the bill before the Senate would be $13,000 instead of $15,000.

Mr. Defreese—

I think, sir, we ought to dispose of this bill at once. If the bill is objectionable in any particular, let it be taken up section by section and amended, in those respects in which it needs amendment, instead of laying it on the table. For my part I do not object to the election of the Engineer by the people Call it by what name you please, I think it is right. I think the people should be trusted. The foundation of our Institutions is the doctrine that the people are capable of selecting their officers. They are the ones to be benefited or injured. If they select unworthy or incompetent agents, the evil falls on them. They are therefore the proper arbiters. The expression of such an opinion here, may be styled demagogueism, but I am willing to abide the hazard of the accusation; nor can I be turned aside from my opinions by such a charge. The doctrine of popular election was once derided by those who were fearful or distrustful of the people. It was said that, if the people were permitted to choose their own officers, they would select men without reference to their fitness or efficiency. But the innovation was made; the experiment was tried. Have the people been the losers? On the contrary, has the result not justified the hopes of the friends of popular rights? And why should we adopt a different plan in reference to an Engineer? It is true that an Engineer must possess certain peculiar qualifications; but this bill makes all necessary provision for that, by declaring that the officer must be a practical Engineer. None others are eligible to the place; no other can present himself as a candidate, with any hope of success. But when a competent man presents himself for the suffrages of his fellow-citizens, it would not certainly detract from his capacity or his usefulness, that he was elected by the people. If the people are always actuated by impure or improper motives; if they are the rabble, that they are sometimes called, it is then right to deprive them of the privilege of electing their officers. But when we recollect that common honesty is the principle prevalent in the community, we cannot doubt the ability of the people to elect competent officers. The honorable Senator from Rapides was right in saying that the people are not the only ones liable to be actuated by improper motives or to be moved by improper influences. The same motives might animate the breast of any one to whom we might confide the appointing power; the same influences might direct his action. If the Executive be invested with the power of appointment, shall we be told that he alone is exempt from human frailties, that he alone has no friends to reward, no enemies to punish? If public officers alone be exempt from ordinary frailties and feelings, then let us leave the appointment to them. But if they are liable to the same influences; if they are animated by the same ambitious views; if they may be influenced by the same selfish desires as other men, then it is better to leave the choice to the many instead of to the one It has been said that the Engineer should be a man of education and refinement; that he should not lower the dignity of the place to which he aspires by going to the polls, or appearing on the stump. Sir, I desire to see no man in office who holds himself so far above his fellow-citizens as to be unwilling to mingle with them on terms of equality; nor do I think the people are so exacting, that before a man could receive their support they would require him to descend from the broad platform of gentlemanly conduct. Should he do so, I am confident that the people would be the first to hurl him from the high eminence he had disgraced. I care not whether the expression of such opinions be called demagogueism; I care not whether it be called Buncombe, or stigmatised by any name that gentlemen may choose to apply. There is another feature of this discussion to which I wish to allude. A great deal has been said about responsibility. Now, sir, I do not believe responsibility will be lessened by concentration. I do not believe the responsibility will be less when it falls on one man than when it falls on many. The same arguments as to local favoritism, urged against one man, with equal propriety, be urged against four. I do not think the one would be as liable to be influenced by favoritism, or that he would venture to perform work in one section, to the neglect or injury of the others. As soon as elected, he would forget that he had been a resident of any particular section of the State, and would act with impartiality, and if he desired to retain his office, this would be his only course. For, could he expect to preserve his position by favoring his immediate neighbors or by conciliating the whole State? If he displayed favoritism at all, it would be a favoritism demanded by necessity, and produced by a blind partiality. The bill has, moreover, the advantage of economy in the administration of our Internal Improvements. It has been said that it confides too much power to one man by placing the control of an immense fund in his hands; that there is not sufficient responsibility; that the Engineer is not hedged in by enough restrictions; that he may squander the money, or be influenced, in the disposal of it, by his own sordid feelings. I do not see then one man will be more liable to such influences than four. But he must give a bond, and I should be in favor of increasing its amount rather than diminish it. For my part, I must consider this bill infinitely preferable to the present system, or to any other which requires more officers. Gentlemen talk about evil influences, and sectional partialities. I can view such expressions as only produced by the heat of argument. This officer is to be elected by the people, and the oath he is to take is prescribed by the bill. Would his fellow-citizens elect a man who would be willing to disregard his solemn oath? I do not believe they would. There is still another feature of this bill, which has been condemned, but which I regard as a good one. It is that which provides that the Engineer must be a citizen of the State. I care not whence he comes, or where he may be born, whether he first saw the light of day on this republican soil, or under the oppressive rule of a despotic government, if he possess the requisite capacity, let him be elegible. But I am not willing to let the Governor appoint, or run the risk of the people choosing an officer whose feelings are not with us, whose sympathies are not harmonious with ours. I wish to have one whose feelings and and sympathies are identified with the interests of the State. I shall say no more on this subject at present, as I do not wish to weary the Senate by extending my remarks to a tedious length. I shall only repeat my desire that the bill be taken up section by section, amended where it needs amendment, and finally passed, as I consider the system it embodies to be the one required by the State for proper administration of our Internal Improvements.

Mr. DeRussy—

With a view of enlightening the Senate in regard to one point, I beg leave to read the fourth section.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, &c. That no person shall be eligible to the office of Civil Engineer of the State who is not, at the time of his election, a legal voter in elections for State officers, who is not also well versed in the science and practice of Civil Engineering, or who is a public defaulter.

It will be seen that the bill says the Engineer must be possessed of certain qualifications which are therein specified Those qualifications are indeed essentially necessary, but who, let me ask, is to be the judge of whether he possesses them or not? Who is to decide whether he is a good Engineer or not? Who is to decide that important question? It is all very well to tell us that the bill requires the Engineer to be well versed in his profession; but every one can see that it is an idle ceremony, when there is no power to judge of the fact, before the officer shall have evinced it by his actions, and then there would be no remedy in case he did not fulfill the requisitions of the law. I admit that the Engineer department requires reformation. No one can deny that, nor have I any wish to do so The report of the State Engineer shows that he has now on hand as much work as he could execute in ten years. But can you remedy this evil by imposing upon him, in addition to his present onerous duties, the labors incident to the proper administration of the swamp land fund? Every one will see the absurdity of such a proposition. I believe the State Engineer has done the best that he could do under the circumstances. I have no desire to accuse him of want of energy. But it is impossible, with a revenue of only $15,000, and the small force at his disposal, for him to accomplish much. It is therefore evident to my mind, that this department requires reorganization. Here we have before us propositions for the appropriation of various sums to be devoted to the execution of work by the State Engineer. Yet we are told that we shall increase his facilities by putting on him the labor of the whole swamp land fund. But a complete and practicable reorganization requires time. It is too important a subject to be treated lightly or disposed of in a hurry. Let this year pass away, and with the additional experience we shall thus acquire, we can return at the next session and make such a reorganization as will be practicable and beneficial. This bill, I regret to say, does not effect that desirable object. If we adopt it, the results will be, in every way unfortunate. The present system is not, intrinsically, a bad system, though it may need some amendment or modification. It has worked well for a year, and it ought not to be demolished at a blow until something evidently superior be presented to us We can amend and modify it so as to accomplish our object and that would certainly be better than to rush at once into a new and untried system. I shall now, sir, move to lay the bill on the table subject to call.

Mr. King—

I must say that I hope the motion of the gentleman will not prevail. I have labored assiduously in the preparation of this bill, and it has been misrepresented in several important particulars by those who are opposed to it. It is therefore nothing more than fair that its friends should have an opportunity of presenting it in its true colors. The Senator from Natchitoches, who last addressed the Chair, made an appeal in favor of the present system, urging that it should continue in force another year. If the system is good, by all means let us continue it, but if it is bad, it should be done away with. If it should be abolished at the end of a year, it should be abolished now. The reasons which would apply then, apply with even greater force at the present moment. It has been obected that under this bill the Engineer would be taken from some particular locality, and that he would, on that account, be liable to sectional influences and partialities. But, the gentlemen, even if their objection has any real force, have forgotten, or omitted to notice the fact, that the bill provides for dividing the State into four districts, and the money for each district must be spent within that district. Thus the disposal of their money will be less influenced by partiality than under any other system that has been proposed. Of four commissioners, each representing a certain district, of course, each will be anxious to favor his own, even at the expense of the rest. It has also been said that this bill invests the Engineer with too much power. This tremendous power which seems to have excited so much fear in the minds of certain Senators consists of the expenditure, by the Engineer under the appropriations of the Legislature, and therefore under its direction, of about $60,000 a year. This has been represented as the height of despotic power, and in contemplating it, gentlemen seem to have been frightened from their propriety. The bill does not appropriate a cent; it simply defines the duties of an office. When we create an office, it is, of course, necessary that we should define the duties of the incumbent. This is what the bill does; and yet a mere definition of such a kind, has been seized on, and held up to the Senate as the establishment of a monstrous tyranny. Accusations can be made with facility; and once made, they are apt to be repeated too frequently without investigation, by those who mistake words for facts. It was well said by the Roman satirist:

Uvaque conspectâ livorem ducit ab uvâ.

It is easy enough to raise the cry of mad dog; but then, woe to the unfortunate victim. We have been told, sir, that my bill would be more expensive than the present system, though it requires only one officer in place of five, at the same salary as either one. We are told that five will cost less than one. This bill provides for only two salaried officers—the Engineer and an assistant to take care of the books. The bill is very rigid in establishing the principle that no work can be done except by the job, and when the work is performed the employee must be discharged. This alone will save a great deal of expense, and relieves the treasury of the expense of supporting a host of salaried officers. Let me read the section of the bill which contains this provision:

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c., That he shall appoint and dismiss at pleasure, all officers and persons authorized by law, to be engaged on the works of Internal Improvement carried on by the State.

He shall employ, out of the funds appropriated for Internal Improvements, commanders and crews of vessels, superintendents of special works, and laborers, whenever in his opinion, they are necessary. The compensation to such employees, to be the lowest rate at which suitable persons can be procured; but he shall never retain such persons longer than they are actually engaged upon the public works. The wages of such persons to be paid upon the warrant of the Civil Engineer, and his certificate that the service has been performed, and that the sum is justly due, approved by the Auditor of Public Accounts.

When an Engineer is employed, the same kind of a certificate is required, and when his work is done, he must be discharged. We pay for the work that is done, and when it is done, and do not have a set of drones eating out our substance. I have now, I believe, gone through the objections which have been urged against this bill. I think I have shown that they are groundless. The bill is as economical as, theoretically, it can be made. The gentleman from St. Martin, in the remarks he addressed to the Senate, showed that under the existing system, $30,000 out of $90,000 would be consumed in expenses. It would be, I presume, useless, or superfluous, for me to endeavor to convince grave Senators that economy is in this case peculiarly necessary; that they should administer the trust confided to them, as faithful stewards, and not squander it in the payment of salaries. The present system, I think, is an abuse of the trust which has been placed in our hands. It is literally a throwing away of $25,000 per annum merely to show how $50,000 should be spent. It is, emphatically, a rotten system, which will inevitably bring ruin upon us. The Senator from West Feliciana found a provision in the bill, requiring the Engineer to be a voter in this State; and to that he makes objection. Why, sir, is that not a necessary qualification of all our State officers?—And why should we make an exception in this case?

It is scarcely necessary for me to repeat that this is an important bill It must pass soon, if it pass at all, or there will not be time for it to get through the Lower House. I believe the Senate is in favor of it, and I should like to have the vote taken on it now.

The motion to lay the bill on the table, subject to call, was lost

The resolution of the Senator from Concordia then came up as follows:

Resolved, That this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Internal Improvements, with instructions to report an act amendatory of an act to reclaim and drain the swamp and overflowed lands, so as to make the same more effective, and providing for the formation of a fourth land District, with a Commissioner in each District, said Commissioners to be independent of each other.

Mr. Martel, without prevous notice, introduced a bill entitled:

An act ratifying the bond given by the Sheriff of the parish of St. Landry, in his official capacity.

Mr. Lacey submitted the following memorial and petition, which, on motion, the reading of the same was dispensed with, and they were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Memorial of John Rowe, to emancipate certain slaves, and

The Committee beg leave, through their Chairman, to report favorably upon the bill.

Mr. Lawes, from the Special Committee, to whom was referred a bill entitled:

An act to establish a Medical Board of Examiners, and to suppress empericism in the medical profession, Reported favorably.

On motion of Mr. Lawes, it was ordered to be printed, and made the special order of the day for Thursday, March 2d, 1854.

Mr. Boatner, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred a bill entitled "An act for the relief of Stephen Van Wickle," made the following report:

To the Hon. W. W. Farmer,
Lieut. Governor and President of the Senate.

The Committee to which was referred an act entitled, "An act for the relief of Stephen Van Wickle, of the parish of Pointe Coupée," accompanied with a memorial of said Stephen Van Wickle, beg leave to report, that after an investigation of the case, on the testimony produced by the memorialist, as well as that obtained by the Committee, they can see no grounds to sustain the application of the memorialist. It is true that the Raccourci Cut-Off, made by the State in 1848, proved highly injurious to some of our best citizens, yet the Committee are of opinion that the law ordering this work, was passed under a conviction that it would prove beneficial to a large portion of the inhabitants of Lower Louisiana, the memorialist among the number, and had the result been as contemplated, Stephen Van Wickle would have reaped the benefit without paying a farthing extra to the State. Contrary, however, to the anticipations of the Legislature, and the professional opinion of some of our ablest engineers, the Raccourci proved injurious to the inhabitants for whose benefit it was made, and under the circumstances, your Committee think it is their duty as good citizens to submit to the loss.

The case before the Committee, presents neither legal nor equitable grounds for indemnity: satisfactory evidence having been before the Committee, that the land alleged in the memorial to have been destroyed by the Raccourci, always had a caving front, previous even to the year 1848; that (to use the words of several gentlemen well acquainted with all the facts of this case) "a steamboat could never make a landing twice at the same place in two trips;" that the land never was considered valuable, that it was abandoned by the owner to the parish, in preference to keeping up a levee; that it (the land) would have caved as much without the Raccourci, as with it.

The Committee consider the allowance of this claim as establishing a lawful precedent, as opening the door to claims probably more just than this, which would exhaust the Treasury of the State for years to come, and impose a tax on the people, which would prove onerous in the extreme, and viewing the case in any light which presents itself the Committee feel constrained from a sense of duty to report unfavorably to the claim of the memorialist.

The Committee cannot close this report without returning thanks to those gentlemen who so kindly aided them in their investigations of this truly bothersome and perplexing question.

(Signed M. BOATNER, Chairman
Committee on Claims.

WEDNESDAY, March 1st, 1854.

The following bill was under consideration:

An Act concerning forfeited bonds and recognizances and fines in criminal prosecutions throughout the State, (the Parishes of Orleans and Jefferson excepted.)

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That the several District Attorneys throughout the State (the Parishes of Orleans and Jefferson excepted) shall be entitled to demand and receive one-third amount of all sum or sums which may be collected on forfeited bonds, recognizances and fines imposed in criminal prosecutions and misdemeanor by any court of justice of this State, and the other two-thirds shall be paid over into the Parish Treasury, to aid in defraying the expenses in criminal prosecutions and other ordinary expenses of the Parish, after deducting the per centage allowed by law to the Sheriff for collecting and paying over the same.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, &c., That all other laws or parts of laws contrary to the foregoing provisions be and they are hereby repealed.

Mr. Palfrey—

I move to amend by striking out all after the word Parish in the 13th line of the first section, and inserting after the word "sums" in the 7th line—"first deducting the per centage allowed by law to the Sheriff for collecting and paying over the same."

Both amendments were adopted.

Mr. Moore—

I object to this bill.

Mr. Ryan—

There is a law already giving District Attorneys fees for prosecuting certain cases. I am opposed to exciting the cupidity of our District Attorneys. The House has passed a bill increasing their salaries, and I cannot see why we should be giving them anything more, in the way of fees.

Mr. Munday—

The good of this bill will be that the District Attorneys will endeavor to collect the forfeited bonds more than they now do. I cannot say that if an individual violates the law, and the District Attorney, under his oath and his duty prosecutes him, it is cupidity to do so.

Mr. Ryan—

They get ten per cent. now.

Mr. Munday—

No matter. They are very badly paid. The young men of the bar are not ragamuffins, and they are just as conscientious as the hoary-headed veterans. The effect of this bill will be to increase the vigilance and the pay of the office. When young men of good families and good talents and acquirements discharge the duties of this office, they are entitled to good pay, and should have it.

Mr. Trudeau—

I see that the bill reads—"the Parishes of Orleans and Jefferson excepted." I would ask why the Parish of Jefferson is excepted?

Mr. Munday—

I thought the Parish of Jefferson included the city of Lafayette.

Mr. Trudeau—

No, sir. I would ask the Judiciary Committee why the Parish of Jefferson was left out. The city of Lafayette is now a part of Orleans Parish and there can be no good reason why Jefferson should be treated differently from other country Parishes.

Mr. Munday—

I have no objection to include Jefferson in the bill.

The amendment was accordingly made and the bill passed.

CLAIM OF J. H. MADDOX.

Mr. Lacey, from the Judiciary Committee called up the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Claims be instructed to ascertain the amount which Joseph H. Maddox is entitled to demand from the State, on his alleged claim; and that they also be instructed to inquire whether the sum of $3,000 received by him under an act of the last Legislature, was not received in full payment of all his demands against the State, growing out of the printing of the debates and the publication of the same in the daily and weekly paper.

Mr. Taylor—

The subject has already been before the Committee on Claims, the members of which could not come to any agreement with regard to it. There is no probability that they will be able to agree now. I think it would be better to place it before the Senate at once.

Mr. Lacey—

I would state that this is a new question; it is whether he did not receive a certain sum of money last year in full payment of all his claims. Such is the opinion of some Senators. It is a simple question of fact which naturally comes before the Committee on Claims, and is entitled to a full investigation.

Mr. Taylor—

The Committee has already investigated the whole subject. Mr. Maddox did not receive that amount in full payment, but only for certain work which he had already done. The Committee could not agree on any particular amount.

Mr. King—

I would like to call the attention of the Senate to the peculiar wording of this resolution. It says "that the Committee on Claims be instructed to ascertain the amount which Joseph H. Maddox is entitled to demand from the State," and whether a certain sum paid to him last year was received in full of all his claims against the State. Now, sir, this assumes the whole question at issue. It takes for granted that money is due to the claimant, so that if we pass the resolution we would afterwards be precluded from making any opposition. I will state now that I am opposed to the claim. I do not think Mr. Maddox is entitled to anything from the State on the grounds he sets forth. Yet, if we pass this resolution, it will be a recognition of his claim to something, and I shall be precluded from making any opposition afterwards.

Mr Rivers—

I do not see that the resolution can have any such effect. It contains two propositions: the first that the Committee inquire how much is due to Mr Maddox; the next, whether he has been already paid. If nothing is due, the Committee will so report. But whatever the Committee do, the Senate will not be estopped from acting.

Mr. King—

I move to amend the resolution by inserting the words "in their opinion," after the word "which."

Mr. Rivers—

I certainly have no objection to the amendment, although it can make no sort of difference. I would ask the gentleman whether he thinks the Committee would make a report not in accordance with their opinion?

Digitized by Google

Mr. Moore—

The Committee might take testimony on the point, and it would be very inconvenient for the Senate to take or listen to testimony. The Committee could report the result of its investigations to the Senate. At present I have no knowledge on the subject of this claim, and therefore could not tell how to vote on it, without further light.

Mr Trudeau—

I can see no reason for a reference to the Committee on Claims. The Senator from St Charles (Mr. Taylor) has already told us that the Committee could not agree on any particular sum, and that there is no probability of its agreeing.

Mr. Taylor—

On consultation with several members of the Committee on Claims, I am induced to withdraw my objections to the reference.

The amendment of Mr. King was adopted, and the resolution passed.

REMOVAL OF THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Ryan introduced a bill to take the vote of the people of this State, on the expediency of the removal of the seat of government from the town of Baton Rouge to the city of New Orleans.

Mr. Trudeau—

I move to refer the bill to a special committee of five.

Mr. Kenner—

This is a local bill. I move to refer it to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Ryan—

It is not a local question, nor is it an amendment of the Constitution. It provides simply for taking the sense of the people at the next general election, when it would not cost one cent to do it. Some think the seat of government should be removed; some think it should not. I wish to take the sense of the people on the subject.

Mr. Kenner—

I may be wrong in viewing it as a local question; but it is certainly a Constitutional question. It seeks to do indirectly what the gentleman can not effect directly; that is to amend the Constitution. I believe my motion to refer to one of the Standing Committees, has preference.

Mr. King—

I do not know any such rule.

Mr. Moore—

That is the rule in every parliamentary body in which I have ever been, and I have been in a good many.

Mr. Trudeau—

No doubt we should have an able report from the Committee, but I shall hear their opinions in full when the bill comes before the Senate. I move to lay the gentleman's motion on the table.

Mr. Ryan—

This does not require any legal or constitutional opinion. It has nothing at all to do with the Constitution.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

The bill was then referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Ryan—

I move to instruct the Committee to report by Monday next.

Mr. Lacey—

I would remark that the Judiciary Committee has about twenty-five bills before it, some of which are far more important than this one, and require to be reported earlier.

Mr. Ryan—

The gentleman voted to refer, and he being the Chairman of the Committee, ought certainly to have known whether he would have time to act. However, I withdraw my motion to instruct.

ORDER OF THE DAY,

THE INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT BILL.

The resolution of Mr. Rivers was in order.

Mr. Kenner—

I believe there is a special order for to-day—the bill to repeal the article of the Constitution providing for the establishment of a Board of Public Works. As it is the opinion of members that that article should be repealed, I move we take up that bill in order that members may vote in accordance with their views on the subject before them without being trammeled with constitutional objections.

Mr. King—

I second the motion.

Mr. Lacoste—

I move that the late senator from Carroll (Mr. Short) be invited to take a seat within the bar during the debate on this bill.

The motion was carried unanimously.

THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Mr. Moore—

I wish to give some reasons why I am not in favor of repealing the article of the Constitution which requires the establishment of a Board of Public Works. I shall then, as a last question, make a motion to lay the bill on the table. I differ with some senators as to the original merits of this question. I think the plan proposed by the Constitution is the least we can adopt. The system adopted by the last Legislature, leaving the Internal Improvement department untouched, and requiring the appointment of Swamp Land Commissioners, was a mere hybrid imitation of the Constitutional provision. In the first place, it has three Districts instead of four, as required by the Constitution. It is now the general opinion that there should be four Districts. There is some difference of opinion as to whether we have, at this time, the power to do the thing proposed by the bill. The Constitution explicitly says that there shall be a Board of Public Works, and points out the manner in which the members shall be chosen,—that is, by a vote of the people of the respective districts. Farther on, it says that this Board may be abolished by a vote of three-fourths of the members elected to the Legislature. Now, sir, I would ask how we can abolish a Board which has no existence; for the Legislature has not yet, by establishing the Board, fulfilled the injunction of the Constitution. Nor can we, by an act of the Legislature, revise or alter the Constitution. We have no right or power to do it without a vote of the people. There should be no difference between the Board of Swamp Land Commissioners and the Constitutional Board. There are now two departments, but if the Constitution were adhered to, the whole should be put under the supervision of the Commissioners. I consider that economy is essentially necessary to success in this matter. We must come to that, or fail entirely. The funds are not great enough for us to support two separate departments. We must shortly amalgamate them. Then why should we not carry out the injunctions of the Constitution? The last Legislature considered that it was necessary to have Commissioners to administer the fund. What is the difference whether we call them Swamp Land Commissioners or a Board of Public Works. The question seems to be simply whether they shall be appointed by the Governor or elected by the people. For my part, I have full confidence in the people. I think they are as capable of selecting their own officers as any man in the community. We have elected our Judges—those who are to sit upon the bench and administer our laws; is that wrong Are the people not content with the system? You compel the Commissioner to be a resident of the district for which he is chosen, but you will not let the people elect him. But why should the people not have the control? It is no part of our Legislative business. We are not chosen to administer this fund as well as to make laws. I have confidence in the Governor and the Senate; but I think we should give to the people the right of electing their own officers. In the course of my life, I have never lost confidence in the popular intelligence. They may sometimes be corrupted by demagogues in the large cities; but I believe that the sober second thought will always set them right. In the country, and I say it with pleasure, the people never intend anything but what is honest. Excitement may for a moment lead them astray, but they soon return to the right path; they are sure to come right at last.

These funds, which have been conferred upon us by the munificence of Congress, may, if properly administered, do much good; but if badly, we shall derive no benefit from them. In 1842, Congress donated to the State 500,000 acres of land, to be located in any part of the State in which we might choose to locate it. From this donation we have certainly derived some advantage, but not to an extent commensurate with the expectations that were formed. And why was this? The answer is plain: the revenue was, in great part, frittered away in salaries instead of being scrupulously devoted to the objects for which it was intended. It is obvious that this system is defective. And what better plan can be adopted than the Constitutional District system? Each member will know the wants of his own district. When they meet, he will say such a place needs improvement; such a levee should be built; and thus the greatest good can be accomplished at the least expense. Will any one say that he would not trust a man elected by the people for this very purpose? Will any member of the Democratic party proclaim that he is unwilling to trust the people? I sir, am a Democrat of the old school; I am not a new-fledged Democrat, formed from a Federalist. I was a member of the old Republican party, and from the doctrines of that party I have never swerved. I joined the Whig party in 1832, as the legitimate successor of the Republican party. The soi disant Democrats, on the contrary, took up the doctrines of the old Federalists. In fact, their tendencies are very similar, if not absolutely identical. The great difference between the Federalists and the Republicans was that the Federalists wished to increase the power of the Executive—to which the Republicans were opposed. Finding the opinions of the Democrats more congenial to their tastes, on the dissolution of the old organization most of the Federalists joined the Democratic party. I have nothing to say against the mass of the Democrats; I believe they are honest and sincere in their opinions; but they are misled by a name. I have been a good Whig since 1832, and I believe the Whig party is the true Democratic party. These, sir, in brief, are the reasons which induce me to believe that these Commissioners should be elected by the people. I think each one should reflect the wishes and opinions of the people of the district which he is presumed to represent. If the article of the Constitution under discussion be repealed, I shall go heart in hand for the amending the present system. I will support any measure which will tend to develope the usefulness of the great fund which has been conferred upon us by Congress. If we find the Engineer system, as proposed by the senator from New Orleans, to be the best one, let us adopt it. If we conclude the Constitutional system of four districts to be preferable, let us go for it. But I will state, that I am opposed to the repeal of these articles. I think a practicable and proper bill can be formed under them. I believe we cannot abolish a system which does not exist. When it exists we may abolish it; but how can we do so before it is even established? I move to lay the bill on the table indefinitely.

Mr. Kenner—

I would state for the information of some members, that a bill abolishing the Board of Public Works has passed the lower House. There are some doubts as to whether we possess, at this time, the constitutional power to do it. In order to test the opinions of Senators on that point, the gentleman from St. Martin has moved to lay this bill on the table. Those of us in favor of abolishing that article will vote "No." Those against the proposition will vote "Yes." We can then, by the count, see if the constitutional majority is in favor of abolishing the Board.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

Mr. King—I move that the bill be adopted; but in the first place I will read the articles of the Constitution. They are as follows:

"Article 130. There shall be a Board of Public Works, to consist of four Commissioners. The State shall be divided by the Legislature into four Districts, containing as nearly as may be an equal number of voters, and one Commissioner shall be elected in each District by the legal voters thereof, for the term of four years; but of the first elected, two, to be designated by lot, shall remain in office for two years only.

Art. 131. The General Assembly, at its first session after the adoption of this Constitution, shall provide for the election and compensation of the Commissioners, and the organization of the Board. The Commissioners first elected shall assemble on a day to be appointed by law, and decide by lot the order in which their terms of service shall expire.

Art. 132. The Commissioners shall exercise a diligent and faithful supervision of all public works in which the State may be interested, except those made by joint stock companies. They shall communicate to the General Assembly, from time to time, their views concerning the land, and recommend such measures as they may deem necessary in order to employ to the best advantage and for the purposes for which they were granted, the swamp and overflowed lands conveyed by the United States to this State They shall appoint all officers engaged on the public works, and shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law.

Art. 133. The Commissioners may be removed by the concurrent vote of a majority of all the members elected to each house of the General Assembly, but the cause of the removal shall be entered on the journal of each House.

Art. 134. The General Assembly shall have power, by a vote of three fifths of the members elected to each house, to abolish said Board whenever, in their opinion, a Board of Public Works shall no longer be necessary.

Mr. Boatner—

Before I vote, I wish to know whether we are abolishing a Board of Public Works which does not exist. This article of the Constitution applies merely to abolishing a Board already in existence. We cannot abolish a Board which does not exist.

Mr. Kenner—

There is a Board. The members have not been elected—but for all that the offices exist. The Constitution says there shall be a Governor, a Secretary of State, &c—this is merely constitutional language. It has not a future meaning, but a present meaning—it establishes these offices. The Constitution itself establishes the Board; we could merely provide for the election of the members.

Mr Rivers—

By this bill we shall be amending the Constitution. If we were to organize the Board that will be a law of the legislature and could be repealed by a simple majority.

Mr. Wickliffe—

To say the Legislature must first establish a Board of Public Works, in order afterwards to abolish it, would be absurd. It is ridiculous to contend that we ought to establish the Board merely for the sake of abolishing it. If we pass this bill we obliterate those articles from the Constitution. It would be a singular position to take—to contend that we ought to establish the Board in order to destroy it, when by a simple vote of three-fifths we can accomplish our object, by striking those articles from the Constitution.

Mr. McCay—

This question was discussed very fully last year, and I continue to entertain the opinion I then expressed. It is evident, to my mind, that the framers of the Constitution contemplated that this experiment should be tried. The language of the instrument is explicit—it says: "There shall be a Board of Public Works," and it then goes on to direct the manner in which the Board shall be elected and to impose on the Legislature the duty of organizing it. We have the power to abolish it by a vote of three-fifths, when, in our opinion, it shall be no longer necessary. But in order to ascertain this we must first try it, and we cannot try it without establishing and organizing it. That seems to me very clear. When we find it no longer necessary then we may abolish it. A distinction does exist, to which the gentleman from Concordia (Mr. Rivers) has called attention. The language of the bill repeals those articles of the Constitution Now, Sir, I have not had much experience in the art of constitution making or constitution amending; but I do not believe a vote of the Legislature can abolish a part of the Constitution. The process of amending it is pointed out in the instrument itself. It has been agreed that we may abolish the Board by a vote of three-fifths. But it is imperative on us, in the first place, to try it. Last year we were willing to disregard those mandates of the fundamental law; and I myself voted for what I considered the next best system, which was the Swamp Land Act, now in force, and which we are trying to amend. But I say again that I consider it our duty to fulfil the injunctions of the Constitution by organizing the Board of Public Works Then, if we do not like its operation, we may abolish it. But we cannot abolish it now that it has no existence, or repeal an article of the Constitution by any action of ours.

Mr. Rivers—

I wish to say but a word on this subject. If the Legislature establish the Board now, at the next session it may repeal the law by the vote of a simple majority. But the Constitution says, that by a vote of three-fifths we may abolish these articles of the Constitution. It makes an exception in this case to the general rule of amendment. It gives to twenty members of the Senate, and an equal proportion of the House, a right to effect the amendment.

Mr. Boatner—

I do not wish to trouble the Senate, but I cannot avoid expressing my astonishment at the definition of the expression "shall be," given by the Senator from Ascension (Mr. Kenner). He contends that "there shall be" was "there is." With the gentleman from New Orleans (Mr. McCay) I must say that I am not familiar with the making or mending of Constitutions; and therefore I do not profess to be versed in the mysteries of constitutional language. If the words "there shall be" really mean "there is," then the Board exists. But who knows anything about this ideal Board! The Constitution says we must establish it, and we have no power to repeal the Constitution, or power to repeal any part of it. We have only the power in a certain way, to amend it. We are told that by a vote of three-fifths we have power to abolish this Board. Let the gentleman who introduces the bill establish the Board as required by articles 130, 131, 132 and 133 of the Constitution, and I will afterwards vote for the bill—but I think we have no right to abolish the Board till it has existence. It is within the knowledge of every body, that now there is no Board. The Governor is not Governor till he is elected; the Secretary of State is not Secretary of State till after he is elected. He has, as Governor or Secretary of State, merely an ideal existence till that time. One gentleman has remarked, that to establish the Board before abolishing it, would be like setting up heaps of sand in order to knock them down. I say we cannot knock them down before we set them up However, if a bill be brought in, simply to abolish the Board, without affecting the Constitution, I will vote for it.

Mr. Rivers—

I would ask the gentleman a question. Does it require three-fifths, or a simple majority to organize the Board?

Mr. Boatner—

Only a majority.

Mr. Rivers—

Then it would only take a majority to repeal the law.

Mr. Boatner—

Not at all. The Constitution says three-fifths are required.

Mr. Rivers—

But this is a simple law.

Mr Boatner—

The Constitution is higher than the law.

Mr. Wickliffe—

If we merely abolish the Board, what becomes of articles 130, 131, 132 and 133 of the Constitution?

Mr. Boatner—

The Board is abolished but the articles remain.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Not at all. If the articles remain there would be a continual violation of the Constitution. As long as we do not establish the Board we would be constantly violating the Constitution.

Mr. King—

In order to overcome the scruples of the gentleman from Caldwell, and to secure his vote, I move to lay the House bill on the table, and take up the

Digitized by Google

Senate bill, which is in the words suggested by him.

Mr. Boatner—

I will vote for it on the definition which the Senator from Ascension has given of the words of the Constitution.

Mr Kenner—

I want not only to get his vote, but I wish to satisfy his mind. The Constitution says the gov erument of Louisiana shall be divided into three departments—the Executive, Legislative and Judicial. Does that differ from the meaning it would have had if it had said, the government of the State of Louisiana is divided into three departments? Not at all. The meaning would be the same. It will thus be seen that when the Constitution was adopted, the future form acquired a present signification. This is constitutional language, such as is used by every constitution.

Mr. Lacey—

I think there is a distinction between abolishing the Board and repealing the articles of the Constitution. We have no power to repeal those ar ticles, though we have power to abolish the Board distinctly conferred upon us. I would, therefore, prefer to take up the Senate bill and lay the house bill on the table, subject to call.

Mr. Palfrey—

I should like to ask a question of the Senator from Ascension (Mr. Kenner). He presided over the deliberations of the Convention which formed the Constitution, and being a gentleman of great ability, as well as a close observer, would, very probably, form a correct opinion on the current events of that time and place. I would ask the gentleman what would have been the effect of the article if the Constitution had said that the Legislature, by a vote of three-fifths, shall have power to repeal these articles? What would have been the effect then? I ask the gentleman that.

Mr. Kenner—

I will answer the gentleman's question as far as I am able. The effect would be precisely the same as it is now. There would be no kind of difference. If the gentleman is satisfied with the explanation, I hope he will vote with us, and then we shall have one more vote.

Mr Palfrey—

I differ with the honorable Senator. I was also a member of the Convention, and, besides, a member of the Committee which reported the article, and my impression is directly the reverse.

Mr. Trudeau—

This question appears to be more complicated than we at first supposed. I think we can scarcely abolish a Board which does not exist; and which we have not established. We have not yet tried it—we do not know whether it would work well or not. I am not satisfied with the definition of the Senator from Ascension, that the future form has a present meaning. I think the Constitution means that we must organize the board because it says so.

The House bill was laid on the table subject to call.

Mr. Kenner—

I would ask the gentlemen what they would do? If they do not repeal these articles, what are they going to do? We must either repeal them or organize the Board. It is a remarkable fact that the gentlemen who now refuse to repeal these articles were, last year, loudest in their opposition to the establishment of the Board under the Constitution. The then Senator from Morehouse (Mr. Todd) introduced a bill establishing the Board, under the Constitution, and almost every member on the other side of the House voted against it.

Mr. Lacey—

The Senator from Ascension is perfectly right. We should do either one thing or the other, and not be, like Mahomet's coffin, suspended between heaven and earth.

Mr. Trudeau—

We cannot get over the fact that the Constitution requires this thing to be done. If the last Legislature refused to obey the mandates of the Constitution, it is no reason we should repeat the error now. There is no reason why the new members should be called on to go with those gentlemen. I have not been long enough in political life to be able to give to words a signification which their plain meaning does not warrant.

The bill passed to its third reading.

On motion of Mr. King—

The Internal Improvement bill was taken up.

The question was on striking out the amendment of Mr. Kenner to the resolution of Mr. Rivers.

The amendment was laid on the table.

A motion to lay the resolution of Mr. Rivers on the table was made.

Mr. Lacey—

I am fully impressed with the idea that the reclamation and drainage of the swamp and overflowed lands, and all public works of the State, should be placed in the hands of the Internal Improvement Department, properly organized. I think economy and good policy suggest this plan, and for that reason I introduced, at the last session of the Senate, a bill carrying out that object. A different system, however, has in the wisdom of the Legislature, been adopted, and as I desire to give that system a fair chance, and not build up at one session to destroy at another. I am opposed to the adoption of the bill introduced by the chairman of the Committee on Internal Improvements, and shall vote for a reference to the proposed committee. I think, however, time will force the Legislature to the adoption of the system set forth in the bill introduced by me at the last session.

Mr. King—

The gentleman admits that the bill is just the thing.

Mr. Lacey—

Not the bill but the plan.

Mr King—

Well then, he admits that the scheme is just the thing. But because the Legislature last year passed a bad bill we must continue it till we find out how it will work. If the system is bad now it will continue bad. I think we treat the commissioners with sufficient courtesy when we leave them in office for a year. That will be time enough for them to spend all there is on hand, and I hope they will spend it well. Next year there will be only $50,000 or $60,000, while this year we have $200,000. To continue them longer would be liable to stronger objections on the ground of salaries, because the sum they must be taken from will be smaller. I should like to see something done in this matter. I should not desire to see the Senator, from a false delicacy towards officials who have already been treated with sufficient consideratio n, deprive us of the benefit of his enlightened understanding.

A motion to lay on the table was lost.

Mr. King—

I want to offer an amendment to that resolution, o strike out all after the words "that the bill be

Digitized by Google

recommitted to the Internal Improvement Committee."

Mr. Wickliffe—

I object to the amendment—I want the bill amended.

Mr King—

I do not understand the gentleman's objection to my motion

Mr. Wickliffe—

As I understand it, the gentleman objects to being instructed.

Mr. King—

That is it, sir.

Mr. Wicklffe—

Well, sir, the Senate has already indicated its desire to instruct. If the resolution pass, the committee must bring in a bill in accordance with it

Mr. King—

I will give my reasons for not wishing to be instructed. I do not think that any one Senator should dodge any responsibility. Every Senator ought to draw his own bills, and not shift the labor and responsibility of doing it on any other senator. For my part, I can say that I will not draw any body's bills. The Legislature cannot compel me to do it. If a bill, different from my bill, be introduced, I have no objection—but let gentlemen who want different bills draw them themselves. Now, sir, what is the meaning of this resolution? Does it mean, to report it back? The proper course would be to have both bills before the Senate. But in this way bills are disposed of, as I have frequently had reason to complain, by a left handed manœuvre; no vote is ever taken on them. and we do not get the sense of the Senate on any position. I am perfectly willing to have both bills before the Senate—all I want is a fair vote. That is all I desire. But I cannot consent to be compelled to draw up bills for other gentlemen.

Mr Wickliffe—

I am astonished at the position taken by the gentleman—that the Senate has no right to instruct him. The gentleman in his capacity as Chairman of the Committee on Internal Improvements, is a mere creature of the Senate, and if he refuse to obey instructions, the Senate can take o her steps. The gentleman says no vote has been taken on the merits of the bill. A fair vote was taken on the resolution, and that was a test on the merits. If he refuse to obey the instructions of the Senate I am aware some other member of the Committee will do it. The resolution instructs the Committee to bring in a bill to organize the Board of Public Works. Now what is the position of the gentleman? Why, that the Senate has no right thus to instruct him. He is eggregiously mistaken in that, sir; as long as he is Chairman of that Committee we have the right to instruct him. I regret that the gentleman has taken that position. As Chairman of the Committee on Internal Improvements, he should have a juster appreciation of the rights of the Senate.

Mr. Rivers—

My object in offering the resolution was to test the question whether the Senate prefers the District or the one man system. The Senate, by a decided vote, has indicated its preference for the District system. The gentleman asks what, in such a case, will become of his bill. It can be reported back, and if the sober second thought induce the Senate to take it up, it can be done. The only necessity would be for the Committee to bring in a bill in accordance with the resolution. I will here state that the right of instruction has always heretofore been acquiesced in; and I hope the gentleman will not refuse to acknowledge it now.

Mr. King—

To make myself more clearly understood. I will state that I am willing to take the resolution in this form, "that the committee be instructed to bring in a bill."

Mr. Wickliffe—

When the bill has been reported, in accordance with the resolution of the Senate, the gentleman can take this bill and offer it as a substitute. No objection could be made to that, as it would be perfectly in order.

Mr. Moore—

As a member of the Committee, I will obey the instructions of the Senate. The Senate has the right of instruction, and I shall always acknowledge it. I shall not set up my opinion against the judgment of the Senate.

Mr King—

I certainly have some feeling on the subject. I contend that no Senator has a right to instruct me to draw bills for him I might do it as a favor; but the Senate has no right to instruct me to do it.

The amendment was carried.

The resolution was then adopted.

THURSDAY, March 2nd, 1854.

Increasing salary of Clerk of the First District Court.

Mr. McCay called up the bill for the increase of the salary of the Clerk of the First District Court.

Mr. King—There are many objections to this bill, and I cannot avoid expressing the hope that it will not pass. A candidate for office is presumed to know the value and emoluments of the office which he seeks. He has his eyes wide open. There is no deception. He becomes a candidate by his own free will, and if he find that he is disappointed, he ought to resign, and not ask for an increase of salary or perquisites. He ought not to come before the Legislature with a view of seeking relief to which he is not entitled. The gentleman who holds this office was the successful candidate among a field of competitors. I am glad that he got the office, though if he had not, I have no doubt another would have been found equally competent. I say again, that if he does not like the office, he ought to resign instead of applying to us to increase his salary. He knew the salary when he ran for the office, and he therefore has no right to complain. His success kept out others who no doubt would have been glad to get the office at the present salary. If we increase one, we should increase all.

Mr. McCay—This bill passed the House by a large majority, and its necessity was made apparent there. I do not agree with the Senator, that we should increase all salaries indiscriminately. But I think we should in each case pay a salary commensurate with the duties of the office, and the responsibilities which it entails. The salary of the Clerk of the First District Court, as now fixed by law, is $4,000, and I am informed that some of the clerks make a much larger amount than this, though their duties are not more laborious. I learn from this gentleman that the expenses of his office for stationery, such as blanks, pens, ink, paper, &c, amount to $1000, and that he pays to his deputies $1800, leaving $1200 for himself, a sum entirely too small to support a family in the city, and disproportionate to the duties and responsibilities of the office. The office is one of the most responsible in the State; for, besides its duties, there are a great number of forfeited bonds which are entirely under his control. I do not, as I have said, favor an indiscriminate increase of salaries, but I think we ought to make the office and the salary proportionate to each other.

Mr. Rivers—How is the salary paid now?

Mr. McCay—Out of the fines and forfeitures.

Mr. Munday—It is at all times disagreable to me to feel myself constrained to oppose any bill which comes to us with the endorsement of the other House. But my respect for the opinions and discussions of that body cannot induce me to neglect what I consider to be the true interests of the State. I cannot see the reason of the policy which dictates the payment of high salaries to officers in New Orleans, when those in the country receive a mere pittance in comparison. It cannot be that the cost of living is so much greater in the city The actual wants of an individual in the city and the country are the same; any difference must be purely imaginary, fictitious or conventional. The cost of living in New Orleans, that is to say, of supplying all needful wants, is nearly as cheap as in Baton Rouge. Yet the Clerk now asks a salary larger than if he were a Judge I cannot see why we should pay our clerks of courts so much in the city. In the country people are governed by the precepts of the holy book of inspiration—they live by the sweat of their brow, and are content to receive an adequate return for their labor. In New Orleans, on the contrary, they are in the habit of plunging their hands deep into the public treasury. A planter owning twenty hands would not make as much in a year as would be received by this individual. A few weeks ago these halls were crowded with young men who came here from New Orleans to feed from the public crib, instead of seeking employment at home. We are told by the gentleman who last addressed the Senate in advocacy of this bill, that the Clerk of the First District Court pays to his assistants $1,800 per annum. That is entirely too large a sum. In the country we find clerks who are willing to be present all the time and receive pay for what they do; and I venture to say there are many districts in the country where the labor is almost as heavy as in any of the courts of New Orleans. In New Orleans there are not many appeal cases—at least not so many as in the country; and that fact reduces the work. I have no doubt they have a great deal to do, but they are well paid for it already.

Mr. King—I will read from page 282 of the acts of the last session.

No 326. Be it enacted, &c, That the following sums be, and the same are hereby appropriated for the following objects, for the year commencing on the first day of April, 1853, and ending on the thirty-first day of March, 1854:

For the salary of the clerk of the First District Court of New Orleans, $4,000.

It will thus be seen that the salary of the Clerk of the First District Court is fixed at $4000. Although the law holds out the idea that it is to be paid from the fines and forfeited bonds, yet, when we observe that the Legislature has appropriated the requisite amount for its payment, we can readily see that the Clerk has no reason to give himself any trouble about the bonds. It is probable that he has drawn the entire amount of his salary from the State appropriation, The natural presumption is, that when an officer can get his salary out of the Treasury, he will not put himself much out of the way to collect the fines and forfeitures. But $4000 does not comprise the entire amount that this clerk can receive. He is invested with the privilege of charging a fee for making out naturalization papers, and this is a valuable privilege. If I mistake not, he is likewise entitled to a per centage on forfeited bonds, fees on appeal bonds, and for issuing marriage licenses. There are also I believe, other perquisites which I cannot call to mind at this moment. And now, to speak of the expenditures which my colleague from New Orleans has told us are necessary, I cannot see in what manner one thousand dollars a year can be expended for stationery. The minute book can be procured for ten or twelve dollars; the subpœna book for about the same, and a ream a month would amply supply the rest. I think $75 a year would buy all the stationery needed. Now, Sir, this gentleman was anxious for the office. There were others who wanted it, but he beat them; they probably would have been perfectly satisfied with the salary. In this country it is the grand privilege of a citizen not to keep office if he does not want it. If he gets tired, or dissatisfied with a place, he can resign. There is nothing to prevent his doing that. We can get many competent men to fill our offices.

Mr. Rivers—What is the charge for marriage licences?

Mr. King—The law does not fix any specific price.

Mr. Ryan—A few brief words will suffice for an explanation of my reasons in voting for this bill. The gentleman from New Orleans has told us that there are many good and competent men who would take the office at the salary now paid. It may be as he says, but that is not the question involved. He also demurs to the estimated cost of stationery; now, although I am informed by competent persons that the expenses in that line would be very high indeed, yet I do not intend to discuss that point at this moment. The true question at issue seems to me to have been overlooked. It is simply whether the proposed sum of money would be judiciously expended in procuring an ordinary man, of ordinary capacity, qualified to discharge the duties of the office. The Senator from East Feliciana, Mr Munday, has told us that he cannot imagine why such large salaries should be paid in New Orleans, since the actual necessities of life, food, lodging and clothing are about the same as in the country, and cannot differ much in price. He then gave us a dissertation on real and imaginary wants. I admit there is a great distinction between them, but that does not affect the question. Something is surely to be allowed in proportion to the duties and responsibilities of an office. These are very great in the case of the Clerk of the First District Court It is not sufficient that we enable him to pay for his board and lodging; something is surely due for his natural abilities. I agree also that a man ought to be content with his office, and not take it from others who may be equally competent, unless he intends to do the work. But if the sum paid is not enough for the services rendered and the responsibility incurred, we ought to give more The salary of this officer is now limited by law to $4000; out of this he has to pay two clerks $900 per annum each, making $1800, and other expenses reaching to about $1000 more, thus leaving him at the utmost only $1200. This is not enough, and the sum proposed by the bill is not by any means exorbitant The gentleman has attempted to run a parallel, or rather draw a contrast between salaries in the city, and salaries in the country. There is not the slightest analogy in the cases. In the city the courts remain open the whole year, and their officers are, therefore, constantly employed. In the country, on the other hand, they are employed only a part of the time. Now let us see what this gentleman actually receives. Take the $1800 for clerk hire; add the average between the $75 for stationery, estimated by the Senator from New Orleans, and the $1000 estimated by Mr. Scully, being $537 50, making together $2.337 50, and deduct that amount from $4000, it leaves $1,662 50. There are doubtless plenty of loafers who would be willing to accept any office at that price. But such we do not want. We require men of intelligence and capacity; men who will be a credit, not a disgrace to us. I am not by any means in favor of an extravagant expenditure of the public money; but neither would I consent to a reduction of salaries to such a low rate that none would accept office but the lowest and most incompetent persons. If we reduce our payments to so low a rate, we shall reduce the character of our officers to an equal level. There will be no distinction between the man of merit, and the man without merit. Yet we must have such a distinction as that, and it is the only one that should exist among us. The amount of the salary is not so much an object, as the procuring of a man of ability. We should not make the salary so low that a proper man would not be willing to take it. With these views I shall vote for this bill. I believe what is given at present is not enough. Gentlemen should recollect that this court has not civil jurisdiction, though it is possessed by every other, and thus the clerk labors under one serious disadvantage, although his office is the most responsible of them all, besides being the most troublesome and the most onerous. On these grounds I shall vote for the bill.

Mr. Munday—I would ask the Senator from New Orleans (Mr. King) if the gentleman who last held the office was a loafer, and whether he was not anxious to have it again.

Mr. King—The gentleman was evidently anxious to have it again, as he was a candidate before the people, though an unsuccessful one. He left the office with the esteem and respect of all who had been thrown into communication with him

Mr. Munday—There are some gentlemen who occasionally profess to be so enamoured of the dear people as to be willing to trust them to any extent; yet when the salary interferes they say the same dear people will elect any loafer or scoundrel.

Mr. Ryan—The people cannot help. A good man would not run, and somebody must be elected.

Mr Munday—The gentleman will not say that the present incumbent is a loafer. He knew what the salary was when he ran for the office. Now he comes to us and wants his salary increased. If he does not succeed, according to the gentleman's argument, he must be a loafer. The argument is not a good one. I think we should be exceedingly careful in respect to salaries. The duties of this office have, hitherto, been well performed in New Orleans, and no complaint reached us of the insufficiency of the salary. There seems, however, to be a tendency towards exorbitancy on the part of the New Orleans office holders. They continually come to us crying "give, give, give". I repeat that we should be careful of the money of the State, and not squander it in large salaries.

Mr. Lacey—I am not anxious for the distinction of being called the bull-dog of the Treasury, and therefore I shall not vote on this question merely with reference to the amount of money we may be called on to give, without regard to the justice of the claim. I shall make up my mind on the facts and figures which have been presented. In regard to the facts and figures, I shall take the incumbent for authority, as I do not consider we can have any better. The salary now allowed by law is $4000 per annum, out of which the expenses of the office are to be paid. These, according to the statement which has been laid before us, amount to $1800 for two clerks, and $1000 for stationery, leaving $1200 for the support of the Clerk and his family. As the Senator from Rapides has justly said, this is a pitiful sum, as a remuneration for the onerous and disagreeable duties of this most responsible office. The incumbent should be a capable man, not a low person incapable of performing the duties. I consider this bill right in itself, and even if I were the bull-dog of the Treasury, I should vote for it. I vote for salaries which I think right and proper, without caring how large the sum may be in the aggregate. My conduct on such a question is guided by my sense of justice, and not by any regard to the amount of money to be paid. Nor do I object to taxing the people to pay what I consider just and necessary expenses. And, Sir, I am sure that my constituents would not object to such a course. I am certain their opinions would be the same as my own. For these reasons I shall vote for the bill.

Mr. King—There seems to be a question of fact involved in this matter. Mr. Rousseau, the recent incumbent, held the office for a long time,—ever since the organization of the Courts under the Constitution of 1845. He had but one clerk, and yet he performed the duties of the office. Now, if we increase the salary, the present Clerk may hire another deputy at $900 a year, and do nothing at all himself.

Mr. Moore—There are two good reasons against this bill. The first is that the officer knew the salary when he took the office, and therefore gave an implied assent to that salary. He is a State officer, elected by the people, and has a contract with the State to do certain work for a certain stipulated sum. If this were a bill to diminish instead of to increase the salary of this officer, I should oppose it just as strongly. He has made a contract with the State, and both parties ought to adhere to it rigidly. To accede to this request would be merely giving a gratuity. What right have we to give gratuities to persons who accept an office at a fixed salary? What right have we to tax the people for such a purpose? I say again, there is a contract in this case just as binding as if it had been written and signed by both parties. I oppose any departure from that contract either to increase or diminish the salary as long as the incumbent remains in office. For an officer hereafter to be elected we might with propriety increase or diminish the salary; but what right have we to do it in the case of this one who was perfectly well aware of the salary when he accepted the office? Why, Sir, at the last session of the Legislature we borrowed $750,000, and yet there is reason to believe that at the end of the year we shall be behind-hand. If we cannot get a competent officer again, at the present salary, let us increase it till we can, but let us by all means adhere to the contract which has been made.

Mr. McCay—My colleague from New Orleans (Mr. King) is in error in one statement which he made. He said that the late clerk, Mr. Rousseau, had but one assistant. This is a mistake; Mr. Rousseau had two clerks: Mr. Serré and Mr. Trépagnier.

Digitized by Google

Mr. King—He had two for a time; but for a long period he had only one.

The vote was taken on the first section of the bill, and it was lost.

Mr. King—I move a reconsideration of the vote just taken.

Mr. Rivers—I move to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

The motion to reconsider was carried, and the bill was made the order of the day for Wednesday next.

Paying the Recorder of Mortgages of Jefferson.

The bill to pay the Recorder of Mortgages of the parish of Jefferson for certain work, was taken up.

Mr. Trudeau—I have some remarks to make in relation to this bill. Some time during this session the Recorder of Mortgages of the parish of Jefferson asked me to present a bill for him, the effect of which would be to put a large sum of money in his pocket. I refused to do it. By means of his friends in the House, he then succeeded in getting it through that body. I do not think it is a just claim. It is however the business of the city of New Orleans, as she has to pay the money. I desire to know whether they are willing to pay the sum of $1 25 for every transcript of a mortgage. I consider it an exorbitant sum. The law makes it the duty of the Recorder of Mortgages to make a transcript of every mortgage in the old city of Lafayette for ten years back. These amount to an immense number. Are the New Orleans Senators willing to saddle their city with the enormous expense which would be incurred by paying for the work at the rate proposed in this bill? I move to lay the bill indefinitely on the table.

Mr. McCay—The Senator from Jefferson certainly pursues a strange course. If he wishes the New Orleans Senators to investigate the bill, he should certainly allow us the same opportunities that he has had himself. I am opposed to the bill, as it presents itself to me, on a casual perusal; but that is no reason why we should not have a chance to examine it, and reduce it if the amount be considered too large. I never heard of the bill before, and neither did my colleague Mr. King; I should therefore like to have time to examine it.

Mr. Trudeau—

The gentleman ought to be able to understand it by hearing it read It provides that the claimant be paid $1 00 for every mortgage, and 25 cents for the transcript of every conveyance.

Mr. McCay—

I think myself that the sum is too large. Still, we ought to give something.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

The bill was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Compensation of Assessors.

The bill to provide for the compensation of the Assessors of the city of New Orleans was taken up.

Mr. Trudeau—

I should like to have some informarion about this bill.

Mr. McCay—

I can give the gentleman the desired information in a moment. The law establishes a Board of Assessors in the city of New Orleans. When the city of Lafayette was annexed to New Orleans, strange to say, the law did not provide for throwing the Assessor of that District into the Board of the whole city. He is not an Assessor of the city of New Orleans, like the others, but only of the Fourth District, and is elected seperately. The bill is intended to remedy this defect, and throw him into the Board of the city.

There is still another object contemplated by the bill. The city now pays nothing for making out the assessment rolls. This is a very onerous and responsible duty. The bill provides that they shall receive the same amount for making out the assessment rolls of the city, as for those of the State.

The bill passed.

SPECIAL ORDER OF THE DAY.

This being the day set apart for the consideration of the memorial of J. H. Maddox for relief.

The report of Mr. Lacey, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, on the part of the majority, was read.

Also the minority report of Mr. King.

Mr. Boatner—

The reports just read were sent in yesterday. The report of the majority was accompanied with a resolution, which resolution was handed to myself as Chairman of the Committee on Claims. The Committee held a meeting this morning, but were unable to come to a decision on account of the absence of the Senator from New Orleans (Mr. Macmurdo), the chairman of the committee by which $3,000 was allowed at the last session. For this reason the consideration of the question was unanimously postponed.

Mr. Ryan—

This subject, it seems to me, has been long enough before the Senate without action. The memorial of Mr. Maddox, when first introduced, was referred to the Committee on Claims. Then it was referred to the Judiciary Committee, and afterwards was referred back to the Committee on Claims for the purpose of ascertaining how much is due. Now, I want to know what is to be done if Mr. Macmurdo continues to be absent.

Mr. McCay—

I would suggest the propriety of making it the special order of the day for Monday next.

Mr. King—

I should like to hear the bill read. I think it is one of great importance.

The Secretary reads the bill.

Mr. King—

I consider it of importance to have this bill referred to the Committee on Claims, and I therefore move it to be so referred.

Mr. Lacey—

I think it better to make the whole subject the order of the day for Monday next.

The bill was made the order of the day for Tuesday next.

Bill to extend the Vendor's Privilege.

Mr. Hodge asked leave to call up the following bill entitled:

An act for the protection of merchants or vendors of agricultural products in the city of New Orleans.

Mr. Lacey—

If it is the wish of the Senate to take up this bill, I have no objection. But I must say that I am opposed to it. I think it will clog and depress commerce in the city of New Orleans. To give a lien on merchantable property will interfere with commercial operations, or I am much mistaken.

Mr. Kenner—

When the lien is the vendor's privilege?

The President remarked that discussion at this moment was out of order.

The bill was taken up and read.

Digitized by Google

Mr. McCay—

I think the bill might, very properly, be laid over. There is no necessity to pass it in such hot haste. I might support it myself if I had time to examine it carefully, and careful examination is certainly needed, for it is a very important bill.

Mr. Kenner—

I apprehend that no gentleman in the Senate will deny that the principle of this bill is a correct one.

Mr. McCay—

For my part, I think that all liens and privileges are odious. I would be willing to abolish them all. We ought to let a piece of property be the common pledge of all a man's creditors.

Mr. Lacey—

I do not desire to throw any obstacle in the way of the passage of this bill, and therefore shall not interfere with a suspension of the rules or make any opposition of that kind; but as one opposed to all such liens and privileges, as calculated to impede commercial operations, I shall vote against the bill, and call for the yeas and nays on its passage.

Mr. Kenner—

I am glad the gentleman has called for the yeas and nays. I want to record my vote in favor of the measure. I will endeavor to give a history of the bill. Any one acquainted with the manner in which commercial business is conducted in the city of New Orleans will see the necessity for this bill. The moment an article—cotton or sugar—is weighed, it is considered delivered, and the vendor loses all privilege. He has hardly time to make out an account against the property before it is beyond his reach. All that we want to do is to give him a lien for 5 or 6 days. There cannot be any thing unjust in this, or any thing calculated to impede commercial operations. It is asked for by the agricultural portion of the community as a simple act of justice, though it does seem that when a planter asks for anything it is generally considered all wrong, it might interfere with the commercial operations of the city of New Orleans. This is the first measure for the benefit of the planting interests of the State that has been introduced into this Legislature, yet we are immediately told of tacit liens and all that sort of thing. The measure is a just and necessary one, and I hope it will be so considered by the Senate.

The rules were suspended and the bill passed.

The following bill being fixed for to-day, was taken up:

AN ACT

To establish a Medical Board of Examiners in and for the State of Louisiana, and for the purpose of suppressing Empiricism in the Medical Profession.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That from and after the first day of August, in the year of our Lord 1854, no individual shall have the right of practising physic or the profession of apothecary in any part of the State of Louisiana, without having previously undergone an examination in the city of New Orleans, and obtained a certificate, which shall be delivered to him by a Medical Board, hereafter established, and in the manner hereafter prescribed.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted &c, That the Board hereby constituted shall meet at some early period after the passage of this act, under the presidency of said Dean, and shall adopt certain rules to facilitate the operation of this act, and carry out fully the meaning and intent thereof.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c, That any applicant who may have been graduated or obtained a diploma of Doctor of Medicine in any of the Medical Colleges or Universities recognized as such by the said Faculty, shall, on producing the same, together with satisfactory evidence of good moral character, to the said Board of Examiners, be entitled to receive the certificate or license above mentioned.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, &c, That if any one shall practice Physic, or exercise the profession of an Apothecary in contravention of this act, the said person shall incur a fine which shall not exceed one hundred dollars, for the first offence, and should the offence be reiterated, such person for every new offence of the same description shall be subject to a fine at the discretion of the Court, which shall not exceed two hundred dollars, and to an imprisonment, also, at the discretion of the Judge, which shall not exceed one year, and it shall be the duty of the Attorney General and of the District Attorneys throughout the State to proceed against such persons so offending, by indictment and information in the same manner and in the form prescribed for other criminal prosecutions, and all fines collected under this act shall be put into the Treasury of the parish where such fines are collected, to be used by said parish for charitable purposes.

Provided that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to apply to any inhabitant or planter in the country, who, on the application of any of his sick neighbors, should procure them some alleviation or administer them any kind of physic.

Provided further, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent any person residing out of the parish and city of Orleans from selling medicines which shall have been purchased from any legal Apothecary, and which shall have been plainly labelled by the said Apothecary.

Provided further, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to apply to Physicians and Apothecaries now exercising their professions under the provisions of the laws existing previous to the act approved March 10th, 1852.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c, That the Board of Examiners shall be entitled to receive from every applicant for a certificate, as above mentioned, the sum of twenty dollars, to be applied as said Board may direct. Provided that any candidate procuring a certificate in the form and manner prescribed by the fifth section of this act shall not be compelled to pay more than ten dollars

Sec. 8 Be it further enacted, &c, That all acts or parts of acts contrary to or inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed and annulled.

Mr. Lawes—

It would not be proper for me, having introduced this bill, to suffer it to come before the Senate for approval or rejection, without explaining its nature and the views with which I framed and presented it. I shall therefore proceed to comply with this duty as briefly as possible. It is well known that the Medical Faculty, as at present constituted, is an organized body, established by the act of 1833. It was instituted for the purpose of educating and training the young men who intended to engage in the practice of medecine. Many of the other States have adopted the same system, and have been compelled to acknowledge its beneficial effects. The law required every individual practising the profession of Physician or Apothecary, to have a certificate from a Board located in New Orleans. The Board was presided over by the Mayor of New Orleans, and was convened every time application for a certificate was made. Since that period it has been dissolved by the death of almost every one of the members who originally composed it. A Board composed of a smaller number was established in Opelousas, and with regard to that one the same thing took place. A person wishing to practise medicine was finally compelled to go to New Orleans and run about the streets to find two or three survivors from among the members of the Board, from whom he might obtain a certificate. The bill before the Senate has, for one of its objects, the remedying of the evils resulting from the establishment of those Boards. It gives this power into the hands of the Medical Faculty, where it should, properly, be deposited—the same Faculty which is at the head of the University. By this means, the reputation and the usefulness of the Institution would be extended, and it is especially important that the reputation of our Medical Faculty should be equal to that of any similar body in the United States.

This bill transfers the power of granting certificates, from an intangible, ideal body, which is not to be found when its services are required, to a regularly organized body, composed of distinguished members of the profession, and presided over by a Dean. For a small fee the capable applicant will be able to procure what before he had to travel over the whole State to obtain, and run the risk of being disappointed at last. The first section is intended to remedy this evil. I shall now call attention to other sections of the bill. The second transfers all the powers of the old Board to the Faculty of the Medical College of Louisiana. The third indicates the manner in which applicants shall proceed. It is by application to the Dean, who is then to assemble the Faculty, for the purpose of examining the applicant. If he be found qualified, he is to receive a diploma which entitles him to practice in any part of the State of Louisiana. I would call the special attention of the Senate to this part of the bill, as it makes effectual provision against the continuance of an evil which existed before. By the carelessness of the members of the late Board, or the impossibility of getting them together, gentlemen were frequently obliged to postpone their examination for several months, thus being subjected to heavy expense and an inconvenient loss of time. Sometimes they have been forced to come two or three times in a year to the city without getting a certificate. This bill makes it the duty of the Board to proceed with the examination within three days after application has been made. It completely does away with the evils of the late system.

The fifth section is conceived in a liberal spirit towards Universities similar to the one in New Orleans. The Charter of that Institution gives graduates the right to practise in any part of the State. This section gives to the applicant who may present a certificate from another State the same privilege. The Faculty is bound to give a diploma to such an applicant, on presentation of his certificate.

The penalties enacted by the bill are severe; but they are codsidered requisite for carrying out the objects of the bill, and for making its powers effective.

There is a clause in the bill giving all physicians and apothecaries, now legally practising, the right to continue. It therefore does not infringe on any vested rights. It does not require, as some gentlemen have intimated to me in conversation, that every physician in the State should go to New Orleans and procure a new diploma. That is not by any means the case, as can be seen by reference to the bill. It was not intended to have any such effect, and the wording of the bill cannot be forced to favor such a construction.

The fees required to be paid, it will be seen, are merely nominal, and are only intended to cover the necessary expense of diplomas, &c. They are so small as, for a professional man, to be scarcely worthy of consideration.

The bill is of vital importance. It will tend to raise the Medical Profession of the State of Louisiana from the almost degraded position which it occupies at present. Indeed, such is its condition, that it is scarcely worthy to be called a profession now. With the Law the case is different. We surround it with all the guards that we can raise to protect it. We require of the candidate for admission to the ranks of its votaries, a severe course of education, and an examination before the Supreme Court, or the Faculty of the University. I am proud to be able to say that I am a member of that noble profession, yet candor extorts from me the acknowledgement that the profession of the Law is not so important as the profession of Medecine. Yet, we do every thing for the Law, and throw Medicine open to the invasion of all the quacks in the State. There is no other State where Medicine is not better protected than in Louisiana. I doubt whether on the statute book of any State in the Union can be found a law similar to the one passed by the Legislature of Louisiana in 1852. All exhibit some anxiety to guard the profession from the assaults of empiricism; they require a searching examination after a course of severe study. We do just the reverse, and the consequence is that the State is flooded with quacks. As there are statutes against them in other States, they all find a refuge here, with a view of wringing a few dollars from the miseries of the people

Mr. Lacey—The main principle of this bill elicits my approbation. It is indeed necessary to build up the Medical Faculty of our State. But I am opposed to the monopoly which it contemplates establishing. There are many persons in our State who believe in the homœopathic system; others who have faith in hydropathy; some who think Thomsonianism the grand panacea, and others who believe in none of them. Yet every person desiring to practise is required to procure a certificate from the Faculty at New Orleans which is composed, exclusively, of physicians belonging to that school of medicine called the Allopathic. Now, Sir, if I desire to take those little pills which are contained in the diminutive bottles of the Homœopathists, why should I not be permitted to do so? If I think that infinitessimal doses possess greater sanative and curative virtues than large doses, why should I be forced to swallow the large doses? Why should I debar myself from being treated in the manner I prefer by subjecting to fine and imprisonment the unlucky doctor who might be unfortunate enough to comply with my wish? Why, Sir, under this bill, I could not take the little pills of my friend from Concordia, and he might even have to forego the proud privilege of taking them himself. I will not vote for such a bill as that; and the gentleman who introduced it was not, I apprehend, aware of its force.

Mr. Trudeau—

I would ask the gentleman who has last spoken, whether he would leave the medical profession open to the intrusion of all manner of quacks? Would he not require some evidence of a man's qualifications before entrusting the performance of such important duties to his hands? Would he leave people to grope in darkness, without a lamp to guide their footsteps, and unknowing whether they might stumble on a good physician or an ignorant unprincipled empiric?

Mr. Lacey—

The law now requires a certificate. I would ask the Senator, in return, whether he wish to deprive me of the right of employing a homœopathic physician, if I choose to do so? He certainly cannot mean that.

Mr. Rivers—

A very few remarks will suffice to show the glaring defects of this bill. The first section requires every person wishing to practise medicine to go to New Orleans and procure a certificate from a Board of Examiners, which Board, we learn by the next section, is to be composed of the Medical Faculty of the University of Louisiana. What can be the object of this, unless to reduce all practice to the standard established by that Faculty? The law of 1852, which, I believe, was opposed by the Senator from Rapides, at that time a member of the House, is in these words:

(He reads the law).

This comprises all that is necessary. The applicant must be a graduate, and have a diploma from some medical institution. This is certainly sufficient to put a stop to empiricism. Why does this not suit the gentleman? Why is this not a sufficient guard? I will show why it does not suit him. The reason is indicated by the 5th section. That section says:

"That any applicant who may have been graduated, or obtained a diploma of Doctor of Medicine in any of the Medical Colleges or Universities recognized as such, by the said Faculty, shall, on producing the same, together with satisfactory evidence of good moral character, to the said Board of Examiners, be entitled to receive the certificate or license above mentioned."

What will be the effect of this? Why, Sir, to prevent any man from getting a certificate unless he has a diploma from some old fogy college of physicians; because the Medical Faculty of New Orleans do not choose to recognize any physicians or colleges except those of their own peculiar sect.

Mr. Ryan—

I may not perhaps be as progressive in my ideas as some gentlemen, and may therefore be behind the age. But I have been taught to believe that education was necessary for a professional man; that it was absolutely requisite in order to enable him to bring his mind to a perfect understanding of the arduous duties which might devolve upon him. In 1852, the gentleman from Concordia, then an honored and influential member of the other House, as he is now of this, effected the passage of the act which is now the law. I opposed it, as he has remarked; but my opposition was ineffectual against his influence. I would be willing to open the profession of the law to all who might choose to enter it. That could do no harm. A poor lawyer would not get clients, and nobody would suffer from his ignorance. But I am not willing to accord to every humbug the title of physician, because he may be a homœopathist, a hydropathist, a Thomsonian or something of the sort. There ought to be some way of judging of the qualifications of a man who presumes to practise medicine. He may be pleasing in his manners, insinuating in his address, and even well informed on other topics; but for all that, he may be a humbug so far as medicine is concerned. He may do great injury to society, and even endanger the lives of those who blindly confide in his skill. Take the case of such a person who goes into the back settlements, and says to the simple inhabitants, "I am a Doctor, I have discovered an infallible method of treating disease", and straightway proceeds to put in operation some new fangled theory of his own by which he may hurry a score or more of deluded victims to the tomb. This is no improbable case. It might happen again and again as long as we refuse to throw proper safeguards around this important profession. The science of medicine is only to be acquired by profound study aided by experience. It is not to be guessed at by the speculators, or quacks, who dose the public with their nostrums, and then pretend to have mastered the whole range of medical science. For my part, I am willing to trust the old system, as it embodies all the knowledge which experience and investigation have thus far afforded. I think the aspirant to medical honors should be compelled to pass through some qualifying ordeal. When I am on my death-bed I want some guarantee that I have not been hurried out of the world by a quack. I was opposed to the present system when it was brought forward, in 1852, and ably advocated by the Senator from Concordia. It may be true that the new systems are better than the old; but till that fact is established, I want to have nothing to do with them. We should not patronize and encourage these new fangled theories, whose existence detracts from the dignity and usefulness of the profession and tends to bring it into disrepute.

Mr. Trudeau—

I agree with the gentleman from Concordia. A diploma in the hands of a physician is only an evidence that he has passed through a certain course of medical education. When he has done that, he can adopt and practice what system he likes. In fact, many, after being educated in one system, adopt another when they come to practice. There can be no objection to that. But it is necessary that they should know something of anatomy, and something of surgery. He must know something of chemistry and the kindred sciences. In fact an accomplished physician ought to be well versed in them. It is for this reason necessary that we should have some guarantee of his having studied them; we want some evidence of his having passed through this ordeal.

Mr. Rivers—

The law, as it exists, says that the physician must have the certificate of some medical college in good standing.

Mr. Lawes—

But there is no evidence of the validity of the certificate. It might be forged. This bill makes provision against such a contingency.

Mr. Rivers—

The bill says that the person must be recognized by the Faculty of the Medical College. Now, I want the privilege of employing a homœopathic physician, a hydropathic, or any other pathic I choose. Some people think the pills of the homœopathists are bad because they are too small. I have tried them and know something about them I can say that, whatever effect they may have, they certainly do not kill, and that is more than the allopathists can say of their medicines.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I was in the Senate in 1852, when the present law passed, and I am not sorry that I supported it. I have, daring my life, had some experience in the effects of different systems of medicine, and I can say sincerely that I stand here a living evidence of the benefits of the Thompsonian practice. I tried all the old systems without experiencing relief, and at last was compelled to have recourse to Thompsonianism, after having swallowed pounds of physic and travelled thousands of miles in search of health. Now, what right has the Legislature to say that I shall not employ such a physician as I confide in? This bill does not say that the Legislature shall have such power, but it accomplishes the same object indirectly. Now, Sir, it appears to me to make no great difference whether I die secundum artem or in the hands of a quack. The effect is the same. But I would ask whether there are more quacks now in Louisiana than there were before 1852. My impression is that there are not. I think there is a great deal of humbug in these secundum artem Doctors. Perhaps an anecdote will illustrate. I knew in Kentucky a distinguished physician called Dr. Caldwell. He was what is considered a scientific man and enjoyed a high reputation in that part of the country. One of his peculiarities was an intense desire to find a scientific reason for every thing, and of this one of the wags of the town once took advantage in order to have a little fun at the Doctor's expense. Meeting the Doctor in the street, he told him that a wonderful phenomenon had occurred, which he should like to have scientifically explained—It was nothing more nor less than the birth of a child one side of which was entirely black. The Doctor promised to investigate the subject, and a few days afterwards published a communication in one of the papers, in which he showed on scientific principles that such a thing might happen, and explained the causes and theory of the phenomenon. It was all very learned and very plausible, the wag had forgotten to inform the Doctor that the other half of the child was black also. That is a specimen of the humbug of the regular physicians.

As to this bill, it ought to be called a bill for the relief of the Medical Faculty of the city of New Orleans. What have we not done for that Faculty? Why, Sir, we have done for it infinitely more than it deserves. We have appropriated thousands of dollars to the support of the Medical College for the purpose of purchasing wax figures and humbugs of that kind; and notwithstanding our paternal fondness for them, I believe there are more quacks in the ranks of the regular physicians than can be found outside of them. We all remember that during the disastrous epidemic of last year in New Orleans, the regular physicians were utterly powerless. Their efforts to check the disease were disastrous failures. Even Dr. Stone, who stands at the head of the profession, left the city with the confession that his skill was unavailing. What less can be said of a quack? If a man employs a quack, it is his own business and his own fault. If he die under the hands of a quack, it is nobody's fault but his own. We should not compel him to employ a physician he does not like. Neither should we force him to employ only those recommended by the Medical Faculty of New Orleans. He should be permitted to employ a homœopathist, a hydropathist, or any other kind of a doctor he chooses.

The bill was laid on the table.

The Falls of Red River.

Mr. King called up a bill entitled:

An act to complete the improvement of the falls of Red River, at Alexandria, which was read together with the following report of the Commissioners, which was reported back by Mr. DeRussy, on the part of the Committee on Internal Improvements, and

On motion, it was made the order of the day for to-morrow, March 3d, 1854.

To the Hon. Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened at Baton Rouge, (La).

ALEXANDRIA (La.), February 13th, 1854.

The undersigned, Commissioners appointed by an act of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana, entitled "an act to improve the falls of Red River, at Alexandria", approved 11th of March, 1852, to superintend and control said work, would respectfully represent: That the amount of twenty thousand dollars, appropriated by said act, having been found insufficient to secure the improvement as contemplated, and an additional sum of fifteen thousand dollars being required to complete this important work in a satisfactory manner, an additional appropriation of fifteen thousand dollars is hereby solicited for that purpose.

The reasons upon which we base this demand are derived from the report of the Engineer of the Board, Col. L. G. DeRussy, stating that the work required to be made, in order to secure a good navigable channel of sufficient width and depth, has, by subsequent examination, been found considerably greater and more difficult than originally estimated, according to a map of G. T. Dunbar, late Engineer of the State, the only document to which reference could be had, and also that the operations of Messrs. Maillefert and Raasloff, with whom the Board had made arrangements for carrying out said improvement, though entirely successful in themselves, to such a degree as to place the practicability of the improvement beyond doubt, have been very seriously interfered with and delayed by the epidemic, the temporary disorganization of the Board, in consequence of the death of our late and lamented Chairman, Thos. P. Hickman, of Rapides, the extraordinary continuance of low water, and several other circumstances, which we forbear from mentioning in detail, but all of which tended to delay their operations and put them to much greater expense than they could have anticipated.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed, P. T. HICKMAN,
J. W. BUTLER,
Commissioners.

SPECIAL ORDER OF THE DAY.

This being the day set apart for the consideration of the memorial of J. H. Maddox for relief.

The report of Mr. Lacey, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, on the part of the majority, was read.

Also the minority report of Mr. King.

Mr. Ryan asked and obtained leave to introduce a bill entitled:

An act for the relief of J. H. Maddox.

On motion, the rules were suspended, it was read twice, and, on motion of Mr. Hodge, it was referred to the Committee on Claims, and they were made the order of the day for Tuesday next.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

The Special Messenger from the House informed the Senate that the House had concurred in the following bill and resolution of the Senate:

An act to repeal an act relative to the recusation of the Judges of the Supreme Court

Resolution to carry into effect section 32 of an act entitled an act to establish a general system of Free Banking in the State of Louisiana

And that the House had adopted the report of the Committee on Conference on the amendment of the House to the Senate bill entitled:

An act to amend and re-enact article 1116 of the Civil Code.

And he requested the concurrence of the Senate to the following bill and resolutions of the House:

An act making it the duty of the city and parochial authorities to create such additional Justices of the Peace and Constables, as the public interest requires, the parish of Orleans excepted.

Act relative to Jurors.

Mr. Evans called up the following bill:

AN ACT

To amend the eleventh section of an act entitled an act to provide for carrying into effect the Judiciary system, approved 29th of May, 1846, relative to Jurors, the parish of Orleans excepted.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That section eleven of the act approved May the 29th, 1846, entitled an act to provide for carrying into effect the Judiciary system, be and the same is hereby amended and re enacted, so as to read as follows, to-wit: That not less than thirty days before the first sitting of each Jury term of the District Courts of the several parishes, after this act shall have gone into effect, the parish of Orleans excepted, the Sheriff, Clerks of the District Court and the Parish Recorder, together with three freeholders, shall meet in the Court House of their respective parishes, and select from its tableaux of assessment the name of every person who, under the laws of this State is liable to serve as Juror, and shall make a list of the same to be filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court. The aforesaid officers and freeholders shall cause to be written on separate ballots of paper of uniform size, the name of each person so selected, and placed upon the list aforesaid, which ballots shall be deposited in a box to be provided for that purpose, and being well mixed, one of said officers under the direction of the others and of the freeholders present, shall draw therefrom not less than forty-eight ballots, and the Clerk of the District Court shall, as each name is drawn, enter it upon a list for record, and deposit the ballots so drawn in a separate box.

The Clerk of the District Court, in making out a venire facias of the names thus drawn, shall designate the first eighteen as Grand and the others as Petit Jurors, and they shall be summoned by the Sheriff so to serve at the next ensuing term of the Court.

In making up Jurors for the succeeding terms of the Court, ballot shall be drawn in the same manner from the box containing the remainder of the list until all the names are exhausted, when a new list shall be formed in the manner provided for in this act, which shall include such additional names of persons as may have become citizens and are competent to serve, leaving out those who from any cause may have become ineligible.

After each drawing, the boxes containing the ballots shall be locked up, sealed, and kept in the custody of the Clerks, and shall not be opened until by order of the proper persons who are to conduct the next drawing, when assembled for that purpose.

In case either of said officers, who are by this act required to be present at the drawing of any Jury, shall be absent or disqualified from serving on any account whatever, the place or places of such absent or disqualified persons, shall be supplied by any one or more Justices of the Peace of the parish.

In parishes where by law the sessions of the Court extend beyond one week, an additional number of twenty-four Jurors shall be drawn who shall be summoned to appear and serve as Petit Jurors for the second week, and a like number for the third or fourth week; but when the length of the term is not prescribed by law, the Jury summoned for the fourth week shall be liable to continue in attendance upon Court, in discharge of their duty as Jurors, until discharged by the Court, provided that no person shall be required to serve as a regular Juror at two successive terms of the Court. When a Jury selected under the provisions of this act shall be set aside by the Court, on account of any defect or informality whatsoever, it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the District Court to give immediate notice thereof to the other proper officers, who shall, with the required number of freeholders, proceed to draw a new set of Jurors under the provisions and formalities herein required; which said Jurors shall be summoned to appear instanter, the thirty days required being in such cases waived, and the said Court shall not be adjourned except from day to day, till such Jury can be convened, Provided that such session be not continued so as to interfere with any regular session of said Court in another parish. All or any objections which might or could be made on account of any defect or informality which may have occurred either in the formation, drawing or summoning of said Juries under the provisions of this act, or any other defect whatsoever in the construction of said Juries, shall be made on the first day of the terms of said District Courts, and not afterwards.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c, That this law shall go into effect from and after the second Monday of July, 1854

Several amendments were proposed.

Mr. Hodge—

I move to insert two days instead of thirty days. An extra session is liable to be called within the time specified.

Mr. Palfrey—

I move to lay all the amendments on the table

Mr. Trudeau—

I move to except the parish of Jefferson from the operation of the bill. My reason is, that it is usual in such matters to legislate the same way for Jefferson as for Orleans.

Mr. Hodge—

I move to except the parish of Caddo also.

Mr King—

The reason for making the parish of Jefferson an exception, equally with Orleans, does not now exist. The reason was, because the city of Lafayette, now the Fourth District of New Orleans, formed the larger portion of the parish. Since the annexation of Lafayette to New Orleans that reason is obviated.

Mr. Trudeau—

The population of Jefferson—its urban population, I mean—is greater now than when Lafayette was annexed. It has Jefferson City and Carrollton and Gretna, all of which are large and rapidly increasing towns.

Mr. Hodge—I will give my reasons for wishing to have Caddo excepted, although, without intending discourtesy to the Senator from Jefferson, I do not see the same reason for excepting his parish. There is now a special statute providing for this matter in Caddo Parish. It was passed in 1852, and its provisions are much the same as those of this bill, which is therefore, so far as Caddo is concerned, rendered superfluous.

Mr King—

The gentleman's reason is not a good one. It is much better to have legislation uniform than to have separate methods prevailing in every parish.

Mr. Hodge—

The gentleman sometimes understands the interests of the parish of Orleans; but he must permit me to understand those of my parish, as well as he understands those of his. I stated that we have a law in Caddo which suits our wants exactly, and which differs but little from this bill, though I have not had time to examine it sufficiently throughout to be enabled to say whether it is exactly the same. Nor indeed am I prepared to say that any portion of the bill is exactly the same as the act of '52; and therefore, I could not say that it would suit the people of Caddo quite as well as that already in force. But I can say that the people of Caddo are perfectly satisfied with the present act. Why then change it? I would remind the Senator from New Orleans, that the manner of drawing is not uniform throughout the State. Special acts have been passed for various parishes. There is one for Caddo, and one, I believe, for West Feliciana. Those acts were passed to meet the wants and wishes of those parishes. It would be unjust to make a change now when change is not required; deprive them of systems with which they are satisfied, and force on them others which may not suit.

Mr. King—

I shall say but one word in reply to the gentleman. I am not in the habit of meddling in legislation intended for the country; but I am compelled to vote. I made the remarks which the gentleman excepts to, at the request of a Senator from the country. I am informed that the Judge of Caddo parish itself is in favor of this bill. I think it necessary to have uniform legislation, particularly on this subject, and that necessity should induce the Senator to accept this bill.

Mr Hodge—

I will read a section of the act now in force. (Reads).

This, it appears to me, is much better than the system proposed by the bill.

The third section provides: (reads).

The Grand Jury is first drawn. The first fifteen drawn are to serve as the Grand Jury, and the balance are divided into three equal lots to serve for the three terms.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Martel—

I agree with the Senator from Caddo in what he has said on this subject, and for the same reasons I shall move to strike out St. Landry and Calcasieu My duty to my constituents demands that I adopt this course. In those parishes the Sheriff has to perform a long journey in order to summon the jurymen. He has to travel upwards of a hundred miles. If he had to do as much at every session of the Court, he could not accomplish the work, or he would have to summon more than a hundred jurymen at a time. I therefore feel compelled to make the same motion as the Senator from Caddo, and to vote with him.

Mr. Munday—

For the same reason I shall vote with him. When we have special acts for our respective parishes, why force us to change? When the proper time comes I shall move to except East and West Feliciana from the operation of this bill. Those parishes were the first to divide the labors of Jurors. Their system works well and the people are satisfied with it. I hope the Senate will not force them to take a system which may not suit their convenience. At present the labor is divided. Farmers, planters, mechanics, &c, are not kept from their vocations longer than is absolutely necessary.

Mr. Hodge—

I move to lay the bill on the table subject to call.

The motion was carried.

The bill for the relief of — was taken up.

Mr. Lacey—

This bill was laid over for some time. as the impression was that the Senator from Natchitoches, Mr. DeRussy, knew something of its merits. It appeared, however, that he knew little or nothing I then went to the State Treasurer (Mr. Greneaux), who said he was familiar with the facts. It appeared that Dr. McManus had killed a person, and then fled to Missouri. A requisition for him was made by the lamented Johnson, at that time Governor of this State. He was arrested, brought back, and delivered up to the authorities He was tried and acquitted. He went back to St. Genevieve and was afterwards killed in a fracas at that place. The person who went there, arrested him, and brought him back, is certainly entitled to something for his trouble.

Mr. Munday—

I should like to know whether the claimant has an agent here for the prosecution of this claim. I am told that Dr. McManus returned quietly, and did not have to be ironed.

Mr. Lacey—

Mr. Lanoux is the agent. and he placed the claim in my hands.

Mr. DeRussy—

I think I can state the facts about the bringing of this man, Dr. McManus, back from Missouri. He did not come in chains. He came very peaceably and was not considered at all dangerous at that time.

Mr. Hodge—

I thought at first that I should vote for this bill; but then it struck me that the claimant might have been paid for this service by some of the friends or relatives of the deceased, who perhaps had a pique against Dr. McManus. If McManus had really been guilty of the heinous crime of which he was accused, the Governor would have offered a reward for his apprehension. Then it appeared to me that we might actually be paying a man for long an injustice, for the accused person was afterwards acquitted. If I thought this man had acted with disinterested motives and from a desire to see the law vindicated, I might vote for the bill, though even then the fact that the man was not convicted would be a drawback. But I have no reason to think that such were his motives, and consequently, do not see that the State is under any obligations to him.

Mr. Boatner stated the facts.

Mr. Hodge—

That does not prove the motive. The relatives of the deceased probably went to the Governor and persuaded him to make out a requisition, Of course, the Governor of Missouri was then bound to issue a proclamation calling for the arrest of the accused. But this had nothing to do with his guilt or innocence, or with the motives of the person making the arrest.

Mr. Boatner—

The gentleman wants us to prove what is not susceptible of proof. This man acted by authority, and that is all we have to inquire.

Mr. Moore—

Is there any law for payment in cases of this kind?

Mr. Boatner—

It is but recently that we paid a person $500 for arresting a murderer in Louisville and bringing him back to this State.

Mr. Hodge—

The gentleman makes a mistake in not drawing a distinction from the fact that in this case the man was acquitted. It was determined that he had not violated the law. I am told by the Senator from Natchitoches, that the reason he was brought back was, that he had enemies in Missouri who wanted to get him away, not because he had violated the law, but because they did not like him.

Mr. Lacey—

Does the Senator from Natchitoches know anything about the matter?

Mr. DeRussy—

This person had had quarrels in Missouri, and thence enemies who desired to get rid of him. They heard of the warrant for his arrest in Louisiana, and thought that a good opportunity to accomplish their object. I do not think this claimant had any enmity against him; but he was selected to perform this service on account of his energetic and determined character. He told the accused, on leaving Missouri, that if he made no trouble he would not put him in irons, or restrain him in any way They came down the river as friends. These are facts which I know. They landed within 50 yards of my house, so that I cannot be mistaken.

Mr. Palfrey—

In my view, when the Governor issues a proclamation for the arrest of any person, the State ought to pay the expense of the person making the arrest.

Mr. Munday—

I have in my mind the case of a murderer who fled to Texas He was followed by a party of men who had to travel a long distance, camp out, and undergo many hardships before they accomplished their object. The State paid the whole of them $500. It strikes me the sum named in the bill is very large.

Mr. Richardson—

I move to strike out $500.—Carried.

Mr. Martel—

To explain my vote on this bill, I shall be under the necessity of relating facts known to nearly every person in Louisiana who has ever resided on the frontiers of Texas. Many persons accused of and arrested for murder have escaped across the Sabine, which has served as an effectual defence behind which they could defy justice. I have been in Texas, and seeing one of these criminals, have asked the people "do you know that man is a murderer?" and they have answered "yes". Then, when I asked them why they did not arrest him and deliver him up to his merited punishment, and told them they would be rewarded, they replied with a laugh "do you think we would take the trouble and the risk for a paltry hundred dollars?" This is the reason why, in some sections of our State, on the frontiers of Texas, there has been no security for life, since a criminal could cross the border and be safe from pursuit and arrest. For my part, I do not see how there can be any discussion on a subject of this kind. In this case two Governors issued their proclamations; the accused was arrested and brought back for trial, and yet we quarrel over paying the person who made the arrest for the expense and trouble to which he was subjected. This is reducing justice to a mere matter of dollars and cents; it might amount even to a denial of justice, if persevered in. Crimes would be committed with impunity, and the officers of justice be laughed at. How many criminals have thus escaped to the other side of the Sabine, and remained at liberty simply because there was no inducement for any one to arrest them, it is impossible to say; but I know there are a great many. You can see them at any time on the frontier. Ask the neighbors "Do you not know that this man is a murderer, or a thief, or a forger?" and they will answer "yes"; but if you ask why they do not arrest him, they will tell you they have no inducement to do so. Men must have motives for acting. They are not entirely disinterested. They will not go to the trouble of pursuing and arresting a man, losing their time and subjecting themselves to trouble and expense simply from a love of justice and law. I remember a case of a criminal named Mitchell, who was pursued through several States, and finally captured after much exertion. For all this $300 was paid. It is a shame. In such a case I would be willing to pay a thousand dollars. This is a good way to spend our money. It is not squandering it in useless undertakings and superfluous salaries. It is, on the contrary, for the protection of justice and the law. I would pay liberally in such cases. Then we might have some prospect of securing a criminal. But what inducement would any one feel to make an arrest, if, after performing his duty, and requesting an adequate compensation, he is to be asked whether the accused had been convicted? What inducement would he have to travel perhaps thousands of miles and undergo fatigue and trouble of all kinds, if he is to be asked what his motives were? This is a good object on which to spend money; it is for our protection, and to secure the ends of justice. I move to insert $1000 in place of $500.

On motion, the amendment was laid on the table.

Mr. Hodge—

I move to lay the whole subject indefinitely on the table.

The motion was lost.

Mr. Ryan—

Has not the Governor a contingent fund out of which to pay expenses of this kind?

Mr. Hodge—

The custom is this: the Governor has a large contingent fund at his disposal. When an arrest is made the parties apply to the Governor and he pays them. The probability is that this claim had been already presented to the Governor in office at that time, and he, with full knowledge of the case, refused to pay it. I am not unwilling to pay such expenses; I agree with the Senator from St. Landry that high reasons of public policy require their payment. The service is important to the State, and ought to be remunerated; yet we should, at the same time, be just to ourselves. If the Governor will say that this is a good claim and has not been paid because the fund was exhausted, I will cheerfully vote for it.

Mr. DeRussy—

Is not the fund only for rewards?

Mr. King—

I believe there is no restriction.

Mr. Lacey—

The fund is not for such purposes. The President pro tem., Mr. Wickliffe, who has had much experience in such matters, has, I venture to say, never seen an instance of the fund being applied to such a purpose.

Mr. Munday—

It may be that it is intended for rewards for the apprehension of criminals, &c.; but this is a different case. This man never expected to get a reward. He merely wanted to get away a man who was considered dangerous by his enemies, and who had taken this means of getting rid of him.

Mr. Boatner—

This man, though not a citizen of Louisiana, was acting in behalf of Louisiana and her laws. We are told he should get nothing, because the accused was not convicted. But he actually performed the service, he did the duty. With the trial, or acquittal, or conviction, he had nothing at all to do. They did not depend in any measure on him. I hope gentlemen will view this matter as I view it. I move to insert $475 instead of $500

Mr. Trudeau—

We should pay either $500 or nothing. I shall offer a resolution to authorize the Governor to pay $500, if he think it due. That is the proper way to do.

Mr. Hodge—

I renew the motion to lay the whole subject indefinitely on the table.—Lost.

Mr. Clifton—

I move to insert $600.

Mr Trudeau offered the resolution referred to above.—Lost.

Mr. Hodge—

I will state how I understand this case. The Senator from Natchitoches says he knows this man was brought back peaceably—that he made no resistance. Consequently, the captor had no more trouble than to go to Missouri and come back again. It appears that this Dr. McManus had some enemies by whom he was persecuted. They desired to get rid of him and employed this claimant to execute the task. He had no trouble in completing it—no resistance was made, but the prisoner came back willingly, conscious probably of his innocence of the crime of which he was accused. He was tried and acquitted. It was decided by a jury of his fellow-citizens that he had not violated the laws of Louisiana. It thus clearly appears that he was a persecuted man. If Senators are willing to vote away the money of Louisiana on this presentment, let them do it; but for one, I shall not.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Palfrey—

I do not wish to go behind the record, and seek for explanations. If he was persecuted, it does not appear that he was persecuted by this man.

The amendment inserting $300 was adopted, and the bill passed to a third reading.

Bill for the relief of — Toy.

Mr. Clifton called up the bill for the relief of — Toy.

Mr. Hodge—

I move to refer the bill.

Mr. Clifton—

I see no good reason why this bill should be referred. It was the hand of God alone that prevented this person from completing his work, not that of man. He is here now, and needs a settlement, and the Commissioners are anxious to settle with him.

After a few further remarks from Mr. Clifton, the bill passed.

SPECIAL ORDER OF THE DAY.

City Subscription to the Pontchartrain Rail Road.

On motion of Mr. Macmurdo, the following bill was taken up:

AN ACT

To authorize the City of New Orleans to subscribe to the stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, to enable said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company to construct a Rail Road from New Orleans to Mobile.

PREAMBLE.

Whereas, The Pontchartrain Rail Road Company was, under an act of the Legislature, approved April 28th, 1853, authorized to construct and maintain a Rail Road to Mobile, in Alabama, upon obtaining the proper authority therefor from the States of Alabama and Mississippi; and whereas, the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, in the prosecution of this enterprize, under an agreement and in accordance with the charters of the "Mobile and New Orleans Rail Road Company", a Company chartered by the Legislatures of the States of Alabama and Mississippi, for the purpose of constructing a Rail Road from Mobile to the Louisiana line, in the direction of New Orleans, is fully authorized and empowered to construct and maintain a Rail Road through the States of Mississippi and Alabama to the city of Mobile; and whereas, the city of Mobile has, by loaning her credit to the Mobile and Girard Rail Road Company, secured the extension of a Railway from Mobile to Columbus (Georgia), thereby completing the connection by Rail Road from the City of Mobile to the State of Maine and the Canadas; and whereas, the Rail Road designed from New Orleans to Mobile, will, when completed, form a connection by means of the said Pontchartrain Rail Road with the "New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Rail Road Company", which is seeking to penetrate through the State of Texas, and thence on to the shores of the Pacific, whereby a Great Southern Sea board Route by Railway would be established from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, through the city of New Orleans; and whereas, the several States of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana have, in view of its general importance, passed joint resolutions, instructing their Senators and requesting their Representatives in Congress to obtain grants of the Public Lands to aid in the construction of the said New Orleans and Mobile Rail Road; and whereas, in consideration of the foregoing facts, and deeming it of special importance to the State of Louisiana and to the city of New Orleans that the said Rail Road connection between Mobile and New Orleans should be completed without delay; and whereas, it is desirable that the city of New Orleans should emulate her sister cities by aiding in the construction of this link, which would unite her interests with the different extremities of the Union: Therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That it shall be lawful for the Common Council of the City of New Orleans to subscribe to the stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, in the sum of one million five hundred thousand dollars.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, &c, That any ordinance authorizing such subscription shall contain the following provisions, to wit:

First, That the subscription of the city to the stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company shall be made by the Mayor, and shall be payable in bonds of said city for one thousand dollars, each having thirty years to run, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, with interest coupons attached, payable semi-annually in New Orleans or New York, transferable by the endorsement of the President and Secretary of the said Company, and said bonds may be converted into the stock of said Company at any time not exceeding five years from their date, under such regulations as the President and Directors may see fit to adopt, the parties in interest agreeing thereto.

Second, That a special tax on real estate and slaves shall be levied in January of each year, sufficient to pay the annual interest on said bonds, specifying the rate of said tax, which shall be collected at the same time, and in the same manner as the consolidated loan tax of the said city.

Third, That the bonds of the city issued for the stock of the said Company, shall be issued and received at their par value for said stock, and to insure the full and punctual discharge at maturity of said bonds; the stock of the said Company thus issued to the city of New Orleans shall be forever pledged for the redemption of said bonds, in the amount of ten shares for each bond of one thousand dollars.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c, That all ordinances, resolutions, or other acts, passed by said Council, after the first of January of each year, except an ordinance to impose said Consolidation Loan tax, and an ordinance imposing a special tax for the payment of annual interest on bonds issued by the city of New Orleans as its subscription to the stock of the other Rail Road companies in the State, shall be null and void, unless a resolution levying a special tax for the payment of the interest on said bonds shall have been previously passed; Provided, That no levy of a tax for the payment of interest on said bonds shall be made after the payment of dividends of six per centum per annum, on the stock of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company held by the city, as hereafter provided, which dividends shall be applied by the city to the payment of the interest; and, provided further, that whenever the dividends of said Rail Road stock owned by the city, shall amount to more than six per centum, per annum, the excess, after the payment of interest as aforesaid, shall be applied by the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company to the purchase of the city bonds issued under this act; it being understood that when dividends of less than six per cent. per annum, are received on the stock of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company owned by the city, a tax for interest shall be levied for the difference only, between the amount of said annual dividend, and the amount of the annual interest; Provided also, that the nett earnings of the existing Pontchartrain Rail Road shall be divided as heretofore among its present stockholders until the completion of the extension of the Rail Road to Mobile.

Sec 4. Be it further enacted, &c, That immediately after the passage of the ordinance authorising the subscription to the stock aforesaid, and its approval by the voters of the city of New Orleans, as hereinafter provided, the Mayor shall cause bonds to be issued to the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company for the amount of said subscription, on receiving from said Company certificates for fifteen thousand shares of the capital stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company of one hundred dollars each, full paid; and thereupon the Mayor of the city is authorized and required to execute before the Secretary of said Company, who is hereby authorized to receive and execute the same, a pledge of said stock in the amount of ten shares for each bond of one thousand dollars.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c, That no ordinance passed by the Common Council in conformity with this act, shall be valid, or take effect until it shall have been approved and ratified at an election to be held for that purpose by order of the Common Council, by a vote of the majority of the authorized voters of said city. Said election shall take place within fifteen days after the passage of the ordinance, be preceded by a public notice of ten days, to be published by the Mayor in the newspaper chosen by the Common Council, and shall in all respects, when not herein otherwise provided, be conducted in the same manner prescribed by law for city elections, and at said election the vote shall be taken in the following manner: Those who approve of the ordinance shall inscribe or have inscribed on their tickets, the following words: "In favor of aiding in the construction of a Rail Road to Mobile"; and those who disapprove of said ordinance, shall inscribe or have inscribed on their tickets, "against aiding in the construction of a Rail Road to Mobile". Provided, that if the Common Council refuse to subscribe to the stock of the Rail Road Company herein named, in the manner set forth in this act, it shall be lawful at any subsequent period, and as often as the Council may deem proper, at intervals of not less than two months, for said council to reconsider the question, and should the ordinance when finally passed by the Council be rejected by a vote of a majority of the duly qualified voters of the city, when first presented to them for ratification, the Council may, at any subsequent period, and as often as they may deem proper, at intervals of not less than two months, cause the sense of the voters again to be taken in the same manner as at the first election.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, &c, That no ordinance passed by the Common Council in conformity with this act, shall be submitted for ratification to the voters who have the right by law to vote at city elections, until the Board of Directors of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company shall have notified the Mayor in writing of their consent to accept said ordinance. Provided, their acceptance of the ordinance before it shall have been submitted to the voters of the city for ratification, shall be null and void in the event of the rejection of the ordinance by said voters.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c, That in the month of January of each year, or at such time as the other stockholders of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company shall elect by joint ballot, three citizens of New Orleans as Directors of the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, to represent the stock of the city, who shall serve as such for one year, or until their successors shall be elected. Provided, no member of either Board of the Common Council or officer of the corporation shall be eligible as a Director; and provided further, that on the conversion of the bonds into stock to the extent of five hundred thousand dollars. The city shall elect but two Directors, and on the further conversion of five hundred thousand dollars more of the bonds into stock, the city shall elect but one Director; and on the final conversion of all said bonds into stock, the city shall elect no Director.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, &c, That it shall be lawful for the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, at any time, on handing over to the City Treasurer any bond or bonds, issued under this act, to receive from the city an equal amount of the capital stock of the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, which stock, on the delivery of the bonds, as aforesaid, shall be transferred by the Mayor of the city of New Orleans to said Company, subject to their disposal by sale or otherwise; and the bonds thus returned to the city, shall be immediately cancelled in the presence of the Mayor and the President or Secretary of said Company.

Sec. 9. Be it further enacted, &c, That this act shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Moore—

I move to strike out the preamble. Every one knows the benefits which will result from building this road.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The Company thought it of some importance. However, I have no objection to its being stricken out.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I move to adopt the first section.

Mr. Trudeau—

I should like to hear something in favor of the bill

Mr. Macmurdo—

It is a bill presented on behalf of the people of New Orleans. It has been referred to the Judiciary Committee and examined by them. There are certain amendments necessary which will be offered during the progress of the bill. The bill does not ask the State for anything. It simply authorizes the city of New Orleans to subscribe to the stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road in order to assist in the construction of a rail road to Mobile, under the same conditions as subscriptions have been made to other roads. It is scarcely requisite to say anything of the necessity of this undertaking, and its great usefulness to the traveling public. Indeed this is a matter for the city of New Orleans to judge of. I will only say that it is a road which will pay as soon as completed. The people of New Orleans have a strong interest in having it completed as soon as possible. The communication is now kept up by a steamboat company which has made a large fortune. With a railroad the business would be at least qua-druped, and the journey would be accomplished in a few hours instead of a day.

Mr. Hodge—

I do not wish to throw any obstable in the way of this bill. But it has just been placed on the tables of members, and they have not yet had an opportunity of examining it. If gentlemen from the country are to vote on and be held responsible for this bill, they should at least have an opportunity of examining it. It has been in the printer's hands, so far as I know, up to the present moment.

Mr. Moore—

The bill has been before the Judiciary Committee and examined. It was found much the same as the other bills for a similar purpose. When I moved to strike out the preamble, it was not from hostility to the bill, but because I thought that part useless.

Mr. Trudeau—

My only objection was, that I had not read the bill and therefore did not understand it. If it is forced on us now. I must be excused from voting I want to hear the bill read, and to have some time for consideration. Certainly, that is nothing more than fair. The bill, I believe, provides for a subscription, by the city, of one million five hundred thousand dollars. It may be beneficial to the people, or it may not. But I do not want to take either for granted; I want time to examine the bill myself. I repeat that I do not wish to throw any obstacle in its way; but I want to investigate it.

Mr. Hodge—

I presume the bill contains provisions concerning submitting the question to a vote of the people. That is a question on which I am not, at this moment prepared to vote, either here, or at home in my own parish, as a citizen. On this point I desire to express my views, as I consider it still an open question and one whose importance demands time for serious consideration and reflection. It is a point still unsettled, notwithstanding it has been the subject of a decision of the Supreme Court. I think, under these circumstances, the request for a short delay is reasonable. I want time to examine the bill. If forced to vote on it at this time, I may take such action as otherwise I may not take.

Mr. King—

The bill is only on its second reading. It has been the order for some days—I think for a week. I am sorry the gentleman has not read it. If he had tried, he might have done so. I am confident it contains nothing wrong or objectionable. It simply allows the people of New Orleans to decide, for themselves, whether they will subscribe to a certain enterprise. It is a purely local question.

Mr. Hodge—

The remarks of the Senator from New Orleans are unjust. It is true I am not so diligent as I might be, but I do not think I have been negligent in this case. I do not know any Senator who has read this bill. It was introduced on Monday, and referred to a committee of which the gentleman is a member. He had, therefore, an opportunity of reading it which was not enjoyed by less fortunate Senators. We have just now seen it for the first time. It is new to us. We have not had time to consider it. We have not hitherto been favored with the printed copy of the bill. If it goes to a third reading, it will not be open to amendment, except it be recommitted. I am sorry the gentleman has again brought up a principle which I had thought was banished from the Senate—that a question may be so purely local, that other Senators have nothing to do but give an affirmative vote on it. However, this bill is not so purely local as the gentleman seems to imagine.

It involves a great principle—a particularly grave question. The question whether one portion of the people have the right to make another portion who are opposed, stockholders in any enterprise, is certainly a serious question, and worthy of mature deliberation. I hope Senators will not press the bill at this time. Give us at least time to consider and make up our minds. I repeat that I do not want to throw any obstacle in the way of the bill, but I do wish to examine it. I consider it a subject of too much importance to be passed over in silence, and, as I wish to express my views, I hope Senators will give me time for reflection. That is all I desire. It is not an unreasonable request.

The Falls at Alexandria.

The bill to appropriate $15,000 to remove the Falls at Alexandria, was taken up.

Mr. Hodge—

If I thought this a mere gratuity, I would vote against it without hesitation. But it is not an appropriation of that character. On the contrary, it is strictly necessary. By the act of 1852 $20,000 were appropriated for this object; a contract was made with gentlemen of New York who have arrived and commenced their labors. I am told by high authority that they have already succeeded in removing the upper fall, whereby a great improvement in the navigable capacity of the stream has been effected In order to complete the work, a farther appropriation is necessary. In order to show that I am not inconsistent in advocating this bill, I will state that neither this bill, nor the act of 1852, has any analogy with the Manchac appropriation, which I thought a great iniquity at the time it was made. The State Engineer never could do this work—he never had the means or the proper apparatus to do it. Consequently, this is not a similar case to the other. Moreover, Red River is, next to the Mississippi, the most important river in the State.

Mr. Macmurdo—

Where does the gentleman expect to get the money?

Mr. Hodge—

From the General Fund.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The General Fund is not able to pay. This is not included in the estimate for the Auditor's Office. As representing the finances of the State, I feel it my duty to give this information in order that Senators may vote knowingly. An appropriation for this object was made two years ago. That money was only paid out a few weeks ago, when the time had almost expired.

Mr. DeRussy—

I will state the facts of this case. These gentlemen who are engaged in the work, came from New York at a time when, owing to the state of the river, it was impossible to make the necessary surveys. There was however a survey made by Mr. Dunbar. The New York parties took the contract based on that survey. They have commenced the work, and have already removed a great part of the lower ledge, which has been a very expensive work; in fact, much more so than was anticipated. The rock is of the worst character for blasting, and this makes the task difficult. The consequence is that the appropriation inexhausted. If money is not had to carry on the work, the improvement so far made will be useless, and the money thrown away. The expenses of transportation now are enormous, and I think every one will see the necessity and policy of this additional appropriation. The importance of the work can scarcely be exaggerated, and its benefit to the trade of New Orleans will be immense. At a low stage of water these falls cut off communication entirely. Merchants in New Orleans are now waiting for produce which has for months been ready for shipment, and on which they have long since made advances. This state of things is very injurious both to the planter and the merchant. The cost of transportation is so great as to amount almost to a prohibition of trade. Cotton costs seven dollars a bale before it gets round the Falls, and even then is liable to be destroyed or greatly damaged. The State could not engage in a better, a more necessary, or a more important enterprise than the prosecution of this work. It is specially important to New Orleans. Her interests require its completion.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Macmurdo—

I will say to the gentleman, that if this bill pass we shall have to impose a new tax for internal improvement purposes. The taxes are now heavy enough, and barely suit our purposes.

Mr DeRussy—

The gentleman is unjust. The Internal Improvement Fund has been taken away. At the last session I asked gentlemen to preserve this fund. But it has been taken away and squandered for purposes not contemplated by it. It has been squandered in a shameful manner. Surely, this enterprise ought not to suffer on that account.

The bill passed.

MONDAY, March 6th, 1854.

The following bill came up for consideration :

AN ACT

To authorize the City of New Orleans to subscribe to the stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, to enable said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company to construct a Rail Road from New Orleans to Mobile.

PREAMBLE.

Whereas, The Pontchartrain Rail Road Company was, under an act of the Legislature, approved April 28th, 1853, authorized to construct and maintain a Rail Road to Mobile, in Alabama, upon obtaining the proper authority therefor from the States of Alabama and Mississippi; and whereas, the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, in the prosecution of this enterprize, under an agreement and in accordance with the charters of the "Mobile and New Orleans Rail Road Company", a Company chartered by the Legislatures of the States of Alabama and Mississippi, for the purpose of constructing a Rail Road from Mobile to the Louisiana line, in the direction of New Orleans, is fully authorized and empowered to construct and maintain a Rail Road through the States of Mississippi and Alabama to the city of Mobile; and whereas, the city of Mobile has, by loaning her credit to the Mobile and Girard Rail Road Company, secured the extension of a Railway from Mobile to Columbus (Georgia), thereby completing the connection by Rail Road from the City of Mobile to the State of Maine and the Canadas; and whereas, the Rail Road designed from New Orleans to Mobile, will, when completed, form a connection by means of the said Pontchartrain Rail Road with the "New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Rail Road Company", which is seeking to penetrate through the State of Texas, and thence on to the shores of the Pacific, whereby a Great Southern Sea board Route by Railway would be established from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, through the city of New Orleans; and whereas, the several States of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana have, in view of its general importance, passed joint resolutions, instructing their Senators and requesting their Representatives in Congress to obtain grants of the Public Lands to aid in the construction of the said New Orleans and Mobile Rail Road; and whereas, in consideration of the foregoing facts, and deeming it of special importance to the State of Louisiana and to the city of New Orleans that the said Rail Road connection between Mobile and New Orleans should be completed without delay; and whereas, it is desirable that the city of New Orleans should emulate her sister cities by aiding in the construction of this link, which would unite her interests with the different extremities of the Union: Therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That it shall be lawful for the Common Council of the City of New Orleans to subscribe to the stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, in the sum of one million five hundred thousand dollars.

Sec 2 Be it further enacted, &c, That any ordinance authorizing such subscription shall contain the following provisions, to wit :

First, That the subscription of the city to the stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company shall be made by the Mayor, and shall be payable in bonds of said city for one thousand dollars, each having thirty years to run, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, with interest coupons attached, payable semi-annually in New Orleans or New York, transferable by the endorsement of the President and Secretary of the said Company, and said bonds may be converted into the stock of said Company at any time not exceeding five years from their date, under such regulations as the President and Directors may see fit to adopt, the parties in interest agreeing thereto.

Second, That a special tax on real estate and slaves shall be levied in January of each year, sufficient to pay the annual interest on said bonds, specifying the rate of said tax, which shall be collected at the same time, and in the same manner as the consolidated loan tax of the said city.

Third, That the bonds of the city issued for the stock of the said Company, shall be issued and received at their par value for said stock, and to insure the full and punctual discharge at maturity of said bonds; the stock of the said Company thus issued to the city of New Orleans shall be forever pledged for the redemption of said bonds, in the amount of ten shares for each bond of one thousand dollars.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c, That all ordinances, resolutions, or other acts, passed by said Council, after the first of January of each year, except an ordinance to impose said Consolidation Loan tax, and an ordinance imposing a special tax for the payment of annual interest on bonds issued by the city of New Orleans as its subscription to the stock of the other Rail Road companies in the State, shall be null and void, unless a resolution levying a special tax for the payment of the interest on said bonds shall have been previously passed; Provided, That no levy of a tax for the payment of interest on said bonds shall be made after the payment of dividends of six per centum per annum, on the stock of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company held by the city, as hereafter provided, which dividends shall be applied by the city to the payment of the interest; and, provided further, that whenever the dividends of said Rail Road stock owned by the city, shall amount o more than six per centum, per annum, the excess, after the payment of interest as aforesaid, shall be applied by the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company to the purchase of the city bonds issued under this act; it being understood that when dividends of less than six per cent. per annum, are received on the stock of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company owned by the city, a tax for interest shall be levied for the difference on y, between the amount of said annual dividend, and the amount of the annual interest; Provided also, that the nett earnings of the existing Pontchartrain Rail Road shall be divided as heretofore among its present stockholders until the completion of the extension of the Rail Road to Mobile.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, &c, That immediately after the passage of the ordinance authorizing the subscription to the stock aforesaid, and its approval by the voters of the city of New Orleans, as hereinafter provided, the Mayor shall cause bonds to be issued to the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company for the amount of said subscription, on receiving from said Company certificates for fifteen thousand shares of the capital stock of the Pontchartrain Rail Road Company of one hundred dollars each, full paid; and thereupon the Mayor of the city is authorized and required to execute before the Secretary of said Company, who is hereby authorized to receive and execute the same, a pledge of said stock in the amount of ten shares for each bond of one thousand dollars.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c, That no ordinance passed by the Common Council in conformity with this act, shall be valid, or take effect until it shall have been approved and ratified at an election to be held for that purpose by order of the Common Council, by a vote of the majority of the authorized voters of said city. Said election shall take place within fifteen days after the passage of the ordinace, be preceded by a public notice of ten days, to be published by the Mayor in the newspaper chosen by the Common Council, and shall in all respects, when not herein otherwise provided, be conducted in the same manner prescribed by law for city elections, and at said election the vote shall be taken in the following manner: Those who approve of the ordinance shall inscribe or have inscribed on their tickets, the following words: "In favor of aiding in the construction of a Rail Road to Mobile"; and those who disapprove of said ordinance, shall inscribe or have inscribed on their tickets, "against aiding in the construction of a Rail Road to Mobile". Provided, that if the Common Council refuse to subscribe to the stock of the Rail Road Company herein named, in the manner set forth in this act, it shall be lawful at any subsequent period, and as often as the Council may deem proper, at intervals of not less than two months, for said council to reconsider the question, and should the ordinance when finally passed by he Council be rejected by a vote of a majority of the duly qualified voters of the city, when first presented to them for ratification, the Council may, at any subsequent period, and as often as they may deem proper, at intervals of not less than two months, cause the sense of the voters again to be taken in the same manner as at the first election

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, &c, That no ordinance passed by the Common Council in conformity with this act, shall be submitted for ratification to the voters who have the right by law to vote at city elections, until the Board of Directors of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company shall have notified the Mayor in writing of their consent to accept said ordinance. Provided, their acceptance of the ordinance before it shall have been submitted to the voters of the city for ratification, shall be null and void in the event of the rejection of the ordinance by said voters.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c, That in the month of January of each year, or at such time as the other stockholders of said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company shall elect their Directors, the Common Council shall elect by joint ballot, three citizens of New Orleans as Directors of the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, to represent the stock of the city, who shall serve as such for one year, or until their successors shall be elected. Provided, no member of either Board of the Common Council or officer of the corporation shall be eligible as a Director; and provided further, that on the conversion of the bonds into stock to the extent of five hundred thousand dollars. The city shall elect but two Directors, and on the further conversion of five hundred thousand dollars more of the bonds into stock, the city shall elect but one Director; and on the final conversion of all said bonds into stock, the city shall elect no Director.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, &c, That it shall be lawful for the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, at any time, on handing over to the City Treasurer any bond or bonds, issued under this act, to receive from the city an equal amount of the capital stock of the said Pontchartrain Rail Road Company, which stock, on the delivery of the bonds, as aforesaid, shall be transferred by the Mayor of the city of New Orleans to said Company, subject to their disposal by sale or otherwise; and the bonds thus returned to the city, shall be immediately cancelled in the presence of the Mayor and the President or Secretary of said Company.

Sec. 9 Be it further enacted, &c, That this act shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage.

On motion to adopt the 1st section,

Mr. Hodge—

Mr. President, I desire to be reported correctly in my remarks on this question. It involves a serious and intricate question, to which I shall at once turn my attention.

The most objectionable feature of this bill is, that it proposes that the power of taxation shall be submitted to the people of New Orleans.

This is the first time I have been called upon to express an opinion on this principle of legislation. I was absent when the same question was considered in another bill. It is a most serious question for us to consider, whether the Legislature is competent to grant powers to the people of New Orleans to do a legislative act. I find expressed in the Constitution that the powers of legislation are given to the Executive, to the Senate and House of Representatives. I do not find any grant in the Constitution, to the Legislature, to shirk or transfer any of their legislative powers. I believe the priuciple which proposes to leave the question of taxation to the citizens of New Orleans is anti-republican. It is a democratic doctrine that the people shall exercise power by themselves, and not their Representatives. They can only be represented when the Representative is called on by the people; and I regard it as unconstitutio al to grant them the power bestowed in this bill—a power of taxation—consequently, a power of legislation. What will be the result if this system of evasive and unauthorized legislation is adopted? It will only be necessary for the friends of a measure to have it referred to the people, for it to carry. But even if we are satisfied of the expediency and policy of giving to the people of New Orleans this power, I doubt any constitutional authority to do so. Article 109 of the Constitution says:

"The Legislature shall have power to grant aid to companies or associations of individuals, formed for the exclusive purpose of making works of internal improvement, wholly or partially within the State, to the extent only of one fifth of the capital of such companies, by subscription of stock or loan of money, or public bonds, &c."

Now, I believe the Legislature is perfectly competent to say that New Orleans shall be a stockholder within the constitutional limitation; and he who denies it, denies the doctrine he contends for. If the Legislature has not the power to act, we cannot give power to the people. It is absurd and inconsistent for us to throw back on the people power we do not possess.

It is not my intention to discuss the bill in detail. I only ask to call attention to that clause of the Constitution which declares that taxation shall be uniform. This bill presents a contrary feature, and strikes at one of the first principles of republican government.

Mr. Macmurdo—

This constitutional question has been discussed time and again. It has been decided by the highest tribunals of the country that the people have the power to tax themselves.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Before giving my vote, I would like to examine the votes of Senators on this question, on previous occasions. I regret that the Senator from Caddo did not stand by me when I took the same ground on this floor. I do not believe the Legislature has the power to delegate to a part of the people the power to tax themselves.

The Senator from New Orleans has said that this question has been decided by the highest tribunals in the country. If it be so, I am not bound in my views by their decisions. But, Sir, I have examined the opinions in Pennsylvania and elsewhere, and in none of them has the constitutional question been considered.

Mr. Rivers—

Mr. President, I would ask for a postponement, because I have not read the bill and am not prepared to vote advisedly.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The bill was made the special order for last Friday. It was then made the order for to-day, and I cannot consent to another postponement for reasons which do not seem to me good.

Mr. Rivers—

Very well; then, I shall vote against the bill if forced to action on it at this time.

Mr. Trudeau—

I have read the bill, but do not understand it. I do not know that I am slower at understanding than other people, but I have been considerably puzzled by several features of this bill. There are several clauses which I desire to read, which I would like to have solved or explained.

(Reads several portions of the bill).

It seems the bill is intended to exclude the city of New Orleans from participating in the benefits of this enterprise. When I first read the bill, I thought it had been framed by some very ordinary person; but, from what I have seen, I am satisfied it is the work of a very shrewd person, who thought it best to render it very obscure.

What first called my attention to it was the anti-democratic proposition to give to the City Council power to make the people vote every sixty days.

Mr King—

That clause has been amended in Committee.

Mr. Trudeau—

I have not seen it, and if this is democratic doctrine, I am not on that side—if whig doctrine, I am not for it, that a verdict of the people should be disregarded.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The question has been fully discussed in the House, and the necessary amendments will be added as the bill progresses. I will not attempt to answer the objections made by the Senator, as the amendments will be the best answer.

Mr. Kenner—

Mr. President, as none of the gentlemen from New Orleans have pretended to answer the gentlemen from Caddo and East Feliciana, I feel it my duty to express my opinion on the constitutional question before voting.

I am not bound by the decisions of courts in expressing myself here. There is a very marked difference between the Constitution of the United States and Congress, and our Constitution and the body acting under it. The powers are widely different in their nature and extent. I will vote for the first section of the bill, but shall reserve my right to insist on certain amendments before my vote is received for the remainder.

Mr. Hodge—

It is due to myself to answer. I know that that ablest of judges, Judge Martin, has decided on the difference between the two bodies. But the Honorable Senator has not met the proposition, whether this shall be the law, or give to the people the power to make law. The gentleman has not answered this. Suppose one citizen should refuse to pay the tax; he must be sued and diverted of his right to his property, in violation of the Constitution. I do not believe it was intended to give to the Legislature supreme power, and cannot give my sanction to delegating unconstitutionally the high powers bestowed in this bill.

Mr. King—

I will say one or two words in reply. A bill with all the features now objected to passed, the other day, nem con. Where was the gentleman's thunder then?

Mr. Wickliffe—

I find nine votes against it.

Mr. Evans—

I voted against it.

Mr. King—

The question now raised is too old. It has been decided in a number of States and by the Supreme Court, that the Legislature has the right to give the people power to tax themselves. There is no constitutional question in the case.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The gentleman speaks of the decisions of Supreme Courts. It has only been decided in four, I believe. This may be ample to satisfy the gentleman's mind, but are they to govern us in expressing ourselves?

Mr. Lacey—

I cannot see where this bill conflicts with any provision of the Constitution of the United States or the Constitution of Louisiana.

The first section was then adopted.

On the second section,

Mr. Macmurdo moved to strike out in the 19th line the words "on real estate and slaves."

Mr. Palfrey—

I offer a substitute to strike out and insert "every species of property and professions."

Mr. Macmurdo—

I have no objection to the amendment.

Mr Kenner—

I move to strike out only "and slaves". I will never agree to allow every man who votes at a municipal election, to vote a tax on property to build up railroads.

Mr Palfrey—

It is for the general prosperity of New Orleans, and if the prosperity is increased, it will give employment to all classes, and all ought to be taxed.

Mr. King—

I fully agree with the gentleman from St. Mary, Mr. Palfrey.

Mr. Martel—

I cannot see how there can be any opposition to Mr. Pulfrey's amendment. The railroad will bring advantages to even the dray driver, and why should he not be taxed for it.

Mr. Kenner—

I move to insert, in lieu of Mr. Palfrey's amendment, "landed estate".

Mr. King—

I move to lay that on the table.

Mr. Moore sustained Mr. Palfrey's amendment.

Mr. Kenner's amendment was laid on the table.

Mr. Hodge—

I move to add to the amendment "occupation, trade and professions."

Mr. Palfrey—

I accept that.

Amendment adopted.

Mr. Moore—

I move to amend by adding to the end of the section this proviso:

Provided the whole line of said Rail Road and all the property belonging thereto shall be specially mortgaged for the payment of said bonds.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I cannot see how the city is to be benefited in this way. They may have to pledge the road for other purposes.

Mr. Trudeau—

If the bill is for the benefit of New Orleans, or the benefit of the Company, say so. If it is for the benefit of the city, why oppose amendments to secure the city from harm?

Mr. Mrcmurdo—

The members from New Orleans are as able to take care of her interests as the gentleman from Jefferson.

Mr. Moore—

I withdraw my amendment and let it go.

Mr. Hodge—

I renew the amendment. I care not how often Senators may say local. I stand here, a Senator of Louisiana, and intend to denounce all such measures.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I move to lay the amendment on the table.

Motion lost.

Mr. Ryan—

I will give my reasons for my vote on the amendment. I believe it to be the real interest of the country that the Legislature should carry out railroads. I shall vote against the amendment because it is tantamount to crippling the bill.

The amendment and section were adopted.

The third section was adopted after striking out the word "special", in the fifth line, and inserting the word "specially" after the word "tax" in the same line.

The fourth section was adopted.

On the motion to adopt the fifth section:

Mr. Macmurdo—

I propose to amend by striking out the words: "and as often as they may deem proper", in the thirty-second line, and inserting the words "within two years after the passage of this act"; and to strike out the word "two" and insert "six" in the thirty-third line.

Both amendments adopted.

Mr. Trudeau—

I move to strike out all after the 27th line.

Laid on the table.

Mr Macmurdo—

I move to amend so the election will take place on a different day from other Rail Road elections.

Adopted.

Mr. Rivers—

I move to amend in the seventh line, after the words "voters of said city", by adding "who shall be tax payers."

Laid on the table.

Mr Hodge—

I move to amend in the seventh line these words: "and each voter shall be entitled to one vote for each one hundred dollars he may possess".

Laid on the table.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I move that the Rail Road Company shall pay the aggregate expenses of the elections.

Laid on the table.

The section was then adopted,

On a motion to adopt the sixth section,

Mr. Macmurdo—

I move to add, after the word "Company", in the sixth line: "after having been duly authorized by a vote of the stockholders, taken agreeably to the previsions of the charter".

Amendment and section adopted.

On a motion to adopt the seventh section,

Mr. Macmurdo—

I move to add after the word "three", in the fifth line, the words "out of the seven directors", and to strike out of the sixth line "citizens of New Orleans shall be directors", and insert after the word "Company", in the seventh line, the words "who shall be citizens of New Orleans".

Adopted.

Mr. Trudeau—

I move to amend by striking out all after the word "Director", in the twelfth line.

Mr. King—

I have a substitute to meet the gentleman's views. It is to insert in the thirteenth line, after "stock", "by the holders thereof"

Mr. Trudeau—

I have no objection.

Amendment adopted.

Mr. King—

I move to add to the end of the section this proviso:

Provided further, that if any of said bonds are paid by the city or out of the dividend accruing to the city, the city shall be a stockholder to that extent, and be allowed to vote in the election of Directors".

Amendment and section adopted.

On a motion to adopt the eighth section,

Digitized by Google

Mr. Hodge—

I move to amend the end of the section with the words "provided the city may pay the bonds and retain the stock".

Amendment agreed to, and the eighth and ninth sections adopted.

The rules were suspended and the bill was passed, omitting the preamble.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

The following bills came up as the special order of the day.

AN ACT

To provide for the registering of votes in the city of New Orleans, in pursuance of article eleven of the Constitution.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That the Board of Aldermen of the city of New Orleans, on or before the second Monday of December, in each and every year, shall nominate and appoint three suitable and discreet persons, for each and every one of the four districts into which New Orleans is now divided, who shall reside in the districts for which they are respectively appointed, and who shall be known as "The Board for the examination of the qualification of voters".

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, &c, That the Board aforesaid in the several districts of the said city, shall, immediately after their appointment, give public notice in the State paper, and in other prominent newspapers published in the city of New Orleans, that they will meet in their respective districts, in said city, on the second Monday of January, next after their appointment, for the purpose of examining and deciding, upon all applications of persons residing in the said city, for the registry of their names as qualified voters, in the city of New Orleans; and in said notice, the said Board shall designate the places of their respective meetings.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c, That the several members of the Boards to be appointed as provided in the first section of this act, shall, before entering upon the discharge of the duties of their office, except that of giving notice as herein above prescribed, make oath as provided in article ninety of the Constitution; which oath may be administered by any Judge or Justice of the Peace in the aforesaid city of New Orleans; and having been subscribed by the members of the Boards aforesaid and signed by the Justice before whom such oath is taken, it shall be returned, by the aforesaid Boards of examination, to the Board of Aldermen of the city of New Orleans, with the lists of voters, as hereafter set forth.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, &c, That it shall be the duty of the several Boards for the examination of the qualification of voters, to meet on the day and at the respective places set forth in the notices published by them; and when so met the said Boards having taken the oath above prescribed, shall examine into and decide upon all applications of persons residing in the city of New Orleans, to be admitted to the privileges of a voter, and the said Boards shall continue in session for that purpose, and for the purposes hereinafter prescribed, from ten o'clock of the forenoon, until six o'clock of the afternoon of said day, if so long a time be necessary; and they may adjourn said meetings from day to day (Sundays not included), until the object of the meeting shall be accomplished.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c, That in case any person residing in the said city of New Orleans, claims to be a legal voter, and requires his name to be registered upon the list of voters, and such person is not known, by the Board before which he may appear, to be a legal voter, or should his right to be recognized as a legal voter be challenged by any person whomsoever, it shall be the duty of the said Board for the examination of the qualification of voters, by and through any of the members thereof, to cause the person so unknown to the Board as a legal voter, or whose right is challenged as aforesaid, to make and subscribe the following oath which shall be prepared for the purpose, and be returned, with the list of voters, as hereinafter provided for, to the First District Court of the city of New Orleans, to be carefully kept and preserved—"I (A. B.) do solemnly swear or affirm that I am a citizen of the United States, (and if he be a naturalized citizen, he shall state in his oath the place at which he was naturalized); that I have attained the age of twenty-one years that I have resided in this State twelve months next preceding the election, and the last six months thereof in the parish, and now residing in the city of New Orleans; and I do further solemly swear (or affirm) that since the adoption of the present Constitution, I being a citizen of this State, have not fought a duel, with deadly weapons, within this State nor out of it, with a citizen of this State, nor have I sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons with a citizen of this State, nor have I acted as a second in carrying a challenge, or acted, advised or assisted any person thus offending. So help me God!"

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, &c, That should any person not be naturalized at the time of claiming to be registered as a voter, and should his right to be naturalized accrue, and he expect to be duly naturalized within one year from the time such Board first commenced its sitting, or should such person, at the time of applying, not have attained the age of twenty-one years, or have acquired the six and twelve months residence prescribed by the Constitution, and should the time for his majority be reached, or the period necessary to give him a legal residence expire within one year from the time the Board to which application is made first commenced its sittings, then and in that event the oath prescribed in the preceding section of this act shall be varied to suit the facts; which oath, when taken, shall be returned in manner and form, as prescribed for the oath required for such preceding section; provided however, that in all cases in which the party may make affidavit, as set forth in this section, it shall be the duty of the commissioners of any election, at the time such party offers to vote, to require of him the usual oath provided by law to be administered to voters whose votes may be challenged.

Sec. 7 Be it further enacted, &c, That the respective Boards aforesaid, when met for the purpose of examining into, and deciding upon the qualification of the voters, or to hear and determine challenges, as herein above provided, shall not only hear the applicant in the manner and form prescribed, and in such cases as are provided for in sections five or six of this act, but they may, by and through any member thereof, examine witnesses under oath; and the applicant, when sworn as aforesaid, or any witness so examined, who shall be guilty of wilful and false swearing, shall be liable to the penalties of perjury.

Sec. 8 Be it further enacted, &c, That it shall furthermore be the duty of the said city of New Orleans, at the time of the meetings, and before closing the same, to keep a perfect and complete list of the names of all persons, who reside in the said city, and who have been held and decreed by the several Boards aforesaid to be qualified voters in the aforesaid city of New Orleans, together with the residence of such persons; to set forth upon the list aforesaid, all those who expect to become voters, according to the meaning and extent of section six of this act, together with their residence and contingency upon their citizenship depends, to designate those whose right to vote has been challenged, the grounds for such challenge, and the decision of the Board in the premises; and such statements of facts as will enable a future examination to be made, as set forth in the succeeding section; and it shall furthermore be the duty of the said Boards, to cause two copies of such lists, duly signed and certified by the members of such Board, to be made, one of which the respective Boards aforesaid shall return forthwith to the office of the clerk of the District Court of New Orleans, and another to the Board of Aldermen of the said city of New Orleans, to be lodged in the office of the said clerks, and with the clerks or secretary of the said Board, and to be kept filed and carefully preserved.

Sec 9 Be it further enacted, &c, That if any person unknown to the respective Boards aforsaid, should be recognized as a voter, or the qualifications of any person claiming to be recognized as a legal voter, should be challenged, the name of such person should be placed on the list of voters; or should the name of any person whomsoever be rejected therefrom, any person or persons who may desire to have the matter inquired into, shall have the right, at any time before the Board which rendered the decision appealed from is dissolved, to have the same referred to any court of competent jurisdiction; which court shall, as soon as may be, proceed by preference to examine into the decision of the Board, in the premises, and render its opinion and decree therein with the utmost promptitude and dispatch, with due regard to the merits of the question submitted; and the judgment of the court, when rendered, subjected to the right of appeal, as may be provided by law, shall be the rule by which the commissioners of election shall be governed in the matter; and the lists returned to the commissioners shall be considered, in that respect, as amended.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, &c, That the Board of Aldermen of the aforesaid city of New Orleans shall, within — days after the lists of voters are returned to such body, make out or cause to be made out a correct alphabetical list of all the voters returned by the several Boards for the examination of the qualification of voters to the Board of Aldermen aforesaid, with the notes and remarks of the said Boards accompanying such lists; and which alphabetical list must be kept and preserved by the said Board of Aldermen; and it shall also be the duty of said Board of Aldermen to furnish the commissioner of election for each election precinct, as often as an election shall be held in any of the precincts of such city, and at the time of the opening of the poles, a certified copy of the alphabetical lists herein above required to be made; furthermore to deposit a certified copy of such alphabetical lists in the office of the clerk, to which the Board for examination of the qualification of voters have returned their lists, as required in section eighth of this act; and when the Board of Aldermen of the said city of New Orleans shall have so deposited, in office of the clerk aforesaid, such alphabetical list, it shall not be added to, nor the name of any person stricken therefrom, unless by order of the court, hereinabove provided for, and no person shall, during one year from the time the several boards for examination of the qualifications of voters commence their sitting, be allowed to vote, at any election whatever, unless the Commissioners of Election be satisfied of the identity of the person offering to vote and find his name; his name returned on the alphabetical list above referred to.

Sec. 11. Be it further enacted, &c, That if any of the members of the Board of Aldermen of the city of New Orleans, or any of the several persons mentioned in this act; and who are charged therein with certain duties, shall willfully neglect or refuse to perform any of the duties required as aforesaid, shall willfully authorise or permit any thing to be done in opposition to the true meaning and intent of this act, the said members of the said Board and all other persons whomsoever, hereinabove referred to, shall severally, for each offence, forfeit a sum not less than dollars, not exceeding five hundred dollars, one-half thereof for the benefit of the State and the other for the benefit of the informer, and moreover be condemned to pay the costs of prosecution; and the party offending shall also suffer imprisonment in the parish jail for a period not exceeding nor less than thirty days.

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, &c., That the several members of the Board of Examination shall, in consideration of the services contemplated by this act, receive the following compensation, to be paid out of the treasury of the aforesaid city of New Orleans.

AN ACT

To provide for the register of the names and residence of all qualified electors in the city of New Orleans.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That there shall be a Register in the city of New Orleans appointed by the Recorders of said city, for the term of two years, whose duty it shall be to keep, in a book used for that purpose, a register of the names and residence of all the qualified electors of the city of New Orleans.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, &c, That there shall be, in each and every Representative District in the city of New Orleans, one Assistant Register appointed by said Recorders for the term of two years, whose duty shall be to make an exact list annually, of the names and residence of all the qualified electors in the Representative District to which he may have been appointed, and to make a return of the same the Register's office within fifteen days previous to the next general election. The said Register and Assistant Registers shall take the oath prescribed in article 9 ath of the constitution.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c., That if there should be any doubt in the mind of the Assistant Register in regard to the qualification of any person as a voter, he may then administer the oath as is now administered by Commissioners of election in such cases

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, &c., That so soon as all the lists are returned to the Register's office, he shall immediately cause the same to be published in the official newspaper of the city of New Orleans, and if the name or residence of any elector has been left out, he may cause the same to be registered on the testimony of two credible witnesses, that he is actually a voter.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c., That within ten days previous to a general election, it shall be the duty of the Register to furnish an exact and certified list of the names and residence of all the qualified electors, as returned to his office, to the Commissioners of election, at the several election Precincts, which list shall be considered as prima facie evidence of the right of the persons whose names appear thereon to vote; provided that any one who shall have acquired the right to vote after the list was finished, shall be entitled to vote upon his making the affidavit as now required by law in such cases

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, &c., That if the vote of any person offering to vote should be challenged, and his name does not appear on the list furnished by the Register, then the Commissioners may administer the oath as now required by law in such cases.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c., That when a case occurs as mentioned in the 6th section of this act, it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the election to write opposite the name of the person challenged the word sworn, and to make a certified list of the names of all persons thus sworn, and deliver them to the Assistant City Attorney, to be used in evidence by him on the trial of such cases.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, &c., That the Assistant City Attorney shall be entitled, as a compensation for his services, to one-half the fine imposed by the court, and he is hereby empowered to use the same means as are now set forth by law, for the collection of fines and forfeitures.

Sec. 9. Be it further enacted, &c, That if the said Register or Assistant Register, shall in any manner fail to carry out the provisions of this act, he or they shall, on due proof of the same on motion by the Assistant City Attorney before any court of competent jurisdiction, be fined in a sum of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars for each and every such failure.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, &c., That the Register shall be entitled as a compensation for his services, one half cent for each and any name on the list furnished to the Commissioners of election, to be paid annually out of the State Treasury, on the warrant of the Auditor of Public Accounts.

Sec. 11. Be it further enacted, &c., That each Assistant Register shall be entitled, as a compensation for his services, one cent on each and every name furnished by him to the Register to be paid annually out of the State Treasury on the warrant of the Auditor of Public Accounts.

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, &c., That the true intent and meaning of this act is to carry out the provisions of article eleventh of the Constitution.

Mr. Hodge—

I move the adoption of the first section of the first entitled act.

Mr. Boatner—

I move to substitute the first section of the second act.

Mr. Rivers—

I move to lay the substitute on the table. Lost.

Mr. Kenner—

I think the Board of Aldermen and not the Recorders should select the Register, and I move to strike out "Recorders" and insert "Board of Aldermen."

Laid on the table.

Mr. Kenner—

I move to strike out "Recorders" and insert "Board of Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen." Some gentlemen may think I intended to leave out the Assistant Aldermen. The Recorders have the appointment of the police. I don't want to put the legal voters under the thumb of the police.

Mr. McCay—It is so now.

Mr. Kenner—

Yes, it is so. To the shame of the country I am sorry to say it is so.

Mr. McCay—

The Recorders have the right of appointing all the police and some other officers.

The amendment was lost.

Mr. McCay—

I move to insert the words "Mayor and" in the fifth line.

Mr. Hodge—

I move that it be amended so as to have two Registers. It is well known that the constitution intended to prevent fraudulent voting, and I hope the majority will not defeat the intention of the framers of the constitution. I am proud to belong to the party who made that clause to the constitution, and I hope the gentlemen now in the Legislature will act candidly and honestly, in providing against the corruption which has blackened the fair fame of Louisiana. I insist on the amendment.

Mr. Boatner—

One officer can do the duty, and I shall move to lay the amendment on the table.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Kenner—

I want to offer one more amendment. I shall move to strike out Mayor and Recorders of the city, and insert that the people shall elect a Register. If they elect a damnable scoundrel let them do it. The ballot box of New Orleans has teemed with corruption until common decency has grown abashed. The purity of the elective franchise is no longer a sacred or high privilege. Let us reform it in the best way within our power, without looking to anything but what is fairly contemplated in the constitution.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I am sorry my friend gets warm. I remember that the gentleman and others proposed, at a previous session, to have three Commissioners appointed. He is now very much afraid of corruption by appointment, and wishes the people to elect. I have no objection to electing by the people.

Mr. Defreese—

I am sorry to see this thing take a party caste. If the gentleman from Ascension, (Mr. Kenner), will show any reason why the Mayor and Recorders should not appoint, I will vote to elect by the people.

Mr. Boatner—

The gentleman from Ascension, (Mr. Kenner), has offerred an amendment to let the Board of Aldermen elect; then he was in favor of having the Assistant Aldermen. Both were voted down. Up to this time he has thought them qualified to appoint, and now thinks the people ought to elect.

Mr. Kenner—

It is hard that the poor minority have to suffer for their own sins, and bear those of others at the same time. Who voted down my amendments? I could not carry them, and now move the people. I did think, with the Aldermen, there was some balm in Gilead. I ask the gentleman, in all candor to do us justice.

Mr. Boatner—

The gentleman attacked the entire population of New Orleans for corrupt and fraudulent voting, and asks us now to let those people elect a Register.

Mr. Kenner—

I did say there was fraudulent voting, and I believe it, and the worst feature of this debate is, that no one has denied it, They know it is so and do not dare to deny it, and let it thus go to the world through the journals and the reporter.

Mr King—

If the gentleman will name the time and place of election I will go with him.

The amendment was adopted to strike out, "appointed by the Recorders," and inserting, "elected by the qualified voters"

The section was then adopted.

Mr. Hodge moved to adopt the second section of the first bill.

Mr. Boatner offered as a substitute the second section of the second bill, which was slightly amended and adopted

On a motion to adopt the third section of the first bill,

Mr. Boatner offered as a substitute the third section of the second bill, which was adopted

On a motion to adopt the fourth section of the second bill,

Mr. McCay—

I am willing to agree with the Senator from Assumption that there have been frauds, but I cannot agree that these frauds belong to either political party exclusively.

Mr. Kenner—

I did not say so. I say I did not use Whig authority as to the fact

Mr. McCay—

Well, I want to provide against these frauds by my amendment to add to the section, "provided said registry shall be made twenty days before the next ensuing election."

Mr. Boatner—

I shall oppose the amendment. Many persons may not be able to register in time, and, therefore, many qualified voters will be prevented from voting.

Mr. Ryan—

I am for a registry law; but I will never vote for any law to disfranchise citizens who have not been able to register and are qualified voters.

Mr McCay—

I see my amendment will not be carried, and to test the sense of the Senate, I propose "five days."

Mr. Moore—

That is well enough. The constitution says:

"The Legislature shall provide by law for the registry of the names and residence of the qualified electors of the city of New Orleans, in order to entitle them to vote."

Mr. McCay is right. The name must be registered in order to entitle them to vote. Men in the excitement of elections will swear falsely. The idea of the gentleman from Rapides, (Mr. Ryan), is preposterous, to allow a man to vote if he comes the day of the election and swears he is a legal voter.

Mr. Munday—

The amendment may do good and legal voters an injury. The bill is good enough without the amendment of the gentleman from New Orleans.

Adjourned.

TUESDAY, March 7th, 1854.

Mr. McCay introduced a bill allowing the Port Wardens of New Orleans to appoint deputies and clerks, and asked that the rules be suspended and the bill passed.

Mr. King—

I shall object to the passage of the bill at this time, and ask that it be referred. I would as soon allow the Judges of the Supreme Court to appoint deputies. The bill is most odious, None but men of skill in the peculiar art of sea service can perform the duties of this office. Under the provisions of this bill they can appoint deputies and farm out their offices. I have often made appeals to the Senate, and I now ask the Senators if they will allow such offices to be farmed out, so that the principal can go skylarking to the north, and leave the important duties of his office to his irresponsible deputies.

Mr McCay—

My motion is to meet a very important and frequent contingency. The Wardens are very frequently sick or absent. In such case he should have a deputy to act for him.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Mr. President, the position of the gentleman from New Orleans (Mr. King) is very singular. We appoint deputy clerks and sheriffs, &c, and why not let the Wardens appoint deputies. The bill dont permit the Wardens to farm out their offices, and this, certainly, is not the reason of his opposition to the bill.

Mr King—

It does allow them to farm out. (Reads bill.)

Mr. Ryan—

I would ask Mr. King if he dont believe the appointments of the Governor, are men too pure to act that way.

Mr. King—

I am not in the habit of trusting to the angelic purity of any man, in legislation. It is true we have deputy clerks and sheriffs. But notwithstanding what the gentleman has said, deputy clerks are limited. It is said the Wardens may be sick or absent and need the services of deputies. Let the bill then be referred for explicit amendments.

Mr. Kenner—

The first question to be asked, is—Does it contribute to the public convenience? This must be answered in the affirmative. Next—Does it increase the expenses? This must be answered in the negative. I shall therefore vote for the bill.

Mr. King—

It is intended to benefit the officer and not the public. I would like to know how the public is to be benefitted.

Mr. Kenner—

Suppose the Warden is sick and several vessels come in at once; there is a case where the public convenience would be served by having deputies.

Mr. King—

The gentleman speaks of these contingencies, and will not provide in the bill for them. For twenty years sickness has caused no inconvenience. I consider this a very important matter; it is a great responsibility proposed to be put into irresponsible hands. Ship masters have cheese, brandy, wines and all those little appliances, on their ships, which are used to make officers, and more certainly deputies, neglectful of their duties. I see around me the signs of the result of the Senate's action, and know that I am talking to ears that do not hear.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I agree to the objections of my colleague (Mr. King). In cases of sickness there ought to be deputies, but let the bill provide for it.

Mr. Munday—

I am opposed to the reference of this bill. I have no doubt of the honesty of the Wardens, or that they would appoint honest deputies. I do not believe that the young men of the country can be corrupted with cheese, wine and brandy.

Digitized by Google

Mr. King—

I charged no one with corruption. I only said they were liable to it.

The Senate refused to refer. The bill being on its adoption:

Mr. King—

I move to amend so that the deputies shall act only during sickness or absence.

Amendment laid on the table.

Mr. King—

I offer one more amendment—That the deputies shall receive the pay for their work.

Amendment laid on the table.

Mr. King—

I move to strike out "clerks". It is enough for us to let them appoint deputies.

Motion laid on the table.

Mr. Wickliffe---

I move the adoption of the section and call for the yeas and nays to prevent the gentleman from offering any more amendments.

Mr. King—I have no more.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I then withdraw my call for the yeas and nays

Bill adopted, rules suspended and bill passed.

Mr. King—

I give notice that I will, on to-morrow, move a reconsideration.

Mr. Wickliffe—You voted against it.

Mr. King—No, I did not.

Mr. Wickliffe—Was the gentleman in the bar?

Mr. King—I was.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

Unfinished Business.

An act to provide for the registering of voters in the city of New Orleans, in pursuance of article eleven of the Constitution.

And—

An act to provide for the register of the names and residence of all qualified electors in the city of New Orleans.

Mr. Boatner—

Before proceeding I move to reconsider the vote adopting the 2nd section, and shall give my reasons. The section provides two assistant Registers. It is unnecessary to have more than one. There might be a great difference in the report of the assistant Registers and create confusion in the returns, besides it would be an additional expense.

Mr. Hodge—

I offered an amendment yesterday to insert two assistants. My object was to give the Register power to appoint two deputies, one from each political party. I call upon the gentlemen to support the bill in a way to comply with the clear meaning of the Constitution. Last year I appealed to the Senate to carry out the Constitution, and your refusal has caused the most corrupt election ever known in the State. Yesterday it was not denied that frauds had been committed, but you said it had been done by both parties. Well, let us secure the purity of the ballot box, come the corruption from whence it may, and even if it does cost some money to do it. There ought to be two assistants The best evidence that the returns are correct, will be that they agree. We are from a country where a man would be disgraced if he pandered to a means to corrupt elections. I am opposed to the reconsideration.

Mr. Boatner—

Mr. President, the gentleman entirely misconceives me. I agree that frauds are committed in New Orleans, by both parties. There is no clause in the bill requiring that the deputy Registers shall tally. Suppose one reports 800, another 600, how is the Register to decide? If the Register is a democrat he will return the largest list if it is democratic, and the whigs will do the same, and therefore I think one assistant would do better than two.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I do not agree with the Seator from Catahoula, (Mr. Boatner.) I am in favor of two assistants. If there are frauds I do not know it. I have never been in New Orleans during an election. The whigs commenced it and got beat at their own game.

Mr. King—

The Senator from Caddo (Mr. Hedge) seems to think that by having two assistants, there will be one appointed from each party. He is very much mistaken. They will either be out and out democratic or whig.

Laid on the table.

The motion pending at the time of the adjournment yesterday, being to adopt Mr. McCay's amendment to the 4th section, requiring the registry to be made "five" days before the next ensuing election.

Mr. Moore—

I will read my amendment to meet the objections that minors may be disfranchised by the limitation of five days:

Provided that should it be found that any person applying to have his name inserted on the register, is not then entitled to vote, by reason of want of residence or age, and that it be made appear by good and sufficent evidence that such person will become a qualified elector before the next Municipal or State election, then and in that case the name of such person shall be placed on the register, with a memorandum therewith, stating the date at which such person will become a qualified elector.

I would offer this in place of the proviso to the 5th section.

Mr. Boatner—

I think the amendment will throw open the doors of fraud wider than they are now. Let only those who are voters, and not those who are to become voters, come within the law.

Mr. Moore—

It cannot be more liable to fraud than the bill as it now stands. He has to make oath as in other cases, and you must more or less depend on the oath at last. I propose to add my amendment to the end of the 5th Section.

Mr. Hodge was in favor of twenty days.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I am in favor of the shortest time. Recollect the 10th article of the Constitution. I am in favor of one day, or the day of the election.

Mr. Hodge—

I am as much opposed to depriving persons of voting as other Senators. But it is part of the Constitution of the State, that the name and residence of every qualified voter in New Orleans, shall be registered. By the fundamental law of the land, it is just as necessary that the voter's name should be registered, as that he shall be a free white male of twenty-one years of age, and he dare not, he cannot gainsay it. I say to the opposite party, that they cannot show as clear hands as the party to which I belong. We stand on the organic law of the land. The Constitution commands us, and we seek to obey it. Where are to be seen the acts of the Democratic party evincing pespect for the Constitution? Nowhere! I can plainly see it will not be found on the Statute Book. I hope that Senators have come here to perform their solemn Constitutional duty, and that they will meet it.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Wickliffe—

I said there was a 10th article of the Constitution, and we should pass no law to deprive any citizen of New Orleans from voting under it. I said there was a 10th as well as 11th article.

The gentleman has said a great deal about fraud and corruption. I charge it upon the Whigs, and it stands of record. I am sick and tired of this eternal cry of fraud and corruption. I intend to do my Constitutional duty, regardless of any insinuations or charges made upon the party to which I belong. The gentleman has appealed to the 11th article of the Constitution as a work of the Whig party. Let him show that the Democratic party voted against it, then he may claim it. I say to the Senator, that the Democratic men on this floor are as anxious to carry out the provisions of the Constitution as the Whigs are. But we will not be driven to disfranchising our citizens. I do hope to see the time when every qualified voter can vote.

Mr. McCay's proviso was laid on the table.

Mr. Palfrey introduced an amendment, requiring the oath to be taken before the Register, and the affidavit filed in the First District Court.

I offer this in order that the parties may be prosecuted if they swear falsely.

Mr. Boatner—

Mr. President, I think the section is short, and to the point, and I shall move to lay the amendment on the table.

Mr. Defreese—

If the section is intrinsically defective, why not come up and point it out, and not be going on thus from day to day, with these party allusions. I sometimes think the intention is to throw amendments in as bombshells, hoping we will not pass a law, so as to say, the Democratic party refused to pass it. I am sorry my party has not held a caucus, and agreed upon just such a bill as suited us; and passed it; and have taken upon our shoulders the whole thing. I am willing to be bound, even by party shackles, and hope the amendment will be voted down.

Mr. Palfrey—

The gentleman either misrepresents or misunderstands It is charitable to suppose that he misunderstands.

Mr. Kenner—

I never spit against the wind. I hope the gentlemen of the Democratic party will retire and present a bill that meets their tastes in every particular.

I want to correct the gentleman from West Feliciana in one thing. He said frauds had originated with the Whig party, and that the Democratic party had voted for the Registry clause in the Constitution.

Mr. Wickliffe—

No, sir.

Mr. Kenner—

I leave to Senators, if the gentleman did not leave the inference. (Reads the Journal of the Convention.) There were forty Democrats out of forty-six against it, who voted in the negative. The gentleman said we could not claim it as a Whig measure, and I wished to show him.

Mr Wickliffe—

The inference may be drawn that I had read the Journal, and meant to say that the Democratic party did not oppose it. The vote read by the gentleman is not upon the clause as it is in the Constitution.

But something has been said about frauds. I hold in my hand some account of cab frauds in New Orleans, and some account of Judge Elliott.

Mr. Lacey—

I was not personally acquainted with all the members of the Convention, who voted on the Registry provision, and arise simply to ask the Honorable Senator from Ascension, (Mr. Kenner) if that vote was referred to, for the purpose of showing that the Whig party advocated and endorsed the provision in the Constitution relative to the Registry law, and the Democratic party opposed it?

Mr. Kenner—

Yes sir, it was.

Mr. Ryan—

Mr. President, we may sit here for weeks and weeks and talk about frauds, and excite nothing but prejudices. Sir, I want to hear no more about the frauds of '41 and frauds of '53. They are a disgrace to Louisiana. Let them not be brought in here to excite the passions and prejudices of gentlemen. What are we about? To determine whether we will pass a Registry law or not. I shall vote for no Registry law which says to a voter, he shall not vote unless his name is registered thirty days before the election. Such a doctrine is opposed to the genius of our institutions, and republican principles. I shall vote for nothing which refers to mere party. It is charged that immense frauds have been committed, and why have these men not been brought to justice? I hope the question will be voted on directly, and that Senators will not be charging the frauds of '41 and '53.

Mr. Wickliffe—

(Read to show that Mr. Kenner had not read from the Journal, the action of the Convention on the 11th article, as it is in the Constitution, and asked to explain and place the matter before the Senate.)

Mr. Kenner—

I will give the gentleman all the assistance I can, and shew him where to find it.

The amendment was laid on the table.

The 4th section was adopted.

On a motion to adopt the 5th section:

Mr. McCay moved to strike out all after the word "vote" in the 9th line.

Mr. Moore—

I am in favor of striking out, as it is clearly unconstitutional.

Mr. Boatner—

I move to lay the motion on the table.

Mr Trudeau—

I have not said anything on this bill, as I thought the dominant party intended to pass it anyway, and I hoped the Whigs would let them go on with it.

Mr. Moore read the following substitute for the 6th section:

That when it shall appear that any person has made a false oath, or gave false evidence in relation to the right of any person or persons to vote, or if any person shall have voted more than once at the same election. The person or persons so offending, shall be prosecuted by the District Attorney, and on conviction, shall be punished as the law prescribes, for perjury, and voting a second time, as the case may be.

Mr. Boatner—

I move to amend the 5th section, by adding after the word entitled, in the 11th line, the words "to have his name placed on the registry, and—"

The amendment was agreed to, and the section adopted.

On motion of Mr. Boatner, the following words were added to the end of the 6th section—"And if it appear he is entitled to vote his name shall be registered,"—and the section was adopted.

On a motion to adopt the 7th section:

Mr. King moved to strike out the words, "Assistant City" in the 7th line, and insert "District," which was agreed to.

Mr. King—

I move to amend, by adding—"the word challenged shall be put opposite to each name challenged, to be used by the District Attorney, as prima facie evidence in the trial of such cases.

Adopted.

Mr. Martel—

I propose to amend—"That all persons who shall be ascertained to have sworn falsely, under the provisions of this act, shall be perjured, and upon conviction, be imprisoned for not more than five, nor less than two years."

Adopted.

The section was then adopted.

On a motion to adopt the 8th section:

Mr. Boatner moved to strike out "Assistant City," in the 1st and 2nd lines, and insert "District," and to put after the word "Court," in the 4th line, the words—"And the other half to the Treasury of New Orleans," which being agreed to, the section was adopted.

On a motion to adopt the 9th section:

Mr McCay moved to strike out the word "five" and insert "fifty," and to strike out "fifty" and insert "one thousand," in the 7th line.

Mr. Hodge—

And to add after the word "dollars"—"And be imprisoned for not less than one year."

Amendments and section adopted.

On a motion to adopt the 10th section:

Mr. Palfrey moved to strike out from the word "State" in the 5th line, and insert "City Treasurer."

Laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Boatner, "one-half cent" was struck out of the 3rd line, and "five cents" inserted.

The section was adopted.

On a motion to adopt the 11th section:

Mr. Boatner—

I move to amend by striking out "one cent" in the 3rd line, and inserting "ten cents".

Mr. Moore—

I vote against both.

Mr. Kenner—

So do I, sir.

Mr. King—

I would state that there are 13,000 voters, and en Representative Districts in New Orleans, and when you divide $1300 among twenty men, the compensation will be at the very lowest notch, and as little as we could expect.

Mr. Hodge—

I shall vote "no," because I do not believe the bill will carry out the provision of the Constitution.

The amendment was adopted.

Mr. Hodge—

Before the section is adopted, I would ask the Senator from Catahoula, (Mr. Boatner,) who seems to have the control of this bill, if the object of the Convention, who framed the Constitution, was not to prevent frauds, and if his bill makes it any more difficult to vote than under the present system?

Mr. Boatner—

The bill provides for a registry, and that is all the Constitution requires.

The section was adopted.

On motion to adopt the 12th section:

Mr. Rivers—

I move to strike out, in the second line, the words "carry out," and insert the word "evade."

Mr. Trudeau—

The section looks like the gentleman thought there might be some doubt.

Mr. Ryan—

I move to amend, so as to read—"To carry out the words of the Constitution."

Mr. Trudeau—

They have done their duty, and are satisfied with their bill; its a beautiful thing—let it pass as it is.

Mr. Rivers—

Let it alone? It's a mere endorsement under the picture of a cow—this is a horse!

Mr. Wickliffe—

I will welcome the Senator from Jefferson (Mr. Trudeau) into the Democratic fold. He has confessed that the Democrats have carried out the provisions of the Constitution, and I will repeat to him from the pious poet, Watts—

"While the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return."

Mr. McCay—

I move to lay the section and the amendment on the table.

Mr. Moore—

I shall vote to lay on the table, because I think the act does not comply with the Constitution.

Mr. King—

I shall vote yes, because the section is mere surplusage.

Mr. Kenner—

I shall vote no, for the very same reason.

Mr. McCay—I shall vote yes, because, whatever may have been the intent of the friends of the bill, the meaning is, clearly, not to carry out the provisions of the Constitution.

The motion was lost.

The amendment was laid on the table, and the section adopted.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

The special messenger from the House requested the concurrence of the Senate in the following bills, entitled:

An act to diminish the number of Jurors for the Parish of Point Coupée, and to provide for the service of the Jurors in said parish.

MESSAGE TO THE HOUSE.

The assistant Secretary requested the concurrence of the House in the following bill, entitled:

ments of the Constitution, to whom was referred a resolution relative to the amendments of the Constitution, reports unfavorable, and suggests as a question of policy, that the organic law of the State should not be continually subject to changes, which report was adopted.

Mr. Boatner, from the Committee on Claims, made the following majority Report:

To the Honorable W. W. Farmer, Lieutenant Governor, and President of the Senate:

The Committee on Claims, to which was referred a certain resolution, with instructions to ascertain the amount which Joseph H. Maddox is entitled to demand from the State on a certain claim—also to enquire whether the sum of $3010 received by him under an act of the last Legislature, was not received in full payment of all his demands against the State, growing out of the printing of the debates, and the publication of the same in the daily and weekly paper—herewith report, that they are unable to ascertain that any amount is due the said Maddox on his alleged claim. And in regard to the second instruction in the resolution, the Committee have learned that the amount paid at the last session of the Legislature to J H. Maddox, was allowed by the Committee, as full payment to said Maddox—yet there is no evidence that Maddox was privy to any understanding of that nature, or that the money was received by him in full payment of all his demands against the State.

(Signed) M. BOATNER

Mr. Dupré, from the same Committee, made the following minority report:

To the Honorable W. W. Farmer, President of the Senate:

The undersigned, a member of the Cammittee to which was referred the claim of J. H. Maddox, begs leave to report favorably on the same; and that there is no evidence that he received the $3010 in full payment of all demands of the State, but that the same was in payment of specific services.

(Signed) ACHILLE DUPRE.

Mr. Macmurdo, on behalf of the Finance Committee, reported favorably on An act to establish a permanent fund for the support of the Free Public Schools of the State of Louisiana. And on

An act to exempt the Seaman's Home Association from taxation.

And a bill, entitled:

A bill for the relief of the veterans of 1814 and 1815.

Reported favorably, with an amendment, and the title to read as follows, viz:

An act to provide for a deficiency in the appropriation for payment of pensions, under the Act entitled, "An act granting pensions to the veterans of 1814 and 1815, approved 30th April, 1853"

And reported back the communication from the Treasurer of the State with the following resolution, which on motion of Mr. Macmurdo was read and adopted.

Resolution calling for information from the Attorney General.

Resolution by the Senate of the State of Louisiana—that the Attorney General be requested to inform the Senate what steps, if any, have been taken in prosecution of delinquent public officers in the city of New Orleans, for failures to make reports to the State Treasurer and make payments of moneys as required by Act No. 98 of the General Assembly of the year 1843.

And

An act ratifying the Bond given by the Sheriff of the Parish of St. Landry in his official capacity.

He reported back from the Finance Committee, with a recommendation that it be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, as it involves a legal question.

On motion, it was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

And on the communication from the Auditor of Public Accounts in regard to a settlement made by him with A. C. Bickham, recommended that the Senate approve the said settlement.

He also made the following reports:

To the Hon W. W. Farmer, Lieut. Governor and President of the Senate.

The Committee on Finance, to whom has been referred the memorial of Antoine Cambre, and others, praying to be compensated for services on Jury in the First District Court of the city of New Orleans, in criminal prosecutions, beg leave to report:

That they have had the same under consideration, and find that in the parishes of the State other than that of Orleans, services of this nature are paid from funds belonging to the parishes respectively, and in no case has a claim of this nature been made upon the State Treasury from any quarter except from the city of New Orleans. That expenses of this description are universally considered as being of that class which is subject to municipal provisions, and that if the city of New Orleans has failed to provide by its own ordinances for the payment of Jurors who may serve in criminal prosecutions within its limits, it is an indication that the city authorities have considered such service as a reciprocal public duty, which every citizen is bound gratuitously to perform, in his turn, and for which no payment should be exacted, as is the case in the performance of militia duty.

Your Committee, however, respectfully submit, that in their opinion the city of New Orleans is bound, under the provisions of the fifth section of the Act of May 27, 1846, entitled "An act to abolish the Police Jury in the city of New Orleans," to provide for the payment of such claims.

At all events, conceiving that the State is not bound, either by law or equity, to provide compensation for such services, your Committee beg leave to report unfavorably on the memorial.

(Signed) J. R. MACMURDO,
Chairman.

To the Hon. W. W. Farmer, President of the Senate.

The Committee on Finance, to which was referred the memorial of the testamentary executors of the late Alexander Gordon, deceased, make the following report:

That while they are willing to admit that Mr. Gordon made large pecuniary sacrifices in his efforts to sustain the Mexican Gulf Railroad Company, they cannot perceive that there is any obligation on the part of the State to grant the prayer of the petitioners for a release from their indebtedness to the State. But believing that the Mexican Gulf Railroad affords considerable facilities to the community through which it passes, and that it would be prejudicial to the interests of said community should it be broken up—and to show that the State is liberally disposed towards its proprietors, the Committee recommend that an extension of time be granted to the testamentary executors of the late Alexander Gordon, for the payment of the amount claimed from them by the State.

The Committee, therefore, introduce the accompanying bill.

(Signed) J. R. MACMURDO,
Chairman.

The Senate then adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, March 8th, 1854.

Mr. McCay, from the Committee on Federal Relations, made the following:

Report of the Committee on Federal Relations, in relation to the Policy which has been instituted by the Government of the Island of Cuba, &c.

To the Honorable W. W. Farmer, President of the Senate:

Within a few months past a new policy has been instituted by the Government of the Island of Cuba bearing upon a question of labor and the social organization of that island, with the avowed intention of substituting free labor for the domestic servitude now existing there, and of eventually emancipating the negroes which have been so largely imported from Africa, with the connivance of the Government and in direct violation of its own statutes and treaty stipulations. For the better carrying out of these measures the Spanish Government has evidently adopted the policy of proceeding by units instead of by large masses, in its liberation of the slaves, in order to remove, as far as possible, the reasonable grounds for apprehension or alarm that exist; but the principle is not the less pernicious, nor the ultimate object less obvious, for each individual liberation amounts to the assertion of a vital principle.

In support of these measures the organ of the Spanish Government in Cuba has openly announced and defended the fallacious idea that free labor will be more conducive to the welfare of the island than is its present system; and that the mother country, being one of the European family of nations, is bound by every tie of interest and common glory, to follow and obey the general course of European thought in its guidance and control of social phenomena in its dominions.

In pursuance of this idea the Government of Spain has ordered the immediate emancipation of a large number of Negroes known as emancipados, who have for a long time been deprived of their freedom, the Government of Cuba having pursued the practice of apprenticing and reapprenticing them for gain, instead of granting them their free papers, in small numbers, from time to time, as they became entitled thereto.

Coincident with this act, and under the plea that it is necessary to increase the number of laborers in Cuba, she has instituted a new code of laws for their government, and is now stimulating her subjects to import apprenticed or contract laborers of different races, to labor in her fields and workshops by the side of the slave.

While it does not become the Senate Committee on Federal Relations to discuss the abstract right of Spain to institute such social laws and regulations within her domain, as shall seem to her most beneficial for her whole people, this Committee cannot refrain from expressing the belief that the sudden liberation of a large number of blacks in the midst of a slave population must have an exciting and prejudicial effect upon the moral condition of the slaves; and that the institution, in the same island, of a class of apprenticed or contract laborers which shall, for a series of years, work alongside of, and in constant union and contact with the slaves, with an almost equality of condition, and which class, at the end of a determined period of time, shall attain their freedom from servile obligations and become citizens, must tend to undermine the foundations of the present social system of Cuba, and ultimately result in the complete destruction of the resources and wealth of that portion of the Spanish Dominions, and of the welfare of its white inhabitants.

The immediate proximity of this island to our own shores, its geographical position and relations to the outlets of the great and constantly increasing commerce, not only of our own State, but also of all the rivers and harbors of the South and Southwestern States, of the great valley of the west, and of that vast region beyond the Mississippi which is now being so rapidly opened to productive industry; the effect which any radical change in its social institutions may have upon our domestic slavery: and its ultimate connexion with the security of our own intercourse with the Pacific States, through its neighboring seas and across the isthmus of America, induce this Committee to present to the Senate a few reflections as to the effect of the newly instituted measures in Cuba upon our own safety and welfare.

These have been ably and eloquently alluded to by his Excellency, Gov. Hébert, in his last annual message to the Legislature.

The abolition of slavery in Cuba will undoubtedly cause a large emigration of the white race from that island, and will thus increase the present disproportion between the blacks and whites there. It will destroy all the sources of wealth existing in the actual organization of its society, and impoverishing and debasing the remaining white inhabitants, will reduce them to a political, social, and moral condition of equality with the semi-barbarous race of Africans that now composes so large a portion of its population. The granting of social power and political representation to these, will, from their numerical preponderance, create there a government, weak in all the elements of moral and physical strength, constituted mainly from the negro element, and possessing a natural bias toward the European influences which had created it, and an antipathy to our own political and social interests which opposed its creation.

Such an event is fraught with danger to the South, and, indeed, to the whole Union. The waters of our Southern coast will be converted into a scene of bickering, where the conflicting interests of American and European States will find themselves in a state of constant contact and collision. Its acquiescence in, and perpetuation in those seas of that European comity, which, in its essence is directly opposed to the development of our interests and influence, will entail upon our national government the continued maintenance there of a large maratime force to watch over and guard the safety of the great highways of our trade. It will menace us with the proximity of an ill governed people, having a social organization widely different and adverse to our own. It will constitute there an ignorant and anti-American government, presenting many and greater points of difficulty and disagreement than arise with the present existing government, or than would occur with a government congenial in its principles and tendencies with our own. It may lead to the necessity of our taking possession, in order to secure our own safety, of a country disorganized in its social condition, its productive capabilities destroyed, and itself, in every sense, incompatible for admission into this Union.

Physical reasons of the strongest kind concur to render it in every way desirable to the United States, that this island should be in our possession, or in that of a friendly and truly American power The paucity of our Southern coast in good harbors and ports to shelter our naval squadrons in those seas is, at the present time, inducing the Federal Government to fortify, at a vast expense, the barren rocks of the Tortugas, near the outlet of the Gulf of Mexico. The necessity of this step is the more apparent when we contemplate the vast exchanges of accumulated wealth which must take place at no distant time between the older nations inhabiting the shores of the Atlantic ocean, and the new born empires that are so rapidly springing up on either declivity of the Rocky Mountains, and upon the golden border of the Pacific ocean A great portion of this wealth following the water courses and favorable routes offered by the natural configuration of the continent, must pass through the narrow channel lying immediately upon the northern shore of Cuba. While our own peculiar circumstances force us to fortify the Tortugas rocks, insignificant in every thing, except in their geographical position, Cuba abounds in ports which are the admiration of the world, in timber and naval resources of the most ample nature, and possesses an expanded territory, and a fruitful soil capable of sustaining millions of friends or foes. The illimitable commerce of the Mississippi and its tributaries, and of the new iron-ways to the Pacific must seek the markets of the older world, passing within striking distance of its shores. The laws of nations may prohibit that we should disturb a friendly power in the rightful enjoyment of its domain: but where a power holding possessory rights over a territory contiguous to ours, abuses the defence which those laws yield it, by instituting a policy and organizing institutions that must inevitably conflict with our own, and which menaces our future safety and welfare: and above all when these measures are taken with the evident and almost avowed intent of interfering prejudicially with the laws of our natural progress, and the development of our interests and influence, the necessity of self-preservation becomes the paramount and sole law which rules our conduct.

Digitized by Google

Be it resolved, That we view with alarm the recent and avowed change that has taken place in the policy of the Spanish government in Cuba, the manifest tendency and result of which must be the abolition of slavery and the destruction of the white race in that country.

Resolved, That we believe such an event will have a most pernicious effect upon the same institution and interests in these States: that it will destroy the social and political existence of that Island: that it will materially affect the natural law of American progress by precluding forever the admission of Cuba into this Union; that it will create in our immediate vicinity and almost within sight of our own shores, a government administered by an inferior and barbarous African race, under the immediate influence of European interests and ideas, and adverse to the pure American influence which should predominate on this continent and its adjacent islands: that it will menace the security of the outlets of all our Southern and South-western rivers and harbors of the Gulf of Mexico, of the American Mediterranean, of the new great highways of Commerce through those seas and across the Isthmus of America; and that it will materially endanger the intercourse between our Atlantic and Pacific States.

Resolved, That we approve of the sentiments expressed in the Inagural Message of Gen. Pierce, relative to the extension of our limits and the prevention of the establishment of prejudicial influences around our Southern border, and of those laid down by his Excellency Governor Hébert in his late annual message.

Resolved, That we deem the time has arrived when the American people and the Federal Government should take a great and active interest in the proceedings of Spain and other European powers in Cuba, in order to prevent the establishment of measures and institutions prejudicial to our own safety and welfare.

THOS. S. McCAY,
Chairman.

Mr. Moore called up a bill for the relief of —— Fuselier, translator of the Convention reports.

Mr. Moore—

The Committee on Claims have reported on the bill, leaving a blank. I move to fill up the blank with $125 Mr. Fuselier does not ask full compensation; he only claims his expenses. But he went to New Orleans and remained there forty days to attend to the translation of these reports, and it must be presumed his expenses would be $3 per day, besides $5 for his expenses to get there. He is clearly entitled to it. He was an able reporter and a gentleman, and would have done the work if the reports had been furnished to him. He was bound in honor to remain the forty days and ought to be paid.

Mr. Boatner—

I will read a certificate from the Auditor, showing that Mr. Fuselier has been allowed extra pay for twenty days, at $8 per day, making $160.

The bill was then passed.

SPECIAL ORDER.

"An act for the relief J. H. Maddox, growing out of the failure of the State to furnish to him, as Public Printer, the reports of the Constitutional Convention."

Mr. Boatner—

Mr. President: As this matter has elicited a good deal of remark, out of the Senate Chamber, and as my course has been scrutinized rather closely, I shall briefly state my reasons for voting against the bill.

Mr. Maddox claims, on account of the laches of the State, the sum of $15,000. This claim has attracted serious attention of the Committee on Claims, to which I belong. We examined it as closely as we could. We conversed with gentlemen more familiar with the subject than ourselves, and all agreed, that at last session, when Mr. Maddox received $3,010, it was a finality. There are several Senators who will bear me out in this. The Committee could not agree that Mr. Maddox had a vested right, and that it is dangerous to establish such a precedent. In 1852, Mr. Weisse, of the Bee, was elected Public Printer for two years, and had associated with him Mr. Magne. In 1853, the Legislature elected Mr. La Sere, of the Courrier, over Messrs Weisse & Magne There was no objection to proceeding, and Messrs. Weisse & Magne were dismissed at the will of the Legislature, before the two years were out.

Mr. Rivers—

Yes, there was objection.

Mr. Boatner—

Well, I don't see it in the records. Messrs. Weisse & Magne made no complaint. The friends of the bill say that the Reporter did not furnish the reports to the printer. If the printer is to be paid when the Reporter does not make out the reports, it will be a dangerous precedent.

Mr. Hodge—

I desire to correct the Chairman of the Committee on Claims, (Mr. Boatner), in regard to one fact in this matter.

The question is, did Mr. Maddox regard the payment of $3,010 as full compensation? I do not understand the Chairman to say that Mr. Maddox was a party to any such understanding.

Mr. Boatner—No sir.

Mr. Hodge—

When the $3,010 were appropriated, the proposition was distinctly made that the debates would be discontinued, and I hold in my hand a letter from the Speaker of the House of Representatives, (Mr. Sandidge), who was then a member, stating that the proposition was not seriously entertained, and was voted down.

On the merits of this claim I am authorized to give it my support by the highest authority—Democratic authority. We have it from numerous gentlemen of the highest integrity, that Mr. Maddox went to the expense of five or six thousand dollars to carry out his work. It appears from the proof on record that he went to considerable expense. I would call the attention of the Senate to the fact that under a resolution of the Convention Mr. Maddox bought four or five thousand dollars worth of minion type, as the Convention determined on that kind of type for the printing, and it is in proof that he had none in his office. Now, it is sustained, by the highest authorities, that, in all commutative contracts, where one party fails to comply with his part, he immediately becomes liable.

[Mr. Hodge here referred to and read the case of Blair & Rives against the Government, and the opinion of Mr. Buchanan, as a parallel case.]

What justice would there be to permit the State to violate a contract? Is not the State as much bound to carry out her contracts as are individuals? I assert that Mr. Maddox has always been prepared to perform his part of the contract—he has been guilty of no laches. He printed reports as far as he could get them. If, therefore, the State, through her agent, refuses to perform her duty, is Mr. Maddox to suffer? The Reporters of the Senate and House have examined the case, and they say that if the work had been done, Mr. Maddox would have realized more than $20,000. The Reporter did not furnish the reports, and the loss falls on Mr. Maddox by the fault of the State.

[Mr. Hodge cited the case of the Surveyor General dismissing a contractor, who was subsequently paid by Congress.]

I assert, Mr. President, that under all the precedents in the United States, this claim ought to be paid There is equity and justice in it, and, whether the State has been served or damaged, the only thing for Mr. Maddox to do is, if he has done his duty and the State failed—if so, he is as much entitled to his claim as he would be against an individual.

Mr. Macmurdo—

Allusion having been made to what transpired at the last session, I will state that Mr. Maddox came to me about the appropriation of $3,010. I told him if he would get Mr. Kenner to sanction it I would report the appropriation. Mr. Kenner and myself did have a conversation on the subject, when Mr Maddox was not present. But, certainly, Mr. Kenner and myself considered the appropriation a finality.

Mr. King—

We have had a long legal argument about the moral obligation of a contract. We utterly deny that there was a contract. Where is your contract? Show us your bond. To make this matter easy, let me propound: could Mr. Maddox have resigned? Most certainly he could have resigned, and nothing could bind him to perform the duties. And now where is your contract, if contract you call it, to make him responsible? The clinching argument is, that if the State is bound, Mr. Maddox is bound; and no one will say he could not have resigned.

I think an appropriation was made of about $16.000; with no bills to print—nothing but a few reports Last session Mr. Maddox came here and received $3.010 for printing sixty pages of the reports, as far as furnished, and I say the whole report could be printed for $3,010. The Revised Statutes contain about six hundred pages, and only cost $3.500. The appropriation given was understood to be a final payment. If two parties have a settlement, and afterwards put in other claims, is there a court in the world would listen to it? Mr. Maddox's claim was just as good last winter as it is now, and why did he not then claim it.

But another objection to this bill is the uncertainty of the basis on which it rests. Where are the figures for the profits of $15,000? I want to see the figures. He made $3,010 for sixty pages, and can it be told how much he would claim for printing the whole debates? I cannot see why it is that we should make nabobs of printers. They are a very meritorious class, but they have no right to this sort of monopoly.

Mr. Hodge—

I have generally observed, when the gentleman doubts the arguments of another, he resorts to a certain mode of reply. The gentleman asserted that he did not believe there was a man alive who could doubt the arguments of his report. I will inform the gentleman that I claim to be entitled to form my own opinion on all subjects, and when I do form it, I have as much respect for it as I have for the opinions of the gentleman. I will read the opinion of James Buchanan, which is not only entitled to respect in this Senate, but throughout the world. I hope the gentleman will not treat it with the same disrespect he has others. (Reads Mr. Buchanan's opinion on a similar case.) Now I will answer the gentleman about contract. We are both lawyers and are presumed to know something about law. Now, let me tell the gentleman that it is not necessary that a contract shall be in writing. He asks—"where is your contract? Where is your bond?" They are not necessary. A contract can be binding to all intents without being in writing. I will again read.

(Continues to read).

In regard to the amount that Mr. Maddox is entitled to under this contract—for it is a contract—the only inquiry we have to make, is, what would have been his profits? Mr. Martin and Mr. DaPonte, both practically acquainted with this business, state that Mr. Maddox's profits would have exceeded $20,000.

Mr. King—

When I was on the floor before I asked the question, could Mr. Maddox resign? If he could resign, it is no contract.

Mr. Hodge—

Did you ever know one to resign? If he had resigned he would have been liable to the State.

Mr. Ryan—

Mr. King, do you pretend to say that Mr. Maddox would not have been liable if he had resigned?

Mr. King—

I do; and no lawyer in the State would bring such a suit. I will now show that if it is a contract, the State is not liable. (Reads article 1927 of the Civil Code, to prove that when a contract fails by a fortuitous event, it is not binding.)

Digitized by Google

Mr. Boatner—

As some allusion has been made to me by the Senator from Caddo (Mr. Hodge,) I desire to say why I cannot be influenced by his arguments.

In regard to the case of Blair & Rives, who were public printers, and had given bond, they were dismissed by a third party, and not a party to the contract, and it has no resemblance to this case. I agree with the gentleman from New Orleans, (Mr. King,) and believe the law he read is sound and good, and that there is no precedent for the payment of the claim. We have a right to dismiss our Reporter; and suppose we were to do so to-day; according to the gentleman's argument, Mr. La Sere could come in and claim for printing the reports.

Mr. Moore—

Permit me to ask one question. Was there not evidence before both Committees, that Mr. Maddox had expended four or five thousand dollars in preparing to do this work?

Mr. Boatner—

I believe it was in proof that he had spent a few thousand dollars, but it was also in proof that Mr. Maddox had already received $20.000. I do not think that the reports of the Convention of 1845 ought to be the basis for fixing the compensation, because the Convention of 1845 was a speaking body, and the Convention of 1852 was not, as appears by the closing speech of the worthy President, Mr. Kenner.

Mr. Hodge—

It has been said that Mr. Maddox had not presented his claim last winter, and a court would now presume his claim was not good. The Reporter has only been dead a few months. He was not dead at the last session, and Mr. Maddox supposed he would furnish the reports.

Mr. Kenner—

I wish to ask the Chairman of the Committee on Claims, (Mr. Boatner,) what amount the Committee thought Mr. Maddox entitled to?

Mr. Boatner—

The Committee did not think him entitled to anything.

Mr. Rivers—

Well, I'll ask if it was not in evidence that he had gone to expense to do the work?

Mr. Boatner—

I believe it was in proof.

Mr. Moore—

It is in proof that Mr. Maddox spent four or five thousand dollars, and I shall vote to pay the loss.

Mr. King—

If we pay for these things the State ought to have them.

Mr. Martel—

I do not know how to vote, as I have not all the facts about the amount of compensation already paid to Mr. Maddox. I would be glad if some gentleman would inform me.

Mr. Macmardo—

I will answer the Senator. Mr. Maddox received $16,000 for printing, for the Convention, the proceedings, &c., and $3010 for printing the report of the debates, so far as they had been furnished to him.

Mr. McCay—

There has been only $3010 paid on this claim.

Mr. King—

I move to lay the whole bill on the table.

Motion lost.

The bill was then amended by inserting $6000, and adopted on its second reading.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

"An act to increase the salary of the Clerk of the First District Court."

Mr. Rivers—

I move that the increase salary be taken out of the fines and forfeitures. This bill before provided to pay the salary out of fines and forfeitures, and now I see the excess of salary is to be paid out of the Treasury.

Mr. King—

I don't understand this action of the Senate. I moved to reconsider this bill, and its being called up in this manner, is treating me with parliamentary discourtesy. No Senator had a right to make any motion on this bill in my absence.

Mr. McCay—

One word in explanation. The Senator did move a reconsideration, but the further consideration was postponed to to-day, and the bill was in possession of the Senate, and it belonged to the Senate. I did not call up the bill. It was announced by the Chair. I certainly did not intend any discourtesy. If Senators do not stay in their seats they cannot expect the business of the Senate to be delayed by it.

Mr. King persisted in his right, and the President decided that the bill was in possession of the Senate.

On a motion to adopt the 1st section:

Mr. King—

I move to lay the section on the table.

Mr. McCay—

I hope the Senators now see the enlightenment we were to have by the Senator's presence.

Mr King—

I withdraw it.

Mr Palfrey—

It was stated the other day, that two deputies were employed at $900 a piece, which seems to me very high We have no proof of it. And how stationery, lights, coal, &c., can cost $1000, as stated, I cannot conceive.

Mr. Lacey—

I think I can satisfy the Senator from St. Mary. I will ask if you can get two competent men in New Orleans for $1800 a year. The Clerk gets a salary, now, of $4000, out of which $1800 is paid for Clerks, and another $1000 for expenses. Now, what is the clerk to exist on with his family. He is left the pitiful sum of $1200. The Senate of the State of Louisiana will surely maintain, and pass the section

Mr. Rivers—

I have no disposition to reply to the pathetic appeal of the gentleman. I make the proposition that the Clerk resign, and I will vote for the increase next year, if it is not filled by competent persons satisfied with $4000.

Mr. King—

I have been twitted a little, and will state what is not known. The Clerk is allowed costs of criminals convicted. Each case amounts to $7 & $8. He also gets fees on all forfeited bonds, all of which will amount to two or three thousand dollars. We know he gets these fees, and fees on Naturalization papers. Take it for granted that two Clerks are necessary; $200 would cover all the other expenses, thus leaving him $2000, adding to which the fees, I estimate will make over $4000, and yet we are asked to increase his salary. We must have a mania for spending money. I stated the other day that there were hundreds of competent persons who would take the office at the preents salary. Let him resign, and I warrant it will be filled at the present salary.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Moore—

If you will strike out the words, to draw on the Treasury, I will vote for the increase of salary, otherwise I will vote against the whole bill.

Mr. McCay—

I will read the bill, by which the Senator will see that the excess of salary was only to be paid the account of the Clerk, countersigned by the Judge.

The 1st, 2nd and 3rd sections were adopted.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, BATON ROUGE,
March 7th, 1854

Hon. J. R. Macmurdo, Coairman of the Committee on Finance, Senate:

The only liabilities thus incurred have been for railroad purposes, and are as follows:

May 27th, 1853—76 Bonds of $1000 each, issued in favor of the New Orleans, Opelousas and G. W. Railroad Co.

July 30th, 1853—Another series of 45 Bonds of $1000 each, issued in favor of same Company

October 31st, 1853—Another series of 16 Bonds of $1000 each, issued in favor of said Company.

August 18th—165 Bonds of $1000 each, in favor of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern R. R. Co.

Jan. 31st, 1854—16 Bonds of $1000 each, in favor the N. O., Opelousas and G. W. R. R. Co.

The above bonds were issued in accordance with the provisions of an act granting the aid of the State to the roads above named, approved April 28th, 1853, and after proper application had been made, under oath, by the legally constituted parties, on behalf of said Railroad Companies.

I have the honor to be Very respectfully,
Your ob't serv't,

(Signed) THOS. B. R. HATCH,
Private Sec. to the Gov.

Mr. Macmurdo, from the Finance Committee, made the following Report:

The Committee on Finance, of the Senate, have had under consideration the subject of the Pension Laws of the State, and make the following Report:

Prior to the passage of the act, entitled an act granting pensions to the veterans of 1814 and 1815, approved 17th March, 1852—the appropriations for pension claims had in no one year exceeded the sum of six thousand dollars. By passage of that act, a Board of Pensions was created with power to act on these claims, under certain provisions of law. An appropriation was made by the same Legislature of fifteen thousand dollars. In less than three months afterwards, this amount was entirely exhausted, and a large number of claims, perfected under the law, remained unpaid by reason of the inadequacy of the sum which had been appropriated. Many of these claims, as well those paid as those remaining unpaid, were believed to be fictitious, but the evidence on which they were based, left the Board of Pensions no alternative but to audit them. The subject was brought to the notice of the Legislature of 1853, in a bill introduced by the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the House, having for its object the repeal of the act of the year preceding. A good deal of discussion took place, which resulted in the passage of the bill, under the same title, approved 30th April, 1853, by which the act of the previous year was repealed. An appropriation of ten thousand dollars was made to meet the claims under the act of 1853, but this, as in the case of the act of 1852, proved wholly inadequate to meet the claims that were presented. The Committee have had a bill referred to them from the House, by which the sum of fifteen thousand dollars is appropriated to meet the deficiency under the act of 1853, which they have reported back favorably.

The Committee are satisfied that the act of 1853 has not answered the expectations of its friends, and that no general law can be devised under which fraudulent claims may not be perfected. They think it much the safest course, with a view to the protection of the Treasury, that every claim for a pension should be presented directly to the Legislature, and passed on with reference to its individual merits, and therefore they recommend the repeal of the act of 1853—and present with this report a bill for that purpose.

(Signed) J. R. MACMURDO.

THURSDAY, March 9th 1854.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The Committee on Elections having reported that Senator Martel was, at the time of his election and is now, a Notary Public in and for the Parish of St. Landry; and

Mr. Rivers the following resolution:

Resolved, That there is a constitutional incompatibility in holding a seat in this body and any office of emolument.

Mr Moore—

I understand the Honorable gentleman from St. Landry resigned his office of Notary on the first of this month, and there can now be no doubt of his right to his seat. If he was now a Notary there would certainly be an incompatibility in his holding his seat. I, therefore, move to add to the resolution of the majority, which declares him entitled to his place, the words, "he having resigned the office of Notary."

Mr. Wickliffe—

Mr. President: I hold that when Mr. Martel

Digitized by Google

took the constitutional oath, he ipso facto resigned his office of Notary. (Reads authority).

Mr. Ryan—

As I reported on this case, I beg to say that if there is any mistake in this matter, I got it from Mr. Martel himself. I asked him, and he told me he sent in his resignation on the first of March; the very day I made my report, and I reported that he was then a Notary.

Mr Wickliffe—

I hope the gentleman does not think we wish to cast any reflections on him I move to lay the whole subject on the table.

Mr. Rivers—

One moment. It may be supposed that I wish to make a speech, because I introduced the resolution. Such is not the case. No Senator doubts that the gentleman is now entitled to his seat. But when I introduced the resolution the gentleman was in his seat in violation of the 122d article of the constitution. All I want is the adoption of Mr. Moore's amendment to the majority's resolution, to show that the action of the Senate was based on the resignation. (Reads articles 10 and 27 of the constitution). I want the Senate to vote on the principle of whether these offices are incompatible. No one disputes his seat, and even if there was incompatibility I should hate to see him deprived of his seat.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I fully agree with the gentleman Mr. Martel could not hold his seat if he were now a Notary.

Mr. Hodge—

I would ask the gentleman from Feliciana, if I understand him to mean that no office could be vacated under the article in the constitution.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I can't help the gentleman's understanding My words are very plain. There was no office of Notary after he took the oath as Senator.

Mr. Rivers—

I move to amend with these words, "that the office of Notary having become vacated by operation of law."

This amendment was adopted, and the resolution passed declaring Mr. Martel entitled to his seat.

The Senate then took under consideration "An act regulating Judicial sales in the Parish Orleans;"

And a substitute of the same title.

Mr. Kenner—

I move for the indefinite postponement of both bills.

Mr. Lacey—

Mr. President: I do not contemplate making a speech. I shall only give my reasons why I shall vote for the substitute. I was in favor of the original bill because that was the best mode of giving justice to parties. In this bill, if persons are of age, they can select their own person to sell their property. Another feature gives to minors the protecting eye of the court. This principle has grown up among us, and we ask you to give the same protection in regard to sales as in other cases. If the original bill does not more effectually protect rights, where is the objection to the substitute?

Mr. Trudeau—

I would like to inquire whether the substitute was introduced by the majority or minority of the committee.

Mr. McCay—

The facts are these: The original bill was referred to the Judiciary Committee, who reported favorably. On the motion of the Senator from Ascension, (Mr. Kenner), it was referred to a Special Committee. Three of this committee reported it back favorably, in the absence of the Senator from Ascension, who was a member of the Special Committee. At his suggestion, I moved that the bill be recommitted to the same committee, which was done, and they reported the whole subject back, so the whole subject is now before the Senate.

Mr. Trudeau—

I have understood the substitute was voted down in the committee, and I thought this was not the same. But I find it is, and I am surprised at the explanation.

Mr. Lacey has said that minors were protected by the bill. It follows, then, that if there is one minor in an estate all the balance must submit to this arbitrary rule. The bill is no improvement—it has the same principle as the other. There was an attempt to make this a Democratic measure. But I am glad to see that the Democratic party will not sustain the doctrine of odious monopolies. It strikes me as going a little too far, to deprive the citizens of New Orleans of electing their own salesmen.

Mr. Munday—

It seems that the gentlemen cannot agree, and I will endeavor to throw oil on the troubled waters, by offering a substitute for the substitute.

Mr. Kenner—

The substitute is not in order. (Reads 11th rule of the Senate).

Mr. McCay—

I call for a division of the question.

The President decided that the question was divisible and debateable.

Mr. McCay—

Upon which bill shall we vote first.

Mr. Kenner—

You moved to divide; make your own choice, we don't intend to make the selection.

Mr. McCay—

Very well, let us vote on the original bill first.

The original bill was then indefinitely postponed.

The President decided that the substitute remained before the Senate notwithstanding the fate of the original bill.

Mr. McCay—

Mr. President: As I was the introducer of this bill, and as it has created a good deal of animadversion and exitement with the press and the community, it may be reasonably expected that I should state the motives which led me to introduce it. I have not been actuated by any party consideration.

The primary object of the bill is to protect the rights of all parties having judicial sales — I speak of the original bill. By our laws minors and interdicted persons cannot consent. They must act through representatives. I think nothing could be effected under the original bill that cannot be effected by the substitute, except in case of minors and some other cases. The whole strength of the gentleman's argument, from Ascension, which was made with some force, was, that it would take away our rights—our na ural rights, as they have been designated. I am in favor of no such thing.

But, sir, minors and interdicted persons cannot select The gentleman from Jefferson, (Mr. Trudeau), said that where there was one minor, his interest would control the selection. The bill does not prevent the major from selecting; it only prevents him from selecting for the minor. The laws of our State have thrown a great many guards around property. We have all sorts of mortgages —legal mortgages, tacit mortgages, &c., and yet the person, who sells the property, is the only one who has charge of it, not sworn. The auctioneers, with whom you can make collusion—I say it is open to collusion—very often do so, and the interest of the helpless parties are sacrificed, and they possess none of the legal responsibilities of a sworn officer. Ninety out of one hundred cases, of successions, in the country, are sold by the legally constituted officer of the court ordering the sale.

The constitution says that every officer shall receive his commission from the Governor. No one will pretend to say that an auctioneer is an officer, He is not amenable as the officer of the court You cannot execute summary process on him as you can on an officer of the court, and in no way can he present that safe responsibility to be found in the oath and bond of the sheriff.

A great deal has been said by the gentleman from Ascension about the cost of this thing, and some of the papers have taken it up. It is said that the sheriff now gets $20,000 a year. I have a certified copy of all the succession sales, in New Orleans, taken from the Sheriff's books, from the 1st December, 1851, to the 31st December, 1853 I will also present a list of successions opened from the 1st of January, 1853, to the 31st December, 1853, which includes the epidemic season. I, Alexander Derbes, Clerk of the Second District Court of New Orleans, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct list of the Successions opened in this Court since the 1st of January, 1853, to the 31st December, of the same year.

ALEX. DERBES, Clerk.

And here is the statement from the books of Jas. P. Freret, Sheriff:

I certify the above to be a true statement from my books. A R LEGETT, Bookkeeper of Jas. P Freret, Sheriff.

New Orleans, 20th Jan., 1854.

I certify that the above account or statement, made out from my books by A. R. Legett, my Bookkeeper, is correct.

New Orleans, January 20th, 1854.

From the certified copy of all the successions opened in the last twelve months in New Orleans, the amount sold would probably make the compensation a little over $10,000. From the other document you perceive that it leaves with the probable amount of old fee bills to be collected—say $2 000 out of the $8,000 due on the books—after paying expenses, about $10,000 in two years.

This is that great monopoly about which there has been so much fuss and excitement. The value of the sheriffalty may be increased to $12,000 or $15,000, which is very small pay for so responsible an office. I want one individual so do this thing, who shall be known to the law. Instances of fraud and collusion have come under my own observation which could not and would not have occurred with the Sheriff.

The gentleman from J fferson, (Mr. Trudeau), spoke of the forcible disposal of property as a new feature of law. Does the gentleman know that thirty States have this feature, and Louisiana stands alone with her system.

Mr. Kenner—

Mr. President: If there be anything which is more calculated, than another, to weigh upon the mind and depress the spirits of one unaccustomed to public speaking, it is the consciousness that the minds of those to whom his remarks are addressed are predetermined to a conclusion adverse to the cause he advocates. Now, sir, though I feel, from the hints and intimations that I have received, that the minds of Senators have come to a settled conclusion to vote in favor of the bill under discussion, still am I induced to make a few remarks against it, from the fact that, after the remarks I made on a previous occasion, the friends of the bill have been constrained to shift their ground, and introduce a substitute for the original measure. As the gentlemen have been driven from their first position, some of them may still be induced to listen to the voice of truth and vote against the substitute This is, sir, my hope and encouragement to occupy the time of the Senate for a few moments.

It will be recollected, Mr President, that on the former occasion I placed myself on the broad and well recognized principle that every man should have full and entire liberty to select his own agent to dispose of his own property. That the right of a man to all the fruit of his industry, and his economy, when, how, and for what he pleased, was a right as natural to the social position of an American citizen as the right to select his rulers was to his political, or the right to breathe the air in which he moves to the physical man. There is, sir, no mathematical proposition in Euclid more susceptible of demonstration. It is, in fact, a self-evident proposition. The right of a man to dispose of his property is as positive as the right of a man to keep his property, and this latter right, sir, is the basis of civilized society and social government. Was I then far wrong, Mr. President, when I said that any one who desired to deprive the citizens of Louisiana of this great right, was disposed to exercise an authority more despotic than even the Autocrat of Russia, or the successors of Mahomet dared to do. The knout, banishment to Siberia or the bow-string, was all that would be required to make our slavery complete.

Yet, sir, the bill on your table proposes to do this, not directly, but effectually, though indirectly. The law on your statute book now provides that an administrator or executor of succession property shall have the privilege of selecting the auctioneer who is to sell the same The bill under discussion proposes to repeal this privilege, and to compel every man who is charged with the disposal of succession property, in the city of New Orleans, to have the same sold only by the Sheriff of New Orleans. It matters not how incompetent, how inefficient, how incapable the Sheriff may be to act as auctioneer, he and he alone, or his deputies, shall have the exclusive right to sell succession property, sold by order of court. And, sir, what reasons are given us, thus to curtail the rights of the people of New Orleans? Why is it, that we are asked to swell the emoluments, and patronage, and power of an office, which is already so important as to be considered the most valuable in our State. Let us look into this matter, sir, and we will find, that so far from there being any valid reason for the adoption of this odious bill, it will be found that every consideration of propriety and public interest should induce its immediate rejection.

Does any gentleman pretend to say that the State of Louisiana is a better judge of a fit agent to sell property than the parties themselves, who are interested? Certainly not. Then, why divest the parties interested of the right to choose their agent? How does it happen, Mr. President, that the law of 1852, which is sought to be repealed, is found among your statutes? Was it placed there accidentally, or was it placed there to suit some private purpose, to advance some private interests, or, sir, was it placed there because the general interests of the great city of New Orleans required such a law to be enacted? A proper answer to these questions will compel me to occupy the time of the Senate for a few moments with the history of the law of 1852

It will be recollected, Mr. President, that previous to the adoption or the constitution of 1845, that is, under the constitution of 1812, all succession sales made by an order of court, were made in the city of New Orleans by the Register of wills, and in the country parishes by the parish judges. It will be recollected how oppressive this system was considered by the great mass of the citizens of Louisiana. What constant complaints were heard of this accumulation of offices in one person, for the same man acted upon petitions to open successions, issued the order for family meetings, presided at family meetings, issued the order of sale, sold the property as auctioneer, passed the title as Notary, and recorded the deed afterwards as Recorder; and it was sometimes said that after he had received his fees for each and every duty performed, he became, virtually, universal legatee. The people complained, and justly too, sir, that, as only one man could act, there could be no competition.

and consequently no incentive to exertion—that the convenience of the office-holder was consulted and not the interest of the public. This was the condition of things when the convention of 1845 met, adopted a new constitution and left the Legislature free to act on this subject.

The first Legislature which met under the constitution of 1845, was the Legislature of 1846-47. What did that Legislature do? Did they propose to return to the old system of 1812, to force all succession property, sold under an order of court, to pass through the hands of one man? Did they renew this exclusive monopoly, regardless of the business habits and qualifications of the locum tenens, and of the interest and wishes of the public? No, sir, they did not; and allow me to say to gentlemen that this Legislature of 1846 47 was largely democratic. The city of New Orleans numbered among her Senators Pierre Soulé and T. J. Durant, and among her Representatives gentlemen of equal distinction. What, then, did this Legislature do, sir, to meet the wants and wishes of the public? It passed the following act, which I will term the act of 1847.

[Here Mr. Kenner read the act of 1847, "to regulate judicial sales," which empowers the executer, administrator or syndic to select the auctioneer or make the sale himself, provided that in the latter case he makes no charge.]

This is what that Legislature did; not to swell the emoluments of any particular individual, but to serve the wants and wishes of the public. The next time any action was had on this subject was in 1852. Another Legislature had been elected—the Representatives, fresh from the people, had been chosen to pass their laws, and this time the Legislature was whig. New Orleans now numbered among her Senators and Representatives, Benjamin, James Robb, Campbell, Ranney, and others equally worthy of her confidence as had been those of the Legislature of 1847 And, sir, what did they propose to do? Did they attempt to repeal the act of 1847, which I have just read, and return to the old system of 1812? No, sir! This is what they did: The law of 1847 having been construed by some of the judges of the city of New Orleans, to authorize them (the judges) to appoint the sheriff as auctioneer, contrary to the wishes of the administrators, &c, this Legislature passed the act of 1852, which not only re-enacts the principle of the bill of 1847, but makes it obligatory upon the judge to appoint the person selected by the administrator as auctioneer. Thus rendering plainer what was plain before, in fact, clinching the nail that was only driven by the Legislature of 1847

I have only alluded to the political complexion of the Legislatures passing these acts, Mr. President, because gentlemen on the other side have thought proper to make an appeal to party to sustain this measure, as if a democratic Legislature should appeal good laws for the sake of democratic office-holders. In 1847, the Legislature was democratic and J. L. Lewis was sheriff, a democrat, still the law of '47 was passed. In 1852, the Legislature was whig, J. P. Freret, whig, was sheriff, and the act of 1852 was passed, enforcing and strengthing the act of 1847.

It is in vain I ask for a good reason to make us repeal the act of 1852. Has it been found to work badly? Where is the evidence of its being injurious to the interest of the public? Is there any memorial, any petition on your table for its repeal? No, sir! But there is a memorial there, with a long list of your most influential citizens, whigs and democrats, attached, praying you not to repeal the law of 1852. The voice of your city is against it. A law like this, which may affect the property of every man who dies in the city of New Orleans, should not be repealed without some regard being had to public opinion. As a proof of what public opinion is I refer you to the practice of the public under the law.

By the law, as it at present exists, every man who, as administrator, obtains an order of court to have succession property sold in New Orleans, is authorized to select either an auctioneer or the sheriff to sell the same. Well, sir, what is the practice of the people of New Orleans under this law? Let us see. Let us consult the newspapers, and see what is the practice of the city people. I hold in my hand five of the city newspapers, all published on the same day, and all published on the day that this bill, now under discussion, was introduced into the Senate. I find in these newspapers nineteen succession sales advertised. Eighteen of them advertised to be sold by auctioneers and one by the sheriff. As eighteen is to one, so is the practice and wishes of the people of New Orleans in favor of the free law of 1852, and against the compulsory law now desired to be established. Again, sir, if gentlemen desire to draw the comparison between the value of succession property to be sold by the auctioneers and that to be sold by the sheriff, the difference will be found still greater; for while the property on the one hand, judging by the long lists of articles advertised, will amount to tens and hundreds of thousands, that to be sold by the sheriff amounts to the value of only one negro boy. There being only one sale by the sheriff, and that only for a negro boy.

I hope, Mr. President, that my remarks will not be considered of a personal character, if I allude to the practice of the two distinguished advocates of this compulsory law; I refer to Messrs. King and McCay. It is well known that they are lawyers of distinction, and that, of course, they are employed in the settlement of many successions. Now, sir, these gentlemen tell us on this floor, that every administrator should be compelled to employ the sheriff as their auctioneer. Yet, sir, what is their practice? I hope Senators will not loose their gravity when I tell them, that in every instance, where either Mr King or Mr. McCay have asked for an order of court to have succession property sold, that property has been sold, not by the sheriff, but by one of the auctioneers of the city of New Orleans. I ask these gentlemen how they can ask us to pass a law compelling the public to go to the sheriff, when they, themselves, having the choice of auctioneer or sheriff, advise their clients to prefer the auctioneer. Am I overstepping the bounds of propriety when, sir, I ask Senators to follow the pratice of Messrs. King and McCay, and not their advice.

Mr. President, it is natural that an administrator should prefer employing one who has been long engaged in selling property at auction than to employ the sheriff, who has been chosen by the public, not with a view to his capacity as a public vendor, but because he is a whig or a democrat, or because of his eminently social and popular character. Let me assure gentlemen that it is no easy matter to be a good auctioneer. I once heard a man say that any fool could be a planter. Let any fool try it, and he will find a sterile field and an unbalanced account current will be the result. Gentlemen are are just as far wrong if they think that any fool can be a good auctioneer. It is not enough to get on a table and be able to say, going, going, gone.

Something more is required. It required a peculiar quickness of perception, that enables one to judge from the twinklin of the eye, or the working of the muscles of the face, of the disposition in the purchasers to bid, even before the words are formed on the lips, and thus anticipate the bid before there is time for reflection. It requires, also, a thorough acquaintance with the nature, the beauties and defects of the article offered for sale. How otherwise can he dwell on the beauties and pass slightly over the defects. It requires tact and long practice to make a good auctioneer, and no one man has yet been found who could sell equally well every species of property. Some excel in selling real estate, some in selling groceries, others in selling dry goods, stocks, &c. How, then, sir, can gentlemen imagine that any man, merely because he is sheriff, can do full justice to each and every species of property that may form part and parcel of successions.

England, sir, has had two great auctioneers, Mr Robins, and the celebrated Tattersall, and they did not excell in the same line. Who, that had any regard for his own interest, would have employed Mr. Robins to sell a horse when Tattersall was to be had? No one, sir.

Allow me, Mr. President, to relate an incident which I witnessed in the city of New Orleans, to show the folly of supposing that a man can sell every kind of property equally well. Most Senators who know anything of the city of New Orleans either know or have heard of Major Beard. He, sir, is one of the first, if not the first auctioneer in that city. A friend of mine wished to have several horses sold at auction to effect a partition, and he was advised to employ Major Beard. These horses were all thorough breds, and some of them occupied a high position on the turf as racers The day of sale arrived. The first horse that was led out was the celebrated Bees-Wing, an animal whose beauty of form was only equalled by her powers as a racer. Such a shoulder, such a back and loin, and such hips. There stood the embodiment of speed and bottom. Her glossy, satin coat, her blood-like head and neck, her fiery eye and her beautifully tapered limbs gave token of her high breeding. All these beauties, all these fine points were thrown away upon the auctioneer, Major Beard saw them not. The veriest cart horse in the land would have elicited as much praise as did this noble animal. And, sir, when he attempted to give the pedigree, a pedigree that traced through a line of ancestors as long and as illustrious as that of the Plantagenets, and which proved blood as noble as that which flowed in the veins of him who boasted of the blood of all the Howards,—it was truly awful. Names were miscalled, sexes were confounded. He sired the dam and damned the sire at such a rate that even the owner did not recognize the pedigree of his horse. But, had Major Beard been selling a block of buildings or a corner lot, what a difference there would have been. Then, he would have been at home, and no man could have set forth more fully all the advantages of the property.

It is unnecessary, Mr. President, that I should dwell longer on this part of the subject. I have a great deal to say in answer to the facts and figures of the gentleman from New Orleans, (Mr. McCay), but as I am warned by the finger of the clock that the hour of three has arrived, I shall beg the indulgence of the Senate to finish on to morrow, and yield the floor for a motion to adjourn.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. Defrocse, from the Committee on Contingent Expenses, on resolution in favor of Horatio Davis, late Secretary of the Senate, made the following report:

To the Hon. W. W. Farmer,
President of the Senate:

The Committee on Contingent Expenses, to whom was referred a resolution to pay Gen. Horatio Davis, late Secretary of the Senate, the sum of five hundred dollars, as compensation for his services in assisting at the opening of the Senate at the present session, have instructed their Chairman to make the following report:

The Secretary of the Senate is by law allowed the sum of fourteen dollars per day, as a full compensation for the services he is called upon to perform as such. This compensation, your committee believe, is entirely sufficient to command the services of men, in every way competent, to discharge the arduous and responsible duties of that office. Nor do they believe that the framers of said law ever contemplated giving to the officers of the Senate, whose compensation is so definitely fixed by its terms, other and larger amounts for the performance of their duties while such law remains upon our statute books in full force and virtue. This, they believe to be a fair and equitable construction of the law, and one out of which no hardships can grow by which either of the parties may be materially affected. Mr. Davis became a candidate for and received the office of Secretary, with a full knowledge of the amount of compensation fixed by law, and although all agree that he performed the duties of that office with credit to himself and to the entire satisfaction of the Senate, yet your committee do not believe that this entitled him to increased pecuniary compensation, or to any compensation other than that fixed by law, except the proud satisfaction of knowing that he discharged the important duties of his responsible position, in such a manner as to merit the approbation of his fellow-citizens.

Upon referring to the journals of the Senate, your committee found that on the last night of the session, a resolution passed that body, allowing Gen Davis the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars for extra compensation. There is no evidence in the records of the Senate, to show that the extra compensation was based upon any claim for extra services, and they have been unable to come to any other conclusion, than that it was in fact a mere gratuity to Mr. Davis; he having previously received the per diem allowed by law.—His services the present session, for which the resolution referred to your committee proposes to pay him the extraordinary sum of five hundred dollars, consists in his appearing and assisting in the opening of the session, and officiating as Secretary for a few minutes, until a successor in office was elected and qualified These services might have been performed by another appointed by the President and without expense. For this service, however, Gen. Davis had no legal right to demand more than the sum of fourteen dollars, this the committee consider ample compensation for the services performed by him.

The resolution proposes giving him five hundred as compensation for this service. Under the circumstances, your committee cannot but regard the proposed compensation as a mere gratuity or donation, it not having been based upon any pretended extraordinary or adequate services.

Your committee unhesitatingly express the opinion that the representatives of the people have no right to expend the public money in mere gratuities and favoritism. The money in the public treasury was raised by taxing the people to defray the necessary expenses of the Government. They have a right to demand its economical expenditure and that it shall not be squandered in useless and ostentatious bounties.

For these reasons the committee are unanimously of the opinion, that the proposed resolution should be rejected by the Senate.

In conclusion, the committee respectfully beg leave to call the attention of the Senate to the very large amount which is annually appropriated by the two Houses of the General Assembly, for extra compensation to the officers of these bodies. They regard it as an evil, rapidly increasing, and one which, if not soon arrested, must inevitably lead to an alarming waste of the public money.

(Signed,) B. L. DEFREESE,
Chairman.

Adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.

THURSDAY EVENING, March 9th, 1854.

Recused Cases.

Mr. Hodge moved to take up the bill for the trial of recused cases.

Mr. Hodge—

I move to strike out the exception to the parish of Orleans from the first section, and add it to the second section.

The motion was carried.

On motion of Mr. Hodge, the rules were suspended, and the bill passed.

Relief of W. Gill.

The bill for the relief of W. Gill, of the town of Baton Rouge, was taken up.

Mr. Rivers—

I should like some gentleman to tell us what Mr. Gill has done to entitle him to this relief; and whether every officer of the same kind in every parish will be entitled to the same. I should like to know whether we will have to pay $300 in every parish in the State.

Mr. Lacey—

I will read the law under which the relief is asked. (Reads from the law.) This service has been thrown on him by the law of 1838. For this service the Committee on Claims have thought proper to report this amount. I do not think it is an extraordinary charge, $300 for summoning all the delinquents at militia muster. I move to suspend the rules.

The Senate refused to suspend the rules.

Harbor Masters in New Orleans.

The bill regulating Harbor Masters in New Orleans was taken up.

The section making it imperative that Harbor Masters be sailors at least twelve months prior to their appointment, being under consideration,

Mr. Lacoste objected to the section.

Mr. McCay—

I think the reasons for having that section retained are good ones, and I believe the Senate will sustain me in my opinion. The suggestion was made by a friend of the bill. It sometimes happens that persons are appointed to these offices who know nothing of the duties which they entail, more than they do of the government of Newfoundland. The duties are peculiarly those which a man would be able to understand, and which but seamen would or could understand. Hence the necessity for this provision.

Mr. Hodge—

It occurs to me that the provision is not a very wise one. I heard this very point discussed in the other House yesterday. No doubt the principle enunciated by the Senator from New Orleans is correct, but these are reasons which should influence the Governor in making the appointment. Gov. Hebert would, no doubt, look carefully to the qualifications of the applicant before appointing him to this important and responsible office.

Mr. McCay—

If there is any objection to the section, I will withdraw it.

The section was stricken out, and the bill passed.

Sales of Spirituous Liquors.

The bill to regulate the sale of spirituous liquors was taken up.

Mr. King—

I move to strike out the word "ward."

Mr. Munday moved to lay the motion on the table.

Mr. King—

When gentlemen undertake to interfere with the rights of property they commence to do a very dangerous thing. If I am right in my understanding of the bill, it contemplates letting the people of each ward decide for themselves whether they will permit licenses to be issued within the limits of their respective wards. I am totally opposed to this. It would be an imperium in imperio, and would be productive of all sorts of confusion and irregularity. Instead of having a beneficial effect, it would only make the evil worse. It is necessary that our laws should be uniform in their operation, and regular in their action; we should not have different systems prevailing in different parts of the State. Nor would there be any power to execute such a law. The people would repudiate it, and it could not be enforced. It is absurd to say that in different sections of the State different laws may be in force. By the effect of this legislation, in some wards property might be improved, while in others it might be materially depreciated. If I were in favor of the principle of this bill, I could not consent to its details. If we are to submit the question to the people, let the people of the whole State vote on it together; not as separate communities, but in their aggregate capacities. I consider the proposition of the bill too monstrous to be entertained for a moment.

Mr. Munday—

The Senator is not the only one on this floor. The Senator has rights, and so have others. When I moved to lay his motion on the table, he persisted in speaking, although he was out of order. Now, sir, I also have rights, and I claim that they be respected, though I am from an humble country parish.

Mr. Hodge—

The amendment would kill the bill. Its object is to enable the friends of temperance to take a vote by wards, on the question of licensing the the sale of liquor, and if the people of any ward wish to abolish it, to permit them to do so, in that ward. An election was held on this question not long since in New Orleans. That part of the city above Canal street, I believe voted to abolish the license, but could not do so under the law. This bill gives power to the people in each ward to act on the subject in accordance with the wishes of the majority. That is the way it is managed in the country.

Mr. King.

I do not object to taking a vote of the citizens;

Digitized by Google

but it should be of all the citizens, and not a part. There is still another objection. We have no organization to which to apply such legislation. Suppose we should divide Shreveport, and let the people on each square decide the point—that would be an analogous case. The people of New Orleans should act as a unit on this question. If I should insist on local legislation for any particular parish, I should be told that I have no concern in the matter. The people of New Orleans would be opposed to this method of doing the thing. I am convinced it would be almost unanimously repudiated. I shall oppose it while I can raise my voice.

Mr. Hodge—

I insist on the motion to lay on the table.

Mr. King—

Then I call for the yeas and nays.

The Senate refused to lay on the table, and the amendment was adopted.

Mr. Hodge—

I move a reconsideration. I wish to record my vote. If Senators will only reflect on the subject, I am convinced they will see the injudiciousness of their action. I do not believe a majority is actually in favor of the amendment. The provisions made by the bill for the city of New Orleans, are the same as those for the country. In Shreveport a vote has been taken, and the groggeries have been abolished. But they yet have them on the outskirts of the town. What use would it be to abolish them in one ward, when they are tolerated in the next? We believe, however, if the question were submitted to the people, they would almost everywhere abolish the nuisance, simply because it is one. The other day, the Senator eloquently sustained the principle that the people of New Orleans have a right to vote to levy taxes and issue bonds in favor of private corporations. There is no difference in the principles; they have just as much right to vote on a question of this kind. The gentleman says that this would lead to confusion. If so, the same effect would be produced in the country. If licensing be abolished in one ward, and not in the next, is there not confusion? Then why object on the part of the city?

Mr. King—

I move to lay the motion to reconsider on the table; carried.

Mr. Rivers—

The amendment of the gentleman kills the whole object of the bill. It affects the country parishes as well as the city. It makes no distinction; if it had, I should have no objection to it. I move that the bill be recommitted.

The bill was recommitted.

FRIDAY, March 10th, 1854.

Mr. Lacoste—

I beg leave to call up a bill from the other House, to give additional powers to the Police Jury of the Parish of Orleans, on the right bank of the Mississippi River.

The bill was then taken up and read.

Mr. Moore—

Are there not already acts of the Legislature, giving exclusive privileges to certain parties?

Mr. Lacoste—

I do not think so.

Mr. King—

The ferries are leased out. They are under the contract of the city. I do not believe any one has any exclusive privilege. It is possible, that some persons having leases of ferries, may have vested rights with which we cannot interfere. I would amend the bill by inserting a provision that it shall not interfere with any vested right.

The bill passed.

FREE BANKING.

Mr. Macmurdo called up a bill supplementary to an act to establish a system of Free Banking.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I would ask to have this bill made the special order of the day for to-morrow.

The request of Mr. Macmurdo was agreed to.

NAVIGATION OF RED RIVER.

Mr. Hodge called up the bill for the improvement of the navigation of Red River.

Mr. Hodge—

By reference to the report of the State Engineer, it will be seen that the navigation of Red River is in imminent danger of being ruined by certain obstacles which now impede it. It is probable that the low water navigation, at least, will be entirely destroyed. At the last session the Engineer laid the subject before the Legislature. It is unnecessary for me to explain the manner in which these outlets operate for the destruction of navigation. The effect already produced is very appreciable. In seasons of ordinary water there is enough; but in very low water there is scarcely any at all. This is the case now. There are at present 40,000 bales of Cotton at Shreveport, which are absolutely locked in. Red River is a stream of great length, and drains an extensive country. There are at this moment, along its banks, at least 100,000 bales of Cotton, which ought to have reached market before this. The delay has been a serious inconvenience and injury to the planter. But it is not only the planting interests of North Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas that are affected, but likewise the commercial interests of the city of New Orleans. The effect of there not being enough water in the river is to keep Cotton back, and thus injure those merchants who have made advances to the planters. I ask $5000 to be placed at the disposal of the State Engineer, to enable him to make such improvements as he may deem necessary. I do not ask that they be done by any other than the State Officer, nor that the money be put under the control of any other. Neither do I wish to interfere with him in the performance of the work; he is to do exactly what his investigations may indicate to be necessary. The Chairman of the Finance Committee has told us that the money ought not to be taken from the general funds; that there ought to be a special fund provided by taxation. But the gentleman forgets that revenue bills cannot originate in the Senate. When the subject comes up regularly, I am ready to support any bill for that purpose.

The bill passed.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

An act to amend the act consolidating the city of New Orleans was taken up.

Mr. King—

I move that the bill be referred to a Special Committee, composed of the New Orleans delegation.

The motion was carried.

SALARY OF CLERK OF FIRST DISTRICT COURT.

The bill to increase the salary of the clerk of the First District Court was taken up.

Mr. Rivers—

I move to lay the bill indefinitely on the table, and call for the yeas and nays.

The gentleman afterwards withdrew his motion, and called for the yeas and nays on the passage of the bill.

The vote was yeas 13, nays 14.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I give notice that I shall move a reconsideration to-morrow. I want to give the friends of that bill a chance to vote on it. I do not think it is fair to take advantage of their absence.

THE CLAIM OF J. H. MADDOX.

The bill for the relief of J. H. Maddox was taken up.

Mr. Evans—

As I understand this question, the basis of this claim is this: The State failed, it is asserted, to perform her part of the contract into which she had entered with Mr. Maddox, as Printer of the Convention. A reporter was chosen to report the debates, and he died some time afterwards without having furnished the copy to the printer But I do not see that this involves any default on the part of the State. She has paid Mr. Maddox for all the work he did—she is not responsible for what he did not do. The reporter died—surely the State could not help that.

The bill passed.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

Bill to regulate judicial sales in the Parish of Orleans.

The unfinished business of yesterday, "the bill to regulate judicial sales in the Parish of Orleans," being in order,

Mr. Kenner said—

Mr. President: As, according to parliamentary usage, I have the floor, I shall, after returning thanks to Senators for their courtesy in adjourning for my convenience, proceed to finish the remarks on this subject, which I commenced yesterday. I shall show my gratitude by consuming as little time as possible. In order to elucidate the subject, in some of its aspects, I shall commence by giving a brief sketch of the history of the law of 1852. That law, sir, was framed for no special or partial purpose. It was not made to suit the inclinations of any individual or individuals. It was passed with a view to the interests and wants of the whole commercial public of New Orleans. Those interests and wants demanded the passage of the existing law, and, in accordance with that demand, the law was adopted by the Legislature. I say this in order that it may be understood whence the law emanated, and that before it is repealed we may ask, whether the interests of the commercial portion of the community, and of the property holders of that city require a change. In the few remarks I had prepared, in answer to the figures laid before the Senate by the gentleman from New Orleans, I found myself compelled to take into consideration the question of fees; though some persons, very injudiciously, I think, seem to consider it of no consequence, since the fees are simply, as the result of our legislation, taken from one pockets of one party and put into that of another. The gentleman, in the course of his remarks, said that by a certificate furnished by Mr. Leggett, the confidential book-keeper of Mr. Freret, he learned that the gross receipts of the Sheriff's office from 31st Dec., 1851, to Jan'y 1st., 1853, a space of two years, amounted to $91,429. In addition to this, there are amounts still due and collected, which he presumes will amount to $8,000. I will give the precise language of the gentleman who furnished the certificate. Thus it will be seen that in two years the Sheriff of the Parish of Orleans received $100,000; that is, in round numbers $92,000 in cash, and $8,000 still due. Now, sir, the certificate says that during that time the expenses of the office for salaries of clerks, blanks, stationery, and incidental expenses, amounted to $83,365. This leaves the sum realized in two years $16,000, or the neat little amount of $8,000 per annum. It seems to me, sir, that this is a tolerably good salary. A casual observer, or one unacquainted with the practical workings of the Sheriff's office, would form from this statement but a very indistinct idea of the result. He would imagine this sum to be a moderate compensation. But I would call the attention of every Senator on this floor to one point. What is meant by incidental expenses? What is made by salaries? These are inquiries which a correct understanding of the matter require to be made. Let every Senator reflect, and he will be able to answer for himself. Now, sir, according to the statement which I have just read to the Senate, during two years, the receipts of the Sheriff's office were $100,000, and the expenditures $83,000. I use round numbers, which are as nearly correct as is necessary for the argument. I would ask any reflecting person how such a large sum of money could have been spent in two years. I ask gentlemen acquainted with the practical business of life, to answer this question. Is there a manufactory in the United States, which, after paying the wages of its operators, salaries of clerks, expenses of all kinds, and interest on capital invested, could show a worse condition than that? Is there a planter on this floor whose account makes as bad an exhibit? This absorption of almost all the proceeds of the office in a mass of expenses, must astonish everybody. I ask gentlemen to answer me; what is the cause of this singular result? A very large proportion of the amount expended is devoted, according to the statement to the payment of the salaries of officers. There can be no doubt that the Sheriff has a great many employees, but how much do they actually receive? Then, again, there is a very large sum put down as having been expended for stationery. It will be remembered that when the bill to increase the salary of the Clerk of the first District Court was before the Senate, he said he was compelled to expend a thousand dollars a year for stationery, and the furniture of his office. The gentleman from New Orleans, (Mr King) then laughed at the statement, and derided the idea that any such sum could be required for any such purpose. He even asserted that he could buy everything necessary for $70. How, I ask, have the expenses of the Sheriff's office been run up to this enormous extent? I think, sir, I can explain the anomaly. By the law now, every officer in this State who receives fees exceeding $4,000 per annum, is compelled to pay a certain proportion into the Treasury. That is to say, of the excess over $4,000, one-third goes into the Treasury, and two-thirds remains in the pocket of the recipient. When the Sheriff sees the large receipts of his office, the $100,000 in two years, he naturally thinks that it would be advisable to devise some means to save the one-third of the excess over $4,000, which he would be compelled to pay to the State. For this purpose he endeavors to increase his returns of expenses. He therefore increases the number of his deputies. He appoints his friends and political favorites, and by professing to pay them high salaries, he manages to show a large sum expended. But, sir, the State is not responsible for this. The State should not suffer a person to take advantage of an exhibit of this kind, made in this way, to procure an increase of his already exorbitant receipts. The Sheriff of the Parish of Orleans has the best salaried office in the gift of the people. In my opinion he is not only well paid, but twice paid. There is no country in the world, not even in tax-ridden and aristocratic England, where public officers are better paid than in Louisiana, and even here the receipts of this office are double those of any other known in the State. Let me go a little into the history of the legislation in regard to the office of Sheriff. At one time he office of Sheriff of the Parish of Orleans was considered so valuable that a law passed to divide it into six parts; that is, there were six Sheriffs for the Parish of Orleans. Why was this done? The reason is plain. The receipts of the office were so great that they were considered much too large to go into the pocket of one man. It was seen that so much money should not be lavished on one person, and it was wisely considered that the possession and use by a public officer would almost inevitably be productive of evil consequences—that it would encourage corruption, and place too much power and influence in the hands of the recipient. They thought it improper that a man should be made rich in one or two years. Yes, richer than men become by long years of constant toil and honest labor. They thought it anti-republican, and contrary to the spirit of our institutions. They therefore divided the office into six; they made six Sheriffs. This proceeding did not cause so much clamor as we have lately heard. It was not said that the offices were not worth seeking. On the contrary, great efforts were made to get them, and we may depend upon it that people would not have exhibited such eagerness in the pursuit of unprofitable offices. On the contrary, they were even then considered the best offices in the State. What must the office be worth now, when it includes all six? Can we believe that it is less valuable, notwithstanding the increase of commerce and of population, and the consequent increase of litigation? I maintain that if in 1830 the office was worth $30,000, it must be worth at least $60,000 in 1853 The business of the city has doubled, its population and its litigation have more than doubled; can it be supposed, then, that the value of the Sheriff's office has not proportionably increased? I contend that the certificate read to us by the gentleman from New Orleans does not show properly what goes on in that office. It carries on its face its own condemnation. I do not know Mr. Leggett. I have no doubt he is a worthy and honorable man. He was, I believe, employed by Mr. Freret as a confidential book-keeper, and has since been employed by Mr. Marigny in the same capacity. He is at this moment one of the Sheriff's deputies, and I therefore believe him to be honest. His being employed in so responsible a station is prima facie evidence of his integrity. Therefore I do not intend to impugn Mr. Leggett's character for veracity. No one but an honest man should hold the position which he occupies. But I state facts which I have heard. I am told, sir, that after that certificate was made out, Mr. Marigny called on Mr. Freret and asked him to sign it. Mr. Freret refused, sir, to sign it. He said that he could not testify to its correctness.

Mr. McCay—

Does the gentleman mean to say that Mr. Freret refused to sign the certificate on the ground that it was not correct?

Mr. Kenner—

I find this on the certificate.

I knew the fact that the certificate was sent here. I asked the question—Did Mr. Freret sign this certificate? The answer was that he did not, because he did not know whether it was correct or not, and consequently could not sign it. I do not say that he positively declared it to be incorrect, but he did say that he did not know whether it was correct or not, and therefore he could not sign it. That is what I said, and that is what I repeat now But I care not an iota whether this certificate is correct or not. It bears on its face that it is not, at least, a full and fair statement. Here is a certificate from S. Guinault. He says that the amount of his sales, under orders of Court, was, during the year 18.3, $125,854 39. Here, sir, is another from Norbert Vigne, who states that the amount of their sales during the same time was over $275,000. The next is from one of the most popular auction firms in the city; the one which, probably, does the largest business. I mean Messrs. Beard & May The amount of their sales under orders of Court was $823,436 49. Thus we find that three auction houses in New Orleans, sold last year, under orders of Court, property to the amount of $1,294,290 88 Now, sir, I believe there are twenty five auctioneers in New Orleans. If I am mistaken in the number I hope some gentleman will correct me. We have certificates from three out of these twenty-five, and we learn, as I have said, that the aggregate amount sold by those three last year was over one million two hundred thousand dollars. All the others together may reasonably be supposed to sell at least four hundred thousand dollars worth. The estimate is not large. It may be rather below than above the mark. Let us see what the fees would amount to on the aggregate amount, say in round numbers, one million six hundred thousand dollars. The gentleman himself has made an estimate. I am willing to take his estimate as the basis of mine. He says that the average rate of fees is three-fourths of one per cent. I will take that as a basis. At that rate—that is to say calculating three-quarters of one per cent. on one million six hundred and twenty-four thousand dollars—we have more than $12,000 as the amount of fees received for sales of property under orders of Court. I think the calculation is correct. So it appears that in addition to the $50,000 which the Sheriff already receives, you wish to give him $12,000 per annum more. There is another consideration which induces the belief that there will, this year, be a great increase in the amount of fees, consequent on an increase in the amount of property sold, which is reasonably to be anticipated. I do not wish to harrow the feelings of any man within the sound of my voice, by referring to the mournful visitation of last year. I have no desire to recall to mind the distress—the anxiety—which pervaded the community. I do not desire to bring up painful memories, but, sir, this is a practical subject, and it must be viewed in a practical light. Last year was one of unusual mortality. A vast number of persons died in the city of New Orleans, and there were probably many more successions than usual to be opened. The sales of property, under orders of Court, will probably exceed those of 1853 so much as to raise the fees to at least $15,000. This is the additional amount which the friends of the bill wish to place in the pocket of the Sheriff. Is the Legislature prepared to do this? Is the Senate ready to make this vast addition to the already enormous receipts of the Sheriff of the Parish of Orleans? I do not think so; I cannot think so. The injustice would be too palpable; the danger too manifest. I state, sir, unequivocally, and positively, that the question of fees, is an important part of this subject. But important as it is, it does not form the principal objection which I have to the proposed change. If I did not think the interests of the public would be injured; if I did not think it would be unjust, and detrimental to those interests which it is our duty to protect, I would not feel myself called on to make so strenuous an opposition. I do not know any of the auctioneers, personally, except Mr Sykes—that is to say, I do not know any of them except as acquaintances. With the auctioneer who does the largest business, I have merely a speaking acquaintance. I never conversed with him before last week, except on matters of business. The way in which the bill will effect the Sheriff or the auctioneers, is not the principal objection with me, by any means The question, how will the interests of the public be affected? will they be injured, or benefited? That is the point from which to view the subject. It now becomes necessary, Mr. President, for me to correct one or two misapprehensions under which the gentleman from New Orleans seems to labor. We have been led to believe, by remarks which have fallen from gentlemen on the other side, that auctioneers may commit fraud in matters of this kind. Indeed, certain frauds have been alluded to, and the inference drawn therefrom that there is a power in the hands of the auctioneer to commit frauds. I do not understand that fraud has been charged specifically on any auctioneer; but simply the ground has been taken that there is room for it. Now, let us see what is the course of business in affairs of this kind. When a minor is interested, a family meeting is called, and an administrator is appointed; and how is this done? Certain persons apply for the administration of the estate. What steps are taken then? An announcement is made in the newspaper that a certain man has applied. If no opposition be made to his appointment, then letters of administration are issued by the Clerk.

Mr. McCay—

By the Judge.

Mr. Kenner—

I address myself to certain Senators whose minds have been specially directed to this part of the subject. The law directs the Court to appoint whom? Why, the heir at law; and if there be none, then the nearest of kin. If there be none such, then the person most immediately interested is to be appointed. When the property is to be sold, the administrator calls a family meeting. Those persons interested in the affairs of the minor elect the auctioneer who is to make the sale. And what does the auctioneer do? Why, he simply cries the property from his stand, and gets the highest price for it he can. And when it is sold, where does the money go? Into the hands of the auctioneer? By no means. It is first paid over to the notary before whom the acts are drawn, and is, by him, handed to the administrator. What room is there here for fraud? We have been told that the auctioneer could put the money in his pocket and run off. This statement has, doubtless, made an impression on the minds of some Senators. But it is ill founded; and in fact has no foundation at all. A case has been alluded to, in which it was said there was collusion between the administrator and the auctioneer. But that was the result of dishonesty of the administrator. The auctioneer could have done nothing without him. But one rock would not make a land barren. If a person should come into my field and see a single weed, where all the rest was flourishing, he would not be justified in saying that my system of agriculture was bad. But it is natural to some men to be rascals. The good Book says it is as natural for man to be rascally as it is for sparks to fly upward. We are here in a state of probation, and if rascals are to be found in the world, it is by no means astonishing.

There are several other points on which I wished to touch, in the course of my remarks, but I do not wish to monopolize the floor to such an extent as to give no other gentleman a chance to speak. There is, however, one point to which I shall advert. It has been said that there was a time when the law threw the succession sales into the hands of the Sheriff. It happened that at that time several large successions were opened General Lewis was at that time Sheriff. The parties interested went to him and paid him the commissions to which he became entitled by law, and then went to an auctioneer, and paid him also, to sell the property, knowing that a much higher price would thus be obtained for it. They wanted to have justice done, and they knew it would not be done at a Sheriff's sale, however well disposed the Sheriff might have been. I know that it was the case with more than one estate that the fees were paid twice.

Mr. McCay—

Do I understand the gentleman to say that the certificate was presented to Mr. Freret, and he refused to sign it on the ground that it was incorrect?

Mr. Kenner—

I said that Mr. Freret refused to sign it because he did not know anything about it.

Mr. McCay—

The facts are these: Mr. Marigny went to Mr. Freret in relation to this subject, and that gentleman referred him to Mr. Leggett, who wrote the certificate which has been presented here. Mr. Marigny took that certificate to Mr. Freret, but he did not examine it, as he said that he knew nothing about it; that it was doubtless correct, as Mr. Leggett knew all about the matter. There is another point which the gentleman makes. He says that the Sheriff received during his two years' term of office $100,000, including $8,000 still due. In this view he excluded expenses. It must be remembered that the Sheriff has 30 deputies, to whom he pays $36,000 per annum. There are on an average, 200 prisoners in the parish prison, whom he has to support. Suppose they cost at the rate of twenty-five cents a day—that makes for the whole, $50 a day, or about $20,000 a year Thus we see that the expenses of the Sheriff's office amount to $56,000 per annum, for these two items alone. Then the Sheriff frequently expends money for the protection of property, and never gets it back again. He is compelled to spend in necessary expenses at least $83,000 per annum, and the incidental expenses may add a considerable sum.

Mr. Kenner—

I will state that I think the money made by the Sheriff from prisoners is much more than the expense of supporting them.

Mr. McCay—

Very true; but the receipts from that source are included in the $100,000

Mr. Ryan—

It was, perhaps, my misfortune, when the original bill, for which the bill now before the Senate is a substitute, was introduced by the Honorable Senator from New Orleans, (Mr. McCay) to differ in opinion concerning it, with a large majority of those with whom I usually act on questions which come before this Senate for its consideration When that was laid before the Senate I took occasion to present a few crude and undigested remarks on the subject. They were suggested to my mind at the moment, and were not the result of any previous reflection. From the very beginning I had doubts as to the propriety of the bill. They were excited the moment I heard it read, and found expression in the remarks which I then addressed to the Senate. I had heard the debates pro and con, and I must here proclaim that the opinions I first formed have not been shaken. However much it may have been my misfortune to differ with my political friends on this question, yet I feel a sentiment of pride pervade my mind, when I reflect that some of those very gentlemen who at first lent so strenuous a support to the original bill, declared yesterday, by their votes to lay it upon the table, that my opposition was well founded.

When the bill was first presented to the Senate, the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, in his eloquent and flowing style, extolled it to the skies, and assured us that it was without defect; that not a spot or blemish marred its fair proportion.

The Senator from New Orleans, who introduced the bill, sustained it with all the power of his acute and vigorous mind, and brought to bear in its support all the resources of his powerful intellect. The strong arm and close logical faculties of the Chairman of the Internal Improvement Committee, were also enlisted in its behalf. But notwithstanding the strong array of intellect, eloquence, and logic brought to bear on the subject by those learned gentlemen, I found on reading the bill that it contained something to which I could not yield assent—something anti-democratic, and constituting what I considered to be an odious monopoly. I feel myself impelled by a sense of duty as a Democratic Senator, professing to be guided by principle, to raise my voice against it I did so, and endeavored, to the best of my abilities, to show the demerits of the bill, and the reasons which induced me to oppose its passage.

Weeks have rolled by since the bill was introduced. It has been referred to a special committee, and was yesterday again placed before the Senate. These gentlemen, who at first were so loud in their praise—who declared that the passage of that particular bill was necessary to the interests of their constituents—have testified by their votes that my opposition was right. The bill was yesterday rejected. After mature consideration, and copious debate, it was laid on the table by the votes of those very gentlemen. How, then, can we believe in their infallibility? How can we attach any credit to their views, or give any weight to their opinions when they tell us that the substitute is a perfect bill? When the original bill, which they declared to be, in all respects perfect, was thrust from before the Senate by their own vote, how can we believe them when they lavish the same encomiums on the substitute proposed by the gentleman from New Orleans?, (Mr. McCay) the very gentleman who introduced the original bill. It may be true that the substitute is a good bill; it may be true that it is such a bill as will be acceptable to the Senate, but we must have something more than their word for proof of the fact—we must have something more than their recommendation as a guarantee. They said the original was a perfect bill; but by their votes they have confessed it is not. Consistency, sir, is a jewel Had I been in favor of the original bill; had I bestowed on it the lavish praises which fell from the lips of the gentleman from New Orleans, I would never have abandoned it; I would never by my vote have contradicted my own words I would have stood or fallen by the bill. The result, thus far, proves conclusively that these gentlemen either erred in their judgment at first, in which case they have no right to claim infallibility now; or they have endeavored by a mere change of expression to inveigle Senators from a position adverse to the bill. I contend, sir, that there is no material difference between the two bills—certainly no such difference as could induce a change of position in relation to it. I would vote for the one just as readily as I would for the other. In order to show that I am right I shall call for the reading of the substitute.

(The Secretary read the substitute.)

I remarked, sir, when I called for the reading of the substitute, that there was no material difference between it and the original bill. Let us examine it and see whether my assertion is justified by the facts. The bill, as originally brought forward, gave to the Sheriff the right to make all Succession Sales. The substitute professes, I believe, to present some material point of difference. What exception does it make? Is there really any? I must say, sir, that whatever there is, exists rather in the imagination of the gentlemen than in the substitute itself. The only exception it makes is in regard to the property of majors. But that of absentees and minors is to be disposed of as provided by the original bill. The Sheriff is to have the sale of all Then to what in reality does the exception amount? Let me remind Senators that there is no necessity for majors to invoke the the sale of successions of which they may be the the heirs There is an article of Code which provides that a partitition may be made by themselves. They are not compelled to go into Court. They can make a partition by themselves, without invoking a sale of the succession This is what is known in law as a voluntary partition, contradistinguished from a judicial partition. There is, therefore, no material difference between the original and the substitute. The only exception is made in a case which was already excepted. If there is any Senator here who could not support the original, he cannot consistently raise his voice in favor of the substitute. I have shown, I repeat it, sir, that there is no real difference between them. As I have said, the only exception is one in which no judicial action need be invoked: that is in a case in which a voluntary partition is provided for by the Code. I say again, sir, there is no difference. I am astonished that gentlemen possessing the legal attainments of those who advocated the other side of this question, should endeavor to persuade us that there is any difference between the two bills which can at all affect the objections urged against it. They may succeed in captivating some who do not reflect, or who will not examine, but their position will not stand the test of common sense. It is idle for them to tell us there is any difference, when any one that knows anything of laws can see plainly enough that there is none. As you by your votes yesterday testified that the original was wrong, as you have thereby retracted all you said in its favor, as you have confessed it to be unworthy your support, and as I have shown that the substitute does not differ from it in any material point, I call on you to record your votes against that substitute also. Consistency demands this of you. If the original is wrong, the substitute is wrong, for there is no difference between them. Let a regard for consistency of conduct guide your action in reference to this matter. By your votes you have rejected the original; by your votes reject the substitute also.

I shall now endeavor to present an answer to some of the arguments which the gentleman from New Orleans (Mr. McCay,) addressed to the Senate in his argument yesterday. And here I will remark that the few points raised by him have no power to sway my mind, or, I believe, that of a single Senator on this floor. What, sir, let me ask, is his position? He stated, sir, that this was not a party question; he disclaimed any party bias in this matter. For that, sir, I commend him. Heaven forbid that a question of this kind should ever be made the basis of political action. Nothing of that kind is involved in the issue, and I am glad that the Senator has repudiated it, as I repudiated it. It is a simple question of right and justice. The only point for us to decide is, whether it is a good or a bad law. That is the only aspect in which the case should present itself to a Senator of Louisiana. No party bias sways my mind; no party bias should sway the mind of any Senator on this floor. Now, sir, let us see whether the arguments advanced by the gentleman from New Orleans, in support of this bill, have any foundation in law or logic. And here let me state that I did not intend to offer any further remarks on this subject, much less to make a speech on it; nor would I have said anything had not the Senator from New Orleans, yesterday, repeatedly addressed himself to the Senator from Rapides and Avoyelles. Well, sir, in the course of his argument he told us that the substitute now before the Senate, was intended to apply only to little children—to those helpless beings, who incapable of protecting themselves, are thrown on the protection of the law. Let me remind the gentleman that children are not empowered to make any contract. They are minors and cannot perform a legal act. But majors stand in their shoes, if I may use the expression. By a fiction of the law minors become majors by representation. They are majors by being represented by their tutors. Gentlemen may smile, but every lawyer knows this to be true. I make the assertion as a lawyer, without fear of successful contradiction. I say that minors become majors by representation. The act of the tutor is, when done legally, regarded as the act of the minor. Therefore, minors are in such cases, to all intents and purposes, majors. Again, the gentleman says that auctioneers are not sworn officers, that they are the only officers not sworn through whose hands property passes by judicial process. I would call the attention of Senators to the answer of this proposition. It is almost useless for me to say, in the first place, that the word officer is derived from the Latin officium, a duty. The gentleman says that the auctioneer is not an officer of Court. I take issue with him on that proposition. He is authorized by law to make sales of property under certain conditions. The moment he is ordered by the Court to make the sale, he becomes officer ad hoc negotium, for that time, an officer of Court. He becomes amenable to the rules of the Court, and liable for the lawful performance of his duty.

Let me cite an instance by way of illustrating this principle. Suppose I apply to a Court to grant a commission to take testimony in another State—in Kentucky, Texas or Ohio. If I state the name of the individual, and he is a magistrate capable of taking testimony, the moment the order is issued he becomes an officer of Court without any certificate of the Governor or even his seal. But if I do not name the particular individual, it is necessary for the Governor of the State to certify that he was at the time a Justice of the Peace. Thus we see that a person in Kentucky or any other State, may for some specific purpose be made an officer of Court. And now let me ask the gentleman if the Sheriff is an officer of Court, to make sales judicial, unless he is appointed like an auctioneer. Parties may ask that the Sheriff be appointed to make their sales, instead of an auctioneer; if they choose, and he is not an officer for that business till he receives the order any more than an auctioneer. Let me ask gentlemen to have some respect for ordinary intelligence. Let them not presume that the country has sent Senators here incapable of judging on ordinary questions, or of detecting a plain fallacy. Do not delude yourselves with any such idea. We do not claim to be distinguished by the eloquence, the ability, or the learning which characterize some Senators, but we do claim that respect which is due even to a weak and feeble intellect. We do not plume ourselves on the brilliancy of our rhetoric, the elegance of our elocution, or the profoundness of our logic: we may be rough in our expressions and oratory, but we claim to have at least common sense, and common judgment. Do not then propose a bill such as this, which must shock the ordinary intelligence of ordinary individuals.

I pass now, sir, to some other objections which were urged by the gentleman to the present system of disposing of property at judicial sales. He told us that he knows of one case, and he cited the instance, in which property was sold at an enormous sacrifice. He insinuated that these auctioneers, by collusion with dishonest administrators, may make such bargains as they please. I will not admit, even for the sake of argument, that all administrators are necessarily dishonest. I believe they will generally guard faithfully the rights of those entrusted to their care. But permit me to tell you that auctioneers cannot dispose of property at judicial sales in any manner they please, and for what price they please. Sworn appraisers are always appointed to estimate the value of the property, so as to protect the parties interested from the possibility of being defrauded in this way. Property worth a thousand dollars cannot be sold for fifty or a hundred dollars, as the gentleman would lead us to infer. There must in every case be appraisers, and these appraisers are sworn to perform their duties properly. I for one, cannot be confounded by such ad captandum arguments. They may confuse some, but they cannot lead astray the discriminating or reflecting. Thus that objection falls. Touched by the word of reason and truth it dissolves into the air.

Much, during the course of the debates on this question has been said in relation to fees. For my part I have never attached much importance to that branch of the subject. What this person or that receives or would receive, is not the question. The point before us is, as I have before remarked, would this be a good law? Would it be an improvement on the existing system? Or would it, on the contrary, be productive of injurious consequences—unjust in its operations and evil in its results? It matters not to me if the present Sheriff of New Orleans is worth a million. I care not whether he is rich or poor. That does not present itself to my mind as a point in the investigation. Mr. Marigey has recently been elected Sheriff. He found the office as he sought it. If it is not as profitable as he thought it would be, we can condole him, but we cannot do an injustice to serve him. Let me now come back to the question—what benefit is to be derived from this law? Will it be a panacea for all the evils which gentlemen may see in the present system? Will it make all Tutors, Curators and Administrators faithful and honest? I do not believe it will. Dishonest Administrators will be dishonest still; dishonest Tutors will remain dishonest.

But on the contrary, it will create an odious, tyranical and an oppressive monopoly. We might as well pass a law compelling all the planters in the State to send their sugar and cotton to one house, as take away from those persons the right of selling their property as they please. I find in the proposition something so radically anti-Democratic that I cannot and will not support it. I do not use the term Democratic in its party sense, but the sense of Republican right and justice. I use it in the sense which has made this nation a wonder on the earth, a great and mighty commonwealth; a structure formed on the wisdom and valor of sages, and patriots, and heroes—which has made our country like a tree watered by the blood of our fathers, springing up into a vigorous life, spreading its protecting branches far and wide, and collecting under its ample and beneficient shade the children of every clime beneath the sun It is the mighty oak giving protection and shelter to the innumerable plants which twine and cluster round it. In such a sense I have used the word; not in that modern sense which restricts it to half its true meaning. And I say again that the bill, in this sense, contains a principle which is anti-Democratic and repugnant to all our ideas of republican justice. I am glad, sir, that the gentleman has disclaimed party notions in this matter. If there are any such involved in this question, I can say for one, that I have risen above them. I am gratified also that Senators who first brought this matter forward, have testified by their votes to the justice of my opposition. I am glad they have recorded their votes in favor of my position; that they have virtually said I was right when I took ground against the original bill. I have opposed it from the beginning—I shall continue to oppose it, fearless of all consequences, so long as I have right and justice on my side.

Mr. Lacey—

I should certainly do violence to my feelings did I not express the admiration which I entertain for the candor and evident sincerity of the honorable gentleman from Rapides, who has just addressed the Senate. I am willing to concede to all the opponents of the bill, at least as much honesty as animates its supporters. If it affords the gentleman any pleasure to know that he has overcome our original bill, I am willing to let him enjoy it. I would not disturb him in that pleasure, since it seems to yield him so much satisfaction. It is scarcely necessary for me to repeat that man is not infallible, even when he becomes a Senator. That quality belongs to God alone. I may have changed my views. If it affords the gentleman any pleasure to believe that my opinions have undergone a change in order to conform to his, let him so believe. But there has been no actual change. I have not altered my opinions as to the propriety of that bill; but the conflicting views which have been expressed by Senators, the conflicting, and apparently irreconcileable opinions which have been uttered in the course of debate on the subject, have induced me, for the sake of compromise and conciliation, to make such modifications as I thought might secure the support of the Senate. To this desire, and no change of opinion as to the intrinsic merits of the measure, is my course on this question to be attributed. I trust, you Gentlemen, Senators of Louisiana, will disregard any merely technical rules, or rather not insist on them, and thus suffer us to bring up the substitute. I do not intend now to discuss this matter at length; more especially since it has already been subjected to such elaborate examination. But I desire to shew that my course is not influenced by partisan feelings. What, sir, was the original bill? It contemplated giving to the Sheriff the power to make all sales of property under judicial process What was my ground in reference to that proposition? Why, sir, that from the position of the Sheriff, from the fact that he would select but one paper to give notice in, which would be generally known as selected for that purpose, greater publicity for the sale would be secured. It being known that a particular, whichever it might happen to be, had been chosen for that purpose, its circulation would be correspondingly extended; the public eye would be more easily and certainly directed to the notice, and thus the object in view would be accomplished with more certainty and effect than by auctioneers, who give their advertisements to many different papers, and thus render it difficult to find them. Another reason is, that the auctioneer might delay to return the Title Deeds to the proper officer, and thus the security of the title might be endangered. The Sheriff, on the contrary, gives a title himself, and makes his returns with promptitude and despatch, and thus renders the title more secure. Again, under the present system, there is room for fraud. I do not say that fraud is committed. I have as much confidence in auctioneers as in any other class of the community; I have no reason to doubt that they are perfectly honest. But the system leaves room for fraud. When the Senator from New Orleans stated the fact, as confirmed by instances which had actually occurred, the Senator from Ascension ingeniously replied, that, "Why that was not an honest administrator—it was his fault, not the fault of the law" Why, sir, that is the very thing we wish to remedy The same thing may occur again and again; or as long as dishonest administrators can be found. We want to secure the minor from the danger of being defrauded by a dishonest administrator. What was the first objection to the original bill? Why that it was a monopoly in itself The Senator from Rapides has shown that there is no force in that. Then it was said that the Notaries would be deprived of a large amount of patronage. We have remedied that by permitting the parties to select their own Notary. Then it was said that the rights of liberty and equality were violated by the bill. Let us leave to majors that great, inalienable American privilege of selecting the person who is to make the sales. This is likewise effected by the substitute—it gives to majors that glorious privilege, the contemplation of which, so made your bosoms expand with patriotism. But why thrust it on minors? They should have the eye of the Court upon their interests. They should not be forced from its maservative view, and left entirely at the mercy of a tutor and an auctioneer. It would be unnecessary, and indeed a work of supererogation for me to repeat here the views which I have already expressed. The point to which I wish to attract the attention of honorable Senators, is, that parliamentary rule which may prevent our taking up the substitute, which I think will prove acceptable to Senators. Yet suffering it to come up does not prove that it will be adopted. If I am wrong in what I am about to say, I hope Senators will correct me The original was introduced some time since. A substitute was afterwards offered. A motion was made to lay the original bill on the table, and was carried. It was a motion made conscientiously, no doubt, by a gentleman who thinks the bill ought to be defeated, and that it is his duty to defeat it. A motion was then made to indefinitely postpone the substitute. What is the effect of that? If it be carried, everything goes to the ground. The substitute, which the Senator from East Feliciana wishes to offer, will not be heard—the ear of the Senate will be turned away. I hope the Senate does not desire to turn from the consideration of the substitute. What therefore should we do? We should vote against the motion of the Senator from Ascension, in order that the Senator from East Feliciana may be enabled to offer the substitute, which he wishes o offer for the substitute of the Senator from New Orleans (Mr. McCay) I make the statement in order to relieve the minds of Senators who are opposed to the original bill, and the substitute now before the Senate.

Mr. Trudeau—

I call the gentleman to order—there is only one substitute before the Senate, and that is the one offered by the Senator from New Orleans.

Mr. Lacey—

I wish to bring the whole state of the case before the Senate. I have not changed my views an iota, yet I am willing to go with you to take up the substitute of the Senator from East Feliciana, and to consider it. Some gentlemen have thought that to vote against the motion of the Senator from Ascension would be to commit themselves to the substitute of the Senator from New Orleans. This is an error. It will only give us a chance to bring up the substitute of the Senator from East Feliciana. The gentleman from Ascension, who has done such full justice to his side of the question, will not, I think, persist in preventing the consideration of the additional substitute. I ask Senators to go with me on this point. Let us bring everything before the eye of the Senate; let us have an opportunity to consider all the plans. I vote against the motion of the Senator from Ascension, not with a view of passing the substitute of the Senator from New Orleans, but with a view of bringing up the other substitute. I repeat again, that in this matter I am not influenced by party motives; I believe the proposed change is right. But as I don't believe the bill now before the Senate can secure a majority of votes, I shall not insist on that; but I do not like to see the other bill strangled in embryo; before it has even seen the light of day; before we have even been able to examine its features.

Mr. Trudeau—

After the elaborate and able argument of the Senator from Ascension (Mr. Kenner,) and the Senator from New Orleans (Mr. McCay,) it might appear presumptious for me to say anything on a subject which has already been so thoroughly expounded. I shall, therefore, confine the remarks I am about to offer to a few local points I have endeavored to take down a few notes of the argument of the gentleman who last addressed the Senate; and I think it will not be found difficult to answer them. His first argument is this—that under the bill, greater publicity will be insured to notices of sales because the advertisement will be placed in a single paper. This statement makes me believe that this is the tendency of the very objects of the bill—that all sales shall be made by an officer, and all notices published one paper. Why not then pass a bill commanding this at once? Why make any concealment? But I ask Senators whether they really think that the greater publicity is insured by publishing in one paper than publishing in ten. When we wish to give great publicity to anything, we publish it in as many papers as we can Then the gentleman says that titles will not be as well recorded by Notaries as by the Sheriff. I think with the Senator from Rapides, that the gentleman must think us very simple if he expects us to believe that. What! Does he mean to tell us that work done by one hundred will not be accomplished as quickly as if done by one? These two, I think, comprise all the arguments of the Senator on the merits of the bill. The rest of his remarks refer to questions of order. I shall now make a short examination of the questions of law raised by the gentleman from New Orleans. I should like that gentleman to publish his views in a book, entitled the Metaphysics of Law, for the instruction of the Senate of Louisiana. The gentleman has seen fit to enter into a justification of his course in favor of the bill. There was no necessity for him to do so. I have no doubt that he has been along animated by sincere and honest purposes. He has admitted, that by the original bill, the heirs, if of age, could choose the person to make the sale. With this admission I am satisfied. It shows that there is no difference between the original and the substitute. If the original is bad the substitute is bad. If we should lay one on the table we should lay the other on the table. The gentleman also told us that when minors and heirs of age were interested, the heirs of age could have their property sold by any one they please, and the minors by the Sheriff. Am I right in this?

Mr. McCay—Yes.

Mr. Trudeau — I had hoped I was wrong. The gentleman should know that estates cannot be sold by different officers, even when different parties are interested. I come now to the remarkable case of property worth $8000, sold for $2500. The gentleman told us the name of the administrator was stated on the record. The gentleman, perhaps, is not acquainted with the way in which these things sometimes happen. I have had some experience, and can inform him. It is often the case, that when property is sold, the parties interested tell the auctioneer that the property must not be disposed of for less than a particular sum. When the time of sale comes, and there happens to be no bidder, the property is struck off to a fictitious person. It might have been such a case the gentleman has heard of. But, I am willing to admit it was not such a case. But when the property has been pushed up to $8000, and then withdrawn by the administrator, the party has a right of action against him If he says he has not, just show him the law. Not a lawyer in the State will contradict that.

Mr. McCay—

There was no adjudication of the property at the first two sales; but the Senator knows very well that no action can lie in such a case; but he acknowledges that the only way he can account for the circumstance, is on the supposition that it was a fictitious sale, and that the administrator had limited it by order to a certain sum.

Mr. Trudeau—

The gentleman may be a good lawyer and have much experience; but I can say that I studied law in Philadelphia, and three years in New Orleans with Janin, and I think my opinion on a question of this kind is as good as that of the gentleman on the other side. I say that when property has been run up to $8000, and is then withdrawn, a right of action does lie. That is my opinion, and I am willing it should stand on the records of the Senate. I should like to see the difference between the opinion the gentleman might give as a lawyer and as a Senator. The gentleman says the Sheriff takes an oath. An oath does not not make an honest man. A learned commentator says, that a crop of oaths may be equivalent to a crop of perjuries. Honesty lies in the heart, not in the oath a man may take. The auctioneer affords greater security than the Sheriff For any sale of real estate, or slaves, he never receives a dollar. He sends a copy of the proces verbal of the adjudication, and sends them to the Court and the Notary. The money is likewise received by the Notary. The gentleman must have had some practice, and probably knows how such things are done. When a person buys a house the auctioneer does not give a title, that is done by the Notary. The same is the case with other sales. There is still another point. It has been said that the auctioneer is not an officer of Court, and is therefore not responsible. I have seen an auctioneer brought into Court to show in what manner he had discharged his duty. If there is any authority to show that he cannot be held responsible, I should like to see it, and then I will yield the point. But till then I shall persist in maintaining that the auctioneer is ad hoc an officer of Court, and can be brought before the Court, and forced to show in what manner he has performed his duties.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Before voting, I wish to make a remark. My position with reference to the original bill, and the substitute of the Senator from New Orleans is well known. I shall, however, vote "no" on the motion of the Senator from Ascension, with a view of bringing up the substitute of the Senator from East Feliciana. I may vote for that substitute, and I may vote against it. If my vote appears "no" on the record, it is with the view I have explained.

FRIDAY EVENING, March 10th, 1854.

EVENING SESSION.

Bill for the relief of William Gill.

Mr. Martel—

The Committee on the Militia have examined this case and have come to the conclusion that it is a just claim. They have therefore framed the bill just read. I will read the law under which these services were rendered. (Mr Martel here read from the law.) The law which I have just read explains itself. The law, as will be observed, imposed the duty on the claimant, who at that time held the office of Justice of the Peace, and likewise says it must be done at the expense of the State.

Mr. De Russy—

Whether the expenses of imprisonment merely, be paid by the State is nothing. It is a question simply of equity and justice. This Mr. Gill was called on to try these persons, who were absent from their duties. Many would not pay, and he was consequently compelled to send them to jail. For this he presented a claim of $7 0, which is reduced to $315. He presents lists of names, showing the number of cases tried before him, and the number of persons he had sent to jail. If there ever was a just claim this is one. The law said distinctly that if a person refused to pay he should be imprisoned at the expense of the State, The fees of the Judge to be paid by the State. This is a very small demand. The claimant has performed the duties imposed upon him by law, faithfully and efficiently, and he ought to be paid.

Mr. King—

The numerous assaults made on our treasury are calculated to fill us with alarm. They may be small shots, but a great many will tell in the end. Gentlemen may think this a good and just claim; I do not. The law contemplated that the prisoners should pay the costs, and gave the extraordinary remedy of imprisonment in case of refusal. (Mr. King here read from the law.) It thus appears that these persons are to be kept in jail at the expense of the State, but the State is not to pay all of the fees. Why, sir, if the State were liable in all cases of this kind, it would take $100,000 to pay all the claims that would be presented. In the city of New Orleans there are a vast number of cases of a similar nature, and a large bill might be presented from there. It would create great dissatisfaction if we were to commence to pay these claims, which at any rate are founded on a law which the people have repudiated. It will be remembered that some years since an attempt was made to force the people to do militia duty in much the same way. We all know how it was received and what success it met with.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Munday—

The Senator from Natchitoches has told us that it is a small claim. I do not see how that affects the merits of the question. A small claim should be subjected to the same rigid scrutiny as a large one. That it is a small claim is with me no argument in its favor. Yet small as this one may be, by itself, it is the entering wedge for a large number of other claims of a similar character, which in the aggregate would amount to a large sum. There eight of these magistrates in every Parish of the State. When we calculate the gallant commanders of divisions, brigades, and regiments; the subordinate officers; and the privates, it will be seen that there must be thousands of just such cases as this. I therefore cannot believe that it was the intention of the law that the fees should be paid by the State. Gentlemen say that the costs have not been calculated. When a person goes to jail for a cause of this kind, it is supposed that he is insolvent, and then the State pays the costs of the jail. This may be a small sum, and as we are near the end of the session, its payment may not be immediately followed by the presentation of other claims of a like nature. But at the next session they will certainly come pouring in, and how can we refuse to pay them, if we set this precedent? The Legislature of 1834 was, I have no doubt, as intelligent a Legislature as this one. This one, I am confident, would not pass such a law. I take it for granted these persons were not insolvent, and they should have been made to pay. It is not proved that there was a single instance of imprisonment.

Mr. Martel—

I am not disposed to make a long speech at the expense of the Senate on this or any other subject. But I have heard the discussion of claims for $15,000, even $50,000, and have seen gentlemen rise in their seats and say that persons were entitled not only to their regular salaries, and to payment for work actually performed, but even for work which might have been done, and profits which might have been made. When I hear gentlemen advocating the payment of thousands of dollars for the printing of ten or twelve bits of paper, and then raise their voices in opposition to the claim of a person who comes before them with clean hands, and asks payment for work really done. I must say that I am astonished. Now, sir, the committtee has carefully examined the documents presented in this case, and finds the claim reasonable and correct. How, then, can Senators oppose this claim, which is just, on the ground that if we pass it, others will come here with false claims? I say again, the committee has examined this case attentively, and is satisfied of the justness of the claim. I am as much opposed to false claims as any Senator on this floor; but when I find one that is just and legal, I shall not hesitate to support it. I appeal to Senators not to reject this bill without giving it a full examination. The law intended that judges in New Orleans should imprison, but it did not provide for cases in which the service was performed by justices of the peace. For my part, I shall vote for the bill, confident that the claim is just and ought to be paid.

Mr. De Russy—

I do not like to trouble the Senate with any more remarks on this subject; but, when I am convinced of the justness of a claim, as I am of this one, I cannot stand idly by and permit an honest man to be prevented from securing his rights, without making effort to come to his rescue. Here, sir, we have the affidavit of Mr. Gill, an aged and respectable citizen, testifying to what he has done. This is fortified by the certificate of Mr. Dufrocq, Mayor of this city. Gentlemen say it is not a good claim. Let us see how much Mr. Gill turned into the Treasury of the State before he brought forward this claim for $315. We find by reference to the documents that he begins at the case numbered 1,115. What was done with the others? Why, the fines in those cases were turned into the Treasury. Is this the way I would ask Senators, to treat an honest man, who has performed his duty to the State faithfully and well? No, sir! The very gentlemen who oppose this claim, know how to advocate others not as good. I hope that the bill will pass.

Mr. Kittridge offered an amendment providing that all similar claims be paid by the State.

Mr. Trudeau—

I shall vote for the amendment, thinking it a good one. The committee says this is a just claim. Certainly, then, we ought to pay all of the same kind.

Mr. King—

I think it will take $50,000 at least to pay all of the same kind that may be presented. I therefore move that we appropriate $50,000 for that purpose.

Mr. Martel—

I move to lay the amendments on the table.

Mr. King—

I move to lay the bill and the amendments on the table.

Mr. Munday—

The Senator from Natchitoches says that Mr. Gill commenced at case 1,115. This is merely the number of the case. All the justices number the cases on their dockets, and this is the number on Mr. Gill's docket, and not the number of the militia cases.

Mr. Martel—

Mr. Gill only claims for 71 cases.

Mr. Hodge—

I have not examined the question, and I therefore ask to be excused from voting.

The bill and amendments were laid on the table.

The S W. M.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I wish to call up a bill to incorporate the order of the S. W. M. of the State of Louisiana.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I should like to have some information before I can give my vote on this bill. I understand the gentleman is a member of that order, and he can probably tell us something about it.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I was elected a member, it is true, but have never been initiated into the mysteries of the order. I am informed by a gentleman who, unfortunately, is not a member of the Senate, that the objects are charitable, &c.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Wickliffe—

I have no objection to the bill

Mr. Trudeau—

I should like to know what S. W. M. means.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Seven Wise Men, I suppose.

M. Evans—

I want to know something of the objects of this society before I vote to incorporate it. It may be intended to overturn the government, to take the island of Cuba, or do some other equally desperate deed.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I am astonished at the objections urged by the Senator from Claiborne. I have already said that the Honorable Chairman of the Finance Committee is a member, and therefore he ought to know there is no danger of the government being overturned by the operations of this society. It is a secret order, like the Odd Fellows, Free Masons, and others; and like them is charitable in its objects. I am told that during the late epidemic, its members attended many sick persons, and did a great deal of good.

The bill passed.

Decisions of the Supreme Court.

The bill to pay the Reporter of the decisions of the Surpeme Court for reporting back decisions, was taken up.

Mr. Hodge—

I want to know what work is referred to by the bill. If I am not mistaken, the volume of 1852 is the 6th volume. It is not yet printed. We make the proviso that the money be not paid till the work is done; is that usual? It carries with it an inuendo that the Reporter intends to draw the money without doing the work. The Reporter, sir, is an officer of the State. It is his duty to do the work before drawing the money; and, I doubt not, he will perform his duty.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I move to strike out the proviso.

The proviso was stricken out, and the bill passed.

The Ouachita River.

The bill to appropriate $1,500 for a survey of the Ouachita River, was taken up

Mr. Wickliffe—

I do not understand giving an officer $1,500 for doing a work which it is his duty to do. I do not understand such a system. I think the bill ought to be referred to the appropriate committee.

Mr. Boatner—

I give all due credit to the gentleman from West Feliciana, for his zeal in this matter. But if h knew that section of country as well as I do, he would not oppose this bill as he does. If the provisions of the bill be carried out, it would open the navigation of the Ouachita for a long distance. It would benefit the agricultural population of the Ouachita, and trade and commerce with that country generally. The Engineer has informed the other House that, owing to the business now on hand in his office, he would be unable to superintend this work himself This fact induced the Committee to report in favor of allowing him to send a deputy. In fact, that was the only way in which it could be done. We have never received much attention from the State, in that section, and I think we are entitled to something. I shall oppose the reference.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I think this a bad system of legislation. We have an officer whose duty it is to attend to everything of this kind; yet the bill contemplates paying him $1,500 for doing what his duty required him to do. I am opposed to giving an officer $3,500 to do all this work, and then having to give him $1,500 to do one thing. If the work is really necessary, and it is requisite to do it in this way, the committee will doubtless report in favor of it. The fact that it has been reported on favorably in the other House, is no criterion for us. Many bills are reported unanimously in the other House, yet are rejected here. The endorsement of the committee of the other House is not enough for us. I think the bill ought to be referred. If compelled to vote now, I shall record my vote against the system of paying an officer extra for doing his duty.

Mr. Lacey—

If the bill be referred, it may be lost by delay. It is true, as remarked by the Senator from Caldwell, that that section has received very little of the attention of the State. It is true, something should be done for it, and we could not make a better commencement than by doing this necessary work The Engineer is not able to do it in consequence of the press of business which has accumulated in his office. A deputy is, therefore, necessary. The bill has already been investigated by a committee in the other House, and I hope it will not be endangered by a reference.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The Engineer already has a deputy paid by the State.

Mr. McCay—

This is an extra appropriation, for a single object, equal to nearly half of the salary we pay to the State Engineer. It is a pretty good salary for a half a year's work. I am informed the same thing has already been done by the State in other cases, but I think it was wrong. The bill ought to be referred. If the committee report that it is worth the amount, I will vote for it.

Mr. King—

I think this is a good appropriation. There are two or three falls in the Ouachita River, which render it at low water nearly as impassable as Red River. In consequence of this, the commercial interests of New Orleans have suffered immensely. Fifteen hundred dollars may be too much to pay, but I am not willing o make all our appropriations for one stream. We have given large sums of money for Red River, and it is time we now gave something for Ouachita.

Mr. Moore—

If we make the amendment proposed, we had better strike out the section entirely. The Engineer told me this evening, that if we give him enough in the General Appropriation Bill to pay the expense, he will not ask anything more.

Mr. Boatner—

It has been said the work has been done once. I will tell how. The Engineer, Mr. Wooldridge, went to the river at Monroe, and floated down in a skiff. He stopped at Major King's plantation to to take dinner, and then continued on as far as Harrisburg. He made no more accurate examination than could be made by floating down in a skiff as I have stated. The Engineer was once directed to do this work, but he never went near the place, and I believe he would not do it now unless he were compelled.

Mr. Hodge—

I want to know if the Legislature did not refer the removal of certain bars. I believe it did. The Engineer gave as a reason for not doing it, that he had no boat suitable for the purpose, but that one was being built.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Boatner—

I do not recollect the circumstance to which the gentleman alludes. I know he was ordered to make the survey, and he gave as an excuse for not doing it, that the prevalence of the yellow fever prevented. I repeat that this is a very necessary work. If done, it would open navigation at least 125 miles further than it is open now. It is only very lately that a boat has been able to get up the river this season. There were also instructions in regard to Little River, which is a very important stream, and is increasing in importance every year. The Engineer told Col. Campbell, the Chairman of the Committee in the other House, that it was important the Engineer should give his personal attention to this matter. There is an endorsement on the bill, in the hand writing of Col. Campbell, to the effect that the Committee reported unanimously in favor of it. I am confident the bill has undergone full scrutiny.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I do not wish it to be understood that I am opposed to the bill, nor do I wish to deprive the people of that section of the benefits of navigation. But I am opposed to this system of legislating, generally. I do not wish to pay the Engineer extra for work which it is his duty to do. If an assistant is necessary, then give him an assistant. I think the suggestion of the Senator from St. Martin (Mr. Moore) is a good one. Let us pass all the bill but that section, and give enough in the General Appropriation Bill to pay for the extra work.

Mr. Lacy—

It appears to me that this is a very important work, and actually necessary for the navigation of that section of the State, and is likewise of great importance to the commercial public of New Orleans. It is strange that after having appropriated $5,000 for one river, we should now refuse to appropriate $1,500 for this one.

Mr. Hodge—

The appropriation referred to by the gentleman was for that river, and as I asked it, I will take occasion again to explain the circumstances of the case. That appropriation was for a specific work to be done. If the gentleman will show me that this appropriation is absolutely necessary for the prosecution of the work in hand, I will vote for the bill. I said the survey had already been made, because I met the then State Engineer, Mr. Wooldridge, at Monroe while he was engaged in performing the work. In fact, he told me himself he was doing it. I know nothing of his having floated down in a skiff, though it is doubtless as the gentleman says. What we do know is that he told me he was then engaged in the work. Now, sir, when the work has once been done, I do no see the necessity of doing it over again. I do not deny that this is an important work. On the contrary, I agree to everything that has been said on that point. For my part, I want to see it done I am not in favor of a niggardly policy in ragard to our internal improvements; but I wish the money to be really spent in that way, and not squandered. Every dollar well spent on works of internal improvement will come back to us four fold. I am likewise in favor of electing every officer by the people, as I think they are perfectly competent to do it. I hope, then, we shall never have an officer so negligent that their work will have to be done over again. I repeat that I met Mr. Wooldridge at Monroe, while engaged in the prosecution of this very work. He told me he was making the survey, and I presume he did it. Is it possible that he was so negligent that the work has now to be done over again? I do not reflect on the present Engineer. I believe he means to do as well as he can. If I can be convinced that this amount is necessary to carry out the object, I will cheerfully vote for the bill. It is better thus than to rely on the general appropriation bill.

Mr. Boatner—

I cannot say ex cathedra that the work will cost exactly the sum specified in the bill.

Mr. Hodge—

If the Engineer will employ the money economically, and not employ an assistant at a high salary merely because the money has been appropriated, I will be willing to give it to him.

Mr. Boatner—

I am willing that all proper restrictions shall be placed on the expenditure of this money. I do not desire to see it squandered, of course. The former Engineer, Mr. Wooldridge, a truly estimable man, visited the river in accordance with the instructions of the Legislature. The facts, however, as I have stated them, are notorious. He went over 150 miles in two days. Certainly, an accurato survey could not be made in that time. He made a report in which he stated that there were bars at places where in fact they never existed at all. These are facts of general notoriety, known to all residents in that section. I repeat that I am ready to approve of any judicious restrictions that may be imposed—not such as will prevent the Engineer from doing the work, but such as will prevent the money being squandered. It would also be better that he should be instructed to report at the next session of the Legislature.

Mr. Munday—

When this hill first came up I mistook it for another. A bill has passed the other House appriating $1,000 for a survey of Bayou Bœuf. In that case also, the Engineer says he has not time to do the work himself, but for $1,000 he can have it done. That is a very important work. There are numerous sugar plantations along the Bayou, and it is their only way to market. There is now along its banks a large quantity of sugar and molasses which could not be sent forward. The Engineer sees and acknowledges the the importance of the work. For $1,000 he can procure the services of an assistant Engineer, and have the work done; that is to say, an instrumental survey. My section asks nothing of this kind from the State, but it is always willing to see other sections aided to the extent of our abilities. The people along that Bayou have suffered grievously for want of proper and permanent communication with the New Orleans market, and the merca tile community of that city have been subjected to much inconvenience. Now, both these surveys might be made by one person, and thus some expense saved. However, the Senator from Natchitoches will know better than I whether it will make any difference. I should think the two might be done by one person for less than $2,800. There may, also, be others of the same character which might be included. I think we ought to aim at doing the most good with the least money, and husband our resources as much as possible.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I think the suggestions of the Senator from St. Martin ought to be adopted. Let us instruct the

Digitized by Google

Engineer to do the work, and then appropriate enough in the General Appropriation Bill to pay for it. I will make a motion myself to that effect I will also add a proviso that the appropriation shall be made in the General Appropriation Bill, if an assistant Engineer be appointed.

Mr. Hodge—

I would offer another proviso, that if an assistant Engineer be appointed this must be his first work.

Mr. Munday—

I want both works done. Let the bills be referred to the Internal Improvement Committee. They can report to-morrow.

Mr. Boatner—

I have no objection to the amendment, but we are so near the end of the session that delay may defeat the bill.

Mr. Wickliffe—

It is a sufficient answer to the gentleman's objections that it will not occasion fifteen minutes' delay. The bill will go to the House to-morrow. It will be taken up to-morrow evening and certainly concurred in. This House can have no objections to appropriating money in this way, when the appropriation is not to take effect except in a certain contingency. At all events the bill must go back to the other House. It must go there to be signed by the Speaker, and to go through various formalities. The amendment will not delay the bill at all; on the contrary, it will benefit it.

Mr. Boatner—

The gentleman is mistaken. The House has adopted a rule from which it does not depart—not to take any bill up out of its order. A committee was appointed this morning to select bills necessary to pass and to throw others out This bill could not be reached before Wednesday, and then it would have to go through all the formalities the gentleman has spoken of. I like the proviso. I think myself it improves the bill. But I think it will defeat it by producing delay.

Mr. De Russy—

The bill is a very important one, and ought to be passed.

SATURDAY, March 11th, 1854.

ENTERING PUBLIC LANDS.

A bill to authorize Barbaran Labranche and Biberou Labranche to enter certain lands.

Mr. Kenner—

This is a large and wealthy family, and its respectability is incontestable. I am certain that they would not desire or connive at anything wrong. They own the front lands at a certain point. The rear lands are, of course, valuable to them, and they wish to enter them, but find, on application, that they are not surveyed. The Surveyor may have interested friends to whom he may communicate information, and when the survey is made they may hasten to the Land Office and enter these very lands for speculation, and so be enabled to demand a large price of the front proprietor. Because these people want to do what is right; what they have a right to do; what will benefit the State, are we to be told that they wish to dabble in swamp lands? Are they to be prevented from doing this simply because they are rich and respectable? I do not wish to countenance anything wrong. I would rather tear the bill into a thousand fragments. The only objection of any force is, that the boundary is not sufficiently well defined. The objection of the Senator from Caddo, that the land is reserved for railroads, does not apply in this case. But I am willing to insert a clause to the effect that nothing in the bill shall be so construed as to deprive the railroad companies of their rights.

Mr King—

I was not mistaken when I said the person was to get his own surveyor. This is no part of the business of the U. S. Surveyor. If they get him to do the work they must pay him. The name of Surveyor General is a mere nomme de guerre. The gentleman says that this is not dabbling in swamp lands. I think that I can show that it is. These persons send here a memorial asking the Legislature to pass a bill granting them a certain privilege. If they are not to be benefied by it why do they wish it done? If it is a benefit, it is a favor to be done by disposing in a certain way of a portion of the swamp lands. That is what I call dabbling in swamp lands. For my part I do not see why they should be used for such purposes. I do not see why the whole machinery of our swamp lands should be disturbed in order to make a special exception in favor of this family. If we pass this we shall have a hundred cases of the same kind next winter, and we cannot refuse to act on them in the same way, after having established the precedent. And thus irregularity and confusion will be introduced into our swamp land system. I move to lay the bill on the table.

Mr. Kenner—

Will the gentleman oblige me by permitting me to ask a question. He says that "Surveyor General" is a mere nomme de guerre. The bill first provided that the work shall be done by the U. S. Surveyor General. The gentleman objected. I then put it the Surveyor General of the State, and he now says that is a mere nomme de guerre.—What would the gentleman have?

Mr. King—

I have studied the laws of the State probably as thoroughly as any man in the State, and I have not seen any specification of the duties of this officer. I know there is such an officer, but what he does is the question.

Mr. Kenner—

I say it is a very important office. If the gentleman has studied the laws as thoroughly as any man in the State, he has studied them to very little effect. The law says the Surveyor must do these things whenever he is called on. That is the law. The gentleman certainly does not know the law as far as this subject is concerned That officer is a very important officer, and has important duties to perform.

The bill was laid on the table.

LEVEES IN CARROLL, MADISON AND CATAHOULA.

The bill compensating the parishes of Carroll, Madison and Catahoula for levees built under the act of 1832, was taken up.

Mr. Clifton offered an amendment providing that the amount be taken from the fund for that District.

Mr. Rivers—

I would beg leave to call the attention of the Senate to the law. The Levee District is composed of the parishes of Catahoula, Carroll and Tensas, and has a fund for the purpose of building levees. Before the Swamp Land Commissioners were appointed, and on a pledge of the faith of the State to receive these levees, a large sum was expended in constructing them. It amounted to about $80,000 the first year. The bill only proposes to give $50,000 for the whole amount expended, yet the gentleman now wishes to amend by saying that the amount must be taken from the fund belonging to that district. Does the gentleman wish to repudiate? Does he wish to violate the obligations of the law? The amendment, sir, would be extremely unjust toward the district which I represent. By the law the State was bound to receive these levees when finished. They would not, probably, have been built had it not been for that promise. Yet the gentleman wishes to take the sum from the small pittance belonging to the Third District. Let gentlemen read the law and they will see that the State is bound in honor to take these levees I am astonished that the gentleman should present such an amendment, when he has had such large crabs out of the fund for Grand Levee, which, in importance, compared with these, is but as a mole hill to a mountain. Why, sir, in these parishes the tax for levee purposes has, in some cases, amounted to five per cent. per annum.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Clifton—

My only object in offering the amendment is to have the money taken from the fund already appropriated for the purpose. In my parish we make the levees by slave labor. This district has chosen another way in which to do the work, yet it has not actually paid more money, and is not entitled to anything more than any other district. By getting a part now and a part then from the fund, it will at last succeed in getting much more than its share.

Mr. Boatner—

If the Senator from Pointe Coupée understood the subject thoroughly, he would withdraw his amendment, and I am sure his sense of justice will prompt him to do it after an investigation. It should be remembered that the whole of that section was subject to overflow, and might have been totally destroyed if something had not been done. The danger was imminent, and the progress of the swamp land fund was so slow that it was useless to wait for aid from that quarter. The people, therefore, determined to do the work themselves. They came to the Legislature in '52, and asked that the two parishes might be formed into a levee district. This was done. Acting under this law and under the firm conviction that its provisions would be carried out by the State, they levied taxes on the three parishes to the amount of $80,000 or $90,000 for levee purposes. It is immaterial to the State whether the labor was performed by slaves, or whether the work was accomplished through taxation The fact is that they made the levees which ought to have been made by the State, and now they come forward and ask us to conform to the provisions of the law. It is impossible it could have been contemplated that the amount was to be paid from the funds appertaining to any particlar district, as the districts at that time were not formed. Those districts have expended much money, and have reclaimed thousands and thousands of acres of land from overflow. Every principle of justice demands that we carry out the provisions of the act passed by the previous Legislature. I feel convinced, that upon reflection, the gentleman will withdraw his opposition.

Mr. Moore—

I will give my reason for voting against the amendment and in favor of the bill. The Legislature of 1852, passed a bill by which, if the parishes would build certain levees which could reclaim the swamp lands, the State would receive the levees and reimburse the parishes in the whole amount expended. The people in these parishes taxed themselves $80,000 or $90,000 to build these levees which reclaim the swamp lands belonging to the State. No one, who knows these parishes, will say they do not. They have built the levees, why not re-imburse them? The law dividing the fund was only enacted in April, 1853. We have no right to divide it for work done before. We ought to re-imburse those parishes. In other parishes, the case is not the same, and with regard to them I should vote against such a proposition. But the law, which we ourselves passed, requires that the levees be accepted by the State, and the money paid for them. They have made the levees; they have fulfilled their part of the bargain, and we ought to fulfill ours.

Mr. King—

I have a few remarks to make on this subject. In giving my vote against the bill I feel impelled to express some of the reasons which influence me to that course, in order that my motives may not be misunderstood. The application made to us on behalf of these parishes, is not that we build levees for them, but that we pay for levees already built, while there are important links in our chain of levees remaining open, it is scarcely good policy to pay the parishes for those which they have already built for their own protection. There is a place called Diamond Island where there is a large opening, and the river overflows eight or ten feet. The Engineer says that when the gap is closed there will be a continuous line of levee from Arkansas to the Gulf. When so important a link as that remains uncompleted we should not expend money for any other purpose. That is by far the most important and necessary work that is to be performed. I am sure Senators will agree with me in this. Gentlemen have referred to the law. I do not shrink from the investigation. Let that be our touch stone When that law was passed it was with this idea: that the swamp lands would prove to be a magnificent domain, from which so ample a revenue would be derived that the State herself would become the great levee builder; in fact, the State was to do everything. Such was the feeling in the Legislature of last year, and it is so with many even now. But look at the returns of the Land Office. I estimate the receipts from the swamp land fund at $75,000 per annum. No sane man would undertake even to commence a general levee system with so small a sum as that. Indeed, we have contemplated what never can exist. The idea was a vast error. Let us look at the law and see if it does not justify my view. (Here Mr. King read from the law). It will be seen by this that a general system of levees, to be undertaken by the State, was contemplated. Until we have that general system what right have they to make this demand on us? It is evident, that when that law was passed, the anticipation was confidently entertained that we should have a general system for all the levees in the State. But that may never be. Why then should these three parishes be permitted to take so much out of the fund? Are their levees more expensive than those of other parishes? Do they require more trouble and more money? I cannot believe they do. Are they more necessary, more difficult to construct than those of Pointe Coupée? I am confident they are not. In Concordia the position of things is worse, that is to say, in the absence of levees. It must be recollected that this is not a general appropriation, it is special and for only three parishes. I do not think that the appeal to the law sustains the position of the gentlemen on the other side. That law, as I have said, contemplated the establishing of a general levee system, under which the money was to be distributed pro rata, not among the parishes, but among the persons building levees, according to law. Now, if any right exists to make a demand on us, it belongs, not to those parishes, but to the persons who have paid taxes to aid in the construction of the levees. A vested right exists in the tax payers—at least, as against the parishes. If we pass this bill, and thus recognize that we are bound for these levees, we shall give the tax payers a right to come to us and demand re-imbursement of all they have paid out. Admitting that we had paid the amount to the parishes, that would not be a legal or even an equitable defence. We ought to adopt some means to relieve ourselves of this responsibility, or we shall have all who have paid taxes, for such purposes, coming forward and demanding reimbursement. I have every confidence in Senators, but how can they insist on this appropriation of $60,000? I think I have shown there is no justice in the claim. Even admitting the correctness of the position assumed by the gentlemen on the other side, yet they have made no specifications. They have not told us what levees were built; their height or breadth, which are essential elements in an estimate of their value. I am told that a large portion was built even before the passage of the law. We ought to require, at least, evidence that levees have been actually built and something reliable as to their value. I call for the evidence in this case. If the evidence exists, let it be produced. If not, why then put a stop to this heedless legislation, by which thousands of dollars are appropriated, we scarce know how or for what. At least, we should have these levees, for which we are called on to pay so dearly, examined by a proper officer. At this moment what evidence have we before us that they have even been built? I do not doubt all that gentlemen have said; but, at the same time, I must repeat that there is nothing official before the Senate—nothing on which we have a right to act. This bill is said to be a compromise. We have no right to make a compromise with those parties. If any right exists at all, it is in the tax payers and not in the parishes, For these reasons I shall vote against the bill.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Moore—

The gentleman asks, where is the evidence that these levees have been built, and thinks we are proceeding in the dark. If the gentleman will consider the bill he will find that the Surveyor must first make an examination of the levees. If he find them built in accordance with that act, the parishes shall then receive the amount due under the bill.

Mr. King—

Suppose the Surveyor only finds $5,000 worth of levees.

Mr. Moore—

Then the parishes only receive $5,000.

Mr. King—

I beg the gentleman's pardon, they receive the whole amount

Mr. Moore—

I will read the law. (Here Mr. Moore read from the law). The whole must be considered together. We are not to pay till the levees are received by the Swamp Land Commissioners. No gentleman, who knows the situation of the parishes of Madison and Tensas, that every mile of levee there must reclaim more than the stipulated amount of swamp land, would object to this bill. I renew my motion to lay the amendment on the table.

Mr. Lacey—

I vote to lay the amendment on the table, because I think any amendment might defeat the bill. For that reason I am opposed to any amendment at all, though, if it were not for this, I might vote for the amendment before the Senate.

The amendment was laid on the table.

Mr. King offered another amendment.

A motion was made to lay it on the table.

Mr. Martel—

In the first part of the bill it is made imperative on the Swamp Land Commissioners to accept these levees, whether they are constructed in conformity with the act of '52 or not. The law reads thus: (Here Mr. Martel read from the law). I make a vast distinction between a thing optional and a thing imperative. In this bill it is made imperative on the Commissioners to accept these levees, whether they reclaim swamp lands or not. Look at the act of 1852, and you will see, that according to its provisions, if they do reclaim swamp lands, then the Legislature agrees to appropriate money for the purpose of purchasing them. I am opposed to squandering the money of the State in this way. There is an immense distinction between the provisions of this bill and those of the act of 1852. By that act, if the Swamp Land Commissioners find that the levees reclaim swamp lands, they can adopt those levees as a part of a general system, and then, of course, the State must pay for them. But, till they are so adopted by the Commissioners, we have nothing to do with them. The act is very plain It gives power to the people of the several parishes to tax themselves for the purpose of building levees. It provides, also, for the manner of taxation, the appointing of Commissioners, &c., and in the last section we find it says that the attention of the Commissioners shall be directed to these levees. If the officers of the State find the levees a benefit to the State, and that they really do reclaim swamp lands belonging to the State, then I will have no objection to vote the whole amount. But, till this is done, I shall oppose it. I do not want to support a bill which makes it imperative on the Commissioners to accept all these levees, under the supposition that they reclaim swamp lands. At least, it ought to be left optional with the Commissioners, or dependent on that contingency. Put in a proviso of this kind, and then I will be willing to vote the $50,000. But, I must say it is an immense amount. By the constitution we cannot appropriate more than $100,000 without providing ways and means to raise the money, and yet here we make way with half of that amount at one appropriation. It is no small matter, I can tell Senators. Let gentlmen carefully read the act of '52, and compare it with the provisions of this bill which has been presented for our consideration. When I voted against the previous amendment I had not read the act; but when I found that by the act of '52 it was optional with the Commissioners to accept the levees, and only in case they reclaim lands is there an injunction to receive them, I considered it unjust that the bill should make it imperative on the Commissioners. So far from this act being in conformity with the former, this would repeal that. What was optional by that is made imperative by this—the levees are to be received whether they reclaim swamp lands or not. I oppose it, therefore, because I consider it unjust, not because I wish to make a systematic opposition to the payment of just debts. I tell gentlemen they are mistaken in regard to the law. It says that "all levees which, &c., may be," not "shall be." If the Legislature make it imperative then they destroy the intentions of that act. The bill says the money shall be paid from the proceeds of the sale of swamp lands. Here, also, is a vast distinction.

Digitized by Google

If the Senate wish to do this I shall record my vote against it, if I am the only one. I want to act in accordance with the law. That is the reason I take this course, and not because I wish to oppose appropriations for the section of country represented by my honorable friend. On some questions of this kind I have voted blindly, because I followed the example of gentlemen who, I supposed, were well informed. I am in favor of internal improvements. I have told the honorable gentleman from St. Martin, on previous occasions, that I had confidence in him, and would vote for his bills. But this is not an improvement, or a bill of the kind to which I referred; and I must, on this occasion, beg leave to differ with my honorable friend. I consider it a proposition unsanctioned by reasonable law. I have read the bill carefully, and have formed my judgment accordingly. I voted against the proviso, but now I would vote against the bill.

Mr. Boatner—

I cannot but think that too much credit cannot be given to the gentleman for the zeal which he displays in making opposition to unjust appropriations. Nevertheless, if he were to read the act he would find the foundation of his argument entirely useless. He thinks the act makes the acceptance of the levees imperative or compulsory on the commissioners, and that they are compelled to pay the $50,000 in any event. There is no such thing in the bill. The gentleman must look on it with a very distorted vision, if he can so construe its language. I am certain the bill is written in very plain English, and the gentleman ought to be able to understand it. (Mr. Boatner here read an extract from the bill). Now, I would ask the gentleman whether he considers that authority granted to do a thing is equivolent to a compulsory mandate. Such being its signification now it differs from any signification it ever had before. If the word required was used as in compulsory laws the case would be different. But the word used is "authorized." But the gentleman says the money must be paid if the levees are only worth $5,000. The assumption of the law is that the officers of the State will do their duty. The Swamp Land Commissioners are gentlemen who stand high in the community, and are worthy of the trust reposed in them. I am satisfied they would not receive the levees, or permit the money to be paid, till fully satisfied that they are built in accordance with the act of 1852. Let the gentlemen prove it is the intention of the Swamp Land Commissioners to violate their duty to the State before they make that assumed violation the basis of an argument. Let them first prove that those officers are faithless to the high trust reposed in them, and I will vote with the opponents of the bill.

Mr. Martel—

The remarks of the gentleman demand from me a word by way of explanation. The bill does "authorize" the Commissioners to receive these levees, it is not optional with them to receive them or not. They must receive them. That is the only question I have to the bill.

Mr. Boatner—

I do not think the bill means that. It means that the Commissioners may receive the levees or not. That is what giving authority signifies in my mind. Under the discretionary powers granted by the bill, they may decline to receive, and then this bill is to the ground as a matter of course. If the parties really had their due unde the act of 1852, they would be entitled to eighty thousand dollars instead of the fifty thousand in the bill.—This bill passed in a spirit of conciliation and compromise. I am informed by a gentleman of the other House that those who opposed it there did not wish to be absolved in full from this payment, but thought the parishes should be remunerated to the amount of one-half of what they had paid out. Gentlemen have said that there is no evidence that these levees have reclaimed swamp lands. There may be no written or record evidence, but every one knows they have reclaimed thousands of acres, which, without them, would now be overflowed and uncultivable. It has likewise been said that we have no evidence of the levees having been made. If they are not made the bill falls of course. The Commissioners would be faithless to their duties if they should receive, or pretend to receive work which had never been done. The gentleman from New Orleans says he is opposed to the policy of paying for work done; that we should reserve our money for what remains to do. I do not think the principle a good one. When work has been done under an act of the Legislature we should pay for it. There is the law staring us in the face. On equitable grounds no claim could be fairer than this.

The amendment of Mr. King was laid on the table, after which the bill passed.

BANKS AND BANKING.

Mr. Clifton, from the Committee on Banks and Banking, presented a report on the bill to amend the Free Banking Law; also, a minority report from the same Committee.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The reasons which should induce the passing of this bill are obvious. Under the law, as it at present exists, the securities which may be used for banking purposes are limited to the stocks of the United States, of the State of Louisiana, and of the consolidated debt of the city of New Orleans. The amount already absorbed is one million five hundred thousand dollars. The amount by which the debt of the city will be increased, by bonds to be issued to railroad companies, is three million dollars. In my estimates I do not include the bonds of the United States because they are sold at so high a premium that they cannot really be considered a part of the basis. Taking the report of the Commissioners of the Consolidated Debt of New Orleans the bonds of the city were seven million dollars. This is reduced one hundred and eighty thousand dollars a year by the excess of money raised annually to pay the interest on the debt.—By the act of consolidation this is to continue till the debt is extinguished. The supposition is that by this process the eight million dollars of bonds issued for forty years, will be extinguished in twenty-five years; that is to say, they will all be absorbed by the city. The effect of the law is manifest. With the reduction of the principal the interest will become less and less till both are finally extinguished. But then we shall no longer have any basis for circulation. The State bonds to be issued for works of interual improvement amount to about three million dollars. That is the only other source of bonds as a basis of circulation. Under the operation of the free banking law, in a few months bonds will be required to the amount of three million dollars. What has become of the rest? Look to the markets of the world. No pressure has resulted from the issuing of nearly ten million dollars of bonds, as they have gone abroad, and are held in other countries on investment; mostly in Amsterdam, London and New York. They are a staple security; yet there is no complaint made against the proposed measure by those who hold the original bonds. They, if any, would have the right to complain. I hold in my hand a letter from a distinguished gentleman of New Orleans, referring to this very subject. He says that no injustice will be done to the holders of the consolidated debt by making the new bonds a basis. When the consolidated bonds were sold he was a purchaser, and he thinks he has no right to complain. If the bonds now in existence were affected in price there might possibly be some ground for complaint. I read in the Bulletin, a few days ago, an account of a recent sale of bonds under the consolidation act. The city purchased one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars worth of the bonds with the surplus of the money raised for the sinking fund. As I have said, by raising a certain amount yearly, the principal and interest being thereby reduced, the whole debt will be extinguished in the course of twenty-eight years, and none of this series of bonds will be in existence In 1852, these bonds commanded a premium in the New York market. If it had not been for the disturbed state of affairs in Europe they would have been worth five per cent. premium. When affairs again become settled, these bonds will raise in price. When they were last bought the lowest bid was 96, and the highest par. They were taken at an average of 96¼. If these bonds had not been regarded as a security when money commanded 18 per cent per annum, they would have sold for a lower price. When money becomes more abundant the bonds will assume a still higher value. The addition now proposed is of little importance in actual amount. It will not really increase the basis to any important extent. They will, however, soon be needed for purposes of free banking. There is no fear of the basis becoming too abundant. If we had twenty millions there would be no fear of a depreciation by depositing a greater amount. If we wish to give any management to our internal improvement system, we should place these bonds which are to be issued for internal improvement purposes, in the best possible condition, particular when it cannot affect the basis. If we give these bonds a larger market by making them a basis, their value will necessarily be raised in consequence of the increased demand for them. Thus more will be realized from them for internal improvement purposes.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Wickliffe—

In 1853, when the law for establishing a system of free banking was under discussion, some of us, though I regret to say very few, were firm in opposition to the measure. I was one of the small number who voted against the bill, on the ground that the bonds of the city of New Orleans were made a basis of circulation. I did not believe they were safe, and I thought, consequently, their adoption as a basis of circulation would depreciate the currency and tend to render it insecure. I expressed this opinion then; but the Senate overruled me, and voted in favor of the proposition by a decided majority. I took the ground that although it was proposed to make the consolidated bonds alone, a basis for banking, yet at the very next session an effort would be made to adopt other bonds of New Orleans. The Senator from New Orleans (Mr. King), during the discussion of the measure, took occasion to say that the bonds of the city were the safest in the world—that they were much safer than those of the State.

Mr. King—

I said under that act no more bonds could be issued.

Mr. Wickliffe—

What was said then, in 1853, during the discussion on the free banking law, is verified now.—Gentlemen are not satisfied with having rushed these railroad bills with such almost indecent haste—bills by which the city of New Orleans is authorized to issue additional bonds to the amount of three and a half million of dollars; and now gentlemen want to make them a basis for banking. If I cannot prevent it I can at least record my vote against it. With my consent these bonds shall never be made a basis for banking. I voted against the consolidated bonds in 1853, for which there was some security, and I shall not vote for these, for which there is none.

What is the debt of the city? Why, sir, it is immense—greater than, perhaps, she can ever pay. When, last year, we proposed to make lands and negroes a basis for free banking, the city delegation voted against it on the ground that it was not safe. Let me ask, sir, what is the security for the bonds of the city? Is it not taxation? and is not the taxation levied on the lands and negroes? thus making the basis ultimately the same as that which the gentlemen from the city had rejected with the declaration that it was not safe? I am aware that any effort to oppose this bill will be futile; I know there is a settled determination to pass it, in spite of any opposition that can be made, but I for one shall record my vote against it.

Mr. Kenner—

It is nothing astonishing that the gentleman should oppose this bill. Such a course was to be expected after his opposition to the consolidated bonds of the city of New Orleans. Let me call the attention of Senators to the facts. The gentleman remarked that the Senator from New Orleans (Mr. King) had spoken of the bonds of that city as the best and safest that could be found—He has not controverted the position taken by the Senator from New Orleans, or even attempted to do so. For my part, I consider the assertion proved.

Now, sir, if we have a free banking system, we must, for the sake of consistency, adopt for a basis, those bonds which are the safest. The Senator from West Feliciana has not controverted the position that the bonds of New Orleans are the best. I think I can show this to be true without difficulty. The city of New Orleans owes between seven and eight million of dollars. She has a sinking fund to which is added every year the surplus which is raised by taxation, over the amount of annual interest accruing. The amount which the city is compelled to raise every year is $600,000, of which $125,000 is applied to the extinguishment of the debt. By this means the principal and interest are annually reduced and in twenty-five years the city of New Orleans will not owe a dollar. Last week there was a call for $125,000 worth of bonds and it was with great difficulty that they could be got. Thus the revenue of a city possessing property to the amount of $100,000,000 is pledged for the payment of these $8,000,000. What better security can there be than this? The gentleman voted against city bonds last year; to be consitent with himself he must vote against them now. I think there are good reasons for the extension of the basis; if I did not I should vote against the bill. Everything tending to increase the security of the basis should be adopted. If we pass the law we increase the value of the basis already given. At the same time we facilitate the building of railroads, and thus increase the value of property, probably ifty millions; thus increasing the value of the basis n which the whole system is founded If we de ire to increase the value of the basis, we must ass this bill. The basis is already good, but we ish to increase the value of the article mortgaged or the debt. The gentleman has uttered one fal cy which I cannot pass over in silence. He says at though we made the bonds of New Orleans a asis, while they rest on the real estate of the city, et we refuse to accept the lands and negroes of e country, giving as a reason that they were nds and negroes. The gentleman has not stated e real reason. We did not refuse them because ey were lands and negroes, but because they ere not easily convertible into specie, whereas the nds, on the other hand, can be converted into ecie with the greatest facility. Ask the Senater om Point Coupée (Mr. Clifton) whether this was t the great objection.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The gentleman from New Orleans said he had ubts about that city owing $7.000,000. The ount is $7,700,000. Add $3.500,000 and you ve the neat little sum of $11,200,000. What he interest on this sum? The actual amount is nething near $660,000. The gentleman has d us that these bonds will be redeemed in twenty e years—that in that time the city of New Or ns will not owe a dollar. The amount which city is compelled to raise by taxation each year ix hundred thousand dollars. How long would ke to extinguish the debt at that rate? By in nation furnished by the Auditor of Public Ac nts, the amount of bonds of New Orleans used banking purposes is nine hundred and twenty- thousand dollars. Where are the rest? What become of the difference? Are they so pre is that they cannot be had for free banking oses? No one will venture to say that. They n the market and can be had at any time Can xtension be necessary when so many bonds are he market? I am opposed to increasing the of New Orleans for the purpose of making n a basis of circulation. It must lead, in the to bankruptcy and ruin. I took a position nst it in 1853, and I have seen no cause to ndon my ground. I consider the law which then passed as a curse to the community and normity of the greatest character. The prop on to make railroad scrip a basis is a still ter enormity. We ought, sir, to take warning e history of the past and study diligently the s which experience teaches us. Are we to d that this measure is necessary to the suc of the free banking law? If so, where are onsolidated bonds? What has become of ? Who wants to make these additional and a half millions a basis for banking? Do eople desire it? By no means, sir. It is d by speculators who, in order to carry out projects, rush to the State and the city to get om one or both of them.

Clifton—

ve no desire to enter into the oratorial arena, hen so grave a subject as this is under dis . I shall not, therefore, attempt to make a , but shall content myself with offering one remarks of a purely practical nature. The r from New Orleans, and the Senator from sion, have told us that the bonds of the city w Orleans are the best security that could ured, and the Senator from Ascension has ged any one to controvert the proposition. ir, I think that position is untenable, and I that facts will sustain me in the assertion. I would call the attention of Senators to an article in the Bee, in relation to a recent sale of some of those bonds. In the first place, an advertisement was published calling for bids, and there can be seen the rates at which the bonds are sold and the estimation in which they are held. The report of the proceedings of the Board of Aldermen to which I have referred, says:

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

A special meeting of this Board was held last night.

A communication from the Mayor was read, informing the Board of the result in the McDonough case before the United States Supreme Court. He at the same time recommends adequate compensation to the counsel on the part of the city of New Orleans.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

Petitions from Fire Companies Nos. 14 and 10 were referred to the Fire Committee.

Proposals for the sale of city bonds were then opened and read. They ranged from par down to 96½ per cent. Several of the offers were worded in terms so obscure as not to be easily comprehended. After a good deal of fuss the following resolution was offered and referred to the Committee on Finance:

Resolved, That the bids for the sale of the consolidated bonds of the city as per advertisement under the direction of the City Council, to the extent of $120,000 be accepted, as follows:

Pescher & Forstall - - -	$47.000 at	96½
H. W. Palfrey - - - -	10,000 "	97
" - - - -	10,000 "	97½
" - - - -	6,000 "	98
Charles Lafitte - - - -	1,000 "	97½
Thomas Layton - - - -	43.000 "	98
F A. Thayer - - - -	3,000 "	98

It being understood that the above bids include all interest that has matured since January 1st, 1854.

These bonds not only sold at several per cent. below par, but there was an accumulation of two months interest on them. How can it be said that they are the best security in the face of such a fact as that?

Mr. King—

This discussion has taken a range entirely irrevalent to the point at issue. We are not, or ought not, to be debating the policy of free banking. That question is settled—it is a fait accompli. Neither is there any question in regard to extension of the system, or the establishment of a single additional bank. There are bonds enough in the market for many more banks than have been established. Gentlemen need not apprehend any injurious increase. These bonds are to be secured in the same manner as those of the consolidated debt. The bonds of New Orleans are the only ones in the world secured by a tax imposed where the bonds are issued; and compelled to be imposed by a law irrepealable by any action of the city. Most bonds rest only on the force of a moral obligation. They may be repudiated if the parties issuing them chose to be dishonest. But it is not so with the bonds of the city of New Orleans. The moral obligation resting on the city is just as strong as that of the State or the United States. In addition the law says that an annual tax must be imposed for the payment of the interest and the redemption of the principal. The Senator from Ascension was right when he said these bonds were the best that could be procured. There is both a moral and a legal obligation to pay resting on the city. Thus much concerning the bonds themselves. Now for the policy of this bill; it is not for the purpose of expanding the basis, or affording additional banking facilities, that it is prepared, but in order to aid in completing our railroad enterprises, by putting the bonds issued in their favor on an equality with the others. Thus not only the city but the country likewise is interested in this bill. If we refuse to put these bonds on an equality with the others, we discredit them, and of course capitalists will be less ready to take them. In this way the railroad enterprises would be impaired, by preventing the companies from realizing their full value in the market. The object, as I have said, is not to extend the free banking system, nor is it a special favor to New Orleans —except so far as New Orleans is interested in the success of the railroads.

We have recently passed a law to relieve the people by permitting them to issue bonds instead of paying the city subscription directly, and now we should not discredit those bonds, and thus reduce the measure of relief, by refusing to put them on an equality with the others. We should, by such a course, reduce the value of the bonds, impose pecuniary loss on the city, and endanger the success of those great enterprises which we wish to see speedily consummated.

Mr. Moore—

These bonds are more secure than those of the consolidated debts, because in addition to the same security as those have, they are secured by railroad stock.

Mr. Trudeau—

The remarks of the Senator from New Orleans (Mr. King) command my approbation. I think he has taken every proper view of the subject I should be compelled to adopt his view, if merely for consistency's sake. If we pass a bill for the roads, we should pass the bill to carry them into execution That the Senator from West Feliciana (Mr. Wickliffe), who opposed these roads, should oppose this bill, is in strict consistency. What is the object of the bill? Why, clearly to aid in constructing the roads. If we do not put these bonds on a par with the others, they will not command so high a price, and the companies will have to submit to a discount of perhaps 25 per cent., which will, to precisely that extent, increase the cost of the roads. So far as security for banking is concerned, the bonds of New Orleans are as good as any in the world.

Mr. Clifton—

The gentleman says that these bonds, if not bolstred up by the free banking law, will depreciate, one gentleman says perhaps as much a 25 per cent. Now, I would ask whether, if this be true, which I do not pretend to deny, it would be just to the people of the State to make them a basis for banking. Our object ought to be to elevate the currency by using none but the best security for a basis; not to keep up the securities by making them a basis. I acknowledge, and I am glad gentlemen themselves have acknowledged, that these bonds would fall 25 per cent. below par if not bolstered up by the free banking law. What a reflection is it not on our legislation that the basis of our currency is formed, to a great extent, of securities which, but for the mere fact of their being a basis, would not command within 25 per cent of par? What we want, sir, is a good currency—a stable currency—not a currency made of sand, which will crumble away in our fingers before the slighest pressure.

Mr. Boatner—

As I was one of the very few Senators who went with the gentleman from West Feliciana in his opposition to the free banking law, I think I may crave the indulgence of the Senate for a few moments, while I give my views on this subject.—At the last session of the Legislature, a loud cry for railroads rang through the State; nothing was heard but Railroads—Railroads. Presidents and directors of railroads thronged our halls seeking for charters and aid from the State. Bill after bill was passed in hot haste—without debate, without consideration. We are asked first to give and then to subscribe to one-fifth of the capital stock, both of which we did. I fell in with the current and voted for the bills. But when it came to the free banking law, another question arose and I voted against it. More recently we have passed a bill, ostensibly for the purpose of relieving the people of New Orleans by permitting the city to substitute bonds for direct taxation. I am sorry I was not here to record my vote against the measure. But let me ask, when the bill passed was anything said about banking, or making the bonds to be issued a basis for banking? Not a word was suggested in reference to such a plan, at it might have defeated the whole scheme. On examination I find there is no restriction placed on the sale of these bonds. They may be disposed of at any rate the company pleases—at 75 or 50 per cent.—yet it is proposed to make them a portion of the basis of our currency. At present there is a large surplus of city bonds which have not been sold for banking purposes, yet we are told that an addition to that surplus will strengthen the bonds. For my part I must say that I cannot understand such reasoning. I believe that the sole purpose of this measure is to bolster up a wild scheme of speculation, and the credit of unsound projects. I should prefer to see things remain as they are I deem the arguments of the Senator from Pointe Coupée, (Mr. Clifton), to be of great weight. It may be that the crash is not so far off—it may be that a crisis is already at hand, and that the depreciation of city bonds is its forerunner.

Mr. Trudeau—

The Senator from Pointe Coupée seems to have taken advantage of what I said in relation to the difference in value between the bonds of the city and those of the State. I said the difference arose from the fact that the State bonds are a basis for banking, and those bonds are not, and that if they were made a basis for banking they would be worth as much as those of the State.

Mr. Lacey—

Are these bonds secured by a tax on the real estate and property of the city?

Mr. Kenner—

They are. They are the best secured of any bonds.

Mr. Lacey—

Then I shall vote for the bill.

The passed to a second reading.

Mr. Boatner

Made a motion to print the minority reports.

Mr. Kenner—

If I had known it was the intention to have this report printed and spread before the country, I should have answered some expressions contained in it, as there are some to which I particularly object.—especially the assertion that the measure is an attempt to bolster up wild speculations.

SELLING THE MODEL FARM.

The bill for the sale of the Model Farm was taken up.

Mr. Ryan

Moved an adjournment. He said:

I moved to adjourn because I wanted to address the Senate on the bill, and as the hour is rather late, I did not wish to detain the Senate today. I have informed myself of the facts and the law appertaining to this case, and I wish to lay them before the Senate.

Mr. Boatner—

This bill has been before the Senate since the beginning of the session. It has been delayed til now, and further procrastination is utterly useless.

Mr. Ryan—

I withdraw my motion to adjourn. Let the Senator from Caldwell open the case.

Mr. Boatner—

In 1833, the Legislature incorporated a company entitled the Agricultural Company of Louisiana. The company employed a person named Thompson to procure machinery in Cincinnati, for which he was authorized to pay $2,500. Thompson purchased the machinery. It was brought down the river and put in operation at the Model Farm in St. James. In a short time the experiment was abandoned. The vendors of the machinery presented a claim for payment which was resisted on the ground that Thompson had exceeded his powers as agent. A suit was brought in the United States Court, and judgment was taken by default. The Legislature afterwards dissolved the company. Its property was sold, and debts paid, and the balance remaining was placed in the State Treasury. The sum thus placed in the Treasury amounted to $20,000; but the claim of G. W. Coffin & Co., from whom Thompson had bought the machinery, was never paid, although it has been before the Legislature several times. One committee took testimony and reported favorably, but owing to the late period of the session at which it came up for consideration it did not pass both Houses. These are the facts of the case. Now, I am ready to hear anything the gentleman has to say in opposition.

Mr. Ryan—

This question has received from me more than usual consideration, and I am prepared to show that neither by law, justice or equity, neither legally nor morally, is the state of Louisiana bound for a dollar of that money. I have the documents to prove what I say, and if I do not make the assertion good let my argument go for nothing. A favorable report has been made by a committee; but it is based on the ex parte statements of interested individuals. It is like the bill of a Grand Jury; the Senate is the Petit Jury which is to render the final decision. The report does not state the facts of the case as they really were. It says that Thompson was authorized to go to Cincinnati and take these purchases, and that he had a power of attorney to that effect. This I deny. He had no authority at all. It says, also, that a suit was brought for the amount of this claim. Circumstances have induced me to investigate this matter, and from the facts I have learned I will give a brief history of the case. In 1833, an act of the Legislature incorporated a company for the purpose of establishing a Model Farm. The State of Louisiana never became a subscriber to that company; but, to encourage the enterprise, the State transferred to the company certain shares in the Louisiana State Bank, reserving to herself the right to dissolve the company if necessary to secure the advances. The bank stock, when sold, brought $48,000. It was given to the company, and Commissioners were appointed to take charge. The company sent Thompson to Cincinnati with a letter of credit for $2,300. He went to Cincinnati and there exhibited his letter of credit, and bought the machinery from the claimants. He transcended his powers in fact, as was asserted by the Board. The experiment did not last long. In '41 the company was dissolved by the Legislature, and its property sold. It only brought $21,000. By the law of '33, the State was to receive what she had expended, so that $21,000 went into the treasury to replace $48,000 which had gone out. Thus the State made a clear loss by the operation of $27,000. In 1839, these parties instituted a suit in the Commercial Court of New Orleans A day for the trial was fixed. The company had come into court, filed an answer and claimed to have a day set for the trial. What was the result? Corporation said the claim was unjust, and a day was fixed for the trial. But the Attorney of the claimant, instead of coming into court to meet the Corporation, dismissed his own suit. This was in 1839, when the Corporation was still in existence, and could be sued. In 1841, after it was dissolved, these parties brought a suit in the U. S Court. Governor Roman answered and excepted to the suit on the ground that there was no Corporation. No other answer was put in and no defence was made. The judgment was a nullity and could not be executed. Then three different suits were brought against individuals. Thus it will be seen that these persons who, when they found they could not defend their own suit, had actually dismissed it, afterwards brought suit again when there could be no defendant. I suppose the gentleman will admit these facts. It would be useless to deny them, as they are to be found on the record. I have furnished myself with copies of the evidence in the case, which I shall read for the information of the Senate. (Here Mr. Ryan read from a document which he held in his hand). After having brought suit, they dismissed it, which, to say the least, was suspicious. On the 23d of May, 1841, they brought another suit, which was after the functions of the company had ceased, and there could be no citations. I will now read what was sworn to by Gov. Roman and others, who, it must be acknowledged, are highly respectable persons. (Mr Ryan here read the testimony of Governor Roman).

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr Lacey, from the Committee on Public Buildings, made the following report:

To the Hon. W. W. Farmer, Lieut. Gov. and President of the Senate.

The Committee on Public Buildings, to whom was referred a joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, beg leave to report to your honorable body:

That they authorized the Committee on the part of the House to employ James McVea of Baton Rouge, a competent mechanic, to furnish an estimate of the cost, with specifications of the works necessary to be done to the Capitol; and, after a careful examination of the building, and upon consultation with Mr McVea, the Committee beg leave to report, that the sum of four thousand five hundred dollars ($4,500) is required to do the work, according to the estimates and specifications reported to the House of Representatives.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed, GEO. S. LACEY,
Chairman.

Mr. Moore, from the Committee on Internal Improvements, to whom was referred a bill entitled: an act to authorize the Board of Swamp Land

Commissioners to receive and adopt as a part of the General Levee system such levees as have been built by the parishes of Carroll, Madison and Catahoula, under the provisions of an act entitled an act forming a Levee District comprised of the parishes of Carroll, Madison and Catahoula, for the better protection of the same from inundation, approved the 18th day of March, 1852, and to appropriate the sum of fifty thousand dollars from the General Swamp Land Fund to pay for the same, reported favorably.

On motion of Mr. Moore, it was taken up and read section by section.

Mr. Griffin, from the Committee on Parochial Affairs, made the following report:

The Committee on Parochial Affairs, have instructed me to report favorably on An act to redistrict the parish of St. Bernard.

And on an act to incorporate the Caster Bayou Turnpike Road Company.

And reported unfavorably on

An act to emancipate the slaves Louis, Azelia, Octave, Gustave, Don Louis, Josephine and Alexandrine.

And to report back to the Senate for its consideration

An act to define the boundary line between the parishes or Iberville and West Baton Rouge.

Chairman.

Mr. Macmurdo, from the Committee on Banks and Banking, to whom was referred a bill entitled an act supplemental to an act entitled an act to establish a general system of Free Banking in the State of Louisiana, reported favorably.

Mr. Clifton, from the same committee, submitted the following minority report on the same subject, to wit:

REPORT.

The undersigned, members of the Committee on Banks and Banking, to which was referred the bill entitled an act supplemental to an act entitled an act to establish a general system of Free Banking in the State of Louisiana,—dissenting from the majority of said committee, beg leave to make the following report:

That they cannot see any good reason for increasing the basis of the Free Banks, it being at present redundantly large for all the requirements of the trade and commerce of the city and State. The act of Consolidation of the City of New Orleans authorized the issuance of about eight millions of dollars of bonds, for the payment of the consolidation debt of the city and its municipalities. These bonds, together with the bonds of the United States and those of the State of Louisiana, were adopted by the Free Banking law of 1853, as a basis for banking. Under this law up to the present period only, $1,229,000 of the city bonds, and $281,000 of the State bonds, have been deposited with the Auditor, upon which security he has issued $1,510,000 of bank notes, leaving some $6,800,000 of the consolidated city bonds, still obtainable as a basis for any future bank issues, an amount nearly as large as the whole present circulation of all the banks, chartered and free, of the city of New Orleans—an amount that will not probably be required for the future wants of Banks, operating under this law, for years to come, if ever. Where, then, the necessity of enlarging this basis, already so large? The unconcealed object of this bill is not, as it imports to be, for the purpose of improving or amending the Free Banking law, but to use that law, by engrafting these bonds upon it, for the purpose of bolstering their credit and making them more marketable. Is it right, is it prudent that the currency, under our experimental system of banking, should be indirectly tampered with, in order to sustain the credit of bonds issued for the benefit of this or that scheme? And where is the assurance, that the issuance of bonds may not be continued to an indefinite extent? The city has the power to issue bonds at any time her people and their municipal authorities may think proper, and if this thing is not nipped in the bud, our Legislatures will be constantly called upon to admit fresh bonds, as security for the issues of fresh bank notes, until both bonds and notes become valueless.

A distinguished gentleman of New Orleans, connected with banks and railways, says, in a letter, which we are authorized to use, that, when this supplemental act is passed, "an arrangement, I hesitate not to say, can be made, of an equitable character, with the Roads and the Banks, established under the Free Banking law, to place at once from one and a half to two millions dollars of the Bonds, which they—the Banks—want as a basis for circulation—the sum to be paid for in monthly instalments, which might be small in amount for each, and, in the aggregate, nearly or quite sufficient for the current requirements of the Roads." Thus, it is already contemplated under this bill to increase the bank circulation of the State, by heaping credit upon credit. The bonds, which are but a credit, are to be purchased upon credit, and immediately deposited with the Auditor, as securities for fresh issues of bank notes, before even the bonds are paid for.

The inflation of currency, under such a state of things, would be alike dangerous to the moral welfare and pecuniary interests of our citizens, by opening the floodgates of debt and extravagance, with their attendant vices, and subjecting the industry of the State to the reaction that all experience has proven inevitably follows wild and extravagant speculation.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed, C. W. CLIFTON,
R. C. WICKLIFFE.

Mr. Clifton, from the Joint Committee on Banks and Banking, made the following report, which, on motion of Mr. Clifton, 500 copies of the report and the appendix were ordered to be printed.

The Joint Committee on Banks and Banking of the Senate and House of Representatives, in the discharge of the duties imposed upon them, have made a thorough examination into the affairs of the Banks of New Orleans, and beg leave to submit the following report to your honorable body:

In the course of the examination, your Committee regret to state, that with the commendable exception of the Citizens' Bank, they found all the other chartered banks had overstepped the limits of the line prescribed by the second fundamental rule of the act of 1852 reviving the banks of the city of New Orleans. Under the wholesome provisions of this act, the currency of Louisiana has been a model for the Union, as furnishing a safe and reliable medium for the interchange of values, undisturbed by the fluctuations that characterise commercial operations conducted under a money circulation tainted with the slighest suspicion of unsoundness. Restrictive as the policy of the Legislature of 1842 appeared to have been on the subject of Banks, the experience of the succeeding years has conclusively proven the wisdom of its measures, and their full success in securing the desired object—a safe and convertible currency for the people. It is therefore with regret that we see that the barrier has been broken through, and that a precedent has been established so dangerous to the best interests of the State.

Your Committee, in their inquiries into the causes which had induced this extension of circulation, were informed by the bank officers (whose replies to the interrogatories propounded to them will be found appended to the report) that it was chiefly attributable to the pressure on the money market, owing to the lowness of the upper rivers, and the consequent impossibility to get the produce of the country to market in time to meet the liabilities, and to the withdrawal of a large amount of specie from the old banks to meet the wants of the new ones created by the Free Banking law. With all due respect to the opinions of these gentlemen, your Committee think that a more radical reason might be found in the refusal of the Banks to submit to the loss that would be necessarily entailed by the importation of a sufficient quantity of specie to have enabled them freely to have met the wants of the commercial community, and at the same time kept themselves within the healthy and safe line required by the law of 1842. There were abundant means within the control of the Banks to have procured any amount of specie necessary for the purpose. Exchange, both sterling and domestic, had been freely offered and sold at moderate rates during the months of December and January, and considerable purchases were made by the Banks themselves. Had the remittance for such purchases been made in coin, it would not have cost over one per cent including freight, insurance and loss of interest, which trifling loss (when compared with the interests at stake) would have enabled them to have kept in line and at the same time have given the necessary facilities to the commercial interests of the city. Instead of pursuing this course, those Banks which have been dealing in exchange have sold their checks at the highest rate of premium they could obtain. In some instances, when exchange was falling in value owing to the pressure for money, the Bank as made discounts to her customers, with stipulations that the proceeds were to be payable in a check on New York at a considerable advance on the market rate, compelling the applicant for the loan to sell his check at a loss in order to realize the funds to meet his wants. Such usurious courses on the part of an institution created by Legislative enactment, and whose rates of discount are strictly defined by its act of incorporation, cannot be too strongly condemned by your Committee. In the Appendix will be found the answers of the Banks to the interrogatories of the Committee on this subject.

It appears that specie has been recently ordered by several of the Banks to the gross amount of about $825,000—and since the examination a letter has been received from the Canal Bank, announcing the arrival of $400,000 in coin. A letter is also received from the Bank of Louisiana, dated 20th Feb., announcing that on that day it had in line $442,000. These are gratifying evidences that the Banks intend to place themselves at an early period within the requirements of the statute.

As experience is the only test of the soundness of theory, your Committee have been assiduous in gathering all the information in their power with regard to the workings of the Free Banking law, and to see if its practical operations sustained the favorable views that were formed of its theory. To this point they interrogated the officers of the Free Banks, and also received the opinions of many of the most distinguished merchants of the city. From these sources of information, together with the results of their own examination, they feel free to state that they eminently fulfill, to the extent that they have been tried, all the advantages that have been claimed for the system,—

1st. As furnishing a safe and sound currency, amply secured from all danger of loss.

2nd. As offering, in the ratio of the capital employed, as much facility and means to meet the wants of the mercantile community, as is consistent with the preservation of a solid and substantial basis

3d. As presenting sufficient inducement in the way of profit, to enable those engaged in it to realize as much from their investments of capital, as is paid by almost any other regular business.

And lastly, as a system open to the competition of the world, and free from the character of monopoly which attaches to banking under exclusive charter privileges.

Your Committee respectfully recommend to your honorable body, the exemption of the Consolidated Bank from the control of the Board of Currency. This institution being in a state of liquidation by law, and having no power to issue their notes for circulation, and the interests of the State being amply protected by the supervision of the Board of Bank Managers appointed by the Executive,—it does not appear to your Committee to be either useful to the public or just to the unfortunate stockholders, that they should be compelled to contribute their pro rata for the support of the Board, whose functions are only applicable to a Bank in active operation.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THE SWAMP LAND ACT.

The following bill was taken up:

AN ACT

To amend an act, entitled "An act to reclaim and drain the Swamp and Overflowed Lands of the State of Louisiana," &c., approved 30th of April, 1853, and to appropriate the sum of three hundred thousand dollars to carry out the provisions of this act.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, That the first section of an act entitled "an act to reclaim and drain the Swamp and Overflowed Lands donated to the State of Louisiana by Act of Congress, entitled 'an act to aid the State of Louisiana in draining the Swamp Lands therein,'" approved on the 30th April, 1853, be so amended as to read as follows: That the State shall be divided into four levee and draining districts.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, &c., That the second section of the above recited act be so amended as to read as follows: That all that part of the State south of the thirty-first degree of north latitude, and east of the Mississippi river, shall constitute the First District, and all that part of the State south of the thirty-first degree of north latitude and west of the Mississippi river, (except the Parishes of Rapides and Avoyelles,) shall constitute the Second District; the Parishes of Avoyelles, Rapides, Natchitoches, Bienville, Claiborne, Bossier, Caddo, DeSoto, Sabine and Winn, shall constitute the Third District, and the Parishes of Concordia, Tensas, Madison, Carroll, Morehouse, Union, Ouachita, Jackson, Caldwell, Franklin and Catahoula, shall constitute the Fourth District.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, &c., That the third section of the above recited act be so amended as to read as follows: The Governor shall appoint a Commissioner for each District, who shall be a resident of the district for which he is appointed. The four Commissioners shall constitute and be called by the name of the "Swamp Land Commissioners," and shall hold their office for the term of two years, dating from the 30th April, 1853, and until their successors shall be qualified; provided the said Commissioners or either of them may be removed by the Governor, whenever he may deem it expedient.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, &c., That the Governor shall have the power to fill any vacancy in said Board of Commissioners, caused by death, resignation or otherwise.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, &c., That each of said Commissioners before entering upon the duties of his office, shall give a bond to the State of Louisiana, in the sum of five thousand dollars, with two securities, said bond to be approved of by the Governor of the State, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty, and the Secretary of State shall administer to him the oath of office, prescribed in the Constitution of the State.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, &c., That the said Board of Commissioners shall meet at the town of Baton Rouge on the first Monday in May next, and every three months thereafter, and oftener if by them deemed necessary.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, &c., That said Commissioners shall be and are authorized to make all by-laws and regulations that may be necessary for their proper organization, they shall select one of their members as President, and shall have a Secretary who shall keep a journal of their proceedings, and they shall fix the compensation of their Secretary, provided he shall not receive more than five hundred dollars per annum.

Sec 8. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of said Commissioners, at their first meeting, and every two years thereafter, to appoint a competent Engineer for each of said Districts, who shall hold his office for two years, dating from the 30th April, 1853, subject, however, to be removed by a majority of said Commissioners.

Sec. 9. Be it further enacted, &c., That each of said Engineers shall receive a compensation for his services at the rate of twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, payable quarterly.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of the said Engineers, in their respective Districts, to determine the locality, extent and dimensions of the necessary levees and drains to drain and reclaim the swamp and overflowed lands of the State. Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to authorize the said Commissioners to employ the Swamp Land Funds in the repairing or reconstruction of established levees along the banks of the rivers and bayous of this State, it being the true intent of this act to supply the deficiencies in the system of levees along the principal water-courses, and thereby assist in the reclamation and draining of swamp lands; but whenever any levees shall cave in or be destroyed by the action of the current, or whenever it shall be in such condition as, in the opinion of three adjoining freeholders, or a majority of them, that the same ought to be renewed and repaired by the Swamp Land Commissioners, then the proprietor of said levee shall have the right to notify the Commissioner of the Swamp Land District of the same, whose duty it shall be to send his Engineer to locate the said levee, and have the same constructed under the provisions of this act; and provided further that one-half the cost of said levee be collected from the proprietor or parish before the work is contracted for by the Commissioner or Engineer; and provided, also, that when any parish is liable for the construction of any levee or levees, said parish, instead of the proprietor, shall be compelled to pay the one-half of the cost specified in this section; provided, that when any objections shall be made by the proprietor of the lands where the levee is to be made as to the locality of said levee, then the same shall be fixed by said Engineer in conjunction with three land holders, to be taken from amongst the nearest neighbors to said proprietor, selected, one by the proprietor, and the other by said Engineer, and the third by the two others selected.

Sec 11. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of each of said Engineers to lay off his District into as many levee wards and draining districts as circumstances may require, and to make a full and detailed report thereof to the Commissioners, at such time as they may require.

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, &c., That all levees built or repaired under the provisions of this act, except when such repairs or constructions are in progress, shall be under the exclusive supervision of the parochial authorities, provided that on the recommendation of the majority of the Swamp Land Commissioners the Legislature may adopt certain levees recommended by said Commissioners, to be supervised and maintained out of the Swamp Land Fund.

Sec 13. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of each Commissioner, in his own district, after the formation of the levee wards and draining districts, to let out the making or repair of such levees or drains as the Board of Commissioners may order, to the lowest bidder, after sixty days notice thereof in some newspaper published in the parish in which the work is to be done. If no newspaper is published therein, then notices posted up at three public places in said parish, one of which shall be at the Court House. All works to be let out at a stipulated price per cubic yard. Provided, that the Commissioner be authorized to reject all bids when he considers them unreasonable, the parties incompetent or the securities insufficient; provided also, that the Commissioners shall in no case accept a greater price than shall have been previously fixed by the Board of Commissioners, and not exceeding ten cents per cubic yard, for all levees up to four feet in height, and one cent per cubic yard additional for every foot in greater height of levee.

Sec. 14. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of each of said Commissioners to take of every person or persons who may undertake any work contemplated by this act, a bond with adequate security, conditioned for the faithful performance of said work undertaken; said bond to be in a sum equal to the supposed value of the work to be rendered, or sufficient to insure the completion of the work, and made payable to the Commissioners, and recoverable before any competent Court of the State, and when recovered, to constitute a part of the Swamp Land Fund. And it shall be the duty of the Commissioners to cause, as far as practicable, within their respective districts, accurate plots in form of townships to be made, showing in colors the swamp and overflowed lands belonging to the State, in order that the Legislature may be in possession of full information with respect to the swamp land domain, and that they may judge of the fidelity of their officers in the creation and construction of levees herein authorized. Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed as to authorize the Commissioners to obtain from the General Land Office duplicates of township maps now in possession of the Land Register of the State.

Sec. 15. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of said Commissioners to require all contracts for the building of levees and repairs thereto, to be completed by the first Monday in December of each year.

Sec. 16. Be it further enacted, &c., That the Road and Levee Inspectors are hereby empowered within the several parishes to call out to work on the levees therein, in case of a crevasse or threatened crevasse, all the male slaves above the age of fifteen years and under sixty, or so many thereof as may be deemed necessary, whose owners reside on the same side of the river or bayou within seven miles of the threatened danger; provided, that this shall not apply to any person being on high lands, that is, lands not alluvial, and whenever the owner of said slave or slaves, or his agent or overseer, shall refuse or neglect to furnish the slaves required by the Engineer or Inspector, then, in that event, the said owner shall pay five dollars per day for each slave not sent under said requisition, said amount to be due to said Commissioners, and recoverable in their names before any competent Court, and to be paid into the Treasury of the State and constitute a part of the Swamp Land Fund. That whenever any slave or slaves may be furnished upon the requisition referred to in this section, the owner of the slave or slaves shall be entitled to demand and receive as compensation for his or their services at the rate of one dollar and fifty cents per day for each and every slave, payable out of the Swamp Land Fund, except the owner of the land upon which the crevasse occurs, or threatens to occur, who is not to be considered as entitled to the compensation allowed by this section; and provided further, that in all cases when slaves are thus called out, the Inspector shall call upon all owners of slaves within the above mentioned distance in proportion to the number of the above described slaves owned by such proprietor, he being bound to furnish necessary tools and provisions; provided the said compensation shall only apply to works constructed under the provision of this act; provided further, that if in the opinion of the said Inspector the slave labor called out as aforesaid is not sufficient for the exigency of the case, the said Inspector is authorized to employ such additional labor as he may deem fit, the wages of which labor shall be chargeable to the Swamp Land Fund, and shall be paid by said Commissioners on the presentation of the proper vouchers by the Inspector.

Sec. 17. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of the Engineers as far as practicable, to superintend the making and repairing of all levees and drains within their respective districts, which may be ordered by the Board of Commissioners, to make out the cost of the same when completed, to whom due, the items thereof, and to certify the same to the Commissioners.

Sec. 18. Be it further enacted, &c., That all works done, and expenses incurred under this act, shall be paid for by the Commissioners out of any monies in the Treasury of the State arising from the sales of Swamp Lands; provided, that the funds arising from the sale of the Swamp and Overflowed Lands shall be divided by the Auditor of Public Accounts among the several districts, in the following proportions, viz:

To the First District 7–32.
To the Second District 11–32.
To the Third District 6–32.
To the Fourth District 8–32.

Sec. 19. Be it further enacted, &c., That all expenses incurred under this act shall be paid by the Auditor upon the warrant of the commissioners; provided, that no warrant shall be paid unless signed by a majority of the commissioners.

Sec 20. Be it further enacted, &c., That each of said commissioners shall receive a compensation for his services at the rate of fifteen hundred dollars per annum.

Sec. 21. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of each of said commissioners to supervise the acts of the Engineers in his district, and to examine all the works made or to be made under the provisions of this act, within his district.

Sec. 22. Be it further enacted, &c.. That the commissioners shall, on the first day of January of each year, report to the Governor of the State all their official transactions, and recommend the adoption of such means as to them seem necessary for the protection of the alluvial lands from inundation, and the draining and reclamation of the same. The Governer shall transmit their report, with his message to the General Assembly at each session thereof.

Sec. 23 Be it further enacted, &c., That all the debts contracted and salaries for services rendered in carrying out the provisions of this act, shall be paid out of the sales of the swamp lands, and no debt contracted under the provisions of this act, shall ever become a charge on any other funds in the State Treasury than those arising from the sale of swamp lands.

Sec. 24. Be it further enacted, &c., That neither of said commissioners, nor any of the engineers or other agents appointed by them, shall, in any manner whatever, have any interest in the contracts made under the authority of this act, under the penalty of a removal from office and the forfeiture of the amount due to them respectively.

Sec. 25. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of the commissioners at their several meetings to order the most important works under this act to be done in preference to others of less importance, and each commissioner, in the event of any great public emergency or imminent danger from overflow, to any portion of his district, shall be and he is hereby authorized to use, upon the recommendation of the engineer of his district, such means as may be required to avert such danger and to protect the interest and safety of the alluvial lands.

Sec. 26. Be it further enacted, &c, That the Governor is hereby authorized to withdraw from sale any portion of the Swamp and Overflowed Lands, on which the Swamp Land Commissioners contemplate making improvements, whenever he may deem the same necessary for the public interest.

Sec. 27. Be it further enacted, &c., That in order to carry out the provisions of this act, the sum of three hundred thousand dollars be, and the same is hereby appropriated from the funds which have been, or may be paid into the State Treasury from the sale of Swamp and overflowed lands, which sum; shall be disbursed on the warrant of a majority of the Swamp Land Commissioners, approved by the Auditor of Public Accounts; provided, that neither of the Swamp Land Commissioners shall contract to pay for a larger amount of work in his district, or draw warrants for a larger sum of money than the proportion to which his district is entitled, in accordance with the division of the Swamp Land Fund, as provided for in this act.

The first section being under consideration—

Mr. Moore said—

I will move an amendment. I am told we cannot amend the bill in time for it to pass. I do not believe it. We ought not to pass anything wrong, simply because the other House has passed it. The bill before the Senate is no better than the present system. It is simply a reproduction of the cumbrous machine, which has been found so ineffective that it would scarcely work at all. By the bill we are to have four Commissioners and four Engineers. But there is no necessity to have four Engineers to meet here in Baton Rouge. My amendment, if adopted, will result in a saving to the State of $10,000 a year. This great fund might be so used as to prove a blessing to the State: but it can never accomplish anything if it be squandered in the payment of exhorbitant salaries. There seems, however, to be a desire to spend it all in the payment of salaries. Why cannot we get Engineers, without having four officers interposed between them and the Governor. I propose to amend the bill by striking out the word "Commissioner." My amendment was presented to the Committee and met with favor. It was proposed to elect the Commissioners by the people. I can say I am in favor of that mode, and I was instructed to amend my bill in that way I shall now try to show in what respect the House bill is the same as the present, and where it differs. The first exception to the late, or rather, I should say, the present law, is that there are to be four Commissioners instead of three. The third section contains a proviso, which confers on the Governor the power of removal. That is not contained in the late law. The 4th section is the same; the 5th is the same; the 6th is the same; the 8th is in some measure an exception, as it limits the appointment of the Engineer to two years Section 9th also contains an exception, as it reduces the salary of the Engineers from $3000 to $2500 per annum. The 10th is the same, excepting the provisions at the end, which may be salutary. Section 11th is the same as the present law. The 12th contains a very salutary provision. It is this—

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, &c., That all levees built or repaired under the provisions of this act, except when such repairs or constructions are in progress, shall be under the exclusive supervision of the parochial authorities, provided that upon the recommendation of the majority of the Swamp Land Commissioners the Legislature may adopt certain levees recommended by said Commissioners, to be supervised and maintained out of the Swamp Land Fund.

It will be seen that the law provides that the levees when once made, shall be under the supervision of the parochial authorities The 13th is the same to the 16th line, excepting that the word Engineer is used instead of Commissioner. By the late law this was imposed on the Commissioners. It has a proviso which may be salutary, but it also contains a clause which will prevent any levees being built under this bill. None can be built for ten cents; the lowest price is 15 cents.

Digitized by Google

The 14th section differs. This makes it the duty of the Commissioner to cause to be made plots, showing the swamp lands, &c. Now, what is the use of this, when all this is shown by the plots in the land office below. Let them go there and procure them. Why waste the fund in this way? The 15th is the same with a slight exception The 16th is the same except the proviso at the end. The 17th is the same with the exception of two or three words. Here it says that the Engineer must superintend all levees recommended by the Commissioner. This is very proper. The 18th is very properly changed. The 19th section is the same as the 21st of the present law; the 21st is the same as the 22nd, the 23rd as the 24th, the 24th as the 25th, the 25th as the 26th They have added to the bill the 26th section, which is a very good one. For that section I should vote with very great pleasure. At the end of the bill $300,000 is appropriated. It might as well have been put in the General Appropriation Bill. The lowest sum for which the bill can be carried into effect will increase our expenses $8000. The Commissioners have some privileges of payments for traveling expenses, &c By the reports which have been laid before the Legislature, $2000 have been expended for travelling expenses during the year. If they are to be permitted to charge for every hill and corner they visit the expense will be enormous. The proper way is to give a specific sum which shall be just and reasonable. In my bill $200 is allowed. I have no desire to say much on this subject, already having expressed my views on a previous occasion. We have a law now which is about as bad as it can be. So much is not needed for each person for travelling expenses, yet they are permitted to take just what they please. For my part, I shall never vote for the bill as it stands. I consider it a monstrosity, as bad as even the present law, which is about as bad as can be imagined. Each Engineer and Commissioner construes the law just as he thinks proper. which may occasion confusion, that would be ridiculous were not injurious. I shall move to strike out the three first sections of the bill, and to insert in place them the first section of my bill. On that motion I shall call for the yeas and nays.

Mr King—

It would be almost useless for me to explain my views on this matter, as every Senator must know them by this time, yet I should desire to say a few words more, as the subject is one of sufficient importance to warrant the most elaborate discussion. By the amendment of the Senator from St. Martin, we should certainly get rid of much expense, and to that extent we should fulfill the important requisite of economy. I will state that the bill which passed last year was sprung upon the Senate at a late hour. The cry was that there was not time to make anything better, or to improve that one, and it was rushed through in most indecent haste. Now we are again told, unless we pass this bill, it will be too late to do any. I, sir, will not give up my views for such a threat as that. I will not consent to abandon my belief, and accept what I think wrong, merely because a gentleman may choose to tell me that it is too late to do better. I do not think this bill ought to be passed at all. It is no improvement on the present system, which every one acknowledges to be totally inefficient. The letter from St. Martin has shown that it contains expressions which will prevent any levee being built by the State. This bill proposes ten cents a yard for building levees, when the Grand Levee cost twenty cents a foot. This is one fatal objection to the bill, apart from the defective principle on which it is based. Shall we then pass the bill, simply because we are told that the other House will accept no other? There is also an objection to that section which relates to plots, surveys, &c. But let me read it. The concluding clause says:

"Provided that nothing herein shall be so construed, as to authorize the Commissioners to obtain from the General Land Office, duplicates of township maps, now in the possession of the Land Register of this State."

Here it will be seen that the Commissioners have not only to do a useless thing, but they must make original surveys, not being permitted to avail themselves of those already made. Every member knows that to do a work of this kind would cost a great deal of money. Yet we are told that we must pass this bill just as it is, because the Lower House will have no time to consider an amendment. If we pass this bill we shall spend our money without affecting anything; our swamps will remain undrained, our levees unbuilt. The honorable gentleman from St. Martin, (Mr. Moore) has well characterized the bill as a monstrosity. I shall not vote for any such bill, under the coercion of any such threat as that which has been used in order to compel us to accept it, whether it prove advisable or not It would be much better for us to exercise our own judgment, irrespective of that of the House.

Mr Pugh—

The position which I took last year in relation to this question is the one which I occupy now. I object to the bill entirely. I shall not support any bill which does not carry out the provisions of the Constitution The circumstances of the last few days make it more than ever necessary to adhere to the Constitution. I repeat, that I shall never vote for any bill that does not carry out articles 130 and 131 of the Constitution; but for such a bill I will vote with pleasure. But that must be with me a preliminary requisite.

Mr. DeRussy—

I readily acknowledge that some few of the sections of this bill might profitably be amended; but the objections which may be urged against it are not of so capital a nature as to make it a bad bill. It should be passed now, because we have no time to amend it, so that it can return to the other House, and go through the necessary form before the adjournment. It would be just as easy to go back and make a new bill. We are now within less than four days of the end of the session, and we absolutely have not time to amend the bill. A new subdivision of the land would take more time than we have to spare.

Mr. Moore—

My subdivision is the same as that of this bill.

Mr. DeRussy—

What is the use of it then?

Mr. Moore—

We want only Engineers, not two sets of officers.

Mr. DeRussy—

It is too late for such objections to be urged. An objection has also been made to the price allowed for building levees. I thought myself it was too low. But the Commissioners fixed the price, and they should know for what price they can get the work done. We have been told that the Grand Levee cost twenty cents a foot; but that was the maximum for buiding levees four feet high, and one cent for every cube foot. The levee alluded to by the gentleman is eight or ten feet high, so that it is not strange it should have cost twenty cents. The way I have stated is the proper way of estimating the cost. The Commissioners think they can get it done for the price stated in the bill. There is another objection in reference to plots of the lands. The section reads thus:

Sec. 14 Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of each of said Commissioners to require of every person or persons who may undertake any work contemplated by this act, a bond with adequate security, conditioned for the faithful performance of said work undertaken; said bond to be in a sum equal to the supposed value of the services to be rendered, or sufficient to insure the execution of the work, and made payable to the Commissioners, and recoverable before any competent Court of the State, and when recovered, to constitute a part of the Swamp Land Fund. And it shall be the duty of the Commissioners to cause, as far as practicable, within their respective districts, accurate plots in form of townships to be made, showing in colors the swamp and overflowed lands belonging to the State, in order that the Legislature may be in possession of full information with respect to the swamp land domain, and that they may judge of the fidelity of their officers in the creation and construction of levees herein authorized. Provided, that nothing herein shall be so construed as to authorize the Commissioners to obtain from the General Land Office duplicates of township maps now in possession of the Land Register of the State.

Now, what are plots? The Surveyors, in the course of their journeys, pass by every marked tree, and get to know every one of them in a township. He puts all this down in his note book, to be made use of afterwards. By one section of the bill, the Governor is authorized to withdraw from sale such lands as he thinks necessary How can he do it if he have not something to go by? The bill does not require accurate surveys to be made over again, as gentlemen seem to think. These are trifling objections, yet sufficient to defeat the bill if pressed. And let me ask, how long would it take the House to make a new division? There are many malcontents who would not be willing to make another division, even to save the bill. I admit, also, that an enacting clause is necessary, but that can easily be added. I repeat that the objections which have been urged are not sufficient to warrant us in running the risk of losing the bill. I move to lay on the table the amendment of the Senator from St. Martin.

Mr. Palfrey—

I move to lay the bill and amendment on the table.

The amendments were laid on the table.

Mr. Palfrey—

I now move to lay the whole bill on the table.

Mr. Hodge—

I should like some friend of the bill to explain the advantage which the bill possesses over the present system.

Mr. Wickliffe—

It make four districts, and divides the fund into four parts.

Mr. Hodge—

This will only be adding another to the number of those who are already sucking from the public treasury.

Mr. DeRussy—

I will give to the gentleman the information which he seeks. The third district is too large. One Commissioner cannot superintend it. For that reason it has been thought necessary to diminish the size of the third district by dividing it into two.

The motion to lay the bill on the table was lost.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I move the adoption of the first section, and call for the previous question.

The Secretary called the roll. On Mr. Trudeau's name being called, he said—

I vote "no," because the bill is not in accordance with the requirements of the Constitution.

Mr. Hodge offered certain amendments.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The reasons I shall vote against the amendments are these: The bill is a compromise of the House; indeed it was with great difficulty that that body could pass any bill at all. If any change be made, we shall not be able to come to any agreement with the House.

Mr Hodge—

I will say a word on this subject. It will be found that by the 16th section a distribution of the fund is made. By that distribution great injustice is done to the parishes comprised within the third district. I move to strike out Avoyelles and DeSoto, in order to make that district so much the smaller, and the next one so much the larger, and thus reserve something like equity between them. The distribution is far from being made justly by the bill. To the second district nearly one half of the whole fund has been given. There is a great disproportion between the division of the fund and the work to be done. Will any one assert, that there is as much land unreclaimed and not leveed in the second district as in the third? The whole extent of Red River, so far as it flows within the State of Louisiana, is included in the third district. Both sides of it require to be leveed, making a total of nearly 900 miles on Red River alone. The amount of swamp land in the different districts is not in proportion to the distribution made of the fund. No one can say that there is as much swamp land in the second district as in the third. In the third district there is but a small amount of land entered, so that there is so much the more not reclaimed. The fund should be distributed, not for the benefit of those who own plantations, but to reclaim and drain the swamp lands belonging to the State. It is the duty of the State to reclaim the public overflowed lands. What has been the practice? And what is the effect of the bill? It is purely an individual system and as such I denounce it. $50,000 are appropriated for the benefit of planters, and not for the purpose of leveeing and draining the swamp and overflowed lands. This is radically unjust. I call on Senators from the third district to stand by me in my opposition to a bill that does so much injustice to the section they represent. Let us insist on a fair apportionment. The bill gives us the largest district and the smallest fund: this is manifestly unjust. In our district is Red River, and its vast quantity of overflowed lands; besides much other lands to be leveed and drained; yet they give us not a greater portion of the fund than to the districts in which New Orleans is situated, though no one will contend there is as much work to be done in that district as in ours. They give Red River what they wish—not what she is entitled to In the second district, nearly all the alluvial lands are protected, and of course does not need so large a proportion of the fund. Yet to that district as much is given as to the third. Of course, the second district, which benefits by it, will support this bill; so will the city of New Orleans, to whose district, though it contains so few unleveed lands, 7-32 are apportioned. This is certainly more than she is entitled to, and of course she will support it. We of Red River must take just what they choose to give us. I opposed the bill of last year on account of similarly unjust apportionment. The third district contains twice as much overflowed and swamp land as the second, yet they receive an equal or nearly an equal amount; to the second 6-32, and to the third 7-32 are given. I tell Senators from other districts, that the only ground on which they can support this bill, is that they want their plantations protected. I should like to see them protected; I should like to see them relieved of the danger of inundation; but that was not the purpose for which these lands were granted to us by Congress.

Digitized by Google

Mr. DeRussy—

As a resident of the third district, I certainly should feel as much interest in it as the gentleman from Caddo, yet I do not share his opposition to this bill. The division of the fund is not proportioned to the actual area of the districts, but to the work necessary to be done, which depends to a great extent on the height of the levee to be built. I think the apportionment is as fair as it could be made. The gentleman says that the Mississippi front in the second district is well protected. Has he taken the back lands into consideration? I think he cannot have done so. I repeat, that the estimate for a division of the fund is not based on the area, but on the elevation of the necessary levees. If the gentleman will take into consideration the height of the inundations on the two districts, he will find that the inundations are not so high on the Red River, and consequently, that we are not compelled to make our levees of so great an elevation. I gave full reflection to this subject last year. The bill of last year divided the fund thus: To the first 3-8; to the second 2 8; o the third 3-8. The bill gives to the first 11-32; to the second 7-32; to the third 8-32, and to the fourth 6-32. It will thus be seen that we of the third district have actually gained on what was given to the old third district; now the third and fourth. We have now 14-32 against 11-32 last year. We have therefore gained and not lost. It we do not adopt the bill we remain just where we were. The gentleman's objection is certainly ill-founded.

Mr. Hodge—

The third and fourth together have 14-32, but re are now on the third.

Mr, DeRussy—

The gentleman then objects to a division, by which we get more than we had before. I frequently spoke with the gentleman on the Committee, in relation to the arrangement of this ill, and as one interested, I must say that I am atisfied. I concur, therefore, in the motion to y the motion on the table.

Mr. Hodge—

Is the Senator familiar with the history of this ll in the House?

Mr. DeRussy—

I am.

Mr. Hodge—

Does not the gentleman know that the first and cond agreed to give to the third only just what ey choose?

Mr. DeRussy—

I have not. Nor does it seem probable that sh is the case, when the two districts composing the old Third District have 14-32 instead of 11-32, which they had last year.

Mr. Hodge—

But the third has not as much. I have not as yet heard any argument to convince me that New Orleans should have 7-32, and the third district only 8-32. I do not see why New Orleans should be preferred to Red River. The bill is unjust to the Red River district, and I am astonished that any gentleman from that section can support it.

Mr. DeRussy—

The First district gets only 7-32, which is less than one-fourth of the whole. Last year it received a quarter. The old third gets 14-32.

Mr. Hodge—

Where do the 6-10 go to? Not to Red River, but to the other district, now called the fourth.

Mr. DeRussy—

I have shown that Red River is increased 1-32.

Mr. Hodge—

I do not see how.

Mr. DeRussy—

I have already made the explanation. If the gentleman desires to find it out, let him make the calculation, and he will see that I am right. It is true that the new third district does not get all that was given up by the first and second, but it gets more than the proportion it received last year, taking the same parishes into account. If we disturb this division we shall not have time to make another.

Mr. Hodge—

By the last law the third district would have been entitled to 12-32. That district contains more swamp lands than any two of the others.

Mr. DeRussy—

No, sir.

Mr. Hodge—

I should like the gentleman to state the proposition.

Mr. DeRussy—

I am indebted to a gentleman who is well informed on the subject, and for a statement of the comparative area of swamp lands in each district, which he has just handed me. The first district has 400,000 acres.

Mr. Hodge—

I would ask the gentleman if that is all swamp and overflowed land.

Mr. DeRussy—

Yes; the statement is from the office below.

Mr. Evans—

Is it public land, or does it belong to individuals?

Mr. DeRussy—

I do not know. But the quatity of swamp land is thus: First District, 400,000; Second, 5,000,000; Third, 1,700,000; Fourth, 2,400,000 acres. I would again state, that the estimate of the cost of levees is based on their elevation.

Mr Hodge—

Does the gentleman not know there is as much land overflowed on Red River as on the Mississippi, in Louisiana? In 1849, there was not a dry inch of land along the river.

Mr. DeRussy—

1849 was an extraordinary year. I have never known such an inundation as that on Red River. But to make a fair comparison, we must put the two sections in the same position. We must consider the relative amount of damage that would be done on each were they both equally unprotected. The great overflow of 1849 was not comparable in point of damage to one on the Mississippi equally unguarded against.

The section was adopted.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Palfrey—

I now ask permission of the Senate to change my vote on the first section of the bill. My attention was called off at the moment, the vote was taken, and I did not pay that attention which perhaps I ought. I have no objection to the first section. I would rather appear on the record as voting for it than not.

The second section was then taken up.

Mr. King—

I wish to offer an amendment, which will, if adopted, change the whole character of the bill. I propose to elect the Commissioners by the people. On behalf of that principle I have already expressed my views. I belong to a class of politicians who believe the people are capable of taking care of themselves, and of electing their own officers. I have heard much said of the one man power, and of the dangers which would threaten us were we to adopt the system contained in the bill which I submitted to the Senate. Terrible pictures were drawn of the horrible results which would ensue, and it was even insinuated that the people were not capable of electing such a class of officers. But even now, under another system, we see the Swamp Land Fund going to ruin. If the people had something to do with the election of these officers, I believe it would make them more careful.

Mr. Lacoste—

When the people elected a Governor they did not wish to deprive him of all power. I therefore move to lay the amendment on the table.

Mr. Moore—

I have already explained my views on this subject. I too am in favor of an election by the people. It is not only Democratic, but it is good Whig doctrine, which I have already stated is the true Democratic party. In proof of this I can adduce the Constitution itself, which makes these officers elective. I have confidence in the people. I believe they will select officers as good if not better than the Governor will appoint. If we give the election to the people, the fund will not be squandered as it has hitherto been.

Mr. Wickliffe—

There is an old saying, that time changes all things –

Tempora mutanter et nos mutamer in illis.

It is fortunate that the art of printing was invented, so that we are enabled to detect and expose the inconsistencies which might otherwise escape our memory, or be hidden from our view. As an illustration of this, we have only to refer to the recorded debates of the Louisiana Senate, of the year 1853. By these it will be seen that the distinguished gentleman who now professes such love for the dear people; such confidence in their judgment and capacity, that they will be certain to elect the best officers, then entertained very different sentiments. I will read an extract from a speech delivered by that gentleman at the last session. (Here Mr. Wickliffe read an extract from the debates of 1853.) Now, sir, if a board composed of four members would be impracticable, when elected by that dear people, for which the gentleman professes such boundless love; would not a board of the same kind be impracticable now? Will the gentleman explain this contradiction—will he reconcile this discrepancy? Will he say that the principle is changed, because we have abolished those articles of the Constitution which directed the establishment of a Board of Public Works? Does he not know that some of us who voted against it last year, did so for the purpose of getting a system for our swamp lands? Does he not know that this Senate is determined to concur in anything that may be done by the other House? (Here Mr. Wickliffe read another extract.) This is what the gentleman then said on the subject. What has wrought the wondrous change? Is not the Governor, who is a practical engineer, accomplished in his profession, is he not as capable of selecting this class of officers as the people? I think he is; and I do not believe the people have the slightest desire to interfere in the matter; they are perfectly willing to trust the matter to the Governor, in whom they have already expressed their confidence.

Mr. King—

Charges of inconsistency are easily made; though, perhaps, not always as easily proved. The Senator from West Feliciana, who has just addressed the Senate, has attempted to convict me of inconsistency in the course I have pursued in reference to our internal improvements. I can meet his charge by a direct denial. No change has taken place in my views, and therefore there would be no necessity for the explanation which the gentleman has so loudly demanded. It is true that I was opposed to the Board of Public Works, and I am opposed to any Board for such a purpose. I have said so forty times, and I now repeat it. But my objection was to the Board as a Board; not to the mode of its election. I am not willing to take from the people their right to elect their own officers. The right which God gave, man should not take away. But though I can successfully repel the charge of inconsistency which the gentleman has brought against me, I do not believe he could so easily escape conviction on the same accusation. The gentleman has frequently rhapsodized on this floor, on the perils of the one-man power—of its dangerous results, and its oppugnation to our institutions. Yet the gentleman favors, and even urges a bill which increases the already large patronage of the executive, by throwing into his hands the appointment of a number of important officers. Let the gentleman explain this charge—let him reconcile this discrepancy. Here, sir, is a real, not an imaginary inconsistency—here is a case in which a man's batteries may be most successfully turned against himself. The Governor is not invested with this favor by the Constitution. It was not thought of by the Convention. When my bill gave to the engineer the power to appoint his assistants, much was said about the one man power—about the danger of committing so much to the hands of one person. Now, the same gentleman who was so sorely troubled with the very idea of confiding such power to a single man, wishes to give the appointment of all the officers to the Governor, who has already more power than any man in the State. Let the gentleman explain this inconsistency if he can. So far as my record is concerned, I am perfectly satisfied with it. In all that I have said on this question, I cannot call to mind anything that I could wish unsaid. I believe there are many who wish they had agreed with me now, and adopted my suggestions. My votes are before the Senate, and I believe that I can present as clear a record as any of its members.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Consistency has very little to do with the question. I only said that times change, and men change with them. I would merely ask the gentleman how he voted on the proposition of the Senator from Caddo to make the Commissioners elective. By the printed debates, he is reported as saying that the system would thereby be rendered inoperative, by reason of the election by the people who would select men of different parties; different prejudices and different local attachments, and therefore liable to be operated on by different and adverse influences. Yet, the gentleman thinks it strange that I should have opposed that bill of abominations which he introduced—a bill which placed the whole Swamp Land Fund under the control of one man. The Governor, of whom the gentleman seems to entertain such horror, has no such power. I have an abhorence of the one man power, just as I have of that demogogical cry of love for the dear people, which is sometimes indulged in by Senators, who should have more respect for the intelligence of their auditors.

Mr. King—

Gentlemen can judge on which side lies the inconsistency. I am perfectly willing to submit that question to the Senate. The Senator attempted to show that I had been inconsistent, by reading from my published speeches; but he failed in the effort, because there was no inconsistency there. I regret that the Senate has been troubled with a little personality of this kind. It never should have arisen with my consent. The past course of any individual has nothing to do with the question before the Senate. That should be discussed on its own merits. Whatever may have been the past course of any Senator cannot affect the discussion. The sins of omission or commission, of which any gentleman may have been guilty, should not be brought before the Senate. They are not legitimate subjects of discussion, and are still less legitimate arguments.

Mr Lacey—

I desire to put on record the reasons which induce me to vote against the amendment.

Mr. Ryan—

I vote against giving the powers to the Governor, no matter what may be the consequence.

Mr. Kenner—

I wish to know if it is the determination of the majority not to permit any amendments to be made, on the plea that there is no time. If so, I shall leave the hall and attend to other affairs.—This is a most important bill. On it depends to a great extent the prosperity of the State. It is an experiment which may or may not succeed; but at all events it is an experiment. Shall it be said there is no time to amend or improve it? That, sir, is no way for the Louisiana Senate to legislate. We should consider this bill solely on its own merits, without reference to any opinions we may suppose the House to entertain. The interests involved in this bill are too vast to be disposed of in so summary a manner, that we cannot be permitted to amend, scarcely even to discuss it. I warn the Senate not to give way to such a motive for if made a precedent it gives an excuse for all kinds of bad and hasty legislation.

Mr DeRussy—

What the gentleman says merits a word in reply. There are no capital objections to this bill. It has been discussed and the objections urged against it are of so trivial a nature as not to justify asking the defeat of the measure. They have been answered, I think, to the satisfaction of the Senate. If there are any capital objections to the bill, I should certainly not vote to amend it.—The most objectionable section has already been altered—it is that referring to plots of the lands. The objection urged to that was that it would be necessary to make surveys which would prove expensive. I showed that the section had no such object. The Surveyors must make cleared plots only.

The bill authorizes the Governor to withdraw lands from market when he considers it expedient to do so. These will be lands which are much improved and for this purpose the Governor must have something to go by Every Surveyor knows what marked objects he passes. There are hundreds of them, and by means of these he could mark out places for future levees and other operations. Another reason in favor of this is, that if it be not done now it cannot be done next year.—This bill has been carefully considered. The most important portion of it is that referring to the distribution of the fund. This has been done fairly and can give no reasonable cause of complaint to any section. Legislation is annual. If any change be necessary it can easily be made. If we annul the bill by altering the geographical distribution of the fund, it will never come back to us The House would not be willing to change the order they had adopted. I believe the calculation made by the Senator from St. Martin is correct. I trust to him implicitly, and would submit my judgment to his. I am confident that all objections to this bill can be explained. I hope Senators will vote for it; it is a good bill and ought to pass.

Mr. Defreese—

The amendment which I offer is a substitute for the section under consideration. In regard to what has been said by the Senator from Ascension, I fully approve it. It would be the proudest act of my life to follow him from the Senate chamber under such circumstances.

Mr Wickliffe—

I move to amend that by inserting that all persons employed to build levees be elected by the people

(Mr. Wickliffe afterwards withdrew his amendment.)

Mr. Martel—

I do not vote in favor of the bill for any other reason than that I think it a good bill, which will subserve the interests of internal improvements and also of my constituents.

The amendment was rejected. The 2d, 3d. 4th and 5th sections were adopted.

The 6th section was taken up.

Mr. Defreese—

I think the section is objectionable. I do not think we should make it imperative on them to meet at these times.

The section was adopted.

The 7th, 8th and 9th sections were taken up and adopted.

The 10th section was then taken up.

Mr. Kenner—

It would appear by this as if the proprietor could not build a levee if he wished unless he paid his half in money. It evidently bears that construction. I move to add these words at the end of the 15th line:

(Mr. Kenner here read the words he wished to have inserted.)

The object I have in view is very simple. We provide that one half be charged to the proprietor. That is fair. Every proprietor who cultivates lands will wish to pay his part in labor.

Mr. DeRussy—

I see no use in that. Suppose a crevasse takes place some distance from where the work is going on. The gentleman says he has now a right, instead of paying his half in money, to furnish hands.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Kenner—

That is not what I said.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The section is better as it stands than as the gentleman proposes. It is intended to prevent the planter coming on the State to get not only his levee built, but his hands employed. There ought to be some check of this kind. If not, almost every planter would get his levees built by the State—furnishing labor himself—and making the State pay the cash. If he had to pay in cash he would not be so anxious.

Mr. Rivers—

The gentleman misconstrues the object of the amendment. So far from the payment operating as a check, it will have no such effect. Its real effect will be to prevent the riparian proprietor from making the levee. The amendment would permit the front proprietors to do their own work by furnishing hands. This the bill prevents.

Mr. King—

The amendment would not obviate the whole difficulty. The effect of the section is to put every levee on the river in the hands of the State.—I will satisfy gentlemen that it is so, merely by reading the section:

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, &c., That it shall be the duty of the said Engineers, in their respective districts, to determine the locality, extent and dimensions of the necessary levees and drains to drain and reclaim the swamp and overflowed lands of the State. Nothing of this Act shall be so construed as to authorize the said commissioners to employ the Swamp Land funds in the repairing or reconstruction of established levees along the banks of the rivers and bayous of this State, it being the true intent of this Act to supply the deficiencies in the system of levees along the principal water courses, and thereby assist in the reclamation and draining of swamp lands; but whenever any levee shall cave in or be destroyed by the action of the current, or whenever it shall be in such condition as, in the opinion of three adjoining freeholders, or a majority of them, that the same ought to be renewed and repaired by the Swamp Land Commissioners, then the proprietor of said levee shall have the right to notify the Commissioner of the Swamp Land District of the same, whose duty it shall be to send his Engineer to locate the said levee, and have the same constructed under the provisions of this Act; and provided further that one-half the cost of said levee be collected from the proprietor or parish before the work is contracted for by the Commissioner or Engineer, and provided, also, that when any parish is liable for the construction of any levee or levees, said parish, instead of the proprietor, shall be compelled to pay the one-half of the cost specified in this section; provided, that when any objections shall be made by the proprietor of the lands where the levee is to be made, as to the locality of said levee, then the same shall be fixed by said Engineer, in conjunction with three landholders, to be taken from among the nearest neighbors to said proprietor, selected, one by the proprietor, and the other by said Engineer, and the third by the two others selected.

From this it will be seen that it is compulsory on the officers of the State to build the levees.—There is a small levee in Carroll parish called Diamond Island Levee. Every other part may be brought under the provisions of the bill. The neighbors of course will be interested in having the levee in their vicinity made stronger. In my bill, this branch of the subject was carefully considered and fully provided for. It did not commit this important duty to neighbors and interested parties, but to sworn officers of the State. You see the necessity of that. In some places the levees are built by the parishes—sometimes by a charge on the corporation. In different places different methods prevail.

This bill makes no provision for the compensation of the State for building the levees of individuals. If we do not do this we will be constructing levees entirely with our own money for the benefit of private individuals.

(Here Mr. King read an extract from the internal improvement bill.)

The Senate can judge how important that section is. Compare it with the bill now before the Senate. Look at another section of my bill.

(Mr. King here read that section of the Internal Improvement bill relating to the abandonment of lands to the State.)

This is another feature which has been omitted in this bill. By another provision of my bill the work may be let out in contracts, not to exceed a certain amount. This is in order to let the planter take a part. By these things Senators will see the impolicy of this kind of legislation. There is a section of my bill which I am sure every Senator will agree is much more effective than the bill now before us; yet I cannot get it adopted because the majority has determined to hurry this bill through without amendment, on the ground that it is too late.

Mr. Moore—

I wish to offer an amendment which is to be inserted after the 14th line.

The amendment of Mr. Moore was lost.

The amendment of Mr. Kenner was accepted.

Sections eleven and twelve were taken up and passed.

Section 13 was taken up.

Mr. Rivers—

I move to amend by striking from the 19th line, all after the word commissioner.

Adopted.

Mr. Moore—

I have another amendment to offer. Experience has proved the contract system to be the worst that can be adopted. The General Government has abandoned it and will never adopt it again. We ought to have sealed proposals. Then all parties offer to do it for what they think they can afford.

Mr. McCay—

Does not the proviso commencing in the 16th line, meet the gentleman's objections?

Mr. Moore—

No, sir.

Mr. DeRussy—

That is no objection. I think the section provides the best way of letting the work out.

Mr. King—

I give notice that I shall move the reconsideration of the vote on the 10th section.

Mr. Rivers—

Does the gentleman wish to defeat this bill?—He sees the Senate is in favor of this bill as it stands. I ask him, then, in all kindness, if his object is to defeat a measure which he sees to be a favorite of the Senate.

Mr. King—

I repeat that I shall move a re-consideration of the vote. If gentlemen want to meet me in debate on that section I am ready to place myself on the record.

Section 14 was taken up.

Digitized by Google

Mr Moore—

The committee recommend to strike out all after the word "fund" in this section. I approve the recommendation. Those plots can be procured in the Land Office, and it is unnecessary to go to further expense. I therefore move to strike out all after the word "fund" to the end of the section.

The amendment was carried.

The section was then adopted and the next section taken up and passed.

The 16th section was taken up.

Mr. Trudeau—

I move to strike out the proviso that this shall not apply to parties living on the high lands. I do not see why the alluvial proprietors should be compelled to bear the whole expense.

Mr. DeRussy—

There is a wide difference between the two.—The high lands have nothing at all to do with it. I do not see why a man on the high lands should be compelled to disburse money for the benefit of one who has chosen his residence on the low lands.

The section was adopted.

The 18th section was adopted.

The 19th section was taken up.

Mr. King offered an amendment.

Mr DeRussy—

I think that change would produce delay. I do not apprehend any deficiency this year. It is best to wait for the Legislature next year to adopt means to supply the deficiency if any exist.

The amendment was laid on the table.

The section was adopted.

Also, the 20th, 21st, 22d, 23d, 24th and 25th.

The 26th section was taken up.

Mr. Moore—

I deem it my duty, as a member of the Senate, whenever I think I can better a bill, to move such amendments as I may consider necessary and proper. This bill ought to be altered in several respects. Look, for instance, at the reports, and see the enormous sums which have been expended for traveling expenses, much of it without any vouchers. To see how much of this was actually necessary, just consider that the commissioner of the third District had double the distance to travel of any, yet he did not spend more than half as much as the commissioner of the Second, and one-quarter as much as the commissioner of the First District. I move that the commissioners be allowed a certain sum for their traveling expenses, to be accounted for in all cases. By the reports $179 of money is put down. I venture to say if we go to the office we shall not find five dollars' worth.

Mr. DeRussy—

The only way to do is to allow mileage. I wish to have everything done as cheaply as possible, but we cannot rule the commissioners down to a specific sum. The commissioner of my district I believe is economical enough. He would not expend a cent not absolutely necessary. I will vote for a scale of mileage.

The amendment was laid on the table.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I wish to place the Swamp Land Commissioners before the public. The Senator was one of the committee to investigate the contingent expenses of the commissioners. I want to know if they did anything incorrect.

Mr. Moore—

Much of the amount expended there were no vouchers. Of course I can tell nothing about that. It may be all correct, but I could not testify to it.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Did they expend too much?

Mr Moore—

They expended over $2000 contingent expenses. I think that too much.

Mr King—

So far as the question was addressed to me, I would say that many of the charges have no foundation in law or right.

Mr. DeRussy—

There were many very necessary expenses for which no receipt could be taken; such as carrying baggage, crossing rivers, &c.

Mr. Moore—

I do not charge the commissioners with fraud or spending more money than they ought I merely state that for many things no vouchers appear.

The motion to lay the amendment on the table was lost.

The amendment was adopted.

The bill passed.

NEBRASKA.

Mr Kenner submitted the following joint resolutions, which were read:

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That the people of the State of Louisiana have ever viewed the agitation of the question of slavery with the deepest concern, and they regarded the adoption of the measures of 1850, known as the Compromise measures, as a final settlement of that exciting subject.

Resolved, That in the judgment of the Legislature of Louisiana, those Compromise measures were intended to have a more lasting and permanent effect than the mere adjustment of the difficulties arising out of the then recent acquisition of Mexican territory. And that by their adoption certain great principles were established, which not only furnished a remedy for the then existing evils, but which would to all time to come avoid a similar agitation by withdrawing from the floor of Congress the question of slavery, and committing its decision to those who are alone interested in it, and who alone are responsible for its consequences.

Be it, therefore, further resolved, that the Nebraska territorial bill, now pending in Congress, so far as designed to carry into effect and perpetuate this principle of non-intervention as to the institution of slavery, meets our approval and we request our Senators and Representatives to support the same.

On motion, they were referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

THE DEAF AND DUMB.

Mr Munday introduced the following resolutions which were read and adopted.

1st Whereas by several acts of Congress, aid has has been given to Institutions for the Deaf and Dumb, in which the unfortunate of this class, residing in the New England States and in Kentucky, are now educated; considerable donations of the public lands having been made for the purpose, and

Whereas the State of Louisiana did, by a public Act, approved March 18, 1852, authorize upon suitable conditions, the reception of pupils into her Institution for the Deaf, Dumb and the Blind, from the surrounding States, thereby making it an object of benevolent interest on the part of the whole Southwestern portion of the Union—a portion which, from geographical position, cannot participate in the advantages accruing from previous grants made to the Deaf and Dumb—and

4th. Whereas from the rapidity with which the public lands are being donated to various purposes, there is danger that, from all time to come, the sad spectacle will be presented of the entire exclusion of the unfortunate mutes and blind from all benefit of the national bounty, so freely granted for the education of those blessed with the full enjoyment of their senses,—and

5th. Whereas, the support of an Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind in this State must, of necessity, be more expensive than in some of the more Northern and Eastern States—therefore,

1st. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That our Senators be instructed, and our Representatives requested to bring in and seek, by all just and honorable means, to secure the passage of a bill granting to the State of Louisiana, four townships of land for the education of the Deaf and Dumb, and three townships for the education of the Blind.

2d. Resolved, that Louisiana asking nothing for the unfortunate within her own borders which she would not freely accord to others, hereby instructs her Senators, and requests her Representatives to support such just and equitable propositions, as may be offered, making similar grants to others States, for such laudable purposes.

Mr King, from the Internal Improvement Committee, made the following reports:

To the Honorable W. W. Farmer, President of the Senate:

The Committee on Internal Improvements and Swamp Lands and Levees, to whom was referred "An act to amend an act entitled an act to reclaim and drain the Swamp and overflowed lands of the State of Louisiana, &c, approved April 30th 1853, to appropriate the sum of three hundred thousand dollars to carry out the provisions of this act" beg leave respectfully to report:

The Committee adopted the following amendments:

The section thirteen, line seventeen, immediately after the word "accept," insert the word "at;" in same section, same line, strik out the word "greater" and insert the word "higher"—in same section, line nineteen, after the word "Commissioner," strike out to the end of the section. In section 14, line twelve, after the word "fund," strike out to the end of the section.

On the merits of the bill, as amended, the Committee were equally divided.

To the Honorable W W. Farmer, President of the Senate:

The Special Committee, composed of the Senators from New Orleans, unanimously report unfavorably on the bill entitled: "An act to amend an act to consolidate the city of New Orleans, and provide for the government and administration of its affairs," approved 23d February, 1852.

(Signed) W. W. KING, Chairman.

Mr Munday, from the Joint Committee on Charitable and Public Institutions, submitted the following report:

REPORT OF THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON CHARITABLE AND PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

The Joint Committee on Charitable and Public Institutions of the Senate and House of Representatives, having with the utmost zeal and diligence, performed the duty assigned them, now proceed to lay before both branches of the Legislature their report.

First, they would premise that the fatal epidemic of last season has much increased the burdens of many of the charitable institutions to which the State has been a contributor; and to the credit of those institutions be it said, that their exertions in the holy cause of charity increased with the exigences that call them forth: for notwithstanding the numbers stricken down by the pestilence which stalked abroad, and the many infants and children deprived of their natural protectors, your Committee heard of none against whom the doors of succor were closed, and to whom the hand of charity was not freely stretched forward. This is a feeling, thank heaven! which in an especial manner pervades our beloved State; and your Committee feel that the Legislature would be false to its duty, should it fail to partake in it. Feeling assured that it does, your Committee suggest, below, specific appropriations for some of the charitable institutions which they visited, and trust they will meet your approval. Indeed, if your Committee were not aware of the many pressing calls on the Treasury of the State, they would ask for many of them a much larger appropriation than that named, knowing full well how much they stand in need of it, and how meritoriously they deserve it.

The first institution visited by your Committee was the Orphan Boys' Asylum, located in the Fourth District, New Orleans. There are now one hundred and eighteen boys in the asylum, ranging in age from three to thirteen years. It is conducted, under a Board of Directors, by a male Superintendent and a female Matron, both of whom besides attending to the general administration of the establishment, devote themselves to the education of the inmates. The worthy President of the Direction, Lucius C. Duncan, Esq., has furnished your Committee with an abstract of the financial condition of the institution, from which it appears, that its income last year, from all sources, was $13,739 97, all of which, less $4,025 97, was expended. The fixed income of the establishment is derived from rents, and was last year $1,349 32. The health of the boys seems good. There were twelve apprenticed out last year. The food of the boys seems to be sufficient in quantity, and wholesome in quality; but we would suggest to the Direction, that some repairs might, with advantage, be made on the building. The sleeping dormitory is far too cold and uncomfortable for winter lodging even in this mild latitude.

Our next visit was to the Female Orphan Asylum, Camp street, under the superintendence of Sister Regis, assisted by seven others of the same religious order—the sisters of Charity. This institution is a credit to our common Christianity, and the noiseless but incessant labors of these ministering angels in the care and culture, both moral, mental and physical, which they bestow on the areatless little ones over whom they watch, is a ractical rebuke to those intemperate zealots who eem to conceive that they best serve God by the iffusion of sectarian prejudices, forgetting that harity has its sanctuary in the heart, and that cts, not words, are the true evidence of its exist- nce.

This institution, (the New Orleans Female Or- han Asylum) received within its walls since June ast, one hundred and twenty eight orphans, most f them of tender age. The whole number there ow is three hundred and sixty. We have only to epeat what the committees of previous Legisla- ures have reported: that nothing can be better han the order, arrangments, cleanliness and disci- line which pervade the whole establishment The Asylum has not permanent endowment—it solely dependent for its maintenance on the nnual donation of the Legislature, bequests and onations of individuals; yet the good that it does incalculable. Another house is now being built connection with the Asylum, where girls, when hey arrive at a proper age, will be taught a trade, o better to enable them to combat the difficulties f life.

Our next visit was to the Poydras Female Or- han Asylum, Julia street, New Orleans. This nstitution was liberally endowed by the late Julien oydras. It is under the direction of an association benevolent ladies of the city. The number of phans there at present is one hundred and twen- four. Your Committee, like their predecessors, ave not received any statement of the financial ondition of the Asylum, and cannot therefore ate to the Legislature what it is; and they sug- st that hereafter appropriations be withheld by he Legislature from all institutions not furnishing n abstract of their financial condition.

We visited the St. Mary's Orphan boys' Asylum tuated in the third District, New Orleans. This sylum is controlled by a Board of Directors, and onducted by some six of a religious society called e Christian Brothers, who devote themselves to e education of youth ; and by a like number of ters of some religious order, who superintend the ousehold duties The number of boys in the sylum is two hundred and twenty six, ranging in e from four months to fourteen years. The missions this year were sixty two Some of the ys are learning trades in the Asylum, and when wing of the Asylum now being raised is built, department of industry will be extended Your mmittee approve of the whole conduct and man- ment of the establishment.

Your Committee visited the Orphan's Home, ated in the Fourth District, New Orleans This n institution which owes its existence to the ive sympathy of some ladies in New Orleans. the number of children which the epidemic of year placed in a state of orphanage. The sident of the Direction is Mrs Ross The ber of children in the institution at present is y-seven. They are of both sexes, and range ge from infancy to that of fourteen years h of the children as are old enough attend the ic schools. The institution is creditable to its ders, and entitled, we conceive, to the patron- of the State.

our Committee visited the St Anna's Asylum lestitute Widows and Orphans; and from their mination of it, recommend that a donation of ame amount as that of last year be made our Committee visited the Institution of Indi- Colored Orphans, situated in the Third Dis- trict, New Orleans. After a careful scrutiny of the establishment, and the manner in which it is conducted, the Committee recommend that a like donation to that of last year be made it by the State.

Your Committee also recommend that the donation of last year from the State to the Firemen's Charitable Association of New Orleans be renewed.

To the Indigent Widows' (Les Dames de la Providence,) Asylum, your Committee likewise recommend that the donation of last year be repeated. It fulfils a benevolent and salutary purpose, and the State in contributing its quota to the support of the Institution, performs an act of which the Legislature should approve.

Your Committee visited the Charity Hospital, New Orleans. The State is represented in the Direction of this Institution. Its internal economy is controlled and directed by sister Regina, (of the Sisters of Charity.) Already the financial affairs of the Hospital have been submitted to the Legislature. Your Committee need not, therefore, recapitulate on that point. It is admitted on all hands, that whether as regards medical and surgical skill and attendance, carefull nursing, cleanliness, and the general arrangment and internal economy of the establishment, it is unsurpassed by any similar institution in this, or perhaps in any other country. From the law past by the last Legislature, imposing a tax on foreign immigrants and from other sources, the current income of the Hospital is brought to a point at or near the annual outlay ; but the building itself, or at least a portion of it, is in a ruinous—a dangerous state of dilapidation, and to further procrastinate its repairs would be to jeopardize the lives of its inmates, and to incur at no distant day a much increased expenditure. The Committee, therefore, recommend that an appropriation of $20,000, as stated below be made to the Hospital for building purposes, and $15,000 towards its general support.

A portion of your Committee visited the St Vincent Hospital and Asylum at Donaldsonville ; their report of its administration is highly favorable. The Hospital is for the reception of indigent sick, and the Asylum for the support and education of orphans. Both are immediately superintended by sister Mary Austin, and seven other ladies of the sisterhood, and controlled by a direction. The Committee recommend that an appropriation of $1,000 be made to the Hospital, and $1,000 to the Asylum.

Pursuant to their duty, your Committee visited the Insane Asylum at Jackson—the receptacle of the most afflicted of God's creatures, for when man's reason is overthrown, what a very wreck he is! wanting even the instincts common to many of the brute creation. This institution is specially under the control of, and dependent for its support on the liberality of the State, and she has discharged her duty with characteristic beneficence. The excellent state of the buildings, the cleanly condition of the unfortunate inmates, and the whole economy and administration of the institution show that the direction have frugally, well and wisely disbursed the funds placed at their disposal, as will be seen by their report for the year 1853, already submitted to this Legislature. It is found necessary in carrying out the original design, and indeed the necessities of the case demand it—that an additional wing be added to the buildings. To enable directors to effect this, and to meet the unavoidable expenses for the current year, the Committee recommend an appropriation of $20,000 for the former purpose, and $15,000 for the latter purpose. The Committee think it proper to add, that the number of patients at present in the Asylum, is one hundred and thirty three.

Your Committee visited the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, situate in our immediate neighborhood. This is another of those indexes that point to the benevolence of the State, showing with what maternal solicitude she watches over even the most afflicted of her children. The report of the Directors of the Institution has been laid before the Legislature, and the Committee bear testimony to the correctness of its statements. The number of pupils in the Institution at present is twenty two, those of both sexes included. Their proficiency in the elementary branches of an English education, is gratifing in the highest degree, and truly creditable to the Principal of this Institution, Mr Brown.

A new building, one better adapted to the purposes and designs of the institution, is in the course of erection, and when completed, it is contemplated to add a department for the education of the blind; $25.000 is asked for the construction of this building, and the Committee recommend that it be appropriated, together with $8.900, for the support for the current year of the Institution.

Lastly, the Female Asylum of Baton Rouge was visited by your Committee. Though limited, the number o inmates being only twenty four, the building is sufficient in size for their comfortable, or rather proper accomodation. The benevolent ladies who conduct it ask for an appropriation of $3,000, which, besides paying the pressing expenses of the school, would aid them in making the desired addition to the building, which the Committee agreed to recommend.

And now your Committee having adverted briefly necessarily so, to the condition of the several Institutions, to visit which they deem it their duty, beg leave to close their report with the following resolution—

Resolved. That the Finance Committee be instructed to insert i the general appropriation bill for the present year, the following appropriations—

To Orphan Boys' Asylum Fourth District, New Orleans	3.000 00
Female Orphan Asylum, sister Regis,	6,000 00

Salaries of Recorders in New Orleans

The bill to increase the salaries of the Recorders the city of New Orleans was taken up.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The reason the city delegation reported against s bill is that the act of consolidation gives to Council the power to fix the salary of these cers, under the only condition that it shall not eed $3,000 It is much better, therefore, for m to apply to the Council. If they think the orders are entitled to more, they will give it. it would be a high handed measure to interwith New Orleans in a matter of this kind. ove to lay the bill on the table.

Mr Lacey—

f this bill had originated in the Senate and e opposed by the whole city delegation, com d of gentlemen who are supposed to be acnted with the wants and wishes of their conents I should have no hesitation in joining in opposition to the bill; or rather I should feel hesitation in supporting it. But it came from the House. I presume from this that it was there submitted to the examination and approval of the city delegation. This puts a different aspect on the measure. How this can be considered a local bill? I do not see. The question is shall we compel these officers to receive $1,500 for the arduous duties which they perform. The friends of the bill are willing to compromise on $2,000.

Mr McCay—

The Recorders are connected with the Aldermen. They are acquainted with the nature of their duties and the value of their services. The matter ought to be left to them. The argument that we ought to pass the bill because the House has passed it has no weight. When the bill came to the Senate it was referred to a committee composed of the city delegation, under the supposition that they knew more about the subject. That committee has reported against it and the Senate should ratify the report.

Mr Lacoste—

There is no use to elect Senators if they are bound to submit to these reports. I never do it when I do not consider them correct.

Mr. Trudeau—

How would the gentleman like the Legislature to undertake to regulate the salary of officers employed by the Police Jury of his Parish?

Mr. Rivers—

I renew the motion to lay the bill on the table.

The bill was laid on the table.

SALE OF FRANKLIN COLLEGE.

The bill for the sale of Franklin College was taken up.

Mr Martel—

That bill cannot pass without meeting at least my opposition. It is intended solely for the benefit of certain speculators. They are the only persons that desire the sale of the college, and this I can show clearly. This college which it is now attempted to destroy and to take from under the jurisdiction by which it was created was founded in 1831. An appropriation of $3,000 was made to buy materials. In 1832 an appropriation of $10,000 was made for the building; in 1835 another appropriation of $15,000, in 1838 another of $25,000 All this time the edifice was in progress of building. In 1842 still another appropriation of $10,000 was made, in 1846 another of $10,000, making altogether $75,000 for the building. Under the act of incorporation seventy-odd directors were appointed from every part of the State. Nevertheless the institution never was put in complete operation. In 1847 when the free school system was established a tax was imposed in the Parish of St. Landry for the public schools, a tax which was levied by the very persons who come here to get the college from the jurisdiction of the free school system. I then, being a member of the school board, gave notice that I should introduce a resolution to convert the building into a free seminary. This immediatly excited great alarm among the adversaries of public education. They wished the building to be sold for purposes of speculation. This is their object now. But if sold at present the structure would not bring more than $5,000. When the railroad is completed it and the grounds will bring half a million. It is built on the confines of the corporation of Opelousas, where property will be extremely valuable, and is almost immediately on the line of the railroad. This idea was never broached publicly until it was proposed to convert the building into a free seminary. I oppose this bill for one reason because these are the very individuals who prevented the college from going into operation by their bad management. They are the ones who are responsible for the failure of the enterprise and now they wish to profit by it and turn it to their own account.

I oppose it and shall continue to oppose it. The bill says it is provided that the property shall not be sold for less than $6,000. What is $6,000? How much is that amount compared with the sums the State has lavished on the institution. The edifice was in progress of building from the year 1831 to 1846 and $70,000 has been expended on it. When about to be converted into a seminary of education then these persons, the enemies of education, come forward and wish it to be sold at once, even at an immense sacrifice—and these are persons who had at all times the means of educating their children. At this time, to present such a bill for the sale of that college is an outrage. Even now a railroad is being built which will probably be in operation in two years and which will add immensely to the value of this property. The Company aspires to nothing less than to obtain that building as a depot. No other can buy it. To sell it would literally cut the throat of education. The property belongs to the school system which has a vested right in it. The education of the youth of my district depends to a considerable extent upon it. It is to be hoped that it will be made a seminary as was intended or that it will at least be reserved for a time when it will be worth a half a million of dollars, which can be applied to educational purposes. It ought not to be sacrificed now when it will bring a mere nothing. In two years it will be worth a half a million dollars. I do not oppose this bill from personal motives, but because I have a regard for the cause of education and wish to protect it from the assaults of its enemies. I have no bad feelings towards my opponents; but I believe as strongly in a system of free public education as I do in universal suffrage. If you take this property from us you ruin your system of education. It was intended for the benefit of education and I pray you to hesitate before you suffer it to be sacrificed for the benefit of private interests. Who can or will buy it if sold now? What competition would there be? There would be no purchaser but the Railroad Company. I am in favor of the railroad but I am not willing to sacrifice our educational system for the benefit of any road. The institution has been there since 1832, and I think it can remain there two or three years longer, or until it can realize something like its worth.

Mr. Dupré—

I would correct the Senator when he says it is a public school. I do not think it is.

Mr. Martel—

In 1846 the Legislature established the public school system of education. In 1849 I was elected a school director in my parish. A tax was imposed for the benefit of education, and was contested by three very gentlemen. They were so vehement and determined in their opposition that they even carried the contest into the Courts, and up to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Ryan—

Has the place been kept as a college for the last two years?

Mr. Martel—

It has never fulfilled that object. For two years it has been a school.

Mr. Ryan—

I have no desire to interfere with local questions, but I have heard the gentleman express sentiments which do not seem to be justified by the facts. He has said that this bill is brought forward for the purpose of sacrificing the property, and for the benefit of those interested in the railroad. Now I think the gentleman is mistaken in his opinion. I was the very one who in 1852 reported a bill for the sale of this property; because it was crumbling into ruins, not for the motive which the gentleman assigns. It was thought it would be right to sell it and place the proceeds in the Treasury. At that time there was not the slightest prospect of any railroad to Opelousas; consequently whatever may be the merits of the bill the motives ascribed by the gentleman are not correct. The bill was introduced under the firm conviction that a sale of the property would be to the interest of the State. There was then no prospect of a railroad to Opelousas and consequently the burthen of the gentleman's song is entirely fictitious. The motive was not to give money or opportunity to speculators whether in railroads or any other projects. An attempt was made to establish a college there and failed. The State lost money by the operation, and the best thing it can do is to sell the property. I would be the last to injure education—it is what sustains the character of the Republic and imparts dignity to its citizens. But when I hear a gentleman who knows nothing of the history of the bill impute improper motives to its friends I cannot remain in my seat and hear it in silence.

The representatives from the gentleman's own Parish always supported the proposition. The building is rapidly mouldering away and will soon be fit for nothing. There will in a short time not be one stone remaining on another. The gentleman says it belongs to the school system, and that a school is kept there. The gentleman appears to confound the school system with the school house. The building will soon go to ruin. The material of the house is not durable—it does not resemble the rock of ages which will stand till the end of time; nor is it like the granite of the North, as enduring as the hills from which it is taken. The materials are perishable. When a building of this kind is not inhabited it soon becomes the residence of crows and ravens. I am told that these buildings have even been used as a stable. If they will sell for a half a million in a year they certainly ought to sell for more than $6,000 now. It seems to me that if such a sum could be realized from it in so short a time, people would not let the opportunity slip. I repeat that the gentleman is mistaken in regard to the motives he has ascribed to the friends of this bill. It was approved by the Judiciary Committee of the House before the railroad bill passed. The majority on this floor will not, I am confident, do any thing unworthy of Senators. I feel convinced that there is no Senator here who would from any but honorable motives, or who has not a just and proper appreciation of his duties. I am sure therefore that no attention will be paid to appeals such as have been made by the Senator. On purely political questions they may be admissible; but when we are to act solely as Senators we should rise above them.

Mr. Wickliffe—

This institution has cost Louisiana $100,000. It would be absurd to sacrifice it now for $6,000. If the railroad be constructdd it will increase the value of the property; then it can be put in the market and sold. I move that the minimum price be $60,000

Digitized by Google

Mr. Moore—

The Senator from St. Landry (Mr. Martel) has correctly said that Franklin College was established in 1832, and that a school is kept in it; but he neglected to tell us that the school is a private school, I have been told that it is used as a grammar school. The sale of the property will not injure the cause of education It will benefit it, on the contrary, because the money obtained for it must go to the school fund. It is true that it is built of perishable materials, and will soon crumble away into dust. I am sorry the sale would thwart the gentleman's scheme of having the building given to his parish for a central school. The money ought to be put in the Treasury for the benefit of education in the State. The idea that it will ever be worth $500,000 or even $60,000 is fallacious. The land was given to the State with a condition that buildings be put on it. I would not give $2,000 for it with the idea of selling it to the railroad. I have given it a piece of land as a depot which is more valuable than that. The gentleman's motives are good. He wants the building for a central school; but that is not the purpose to which it ought to be devoted. The money put in the school fund would be of much more benefit to education.

Mr. Martel—

A word or two in reply to the Senator from Rapides (Mr Ryan) might not be out of place. The gentleman says he believes that certain things are the case I know what I have said to be in accordance with the facts. I tell the gentlemen that we had a school in that building in which there were 75 scholars. What I state I know One third of the land is in the corporation of Opelousas, and the railroad passes immediately through it. It is worth as much now as when it was built When it was built labor was cheap—now it is dear

Mr. Ryan—

Does the gentleman say there is a college there?

Mr. Martel—

I say there is a school in it. Though not directly under the control of the State it yet complies with the law. It is a fine and flourishing school containing 75 scholars. The buildings are worth as much now as when they were erected. Is it not much better to let it remain as it is than to sacrifice it to some selfish interest. This bill was got up by the very persons who have always opposed education in my Parish. They are in the habit of sending their children to the North to be educated instead of encouraging our schools at home. I repeat that what I state I know. I believe those who have instigated this are those very persons whom I have followed from the Justices to the Supreme Court to make them pay their school taxes. I have met them at home and am ready to meet them here If the Senator thinks that a college erected for purposes of education should be sold for private speculation, I shall be very much surprised. It is worth $100,000 now if it was worth it when built In order to show the increase in the value of property in Opelousas it is only necessary to state that lots which 20 years ago sold for $15 are now valued at $500. This property if divided into lots would at this moment bring $50,000. It has been spared preceding Legislatures when there was nobody for it. Now when there is a fine prospect for a flourishing academy, are we to be defeated by those men who say that free schools are a curse to society—who kept the schools closed because they would not pay their taxes? Will they meet me on this question? I entreat the Senate not to consent to the sale of this property. I hope the gentleman will see the importance of preserving it for the purpose for which it was intended. I repeat now that in this matter I am not influenced by personal feelings. I did not begin the battle. It was commenced long ago. The school now there was put in that building because no other could be procured. From this bill you would think the college to be a miserable little building. But this would be an entire mistake. Had it not been for some difficulty about the Parish Superintendent the school would now contain 150 pupils. The building is now in tolerably good order. The galleries are a little out of repair but that is all. As a site for a college it is equal to any. Its salubrity cannot be questioned. Last year when a disastrous epidemic ravaged the fairest portions of this State there was not a single case in our village. It remained perfectly healthy the whole time. The railroad will make it the best location for a college in the State, as the road passes just between the two buildings, and indeed cannot pass any where else. The depot cannot be placed any where else unless at an enormous expense. I say these things because I do not wish to give to the gentleman an opportunity of saying they were taken by surprise.

Mr Wickliffe—

Since it has been stated by the gentleman that the property will probably be needed for a railroad depot. I withdraw my amendment of $60,000 and substitute $80,000 as the minimum price.

Mr McCay—

I call for the reading of the bill. I admit that the scales have fallen from my eyes.

The Secretary read the bill.

Mr Ryan—

I had no intention of offering any remark on this subject, but as I had heard the gentleman from St. Landry attribute evil motives.

Mr Wickliffe—

Is this debate in order when I have moved to lay the bill on the table? If the gentleman wants to make a personal explanation I will withdraw my motion for a moment.

Mr Ryan—

If I have the floor I shall proceed in accordance with my own convictions.

The President—

The Senator from Rapides is not in order.

Mr Kenner—

This is the same motion as I made on the Sheriff's bill yet the discussion lasted two days.

Mr Ryan—

I shall appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr King—

I would call the attention of the Chair to the fact that when the Senator from Ascension (Mr Kenner) made a motion to lay the Sheriff's bill indefinitely on the table the Chair decided that it was debateable.

Mr Ryan—

I merely wished to make a personal explanation. I do not suppose that anything I can say will affect the mind of any Senator, especially when I came in collision with the Senator from St. Landry whose learning profundity and logical accumen would overwhelm me in an instant. Indeed I should be like a pebble washed away by the torrent of his eloquence, neither did I think I should ever attract the attention of the eloquent Senator from West Feliciana. But now for the question at issue. This College was founded by the State. In 1852 a proposition was made to sell it. It is kept as a private school by a man who has it there because he does not have to pay any rent. There is a school there, but not such a one as is contemplated by the law. The gentleman says he has followed certain persons from the justices to the Supreme Court in order to make them pay their taxes. That has nothing to do with this question. The only question is: does this institution belong to the State and has it been carried out according to the object contemplated. But what kind of a school is it in fact? An individual goes there for purposes of speculation and getting the place for nothing locates his school in it. This is not the object for which it was designed. Then if it belongs to the State, if the object for which it was intended is not carried out, if it is mouldering away and is composed of perishable materials—in which case it cannot be as good as when it was built—then it certainly ought to be sold. However the gentleman tells us that it is as good as new, which perhaps may be accounted for by the salubrity of the climate. But who ever heard that here a building of that kind was as good as a new twenty three years after being built? How is it that it was used as a stable? How can a building intended for the reception of youths be as good after it has been abandoned to the beasts of the field—after it has been the dwelling place of the raven and the crow? It could only be accounted for by imagining that it is as invulnerable by attack of this kind as the village is by disease. I know the motives of the persons who originated this bill, and I know it originated at a time when those motives could not be suspected. The railroad was then looked on as a mere chimera, and now I am the only one to stand up and vindicate the objects and motives of those who report it. I shall vote for the bill as I participated in originally reporting it, and as I think it is a good bill.

Mr Dupré—

I would ask my colleague, who opposed the payment of taxes.

Mr Martel—

I do not impugn the motives of any gentleman here, but only of those who caused this bill to come before the Senate.

Mr. Kittridge offered the following bill as a substitute:

The first section of the original bill was taken up.

Mr. Kittridge offered the first section of the substitute.

Mr. Hodge moved to lay both bills on the table.

Mr. Trudeau—

There seems to be an impression that there is a difference of opinion in the committee as to the propriety of quarantine. This is a mistake. The committee was unanimously in favor of some system, though not decided on any particular one. Consequently two bills have been reported. The citizens of New Orleans are in favor of quarantine and to dispose of the bills in this summary manner would be treating our constituents with great disrespect. And besides, we owe some courtesy to the committee, which has been at great trouble to procure information and prepare these bills The committee do not pretend to have brought forward a perfect bill, nor do they claim it to be the emanation of forty of the best minds in the State. But, at all events, it is a basis which can be built upon. New Orleans has been long enough under tutelage in this Legislature, and if gentlemen are not willing to do anything for her they should, at least, permit her to do it for herself. By changing the two first sections of the bill it would be merely an authorization to New Orleans to establish a system for herself.

Mr. Kittridge—

Two reports have been made and two bills accompanying them. One portion of the committee believe that quarantine will prevent the spread of epidemic disease. The other do not believe anything of the kind. Bills have been introduced in accordance with both these views. Let them both be read.

Mr. Evans—

Senators have already read them. I am in favor of laying them both on the table. I consider the whole thing perfectly useless, and to discuss them would only be consuming time for nothing. It is a matter with which we have nothing to do.

The bills were laid on the table.

RAILROADS MORTGAGING THEIR PROPERTY.

The bill to permit railroads to mortgage their roperty was taken up.

Mr. Moore—

A general principle of law is that you cannot ıortgage what does not exist. By the law they 'e permitted to mortgage their property, but that ıes not include what is not actually in existence. am not willing to depart so far from the general inciple of law. I shall offer an amendment in ıcordance with my views.

Mr. Wickliffe—

I am opposed to the principle of this bill. The ıendment of the Senator from St. Martin does t obviate the difficulty. I am opposed to letting oad in which the State has an interest mortgage property.

Mr. Kenner—

I think I can satisfy the gentlemen that the npanies already have this power, and with that w I shall read from pages 120 and 121 of the s of 1853, incorporating the Jackson and Opelousas Rail Road Companies. (Here Kenner read the extract alluded to). The npany was about to act under this power, and row money to assist in completing the works. wever, a question arose as to what constitutes perty. The Attorney of the company was n consulted, and afterwards Judge Eustis.— ey said the Legislature, no doubt, meant to in- le all property, but as there is a general law ch says that movables shall not be mortgaged, as the Supreme Court has decided that the iron read is movable, it was thought better to procure ecial authorization from the Legislature. They ight that otherwise doubts might arise in the ds of money lenders, or capitalists. You see he acts of incorporation of these companies the right to mortgage exists. The only ques- is whether we shall render assistance to the panies by causing them to have the power to w money at a less rate of interest. They will rward and borrow, and we ought to put it in power to get it at the lowest rate. There is npropriety in doing this. We cannot take the right we have given. I am opposed to mendment of the Senator from St. Martin. might just as well strike out the enacting By amending it in that manner we should the bill so obnoxious to the stockholders that would not accept it. Pass this bill and we y aid the success of the roads. Every mile vill increase the security and capitalists will ling to advance their money on it.

King—

ree with the gentleman who has last address- Senate, that if the people want to lend on a road not built, there is no reason why ould be so anxious to prevent them. But I end they will not lend much. My objection bill is that it is general instead of specific in ns. It gives the right to the Directors to of other people's property. But these com- have the right already by their charters. rd property of course means all property. ıave no immovable property except the on which they run. The are not worth s security. We might as well give them ns of borrowing money cheaper. But by as it stands, we would be giving the right ilroad companies, whereas we ough to give o those which we think need it.

Moore—

pass the bill in this form will we not aur thorize them to mortgage what the charter neve intended,—will it not be a violation of the charters? I am willing to define what property is, to say that it is the road and its appurtenances; but would it not be wrong to let them mortgage what does not exist? It would be contrary to the general principle of our law. It was to prevent this violation that I offered the amendment.

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. Hodge—

The amendment ought to have been adopted. I have thought much of that bill, and I shall vote against it. It is true they must have some way of getting money. And how is this to be done? Must we let them issue bonds and mortgage the roads? The State of Louisiana is interested in them to the extent of one-fifth. She subscribes her bonds for one-fifth of the stock. Into whose hands do they go? Why, into those of the Directors, who sell where and for what they please. But the stockholders must pay their share, which is as four to one to the share of the State. Now, if they comply with the true intention and meaning of the act of the Legislature, and pay four-fifths to the State's one-fifth, where is the necessity for this bill? The State subscribes one-fifth and gives her credit to the road. If they violate the provisions of the constitution by not paying their four to one, why should we give our credit or pass bills of this kind for them. If we enable them, by giving them additional credit, to borrow money, would this be a compliance with the law? By no means. When we subscribe and pay one-fifth they are bound to subscribe and pay four-fifths; and, if they do it, where is the necessity for this bill? Do gentlemen propose to mortgage the property of the State to make her bonds good? It will be said that they do not pledge more than her credit, but they actually mortgage her property. Why, they might just as well mortgage capital. It would be better to issue bonds for the whole amount at once, than to permit the mortgaging of the State's interest.

I was inclined at first to vote for the bill, but on reflection I do not think it right.

Mr. Kenner—

The gentleman seems to think we are asking something we do not possess already. We have already all that we ask. We only want the Legislature to make plain the meaning of the word property as it appears in the acts of incorporation. If that will injure the credit of the State I give up the point. I call for the question.

Mr. Hodge—

I wish to state one fact. The acts alluded to were passed on the 21st of April, and the acts by which the State became a subscriber on the 28th of April. This, therefore, is a proposition to permit the company to mortgage the property of the State—a right they did not before possess. I am opposed to giving such power to the Directors.

Mr. Moore—

I will give my reasons for voting against the bill. The words which I propose to strike out would be an amendment of the charter. We cannot mortgage what does not exist. I am myself a stockholder in one of these roads, but I am unwilling to give them any such power. Let them build the roads and then they may be seized and sold, and the State will lose her interest.

The first section was adopted.

Mr. Hodge—

I move a proviso, that the company shall not be allowed to mortgage the interest which the State has in these roads.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Kenner—

The proviso would have much the same effect as the amendment of the Senator from St. Martin. It would destroy the bill. Our object is to mortgage the iron, locomotives, and other property belonging to the companies. You say the interest of the State must not be affected by this, but how are you going to divide the interest of the State from that of the other stockholders? The State owns four inches and four-fifths in every foot, but how are you going to separate that from the remainder. We proceed on the ground that the company already possess the right of mortgaging their property. If we adopt the amendment, the stockholders will not accept the act, and it will be useless. We want to give them the means to build the roads, and this is the way to do it.

Mr. Wickliffe—

There is a way to arrange the matter, by stipulating that the interest of the State shall not be affected when the mortgage is foreclosed, as it certainly will be, the way things are going at present.

Mr. Macmurdo—

The State is only a partner. I do not see why she should be surrounded by this halo, which gentlemen wish to throw around her. She ought to have the same interest and privileges as the other parties, and no more. She should submit to the same restrictions, and not be exempt from any of the burthens which may fall on the others.

Mr. McCay—

If the State has granted the right already, what is the necessity for the bill?

Mr. Kenner—

To define the meaning of the word property.

Mr. McCay—

That is sufficiently explained by existing laws.

Mr. Kenner—

The subject has been examined by Judge Eustis, and he thinks a special act of this kind would obviate difficulties, and make the matter clearer.

Mr. Hodge—

The gentleman from New Orleans, Mr. Macmurdo, says the State is a common partner. Now, sir, the State issues her bonds, on which money is raised. The other parties, whom the gentleman considers as good as the State, are not able to do it without mortgaging, not only their property, but that of the State likewise. This is the difference. I am as much in favor of railroads as any one. I belong to a party which has always been in favor of Internal Improvements. But I cannot consent to go this far. The State has subscribed liberally —money has been and can be raised on her bonds; and I would rather borrow this additional money necessary, and lend it to the companies, than establish this precedent. It is not necessary to mortgage the roads. They can be completed without having recourse to such a measure. It seems to me that I can foresee how this matter is to end. Louisiana will lend her million and a half; the Directors will mortgage the road; in a few years the bonds will fall due—they will not be paid—the creditors will sell the road and the State will lose her interest, and be minus a million and a half, without deriving any benefit from the transaction, except that which she will derive from foreign capitalists owning a road through her borders. I am in favor of internal improvements, but not so much so as to lose sight of the interests of the State. I cannot forget the hard lessons which experience has taught us. I am conservative in my opinions, and do not let my zeal for railroads run into a mania. I am opposed to the Legislature yielding to outside pressure. Whither will this kind of legislation lead us? I am opposed to involving the State any further, and I wish to see her interests fully protected.

Mr. Macmurdo—

I said that the State ought not to be exempted from the ordinary risks and liabilities of the other partners. The State does not issue her bonds till the others have paid. The presumption is, that they have paid. I do not believe these mortgages have any reference to the payment of stock. It is probably in contemplation of the cost of construction exceeding the amount of stock, and it then being necessary to mortgage the property, including the interest of the State with that of the other stock-holders.

Mr. Martel—

I wish to say a few words on this subject, on behalf of my colleague and myself. In our part of the country, we have subscribed to the railroad more from a convic ion of its intrinsic utility and necessity, than with any view of realising a dividend on our stock. We wish to encourage internal improvements, and therefore we subscribed. I view this bill much in the same way. If it will aid the great railroad enterprizes it ought to be passed.

The amendment was rejected. The bill passed.

REMOVAL OF PUBLIC RECORDS.

The bill to provide for the removal of certain public records from the Fourth District of the city of New Orleans was taken up.

Mr. Trudeau offered an amendmeet, providing that the cost shall not exceed $15,000.

Mr. King—

I am authorized by Mr. Arnoux, the Recorder of Mortgages of the Parish of Jefferson, to say that the amount will not exceed $15,000, and that he obliges himself never to ask more than that amount, and I ask the reporter to take down my words.

Mr. McCay—

I am authorized to make the same statement.

Mr. Trudeau—

Under the assurances of the gentlemen, I will withdraw the amendment.

The bill passed.

DEFINING THE BOUNDARY BETWEEN CADDO AND DE SOTO.

The bill to define the boundary line between the Parishes of Caddo and De Soto was taken up.

Mr. Hodge—

I wish to state that this bill has passed the House, and meets the views of the members from those parishes. It also affects the Parish of Natchitoches, which hereafter will be in my district. I am not in any manner responsible for the bill. As the representatives in the other House, from the interested parishes, approve of it, I do not feel called on to oppose it.

The bill passed.

THE RICKER EXPEDITION.

Mr. Hebert called up the bill for the payment of the expenses incurred by the Chairman of the Senate Committee in 1852.

Mr. King—

It has been said that this Committee had no authority to proceed as they did. The resolution under which they were appointed shows differently. The resolution says, that during the recess, they shall have full power to act and collect information. What is the meaning of that? Let me read a short extract from the report of the Committee, made in 1853. (Mr. King here read an extract rom the report.) I know that Mr. Ricker con-ulted many of the most eminent men in the State, nd not one of them suggested that he had no uthority. It is a new idea sprung at the eleventh our; but is repeated often and earnestly enough

25,000 to $5000 If we pay that now, it will ttle the matter. If we do not pay this, we shall obably be importuned till we give the whole

Mr. Wickliffe—

The gentleman says, the denial that Mr. Ricker is not so sir. I know that Mr. Ricker asked a ntleman to accompany, and stated at the same

I am informed that Mr. Riddell never paid a dollar for that expedition.

Because I was requested by Mr. Waller to do so.

The Senate refused to strike out.

WEDNESDAY, March 15, 1854.

EMANCIPATION OF SLAVES.

Mr. Wickliffe called up the bill providing for the manner of emancipating slaves in the State of Louisiana.

Mr. King—

That is not a local, it is a general law. I hope those Senators who have stood with me on this subject of emancipation will not favor such legislation as that. A short time ago the Legislature passed with great unanimity a law, shadowing it forth as the permanent policy of Louisiana to put a stop to the emancipation of slaves, to remain among us. From the policy of that act we have departed by special legislation. In all such cases the best side of the story is put forward, our sympathies are appealed to, so that we find it difficult to refuse. We were finally called on to pass a general law, which, however, is got rid of by the practice of applying to the Legislature for special acts of emancipation. We also passed a general pension law, and our list soon swelled from $15,000 to $60,000. This bill will have the same effect. If the case be left to the District Attorney, alone, instead of twenty or thirty a year, we shall have several hundreds. The Attorney has no interest in the suit. He is paid, whether he gains or loses. The person wishing to get this thing done will go and electioneer with the District Attorney just as they do here. The effect of this policy can easily be seen. It will tend to emancipate every slave in the State. It would be better to let every man emancipate his own slaves and suffer them to remain in the State, than to pass this bill. For my part I shall do all in my power against it, and shall not consent to a dispensation of the rules.

Mr. Wickliffe—

The gentleman's knowledge of the law of 1852 is not accurate He says it was passed with great unanimity. The fact is, it experienced great difficulty in both houses. Liberia was stricken out. That word did not appear in it till after it was enrolled. He says this bill will have a tendency to emancipate every slave in the state—that the officers will be electioneered with and corrupted by the importunities or offers of interested parties, thus insinuating that the District Attorney would neglect his duty for seventy dollars. I am not prepared to say that this is true of our officers.—The gentleman says that under this bill hundreds of negroes a year would be emancipated. I do not believe there would be so many as by the Legislature. Under this bill the slave and master would both be known by the tribunal before which they come. The system of log-rolling which prevails before the Legislature, and which the gentleman has spoken of, will be heard of no longer.—When they come here to get bills passed, we can tell them, go home before a jury of your neighbors, and the District Attorney will do it, if it be judged proper and expedient. Thus we will be relieved from the importunities which so much annoy us, and a general system will prevail for all necessary emancipations.

Mr. King—

I did not charge corruption on the District Attorneys and juries. I meant to infer that their other duties were too onerous and absorbed too much of their time to permit them to be depositaries of the interests of the State in a matter of this kind. They are but men and frail men like ourselves. They may yield to those importunities which affect so much the Legislature. Why, sir, under the pension law, our liabilities rose in one or two years from $15,000 to $60,000, although it was framed with great care. The gentleman from West Feliciana was one of the first to advocate its repeal, with a view of letting every case stand on its own merits. This is a still greater evil. The bill is badly drawn. A negro entitled to his freedom by law and justice cannot bring suit. Even if kidnapped and sold he cannot sue for that freedom of which he has been illegally deprived. It only authorizes the master to make the application. In such cases as those I have mentioned he would be the last person to do it.

Mr. Wickliffe—

Does the gentleman mean to say that this bill takes from the slave the right which the Code gives him to sue for his freedom?

Mr. King—

Not in actual terms; but this seems to be a general bill for the emancipation of slaves, and provisions for cases of the kind to which I have alluded ought not to have been left out. Some people seem to think the Code is like the Constitution, not to be affected by Legislative action. This is a mistake. The Code is composed only of statutes which are repealed by contravening laws passed by the Legislature. I am not prepared to answer the gentleman's question without making a careful analysis of the bill. But as it appears to me now, it might take away the right which negroes now enjoy of suing for their freedom. I hope the Senate will not grant a dispensation of the rules.

The Senate refused to suspend the rules.

BILL TO PERMIT RAILROADS TO MORTGAGE THEIR PROPERTY.

Mr. Kenner—

I desire to call up the bill to permit railroad companies to mortgage their property.

Mr. Lacey—

I voted in the majority against the bill yesterday. Last evening I moved a reconsideration, which was carried.

Mr. Moore—

The amendment which I offer has not been brought forward till after much deliberation. I am a stockholder in one of these companies, and I am therefore not prejudicial against them. We have allowed the city of New Orleans to issue bonds in favor of these roads We have made those bonds a basis for banking. Now we are called on to let them mortgage the whole of their property, even that which does not now exist, and including the interest of the State. This is going rather too far. I have no objection to permitting them to mortgage that part which is made, but not what is not yet made, particularly as we have made the bonds to be issued by the city of New Orleans a basis for free banking.

Mr. Kenner—

The impression seems to have been that the companies do not already possess this right; but

Digitized by Google

n examination it was found that they already had by their charters. Then it was said they ought ot to be permitted to mortgage what did not ex t. But if individuals and capitalists are willing lend, why should we not let them do it? If e did not grant this privilege they would have confidence in lending their money, for they ould say some individual, after the road was fin- ed, might step in before them and get a mort- ge on it. All we want is to secure these per- s who are willing to lend money to these rail- ad compadies. I cannot see that this is such a nstrous proposition.

Mr. Moore—

The effect of the bill would be this. The com- nies will mortgage the roads for their full value d get the money. The bonds of New Orleans, the amount of three and a half millions, will be ued in their favor and they will get the money them, also. Thus they will mortgage the ole interest of the city and that of the State, d get the money on both. I, as a stockholder, opposed to any such proceedings. I think it ong and unjust They ought to be satisfied h what they already have from the city and State.

Mr. Trudeau—

By this bill the Directors are not only author- d to mortgage the rights of the State but those he stockholders also. What right have we to carry forward and give the Directors the t to dispose of the interest of not only the city State, but the stockholders likewise, without r consent?

Mr. Kenner—

They already have the right.

Mr. Trudeau—

Where is this thing to stop? They asked char- —we gave them; they asked subscriptions the State—we subscribed; they asked that r Orleans be permitted to issue bonds for their fit—we permitted it; I have gone as far as but that is far enough.

RELIEF OF DANIEL MARTINDALE.

he bill for the relief of the late Daniel Martin- was taken up.

r Munday—

he person whose name is mentioned in the ti- this bill was last year elected District Atter- ney district. He was a young man whose alents and varied acquirements gave promise cultivated maturity. He was indeed an honor State, and to the profession of which he bright an ornament. When the fatal epi , whose desolating effects have been felt in ny portions of our State, broke out in our , his humane and sympathizing heart ted him to take an active part in every re of relief. He was indefatigible in his al attention and lavish of his means; he ered to the sick and smoothed the pillow of ng; he organized a hospital for the recep- patients, and indeed devoted all his time labors of humanity which in such times he truly benevolent and philanthropic heart. ith loves a shining mark. ied, leaving behind a widowed mother, of e had been the only support and solace.— ect of this bill is to authorize the payment alance of his salary for the term which left uncompleted. I imagine there will jection to it.

Mr. King—

We have about three thousand just such vic- tims in New Orleans, and numbers whose services have been just as meritorious. $500,000 would not cover all the claims of a similar nature that could be presented. The object seems to be to make a charitable donation for the services ren- dered by the deceased during the epidemic. If that be the object we have 3000, yes, 10,000, just such cases in New Orleans.

Mr Munday—

I have voted for almost numberless bills for the relief of New Orleans when called on to do so, and yet the gentleman refuses to vote the paltry sum of $300 for a case in East Feliciana. He would not dare to vote against bills of the same kind for New Orleans; yet he votes against one for another parish. The gentleman has likewise been unfortunate in his analogies. He says there are ten thousand such cases in New Orleans.— This, sir, is the case of a meritorious public ser- vant who died in office, while engaged in the ex- ercise of the noblest duties of humanity. To ev- ery such case that the gentleman can produce, I shall not only willingly but joyfully vote the same relief.

Mr King—

I cannot deny that I sympathize strongly with the appeal of the gentleman, but on the other hand I cannot forget that this would be an ex- tremely dangerous precedent. If this bill pass, it will be an example for the presentation of thou- sands of similar claims.

The gentleman has spoken of sectional feeling. No one, sir, is more free from it than I am. It is true I have voted money for the charitable insti- tutions in New Orleans; but that is a matter of State policy, not of local favor. This, on the contrary, is very bad policy any way it can be viewed If this bill pass it would justify similar claims from every part of the State If the gen- tleman should come to me for charity in this case, I would give it trebly, but I am not willing to make a charitable institution out of the Treasury of the State.

The bill passed.

MINDEN SEMINARY.

The bill appropriating $5000 to Minden Semi- nary was taken up.

Mr Macmurdo—

With the permission of the Senate I will say a few words on this bill It is scarcely necessary for me to say that I am in favor of education. I am as much in favor of it as any Senator here.— The only objection to this bill is that it establishes a precedent which we cannot evade hereafter. If we give to one parish we may have to give to ev- ery other. There are 47 parishes in the State.— Suppose we give $5000 to each, that would be $235,000. If we commence the system we may be called on to appropriate that amount in one year. The Treasury of course could not support such a drain as that. If this bill pass, gentlemen must be prepared to listen to a proposition to in- crease the taxes of the State.

Mr. Defreese—

I am opposed to this system of legislation. This proposition has reference to a parish contiguous to my own, and yet I shall vote against it. I should vote against it equally were it for my own. If it be not laid on the table, I shall move to amend it by appropriating the same amount for every parish in the State. This system of legislation is to be reprobated by every reflecting man. The state- ments of Professor Dimitry in his lecture, though with all his fervid eloquence and flowing rhetoric, can have no influence with me in a matter of legislation. I have great respect for him, but I am not willing to squander the money of the State to favor even his theories.

Mr. Kenner—

Some years ago a system of building school-houses was adopted; they were called colleges, academies and seminaries. This plan failed.—Then the common school system was established. This succeeded better than building schools and colleges and letting the public furnish the teachers. If we pass this bill the part of the State most heavily taxed will kick at it. How much does Claiborne pay?

Mr. Hodge—

More than Ascension.

Mr. Kenner—

I should like to see the record.

Mr. Hodge—

To use the gentleman's own argument I will bet him a hundred dollars.

Mr. Lacey—

Put that down, Mr. Reporter.

Mr. Kenner—

And put down, also, that I accept. If gentlemen were as anxious to have their own words taken correctly as they are for those of their neighbors, the record might not show so well for them. But to return. The part of the State most heavily taxed now, receives the least proportionate benefits. They pay out for education four or five dollars and get back one. This they do without a murmur. They do not utter a complaint. But if you do this thing they will have a right to object; and they will object. It would injure the whole school system, and the cause of education throughout the State, however it might benefit this particular institution.

The bill passed.

BAYOU PLAQUEMINE.

A bill in relation to Bayou Plaquemine was taken up.

Mr. Hebert—

When a great river is interfered with, it will be found that injury is effected which eventually forces a return to the natural regimen of the stream. This is the case when in a stream which naturally throws off its surplus waters either by overflow or through lateral outlets, an extraordinary quantity of water is restricted to the bed of the river. Effects of this kind have been produced by the Raccourci Cut-Off, Shreve's Cut-Off, and others, which in point of fact have not shortened the distance an inch between New Orleans and Natchez. At Plaquemine the river has been interfered with by stopping up one of its natural outlets. The moment the water is stopped at all, the drift begins to collect and fill up the opening. The bill says the interruption is only to be temporary; but the difficulty is when it is once done, to effect an opening again. This is shown at Manchac. If we stop the Plaquemine, the river current will be increased and also the depth. Near Plaquemine the increase is already 18 inches. The first thing then that will occur, will be that the town of Plaquemine will go into the river. I call on the members representing that part of Louisiana below Plaquemine to sustain me in opposition to this measure.

The State Engineer says that rather than close Bayou Plaquemine, we should make two outlets.

(Here Mr. Hebert read from the report of the State Engineer.)

There is still another consideration. It will stop the navigation of the Bayou. Senators from that portion of the State which uses the Bayou should remember this. No water will flow into the Bayou from the river, and we shall have to depend on the back water of the Atchafalya. But there is a fall of 18 inches in this Bayou, making the calculation for the difference of high water in the Plaquemine and the Atchafalaya, so that the water from that Bayou cannot come up. It would not reach higher than four miles below the town I have not prepared myself to make an elaborate speech on this subject, and shall only move to lay the bill on the table, and that the substitute be taken up. I will read from the law of 1852 to which the substitute refers. (Reads.)

I will call to the mind of the Senate that a few days ago, a resolution was passed instructing the State Engineer to repair to Bayou Plaquemine and if necessary to throw an obstruction across the Bayou and stop the water. I have received information that the raft which has occasioned so much alarm has been removed.

Mr King—

I hope the motion will prevail to pass the substitute. It seems the State is again undertaking to play the Engineer, and is dictating the precise manner in which a work is to be done, which requires the best talent.

Mr Palfrey—

I hope the substitute will prevail. Bayou Plaquemine is the only outlet for an immense amount of produce from the West, and to the West from New Orleans, Avoyelles, St. Martin, St. Mary, La Fayette, Vermilion, Calcasieu, Ascension and part of Rapides, are all interested in the navigation of that stream It is of the greatest importance to them. They have no other outlet for their produce except a roundabout way through the Atchafalaya. The appropriation is a small one—to remove the drift-wood. The people of that section have been deprived for some months of the benefits of navigation. By the circuitous route of the Atchafalaya they are compelled to pay a dollar higher freight on sugar and for other things in proportion, both those which they receive and those which they send. I hope the substitute will pass.

The substitute was adopted.

EVENING SESSION.

BOUNDARY BETWEEN IBERVILLE AND WEST BATON ROUGE.

Mr Lauve—

I have a word to say in relation to this bill. In order to show that the territory of Grosse Tête belongs to the parish of West Baton Rouge it is en-ly necessary to read the law. This must be sufficient to convince every person that the parish of West Baton Rouge has certain rights in relation to this territory which we have no right to set aside. The law gives it to West Baton Rouge or says it must in a certain time revert to West Baton Rouge. I hope Senators will weigh this matter well and reflect maturely before they commit so gross an act of injustice as would be involved in passing this bill. This is not a matter for the Legislature to decide. It is a question to be submitted to the decision of the Courts and to them it should be left.

Mr. Hebert—

The words of my Colleague require a few remarks in answer The gentleman told us that this is not a matter for the Legislature to settle. I think on the contrary it is not such a question as can be the subject of a judicial decision If the gentleman shows a law of the Legislature defining the Boundaries between the two parishes then the question might be brought before the Courts. But there is no such law, therefore the Legislature must settle it. The gentleman said also that the law which he read gives the territory to West Baton Rouge. I say on the contrary, it clearly gives the territory to Iberville for a certain time. He says that at a certain time it must revert to West Baton Rouge. I say the question is evidently left open for the Legislature to decide. The laws passed afterwards showed the Legislature never had any such intention as the gentleman supposes they had two intents which I shall endeavor to explain Laws on the subject were passed by the Legislature of 1828 and the Legislature of 1847. Between these acts there is a conflict. One law leaves the decision of the point to the people of the territory. If they want to go to West Baton Rouge. I am willing at the next session to bring in a bill to put them there.

Mr. Hodge—

I should like to hear the law read.

Mr. Hebert—

Let me first read from the act of 1825 (Mr. Hebert reads from the act of 1825) I should call the attention of the Senate to this act. The Grand Bayou Poydras spoken of here lies between th Mississippi and Grosse Tête. This act gives the enbracing territory to Pointe Coupée. Another act fixes the limits of Pointe Coupée in such a manner that this territory is omitted. That law is all that really takes back the territory from the parish of Pointe Coupée. I will now read from the act of 1847. (Mr. Hebert here reads from the act of 1847). I would request Senators to bestow their special attention on the terms of this act. It gives to Iberville, even west of this territory, and carries the line as far as Pointe Coupée, thus showing the intention of the Legislature to give the territory to Iberville. I hope the Senate will take action on this matter and so settle it at once.

The following are the passages from the laws referred to in the preceding remarks.

An act to determine the limits of the parish of Pointe Coupée, and to grant powers to the Police Jury of said parish and likewise to that of the parish of West Baton Rouge, approved Feb. 4th 1825.

Sect. 1 Be it enacted &c.

That the parish of Pointe Coupée shall be circumscribed in the following limits to wit: running from the Northen extremity of the line bounding towards the east, the lower line of a tract of land now the property of Alexander Baudin and situated on the Bayou du Manoir, thence following said line towards the South and the lines bounding the depth of the lands and plantations, situated on the Eastern bank of the inferior channel of False River, as far as Grand Bayou Poydras, as far as its confluence with Bayou Grosse Tête, thence in a straight line West as far as the Atchafalaya River thence running the Atchafalaya to Mississippi River &c.

Act to amend an act entitled : an act to determine the boundaries of the parish of Pointe Coupée approved Feb. 12 1838.

Sect. 1. Be it enacted, &c.

That the lines of the parish of Pointe Coupée between said parish and the parish of West Baton Rouge, will run as follows: Starting from the lower mouth of False River and running thirty five acres along the lower Channel of False River, then following the back lines of the Plantations of West Baton Rouge, untill said line reaches the line between townships five and six; thence by a direct line to the lower corner of ranges nine and ten, between townships six and seven; thence following the line of ranges nine, eight and seven between townships six and seven to the Atchafalaya; thence up said river to its mouth on the Mississippi River.

Sect 3. And be it further &c.

That all laws and parts of laws to this contrary be and are, hereby, by these present repealed.

Act to define the boundary line between the parishes of Iberville and Ascension, and the boundary line between Iberville and St Martin, approved April 15th 1847.

Sect. 1. Be it enacted &c.

That the lines surveyed and established by Augustus S. Phelps, in the year eighteen hundred and thirty seven, be and are hereby, declared and made the dividing line between the parishes of Iberville and Ascension.

Sect. 2. Be it further enacted, &c.

That the line between the parishes of Iberville and St Martin, shall begin at a point where the line between the townships eleven and twelve strikes the Atchafalaya, commonly called Grand River, or Old River, on its Western Bank, west of and near lake Natchez, thence running west along said township line until the same strikes the Eastern branch of Bayou Pigeon, thence along the middle of said Bayou, and middle of Little Bayou Pigeon to the North of Cross Bayou; thence along the middle of Cross Bayou to its junction with lake Long, commonly called Murphy's Lake; thence through said Lake to a point on its Western shore, three miles North of said township line; thence West paralledt herewith to Lake Chicot; thence along the Eastern border of said Lake Chicot, to the main Eastern navigable entrance into Bayou Sorel Bay; thence Northwardly along the middle of said entrance or pass, and Bayou Sorrel Bay to the upper Bayou Pigeon; thence along the middle thereof, Northwardly, to its junction with the Atchafalaya, called Grand River; thence along the middle of Grand River to Oski Bay; thence through the middle thereof to the Eastern Branch of the Bayou Alabama; thence following the said branch, including the inhabitants of both sides thereof, upwards to the township line between townships six and seven, on the Southern boundary of the parish of Pointe Coupée; the portion North and East of said line to belong to the parish of Iberville, and South and West to the parish of St Martin.

Sect. 3. Be it further enacted, &c.

That all laws contravening the provisions of this act be, and are hereby repealed.

Mr. Moore—

The Senate, I hope, will indulge me with a few words on this point. By reading this law of 1825 it will be observed that the territory in dispute at that time belonged to West Baton Rouge. If I may use the expression it was loaned to Iberville, till West Baton Rouge should make a road to come out at the Court House. I may remark that the dividing line between parishes in my section of the State, is the Bayou Atchafalaya. I was in the Senate when the act of 1847 was passed I opposed it. Contrary to my wish it cut off a part of my parish. Iberville was not content with her original territory and so a part of St Martin was cut off and given to her. Now she wants to take a part of West Baton Rouge, for every body must see that this territory was only loaned to Iberville, and that West Baton Rouge never lost her title. West Baton Rouge in order to carry out the provisions of the law has expended much money in constructing a plank road; for the law says the territory shall be attached to Iberville until the road is made, and then it is to return to the original proprietor. The Bayous in all times, were always the limits of parishes. This was established by the Spanish limits There was no exception in this case, except what was intended to be merely temporary. One only reason the territory was attached, for a time, to Iberville was because there was no road through West Baton Rouge to the river, and the people were compelled to take road through Iberville. As it belonged to West Baton Rouge originally, which no one can deny, it would have been exceedingly unjust to take it away. There is another objection to the bill. If we do take this territory away from West Baton Rouge, we violate at least the spirit of that article of the Constitution which says that no parish shall be created with less than 625 square miles of territory. Now if you take this away you leave West Baton Rouge with less than 250. The terms of the law make it evident that the moment the road is made it should go back to West Baton Rouge. The lines described by the gentleman between St Martin and Iberville have nothing at all to do with the question There might very well be a line without taking this territory away from West Baton Rouge. The people of that parish have lately made a road at an expense of $13,00 for the convenience of the Grosse Tête people; and now wish to take the territory away. The late boundaries were the Atchafalaya. The portion West of Bayou Grosse Tête were to be reannexed to West Baton Rouge when the road should be built. They have built the road at an expense of $13,000, and having complied with the condition imposed on them we have no right to refuse to restore the territory.

Mr Lacoste—

I shall vote for the bill because it gives the people the right to decide. They are the proper judges in such cases.

Mr Hodge—

I wish to have my vote on the subject recorded. This is a bill to define the boundary between two parishes. It is suggested that one of the acts relied on by the Senator from Iberville (Mr Lanve), in support of his position, has been repealed by another act. If so, what is the necessity for this act? It may be said that there is some excitement which ought to be calmed. Iberville says she is entitled to the territory and taxes. West Baton Rouge makes the same claim for herself. This is a dispute which ought to be made the subject of a legal decision. Where is the warrant for the division of the territory of parish? What right have we to take a portion from one parish and give it to another? We may organize new parishes, but we cannot take from one and give to another But even if we could, by doing it in this case, we should violate that article of the Constitution which says that vested rights shall not be divested. West Baton Rouge having made the road has acquired a vested right, and it is not competent for the Legislature or any human power to divest her of her rights. And what are those rights? To receive taxes from the property situated on this territory, and the right in this case is by no means insignificant. I would call the attention of the Senate to one particularity of the bill. West Baton Rouge groans under an immense weight of debt and consequent taxation. Iberville is rich and out of debt. If we leave it to the people of Grosse Tête to decide they, being actuated by motives of pecuniary interest, will, of course, vote to go to that parish where they have the least taxes to pay and that will be Iberville. Is it wright, is it fair, is it honest, to leave the decision of such a question to such a tribunal? Is it right to take this territory from them after they have complied with the conditions of the law by building the road. Gentlemen do not believe in what they say. They do not believe the act of 1847 has the effect which they attribute to it. If it had there would be no necessity for this law. The first time they thought of such a thing was when they heard that West Baton Rouge was going to establish her right. I would call the attention of lawyers in the Senate to this fact that the Supreme Court once decided that where the Legislature had granted a right to establish ferries it could not be taken away. When my parish was organized the Legislature gave the right to Shreveport to have a ferry. Another law was passed giving one half to the parish of Bossier Shreveport resisted and carried the case up to the Supreme Court The Court decided in an opinion delivered by Judge Slidell, that if Shreveport had incurred any expense she had acquired a vested right which the Legislature could not take away. If West Baton Rouge has built a road you cannot take the territory away. The case is similar to the one I have just cited. I call on Senators to comply with the Constitution and not be drawn away from it by party influence.

Mr Wickliffe—

Let me ask the gentleman whether the parish of West Baton Rouge built that road?

Mr Hodge—

Her citizens did and that is the same thing. They did it with the intention of complying with the law.

Mr Moore—

I ask permission of the Senate to read the law to show that I was right in my statement that the Atchafalaya was the boundary of all these parishes (reads). I have merely read this in order to show that my interpretation of the Legislature was as I have stated it to be.

Mr Hebert—

I would ask the gentleman to read the law passed four days afterwards postponing the operation of this law. One year afterwards, in 1827, the Legislature passed a law repealing this one.

The first section was adopted.

The second section was taken up.

Mr Hodge—

I move to strike out this section as the gentleman says that the law has already been repealed.

Mr Kenner—

I vote against the adoption of this bill because m satisfied from the argument that law, justic. l right are all on the side of West Baton Rouge addition she is the weaker parish and I natu y simpathize with the weak. Iberville is strong strongly represented here at the Capital. She hes to dispoil a weaker parish and I am not ling to sanction the outrage by my vote. I will avor to point out some of the incongruities o bill. I shall not go into that part of the questo ably handled by the Senator from Caddo and Senator from St Martin, but shall refer to ra The first section fixes the boundaries as ville desires to have them. The second says all laws contrary to the first section shall be aled. The third says the people shall vote on point Does the bill say that they, if they vote not going to Iberville, they are to go to Wes on Rouge? Not at all. The person who the bill was too artful for that. It leaves question in the same position it is now ; that is by the territory remains a part o Iberville So ever way the people vote they are to go to ville. Then the elections is to be held by missioners from Iberville, not a man from t Baton Rouge to be placed at the ballot boxes certain whether the votes are legal or not heart of the disposler must have been hard in when he could invent such plan as that. But dispoiling must be effected; and this poor of West Baton Rouge has no chance to whether justice is done her. The election is conducted by Iberville Commissioners and ille Sheriff, and probably Iberville voters The the very thing to suit Iberville. But I want ended and to allow at least one Commission on West Baton Rouge.

Wickliffe—

ence does the bill propose to take the Commis rs? Why Sir, from among the very people ited. Does the gentleman believe the Com ners would not make a fair return ? Does he they will falsify the vote? The gentleman his bill is a despoiation of West Baton Rouge. te for the bill because we think the territory s to Iberville What can be more fair than e it to the voters of the territory itself? We not to leave it to the voters of the two pa- because, then, West Baton Rouge would o chance. I am authorized to state by one Representatives of Iberville that a propos make the election final was made and wa by the Representative from West Baton

Mr Boatner offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted.

Resolved that the thanks of the Senate be and are hereby tendered to the Hon. Louis Hebert, Senator from Iberville, for the prompt and able manner in which he has discharged his duties as chairman of the Enrolling Committee of the Senate.

On motion of Mr Trudeau, the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate be and are hereby tendered to the Hon Robert C Wickliffe for the impartiality, ability and courtesy he has displaid in the discharge of his duties when presiding over the Senate.

Mr Hodge offered the following resolution, which was adopted.

Resolved, That Mr Oscar Arroyo be allowed the same compensation, as Special Messenger, that the Special Messenger of the Senate received last year, for the time the said Arroyo acted in that capacity.

The special messenger of the Senate informs the House that the President pro tem. of the Senate has signed the following enrolled bills:

An act to improve the navigation of the Sabine River.

An act to provide for the improvement of Bayou Lafourche, to reclaim swamp and overflowed lands and to reserve a portion thereof from sale for a certain time.

An act to make the interest of the bonds issued by the State payable in the city of New Orleans.

Mr Macmurdo moved that the bill be taken up accordingly—agreed to.

SALARY OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE $2,000.

Mr Hodge—

Is that the same as last year?

Digitized by Google

Mr Macmurdo—

When there occurs any difference from last year I will state the fact that Senators may vote advisedly.

CLERK OF SECRETARY OF STATE $1,000

Mr Hodge—

I move to strike out $1,000 and insert $600.

Mr Kenner—

I would ask if the copying Clerk is the same individual.

Mr Macmurdo—

No sir, it is a person who copies the acts of the Legislature for the State Printer. This is a special service.

Mr Kenner—

It was never done before last year; and is therefore an unusual thing. Before last year the same individual performed both duties. I call the attention of the Senate to this fact. It is true he copies the acts; but they have always been copied, ever since the organization of the State government and we never paid extra for it till last year. I objected to it then, and I have seen no reason to change my mind.

The amendment was laid on the table.

Mr Hodge—

I move to strike out $1,000 and insert $1,200, so that all the work can be done by one person. We shall thus save $400.

Mr Munday—

I object to the amendment. $600 is not too much ror the work. copying the acts in both languages, the enrolled bills, &c. All this requires a very competent man It is nothing more than right to pay him a fair price for his work.

M Defreese—

I am opposed to voting the $1,200 because I believe if we do that the majority will keep in the $600 also.

The amendment was lost.

THE SALARY OF THE AUDITOR'S CLERK $2,000.

Mr MacMurdo—

The chief clerk in the Auditor's Office has a very laborious duty to perform. For services of the kind which he renders $2 800 is a very moderate sum. He must be familiar with all the duties of the office, prompt in giving information, besides doing much that we have no idea of. A good clerk cannot be obtained for less than that price If the Senate raise the sum to $2,500 the House will agree.

SALARY OF THE REGISTER OF WINNSBORO.

Mr Moore—

I shall move to strike out the salary of the Register at Winnsboro. The office is not needed indeed it is rather objectionable and frequently gives rise to conflict in entries. The Supreme Court has decided that it is a subordinate office to the one here. Few lands are sold there. Only those under the grant of 500,000 acres, and sometimes persons entering lands here go there and find them entered there also. When the office was established it was said there were about 80,000 acres in the District, they must be almost all sold by this time The conflict between the entries in thet wo offices makes that one a nuisance. It was thought it would be a benefit and convenience to the people of that section to have an office in the neighborhood. I assisted in establishing it, but I am convinced now that it is of no use, but rather the contrary.

Mr King—

If we want to abolish this office we ought to do it by law. It would be extremely awkward to retain the office and the officer and make no allowance for the salary. I think I should favor abolishing the office if it could be done, but this is not the way to do it.

Mr Moore—

I intended to move an amendment at the end of the bill abolishing the office. If I should move to strike out merely with a view of making a factious opposition to this officer getting his salary. I should be unworthy of the seat I hold as a Senator.

The amendment was laid on the table.

SALARY OF CLERK OF FIRST DISTRICT COURT $6000.

Mr Palfrey—

$6,000 is the full amount of the Salary? By the law he is to collect the fines and forfeitures and pay himself and account to the State for the remainder. I am told that he does not collect or account for any. He could collect at least one half the salary from the fines and forfeitures. I move to strike out $6,000 and insert $3,000.

Mr Macmurdo—

It is not contemplated to pay this out of the general fund except so much as may not be provided for by fines and forfeitures.

Mr Defreese—

Did he not draw the whole amount of the salary from the State?

Mr Macmurdo—

I am not informed.

Mr Palfrey—

I believe this could be the best way of making that officer collect the fines and forfeitures.

Mr Lacoste—

Have we the right to reduce his salary when we have passed a law to give him $6,000? I believe not.

Mr Munday moved to amend by inserting $4,000 which was carried.

After some further amendments the bill was adopted.

CUBA.

Mr. McCay introduced the following resolutions which were read, resolution by resolution.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Louisiana in General Assembly convened, That we view with regret and alarm the policy recently inaugurated by the Government of Spain in the Island of Cuba, the manifest object and effect of which must be the abolition of slavery in that colony, and the sacrifice of the white race, with its arts, commerce and civilization, to a barberous and inferior race.

Resolved, 2d, That the consummation of their policy will exercise a most pernicious influence upon the institutions and interests, social, commercial and political of the United States.

Resolved, 3d, That, in our judgment, the time has arrived when the Federal Government should adopt the most decisive and energetic measures to thwart and defeat a policy conceived in hatred to this Republic, and calculated to retard her progress and prosperity.

On motion of Mr McCay, the rules were dispensed with, they underwent their several readings, and the first and second sections were adopted.

On the adoption of the third section, Mr. Hodge moved to strike out

Mr McCay called for the yeas and nays.

Le président—Je ferai observer que si le nombre des membres de ce comité est laissé au choix du président, j'en désignerai certainement 9.

M. King—Il est une question sur laquelle je crois qu'il est important d'appeler l'attention du Sénat. C'est une motion que je vais présenter demandant l'amendement du 11me règlement. Ce règlement tel qu'il est maintenant, dit : (Il lit.)

Je propose l'amendement suivant : Pourvu qu'une motion d'ajournement une fois faite ne puisse être faite de nouveau avant que le Sénat n'ait passé à quelque autre question. » L'opportunité, la nécessité même de cet amendement doit être visible au premier coup-d'œil. Son but est de prévenir le retour de ce qui a eu lieu ici, dans le Sénat, pendant la dernière session. Dans une circonstance surtout, une motion d'ajournement que le Sénat n'avait évidemment pas le désir d'accepter a été renouvelée continuellement, jusqu'à ce qu'enfin, de guerre lasse, le Sénat se vit obligé de s'ajourner même contre son gré. Le réglement tel qu'il est maintenant et tel je crois que le Président a déclaré l'année dernière qu'il devait être compris, semble sanctionner cette manière de faire et donner à tout membre le droit de renouveler perpétuellement une motion d'ajournement même avant qu'on ne se soit occupé d'aucune autre affaire.

MESSAGE DU GOUVERNEUR.

Le Message suivant du Gouverneur est reçu par le Sénat et lecture en est faite par le secrétaire.

CONCITOYENS DU SENAT ET DE LA CHAMBRE DES REPRESENTANTS,

La terrible épidémie qui a sévi dans presque tout notre Etat pendant les mois de l'été dernier, en même temps qu'elle plongeait dans la désolation des familles naguère heureuses et jetait prématurement dans la tombe des milliers de nos citoyens les meilleurs et les plus utiles, a eu pour résultat de développer chez les autres, de stimuler les vertus les plus nobles et les plus belles dont l'humanité puisse s'honorer. De bons Samaritains, à peine relevés de leur lit de douleur, de toutes les classes de la société, ecclésiastiques ou laïques, riches ou pauvres, oubliant leurs propres dangers, ont suivi pas à pas le fléau, assistant les pauvres et donnant des secours à ceux que le mal entourait de ses cruelles étreintes. Plusieurs ont succombé dans l'accomplissement de cette œuvre pie—plusieurs jeunes médecins pleins d'espérances, plus d'un ministre de Dieu, plus d'un prêtre, plus d'une sœur de charité, type vivant de la loi d'amour et de charité—et leurs noms sont maintenant dans toutes les bouches mêlés aux expressions de la plus profonde reconnaissance, de la plus ardente admiration. Quoiqu'ils aient été enlevés du milieu de nous, quoique maintenant ils jouissent de l'éternelle félicité auprès de celui dont la douloureuse agonie sur le Calvaire a été suivie immédiatement de la divine glorification, leurs noms resteront à jamais gravés dans tous les cœurs, ils seront conservés avec amour par leur bonne mère, par l'Etat qui a été le théâtre de leur sublime dévouement, et leur exemple, chaine d'or qui nous attache à eux, servira d'encouragement à ceux qui, comme eux, s'engagent dans cet étroit sentier de l'honneur et du devoir.

Mais ce n'est pas à ces citoyens là seulement que notre reconnaissance est acquise. Lorsque l'épidémie étendant ses ailes sombres eut répandu partout le deuil et la mort, lorsqu'il nous devint impossible de l'arrêter dans sa marche funèbre; lorsque les ressources nous firent défaut, les citoyens de tous les Etats de l'Union, tous nos frères enfin nous ont tendu leurs bras, nous ont ouvert leurs bourses, ont pris charitablement leur part de fardeau. Il m'est doux, à moi qui représente l'Exécutif de cet Etat, de reconnaître du plus profond de mon cœur et de proclamer hautement ces témoignages de bienveillance fraternelle d'affection dévouée qui ont placé l'Union aux yeux du monde entier, non seulement comme une confédération d'Etats souverains liés entr'eux par une simple Constitution écrite, mais encore comme une immense famille patriarcale, comme un peuple de frères et de parents.

Quelque pénible qu'il puisse être pour vous et pour moi de nous arrêter sur ce sujet qui nous rappelle des souvenirs si poignants, si douloureux, qu'il me soit permis de dire ici que cette expérience si chèrement acquise, ne sera pas sans heureux résultats. La condition sanitaire de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, n'est plus une question d'intérêt local seulement.

Lorsque le réseau des chemins de fer qui doit bientôt relier à la grande métropole les parties les plus reculées de l'Etat, sera terminé, sera complet, les paroisses les plus éloignées, les villes les plus distantes seront comme des faubourgs de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Déjà les principales lignes sont commencées et en voie de progrès rapide, et dans un an ou deux les fertiles et populeuses paroisses de l'Ouest seront en communication constante et rapide avec Alger, et les chars partant du centre même de la ville s'étendront jusqu'aux forêts des paroisses orientales où l'atmosphère est si pure et si embaumée. L'avenir de toutes les paroisses est donc étroitement lié à celui de la Nouvelle-Orléans—et la salubrité de l'Etat dépendra en grande partie de celle de la métropole. En vue de cela, pour l'accomplissement de ce résultat, il est de votre devoir, et je ne doute pas que pour vous ce ne soit une agréable tâche, d'apporter la plus sérieuse attention à cette question, et de deviser le plus promptement possible telles mesures que vous croirez les meilleures pour parer à l'avenir au retour de l'épidemie, et si ce résultat n'est pas possible, pour diminuer du moins, le ravages du terrible fléau qui pendant les mois de l'été dernier a si cruellement sévi sur notre Etat. Il ne vous sera pas tout à fait impossible de réaliser ce rêve ; mais comme tout ce que le ciel n'accorde que comme une récompense aux nobles efforts et à l'ambition de l'homme, ce rêve ne sera réalisé qu'après bien des tentatives, après bien études et des recherches scientifiques, qu'après bien des épreuves successives.

Nous savons déjà par expérience et par suite des observations qui ont été faites, que l'épidémie éclate et se développe principalement dans les grandes villes, et qu'elle fait surtout son apparition là où la population a pris un certain accroissement. Les circonstances qui résultent de ces accroissements de population, de cette agglomération d'hommes ont donc quelque influence soit pour faire naître le fléau, soit pour le propager. Plusieurs de ces circonstances peuvent heureusement être évitées ou contrôlées avec du temps et des soins, et dans plusieurs des villes les plus peuplées de l'ancien monde d'importantes réformes ont été faites grâce à un système judicieux d'hygiène publique par lequel les citoyens jouissent dans leurs maisons d'une ventilation suffisante, et ont devant leurs demeures des rues promptement desséchées et des réservoirs convenables où sont portés les immondices et tout ce qui pourrait enfin être nuisible à la salubrité publique. Ce sera à vous de décider quelle part l'Etat doit prendre dans le plan que vous aurez devisé et adopté, et si telle n'était pas votre idée, de décider si seulement vous déléguerez à la corporation de la Nouvelle-Orleans le pouvoir d'adopter telles mesures qu'elle croira nécessaires ou convenables pour améliorer la condition de la ville. Mais quelque soit le résultat de vos délibérations sur cette question, il me semble que ce ne serait que justice de lui accorder pour le dessèchement de ses marais et de ses terres basses, dont l'effet est incalculable sur le progrès de la maladie, une part proportionnelle du produit des terres marécageuses. On ne saurait faire un emploi plus juste, plus convenable de cette magnifique donation que d'en affecter une partie, dans un but d'intérêt général, à l'assainissement du centre, du cœur même de l'Etat.

A ce sujet permettez que j'appelle votre attention sur la communication que je vous transmets en même temps que mon message. Elle est de la commission de santé nommée à l'époque où le fléau sévissait, et qui avait été chargée de s'enquérir de l'origine, du caractère et des causes du mal. Composée comme elle est, d'hommes de talent et d'expérience dans leurs branches respectives, et animés du plus grand zèle pour le bien public, les suggestions qu'elle présente doivent être d'un très grand poids. Vous recevrez de la part de cette commission d'excellents conseils, de précieuses informations pour l'accomplissement d'une partie de votre tâche.

Le rapport du trésorier vous représentera la situation financière de l'Etat. Vous y verrez que la dette proprement dite de l'Etat, en y comprenant les bons emis pour souscriptions au fonds des compagnies de chemins de fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans et de Jackson, de la Nouvelle-Orleans, des Opelousas, de Shreveport et de Vicksburg, est de $3,231,809 41.

Sous l'empire de la loi passée à la dernière session pour subvenir aux besoins de l'Etat, au moyen d'un emprunt de $750,000, les recettes du trésor pour l'année courante se sont elevées à $2,148,467 65.

Les dépenses pendant le même espace de temps, faites pour les frais du gouvernement et pour subvenir aux affectations votées par la dernière législature, s'élèvent à $1,340,443,30—ce qui laisse un surplus de $808,024,35.

Il ne faut pas oublier que ce vaste surplus provient d'emprunts autorisés par la dernière législature et par celles qui l'ont précédée. Si on les déduit du total des recettes et de la balance que le Trésorier a maintenant en mains ainsi qu'il appert par son rapport on trouvera un déficit. Avec de tels arguments, les chiffres que je vous présente, je ne crois pas nécessaire de vous prévenir que le Trésor n'est pas en situation de subvenir à des demandes extraordinaires, ni de vous suggérer l'opportunité de régler les recettes et dépenses de telle sorte que nous puissions remplir nos obligations alors qu'il sera nécessaire et sans avoir besoin de recourir à de nouvelles impositions de taxes. En plaçant à de bons termes et avec de sûres garanties le surplus qui se trouve entre les mains du Trésorier et dont on n'a aucunement besoin maintenant, on les mettrait à l'abri des appropriations imprudentes et on dechargerait l'Etat d'une somme correspondante d'intérêt qu'il a maintenant à payer. Les amis de l'Education Publique pourraient très bien profiter de cette occasion pour demander le paiement de ce qui est dû à ce fonds spécial —Cette somme convenablement placée, suffirait au bout de quelques années, au maintien des écoles et en assurerait l'existence.

Je ne voudrais pas qu'on put supposer que je recommande ici cette économie fausse et sordide de l'avare qui enfouit son trésor, ou du sommelier qui cache son vin, ou de l'homme de talent qui cache ses moyens; — mais cette économie intelligente qui n'investit les fonds publics qu'à l'époque, de la manière et aux conditions les plus avantageuses, et de celle qui doit probablement produire de bons résultats et refuse positivement d'accéder à toute demande, quelque peu considérable qu'elle puisse être, si elle n'a pas pour but un projet dont l'utilité est bien reconnue. Les sommes énormes d'argent appliquées à des projets extravagants et que dès juges compétents n'avaient ni analisés, ni approuvés, dont ils n'avaient même pas admis la practicabilité, souvent même dépensés en efforts inutiles pour atteindre à des chimères, auraient pu permettre à l'Etat, si l'on avait sur les placer convenablement, où si l'on s'était bien rendu compte de ce qu'on se proposait d'entreprendre, de terminer plusieurs des magnifiques canaux que la nature a si prodigalement semés sur tous les points de notre territoire et qu'elle a si bien formés, qu'il ne nous reste presque plus rien à faire pour les rendre navigables. Il est vrai que dans ces cas-là l'argent a été pris du fonds des améliorations intérieures; mais le mode de procéder ne différait pas essentiellement de celui qui est suivi pour les affectations de comptes du fonds général.

Un remède à ce mal se trouve dans le système adopté et suivi par les gouvernements de l'Ancien Monde, système que leur expérience positive et notre expérience négative recommandent également. Il consiste en ceci : Ne jamais appliquer les sommes fournies à la sueur de leurs fronts par les contribuables, à des mesures nouvelles, à des projets qui n'ont pas encore pays. Ce système lent, mais sûr, produirait d'au-frants encore qui ne sont pas moins dignes de tou-disparaître en partie cette législation spéciale et iculière qui gêne notre système général de légis-

s, ont reçu des chartes de vos prédécesseurs.

L'Etat a été autorisé par la loi à souscrire pour ces différentes entreprises et à émettre de temps en temps des bons en paiement « pour une somme égale au quart du total reçu actuellement par la compagnie, et dont elle a reçu le paiement. » Conformément aux instructions de la Législature, j'ai émis le 27me jour de mai 1853, soixante seize bons de m lle piastres chacun en faveur du chemin de fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, des Opelousas et de l'Ouest ; le 30 de juillet suivant j'ai émis une autre série de quarante-cinq bons de mille piastres chacun, et en octobre seize autres de la même dénomination. La compagnie du chemin de fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, de Jackson et du Nord a reçu le 13 août cent soixante-cinq bons de l'Etat, de mille piastres chacun.

Je suis heureux de vous annoncer que les travaux de toutes ces lignes de chemin de fer, ont été poussés avec une louable énergie. Le chemin de fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans et des Opelousas, parcourt déjà un espace de dix-sept milles à partir de sa limite orientale. Le chemin de fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans et de la Mobile, avancent rapidement sous l'habile direction de ceux qui en sont chargés, et je suis persuadé que les travaux sur le chemin de Sreveport seront bientôt commences. Déjà les tracés ont été faits, les relevés sont achevés et les souscriptions s'élèvent à une somme considérable. Les compagnies de chemins plancheiés, aussi semblent animes du louable désir de pousser avec vigueur leurs travaux respectif.

Des obstacles imprévus et auxquels on ne pouvait parer, ont gêné quelque temps ces entreprises et les ont retardées. Cependant je suis heureux de pouvoir vous informer maintenant, qu'elles ne présentent pas un caractère sérieux. Peu après que les bons de l'Etat eurent été émis, les marches monetaires d'Europe et des Etats-Unis, ont subi un changement considérable, le taux de l'intérêt ayant augmenté dans une forte proportion. En consequence, les dits bons n'ont pu être vendus à cette époque. Mais cela, ni l'épidémie qui sévissait sur la ville, n'ont pu abattre l'ardeur. des compagnies. Je ne crois pas qu'ils aient jamais suspendu leurs opérations, et maintenant elles déploient toutes leurs ressources pour répondre à l'attente du public, et pour protéger les intérêts des actionnaires.

Un acte fut adopté le 10 mars 1852, restituant à la banque des Citoyens sa charte dont la forfaiture avait été déclarée: mais une condition avait été mise à cette réhabilitation, c'était : que la banque rendrait à l'Etat des bons de l'Etat jusqu'à concurrence de $800,000. Les clauses stipulées par la loi ont été mises à exécution par l'échange de $800,000 de bons de l'Etat qui ont ôte cancellees, et un capital additionnel de $934,430 a ete levé par les actionnaires au moyen d'une contribution de $7 par action, dont trois ont déjà ete versés a la banque et le restant doit être paye en 1854, 1855, 1856 et 1857. Ces clauses de l'acte ayant ete executées par les directeurs qui étaient alors chargés des affaires de la banque, une élection eut lieu, en vertu de la septième section, pour le choix de cinq directeurs de la part des actionnaires et les nouveaux élus, ainsi que les deux directeurs nommés par moi, sont entrés en fonctions le 1er juillet de l'annee passée.

Un des premiers actes des nouveaux directeurs a été de profiter des bénéfices de l'acte « autorisant la banque des Citoyens à convertir les actions garanties par hypothèque en actions au comptant,» afin d'augmenter le capital actif de la banque en obtenant le payement en argent comptant, de $10,000 prelevées sur 141,000 actions qui composent le capital de la banque. Cette opération a donne lieu à un arrangement entre les detenteurs d'actions au comptant et les détenteurs d'actions garanties par hypothèque, par lequel l'actif tout entier, tel qu'il existait au 1er septembre dernier, (excepté $500,000 transférées au département des operations de banque), doit fructifier au profit de ces derniers, et continuer a former une hypothèque spéciale pour le passif de la banque à cette epoque.

Les detenteurs d'actions garanties par hypothèque sont en outre déchargés de toute dépense d'administration, à l'exception des appointements de l'employé spécialement chargé des livres et comptes du département des actions garanties par hypothèque. Cet arrangement, tout en assurant la rédemption des obligations des détenteurs d'actions garanties par hypothèque, met l'Etat à couvert dans la même proportion, de toute obligation éventuelle sur les bons émis par la banque. Une judicieuse administration de cet établissement d'après l'arrangement actuel, produira, il y a tout lieu de l'espérer, un surplus considérable de bénéfices à partager entre les détenteurs d'actions garanties par hypothèque et l'Etat, d'après les termes de la charte.

La loi des banques libres qui a été adoptée pendant la dernière session a été mise en opération Ce système a réussi et tout porte à croire qu'il réalisera les avantages qu'en attendaient les auteurs de la loi.

Conformément à un acte adopté par vos prédécesseurs et approuvé le 28 avril 1853, m'autorisant à nommer un commissaire chargé de calculer et de recevoir les sommes dues par la Banque de l'Union à l'Etat, en vertu de la septième section d'un « acte pour incorporer la Banque de l'Union de la Louisiane, approuvé le 2 avril 1852 », j'ai chargé de cette tâche M Pemberton de la Nouvelle-Orléans, qui, après un examen approfondi, a consenti à recevoir la somme de $62,000 en paiement de tout intérêt de l'Etat dans cet établissement. $50,009 de cette somme devaient être payées en argent comptant sur le mandat du trésorier de l'Etat, et $12,000 en un billet de la banque, souscrit par le président et le caissier, daté du 3 juin et payable 4 mois après date. En conséquence de cet arrangement, l'Etat n'a plus aucun intérêt dans cet établissement.

J'ai été chargé par un acte adopté par la dernière Législature, dans le but de pourvoir aux moyens de soulager le Trésor de l'Etat, de faire publier en due forme, un avis demandant que des propositions fussent faites à l'Etat pour l'achat de Bons de l'Etat jusqu'à concurrence de $750,000. A l'expiration du terme prescrit par la loi, il s'est trouvé que la seule offre qui eût été faite, était celle de MM. J Corning & Cie., au pair. L'emprunt a donc été adjugé à ces messieurs La remise de ces Bons a éprouvé quelque retard, parceque le payeur n'a pas exécuté son contrat dans le délai fixé.

Dans le commencement du mois de novembre, l'Ingénieur de l'Etat s'est rendu dans les environs du Racourci, qu'on lui avait représenté comme causant des dommages importants sur les terres situées immédiatement en aval. Son rapport sur la « grande levée » fera voir les conséquences de cette malheureuse innovation. Mes vues sur ce sujet ont été exprimées lorsque j'avais l'honneur d'être ingénieur de l'Etat et des études ultérieures en ont prouvé la vérité. On me pardonnera, j'aime à le croire, de les rappeler, lorsque quelques uns de nos excellents concitoyens sont encore attachés à un système qui a été mis à l'épreuve et qui a produit des résultats si désastreux.

Comment parviendrons-nous a dessécher les terres inondées de la Louisiane ? Comment mettre en friche, sans dangers, ces immenses marais, ces terres-basses qui sont de beaucoup les plus productives de l'Etat ? Comment protéger les paroisses supérieures sans nuire aux inférieures ? En un mot, quelles mesures devons nous adopter pour protéger et récupérer les terres de l'Etat tout entier; sans qu'aucune partie en souffre. Voilà le problème que nous avons à résoudre. Les levées peuvent-elles accomplir cet objet ? Pour toutes les fins locales et temporelles, les levees suffisent; mais comme système général et permanent, elles sont défectueuses. Outre les frais continuels et considérables qu'elles exigent, la conséquence inévitable du resserrement des eaux agitées du fleuve entre des levées, est l'élévation graduelle de son lit. Il est clair que cette opération augmente le danger d'une inondation; l'expérience l'a prouvé partout où ce système a été adopté, et l'observateur le plus superficiel a pu en observer les effets sur le Mississipi, Le danger particulier de cette opération est que les progrès en sont lents, presqu'imperceptibles, tandis que l'effet en est certain, fatal. Le lit du fleuve s'élève enfin a un tel point, qu'il n'y a d'autre remède que la destruction de ces levées mêmes qui ont coûte tant d'argent et de perte de temps. Une inondation générale en est la conséquence inévitable, les eaux rentrent dans les anciens chenals et en forment de nouveaux; et le bras principal du fleuve revient à peu près à l'état où ils était antérieurement, seulement le lit en reste élevé. La situation du pays n'est donc nullement améliorée par le résultat final; au contraire les difficultés que présentent la protection et le desséchement se trouvent augmentées d'une manière importante et permanente. Voilà l'état de choses qui se prépare et les conséquences fatales qui nous menacent si nous persistons à entourer le Mississipi de levees et d'en fermer en même temps les débouchés naturels. Et ce ne sont pas là des suppositions dénuées de fondement; c'est le resultat inévitable de causes existantes. C'est aussi vrai et aussi certain que les eaux du Mississipi contiennent des matières qui forment des dépôts, et que ces eaux chercheront à prendre leur niveau naturel.

Est-t-il possible d'adopter un meilleur système? Cette question porte la réponse en elle-même, si nous considérons la formation du pays qu'arrose le Mississipi.

Les couches supérieures du Mississpi, lorsque les eaux sont hautes, et j'entends par là lorsqu'elles sont plus élevées que le niveau des plus basses terres basses sur les deux rives, paraît couler le long de la crête d'une chaîne de montagnes. (Il va sans dire que je ne parle pas ici du Mississipi dans toute sa profondeur, mais seulement du trop plein de ses eaux; sur la partie qui cause les inondations, et dont nous cherchons a nous débarrasser). Cette chaîne de montagnes à deux pentes ou versants, l'une dans la direction du courant général du fleuve, et l'autre qui le coupe à angle droit. C'est un fait que personne n'ignore. Est-il possible de chercher ou de trouver un cas, où le mode et les moyens de dessèchement et de protection, soient plus clairement indiqués et d'une application plus facile. Supposez un cas identique sur une moindre échelle, sur les terres d'un planteur doué d'une intelligence ordinaire. Un petit bayou, sujet à sortir de son lit pendant les fortes pluies traverse son habitation; la pente du terrain est dans la direction du bayou. Comment peut-il protéger d'une manière permanente les bords de ce bayou de l'inondation, sans avoir recours à une digue? En déversant le trop plein des eaux sur les terrains bas qui bordent le bayou, dans des canaux aboutissant à ce bayou. De cette manière, le but est immédiatement et aisément atteint.

Supposez maintenant qu'après avoir augmenté les facilités de décharger le courant d'eau à son embouchure, nous étendions, le long de la ligne inferieure des terres basses adjacentes, laquelle ligne serait parallèle au courant d'eau, supposez, dis-je, que nous prolongions ces canaux latersaux jusqu'au lac ou au réservoir dans lequel se jette le bayou. N'est-il pas évident que, de cette façon, on pourrait disposer de tout l'excédant d'eau ; les bords du bayou seraient garantis, les terres basses, les marais adjacents seraient desséchés, jusqu'au niveau du lac ou du golfe dans lequel les eaux se déchargent. Cela n'est-il pas clair ? N'est-ce pas facile en pratique, quelque soit le volume d'eau ? Donc cela se réduit à une question d'argent. Tout pays peut être desséché, toute rivière ramenée à son lit, dans les plus fortes inondations, quelle que soit cette inondation, quelle que soit l'élévation des eaux de cette rivière. Les eaux mêmes servent à un pareil système, en lavant leur propre chenal. Dans presque tous les cas, il suffirait de commencer l'ouvrage qu'achèverait la rapidité des eaux. De sorte que l'eau, maintenant un élément de destruction, deviendrait l'un des meilleurs agents d'un tel plan.

C'est là le système que l'on doit appliquer au Mississipi Je suis aussi fermement convaincu de la possibilité de le mettre en pratique et de le faire exécuter que je suis convaincu de la vérité de la plus claire des démonstrations mathématiques- L'eau peut-être amenée presqu'au niveau du Golfe du Mexique, et chaque pied de terre au-dessus de la marée haute peut-être certainement mis en culture. Il n'y a pas un doute à entretenir là-dessus. Le ferons-nous ? Adopterons-nous et poursuivrons-nous vigoureusement la mise en œuvre d'un large système destiné à rendre mille fois plus grandes les ressources de cet Etat, sans nous préoccuper d'intérêts locaux ou particuliers, sans nous effrayer de la grandeur du projet ? La capture a commencé l'ouvrage, le laisserons-nous inachevé ? Il y a des millions au fond de nos marais, les y laisserons-nous se perdre ? Sur la surface du globe il n'est pas de pays plus susceptible que le nôtre d'améliorations, nul pays qui en réclame plus, nul pays où s puissent être faites à moins de frais, nul pays où s résultats doivent être aussi profitables.

Le rapport officiel des commissaires que je vous soumets, vous donnera plus de détails sur toutes les transactions qu'ils ont faites avec la compagnie.

J'ai rempli, selon le vœu de la loi, tous les autres devoirs qui m'etaient imposés par l'acte de 1853.

Le sujet si intéressant de l'éducation publique vous sera développé par le surintendant de l'Etat. Jusqu'ici le système en vigueur a produit d'admirables résultats dans des districts très populeux, tandis que dans des paroisses peu habitées, il a désappointé ceux-là mêmes qui en étaient les meilleurs soutiens. Mais on pourra remédier graduellement à ce mal à mesure que notre population s'accroîtra. En attendant, on peut prendre dans différentes écoles de district les mesures que les circonstances et la connaissance de la question suggéreront. Le but à atteindre est si grand qu'il exige votre constante, votre entière sollicitude. Lorsqu'il s'agit d'un sujet aussi grave, on doit tenir compte, à ceux qui les font, même des tentatives malheureuses.

Le rapport du secrétaire d'Etat vous fera connaître la situation de son département et de la bibliothèque d'Etat. On ne peut donner trop d'eloges au bibliothécaire pour l'intelligence qu'il a déployée dans les échanges qu'il était autorisé à faire de nos documents publics de nos rapports, contre des ouvrages nationaux ou étrangers.

Par ce moyen, nous avons gagné 500 volumes, et, si les choses suivent toujours le même cours, notre bibliothèque pourra bientôt être mise en parallèle avec les bibliothèques les plus considérables, les plus habilement composées de l'Union.

La passation des lois qui augmentent le travail de l'Exécutif et du secrétaire d'Etat, demande qu'on donne aux employés de différents bureaux des appointements en rapport avec leur lourde tâche. Afin d'arriver à ce résultat, sans obérer le trésor, je vous recommanderai de voter une loi, semblable à celle qui existe dans presque tous les Etats, donnant aux dits employés le droit d'exiger une certaine somme somme fixe, pour la rédaction, l'enrégistrement, le sceau de tous les blancs, tels que commissions émanant de l'Exécutif, pour toutes places salariées qu'elles soient électives ou données par le Gouverneur. Je ne puis trop insister sur l'économie qu'il y aurait à payer les fonctionnaires publics selon les devoirs qu'ils ont à remplir et la responsabilité qui pèse sur eux, La justice de ce principe est évidente, il est clair que, par son application, nous garantirions à l'Etat des serviteurs eclairés et fidèles.

Le rapport du comité nommé, en vertu d'une loi, votée à la dernière session, pour visiter l'hospice des Alienés à Jackson, vous arrivera avec ce message. Je n'ai pas encore reçu celui des Administrateurs de l'Hôpital de Charité de la Nouvelle-Orléans, et d'autres institutions de même sorte, se trouvent soit dans cette ville, soit hors de ses limites. Je vous les transmettrai aitôt qu'ils m'auront été expédiés. Mais il est à ma connaissance personnelle que l'Hôpital de Charité est non seulement libre de dettes, mais qu'il possède encore un excédant de fonds. Cependant il aura besoin de l'allocation annuelle d'usage, avec une somme additionnelle de vingt mille piastres, afin de pouvoir faire les réparations qui sont impérieusement demandées.

L'institution des Sourds-Muets et des Aveugles a été en voie de prospérité durant toute l'année qui vient de s'écouler. Les nouvelles bâtisses, quelque peu retardées par l'épidemie, se poursuivent activement. Le nombre des pensionnaires a considérablement augmenté, et déjà, on sent le besoin d'agrandissement, en rapport avec ce surcroit de monde. Il sera besoin d'allocations supplémentaires pour compléter les édifices, et pour faire face aux dépenses courantes de l'école. Le Conseil des Administrateurs a rempli avec un zèle honorable toutes les intentions de la Législature, et la capacité du Surintendant, les soins tout paternels qu'il prodigue aux élèves, sa haute valeur comme professeur et directeur, a beaucoup contribué au succès, à l'état prospère de cette institution.

Le bail du Pénitentiaire expiré au mois d'octobre prochain. Ce sera à vous de décider s'il convient de renouveler ce bail, ou si le Pénitentiaire doit être placé sous le contrôle immédiat de l'Etat. Cette question embrasse des considérations d'un caractère moral et social, qui doivent avoir le pas sur toutes les autres. Les sommes jusqu'ici perçues par l'Etat, en vertu du système actuel, sont d'un montant trop minime pour influencer en rien votre décision : de forts capitaux ont été consacrés à l'exécution des bâtisses et des ateliers nouveaux. Si ces avances de fonds n'ont pas été faites vainement, si elles avaient en vue de produire le fruit dans un temps donné, l'heure est venue d'adopter un plan par lequel on puisse réaliser de pareils avantages. En un mot, si des considérations d'économie prévalent, on doit établir la concurrence entre ceux qui demandent le bail, si, au contraire, les considérations morales donnent toutes les autres, on ne doit adopter ni le système d'élire ceux qui prennent le bail, ni le système dont je viens de parler et qui consiste à adjuger le bail au plus haut enchérisseur : en effet, le premier rencontrera les mêmes objections que le dernier, tout en offrant moins d'avantages, sous le rapport pécuniaire. On pourrait arriver au meilleur résultat, en vendant le bail au plus haut enchérisseur, mais sous réserve pour l'Etat de nommer les officiers et les gardiens de cette institution.

Le rapport des Directeurs vous mettra au courant de ce qui a été fait au Penitentiaire pendant cette dernière année.

Je me suis efforcé, concitoyens, d'esquisser rapidement l'histoire administrative de cet Etat pendant l'année qui vient de se fermer et de vous faire les suggestions que je crois, en ma conscience, devoir servir les intérêts de nos communs constituants. Pourtant, mes obligations envers vous et tout l'Etat ne seraient remplies qu'en partie, si, me renfermant dans des questions d'administration intérieure, je n'appelais pas votre attention sur un sujet qui, s'il ne relève pas de votre juridiction immédiate, est cependant d'une importance trop vitale dans les Etats du Sud, pour qu'il soit laissé dans l'ombre. Il est impossible, après avoir étudié les événements qui se passent à l'île de Cube, événements qu'avait laissé prévoir la nomination du nouveau capitaine-général, il est impossible, dis-je, de ne point arriver à cette conviction que l'Espagne, soutenue par les conseils intéressés de l'Angleterre et de la France, et par cet esprit aveugle de fanatisme et de haine qui a souvent caractérisé son histoire politique et sociale, s'est décidée à suivre l'exemple de ces puissants alliés, et veut ajouter un nouvel Etat à l'empire noir qui s'étendrait ainsi des bouches de l'Orinoko aux rives du Mississipi.

Sous le prétexte de se conformer à des traités, elle a déjà imaginé le nouveau système, et elle le complétera bientôt par la création de ce qu'elle appelle des travailleurs libres destinés à prendre la place d'Africains émancipés en plus grand nombre encore. Les contradictions que l'on observe chez les diplomates de l'Europe ne peuvent changer la signification de ces faits et de la déclaration quasi-officielle des organes du gouvernement de Cube. Ce n'est pas répondre aux conséquences qu'on tire de ces faits que de dire qu'un pareil plan serait le suicide des intérêts espagnols. Ce n'est pas à Cube, mais bien à Madrid, à Londres et à Paris que sera décidée la question de l'émancipation. Là, les opinions à ce sujet diffèrent complètement des nôtres. Ce sujet sera ainsi laissé à la décision de philantropes qui ne souffriront pas de leur humanité à bon marché : dans ces conférences-là, les Cubiens ne seront pas représentés. La vérité de cette assertion est attestée par l'histoire des Indes Occidentales. Les possessions françaises et danoises ont été précipitées dans l'abîme de l'émancipation, alors même que de ses profondeurs on entendait s'élever la voix des colonies anglaises.

Le Brésil, quoique empire indépendant, et quoique ses intérêts exigent le maintien de son système actuel d'organisation du travail, le Brésil cède aux menaces de l'Angleterre et aux influences de ses alliés transatlantiques. Mais l'Espagne a un autre intérêt européen, intérêt qu'elle doit consulter et qui, attaquant sa haute classe, dominera toutes les considérations d'argent qu'elle pourrait attacher à la conservation de Cube. Cet intérêt est celui qui a réuni les pouvoirs monarchiques chaque fois que notre gouvernement a eu une difficulté avec l'un d'eux. La jalousie de notre force, de notre prospérité croissantes, la peur de la contagion de notre exemple sont notre garantie d'avenir à nous; mais il est de l'avantage des puissances européennes d'arrêter notre marche. En outre, de tous les Etats de l'Europe, l'Espagne est, certes, le moins capable de résister aux menées de ce gouvernement qui a pour but, non-seulement l'émancipation, mais encore l'africanisation de ses plus belles colonies, et cela, par des moyens qui étonneraient les plus crédules, s'ils n'avaient pas été dévoilés au monde par leurs propres inventeurs. L'Espagne n'a qu'un maigre trésor qui ne suffit pas à l'entretien de son onéreuse administration ; il y a toujours un abîme entre ses recettes et ses dépenses, et, à côté de cela, elle doit à l'Angleterre plus de cinquante mille livres sterling, dont les intérêts se sont accumulés depuis de longues années.

Menacée comme elle l'est par des dissensions intestines, on peut facilement prévoir les circonstances à quel point l'action des causes que nous venons d'énumérer deviendrait irrésistible Le gouvernement fédéral, chargé de veiller aux intérêts internationaux des Etats, ira-t-il au-devant du danger qui menace ou attendra-t-il patiemment, tranquillement qu'il se soit manifesté. Il ne serait plus temps alors.

Confiants, ainsi que nous devons l'être dans la fermeté, le patriotisme et l'esprit vraiment national du Président de l'Union, nous habitants de la Louisiane, nous soutiendrons l'administration, nous lui donnerons notre participation entière sur cette question de haute importance, nous l'aiderons de toutes nos forces pour faire triompher toutes les mesures qu'elle jugera nécessaires à notre protection.

P. O. HEBERT.

Janvier 1854

M. Wickliffe.—Je demande que ce Message soit tiré à 5,000 exemplaires.

M. Rivers.—Ce nombre est trop grand. 2 500 exemplaires seraient amplement suffisants.

M. Wickliffe.—Le coût de l'impression de 5,000 exemplaires sera moindre que celui de 2.500 exemplaires seulement. Nous avons fait imprimer 5,000 copies du Message du Gouverneur Walker. Le document qui est devant nous n'est pas moins important, il doit être aussi largement répandu.

M. Rivers.—Je croyais que nous n'avions fait imprimer que 3,000 exemplaires du Message du Gouverneur Walker. Je ne présenterai pas de captieuses objections à l'impression du nombre d'exemplaires demandé par le préopinant. Je retire mes objections.

Amendement du 11me réglement.

La motion de M. King demandant l'amendement du 11me réglement est prise en consideration.

M. King.—J'ai déjà dit dans quel but je faisais cette motion. Je crois que tous les sénateurs conviendront avec moi qu'elle devrait être adoptée, afin que le Sénat, comme un corps, soit mis à l'abri du danger de se voir placé entièrement à la merci d'un ou de plus de membres et mis de la sorte dans l'impossibilité de procéder à aucune affaire toutes les fois qu'il plaira à un membre quelconque de prendre à la lettre le réglement en question.

M: Rivers.—Je n'ai pas l'intention de faire aucune objection qui pourrait être considérée comme captieuse; mais je dois dire que je ne vois pas de bonne raison pour laquelle le changement proposé par le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, serait sanctionné et adopté par nous. Jusqu'à présent nous avons trouvé moyen d'aller de l'avant sous l'empire des réglements actuels, et je ne crois pas qu'un amendement soit plutôt nécessaire maintenant qu'il ne l'a été jusqu'aujourd'hui. L'allusion faite par le sénateur à certaine circonstance qui s'est présentée à la dernière session, m'est personnelle, si je ne me trompe. Le sénateur a raison de dire que j'ai fait ainsi qu'il rapportait. Mais je ne le faisais qu'obéissant au sentiment de mon devoir dans une circonstance ou je pensais qu'une injustice monstrueuse allait être commise, que les droits de la minorité allaient être foulés aux pieds par une majorité tyrannique.

Nous qui occupons cette partie-ci de la salle, nous étions en grande minorité. Une grande injustice allait être commise à notre détriment et j'avais l'intime conviction que la majorité n'y persisterait pas après que le temps et la reflexion auraient calmé les esprits, lorsque la raison aurait enfin repris son empire. Pour prévenir le mal que j'appréhendais, je fis donc la motion d'ajourner et je la répétai jusqu'à ce que, de guerre lasse, le Sénat consentit à l'ajournement. Mais c'était là un cas extraordinaire, qui je l'espère

M. Griffin—Quels sont les membres de ce comité ?

M. Ryan—Je demande qu'il soit référé à un comité spécial composé de trois membres.

M. Kenner—Il n'y a pas d'objection à la nomination d'un comité spécial. Tout ce que je demande pour ma part, c'est que la résolution soit examinée.

La résolution est référée à un comité spécial.

SALUBRITÉ PUBLIQUE.

M Trudeau—Je vais présenter une résolution que, vu l'importance du sujet auquel elle a trait, je ne voudrais pas voir traitée légèrement ou à la hâte Elle a en vue la salubrité de l'Etat, cette grande question au sujet de laquelle il y a eu une si grande divergence d'opinions que rien, si ce n'est un examen approfondi, une étude longue et sérieuse ne pourra nous faire arriver à un résultat satisfaisant et durable. Il y a même bien des opinions opposées à la simple question de l'établissement d'une quarantaine, et même à la Nouvelle-Orléans il n'y a pas unanimité sur ce point. C'est donc un devoir pour nous de nous enquérir et, s'il est possible, de reconnaître si l'établissement d'un système de quarantaine produirait réellement des résultats avantageux.

M. Trudeau présente alors une résolution pourvoyant à la nomination d'un comité de trois membres chargé de s'enquérir des meilleurs moyens d'assurer la salubrité de l'Etat.

La résolution est ajournée.

SESSION CONJOINTE.

Le Sénat se rend ensuite à la salle des séances de la Chambre des Représentants à l'effet de compter les votes donnés à l'élection des officiers de l'Etat.

Puis le Sénat ajourne à demain matin 10 heures.

MERCREDI, 18 janvier 1854.

M. Palfrey—Je viens offrir au Sénat un bill, et pour en faciliter la prompte acceptation, attendu qu'il s'agit d'une affaire de quelqu'importance, je demanderai à être dispensé des règles ordinaires. C'est un bill ayant pour but d'étendre pour certains officiers les délais necessaires pour se procurer les certificats constatant leur assiduité. Je ne fatiguerai pas l'assemblée par un long discours sur ce sujet. Je me bornerai à montrer la nécessité de voter ce bill. A la dernière session de l'assemblée générale, il a été adopté un acte ayant pour effet d'assurer le prompt paiement des fonds du trésor public, duquel acte la 2de section est ainsi conçue : (L'orateur lit la 2de sect.) Maintenant, messieurs, quand nous considérons les termes généraux dans lesquels est conçu le titre du bill, et l'insuffisance des renseignemens qu'on peut en tirer quant à l'esprit et à la nature précise du bill, nous ne pouvons pas nous étonner de voir qu'un grand nombre de personnes, même parmi les plus intéressées en la cause, soient jusqu'ici ignorantes de ses véritables dispositions et en aient involontairement violé le texte. J'ai consulté le secrétaire d'Etat à ce sujet, et j'apprends de lui que beaucoup d'officiers ont, jusqu'à ce jour, omis de se conformer aux prescriptions de cette loi particulière, soit par ignorance, soit par toute autre cause, et leurs fonctions leur ont été conséquemment retirées. On comprendra une fois pour toutes que les affaires publiques pourraient être sérieusement retardées si ces fonctions étaient déclarées vacantes et que de nouvelles élections fussent ordonnées à chaque fois que l'un des titulaires aurait manqué de fournir le certificat requis. Mon attention a été appelée sur ce sujet par ce fait que l'assesseur de la paroisse que j'ai l'honneur de représenter à cette chambre, se trouve dans ce dilemne. J'avais d'abord la pensée d'introduire un bill en sa faveur seulement, mais le secrétaire d'Etat m'ayant fait remarquer que la même difficulté se présentait presque pour toutes les fonctions, j'ai preferé introduire un bill général qui prévienne à l'avenir tous les embarras de ce genre.

Le Sénat adopte le bill propose.

M. Ryan—Au nom de la commission spéciale nommée hier à l'effet de faire son rapport sur un bill ayant pour but de venir au secours de H. M. Neal, je ferai observer que M. Neal était collecteur des taxes de la paroisse Rapide et est mort tout récemment, et quelques jours seulement avant le temps fixé par la loi pour les paiemens à faire par lui. A présent, toutes les sommes dûes sont payées ; c'est pourquoi la commission demande l'acceptation du bill que je vais lire au Sénat. (Le rapporteur donne lecture du bill.) Maintenant, M. le Président, je demanderai qu'on veuille bien suspendre l'application des règles ordinaires, afin que ce bill soit voté dans le plus bref délai possible.

Le bill est adopté et dispensé des règles.

M. Trudeau— Je demanderai à offrir ma démission de membre de la commission d'enrôlement. Sur les six personnes nommées par le Sénat, pour faire les fonctions de clercs de cette commission, deux seulement entendent le français et l'anglais, et sur ces deux personnes, une seulement entend bien les deux langues. On remarquera que cette circonstance pourra devenir un embarras sérieux. Je n'ai nullement la pensée de faire le travail des clercs; c'est pourquoi je désire qu'on accepte ma démission. L'année dernière, d'après ce que j'entends dire, M. Burthe, à qui je succède, a été membre de cette commission et tout le travail est retombé sur lui.

M. Wickliff—Je ne voudrais pas enlever le moindre laurier du front de mon ami M. Burthe, mais mon opinion d'alors, opinion que j'ai conservée jusqu'à ce jour, est que, l'année dernière, la plus grande partie du travail a été faite par M. Derbès.

M. King—Je pense que les motifs allégués par l'honorable membre pour faire accepter sa demission sont au moins prématurés. Tout au moins, rien jusqu'à ce jour ne les justifie. Il me semble que quatre clercs seulement sont absolument nécessaires en ce moment, deux pour chaque langue. Ce nombre sera certainement suffisant pour les trois ou quatre premières semaines de la session. J'espère, en conséquence, que le sénateur ne persévérera pas dans son désir d'être dispensé de ses fonctions de membre de la commission d'enrôlement, et que le Sénat ne sera pas privé de ses estimables services.

M. Trudeau—Je dois insister pour demander à être dispensé. Néanmoins, je consentirai à faire partie de la commission, si le sénateur qui vient de parler veut bien se joindre à nous. Alors, j'accepterai volontiers la tâche.

M. King—Si M. Trudeau veut assumer les devoirs de trois ou quatre places, qui absorbent tous mes instants, je suis tout à lui.

Le Sénat refuse d'accepter la démission du sénateur de Jefferson

REPARTITION.

M. Boatner—L'article 16 de la Constitution impose à la Législature le devoir de faire, pendant cette session, la répartition de la representation de l'Etat conformément au dernier recensement fait. En conséquence, je propose au Sénat de nommer une commission de cinq membres pour opérer cette répartition.

M. Kenner—L'article 16 de la Constitution ordonne-t-il qu'il sera nommé une commission investie du pouvoir de passer le bill ?

M. Boatner—Ce n'est pas à la commission que l'article 16 donne le pouvoir de le faire, mais à la Législature. Je ne prétends pas avoir plus d'experience en matière législative que l'orateur qui m'interrompt, et je ne demande pas mieux que d'accepter les conseils que voudront bien me donner ceux qui sont plus versés que moi dans ces questions.

M. Kenner—La seule remarque que je veuille faire, n'a d'autre but que de demander le changement de la résolution, de façon à ce qu'elle n'ait plus pour objet que la formation d'une commission qui fasse son rapport au Sénat sur le sujet en question.

M. Boatner—Si j'ai présenté cette proposition, c'est d'après les avis de sénateurs plus expérimentés que je ne le suis moi-même.

M. Kenner—Je demande que la commission soit composée de sept membres au lieu de cinq. L'affaire dont il s'agit ne manque pas d'importance, et on devra consulter les intérêts divers pour la rédaction du bill. Il y aura donc lieu de choisir les membres de la commission parmi les représentants des différentes parties de l'Etat

M. Boatner—J'accepte l'amendement. Je n'ai pas d'objection à la demande de sept membres.

La résolution est adoptée.

LE DERNIER TRESORIER.

M. McMurdo—J'ai à présenter une résolution tendant à opérer la décharge de M. McWhorter, le dernier trésorier de l'Etat. Je constate qu'à la dernière session de la Législature, les comptes de cet officier ont été examinés et trouvés exacts. La résolution tendant à le décharger n'a pas été introduite alors, comme elle aurait dû l'être, c'est pourquoi je la propose aujourd'hui.

La resolution est adoptée.

INDEMNITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE.

M. Wickliffe présente une résolution tendant à faire payer au général Horatio Davis, dernier secretaire, une somme de $500 pour services rendus par lui en aidant à ouvrir la presente session du Sénat.

M. King—Je demande que cette résolution soit renvoyée à la commission des dépenses imprévues.

M. Wickliffe—Je m'oppose au renvoi de cette proposition à la commission des dépenses imprévues ou à toute autre commission. Cette proposition porte avec elle sa raison d'être, et il n'y a nul besoin qu'une commission décide de son opportunité. Je presume que tous les sénateurs ici presents sont parfaitement édifiés et sont préparés à voter la proposition. Ç'a été une coutume adoptée jusqu'à ce jour de voter une indemnité dans des circonstances pareilles, et j'espère que le Sénat ne refusera pas de la voter en cette occasion où il s'agit d'un vieux et fidèle serviteur qui mérite certainement cette légère rémunération de ses longs services, et ne renverra pas cette question à une commission, marche parfaitement inutile, attendu qu'il n'en peut jaillir aucune lumière pour le Sénat, la matière étant tous à fait simple et claire.

M. King—Je m'oppose à la résolution. Dans une occasion precédente, durant la dernière session, j'ai exposé mes vues sur le sujet qui nous occupe. Il est une habitude qui tend de plus en plus à prendre racine parmi nous, c'est celle de prodiguer les deniers de l'Etat en pures libéralités aux officiers de la Législature. De cette manière, à chaque session, des milliers de piastres sont votés sous le moindre prétexte. Je ne considère pas que nous ayons le droit de disposer ainsi du trésor public. Les fonds de l'Etat sont payés par le peuple pour subvenir aux dépenses rigoureuses du gouvernement. Les dépenses en pures gratifications et générosités, c'est, dans mon esprit, abuser de la confiance qu'on a mise en nous. Dans le cas particulier qui nous occupe, on peut objecter que M. Horatio Davis, en addition à son indemnité journalière, qui s'élevait à $14 par jour pendant la dernière session, a reçu une gratification extraordinaire de $750 qui était une pure liberalité et ne reposait sur l'allégation d'aucun service extraordinaire.

Je m'oppose aujourd'hui à cette allocation de $500, non par une considération particulière au cas qui nous occupe, mais parce que je suis opposé à tout semblable emploi des deniers publics. Cette motion est la première de cette nature qui ait été faite à cette session, et pour opposer un frein à cet abus de nos prérogatives, je crois qu'il est de mon devoir de l'arrêter à sa première apparition. Je désire que le Sénat adopte une règle uniforme pour les décisions qu'il prendra sur cette matière. Si cette allocation est refusée, j'espère que toutes les demandes de cette nature subiront le même sort. Si au contraire elle est votée alors préparez-vous à ouvrir vos mains toutes grandes et à dépenser les deniers publics par mille et mille piastres en gratifications et en libéralités inutiles.

M. Wickliff—J'ai écouté avec attention les remarques que vient de faire l'honorable membre. Elles sont d'une nature telle que, si je ne le connaissais pas aussi bien que je le connais, je serais induit à penser qu'il n'a d'autre but que d'obtenir et de mériter le surnom de cerbère du trésor. Mais en réfléchissant à l'attitude qu'il a prise jusqu'à ce jour dans le Sénat, je trouve qu'une pareille conclusion serait en réalité en opposition avec les faits. Je me rappelle très bien, et je présume que vraisemblablement il est au souvenir de plusieurs autres membres du Senat, qu'à la dernière session de la Législature, l'honorable membre, en sa qualité de rapporteur de la commission des améliorations intérieures, se prononça en faveur de l'impression de certains documents qui n'étaient pas d'une importance suffisante pour justifier les lourdes déponses que cette impression occasionnait à l'Etat. Elle a coûté, je crois, plusieurs milliers de piastres, et cependant, quoique mon contradicteur non seulement ne se soit pas opposé à cette dépense, mais encore l'ait fortement appuyée, il s'élève aujourd'hui contre le paiement d'une minime somme de $500 à notre dernier

Qu'entend-il donc par ce mot ? Pour

Horatio Davis une somme de $500 ne peut être considérée autrement que comme une pure libéralité. Les membres du Sénat reçoivent pour toute indemnité $4 par jour. Le lieutenant-gouverneur en reçoit 8. Quand nous payons notre secrétaire $14 par jour, je trouve qu'il est pleinement rémunéré de ses services. Toute allocation au-delà de cette somme, sans même qu'on alleguât aucun service extraordinaire, je la considérerais comme une pure libéralité, et comme un emploi de deniers publics que nous ne pouvons pas nous permettre sans trahir la confiance de nos constituants.

Pour avoir exprimé mon sentiment sur cette question, l'Hon. Sénateur a jugé à propos de m'appeler le boule-dogue du trésor. Maintenant, si je dois être stigmatisé par de semblables épithètes pour avoir essayé de faire mon devoir dans cette chambre, je me resignerai à les supporter, et je puis assurer à l'Hon. membre que l'humiliation de ces épithètes sera palliée par la conscience que j'ai de la justesse de la cause pour la défense de laquelle elles m'auront été infligées.

M. Wickliffe—L'hon. membre est dans l'erreur. Je ne l'ai pas appelé le boule-dogue du Trésor. J'ai dit qu'il semblait désireux de meriter le surnom de cerbère du Trésor. Pour ma part, je ne pense pas qu'il mérite ce surnom, mais je dis qu'il semble ambitieux de le mériter.

M. King—Très bien, messieurs. On a dit boule-dogue, ou cerbère, ou chien de garde, ou quelque chose d'équivalent.

L'Hon Sénateur a jugé convenable de faire allusion à un bill introduit par moi-même dans la session dernière en ma qualité de rapporteur de la commission des améliorations intérieures. J'avais ordre de la commission d'exprimer sa volonté ; or, c'est ce que j'ai fait, en y donnant, il est vrai, mon propre concours. Je puis avoir eu tort, mais j'ai cru le bill opportun, et je le crois encore.

M. Wickliffe—L'hon. Sénateur veut-il bien nous apprendre combien l'expédition Ricker a coûté à l'Etat ?

M. King—Je vais donner amples explications sur ce sujet. Une commission avait été nommée par le Sénat pour faire son rapport à la Législature sur le meilleur moyen de préserver l'Etat du danger des inondations. La commission a été requise d'agir après la retraite des Chambres et de faire son rapport à la Législature suivante.

D'après cette résolution, la commission s'est sentie autorisée à employer différentes personnes à faire les explorations nécessaires du Mississipi et des principales bouches de ce fleuve. Pour faire procéder à ces explorations, il a fallu employer des steamboats et autres bateaux. On a dû s'assurer aussi le service d'un certain nombre d'ingénieurs pris parmi les plus habiles de l'Etat, et le coût de leurs travaux a dû nécessairement être supporté par l'Etat. Un grand nombre des personnes ainsi employées ont présenté leurs réclamations contre l'Etat pour la rémunération de leurs services Le montant réuni de ces bills, autant que je puis maintenant me le rappeler, s'est élevé à environ $75,000. Un nombre considérable de ces bills représentaient de l'argent déjà avancé, et les autres des services effectivement rendus. Quelques uns des réclamants avaient fait leurs demandes séparément et avaient même obtenu des rapports favorables des commissions chargées de prononcer à leur égard. J'ai considéré qu'il était injuste de payer les uns et de renvoyer les autres sans paiement. J'ai pensé qu'on devait ou les payer tous ou n'en payer aucun. La commission des améliorations intérieures, après une enquête sur ce sujet, a présenté un bill tendant à reduire le montant des réclamations à environ $5000. Cette somme la commission ne pas l'a considerée comme une rémunération entière de tous les services ; mais comme il y avait quelque doute sur la question de savoir si la commission du Sénat avait le droit d'octroyer la somme considérable des dépenses faites, un chiffre fut alloué par la commission des améliorations intérieures dans le but seulement de sauver d'une perte totale les personnes ainsi employées.

Les travailleurs, les propriétaires des bateaux ou les ingénieurs employés ont naturellement supposé que la commission avait le droit de les employer. Il ne leur appartenait pas de juger si oui ou non la commission transgressait ses pouvoirs. Ils ont fait d'importans et durs travaux. Quelques uns étaient engagés au mois. Des rapports ont été faits au Sénat sur le résultat de leurs travaux. Et ces rapports ont été imprimés par ordre de cette chambre. L'hon. Sénateur s'attache à moi parce que j'ai voté dans la dernière session l'impression de ces rapports. Il en a estimé la dépense à environ $15,000. Je n'ai pas vu le bill des imprimeurs; je ne puis pas dire avec certitude quel en fut le coût. Je rappellerai cependant qu'avant que l'impression de ces documents fut ordonnée par le Sénat, je fis une évaluation qui en fixa le coût à environ $800. Je suis sûr que l'hon. Sénateur s'est grossièrement trompé en constatant que la dépense occasionnée par l'impression de ces rapports s'est élevée à l'énorme somme qu'il prend sur lui d'énoncer.

L'hon. Sénateur semble disposé à jeter de la défaveur sur ces rapports en insinuant qu'ils étaient sans valeur. Tout ce que je puis dire, c'est que je les ai considérés comme d'une haute importance. Ils ont été conçus de manière à jeter une grande lumière sur la plus vitale de toutes les questions affectant les intérêts de la Louisiane. Les documents, une fois imprimés, ont été plus recherchés que tous les autres documents imprimés dans le cours de la dernière session. Dans mon opinion, ce fut là l'argent le mieux dépensé en fait d'impressions, de toute la dernière session.

A l'égard du bill proposé par la commission des améliorations intérieures pendant la dernière session, et allouant environ $5000 pour couvrir toutes les dépenses faites par M. Ricker, je crois que si quelques uns de ces bills ne passent pas, les divers réclamants se présenteront séparément et arriveront en fin de compte, à toucher le montant de leurs réclamations primitives. A la dernière session, quelques uns d'entr'eux ont réussi à obtenir des commissions des rapports favorables sur leurs réclamations. Le bill proposé par la commission des améliorations intérieures aurait mis fin à toutes les reclamations sur ce point, et aurait épargné à l'Etat à peu près $20,000. Le bill, malheureusement, n'a pas été voté à la dernière session, et l'affaire reviendra probablement à cette Législature. En appuyant ce bill alors j'ai cru bien faire. Mais je suppose que je me suis trompé, cela donne-t-il le droit à l'hon. senateur de dissiper les deniers publics en pures libéralités en donnant à M. Horatio Davis $500 auxquelles il n'a aucun droit pour services rendus?

L'hon. sénateur s'oppose énergiquement à ce qu'on paie la moindre somme aux ingénieurs et ouvriers engagés par M. Ricker, pour leurs loyaux et durs services; il ne veut pas qu'on rembourse aux propriétaires des différents bateaux employés par lui pour le service de l'Etat, les dépenses indispensables qu'ils ont dû faire, et cependant il veut bien allouer à M. Horatio Davis une somme de $500 pour deux ou trois heures de travail, en rémunération desquelles la loi lui accorde déjà $14 par jour. Je m'oppose à cette gratification en faveur de M. Davis, et j'espère que le Sénat me soutiendra dans cette opposition.

M. Wickliffe—Je n'ai pas l'intention de fatiguer l'assemblée par un discours, à la façon de l'hon. membre de la Nouvelle-Orléans [M. King], qui vient de reprendre son siége. Mais je suis forcé de dire quelques mots à propos d'une assertion qu'il a faite Dans le cours de ses observations, il nous a dit que l'expédition Ricker avait été autorisée par le Sénat. Messieurs, je ne partage pas son opinion sur ce point. Je soutiens, et un examen des archives justifiera pleinement ma constatation, que M. Ricker n'a pas été autorisé à faire ce qu'il a fait. Le Sénat n'a jamais entendu dire une semblable chose. L'honorable membre s'est plaint que je lui ai fait un reproche d'avoir présenté à la dernière session un bill à l'effet d'obtenir une somme de $5,000 pour payer les dépenses de cette expédition non autorisée. Je lui en fais certainement un reproche. L'honorable membre nous a informés que $25,000 à voter pour cette expedition ne seraient pas une somme qui dépassât nos pouvoirs, si tous les bills étaient payés intégralement. N'est-ce pas là une assertion inquiétante? Je vous demanderai, si M. Ricker avait réellement une autorisation quelconque pour s'engager dans cette expédition volontaire. S'il n'en avait aucune, et je répète ici qu'il n'avait pas la moindre autorisation de cette nature, il est évident que nous ne sommes pas responsables des dépenses qu'il a pu faire. De plus, ce membre a introduit ici un bill ayant pour but l'avénement d'un nouveau système qui entraînerait infailliblement le paiement intégral de ces $25,000. si nous nous engagions une fois dans cette voie.

J'ajouterai que ce membre, en demandant et en obtenant l'impression de ces documents auxquels il paraît attacher beaucoup d'importance, a établi un précédent pour le paiement de ces sortes de réclamations Il a mis en réquisition le travail d'un certain nombre de personnes, et il ne pouvait pas se refuser à les payer pour ce travail.

Maintenant, messieurs, j'en prendrai occasion pour vous rappeler mon espoir que le Sénat voudra bien voter la résolution que je lui propose. J'ose croire que le Sénat accordera volontiers cette faible allocation comme un acte de justice envers un vieillard à cheveux blancs, qui a si longtemps rempli parmi nous les fonctions de secrétaire, qui est venu de si loin à ses frais pour aider l'ouverture du Sénat Je prie la Chambre de vouloir bien prendre ces faits en considération. Il a certainement droit à une gratification pour les services qu'il a rendus, et je ne vois pas pourquoi nous montrerions à son égard un esprit mesquin et sordide.

M. Ryan—J'ai écouté avec attention les arguments qui ont été présentés au Sénat par les deux orateurs qui viennent de parler dans les deux sens sur la question. Il me semble que la discussion a porté sur des matières tout à fait étrangères au point en litige. Il ne s'agit pas de savoir ce qui a été fait en des occasions toutes différentes, ni si l'attitude de tel ou tel membre a été, ou n'a pas été logique. Le seul point en question devant nous est celui de savoir si l'allocation demandée est ou n'est point conforme aux usages de cette Chambre, et s'il est à propos de la voter. Si la demande est conforme aux habitudes du Sénat, je l'appuierai certainement de mon vote.

La motion de M. Wickliffe tendante à renvoyer au bureau la proposition de M. King est écartée.

La motion de M. King tendante à renvoyer la résolution à la commission des depenses imprévues est adoptée.

Clercs des Commissions.

M. Konner.—Je viens présenter au Sénat une résolution ayant pour but d'empêcher qu'aucune commission soit autorisée à nommer les clercs sans le consentement du Sénat. Ma pensée, en introduisant cette resolution, est d'épargner à l'Etat une dépense d'environ $5,000. Je conviens parfaitement de ce fait que les affaires de quelques-unes des commissions les obligent à avoir un clerc. Mais il n'y a que quelques-unes seulement des commissions qui aient des travaux importants.

C'est être très modéré que d'évaluer à $300 les appointements à donner à chaque clerc. Si chaque commission en avait un, cela donnerait un total d'environ $5,800; mais un grand nombre de commissions n'ont pas besoin de clercs. Je me rappelle parfaitement bien une certaine commission qui a employé un clerc pendant la dernière session, et il n'y eut qu'un seul bill renvoyé devant cette commission pendant toute sa durée, et ce bill n'a pas demandé plus de 15 minutes de délibérations. Je pense qu'il est temps de mettre un terme à de pareilles dépenses et que nous devons enfin essayer de faire quelque bonne besogne. Je n'aime pas à voir chaque commission, qu'elle ait ou non des travaux, se nommer un clerc uniquement parceque la chose est à la mode. Je désire épargner à l'Etat la dépense à laquelle se soumet un pareil système. Toutefois, comme je l'ai déjà fait remarquer, il y a quelques commissions qui ont réellement besoin d'un clerc Je vois ici le président de la commission judiciaire qui est chargé de travaux ardus, plus ardus peut-être que ceux d'aucun autre membre du Sénat. Si cet honorable sénateur se levait, en quelque occasion, pour demander à employer un clerc pour des travaux spéciaux, je présume que le Sénat ferait promptement droit à sa requête. Mais je ne voudrais pas

Le Sénat s'ajourne à demain à 10 1|2 heures.

JEUDI, 19 janvier.

Le rapport de l'Avocat-Général est présenté au Sénat—l'impression est ordonnée et il est référé au bill judiciaire.

M. Kenner—Est-ce un long rapport ?

Le secrétaire—Oui Monsieur.

M. Kenner—Je désirerais savoir ce dont il est traité ?

M. King—L'Avocat-Général est tenu en vertu de la loi de faire un rapport.

M. Kenner—Je le sais bien—Mais ce n'est pas là répondre à ma question et je ne suis pas plus avancé maintenant sur le contenu du rapport que je ne l'étais avant de faire ma question. Je désire tout simplement que quelque Sénateur me dise ce dont il traite afin d'être dispensé, pour satisfaire ma curiosité, "d'infliger " au Sénat la lecture de ce document.

BILL DES VENTES DE SUCCESSIONS.

M. Mc Cay appelle le bill qui règle les ventes de succession dans la paroisse d'Orléans.

M. Trudeau—Je ne vois pas trop qu'elle est la nécessité de changer la loi actuelle. Le système établi par le statut qui est maintenant en force est dans l'esprit de nos lois et de nos institutions, et jusqu'à présent on ne s'en est jamais plaint. D'après ce statut la personne qui a à disposer de propriétés appartenant à des successions a le droit et le pouvoir de choisir pour faire la vente soit le shérif soit un encanteur quelconque. La présomption est qu'elle choisira le mode de vente qui doit le plus probablement être favorable aux intérêts de la succession dont elle gère les biens. Si elle croit qu'il est plus avantageux que la vente soit faite par un encanteur que par le shérif, pourquoi le priver du droit de choisir son vendeur ? Pourquoi le forcer à choisir une personne plutôt qu'une autre pour faire sa vente ? Pourquoi intervenir dans une affaire où elle seule est intéressée et par conséquent est seule en état de bien juger ?

Je veux bien admettre que si la vente se fait en vertu d'une exécution ou d'un ordre de saisie, elle doit être faite par le shérif; il n'y a pas la moindre analogie entre ces ventes là et celles qu'on désigne sous le nom de ventes judiciaires. Dans ces dernières ventes l'administrateur doit avoir le droit de choisir le vendeur qui lui convient et je ne vois pas de bonne raison pour laquelle il ne lui serait pas loisible de choisir un encanteur licencie s'il le juge convenable. Que le shérif ait toutes les ventes par saisies, c'est très-bien, mais non le monopole de toutes les ventes judiciaires. Lui accorder ce monopole, l'investir de ce privilége serait aller directement contre l'intérêt public.

M. Lacey—Au nom du comité judiciaire par qui ce bill a été rapporté au Sénat, je désire expliquer les raisons qui, je crois, ont influencé la décision du Comité.

Lorsque ce bill nous a été référé pour que nous nous en occupions, le comité était complet, à l'exception d'un seul membre, un sénateur, qui n'est pas encore venu à cette session. Le comité, à l'exception de ce membre absent, était unanimement en faveur du bill. Il nous semblait que de puissantes considérations légales militaient en sa faveur. Lorsque les ventes de successions ne sont pas faites par le shérif, il n'y a pas autant de sécurité dans les titres. Le procès-verbal n'est pas aussi complet, et quelquefois, souvent même, je crois, des omissions sont faites ou des erreurs commises, si bien que la transaction des affaires des cours se trouve par là interrompue.

Une autre considération qui milite fortement en faveur du changement proposé dans ce bill est celle-ci : Les ventes faites par le shérif ont beaucoup plus de publicité que celles qui sont faites par les encanteurs. Le shérif est le seul officier public qui puisse et doive convenablement faire les ventes judiciaires de toutes sortes. Il est l'officier exécutif de la cour, et si l'on sait que toutes les ventes judiciaires doivent être faites par lui, elles auront certainement beaucoup plus de publicité que si elles étaient faites de toute autre manière ou par tout autre officier.

Après mûre considération, après un examen réfléchi, le comité en est donc venu à la conclusion contenue dans le bill. Il a pensé, pour les raisons que je viens de dire et pour d'autres encore, trop longues à énumérer, que le shérif est le seul officier public qui doive convenablement être chargé de faire les ventes judiciaires de toutes sortes. Le comité a donc recommandé le changement en question. Le Sénat décidera s'il a bien ou mal fait.

M. Kenner— Je demanderai l'appel nominal sur cette question. Je n'ai pas entendu une seule raison qui me convainque de la nécessité ou même de l'opportunité de ce changement.

M Palfrey—Je demanderai au sénateur qui a présenté ce bill si son intention est qu'il comprenne aussi les ventes de successions.

M. McCay—Oui, toutes les ventes faites en vertu d'un ordre de cour.

M. Ryan—Je partage l'opinion du sénateur de Jefferson (M Trudeau) qui s'est opposé à ce bill. Je ne suis pas convaincu par les arguments du président du comité judiciaire, quelque grande que soit l'estime que j'ai de son talent, quelque haute opinion que j'aie de ses connaissances. En premier lieu, le bill ne propose rien qu'on ne puisse obtenir facilement sans rien changer à la loi actuelle. S'il est de l'intérêt de l'administrateur que ce soit le shérif qui fasse la vente, eh bien! il lui est très-facile de le choisir dans ce but. Si la vente par le shérif a plus de publicité, ainsi que nous le dit le membre distingué d'Est-Baton-Rouge (M. Lacey), est-ce que la loi telle qu'elle est maintenant n'autorise pas l'administrateur ou les parties intéressées à faire faire la vente par le shérif?

Il est des cas où il est évidemment de l'avantage des parties qui ont à disposer de biens de succession, de choisir un encanteur pour la vente. S'il n'en était pas ainsi choisirait-on jamais les encanteurs? Les frais de ventes par les encanteurs sont beaucoup moindres qu'ils ne le seraient si le shérif avait seul ce privilége, parce que les commissions payées aux encanteurs sont moindres que celles que prélève le shérif. Cet avantage n'est pas à dédaigner, et forcer les personnes intéressées aux ventes judiciaires à se faire des frais plus considérables, c'est absolument comme si on prélevait sur une taxe additionnelle La loi actuelle se recommande elle-même à tous les égards. Les parties intéressées ont le droit de choisir ou le shérif ou un encanteur pour faire leurs ventes et peuvent ainsi jouir des avantages que présentent les deux systèmes. Si elles pensent qu'il est plus avantageux pour elles que la vente soit faite par un encanteur, elles sont libres d'en choisir un; si au contraire elles pensent qu'il est plus avantageux qu'elle soit faite par le shérif pour qu'elle ait plus de publicité, ainsi que le prétend le sénateur d'Est Bâton-Rouge, elles peuvent choisir cet officier. Rien ne gêne, rien n'entrave leur choix. Elles jouissent maintenant de tous les droits et de tous les avantages que leur donne le nouveau bill, plus d'autres droits et d'autres avantages dont il les prive.

Aussi les choses étant ainsi, et malgré tout le respect, toute la déférence que je professe pour les opinions émises par le comité judiciaire, je ne puis consentir à voter en faveur de ce bill. Rien ne le recommande à mes yeux et je trouve au contraire qu'il est nuisible, plutôt qu'utile, plutôt qu'avantageux.

M. Kenner.—Je ne puis laisser passer l'occasion qui se présente d'exprimer mon opinon au sujet de ce bill. Elle est celle qu'ont exprimé avec tant de force le sénateur de Jefferson [M. Trudeau] et celui des Rapides [M. Ryan]. Je crois que l'effet de ce bill, s'il était adopté, serait de créer un odieux monopole. L'idée de contraindre ceux qui ont des biens de successions qu'ils veulent vendre, à s'adresser à un seul homme est tellement absurde, tellement ridicule que jamais je n'aurais cru qu'on put s'y arrêter sérieusement un seul instant et encore moins la proposer et la défendre dans cette enceinte.

Le sénateur d'Est Bâton-Rouge, (M. Lacey) dans les remarques qu'il a faites en faveur de ce bill a fait mention de la plus grande publicité que l'adoption de cette mesure donnait à l'avenir à ces ventes judiciaires, en les confiant toutes au shérif; il a parlé du vaste concours de personnes qui se presseraient aux ventes faites par cet officier. Il s'est étendu longuement enfin sur les immenses avantages qui en seraient la conséquence. Cet argument est fallacieux, trompeur d'un bout à l'autre. Le shérif ne publie ses annonces que dans un seul journal et très probablement ce journal n'est pas celui qui a la plus grande circulation. Les encanteurs, au contraire, publient leurs annonces dans plusieurs journaux différents, de sorte que les ventes qu'ils doivent faire sont portées à la connaissance d'un beaucoup plus grand nombre de personnes. Nous savons tous que les ventes par le shérif ne sont pas aussi généralement suivies que les ventes faites par les encanteurs; que la foule y est beaucoup moins grande. De plus, M. le président, l'effet de ce bill serait de contraindre les personnes chargées de ses ventes à les donner toutes au shérif. Ce n'est certes pas là de la démocratie. Cela est en opposition avec l'esprit du siècle et avec nos propres institutions. C'est encourager le pire des monopoles.

Je suis disposé à donner aux pauvres débiteurs la chance de choisir la personne qui voudra ou pourra vendre sa propriété au meilleures conditions Ce que nous devrions nous proposer c'est surtout de protéger les droits du debiteur pauvre et non de l'écraser encore plus qu'il ne l'est déjà.

Je le demande, y a-t-il un seul membre de la campagne qui consentirait à sanctionner par son vote ou autrement le principe contenu dans ce bill? Qui voudrait essayer de l'appliquer dans les paroisses? Y a-t-il ici un seul membre de la campagne ici présent, qui voulut dire et affirmer que le shérif est le seul officier de sa paroisse qui doive ou qui puisse faire des ventes de propriétés? Je suis bien sûr qu'il n'y en a pas un seul qui voulut se faire l'apôtre de cette doctrine. Pourquoi donc essayer de l'établir dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans? Pourquoi mettre le pauvre débiteur à la merci du shérif qui peut ou être son ennemi, ou avoir raison de s'intéresser d'une manière quelconque à ce qui peut lui être nuisible? Pourquoi chercher à substituer un odieux monopole au système actuel si juste, si libéral?

Je le répète, Monsieur, le principe contenu dans ce bill, s'il était accepté et consacré par la Législature, établirait un monopole plus odieux et plus oppressif que tous ceux que l'on pourrait signaler maintenant dans tout le monde connu; et cela dans quel but? pour ajouter encore aux honoraires déjà énormes d'un officier public privilégié.

Je le demande aux sénateurs de la ville qui doivent être bien renseignés sur cette question, quelle commission reçoit le shérif pour chaque propriété dont il fait la vente, et quel est le montant des propriétés qu'il vend dans une année? Qu'ils le disent et nous pourrons nous faire une idée approximative du montant des honoraires que reçoit maintenant le shérif, et du montant des honoraires qu'il recevrait si ce bill était adopté.

Il y a ici, dans cette enceinte, des sénateurs bien informés des choses qui regardent le commerce. Je ne veux pas dire des avocats; je veux désigner les sénateurs qui représentent les intérêts commerciaux de la ville. Qu'ils se fassent entendre sur cette question; qu'ils nous donnent les informations qu'ils possèdent. Quand ils l'auront fait, nous découvrirons sans doute que si ce bill est adopté, le shérif recevra quelque chose comme $100,000.

M. McCay—Ce bill n'est pas une innovation. Avant 1847, les ventes de succession étaient faites exclusivement par les shérifs. C'est dans cette année que je viens d'indiquer que le changement eut lieu.

Le bill que nous proposons n'a en vue que le rétablissement du système qui était en vigueur avant l'adoption de l'acte de 1847. Cet acte, dans la seconde section dont je vais donner lecture au Sénat, règle le taux de la commission que doivent prélever les shérifs. (Il lit la section.)

Il importe peu que la commission soit prélevée par ie autre considération milite en faveur de ce cette considération devrait être de quelque . Les encanteurs ne sont tenus que d'un cau- ement de $5,000, et le montant des biens de suc- ns vendus dans une année est beaucoup plus dérable. Sans doute ils sont passibles d'une ac- n justice pour tous dommages qui pourraient ré- de leur faute ; mais est-on sûr qu'ils soient en on de répondre de la somme dont ils pourraient à répondre ? Dans tous les cas, le montant du onnement ne peut pas être mis en parallèle avec sques encourus.

Vous ne dites pas tout à fait cela ; mais vous me dites, si je suis habitant de la ville, « après votre mort, si votre propriété doit être partagée entre vos enfants il faudra qu'ils s'a- dressent au shérif de la paroisse d'Orléans.

N'est-ce pas là, M. le président, un monopole odieux, intolérable ? C'est du despotisme russe, c'est la loi du knout et du pal.

Il est un point sur lequel je désire arrêter le sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans (M. McCay). Mon collègue a dit que le seul but de ce bill est de ramener le même état de choses qu'avant 1847. Le sénateur se trompe là énormément. Ce que veut le bill n'a jamais existé avant 1847. Il n'existait pas alors de semblable monopole. L'administrateur avait le droit de faire lui-même les ventes et il semblerait par ce qu'a dit le sénateur que le shérif avait exclusivement le droit de les faire toutes.

M. Munday— Après avoir examiné ce bill, et avoir entendu les arguments déduits par les différents orateurs qui ont parlé sur la matière, je suis décidé maintenant à le soutenir. Je vais énoncer quelques unes des raisons qui ont déterminé mon opinion. Sous la constitution de 1812, les ventes judiciaires étaient faites par le juge de paroisse. Cet officier concentrait en lui les différentes attributions de juge, de clerc et d'encanteur. Par la constitution de 1841, les juridictions de paroisses furent abolies, et aujourd'hui les ventes sont faites par le shérif, l'administrateur ou un encanteur, selon que l'administrateur le décide. L'administrateur, quand il fait les ventes lui-même, ne perçoit aucune indemnité ou commission (fees). Le shérif, aujourd'hui, comme par le passé, vend toujours toutes propriétés qui sont mises en adjudication par un ordre de fi. fa. Dans ce cas, l'homme dont la propriété est vendue, n'a pas le droit de choisir l'officier qui doit la vendre. Ce pouvoir n'appartient qu'au shérif. Cependant, nous n'avons pas entendu dire que ce fut un monopole, quoique l'homme dont la propriété est vendue en vertu d'un fi. fa. ait à la vente un intérêt aussi direct, et même peut-être plus grand que celui que peut avoir un administrateur à la vente des biens d'une succession. Cette accusation de monopolisation est basée sur de fausses prémisses, et c'est pourquoi la conclusion est fausse.

Maintenant, M. le président, il est d'une bonne administration de concentrer l'exécution de la loi dans le plus petit nombre de mains possible. C'est à la fois plus simple et plus économique que la diffusion de l'application de la loi sur un trop grand nombre d'agents irresponsables. Si nous donnons au shérif le droit de faire la vente des biens des successions, nous avons par là l'avantage de simplifier les opérations légales. Au point de vue de l'économie, il est évident que le public n'est pas très surchargé par ce changement. La seule différence est que les commissions qui sont aujourd'hui payées aux encanteurs, seront payées au shériff. Quelle différence peut-il y avoir pour l'administration ? Dans les deux cas, les frais sont à la charge de la succession et non pas de l'administrateur. Voilà quelques-unes des raisons qui me portent à appuyer ce bill Cependant, pour diminuer les frais des procédures judiciaires dans ces sortes d'affaires, je pense qu'il pourrait être fait quelque chose par la Législature. Je voudrais recommander la nomination d'une commission spéciale à laquelle il serait enjoint de rédiger un bill pour fixer un salaire uniforme pour tout l'Etat.— Je suis obligé de réitérer mon opinion, à savoir : que le shérif est l'officier le plus compétent pour faire les ventes de successions. Il possède une certaine somme de connaissance légale et est familier avec les différentes formes prescrites par la loi.

A tout évènement, le shérif est assisté d'un conseiller légal dont l'avis peut être pris dans chaque affaire. En achetant du shérif, les acquéreurs courraient moins de risques qu'en achetant d'un encanteur et les titres auraient une base plus rassurante, seraient plus clairs et moins sujets à renfermer des erreurs. Aussi, je ne vois aucune raison pour laquelle on accueillerait l'opposition que ces messieurs font à ce bill. Je pense qu'il présente de si nombreux avantages, si on le compare au système aujourd'hui en exécution, que nous ne devons pas hésiter à l'adopter.

M. King—Je n'avais pas l'intention de prendre part à cette discussion ; mais les erreurs flagrantes qui se sont produites dans le cours de ce débat, me forcent à dire quelques mots pour éclaircir l'obscurité dont la question semble entourée. L'honorable sénateur de l'Ascension (M. Kenner) me semble être sous cette impression, que le débiteur a maintenant le droit de faire choix de la personne qui vendra ses propriétés, lorsque celles-ci sont saisies en vertu d'un ordre d'exécution.

M. Kenner—Je n'ai pas dit que le débiteur pût faire cela maintenant. J'ai dit que les personnes qui avaient des ventes de successions à faire, pouvaient jouir de ce droit, et que ce droit, je voulais l'accorder aussi au débiteur malheureux.

M. King—Eh ! bien, monsieur, le débiteur malheureux, quel que soit le titre par lequel vous le désigniez, est, à votre avis, une personne contre laquelle on a un jugement. Maintenant, monsieur, je demanderai à l'honorable sénateur, comment on s'y prendra pour toucher des créances, si le débiteur, ou celui dont les biens sont vendus après jugement ou exécution, a le droit de faire choix de l'encanteur ou de la personne qui devra faire cette vente. Lui donner ce droit, serait une innovation dans les principes législatifs, que l'honorable sénateur ne penserait pas sérieusement à soutenir. Mais le bill ne fait aucun changement à cet effet. Il ne touche pas, il ne pense pas à toucher à ce point Le seul changement que le bill apporte au système actuel, est dans la manière de conduire les ventes de successions. Ces ventes devront être faites par le shérif, et cela sans augmentation de frais. Les frais sont les mêmes ; le public n'en souffrira pas pécuniairement.

On a encore avancé dans ce débat une opinion erronée. L'on a dit que pendant un temps, l'administrateur faisait les ventes, comme s'il était monté lui-même sur la table, et jouait le rôle d'encanteur. Eh bien, Messieurs, dans toute ma carrière d'avocat (et ce n'est pas d'hier que je suis avocat), jamais, au grand jamais, un administrateur n'a monté, n'a pu monter sur la table pour vendre lui-même les biens d'une succession. Avant 1847, les affaires etaient faites d'une autre façon. L'administrateur obtenait un ordre de cour, et le shérif procédait à la vente.

M. Palfrey—Avant 1845, les ventes des biens des successions étaient faites par l'enregistreur des testaments.

M. King—Je crois que l'honorable membre a raison. Je me rappelle maintenant qu'avant cette époque l'enregistreur des trstaments était chargé de ces ventes.

Le sénateur de l'Ascension [M. Kenner] nous a présenté un tableau très sombre, comme devant être la conséquence de l'adoption de ce bill. Il nous a dit que ce serait un monument de despotisme pire que le système russe ; que ce bill serait contraire à l'esprit du siècle et des institutions sous l'empire desquelles nous vivons. Il n'y a pas longtemps, M. le président, que ce système que l'honorable membre vous dénonce si amèrement, était en pratique parmi nous. On ne le stigmatisait pas alors de l'épithète de despotique. Je ne crois pas que notre amour de la liberté et notre horreur du despotisme soient plus vivaces aujourd'hui qu'ils ne l'etaient chez nos pères, qui risquèrent leurs propres vies pour sauver ce pays des dangers de l'invasion, ou même qu'il ne l'était chez nous il y a quelques années. Si le système que le bill a en vue était si odieux et si tyrannique, je ne crois pas que le sénateur de l'Ascension eût la prétention d'être le premier à en faire la remarque. Nous savons tous, M. le président, l'histoire de la législation par laquelle fut opérée la substitution de l'ancien système au nouveau. Cette substitution fut faite à une époque où les fonctions de shérif étaient remplies par une personne qui ne plaisait pas au parti dominant dans la Legislature. La majorité appartenait à une opinion politique opposée à la sienne, et elle crut rendre service au parti en arrachant une plume à l'aile du shérif. Ce dernier n'était pas son favori, et en conséquence ils avaient à cœur de diminuer son salaire. C'était là, en vérité, un motif bien merveilleux. Ce n'était pas là une raison qui eût dû avoir de l'influence sur une assemblée législative.

Mais nos motifs à nous, quand nous prétendons rétablir l'ancien système usité pour la vente des biens de succession, sont tout à fait différents. Notre but est d'offrir une protection au mineur et à la veuve pour le maintien de leurs droits légitimes. Nous désirons leur donner une garantie pour leurs intérêts, et les soustraire au danger d'être fraudés par des administrateurs infidèles. Notre vœu est d'obtenir que la vente des biens des successions soit faite loyalement, de manière que tout à la fois l'acquéreur et le mineur soient plus efficacement garantis.

Ce n'est point le puéril intérêt de savoir si ce sera M A B. ou M. C. qui fera ces ventes, et ce n'est pas non plus pour une simple question de frais que nous demandons l'adoption du bill. Le seul point en discussion est de savoir si le shérif est l'officier le plus propre à faire ces sortes de ventes, et si chacun aurait avantage à ce qu'elles fissent partie de ses attributions. C'est là une question qui peut être facilement mise à jour- Tout le monde sait qu'aux ventes faites par le shérif les enchères sont mises avec plus de confiance. Il y a toujours une foule de personnes à ces sortes d'adjudications, car chacun est convaincu qu'il n'y a pas de jonglerie possible, qu'il n'y a pas d'intelligences tacites entre le shérif et d'autres personnes. On sait que la vente doit nécessairement être loyale, et on a confiance dans les titres des propriétés à acquérir. Les prix des ventes faites par le shérif sont toujours plus élevés que ceux de toutes autres ventes forcées.

Donc, MM., je répète que non seulement il est de bonne administration, mais encore que c'est pour nous un impérieux devoir, de protéger les mineurs et les veuves contre la possibilité de toute fraude. Si nous ne les protégeons pas, qui donc alors les protégera ? Le système actuel donne lieu aux plus énormes abus et prête la main aux fraudes les plus coupables. Sous l'empire de ce système, les droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées prêtent le flanc aux attaques de tout administrateur corrompu au pouvoir duquel le hasard peut les faire tomber. Nous savons tous que plusieurs de ces successions sont mises entre les mains de personnes notoirement déshonnêtes.

Dans la ville de la Nlle-Orléans il est une classe de personnes qui, j'ai la douleur de le dire, font métier d'être à la piste des successions pour en obtenir la curatelle. Quand un homme meurt et que sa succession est vacante, ces oiseaux de proie observant les funérailles avec des yeux avides, calculent les bénéfices qu'ils peuvent faire sur l'administration des biens de sa succession. Ils attendent avec convoisise le moment où ils pourront mettre la griffe sur la fortune du défunt. Ils se rendent en toute hâte à la cour et se font nommer administrateurs. Et dans quel but ? Quel motif les pousse à se precipiter aussi indécemment audevant de cette nomination ? C'est la soif de l'or : Auri sacra fames.

Et sous l'empire du système actuel ils n'ont que trop d'occasions de satisfaire leur cupidité. L'administrateur a le plein et entier contrôle des biens du défunt. Au moment le plus grave, au moment de la vente, c'est lui qui dispose de tout sans la surveillance de la cour. La loi abandonne le mineur et ses intérêts à sa merci. C'est lui qui peut, à son gré, choisir un encanteur dans toute la ville. Il ne manque pas d'encanteurs à la Nlle-Orléans. Beaucoup d'entr'eux, indubitablement, sont des hommes honorables. Je ne puis affirmer qu'il y en ait de déshonnêtes. Mais je ne voudrais pas jurer de leur probité à tous. Et si l'administrateur a de mauvaises intdntions, s'il a le dessein de frauder ceux qu'il serait de son devoir de protéger, il se gardera bien de choisir un encanteur honnête. Ce sera le dernier dont il fera choix. Il prendra quelqu'une de ses créatures, quelque personnage servilement dévoué à ses volontés, et dont l'appât d'une part dans les dépouilles lui aura fait un complice. Cela est possible aujourd'hui, et sans aucun doute cela a été fait.

En addition à ces dangers qui menacent actuellement les successions, il est certain que les biens ne sont pas vendus à un prix aussi élevé que dans les ventes par le shérif, même dans les cas où les ventes sont loyalement faites par les encanteurs.

Les salles de vente des encanteurs sont situées en différents quartiers de la ville, et il arrive souvent qu'il se fait à la fois 5 ou 6 ventes le même jour ; de sa-ministrateur n'aurait-il pas le droit d'aller à cet officier et de lui demander le produit de la vente faite par lui? Après l'avoir obtenu, ne pourrait-il pas quitter la ville et se rendre soit en Californie, soit ailleurs, tout aussi bien que peuvent le faire les encanteurs? Celui qui veut être malhonnête peut l'être dans un cas aussi bien que dans l'autre.

Les conséquences tirées par le sénateur ne découlent pas des principes qu'il a posés. Il n'y a pas la moindre analogie logique entre les faits qu'il expose et les exemples qu'il donne. Il se peut qu'il existe d'excellentes raisons pour que ce bill soit adopté; mais bien certainement elles n'ont pas été exposées par les sénateurs qui pourtant se donnent tant de peine. Leurs arguments ne sont pas du tout concluants. Ils ne me décident pas à voter en faveur du bill. S'ils ont encore quelques meilleurs raisons à donner, qu'ils les fassent donc valoir et alors, peut être, je serai convaincu.

Je veux bien admettre que l'opinion du comité judiciaire est de quelque poids. En toute autre circonstance c'est elle que j'aurais consultée, c'est sur elle que j'aurais basé mon jugement. J'ai eu une fois l'occasion de remplir la place de président de ce comité dans la chambre et je sais toute la responsabilité qu'entraîne cette place, je sais tout ce qu'elle exige d'études et de recherches. Mais je dois le dire, encore le comité n'a pas donné de bonnes raisons en faveur de ce bill. En toute sincérité il m'est impossible de renoncer à la conviction que je me suis faite Mon devoir comme officier public, comme Sénateur de la Louisiane, exige que je vote contre contre ce bill—je le ferai sans crainte.

M. Lacey—Je ne puis m'empêcher d'exprimer ici la profonde surprise où je suis de voir qu'un bill d'une nature toute locale et qui est soutenu par toute la délégation de la ville, rencontre tant et de si vives oppositions. Nous qui ne représentons pas la ville et dont les intérêts n'auraient aucunement à souffrir de l'adoption de ce bill, qu'avons nous à faire de cette question? Ne devrions nous pas laisser la responsabilité des mesures qui ne concernent que la ville de la Nlle-Orléans, aux Sénateurs qui la représentent avec tant de talent? Lorsque le Sénateur des Rapides proposera une mesure d'un interêt tout local et dont l'effet ne se fera pas sentir hors des limites de son propre district, je me ferai un veritable plaisir de voter avec lui. Je croirai sur sa seule parole que cette mesure est désirée par ses constituants parce que je ne crois pas qu'il y ait dans le Sénat un seul homme qui essayât de faire passer un bill ou une mesure qu'il ne saurait pas positivement être désirée par ses constituants. Je voudrais qu'on agît avec la même courtoisie à l'égard des membres de la Nlle-Orléans.

Et je le demande, M. le président, sur quoi se fonde cette opposition si violente? Je regrette d'avoir à le dire, on en a fait une question de salaire. La lutte semble être uniquement ceci—donner ces ventes au shérif ou aux encanteurs. Pour ma part, je suis aussi disposé à les accorder au shérif qu'à un encanteur. Et quand il arriverait que le shérif fut un membre du parti auquel j'appartiens, je ne vois pas pourquoi j'y verrais une raison de lui refuser ce que ma conscience me dit lui appartenir. L'opposition faite à ce bill est sans portée. Mes contradicteurs ont mis de la chaleur dans leur argumentation, mais ils n'ont pu me convaincre.

Quels sont au contraire les avantages du bill? J'y ai déjà fait allusion, mais je vais en donner de nouveau le résumé. En premier lieu, si la vente est faite par le shérif, une plus grande publicité est obtenue, et c'est là, à coup sûr, une grande considération. Cette publicité, diverses circonstances l'assurent. Le lieu où le shérif fait ses ventes est connu de tous, et est toujours le même. Il y a donc déjà une première raison de publicité, qui n'existe pas quand il s'agit des ventes par les encanteurs. Le shérif choisit une gazette très répandue pour y faire ses annonces. Ses additions à cela, les titres fournis par le shérif offrent plus de garanties. L'encanteur ne prend pas les mêmes soins et n'attache pas la même importance à la rédaction du procès-verbal. S'il y a quelques propriétés qui reposent sur des titres réguliers, ce sont assurément celles qui sont vendues par le shérif. Je ne prétends pas dire par là que les encanteurs soient de malhonnêtes gens. Je ne veux pas donner à entendre que j'en connais un ou plusieurs qui puissent être soupçonnés de fraude.

Digitized by Google

Mais le système actuellement dominant peut ouvrir la porte aux abus les plus dommageables. Il est au moins une sorte d'invitation à la fraude, que la loi doit avoir en vue de rendre impossible, au lieu de l'encourager. Supposez, par exemple, que j'aie le contrôle d'une succession, dont les biens ont été vendus, si je suis un malhonnête homme et si je suis enclin à la fraude, j'ai la meilleure occasion de la commettre, dans la liberté que me donne la loi de choisir moi-même un encanteur. Certainement, avec de pareilles intentions, un encanteur honnête sera le dernier que je choisirai. Je choisirai un encanteur que j'espérerai pouvoir influencer et attirer dans mon projet pour en faire mon complice, et il trouvera dans sa profession les moyens de mettre la fraude à exécution. Ainsi, comme je l'ai dit, la porte est ouverte aux abus. C'est pour les prévenir que je propose ce bill. J'espère que le Sénat ratifiera la pensée de la commission en adoptant le bill. J'avoue que je ne verrai pas sans intérêt le Sénat adopter un bill proposé par une commission dont je suis le président.

M. Kenner—La position qu'a assumée le sénateur d'Est-Bâton-Rouge me paraît si insoutenable, que je ne puis m'empêcher de dire quelques mots en réponse à son discours. Si on venait une fois à admettre cette étrange doctrine, à savoir : que sous le prétexte qu'une question est purement locale par sa nature, nous n'avons d'autre rôle que de ratifier la decision que peut prendre le sénateur qui représente le District intéressé dans la cause, nous pourrions tout aussi bien nous en retourner chez nous, et laisser chaque District se faire des lois tant que bon lui semblerait. Il n'y aurait plus besoin de Sénat en Louisiane. Si quatre personnes nommées par la Nouvelle-Orléans peuvent se réunir dans une Chambre et décider de toutes les affaires qui intéressent cette ville, et si des hommes de distinction, comme le président de la commission judiciaire (M. Lacey) et le président de la commission des améliorations intérieures (M. King) se lèvent de leurs places et nous dire que nous n'avons plus qu'à aller chez nous faire nos propres affaires, je pense que nous ferions très-bien de suivre leur avis. En conséquence, si on n'a pas à nous apporter de meilleures raisons en faveur de ce bill, n'est-il pas évident qu'il doit y avoir là quelque mal caché, qu'on n'ose pas nous avouer !

M. King nous a dit que puisque nous nous faisions les tuteurs du Sénat, il préfererait que nous étendissions notre tutelle jusqu'à la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Je ne voudrais pas, pour ma part, accepter la tutelle de personnes aussi profondément dans l'erreur que quelques-uns des sénateurs de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

M. King—Je demande la permission de redresser ce que vient de dire l'honorable membre. J'ai dit que puisqu'il semblait avoir pris sous sa protection la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, je le priai de vouloir bien étendre sa bienveillance aux veuves et aux orphelins.

M. Kenner.—Mais, M. le président, ceci n'est pas tout à fait une question locale, comme l'honorable membre semble la considérer. Rien de ce qui se fait dans ce grand centre de la Nouvelle-Orléans ne peut être entièrement local. J'espère que ces messieurs ne voudront pas nous opposer comme un argument péremptoire cette prétendue considération, qu'un sujet de cette importance est purement local, et que nous n'avons rien à y voir. Et je vous dirai encore que je ne sache pas que la totalité des représentants de la Nouvelle-Orléans soit en faveur de cette mesure. Il n'y en a que deux qui l'aient défendue, et tous deux sont avocats. Si les intérêts commerciaux venaient à nous et nous disaient que cette mesure est nécessaire, je pourrais peut-être hesiter, mais quand il n'y a que des avocats qui la défendent, je ne puis croire qu'elle soit réellement demandée par d'autres qu'eux, qui vivent dans les antichambres des Cours.

M King —Je ne vis pas les antichambres des Cours, mais dans les Cours mêmes.

M. Kenner.—Eh bien ! j'ose dire que l'honorable membre vit en effet dans les Cours elles-mêmes. Je sais que pendant un certain nombre d'années il a rapporté les décisions de la Cour Suprême. C'est pourquoi je suis d'autant plus surpris qu'il ait pu faire une erreur aussi énorme, il y a quelques instants, dans la citation d'une loi. Mes honorables contradicteurs ont parlé comme si nous n'avions à résoudre qu'une simple question de salaire.

Je voudrais leur demander si leur véritable but n'est pas de faire entrer ce salaire dans la poche d'un certain officier. M. King a donné ce qu'il a appelé un historique de la manière dont la loi a été votée Il a prétendu qu'elle avait été faite par une majorité whig, dans le but de réduire les émoluments d'un shérif démocrate. Maintenant, puisque l'honorable membre semble être si bien informé sur toutes choses ayant rapport à ce sujet, qu'il veuille bien nous dire qui était shérif à cette époque.

N King—C'était le général Lewis.

M. Kenner—Très bien. Cette année-là la Chambre des Représentants renfermait une majorité whig, et le Sénat une majorité démocrate. Pourquoi M. King ne nous a-t-il pas dit cela ? Il devrait le savoir puisqu'il est si bien informé sur toute cette affaire. Il n'a pas mentionné ce fait, parce qu'il voulait faire un appel au parti démocrate de cette chambre. Son but était d'entraîner le vote en s'adressant à l'esprit du parti. Mais j'espère qu'un semblable motif ne sera d'aucun poids sur les membres éclairés qui composent la majorité du Sénat. Je ne m'oppose pas à ce bill par aucun motif d'intérêt pour certaines personnes. Tout au contraire, si je pouvais avoir d'autres guides que ma conscience et ma raison, mes sympathies me porteraient plutôt que le bill. J'ai la plus haute considération pour le shérif actuel de la paroisse d'Orléans, au bénéfice de qui tournerait ce même bill.

Nous étions enfants ensemble, et nous nous connaissons depuis l'âge le plus tendre. Mais, dût-il voir diminuer par là ses émoluments. je ne voudrais pas qu'on créât le monopole qui serait le résultat de ce bill. J'ai vote pour la loi actuelle, non par le motif que M. King m'a attribue, mais pour rendre le système plus libéral, en donnant aux héritiers ou à l'administrateur le droit de choisir la personne qu'ils jegeraient à propos pour faire la vente des biens de la succession. J'ai dit au Sénat que l'effet de ce bill serait de créer un monopole et que l'adopter serait faire un acte de despotisme. Je le répète, M. le président, ce serait un acte de tyrannie indigne de notre siècle éclairé.

M. King a dit que jamais un administrateur, dans cet Etat, n'a eu le droit de vendre lui-même les biens de la succession. Je prie l'honorable membre de se reporter à la loi de 1847, qui, je crois, contredira ses assertions.

Mais revenons à ce bill. Avons-nous vu la moindre pétition en sa faveur, émanant des intérêts commerciaux de la Nouvelle-Orleans ? Le plus petit bruit d'un désir émis par l'opinion publique à cet égard, eût-il venu jusqu'à nous ? Non. Il n'y a pas la moindre indice que la réforme qu'on nous propose soit demandée ou désirée.

Le sénateur d'Est-Bâton-Rouge (M. Lacey) a dit que le shérif avait des jours et des locaux fixés pour ses ventes. Ne sait-il pas qu'il n'y a pas de jours fixés pour la vente des biens de succession ? Voilà pourquoi il n'est pas exact de dire qu'il y ait un plus grand nombre de personnes aux ventes du shérif que celles des encanteurs. Mais, pour en revenir à la question qui a occasionné ces remarques, qu'arrivera-t-il si l'opinion prévalente est que le bill est entièrement local, et que nous n'avons rien à y voir, c'est que notre opposition sera de nul effet. Mais la raison l'emporte, si le sujet est examiné avec attention, et si les membres de ce corps n'obéissent qu'à leurs convictions naturelles du juste et de l'injuste, le bill sera rejeté. J'ai demandé aux honorables membres qui pressent l'adoption de ce bill, de nous faire connaître le chiffre des propriétés vendues dans l'année, à la Nouvelle-Orléans, et le montant des émoluments perçus à ce sujet par le shérif. Il n'a fait aucune réponse à ma question. J'appelle l'attention du Sénat sur le silence qu'on a gardé sur ce point important. Il est ridicule de nous dire ce que New-York était en 1812, c'est-à-dire il y a plus de trente ans, quand cette ville n'était alors qu'un village en comparaison de ce qu'elle est aujourd'hui. L'idée de mettre la disposition des affaires des successions en bloc, est une idée absurde. Et, pour conclure, je demande que le bill soit renvoyé à une commission spéciale qui s'assurera des faits que j'ai avancés en ce qui concerne le chiffre des propriétés vendues et des émoluments reçus, et qui fera son rapport au Sénat.

Ce Bill est renvoyé à une commission spéciale.

Sic erat instabilis terra, immobilis unda.

Les habitants sont chaque année sous la menace de l'irruption des eaux. Ils s'y attendent à tout moment. Ils ne savent jamais si l'heure qui va suivre ne verra pas déborder ces torrents dévastateurs qui porteront chez eux la ruine et le désespoir.

Les dangers auxquels ils sont exposés sont encore augmentés par les grands bayous qui traversent cette contrée et sont sujets à se jeter hors de leur lit, s'il arrive que les affluents qui les entretiennent de leurs inépuisables réservoirs, viennent eux-mêmes à déborder. Sous cette menace incessante, les habitants ne se sont pas endormis. Tant qu'ils ont eu en eux-mêmes la possibilité et les moyens de détourner le mal, ils ne se sont pas bornés à implorer l'aide de l'Etat. Ils se sont aidé eux-mêmes. Ils se sont imposé une taxe annuelle de 5 à 10 pour cent, destinée à former un fonds pour la construction d'une levée générale. Il est même arrivé que les taxes spéciales se sont élevées au double de ce chiffre proportionnel. Le montant de ces taxes, payées chaque année par l'une des deux paroisses seulement, ne s'élève pas à moins de $40,000. Il y a maintenant des levées autour de cette contrée menacée, excepté dans quelques endroits sur les deux bayous qui exposent à l'inondation un espace de 8 milles de large sur 40 milles de long. La résolution que je présente au Sénat n'a pour but que de décider que l'ingénieur examinera la localité et fera son rapport sur ses observations. Ce n'est que justice de faire cela pour une portion de l'Etat aussi dangereusement menacée que l'est celle dont je vous parle. Les habitants de ces paroisses ont souffert beaucoup et longtemps, sans se plaindre. Ils ont fait tout ce qui était en leur pouvoir pour se protéger eux-mêmes contre le flot envahisseur.

L'Etat, jusqu'à présent, n'a rien fait pour eux. C'est pourquoi, j'espère que le Sénat verra d'un œil favorable cette résolution et permettra qu'elle passe avec dispense des règles ordinaires. La dépense sera certainement prise sur la portion du fond d'améliorations intérieures appartenant à ce district, si les ingénieurs et la commission pensent qu'il soit à propos de donner suite à cette affaire.

M. King—Je demande que la résolution soit renvoyée à la commission des améliorations intérieures.

M. Rivers—J'espère que la résolution ne sera pas renvoyée à cette commission. Je ne vois pas la nécessité d'un rapport sur ce sujet. Ordonner le renvoi de la résolution à la commission des améliorations intérieures, serait apporter à la solution de cette question un retard tout à fait inutile. J'espère que l'honorable membre voudra bien ne pas maintenir son opposition. Le Sénat peut voter en connaissance de cause sur cette matière, tout aussi bien aujourd'hui que demain ou tout autre jour à venir.

M. King—Ceci est une question de plus d'importance que M. Rivers ne semble le croire. Je serais disposé, s'il ne s'agissait que de mes sentiments personnels, à lui accorder toutes les faveurs qu'il pourrait demander. Mais, dans le cas qui nous occupe, mon devoir contrebalance mon désir de lui être agréable. Je me rappelle, et je suis sûr que toutes les personnes ici présentes se rappellent également, que, l'année dernière, le sénateur de l'Ascension (M. Keener), dans quelques courtes remarques, nous démontra, à propos d'une question analogue, le danger du système sur lequel s'appuie mon honorable contradicteur. Il fit ressortir combien il pouvait être funeste aux intérêts que nous sommes chargés de défendre, que la Législature abandonnât ses propres fonctions pour usurper celles des ingénieurs. Nous sommes ici comme sénateurs, et non comme ingénieurs. Nous avons établi un système général, qui, pensons-nous, doit être suffisant à l'accomplissement de nos desseins. Nous avons des hommes compétents pour faire marcher les rouages de ce système. Ils sont présumés savoir ce qui est bien et ce qui doit être fait, mieux que nous mêmes. C'est pourquoi, je m'oppose à ce que nous nous transformions en un corps d'ingénieurs, et à ce que nous envoyions nos ingénieurs régulièrement tantôt à une extrémité du pays, tantôt à l'autre, pour y faire des travaux qui peuvent être inutiles. C'est la première demande de ce genre qui se fait cette année au Sénat. Si elle passe, on en présentera quarante autres de même sorte, et après en avoir accordé une, nous ne pourrons plus refuser les autres.

Digitized by Google

Pour ma part, je ne suis pas d'avis que nous gênions nos officiers dans leurs opérations. Il est à présumer qu'ils ont assez à faire sans que nous ajoutions encore à leurs travaux. Leur nomination à leurs fonctions fait supposer que ce sont des hommes compétents pour les remplir. Il ne nous appartient pas de faire le travail pour l'accomplissement duquel ils ont été nommés. On a déjà pu se rendre compte, par expérience, du mauvais effet de cette intervention, et j'espérais qu'on y avait renoncé. Un pareil mode de législation ne peut être que fatal. Nous ne devons pas entraver la libre action des ingénieurs. Nous devons leur laisser tout leur temps, pour les mettre à même de suivre le système que nous avons établi.

M. Rivers—Mon impression est que l'honorable membre a mal compris l'objet de cette résolution. Je pense qu'en y reflechissant mieux, il la trouvera bien différente de ce qu'il s'imagine. Le but de cette résolution n'est pas de gêner en rien les ingénieurs ou le commissaire de ce district. Elle n'a pour objet que d'amener de la part de l'ingénieur une étude d'une partie de l'Etat, qui, j'ai le regret de le dire, est trop peu connue. La paroisse Concorde ne demande pas à l'Etat de faire ces travaux, quoiqu'elle ait un droit légitime à le demander. La résolution indique seulement aux ingénieurs qu'ils auront à examiner les lieux et à faire un rapport sur les moyens pratiques d'accomplir ces travaux et de faire le devis des dépenses qu'ils pourront occasionner. N'oublies pas qu'il s'agit d'un district qui a, comme je l'ai dit, huit milles de large sur quarante milles de long. Il serait à désirer que ce rapport s'expliquât sur l'étendue de la partie du district sujette à l'inondation. Il ferait également connaître le montant des sommes qui ont été payées au trésor de l'Etat dans la pensée que ces terres seraient réclamées par des compagnies particulières. Et on verra alors que ces sommes ne s'élèvent pas à moins de $15,000. Si ces travaux sont faits, les sommes additionnelles qui seront garanties au trésor, seront au moins de $10,000 Maintenant, tout ce que demande la résolution, et ce n'est pas là une requête trop exorbitante, c'est que l'ingénieur fasse un rapport sur tous ces faits, et alors, s'il pense que l'Etat doive faire ces travaux, eh bien ! que l'Etat les fasse. Quand l'hon. membre de la Nlle-Orléans, a demandé le renvoi de cette proposition, je suis persuadé que c'est qu'il n'avait pas parfaitement compris l'objet de la résolution. La resolution ne demande pas une appropriation d'argent. Elle ne demande pas qu'il soit pris la moindre somme sur le fonds des améliorations intérieures. Si les travaux ne doivent pas ou ne peuvent pas être faits par l'Etat, alors ils seront faits par des compagnies, quoiqu'il pût paraître extraordinaire que notre circonscription fût la seule qu'on laissât un pareil abandon.

Néanmoins, en dépit des objections faites par lhon. membre, je suis convaincu que l'affaire est d'une telle importance, à raison de la quantité considérable de terres que cette nation est appelée à protéger, que l'Etat après examen, prendra lui même la direction de l'entreprise. J'espère que mon contradicteur ne maintiendra pas plus longtemps son opposition et n'insistera pas davantage sur le renvoi.

M. DeRussy—Je demanderai à l'hon. membre si cette affaire a été portée a la connaissance de la commission du district.

M. Rivers—Je crois que non.

M. King—Je me crois dans l'obligation de maintenir ma motion. L'hon. membre, bien certainement, est très sincère quand il dit que son intention n'est pas de déranger le commissaire ou l'ingénieur ; mais je crois qu'il se trompe. Il ne voit donc pas, alors, que tel serait pourtant l'effet de la résolution qu'il propose. Il dit que l'ingénieur est libre de faire l'ouvrage, ou de ne pas le faire. Mais, si l'ingénieur peut ne tenir aucun compte des résolutions du Sénat, qu'avons nous besoin de perdre notre temps à voter sur ce point ? Je tiens pour certain que si l'ouvrage est nécessaire et à propos, l'ingénieur le fera, s'il est compétent pour le faire. Et si cet ouvrage n'est pas nécessaire il ne doit pas être fait.

On nous dit que la portion du pays que concerne la résolution est très peu connue du reste de l'Etat, et que l'objet est d'appeler l'attention du commissaire et de l'ingénieur sur sa situation

Maintenant M. le Président. il est du devoir de ces officiers de connaître tous les faits qui se rattachent à leurs fonctions. L'hon. membre dit qu'il n'en est pas ainsi, c'est-à-dire que les officiers de cette catégorie ignorent souvent beaucoup de choses. Mais j'ai la conviction qu'ils feront une étude par eux mêmes, et qu'ils agiront selon qu'ils jugeront le plus à propos. Il est de leur devoir de faire ce que demande l'hon membre, s'il est convenable que ce soit fait, et personne ne peut nier qu'ils ne soient en effet et ne doivent être les meilleurs juges en cette matière. Si nous adoptons le plan recommandé par l'hon. membre, nous prenons sur nous de décider une chose sur laquelle un ingénieur seul a compétence pour décider. Quant à moi, je ne suis pas ingénieur. Je n'ai aucune prétention à la science d'un ingénieur. A la dernière session, le représentant de l'Ascension (Mr. Kenner) nous a convaincus de la nécessité de nous détacher de ce vieux système de législation, source évidente de tant de maux. Il nous a fait voir combien d'inconvénients résultaient de cette déplorable manie qu'ont les législateurs de vouloir usurper les fonctions des ingénieurs et de réglementer ce qu'ils ne comprennent pas.

Ce sont là, je le répète, des choses qui ne peuvent être faites que par les officiers spécialement délégués pour ce genre de travaux. Quand nous intervenons, nous nous exposons à faire beaucoup plus de mal que de bien. Il est possible qu'après un examen attentif, je puisse tomber d'accord avec l'hon. membre, de l'opportunité de cette résolution. Mais je ne puis pas consentir à la voter sans examen. Il me semble qu'en agissant autrement, nous violerions nous-mêmes le système que nous avons établi. Nous avons une règle, suivons la. Autrement, déclarons qu'elle est inutile. Mais au moins qu'il y ait égalité entre toutes les parties de l'Etat ; qu'il n'y ait pas de distinctions ni de préférence de nature à exciter la jalousie. Certes, s'il est une parsie de la Louisiane que je désire voir améliorer, c'est la partie que la résolution concerne ; mais je ne puis pas croire qu'il y ait nécessité que nous intervenions Nous ne pouvons pas comprendre cette question. Nous ne sommes pas compétents ; c'est l'affaire du commissaires et de l'ingénieur du district ; qu'ils fassent les travaux, s'ils les jugent nécessaires. Nous devons nous en rapporter pleinement à eux. Je répète encore une fois, et j'espère que les sénateurs y reflechiront, parceque mes paroles ne sont que l'écho de l'expérience, que si nous entrons une fois dans ce système de législation sur des matières qui demandent des connaissances spéciales, nous ne ferons qu'arrêter la marche des améliorations et produire ainsi les effets les plus désastreux.

M. Rivers— Je voudrais demander à l'honorable membre si les commissaires ne sont pas divisés dans leur opinion quant à leurs pouvoirs sous le régime de la loi actuelle, et s'ils pensent unanimement avoir le droit de construire des levées dans ces endroits.

Si un pareil doute s'est élevé dans leurs esprits, il serait nécessaire que la Législature prit quelque initiative.

M. King—Je n'ai pas lu les rapports des commissaires ni tenu aucune conversation avec eux sur ce sujet. Je suis conséquemment incapable de répondre avec certitude à la question posée par l'honorable membre. Cependant, j'ai entendu dire que les commissaires avaient émis cette singulière opinion, à savoir : que la loi ne veut pas dire ce qu'elle dit. Mais je n'ai fait aucune attention à ces bruits. Mille rumeurs diverses se sont croisées sur ce point, et je ne les ai jugées dignes d'aucun intérêt ; et celle-ci est si peu vraisemblable que je n'y ai pas attaché la moindre importance.

Comme je viens de le dire, je n'ai pas les documents et je ne les lirai pas avant leur impression. Jusque-là je ne puis donner une opinion sur le sujet sur lequel l'honorable membre a dirigé mon attention.

M Rivers— Pour montrer à M. King qu'il y a un conflit d'opinions entre les commissaires, je lirai une lettre que j'ai reçue de l'un d'eux, (Il lit la lettre.)

Si j'ai lu cette lettre, c'est afin de montrer à l'honorable membre que ce que j'ai rapporté n'est pas une vaine rumeur. On verra par là que l'Etat doit prendre l'affaire à sa charge, puisque les commissaires hésitent à faire les travaux, et que cependant ils sont d'une si haute utilité en même temps que d'une si grande urgence.

Le renvoi de la résolution est prononcé.

Les soussignés sont aussi pleinement convaincus que le district composé des paroisses de Caddo, De Soto, Sabine et Natchitoches, est une violation flagrante de la dernière clause de l'article 15 de la Constitution, qui dit: « Que si la proportion d'une paroisse ou d'un district excède ou est moindre d'un cinquième de sa population, alors, et dans ce seul cas, un district sera formé n'ayant pas plus de deux Sénateurs. » Les paroisses de Caddo et de De Soto sont contigues, et ont une population totale de 19,130, assez forte pour former un district, et n'excédant pas 16,011 ou la proportion d'un cinquième. En conséquence il n'existe aucune raison plausible pour que ce district soit joint à un autre.

Les paroisses Sabine et Natchitoches sont contigües et ont un total de population de 18,485, assez forte pour former un district et n'excédant pas la proportion d'une cinquième; ce qui démontre clairement que les circonstances dans lesquelles de tels districts peuvent être formés n'existent qu'en violant cette disposition de la Constitution.

Les soussignés vous soumettent ci-joint un projet démontrant le nombre des districts sénatoriaux et de leur population, ensemble la population de chaque paroisse et le nombre des représentants dans chacune d'elles, basé sur la proportion de 6,503 et de 7,000.

Cette motion de M. Moore est rejetée.

M. Ryan—M. le Président, je crois qu'il est de mon devoir, comme membre de ce comité, d'exposer mes vues et mes idées relativement à ce bill. Je n'ai pas mis en l'intention de voter en faveur de cette partie du bill qui détermine la répartition sénatoriale, et je vais dire le plus brièvement possible les raisons qui m'ont décidé à cela. Je ne désire pas abuser du temps des sénateurs par un long discours ; cependant, comme sénateur représentant les paroisses des Rapides et d'Avoyelles, je ne puis garder le silence lorsque je vois qu'une flagrante injustice est sur le point d'être commise au détriment d'une partie des constituants qui m'ont confié leurs intérêts Je crois qu'il est de mon devoir envers mes constituants de présenter au moins un protêt si je ne puis faire mieux. J'étais membre du comité conjoint par la majorité duquel le bill a été rapporté, mais je n'étais pas présent lorsque le comité a tiré ses conclusions. Des affaires très pressantes m'avaient appelé à la Nouvelle-Orléans. Lorsque je quittai la capitale, on m'assura que dans la nouvelle division des districts sénatoriaux, la paroisse des Rapides aurait un sénateur et qu'à elle seule elle formerait un district—ce qui n'était que justice puisque sa population est plus que suffisante pour lui donner un sénateur. Pendant que j'étais à la Nouvelle-Orléans j'ai appris que l'arrangement que je croyais convenu avait été changé et que la paroisse des Rapides était réunie à celle des Avoyelles pour former un district sénatorial. La paroisse des Rapides a une population de 18,000 âmes, ce qui est plus que suffisant pour lui donner droit à un sénateur pour la représenter toute seule.

Tout ce que je demande c'est que justice soit rendue à mes constituants—je manquerais à mon devoir si je n'en appelais pas de semblable injustice au Sénat. Je ne puis me décider à voter en faveur d'un bill qui est préjudiciable à tous ceux qui m'ont confié leurs intérêts. Rien ne pourrait m'y faire consentir. Je suis disposé à faire tous les sacrifices raisonnables ; mais sacrifier mon devoir, faire bon marché de ma conscience, jamais ! Je ne puis prendre part à une injustice commise au détriment de mes constituants. Je fais donc la motion de reconsidérer le vote par lequel la première section a été adoptée, et je désire que mon vote soit enregistré contre, afin que mes constituants sachent bien, qu'envers eux, j'ai agi en représentant fidèle.

M. Boatner—Je demande que la motion de reconsidération soit déposée sur le bureau.

Sa motion est adoptée

Le rapport qui est comme suit ayant été adopté, le Sénat passe le bill suivant :

LUNDI, 26 JANVIER 1854.

M. Lacoste appelle le bill annexant à la paroisse de Plaquemines une partie de la paroisse d'Orléans, située sur la rive droite du fleuve.

La motion est faite de référer ce bill à un comité spécial.

M. Lacoste—Je ne vois pas de bonne raison pour cela. Les habitants de cette partie de la paroisse d'Orléans qui est indiquée dans le bill, sont tous en faveur de cette mesure, et les représentants de la rive droite qui siégent dans l'autre Chambre ne s'y opposeront pas j'en suis sûr.

M. King—Mon avis est que le bill devrait être référé. Je vois qu'il s'agit de diviser ma paroisse, et je n'y puis consentir aussi longtemps que je ne serai pas mieux renseigné à ce sujet que je ne le suis maintenant.

Le bill est référé.

Bill decretant la nomination de peseurs de sucre et de coton.

M. Wickliffe appelle le bill décrétant la nomination de peseurs de sucre et de coton pour la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

Le secrétaire donne lecture de ce bill.

M. Konnor—Je désirerais savoir qui a présenté ce bill.

M. Wickliffe—Je puis répondre à la question du sénateur. Je lui dirai de plus que ce bill est le même qui a passé au Sénat l'année dernière. L'intérêt du pays en réclame impérieusement l'adoption.

M. Ryan présente une résolution requerant le comité de finance de prendre des informations et de faire un rapport sur les obligations auxquelles est tenu envers l'Etat M. Leckey, shérif de la paroisse des Rapides.

M. Ryan dit—M. Leckey était autrefois shérif de la paroisse des Rapides. Il devint concussionnaire et s'enfuit en Californie, laissant à ses cautions de payer ses dettes. On ne sait pas au juste le montant de ladite dette. Le but de cette résolution est de faire savoir le montant exact de la somme que sont tenus de payer les cautions. Ces personnes sont prêtes à payer dès qu'on le leur demandera.

La résolution est adoptée.

M. King appelle le bill pour amender l'article 1116 du Code Civil.

M. King—Les sénateurs remarqueront que sous la loi actuelle, il peut survenir des dommages graves. Les Cours sont maintenant forcées de nommer deux curateurs, si deux demandent à l'être. A la Nouvelle-Orléans où quelques personnes se font une affaire de chercher des curatelles, il peut resulter de très grands torts. Le bill que j'ai présenté amende l'article en question de telle sorte, qu'il sera à la discrétion du juge de nommer un ou deux curateurs. Il est absurde de forcer le juge à nommer deux curateurs, lorsque le sens commun lui dit qu'un seul serait suffisant.

Le bill est pris en considération et adopté.

Le bill pour amender l'article 329 du Code Civil est pris en considération.

M. King—Si la Chambre le permet, je vais expliquer l'objet de ce bill. Conformement aux dispositions de cet article, tel qu'il existe maintenant, le juge nomme les appréciateurs. Il arrive que quelquefois un inventaire doit être fait dans une paroisse éloignée. La Cour est donc obligée de nommer des appreciateurs qui ne sont pas dans la paroisse ou doit avoir lieu le dit inventaire, et dans ce cas, que savent-ils des choses de cette paroisse? Le juge de la Cour des Preuves à la Nouvelle-Orléans a probablement plus de nominations de ce genre à faire que tous les juges de l'Etat Il a souvent beaucoup de peine à faire son choix, ce qui est très naturel, puisque on ne peut espérer qu'il connaisse des personnes résidant dans des paroisses éloignées. Dans des cas de cette nature, les nominations devraient être faites par le notaire qui fait l'inventaire. On me dit qu'ici les mêmes difficultés se présentent souvent. Le changement proposé serait avantageux pour la ville et pour la campagne.

M. Moore—Si je comprends bien le bill il propose que la nomination des estimateurs soit faite par les notaires.

M King—Pas dans tous les cas. L'amendement est conçu de manière que lorsque la nomination doit être faite pour la paroisse dans laquelle siége le juge, celui-ci fera la dite nomination. Mais lorsqu'elle devra être faite pour une paroisse éloignée, le notaire chargé de l'inventaire fera la nomination.

M. Moore—Je n'ai aucune objection à ce bill.

Le bill est adopté.

EMANCIPATION D'UN ESCLAVE.

Le bill pour émanciper un esclave de Mme S. A. Whitter, femme de Joseph M. Kennedy est pris en considération.

Le secrétaire lit le rapport du comité judiciaire dans lequel il est dit que cette esclave a sauvé la vie d'un enfant de Mme Kennedy.

M. Trudeau—Je désirerais savoir si le comité judiciaire en rédigeant ses rapports sur ces bills se conforme à certaines instructions du sénat. Je désirerais aussi savoir si le sénat a tracé aucune règle precise à cet égard. Il doit être de la politique des Etats où l'esclavage existe de restreindre autant que possible l'émancipation. Cependant il est bon quelquefois que les exceptions soient faites dans des cas comme celui-ci; mais alors les esclaves émancipés devraient être envoyés hors de l'Etat. Il devrait être établi une règle générale à ce sujet. Si cela n'est pas fait le sénat ne sera plus qu'un bureau d'éman-és plus que nous ne devrions l'être. Mettons y in pendant qu'il est encore temps. Les retards nt des conséquences fatales.

Lacey—Je dirai que le comité judiciaire par le e bill a été rapporté n'a pas été unanime sur stion de l'esclavage. S'il ne s'était agi purest simplement que de cette question il n'aurait é possible d'obtenir un rapport favorable. Mais ing—Je désire présenter quelques observations de la plus haute importance, de plus d'impor-stantielles que celles que nous avons nous-ous les yeux. A la dernière session j'ai voté d'un bill d'émancipation d'un mineur.

s alors que les raisons qui m'y détermiaient bonnes. Elles m'avaient été prér des personnes en qui je croyais devoir te confiance. Eh bien je ne savais pas alors circonstances de l'affaire. Je ne savais pas i appris plus tard; que les parties intéres nt déjà fait une demande en cour et qu'elle rejetée. C'est après cet échec qu'elles dressées au Senat et lui avaient demandé un acte leur accordant ce qu'elles ne pou-nir d'une manière régulière. Je ne rap-que comme preuve du fait que j'ai avancé, ouvons tous être induits en erreur par des s et des déclarations EX PARTE.
as auquel j'ai fait allusion j'appris en ar-ille que les faits étaient bien différents de ceux qui m'avaient été présentés ; je lus les dossiers d'une cour un rejet formel de la même de-mande accordée par nous et en faveur de laquelle on m'avait décidé à voter. Ceux qui demandent un service de cette nature ont toujours d'excellentes raisons à présenter. Mais qui peut jurer de la vérité des allégations ainsi faites! Quelles preuves nous sont fournies ? On nous dit une touchante histoire ; on fait appel à nos sympathies et nous, dans la sincérité de nos cœurs, nous cédons à la prière qui nous est faite.

Pour une autre raison encore je suis opposé à ce système de législation. Je suis bien convaincu qu'en cédant à ces requêtes nous ne servons réellement pas les intérêts de ceux que nous pensons obliger. Au contraire, je crois que ce que nous pouvons faire de plus mal c'est d'accéder à ces demandes. L'esclave, aussi longtemps qu'il reste en servitude, est sous la protection d'un bon maître dont la seule demande d'émancipation prouve les bons sentiments. Quelque puisse être la condition de l'esclave, elle devient pire après son émancipation. Il peut être réduit à la plus déplorable, à la pire des extrémités.

Alors qu'advient-il? On regrette d'avoir cédé à un bon mouvement.

Permettez que j'appelle aussi l'attention des sénateurs sur un autre fait que je déduis d'un calcul incontestable. Si nous émancipons un esclave sur cent par an, en cent ans toute notre population esclave sera devenue libre. Il n'y aura plus un seul esclave dans notre Etat et nous-mêmes nous aurons causé la ruine de nos institutions.

Cent ans! ce terme peut paraître long ;—c'est plus que la vie ordinaire d'un homme ; mais lorsque un siècle se sera écoulé, lorsque nous tous, de la généra-tion actuelle, serons descendus dans la tombe pour y dormir du sommeil éternel, nos descendants gémiront et diront que nous avons été bien fous d'oublier que ce qui est beaucoup dans la vie d'un homme n'est rien dans la vie d'une nation ou d'un Etat. Nous ne devons pas penser à nous seuls. Ceux qui ont vraiment à cœur la prospérité et le bien être de leur pays, pensent à l'avenir aussi bien qu'à eux-mêmes. Je ne fais que présenter succinctement ces réflexions, que les Sénateurs les pèsent mûrement et dans leur sagesse ils en apprécieront la justice et la vérité.

On me dit que même à présent il y a cinquante de-mandes de cette sorte au moins adressées au Sénat. Si nous en acceptons une, nulles autres nous seront présentées. Une fois engagés dans cette voie nous ne pourrons plus dire où nous allons et où nous pourrons nous arrêter.

Mais si nous accédons à une de ces requêtes, si nous émancipons aucun de nos esclaves, nous devrons les envoyer dans un pays où la liberté soit réellement un bienfait et où ils puissent jouir des privilèges sociaux et politiques des hommes libres. Ils ne devraient pas rester ici où ils forment une classe anormale, qui tôt ou tard peut être très dangereuse pour nos institutions Cela n'est pas prudent ; c'est un grand tort qui fait donner lieu à de graves périls et doit nécessairement avoir les conséquences les plus désastreuses. Mettons donc un terme à cet état de choses—coupons le mal dans sa racine.

M. Kenner—Je fais la motion que le bill soit réfé-ré de nouveau et je présente une résolution portant que le comité judiciaire soit requis de rapporter un bill autorisant les Cours à émanciper un esclave qui aurait sauvé la vie à ses maîtres ou aurait rendu quelque grand service à l'Etat.

M. Boatner—Ce que demande le Sénateur existe déjà sous la loi actuelle. Le code lui-même pourvoit à l'émancipation d'un esclave placé en pareilles circonstances.

M. Kenner—Je n'en suis alors que plus déterminé à voter contre le bill ; si les Cours sont autorisées à émanciper, pourquoi donc s'adresse-t-on à nous, pour-quoi nous accable-t-on de pétitions ?

M. Boatner—Je l'ignore à moins que ce ne soit par raison d'économie.

M. Kenner—C'est possible, mais si les frais sont moindres pour les pétitionnaires, ils le sont également pour nos constituants ?

M. Kenner—La différence est tout simplement celle-ci : — Lorsque les esclaves sont émancipés par les Cours ils ne peuvent rester dans l'Etat.

Quant à la résolution du Sénateur, je considère qu'elle n'est pas à l'ordre. Dans tous les cas j'espère qu'elle ne passera pas.

Le Sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans (M. King), nous dit que nous n'avons pas de preuves de la vérité des choses avancées à l'appui de cette pétition et que par conséquent nous ne pouvons en décider impartialement. Si je ne me trompe le président du comité judiciaire a informé le Sénat de certain faits ; je crois du moins que ce sont des faits car il a dit les tenir de personnes dignes de foi—Voilà les preuves demandées. Ce ne sont pas des preuves ecrites ou dites sous serment; mais enfin ce sont les preuves dont nous nous sommes toujours contentés jusqu'aujourd'hui.

Le comité judiciaire a fait un rapport favorable sur ce bill, et ce comité a sans doute pris avec soin des informations. Est-il ici un seul Sénateur qui puisse voter contre un bill de cette nature. Depuis bien des années l'Etat accorde des actes d'émancipation dans des circonstances pareilles. L'objet de cette pétition est une pauvre esclave qui a sauvé la vie de l'enfant de sa maîtresse. Lui refusera-t-on sa requête ?

Mr. Moore.—Le maître et la maîtresse de cette esclave ont-ils écrit la pétition?

Mr. Lacey.—Je ne crois pas qu'une pétition ait été faite par eux ; mais celui qui m'a chargé d'obtenir cette émancipation, est le maître lui-même, Mr. J. M. Kennedy, ex greffier de la Chambre des Représentants. C'est un homme respectable et qui occupe un certain rang en ville. On me dit que la maîtresse est aussi désireuse que le maître de voir émanciper cette esclave. Je prie de nouveau le Sénat de consentir à leur demande.

M. Kenner—Je crois, moi, qu'il y aurait de l'humanité à refuser. Je propose qu'on fasse pour tous ce que le sénateur demande pour un seul. D'après le plan que je proposais, les Cours seraient autorisées à émanciper dans certains cas. Si un esclave se présente devant une Cour et se fait émanciper, puis qu'il vienne ici et demande l'autorisation de rester dans l'Etat, je voterai en faveur de sa demande, si je suis d'avis que les circonstances justifieraient mon vote ainsi donné.

M. Trudeau—Je crois que dans la discussion de ce bill, la question a été mal présentée au Sénat. Je ne m'oppose pas à l'émancipation de l'esclave Angéla ; l'affaire qui nous occupe me semble au contraire mériter toute notre considération, et je voterai certainement pour ce bill qui nous est soumis. Je voudrais seulement que le sénateur d'Ascension (M. Kenner) retirât sa résolution pour le moment, et nous pourrons la prendre en considération et l'adopter plus tard.

M. Moore—La seule question qui doive nous occuper est de savoir si nous permettrons à la négresse de rester dans l'Etat ; le Code pourvoit positivement au reste.

M. King—Il me semble que ce qu'il y aurait de mieux à faire, serait d'amender l'Acte de 1850 en y introduisant, pour certains cas, les exceptions qui auraient dû être faites dans cet Acte.

La résolution de M. Kenner est déposée sur le bureau, sujette à l'appel.

Le bill est ensuite adopté.

M. Trudeau—Je vais maintenant proposer une résolution qui, à ce que je crois, répond à toutes les exigences de la question. Il n'y a aucune nécessité d'adopter une loi générale maintenant L'acte qui est actuellement en vigueur et qui s'adapte à presque tous les cas, est amplement suffisant. La seule question doit donc être de savoir si nous conserverons les dispositions de l'acte de 1852. La résolution que je veux présenter au Sénat ne fait que déclarer que nous sommes déterminés à nous en tenir à l'acte de 1852. Dans l'état actuel des affaires, le comité judiciaire n'aura bientôt plus autre chose qu'à faire des rapports sur des demandes d'émancipation. L'objet de ma résolution est d'établir une règle générale pour la gouverne du comité judiciaire, c'est-à-dire de présenter un rapport défavorable à toutes les demandes d'émancipation, excepté dans le cas où un esclave aurait sauvé la vie de son maître, de sa maîtresse ou d'un de leurs enfants, ou dans le cas où il aurait rendu témoignage dans une affaire où l'Etat serait intéressé. Je considère cette question comme étant de la plus haute importance pour les intérêts des planteurs. Le contact et la fréquentation des nègres libres ne peut avoir qu'une influence fatale sur notre population esclave.

Il n'y a pas un planteur dans cette enceinte qui ne partage cette opinion. Les effets déplorables que doit produire ce contact sont trop évidents pour qu'il soit nécessaire de les démontrer. En lisant l'histoire et en réfléchissant aux enseignements qu'elle nous donne, nous ne pouvons nous empêcher de reconnaître que le contact de populations libres et esclaves appartenant à la même race, ne peut manquer d'avoir des conséquences fâcheuses pour toutes deux. Ce a le droit de s'étonner de voir une telle législation insérée dans les annales d'un Etat du sud. Elle est incompatible avec la stabilité de nos institutions et avec la politique qu'on s'accorde généralement à considérer comme celle qu'il nous convient d'adopter. La personne douée du moins de pénétration dans cet Etat ne peut s'empêcher d'être frappée des mauvais résultats que doit produire le mélange des nègres libres et des esclaves. Je soumets donc la présente résolution au Sénat et j'espère qu'il y donnera sa sanction.

M. Ryan—Adopter la résolution du sénateur de Jefferson [M. Trudeau], me semble une œuvre tout à fait surérogatoire. En 1852 la Législature adopta, pour régler cette question, une loi qui contient les dispositions suivantes : [M. Ryan lit la loi.] Les conditions exigées par cette loi sont précisément celles que contient la résolution de l'honorable membre. Les Cours sont autorisées à émanciper les esclaves qui seraient fait une des actions qui viennent d'être spécifiées, et on leur fournit alors des moyens suffisants pour se rendre dans un autre Etat ou dans un autre pays. Le sénateur de Jefferson [M. Trudeau] propose donc de donner au comité judiciaire des instructions pour qu'il fasse ses rapports exactement dans le sens des prescriptions de la loi actuelle. Je trouve cette résolution tout à fait superflue.

A quoi bon décider que nous adhérerons aux dispositions d'une loi qui est déjà en vigueur ? L'acte de 1852 pourvoit à tout ce qu'embrasse la résolution du sénateur de Jefferson. Si elle est adoptée, le Sénat ne fera que déclarer par l'organe du comité judiciaire, que la loi actuellement en vigueur sera maintenue. L'acte a maintenant force de loi et il restera en vigueur jusqu'à ce qu'il se présente un cas en faveur duquel il faille faire une exception. Ce cas échéant, le Sénat devra examiner si une juste politique et la justice demandent que cette exception soit faite; comme propriétaire d'esclaves, je suis directement intéressé au maintien de nos institutions sur l'esclavage et autant que quelque sénateur que ce soit, j'évite avec soin tout ce qui pourrait amener des conséquences dangereuses. Je suis donc opposé à l'émancipation en général parce que je la crois très dangereuse pour l'Etat. Cependant, il est des cas où l'on peut, où l'on doit faire une exception. Un esclave peut avoir sauvé la vie à son maître ou à sa maîtresse, il peut avoir rendu un très grand service à l'Etat, et alors l'exception ne serait que justice.

D'autres considérations encore, aussi puissantes, aussi justes peuvent se présenter et alors que l'émancipation soit la récompense accordée ; mais pas autrement. Je suis donc contre la motion de requérir le comité judiciaire de présenter un rapport contre l'émancipation pour toutes raisons autres que celles qui sont spécifiées dans la résolution. Je ne vois pas pourquoi nous nous restreindrions dans le cercle tracé par cette résolution. Nous devons nous enquérir, nous informer avec soin de toutes les circonstances de chaque affaire, et si les raisons nous semblent bonnes et valables, je ne vois pas pourquoi nous n'agirions pas selon ce qui nous semblera le plus convenable. Sans la loi pourvoit à l'émancipation des esclaves par les Cours dans certaines circonstances. J'approuve cette loi, elle est bonne et j'espère qu'elle sera maintenue. Mais quant à passer une résolution déclarant que la loi est juste et bonne, est, ainsi que je l'ai déjà dit, parfaitement inutile. Autant vaudrait alors adopter une résolution semblable pour chacune des lois de notre Code.

Comme je l'ai déjà dit, il peut se présenter des circonstances qui rendent nécessaire une exception à la loi générale. J'ai contribué moi-même à adopter cette loi en 1852. Ce que j'en pensais alors je le pense aujourd'hui. J'espère qu'elle sera maintenue; mais je Il me semble que le sénateur de la Nlle- King) n'a pas touché à la question prin- cipale dans les remarques qu'il vient d'adresser au Sénat. Le sénateur de Jefferson (M. Trudeau) nous a dit que le comité a besoin d'un commis afin de terminer plus promptement ses travaux. Ce comité a été nommé par le Sénat pour remplir certains devoirs qui, personne ne le niera, sont de la plus haute importance pour l'Etat. Le sénateur (M. King) nous a dit que le comité sanitaire de la ville de la Nlle-Orléans s'est beaucoup occupé de cette question, qu'il est composé d'hommes de talent et qu'essayer ce qu'il fait serait pour nous une œuvre entièrement superflue.

On nous dit que les membres du comité sanitaire de la Nouvelle-Orléans ont réuni tous les documents, toutes les occupations qu'il était possible d'obtenir et qu'il est parfaitement inutile pour nous de chercher à rien faire de plus.

Mais, M. le président, ce comité n'a été nommé que pour la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans. L'épidémie qui tout dernièrement a exercé ses ravages sur notre population, a sévi dans toutes les parties de notre vaste Etat. Un petit nombre de paroisses seulement ont échappé à son atteinte.

Toutes les parties de l'Etat sont par conséquent intéressées au sujet qui nous occupe. Il appartient donc à l'Etat lui-même de prendre les mesures nécessaires pour préserver la population à l'avenir du renouvellement du fléau.

Je ne pense pas, M. le président, que notre comité doive jouer le rôle de doublure de la commission sanitaire de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Nous devons examiner la question nous-même, et tout en accordant confiance aux capacités des personnes nommées pour agir au nom de la ville, nous ne devons pas faire reposer entièrement notre décision sur leur expérience. Je pense que notre comité prendra en grande considération les indications du comité sanitaire ; mais comme il y a d'autres intérêts à consulter que ceux de la ville, il n'est que juste de prendre en considération les vues d'autres personnes non identifiées avec les intérêts de la ville. Il me semble donc évident, M. le président, que la nomination du comité ne constitue pas de notre part un acte sans motifs, et si nous désirons que ce comité agisse rapidement et effectivement, nous devons consentir à la demande du sénateur de Jefferson et permettre au comité de nommer un secrétaire.

M. Trudeau—Je ne puis faire mieux que remercier le sénateur d'Est-Bâton Rouge pour la réplique convaincante qu'il a faite aux remarques du sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Il est parfaitement vrai ainsi que le sénateur l'a observé, qu'il y a d'autres intérêts à consulter que ceux qui ont dû rencontrer l'attention du comité sanitaire. Le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans est mû par l'intérêt de ses constituants. Nous devons en agir de même vis-à-vis des nôtres. Vraiment, M. le president, le comité a quelque chose de plus à faire que le membre d'Orléans semble le croire. Nous ne devons pas seulement nous enquerir du caractère et des causes probables de l'épidemie ; mais aussi des effets à attendre de l'institution d'une quarantaine comme moyen de la prévenir. Il était inutile de nous dire que la commission sanitaire a déjà complété le travail, car il restait à faire ce qui constitue la partie la plus importante de notre travail. Nous avons des questions à résoudre et notre rapport prouvera, j'espère, l'utilité de nos efforts. Appliquerons-nous l'action de la quarantaine aux promeneurs de la Ba , de la Mobile ? Quelle sera l'influence de la quarantaine sur nos interêts commerciaux ? Fermerons-nous une porte et laisserons-nous l'autre ouverte ? Toutes ces questions sont de notre ressort, le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans avouera j'espère que véritablement Il nous reste quelque chose à accomplir.

La résolution est adoptée.

LUNDI, 30 janvier 1854.

Le bill pour venir en aide à Murphy est pris en considération.

M. Kenner—Avant de voter en faveur du bill, je désirerais avoir quelques informations. Je n'ai me pas à marcher ainsi dans l'ombre. Lorsque le bill était devant le Sénat, le sénateur qui l'a rapporté du comité judiciaire a dit qu'il prendrait des informations à ce sujet et qu'il pourrait répondre à la question que je faisais alors comme aujourd'hui. Ce que je désire savoir c'est si les enfants auxquels il est fait allusion dans le bill sont des enfants de couleur.

Digitized by Google

M. Lacey—Voici les faits qui m'ont été transmis et qu'à mon tour j'exposerai au sénateur. Le père de ces enfants vivait avec leur mère. Ils sont à lui et naturellement il éprouve pour eux une affection de père. Il désire leur donner une éducation. Quant à leur couleur, je crois qu'ils ne sont pas tout à fait blancs ; néanmoins ils devraient être élevés conformément aux désirs de leur père. S'il veut les élever selon ses moyens, certes, cela devrait lui être loisible. Ils nous sont recommandés par des citoyens respectables et éminents de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Je suis convaincu qu'ils ne nous demanderaient jamais de faire mal et qu'ils n'insisteraient pas pour l'adoption de ce bill à moins que notre intervention ne fût réellement nécessaire. Il ne saurait y avoir d'objection à ce que cet homme dispose de son bien de la manière qu'il juge convenable, et aucune loi ne peut intervenir et l'empêcher d'accomplir ce qui doit être considéré comme un but très louable. Après avoir donné le jour à ces enfants il désire remplir envers eux ces devoirs que la nature et l'humanité imposent aux pères. Il désire leur donner une éducation telle qu'ils puissent plus tard affronter les dangers et les luttes du monde ; il désire leur donner son bien afin de les tirer du besoin et les mettre en état de vivre sans être à charge à la société.

Pourquoi lui refuserions-nous ce privilège? En accédant à son vœu nous ne faisons de tort à personne. Cet homme n'a pas d'héritiers forcés et conséquemment en adoptant ce bill nous ne violons aucun principe de loi.

Je ne puis dire par moi-même si les enfants sont blancs, noirs ou jaunes; cette considération, du reste, n'influencerait en rien mon vote. Je crois que la demande du pétitionnaire n'est pas seulement raisonnable, mais même qu'elle est juste, naturelle et qu'elle devrait être accordée sans hésitation par la Législature.

M. Kenner.—Le sénateur d'Est Baton Rouge en nous a pas après tout dit positivement si ces enfants sont blancs. Ainsi que je l'ai déjà dit, Mr. le Président, je n'aime à voter qu'avec connaissance de cause. Comme sénateur de l'Etat de la Louisiane, je désire, lorsque je vote, savoir au juste ce que demande un bill, par qui, pourquoi, et pour qui il est présenté. Si j'apprends positivement que ces enfants sont blancs, je voterai en faveur du bill parce que dans ce cas, je puis le faire sans violer aucun principe de loi. S'ils ne sont pas blancs je voterai contre le bill. Je ne désire en aucune manière encourager ces relations illicites entre deux races que la nature et nos lois séparent l'une de l'autre. Une des grandes plaies de notre société, je dois le dire, est cette alliance des deux races. Nous devrions tous faire pour l'empêcher et non l'encourager. Nous vivons dans un état à esclaves et l'intérêt de notre propre sûreté exige que nous ne fassions rien qui puisse mettre en péril nos institutions. Si ce bill est adopté, il en viendra cinquante autres semblables de mon propre district, et si nous accédons à une demande il nous faudra accéder à toutes.

M. Wickliffe.—Si ces enfants sont noirs, je voterai de la même manière que mon collègue de l'Ascension, (M. Kenner) c'est-à-dire contre le bill. Je suis de l'avis qu'il vient d'exprimer, et je ne puis consentir à rien faire qui pourrait porter atteinte à nos lois et à nos institutions. Si, au contraire, ces enfants sont blancs, je voterai en faveur du bill.

Le bill est adopté.

MARDI, 31 janvier 1854.

M. Lacoste—Je demande l'autorisation d'appeler le bill autorisant le coroner de la paroisse de Plaquemines à se nommer un député. Je dirai, pour expliquer le but de ce bill, qu'il est absolument nécessaire qu'il soit adopté. La paroisse de Plaquemines a 80 milles de longueur, s'étendant des deux côtés du fleuve Mississipi C'est un district beaucoup trop étendu pour qu'un seul homme en puisse faire le service ; il est de toute impossibilité pour le coroner de remplir les devoir de sa place sans l'assistance d'un aide. Ce bill autorise simplement le coroner à se nommer un député.

Les règles sont suspendues et le bill est adopté.

LOI D'ENREGISTREMENT.

M. Hodge—Je demande l'autorisation de présenter un bill pourvoyant à l'enregistrement des votants dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Je fais la motion qu'il soit référé au comité sur les élections et mis à l'ordre du jour pour lundi prochain.

M. Wickliffe—Ce bill est de la plus haute importance. Il faudra qu'il soit imprimé et soumis à l'examen des sénateurs avant qu'on puisse rien décider à cet égard

M. Hodge—Le bill est déjà imprimé.

M. Wickliffe—Où est l'ordre d'impression ?

M. Hodge.—Il a été imprimé l'année dernière. Il n'est pas nécessaire de le faire imprimer de nouveau.

M. Wickliffe.—Le président peut se trouver dans l'impossibilité de présenter un rapport lundi prochain.

M. Hodge—J'apprends du président qu'il présentera son rapport ce jour-là.

M. Wickliffe—La raison pour laquelle je m'oppose à ce que ce bill soit mis à l'ordre du jour pour lundi est que pas un seul membre de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans n'est présent. Il est de toute importance que nous ayions une loi d'enrégistrement pour la ville. Quelques-uns des membres de la ville ne seront pas présents ici lundi prochain et bien certainement nous ne devrions rien faire sur cette question sans consulter leurs vœux et leur opinion. Aussi suis-je opposé à ce que ce bill soit mis à l'ordre du jour pour lundi, ou tout autre jour pendant lequel lesdits membres seront absents.

M. Hodge—Si les membres de la ville sont absents au jour indiqué, je ferai moi-même la motion d'ajournement.

M. Wickliffe—S'il en est ainsi, je retirerai mon objection.

Le bill relatif au «Destrehan Canal» est pris en considération.

M. Boatner.—Je ne suis pas pret à donner mon vote sur ce bill. Je désirerais être mieux informé à ce sujet que je ne le suis maintenant. Ce bill peut être seulement local; il peut être d'un caractère général; je voudrais qu'un comité s'en occupât d'abord et fit un rapport. Je suis persuadé que le sénateur qui a présenté ce bill n'aurait aucune objection à ce que le bill soit référé. Ce serait un retard de quelques jours seulement, et le résultat serait tout autrement satisfaisant.

Je fais donc la motion que le bill soit référé au comité des terres et levées.

M. Kenner—Je vais expliquer le but de ce bill, puis si le sénateur insiste sur sa motion de référer, je ne ferai pas d'opposition.

La personne qui adresse ce mémoire désire construire une écluse pour relier ce canal au fleuve Mississipi. Il croit que cela facilitera les communications des planteurs de cette localité avec la Nouvelle-Orléans. Il est impossible qu'il se trompe

Il résultera de la réalisation de ce projet des avantages personnels pour lui-même. Pour moi je ne crois pas que nous puissions nous y opposer même si nous le voulions. Il a parfaitement le droit de construire cette écluse sans aucune autorisation de notre part. Ce qu'il demande c'est de faire ce que font tous les planteurs de riz pour protéger leur champ contre les inondations du Mississipi.

M. Boatner.—Je dois dire que j'aimerais mieux voir ce bill référé à un comité. Je crois que ce bill est de la plus haute importance, d'autant plus qu'il intéresse bon nombre de personnes.

M. Kenner—Je n'y ai pas d'objection.

Le bill est en conséquence référé.

MERCREDI, 1er février 1854.

L'acte pour venir au secours de Pierre Caze, Bertrand Caze et Jacques Caire est pris en considération.

M. Hodge—Il me semble qu'il est impossible d'accorder le secours demandé dans ce bill, attendu qu'une loi adoptée à la dernière session de la Législature donne les amendes et forfaitures dans les affaires criminelles, aux differentes paroisses. jamais lu cet acte avant que mon at-ut appelée par le sénateur de Caddo, mais je dois vous dire que selon moi, la às l'interprétation qui lui est donnée, à toutes les sommes dues jusqu'aujourencore collectées doivent être versées dans le trésor des différentes paroisses. Les sommes dues avant l'adoption de cet acte appartiennent évidemment à l'Etat. La loi elle-même n'admet pas l'interprétation que cherche à lui donner le sénateur de Caddo.

L'une dit que toutes les sommes de cette nature dues jusqu'aujourd'hui, mais non encore collectées doivent appartenir aux trésors des paroisses ; l'autre dit que l'Etat seul a droit à ces sommes. Dans mon humble opinion la loi n'a trait qu'aux amendes et confiscations qui pourraient être recouvrables à l'avenir. C'est là une interprétation juste et raisonnable. Il n'est pas présumable que la Legislature de la Louisiane ait eu l'intention de faire don aux différentes paroisses des sommes immenses qui pouvaient être dues avant la passation de cet acte. Il pouvait y avoir alors des milliers de piastres dûs, et la Législature n'avait certainement pas l'intention de renoncer à ses droits, à ces sommes.

M. Hodge—La raison pour laquelle cette loi a été passée est celle-ci : La Legislature précédente avait passé un acte imposant aux différentes paroisses l'obligation de payer les frais des poursuites criminelles dans leurs limites. Cela leur imposait de fortes dépenses. Il n'était donc que très juste qu'elles reçussent les amendes et confiscations afin qu'il leur fut possible de faire face aux dites dépenses. C'est dans ce but que j'ai présenté le bill en question. J'avais pour but de parer à tous ces cas ; non seulement les amendes et confiscations qui pourraient être prélevables à l'avenir, mais aussi celles qui étaient alors dues et qui n'avaient pas été collectées. Dans ma propre paroisse il est arrivé quelque chose d'absolument semblable et il en a été décidé conformément aux vues que je viens d'exprimer.

M. McCay—Je voterai en faveur du bill qui est maintenant sous discussion. Peu m'importe qu'on ait voulu donner à ce bill un effet rétroactif ou un effet prospectif. La législature, selon moi a le contrôle exclusif et absolu de toutes les sommes jusqu'à ce qu'elles aient été reçues dans le trésor de la paroisse d'Iberville. La seule question à décider est de savoir si ces personnes méritent le secours qu'elles demandent.

M. Hodge—Je voterai contre le bill et je désire que mon vote soit enregistré. Je demanderai donc l'appel nominal.

M. Moore—J'ai suivi avec attention la discussion de ce bill. Je voterai contre parce que je suis fermement convaincu que nous n'avons pas le droit de disposer, ainsi de ces sommes. Nous avons déjà disposé de l'argent et il ne nous appartient plus. N'était cela, peut-être voterais-je en faveur du bill. Nous ne pouvons enlever cet argent à la paroisse à laquelle il appartient pour le donner à qui que ce soit.

M. Konner—Je desire expliquer le vote que j'ai l'intention de donner sur ce bill. Il importe peu que cet argent appartienne à nous ou à la paroisse d'Iberville. La seule question est de savoir s'il est dû pour ce bon. Nous devons tous admettre qu'il n'en est pas ainsi. Ce serait un acte d'injustice que de l'exiger. Il serait donc manifestement injuste de faire souffrir une personne simplement parce qu'il y a difference d'opinion sur cette question parmi les sénateurs. Pour cette raison je voterai en faveur du bill.

M. Hodge—Je regrette d'avoir à revenir sur cette question devant le Sénat, lorsque déjà je me flattais de l'avoir rendue, si claire, si simple, qu'il ne pouvait plus y avoir à douter. Je regrette aussi que le sénateur de l'Ascension ait pris ce terrain où je le rencontre maintenant. Autant que quelque sénateur que ce soit, je suis peu disposé à faire tort à un individu quelqu'il soit. Mais il existe entre l'Etat et les individus, entre l'Etat et les paroisses, certaines relations qui doivent être prises en consideration dans un cas de cette nature. Mon collègue veut bien reconnaître que la paroisse d'Iberville a un juste droit à ces sommes. Cependant il dit qu'il votera en faveur du bill qui les lui enlève. Faire cela, M. le président, ou prendre mille piastres dans la poche d'un citoyen quelconque de l'Etat, c'est absolument la même chose.

Je dis, monsieur, que cet argent appartient à la paroisse d'Iberville, et il est non seulement injuste, mais inconstitutionnel, de passer un acte qui l'en dépossillerait.

Il y a au fond de cette question un principe légal de la plus haute importance. Nous avons à décider si nous pouvons passer un acte disposant de sommes qui ne nous appartiennent pas. L'argument du sénateur d'Ouest-Féliciana [M. Wickliffe] ne touche pas le moins du monde à la question. Il dit que l'argent n'appartient pas à la paroisse puisqu'il n'est pas encore collecté. Je sais très bien qu'il ne peut pas entrer dans le trésor de la paroisse aussi longtemps qu'il n'est pas collecté. Mais celà ne prouve rien. Il ne peut entrer non plus dans le trésor de l'Etat. Le droit à celà appartient à la paroisse. L'Etat n'est que le répondant, le dépositaire de ces sommes pour la paroisse, si elles étaient dues avant l'adoption de l'année de 1853 et non encore collectées.

Digitized by Google

Elles appartiennent à la paroisse et nous n'avons pas le droit d'en disposer. Ce serait violer un droit constitutionnel.

Quant à moi, je proteste de toutes mes forces contre semblable fait, contre pareil acte qui serait indignes du Sénat de la Louisiane. Je voterai contre le bill et j'insisterai pour que mon vote soit enregistré.

Sur motion de M. Hebert et après dispenses des règles, ce bill est lu deux fois, et lorsque la motion est faite pour en adopter la première section, M. Hodge demande l'appel nominal, MM. Boatner, Braud, Clifton, Defresse, Evans, Hébert, Kenner, Key, Lacoste, Lauve, Lacey, McCay, Munday, Martel, Pellerin, Lyau, Richardson et Wickliffe, 18 sénateurs votent dans l'affirmative.

Et MM. Hodge et Moore, 2 sénateurs votent dans la négative.

En conséquence, la première section est adoptée.

Et sur motion de M. Hébert, ce bill passe.

e—Je ne puis pas dire que je crois nécesser ce bill. A moins que l'honorable pré-omité judiciaire (M Lacey) ne veuille bien

Le système qui est maintenant en vigueur is longtemps et je ne sache pas qu'il en soit une conséquence fatale. Je ne consenti-e qu'il soit changé à moins que de bien

—La seule raison que je puisse donner en angement proposé, est que quelquefois le ssaire ne peut pas fournir une caution qui e caution dans une paroisse où il ne peut r, il peut se trouver dans l'absolue impé-cepter le fidéi-commis. Le bill a été una-apporté par le comité judiciaire, et son tainement droit à quelque considération.

M. Hodge—Les raisons présentées par le sénateur ne me semblent pas suffisantes pour justifier un changement aussi important, aussi radical dans notre système de législation. Le but de la loi actuelle en exigeant que la caution reside dans la même paroisse que l'executeur, administrateur, tuteur ou curateur, est que le juge puisse voir lui-même la personne présentée comme caution, et s'assurer par lui-même qu'il possède les qualifications requises. Il est nécessaire que le juge soit convaincu de la solvabilité de la caution. Sous le bill qui est maintenant proposé une caution résidant au Nord ou dans l'Ouest, pourrait être présentée. Le juge aurait alors à s'en rapporter au dire et aux représentations de tierces personnes. Il dit que le juge doit pouvoir juger et déterminer par lui-même; mais pour cela il faut de grandes dépenses et même alors il est exposé à de très graves erreurs.

Pour moi j'aime bien mieux que la loi reste comme elle est. Jamais à ma connaissance il n'en est résulté rien de fâcheux. Si, comme on le dit, une personne ne pouvait pas se procurer une caution dans la paroisse et qu'elle ne peut l'avoir qu'ailleurs, rien ne serait plus facile pour elle, que d'obtenir une lettre de créance avec laquelle elle pourrait se procurer cette caution dans sa propre paroisse. Après bon nombre d'années de pratique dans les cours de cet Etat, je n'ai jamais vu un seul cas dans lequel un fidéi-commissaire n'ait pas pu se procurer la caution requise par la loi. Il est de l'interêt de l'Etat, de l'intérêt public en général, que ces garanties la soient considérées comme bonnes et suffisantes.

Supposez par exemple que la caution ou qu'une des cautions réside dans le Nord et que les circonstances deviennent telles qu'il soit nécessaire de le poursuivre, et vous voyez de suite quels délais peuvent résulter de ce fait, et à quel tort immense il peut donner lieu. Ces delais, ce tort peuvent être, et de fait, ils sont prévenus, il y est obvie par la loi qui exige que les cautions resident dans la même paroisse que l'exécuteur ou administrateur. Je ne vois pas de raisons qui militent en faveur d'un changement aussi grand, aussi radical que celui qui est proposé dans le bill. Je voterai contre, et je demande l'appel nominal.

Le bille passe.

Sur motion de M. King, le vote sur la 4me section est pris de nouveau en considération et la motion est effacée.

Sur motion de M. Evans, le Sénat s'occupe du bill suivant lequel subit ses deux lectures :

Acte pour venir au secours de Hamon A Drew.

SECT. 1re—Il est decrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane réunis en assemblée générale; Que la somme de cent piastres est et demeure par le present appropriée, de tous fonds du Trésor, non autrement affectés, laquelle sera payee à Harman A. Drew, ci-devant Avocat de District du 10me District judiciaire, la dite somme étant le montant qui lui revient, comme sa part dans l'amende imposee sur D. W. Trotter, pour avoir vendu des liqueurs spiritueuses aux esclaves; laquelle amende il n'a pas recouvrée parce que l'amende a été remise par l'Exécutif.

SECT. 2me—Et il est de plus décrété, &c, Que cet acte sera en force à dater de sa passation.

M. Wickliffe—Je vais dire les raisons pour lesquelles je m'opposerai à ce bill. Si je ne me trompe, il est question de donner à l'ex-Avocat de District du Dixième District judiciaire telle partie du montant d'une amende du paiement de laquelle le Gouverneur et le Sénat ont dispensé le prévenu et à laquelle A. Drew, ci-devant Avocat du Dixième District judiciaire, aurait eu droit si la dite amende avait été collectée par lui.

Je dois dire que si je m'étais trouvé ici à l'époque où la proposition a été soumise au Sénat, j'aurais voté contre la mesure prise par le Sénat et sanctionnée par la signature du Gouverneur.

Quoi qu'il en soit, l'amende n'a pas été payée de par autorité. Je ne crois pas que l'Avocat de District a aucun droit établi, fixe, certain, à en réclamer une partie quelque grande ou quelque minime qu'elle soit, ou qu'elle puisse être. Le Gouverneur et le Sénat de la Louisiane l'ont en quelque sorte éteinte, elle a été effacée, si je puis dire, par les autorités auxquelles seules appartient le droit de le faire. Il n'y a donc plus amende; il n'existe plus rien à quoi l'Avocat de District peut avoir le moindre droit. Il n'a pas le moindre droit à rien jusqu'à ce que la partie soit convaincue et que l'amende soit perçue, et pour cela il faut que l'affaire ait passé par toutes les formalités légales, celle qui consiste en l'approbation du Senat et la signature du Gouverneur. S'ils veulent remettre l'amende, c'est comme s'ils annulaient le tout. Si nous payons à l'Avocat de District ce qu'il réclame comme sa part, il faudra prendre cette somme dans le trésor de l'Etat. Soutiendra-t-on que nous devions faire cela ?

M. Hodge—Je ne me rappelle pas comment j'ai voté à la dernière session sur la question de l'amende à laquelle ce bill fait allusion. Je considère cependant que la question n'est plus pendante.

L'année dernière, l'Avocat de District d'Est-Feliciana a fait application pour qu'on lui donnât une partie d'une somme dont le Gouverneur et le Sénat ont donné remise. Le cas était identiquement le même et je crois que l'affaire a été décidée en faveur de la réclamation de l'Avocat de District. Il peut être très-vrai qu'il a pris la place cum onere et que l'action possible du Gouverneur et du Senat est une des éventualités qui doivent être prévues dans un cas de cette nature, et nous devons en tout consulter la justice. Cet officier public a rempli les devoirs que la loi lui impose. Il a convaincu le délinquant, et c'est là tout ce qu'il pouvait faire Le Gouverneur et le Sénat ont jugé convenable d'accorder remise de l'amende. Les raisons qui ont déterminé cette mesure n'ont pas été portées devant aucune Cour et sans doute elles ont été communiquées au Gouverneur et au Sénat. Le jugement de la Cour prouve que l'amende est percevable. Si le Gouverneur et le Sénat jugent convenable d'accorder remise de cette amende pour des raisons dont eux seuls sont juges, l'Avocat de District doit-il être privé de cette partie à laquelle il avait droit ? Le sénateur d'Ouest-Feliciana (M. Wickliffe) établit des distinctions subtiles entre les droits acquis et les droits non encore acquis Il soutient que l'Avocat de District n'a pas un droit acquis à cette amende.

Je soutiens, Monsieur, que lorsqu'une condamnation a été prononcée et que l'avocat de District a plaidé la cause et rempli tous les devoirs que lui impose la loi, elle a acquis un droit que l'Etat ne peut pas lui enlever. Hier nous avons adopté un bill faisant remise d'une amende encourue par une personne de cette paroisse, mais la part qui devait en revenir à l'avocat de District a été reservée. Pourquoi ferions-nous une exception en faveur du cas dont il s'agit ?

M. McCay—Dans le cas dont parle l'honorable membre, les honoraires qui ont été reservés devaient être payés par le défendeur et non par l'Etat, tandis que dans l'affaire qui nous occupe ils devraient être payés par le Trésor de l'Etat. Les deux cas ne sont donc pas identiques. Lorsque l'avocat de District accepte sa charge, il est sujet au pouvoir de faire grace qui appartient au gouverneur ou au Sénat. En votant maintenant pour ce bill, je m'obligerais probablement à donner mon vote à une douzaine d'autres bills de la même teneur. Voilà pourquoi je suis opposé à ce bill, et je voterai contre son adoption.

M Moore—Ayant voté aujourd'hui contre le bill faisant remise d'une amende à certaines personnes de la paroisse d'Iberville, je voterai contre la motion de déposer sur le bureau la motion qui nous est soumise en ce moment. Je voudrais pourtant dire quelques mots pour expliquer les raisons qui me guident dans cette circonstance. Dans le premier cas, je croyais que nous n'avions pas le droit d'accorder la remise de cette amende, attendu qu'elle appartenait à la paroisse d'Iberville. Le second cas est différent. Notre acte, il est vrai, fait remise de l'amende, mais l'avocat de District a fait son devoir. Il a rempli toutes les obligations que lui impose la loi. Il a fait un certain travail et il a droit aux honoraires que lui accorde la loi. Nous ne pouvons pas l'en priver par un acte. Il a un droit légal et constitutionnel à la part de l'amende qui lui revient, et si nous l'empêchons de la recouvrer du défendeur, il faut que nous payions nous-mêmes.

M. King—Je désire aussi exprimer mes vues relativement à cette question. Avant ce jour, nous avons de la même manière, exactement que dans le cas actuel, donné de l'argent aux autres. Je pense, quant à moi, que le principe sur lequel nous avons agi, est entièrement mauvais. Mais si nous refusons de faire pour cette personne ce que nous avons déjà fait pour d'autres, dans des circonstances identiquement les mêmes, nous nous rendrons coupable d'une grande injustice. Ce serait là de la législation partiale. Sans doute nous n'aurions pas dû établir le precedent, mais puisqu'il existe maintenant, nous sommes legalement, moralement tenus de nous y conformer aujourd'hui.

M Wickliffe—Je ne comprends pas ce que le sénateur veut dire par les mots de legislation partiale ou partielle. Je vote en faveur d'un bill s'il me semble juste et bon. Si je le juge mauvais, je m'y oppose sans m'occuper, pour déterminer mon jugement, de consulter tel ou tel autre bill. Dans le cas actuel, je crois que l'avocat de District n'a pas de droit à cette somme. Je voterai toujours pour qu'on ne donne rien aux avocats de District dans les affaires où il y aura eu une remise accordée par le gouverneur et confirmée par le Senat

M. McMurdo—Je voterai en faveur du bill parce que je crois qu'il est de l'interêt de l'Etat d'encourager les avocats de District dans l'exercice de leurs devoirs.

La motion de déposer sur le bureau est rejetée, et le bill passe.

M. Macmurdo annonce qu'il présentera sous peu un bill pour rapporter l'acte intitulé, "Acte accordant des pensions aux vétérans de 1814 et '15," approuvé le 30 avril, 1853

M. Macmurdo—La législature en adoptant ce bill avait pour but de prevenir le renouvellement des abus qui avaient déjà été communs sous l'empire de l'acte intitulé, « Acte accordant des pensions aux veterans de 1814 et '15,» approuvé le 17 mars, 1852. Cet acte n'a pas du tout atteint le but qu'on se proposait. Les demandes faites au trésor furent aussi nombreuses, sinon plus nombreuses, que sous l'ancien régime. La somme de $10,000 effectée au paiement des applications faites en vertu de l'acte de 1853 fut epuisée, et il y a encore un grand nombre de petitionnaires Convaincu que le seul moyen d'empêcher cela est de referer l'acte auquel j'ai fait allusion, et de retablir l'ancien systeme tel qu'il etait etabli avant l'adoption de l'acte adopté le 17 mars, 1852.

M. Palfrey—Si le Senat n'a pas à s'occuper immédiatement de questions presentes je demanderai que ce bill soit pris maintenant en consideration. (Les règles sont suspendues.) Je vais expliquer en peu de mots le but de ce bill

A l'epoque de l'invasion de la Louisiane par les troupes anglaises et lorsqu'on ignorait encore sur quel point l'ennemi opérerait son debarquement, des détachements furent envoyés sur differents points du littoral du lac pour observer ses mouvements. Les hommes dont ces detachements étaient composés montrèrent le même zèle, supportèrent les mêmes fatigues et, on doit le supposer, coururent les mêmes dangers que ceux qui restaient avec le gros de l'armée, et qui combattirent à la ligne. Et pourtant ils sont exclus du privilège de la loi des pensions, et c'est dans le but de les en faire jouir que le bill est présenté.

Le bill est adopté.

nous ayons une succursale à Monroe. Le comité n'a pas jugé convenable de donner les raisons pour lesquelles il a fait un rapport défavorable au bill; je le regrette excessivement. Je désirerais entendre ces raisons Je crois que c'est là une mesure très importante, et qui méritait une mention et plus détaillée et plus approfondie qu'il ne peut s'en trouver dans un simple rapport defavorable. Nous, qui sommes en faveur du bill, nous pouvons dire les raisons qui nous décident à penser ainsi. J'espère que le comité nous fera l'honneur de nous faire part des leurs; j'espère qu'il nous expliquera comment et pourquoi il en est venu à la conclusion qu'il expose. S'il n'a pas de bonnes raisons à donner, je le supplie de revenir sur sa décision et de soutenir le bill. Qu'il soit admis comme loi. Il est de la plus grande importance pour une des parties les plus vastes, les plus prospères de notre Etat.

J'espère donc que le bill sera adopté.

M. King—Il est vrai que dans le rapport qu'il a présenté, le comite n'a pas explique les raisons qui l'ont déside à faire opposition a ce bill; mais le senateur peut être sûr que le comite n'a pas agi inconsidérément et sans reflexion.

Le fait est que nous avons jugé tout-à-fait inutile d'établir une succursale à Monroe; si nous commençons à diviser et à subdiviser ce bureau, on nous demandera l'établissement d'une succursale dans chacune des paroisses de l'Etat, et il en résultera que tout le revenu provenant de la vente des terres marecageuses passera en salaires d'employes. Je dois le dire, il n'est pas une seule partie de l'Etat pour laquelle j'ai plus de sympathies que celle à l'avantage de laquelle il est question d'établir une succursale du bureau des terres. Certes, si nous divisions ce bureau, c'est à cette paroisse incontestablement que nous devrions penser en premier lieu.

Mais le comité n'a pas jugé prudent ou opportune de diviser le bureau et cela pour les raisons que je viens de dire. Je ne puis croire que le senateur de Jackson, (M. Defrees) attribue mon opposition à ce bill à d'autres motifs qu'à des considérations d'intérêt public.

de la succursale du bureau des terres publiques, créée et établie en vertu de cet acte, tous les plans des terres publiques dans le district établi par cet acte ensemble avec un état correct de toutes terres vendues par l'Etat, situées ou fixées dans le dit district.

Sect. 7. Et il est de plus décrété, etc. Que l'acte intitulé: « Acte pour créer et établir une succursale du bureau des terres publiques à Woinsborough, dans la paroisse de Franklin, » approuvé le 4 mai 1847, ainsi que toutes les lois contraires aux dispositions de cet acte, sont par le présent acte rappelés, et le register des terres publiques à Woinsborough est, par le présent, requis de délivrer au register de la dite succursale du bureau des terres publiques, à Monroe, créée et établie par cet acte, tous les plans des terres publiques dans le district établi par le présent acte, avec un état correct de toutes les terres de l'Etat qui sont vendues et situées dans les limites de la dite section sous certificats vendus par l'Etat en tant qu'ils sont venus à sa connaissance.

M. Defrees—Je dois dire que le rapport présenté par le comité des améliorations intérieures au sujet de ce bill, me cause autant d'etonnement que de regrets. Je déplore que le comité ait cru devoir faire un rapport aussi défavorable. L'importance du sujet réclamait une décision toute différente, si l'on avait établi la succursale à laquelle ce bill pourvoit une partie très grande et très importante de notre Etat aurait beaucoup profité, parce que c'était lui assurer des facilités dont elle est aujourd'hui entièrement dépourvue. Il y a dans ce district un grand nombre de terres publiques qui auraient pu être vendues beaucoup plus facilement, si la dite succursale avait été établie à Monroe. Maintenant les personnes qui désirent s'inscrire pour des terres sont forcées de venir jusqu'ici, dans la capitale, à une longue distance de chez elles, ce qui leur occasionne à la fois et d'inutiles délais et de la fatigue, et des dépenses qui pourraient être évitées par le moyen qui est indique dans le bill.

Il est, je puis le dire, d'une absolue nécessité, que

M. Hodge propose l'amendemhnt d'insérer après les mots « Monroe dans la paroisse de Ouchita » les mots « Shreveport dans la paroisse de Caddo. »

M. Kenner fait la motion d'insérer comme amendement à l'amendement de M. Hodge, les mots « Donaldsonville dans la paroisse de l'Ascension »

M. Moore fait la motion d'insérer, comme amendement de M. Kenner, les mots « Opelousas dans la paroisse St-Landry.

M. King fait la motion que le dit bill et les Amendements soient déposés indéfiniment sur le bureau.

M. Defrees—J'espère que le sénateur n'insistera pas sur cette motion et qu'il permettra que le vote soit pris immédiatement sur ce bill.

Le bill est déposé sur le bureau.

M. Macmurdo fait la motion de prendre en considération l'acte pour pourvoir au paiement des coupons et des intérêts détachés des bonds émis par l'Etat, lesquels coupons peuvent être dus,

M. Macmurdo—Je n'ai pas besoin de dire au Sénat combien ce bill est importante ni qu'il est nécessaire qu'il soit adopté le plus tôt possible.—J'essayerai en quelques mots d'en expliquer le but, La Constitution décrète, ainsi que tous mes collègues le savent, qu'il ne sera tiré aucun argent du trésor si ce n'est d'après une affectation spéciale et qu'aucune affectation ne sera faite pour un terme plus long que deux ans. D'ordinaire nous faisons les appropriations pour le paiement de la dette de l'Etat et de l'intérêt, d'année en année et si les coupons ne sont pas présentés dans les deux ans requis par la loi (ce qui arrive souvent) il deviennent nuls. Les coppons ont quelquefois détachés des bonds et ne sont présentés pour être payés que long-temps après qu'ils sont dus.

Le but de ce bill est de former un fonds duquel les coupons d'intérêt pourront être payes sur présentation. Je tiens à la main un extrait du Journal de Commerce, un des principaux journaux de New-York qui démontre l'importance de ce bill. Je vais en donner lecture :

« Une maison recommandable de cette ville qui fait » des affaires avec l'Angleterre, a reçu dernièrement » de Londres, pour être collectés, vingt coupons d'in- » térêt sur les bonds de l'Etat de la Louisiane. Le » tout s'élevait à $600. Les coupons ont été immé- » diatement envoyes à Bâton-Rouge pour être payés. » Cette maison vient de recevoir le paiement comp- » tant de dix-sept d'entre-eux, s'élevant à la somme » de $510; mais les trois autres s'élevant à la somme » de $90 n'ont pas été payés, le trésorier de l'Etat » à Bâton-Rouge ayant declaré qu'il n'y avait pas » d'appropriation faite au-delà de la somme qu'il » payait; mais que la Législature devait s'assembler » dans le cours du mois et y pourvoierait sans aucun » doute.

» N'y a-t-il donc personne en Louisiane qui put » prêter à l'Etat $90 dans ce moment critique ?

» Voici une copie d'un des coupons qui n'ont pas » été payés :

BOND DE L'ETAT DE LA LOUISIANE.

Doit—

Mandat de $30 dû le 11 septembre 1858 et payable au lieu designé dans l'endossement.

No 70. C. G, Trésorier.

Si les choses restent ainsi, qui peut douter que le crédit de l'Etat ne soit bientôt détruit ? Des cas de la nature de celui que rapporte le Journal de Commerce se présentent souvent et il est nécessaire que de promptes mesures soient prises à cet effet.

Le bill passe avec un amendement.

BANQUE DES CITOYENS.

M. Clifton, du comité des banques et maisons de banque, présente un rapport favorable au bill suivant :

Acte pour amender la charte et les divers actes relatifs à la Banque des Citoyens.

Section 1. Il est décrété &c; Que le proviso contenu dans la 3me section de l'acte du 30 janvier 1836 intitulé « Acte pour amender les divers actes relatifs à l'acte intitulé « Acte pour incorporer la Banque des Citoyens de la Louisiane, qui est conçu en ces termes : « Bien entendu, qu'aucune personne qui ne sera pas citoyen libre et blanc des Etats-Unis et domiciliée dans l'Etat de la Louisiane, ne deviendra ni directement ni indirectement propriétaire d'aucune partie du fonds capital de la dite compagnie » est par le présent abrogé.

Sec. 2. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que la 9me section du dit acte, approuvé le 30 janvier 1836, autorisant la banque à charger le taux d'escompte sur tous billets n'ayant pas plus de cent-vingt-quatre jours à courir, six pour cent, et sur tous prêts ayant plus de cent-vingt-quatre jours à courir, sept pour cent : et la 8me section d'un acte daté le 23 mars 1839 intitulé « Acte pour amender l'acte intitulé : « Acte pour amender et supplémentaire aux divers actes relatifs à l'acte pour incorporer la Banque des Citoyens, qui autorise la Banque à exiger huit pour cent d'escompte sur les prêts pour un terme excédant six mois ou davantage, est et demeure par le présent amende ainsi qu'il suit, savoir : « Que la Banque des Citoyens de la Louisiane aura le droit de faire payer six pour cent d'escompte sur les prêts (excepté sur les prêts sur actions) n'ayant pas plus de 90 jours à courir, et sur tous prêts au-dessus de 90 jours de terme, huit pour cent d'escompte.

Sect. 3. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que la 3me section de l'acte du 12 fevrier 1836, intitulé « Acte pour amender les divers actes relatifs à l'acte intitulé « Acte pour incorporer la Banque des Citoyens de la Louisiane, » qui est conçue en ces termes : « Qu'à l'avenir aucune nomination des officiers de la Banque ne se fera sans qu'un avis préalable ait été donné pendant huit jours dans deux gazettes de cette ville, lequel sera publié en anglais et en français, Best et demeure par le présent abrogée.

Sect. 4 Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que toute cette partie de la 7me section de l'acte du 1er mars 1852, intitulé « Acte pour venir au secours de la Banque des Citoyens, qui autorise les actionnaires à élire cinq directeurs, est et demeure amendée de manière à s'interpréter comme suit : « Que les actionnaires de la dite corporation auront le droit d'élire sept directeurs, lesquels, ensemble avec les deux directeurs nommés par l'Etat, constitueront le Bureau des Directeurs de la dite Banque des Citoyens de la Louisiane.

Sect. 5. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que cet acte ne sera pas mis en vigueur avant qu'il n'ait été accepté par écrit par une majorité des actionnaires en comptant et hypothécaires de la Banque.

M. McMurdo—Je fais la motion que le bill soit pris en consideration et qu'il en soit disposé.

M. Evans—Je ne puis pas dire que je comprends parfaitement ce bill, et ne le comprenant pas, je ne puis consentir à voter en sa faveur.

M. McMurdo—J'essaierai d'expliquer la nature du bill de telle sorte, que le sénateur puisse le comprendre parfaitement. Le but de ce bill est excellent, et je crois qu'il obtiendra l'approbation générale du Sénat. Il s'agit tout simplement de permettre à la Banque des Citoyens d'exiger huit pour cent sur les prêts de plus de 30 jours, ce qui serait placer cette Banque sur un pied d'égalité avec les autres. C'est un privilege accordé aux banques libres etablies d'après l'acte de la dernière session, et avec lesquelles la Banque des Citoyens entre en compétitition. De plus, cela sera avantageux à la campagne, où les emprunts sont généralement faits à 90 jours, et s'il n'est pas permis à la Banque des Citoyens d'exiger le même taux d'interêt que les autres, il arrivera qu'elle ne pourra pas étendre ses prêts à un terme de plus de 90 jours.

Ce bill a aussi pour but de bénéficier les propriétaires d'hypothèques parmi lesquels l'Etat a un intérêt résidiaire. Je ne vois pas d'objection possible à ce bill et je suis sûr que le sénateur n'en aura plus du tout après que j'aurai dit que son seul but est de placer la banque des Citoyens sur un pied d'egalité avec toutes les autres en lui accordant les mêmes privilèges dont elles jouissent.

M. Moore—L'intention du sénateur est-elle d'augmenter l'intérêt sur les billets hypothécaires ?

M. McMurdo—Tout ce que l'on demande c'est de permettre que l'agent puisse être investi de telle sorte que ceux qui ont des billets hypothécaires puissent avoir quelque retour des fortes contributions imposées sur eux.

M. Trudeau—Si je comprends bien le bill son but est comme suit : La Banque des Citoyens occupe une position différente de celle des autres. Elle a le droit pandue dans la campagne que toutes les autres; ses affaires y sont beaucoup plus grandes et il n'est que très juste non seulement envers elle, mais aussi envers ses habitués qu'elle soit placée sur un pied d'egalité avec les autres Banques.

M. Hodge—Je voterai contre le bill parce qu'il concède à la Banque le droit d'exiger un taux plus elevé d'intérêt qu'il n'est permis aux particuliers de recevoir. Il y a une bien grande différence entre 8 pour 100 d'intérêt et 8 pour 100 d'escompte. Permettre à la Banque de prendre plus de 8 pour 100 d'escompte, c'est plus que de l'autoriser à prendre 8 pour cent d'intérêt.

Et pourquoi établirait-on une semblable différence, une différence aussi injuste ? Pour moi, je ne vois pas qu'on doive en établir aucune entre les banques incorporées ou non incorporées.

M. McMurdo—Il n'est pas de jours où les courtiers ne demandent plus de huit pour cent.

M. Hodge—Cela est alors de l'usure.

M. McMurdo—Cependant l'escompte généralement exigé est de huit pour cent. Cette règle est etablie par la coutume.

M. Hodge—Les banques libres ont elle le droit d'exiger huit pour cent?

M. Macmurdo—Oui, monsieur.

Une motion est faite alors de déposer l'amendement sur le bureau.

Cette motion est perdue.

M Hodge—Je fais la motion que le bill soit déposé indefiniment sur le bureau ; mais avant que la question ne soit posée je désirerais que le sénateur lut la section de la loi des banques libres qui autorise à prendre 8 pour cent.

M. Evans—Est-on à l'ordre en demandant que le bill soit déposé indéfiniment sur le bureau ? Quant à moi je crains toujours d'accorder trop de pouvoirs, trop de privilèges aux banques et comme je ne comprends pas très bien la question dont le Sénat s'occupe maintenant relativement à la Banque des Citoyens je ne désirerais pas voter immédiatement pour ou contre le bill. Néanmoins je voterai contre la motion de déposer indéfiniment le bill sur le bureau parce que si je puis être convaincu de son opportunité je le soutiendrai. Je désirerais donc que le bill soit ajourné à plus tard.

M. Kenner Je seconderai cette motion. Il semble qu'il existe au sujet de ce bill quelques malentendus qui j'en suis sûr, disparaîtront lorque les sénateurs auront eu le temps de l'étudier et de réfléchir. Dans quelques jours je n'a pas de doutes que le bill ne soit adopté sans opposition.

M. King—Je crois indispensable de faire un amendement à ce bill. Nous devrions y insérer une section pourvoyant à ce que les actionnaires soient consultés sur l'amendement et que leur décision soit connue avant que la loi ne soit passée. La charte appartient aux actionnaires; elle est pour eux chose acquise et nous ne pouvons la changer sans leur consentement.

M. Moore—Ainsi que je l'ai déja dit, la charte astreint la banque à prêter une certaine proportion sur hypothèques. L'amendement proposé à ce bill peut-être nécessaire; il peut produire le plus grand bien; mais quant à moi, je suis d'une opinion toute différente et je n'hésiste pas à dire que s'il est adopté, si le bill passe, deux jours après le fonds de la banque des Citoyens vaudra 110. C'est là un fait important à considérer.

M. Hodge—Le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans (M. MacMurdo) a fait la remarque que les banques établies sous la loi des banques libres, ont le droit d'exiger 8 pour cent d'escompte. Je conteste cela. Il dit que ces banques ont le droit de demander l'intérêt légal le plus élevé. Pour arriver à une conclusion qui soit juste, il faut d'abord savoir cé qu'est l'intérêt légal le plus élevé. Il est de 8 pour cent. Mais 8 pour cent d'escompte sont plus que 8 pour cent d'intérêt.

Je suis donc opposé à ce qu'on accorde aux banques des privilèges plus grands que ceux dont jouissent les particuliers. Pourquoi le ferions-nous ? Quelle raison avons-nous pour cela ? Quel droit les banques ont elles a plus de faveur de notre part ? Je le repète, Monsieur, le principe est faux et jamais je ne le sanctionnerai par mon vote.

M McMurdo—Je regrette que le sénateur ait contesté ce que j'avançais au sujet du droit des particuliers d'exiger 8 pour cent d'escompte. J'en appele au président du comité des améliorations intérieures (M. King) et je consens à me courber devant sa décision.

M. King—Huit pour cent, ainsi qu'un sénateur l'a déjà dit, est le taux légal de l'intérêt; mais un tiers porteur peut toucher le montant total du billet.

M. Hodge—Le sénateur prétend-il dire que les lois usuraires de l'Etat peuvent être ainsi mises de côté ? C'est la première fois que j'entends dire sérieusement qu'en changeant le nom d'une chose on change la chose elle-même; c'est la première fois que j'entends dire qu'on pouvait ainsi violer les lois d'usure. Ces lois sont faites pour déterminer quels profits peuvent être faits sur les prêts d'argent et empêcher qu'on ne «rase de trop près» (si je puis employer l'expression vulgaire) ceux que la nécessité force à avoir recours aux prêteurs. Exiger plus qu'un certain escompte c'est se rendre coupable d'usure et c'est toujours de l'usure soit que vous appeliez le gain escompte ou intérêt.

Le bill est mis à l'ordre du jour pour mercredi

M. King demande et obtient la permission de présenter un acte pour rappeler en partie l'article 1546 du Code Civil. La question est référée au comité judiciaire.

Le même membre demande et obtient la permission de présenter un acte pour indemniser différentes personnes employées par le comité nommé par le Sénat en 1850, pour préserver l'Etat de l'inondation.

M. King—Je fais la motion de référer ce dernier acte au comité des améliorations intérieures.

M. Wickliffe—Je demande que cet acte soit référé au comité des réclamations. Ce comité n'est lié par aucune promesse. J'espère que l'honorable membre n'insistera pas sur sa motion de référer le bill au comité des améliorations intérieures. Nous savons que le président de ce comité a positivement promis de faire payer ses réclamations. Pour ma part je ne les crois pas justes. Je puis être dans l'erreur, mais telle est mon opinion, et lorsque le bill nous sera soumis je donnerai des preuves à l'appui de ce que j'avance. La demande qui nous est présentée est une réclamation, et comme telle elle doit être examinée par le comité compétent. C'est ce qui est fait pour toutes les autres demandes de ce genre, et j'espère que nous ne ferons pas une exception en faveur de celle-ci. Le comité des améliorations intérieures n'a rien de commun avec une question de cette espèce Le bill demande, ni plus, ni moins, le paiement de certaines réclamations contre l'Etat, et le comité qui doit examiner une demande de ce genre est le comité des réclamations. Je crois, comme je l'ai déjà dit, que ces réclamations ne sont pas fondées. La fameuse expédition de M. Ricker était une vraie chasse à l'oie sauvage, et il n'y était nullement autorisé par l'Etat. Je le répète, j'espère que l'honorable membre n'insistera pas sur sa motion, alors qu'il s'est irrévocablement engagé à soutenir ce bill.

M. King—L'honorable préopinant est d'avis que ce bill ne doit pas être référé au comité des améliorations intérieures, pour la raison que je suis déterminé à en favoriser l'adoption. Je lui ferai observer que je ne forme pas tout le comité et que je ne suis pas autorisé à parler en son nom, sans en être requis, ni à promettre son concours ou son opposition à une mesure quelconque. C'est moi qui ai présenté ce bill, il n'est donc pas étonnant que je sois favorable à son adoption, il serait même fort étrange que je fusse autrement disposé; mais il y a dans le comité d'autres membres dont la voix a le même poids que la mienne L'honorable membre ne refusera pas, je crois, de s'en remettre à leur jugement.

Mon collègue demande ce que le comité des améliorations intérieures a de commun avec cette question; s'il avait lu le titre du bill, il ne me ferait pas cette question. M. Ricker était le président d'un comité nommé par le Sénat pour aviser aux moyens de mettre l'Etat à couvert d'une inondation. Le comité des améliorations est chargé des mêmes fonctions, il est donc on ne peut plus compétent pour examiner ce bill.

L'honorable membre dit que ces réclamations ne sont pas justes, je crois au contraire qu'elles sont des mieux fondées, et lorsque le bill nous sera soumis, j'espère le démontrer, bien que je ne parviendrai probablement pas à convaincre l'honorable membre qui est irrévocablement opposé à la mesure M. Ricker, comme président du comité nommé par le Sénat, a présenté au comité des améliorations intérieures un rapport sur le résultat de ses investigations. Ce comité a devant lui tous les plans, cartes, papiers et autres documents réunis par M. Ricker. Il a donc en sa possession des moyens d'information que ne possède pas le comité des réclamations.

L'honorable préopinant a cru devoir annoncer que je suis porté à favoriser l'adoption du bill, et il donne à entendre que le comité que j'ai l'honneur de présider est dans les mêmes dispositions. Je soutiens que ce comité n'est pas plus lié que celui des réclamations. L'année passée, une réclamation émanant d'une personne employée par M. Ricker fut présentée à ce comité. Elle se montait à $800. Le rapport fut favorable, mais le comité des réclamations réduisit ce chiffre à $100. Si le comité judiciaire, suivant ce précédent, rapportait en faveur du montant entier de tous ces bills, le chiffre s'élèverait à $25,000. Le comité judiciaire, au contraire, ne le porte qu'à $5,000.

Je le répète, ces réclamations sont justes et en conséquence je crois qu'elles devraient être payées. La crainte des améliorations intérieures (en disant cela je ne prétends heurter en rien la susceptibilité du sénateur d'Ouest Féliciana) la crainte des améliorations intérieures, dis-je, est celui qui peut le mieux les examiner. Le comité des réclamations ne peut pas posséder une connaissance aussi parfaite de la question parce qu'il n'a pas les mêmes détails, les mêmes informations. Quant au comité des améliorations intérieures qu'on dit être engagé, j'ai fait voir que c'était une erreur, une grande erreur. Je ne connais pas un seul membre qui soit engagé, de sorte que les appréhensions du sénateur à ce sujet sont très mal fondées.

M. Wickliffe—Le sénateur dit que le comité des améliorations est engagé autant, a-t-il dit, je crois, que le comité dont il est président. Que pensera-t-on de cette imputation lorsque j'aurai fait voir que pas un seul des membres qui l'année dernière composaient ce comité n'en fait partie aujourd'hui, n'est même dans le Sénat ?

Je le répète, je ne vois pas pour quelle raison ce bill serait référé à un comité dont le président est engagé à le soutenir, tandis que d'autres bills sont référés à des comités qui ne sont pas engagés à l'avance. C'est là, M. le président, une distinction injuste, indigne. L'argument du sénateur que le comité des améliorations intérieures a plus de moyens de l'informer, n'est pas tenable. Le sénateur lui-même qui prend tant d'intérêt à M. Ricker n'aura sans doute pas d'objection à faire voir ces cartes, ces plans et ces documents dont il a parlé au comité des réclamations pour l'aider dans ses recherches. Je présume trop de son obligeance et de sa courtoisie pour supposer un seul instant qu'il puisse refuser.

M. King—Qu'il me soit permis de dire au sénateur que je ne prendrai pas la peine de courir au comité des réclamations pour lui soumettre des plans ou des documents d'aucune sorte. Ce n'est pas là mon affaire Je lui dirai aussi que je n'ai pas d'autre intérêt à ce bill que celui qu'éprouvent tous les sénateurs. Je considère que ces réclamations sont justes et je pense qu'elles devraient être payées.

M. Kenner—Je voudrais que cette question fut terminée sans délai. Je fais donc la motion de déposer indéfiniment ce bill sur le bureau. Depuis trois ans cette réclamation Ricker est devant le Sénat C'est véritablement une calamité au moins pour moi et je suis sûr que bien peu de sénateurs ne partagent pas mon avis.

M. King—Si nous ne passons pas un bill général de cette nature nous serons accablés de pétitions et de réclamations spéciales qui absorbent notre temps le plus précieux et entraîneront l'Etat à des dépenses beaucoup plus grandes que si ce bill était une fois adopté.

M. Kenner—Puisque je vois décidément que le Sénat désire en finir avec cette question, je retire ma motion de référer le bill au comité des réclamations.

M. King—Je n'ai pas d'objection à retirer ma motion de référer le bill au comité des améliorations intérieures. Je ne m'oppose pas à l'examen de cette e biens. La propriété est petite et ne as les dépenses qu'il faudrait faire si l'on recourait aux procédures légales ordinaires. Le Sénat a déjà adopté des bills de cette nature, et même à cette session il en a adopté. Je sais que le sénateur est opposé au principe ; je le suis moi-même ; mais le Sénat a déjà mainte et mainte fois sanctionné ce principe, et il serait injuste de faire une exception dans le cas actuel.

J'espère donc qu'il sera adopté par le Sénat.

M. Trudeau J'aimerais à faire preuve de courtoisie envers le sénateur ; mais je ne puis consentir à soutenir un bill au principe duquel le suis opposé. Je ne fais pas d'exception dans ce cas, parce qu'invariablement j'ai été opposé à ces sortes de demandes. Je crois qu'il est très dangereux d'emanciper ainsi les mineurs Plusieurs membres ont été surpris lorsque j'ai dit qu'il n'était pas besoin de faire de loi à cet égard—que déjà il existait une loi générale à ce sujet.

Je suis opposé au principe ; et je ne ferai d'exception en faveur d'aucun bill. Je voterai contre toutes les fois que l'occasion s'en présentera.

Le bill est adopté.

M. Rivers présente les délibérations et les résolutions passées par les citoyens des paroisses de Carroll, de Madison, de Tensas et de Concordia, lesquelles, après lecture, sont référées au comité des améliorations à l'intérieur, des terres marecageuses et des levees.

JEUDI, 7 février 1854.

Le Sénat s'assemble à 11 heures.— 19 sénateurs sont présents.

Un mémoire des citoyens de la Nouvelle-Orléans est présenté en opposition à l'acte qui règle les ventes judiciaires.

M. Kenner— Je demande lecture des noms dont est signé le mémoire. Ce n'est pas souvent que je partage l'opinion des democrates, aussi ai-je un très grand desir de savoir les noms de ceux qui ont signé ce memoire.

Lecture est faite des dits noms.

M. King— Je suis bien aise que les noms aient été lus. Si ces personnes-là sont toutes démocrates il reste donc bien peu de whigs à la Nlle-Orléans.

Sur motion de M. McCay, l'on s'occupe du bill intitulé :

Acte pour pourvoir à la saisie, sur procédures conservatoires, et en vertu d'exécution, de tous jugemens, droits et réclamations en litige.

Section 1. Il est decreté par le Sénat et la Chambre des Representants de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en assemblee générale ; Qu'à dater de la passation de cet acte, tous jugements, réclamations et droits affectant une propriete, soit mobilière ou immobilière, ou en argent, les droits et les creances qui seront revendiques en cour, par voie de pétition, d'opposition ou——— et toutes réclamations sur tableau de distribution, pourront dans tous les cas être saisis en vertu d'un ordre d'execution et pourront l'être sur procédures conservatoires dans le cas où, d'après les lois existantes, ces procedures peuvent avoir lieu.

Sect. 2 Il est de plus decreté &c ; Que toute personne qui aura droit à exécution, soit interlocutoire ou finale, ou qui les aura fait émettre dans aucun des cas prévus par la section qui precède, et sur lesquels saisie devra être faite, devra faire notifier le debiteur par le sherif lorsque le débiteur réside dans la paroisse dans laquelle la saisie est faite comme dans les affaires ordinaires et lorsque le débiteur ne reside pas dans la paroisse, alors le service de la notice sera fait sur un de ses avocats qui apparaissent sur le roll dans l'affaire dans laquelle les droits, la réclamation ou le jugement auraient été saisis.

M. King— Je propose d'amender cet acte en ajoutant le mot « notice » au mot « jugement.

M. McCay—La loi actuelle est ainsi conçue.

M. Lacey— J'espère que le bill sera referé pour être amendé et retouché.

M. McCay—Le bill me semble bien clair sans amendement. Je ne ferai cependant pas d'objection à ce qu'il soit référé puisque le sénateur le désire.

M. Munday— J'insiste sur la motion qu'a faite mon collègue, M Lacey, que le bill soit référé.

Le bill est mis à l'ordre spécial du jour pour mercredi prochain.

Une motion est faite d'établir une malle journalière entre la Nlle-Orléans et Bâton-Rouge.

M. Kenner— Je ne sais si la faible voix de la Loui-siane sera entendue du gouvernement federal, mais, à ma connaissance, la plus petite ville des Etats-Unis a une malle journalière, et Bâton-Rouge, la capitale de l'Etat, n'en a pas.

Je ne fais aucune allusion politique, je ne blâme aucunement l'administration actuelle des postes. Le présent directeur ne fait rien que ce qu'ont fait ceux qui l'ont precédé.

Et pourtant il serait d'absolue nécessité que nous en eussions une.

La résolution est adoptée.

Ordre du jour.

Un acte réglant le debit des liqueurs spiritueuses.

M. McCay—Je suis en faveur des principes généraux du bill, mais je ne puis consentir à ce que chaque ward de la ville décide pour lui-même par son propre vote. D'après ce bill le vote doit être pris annuellement, et déjà nous n'avons que trop d'elections.

M. Munday—M. le président, je désirerais savoir sur quoi sont fondées les objections que l'on fait à ce que les wards decident pour eux-mêmes. Pour moi je voudrais que les wards votent separement pour ce qui les concerne.

M. McCay—Je dirai une de ces objections. Quand un ou plusieurs wards auront refusé d'avoir des cafés, il adviendra que ces établissements s'accumuleront dans les wards qui les auront autorisés et la population qui les fréquente s'y portera aussi. De la sorte, il sera établi une énorme inegalité dans le vote de ces wards. Cette seule raison me semble suffisante.

M. Munday. Il serait peut être mieux d'imprimer le bill et de laisser aux sénateurs le loisir de l'examiner, puisqu'il touche au bonheur de tant de personnes Je dois dire cependant, que je ne comprends ni n'approuve l'objection du sénateur.

M. Palfrey. M. le président, je fais la motion de reconsidérer le vote qui met à l'ordre du jour spécial pour jeudi en huit, le bill conjoint relatif aux hypothèques et de le mettre à l'ordre du jour pour lundi en huit, parce qu'il serait important qu'il y eut séance complète lorsqu'il sera pris en considération et qu'il en sera décidé.

M. King—Je m'oppose à ce renvoi qui a été fait, de même qu'à la dernière session pour la convenance de quelques comités. Si par ce délai on se propose de tuer le bill, je m'y opposerai, et j'insisterai pour que rien ne soit changé.

M. Palfrey—J'informerai le sénateur du fait suivant : les comités ne vont pas à la Nouvelle-Orléans par partie de plaisir. Pour moi, j'aime mieux rester ici et m'occuper des affaires du Sénat.

M. Lacey—Je partage l'opinion du sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans. J'aimerais mieux agir sans les comités, si les attendus devait causer la perte du bill.

M. Munday—Autant que qui que ce soit, je desire me trouver là où me retient mon devoir. Je suis en faveur de l'ajournement pour que le Sénat puisse être au complet. Je suis force de m'absenter avec un comité. Je ne crois pas que tout soit perdu même si le bill était rejete.

Sur motion, l'acte remettant en vigueur et amendant l'article 1116 du Code Civil est pris en considération.

M. King—M. le président, je demande que le Sénat refuse son concours à l'amendement de la Chambre. Il ne doit pas y avoir d'amendements au bill tel tel que le Sénat l'a adopté. Le juge doit avoir un pouvoir discrétionnaire pour la nomination des curateurs.

Les bills suivants sont déposés, sujets à l'appel :

Acte autorisant l'émancipation de l'esclave Angela.

Acte pour venir au secours d'Antoine Joseph Buras.

MERCREDI, 8 février 1854.

L'acte amendant et remettant en vigueur l'acte pour le dessèchement des terres marécageuses ou inondées, est pris en considération.

M. Kenner—Je crois comprendre que ce bill a pour but de couvrir les frais des travaux qui ont été faits l'année dernière.

M. King—Je ne connais pas le détail des travaux pour le paiement desquels on demande $50,000. Il y a un contrat de $12,000 qui a été passé pour la construction d'une grande levée; il y a aussi d'autres travaux qui ont été faits et dont le coût est de $25,000. A cela il faut ajouter les frais d'ingénieurs, &c. Le fonds spécial affecté à cet emploi a été refusé par l'auditeur des comptes publics pour des motifs d'inconstitutionalité.

M. McMurdo—Je suis en faveur de l'affectation.

M. Kenner. Je désire ne voter qu'avec connaissance de cause. Qu'il me soit permis de demander, si dans les $50,000 on fait entrer les $30,000 pour la grande levée ?

M. Munday—Je répondrai au sénateur, qu'une partie de cette somme est destinée a d'importants travaux sur l'Atchafalaya

La 1re section est adoptée.

M. McMurdo— Je demande une reconsidération. Mon but est de protéger le fonds des améliorations intérieures et que ce bill ne crée pas d'appropriations pour de nouveau travaux.

M. Trudeau.—Je prepare un amendement dans ce but.

M. Kenner.—Je n'y ai pas d'objections s'il n'a pas pour but de payer de nouveaux contrats.

Le bill est adopté.

Le bill pour venir au secours de Thomas S. Saunders, est pris en considération.

M. Boatner.—Je pense M. le Président, que puisqu'il y a un fonds des écoles publiques, les paroisses auxquelles ce bill beneficie devraient payer ces réclamations.

M. Moore.—La paroisse de Ste. Marie n'a pas reçu le fonds de $50,000 pour 1847 et ce bill est destiné à payer des services rendus.

M. Boatner.—La phraséologie de l'acte est trop générale. Il devrait être clairement entendu que cette somme va à la paroisse de Ste. Marie seulement.

M. Moore.—Je crois qu'il est parfaitement compréhensible parce que dans le corps de l'acte j'ai pris soin de citer les actes dont il s'agit. Cet argent ne doit pas être pris du fonds des écoles publiques.

Digitized by Google

C'est pour le paiement de services rendus avant que les fonds des écoles publiques ont été créé L'acte de 1848 comprenait les années 1846, 1847 et 1848, et les services ont été rendus en 1848.

M. Moore présente la résolution suivante :

Résolu par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane réunis en assemblée générale, Que les commissaires des terres marécageuses, et leurs ingénieurs seront invités à fournir un état de leurs dépenses contingentes et autres frais encourus pendant leur administration, ainsi que tous les contrats qu'ils pourraient avoir faits et qu'ils n'auraient pas rapportés.

M. Macmurdo fait la motion d'ajouter l'amendement suivant :

« Bien entendu que les dits commissaires n'auront pas le droit de contracter pour la confection de nouvelles levées, excepté en cas de nécessité ou de danger de crevasse. »

M. Rivers propose d'amender le proviso de M. Macmurdo en y ajoutant les mots « pendant la session actuelle de la Législature.

Sur motion de M. Moore et après dispense des règles, cette résolution subit ses différentes lectures et passe.

Sur motion, le secrétaire adjoint va demander le concours de la Chambre à la dite résolution.

Bills présentés.

M. Mc Cay demande la permission de présenter un acte pour amender un acte intitulé « Acte pour fixer l'époque des ventes par les shérifs et les coronors » approuvé le 5 mars 1852.

Sur motion et après dispense des règles, ce bill est lu deux fois et est référé au comité judiciaire.

Message de la Chambre.

Par un message de la Chambre le Sénat est requis de donner son concours à

Un acte pour révoquer les articles 130, 131, 132, 133 et 134 de la constitution, lesquels articles sont relatifs au bureau des travaux publics; et à

Un acte pourvoyant à la révision des statuts de l'Etat qui sont d'un caractère général.

Message à la Chambre.

Le secrétaire adjoint du Sénat informe la Chambre du concours du Sénat aux bills suivants :

Acte pour autoriser le recorder de la paroisse de St-Jacques à nommer un député.

Resolution relative à l'établissement d'une certaine route de poste entre les villes de la Nlle-Orléans, Baton-Rouge, Bayou Sarah et toutes les postes intermédiaires sur le Mississippi.

Acte pour autoriser Joseph E. Vallée a adopter Elisabeth Brunet, comme son héritière légale Acte concernant le paiement par l'Etat, aux propriétaires d'esclaves condamnés à mort ou au pénitentiaire.

Acte pour amender et décréter de nouveau l'article 1116 du Code Civil.

Et il va informer la Chambre que le Sénat a donné son concours aux bills suivants :

Acte pour pourvoir à l'exécution de la peine capitale dans la paroisse d'Orléans.

Résolution invitant nos Sénateurs et nos Représentans au Congrès à user tous leurs efforts pour obtenir la passassion des différentes lois qui sont par devant le congrès ayant pour objet la concession des terres par le Congrès, au chemin de fer de Vicksburg, de Schreveport et du Texas.

Rapports des Comités.

M. Lacey, au nom du comité judiciaire, fait un rapport favorable aux bills suivants :

Acte pour accorder à certains esclaves appartenant à la succession de feu H. R. W. Hill, de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, le privilége de rester dans l'Etat, après leur affranchissement.

Acte relatif aux divorces.

Pétition demandant un changement dans la loi relative au tirage de juri.

Acte pour pourvoir au jugement par juri de certaines affaires de succession.

Acte relatif aux motions pour suspendre les jugements dans les affaires criminelles.

Et il rapporte contre les articles suivants :

Acte relatif aux procédures sur jugements rendus par les juges de paix dans la paroisse d'Orléans.

Et un acte relatif aux personnes qui auront souffert par l'Ouverture du Raccourci.

Le Comité rapporte qu'il n'a pu s'accorder sur ce bill et fait savoir au Sénat sa délibération à ce sujet et rapporte le dit bill au Sénat.

M. Moore, au nom du comite de l'instruction publique, fait le rapport suivant :

Le Comité de l'instruction publique, auquel avait été référé la pétition de Thomas S. Sanders, laquelle a été mûrement considérée par le Comité, qui trouve son compte, dûment certifié et assermenté, d'après les dispositions des actes du 26 mars 1845, du 27 février 1847 et du 16 mars 1848, et qu'il a été employé en qualité d'instituteur d'une école publique dans la paroisse de Sainte-Marie, avant que la loi de l'année 1847, qui établit les écoles publiques gratuites, n'eût été mise en force.

Les actes de 1842 et du 27 février 1847 pourvoient à ce que lorsque le juri de police d'une paroisse aura imposé une taxe, qui ne sera pas moindre de $200 et n'excédera pas $400, alors le trésorier de l'Etat sera autorisé à payer le double de la somme à l'usage des écoles publiques dans la dite paroisse. L'acte du 16 mars 1848, maintient ce principe, mais il pourvoit que le paiement sera fait par l'entremise de l'Auditeur des comptes publics le 4 mai 1847. Une allocation de $50,000 a été faite afin de faire face aux dépenses à encourir, d'après les dispositions des lois de 1845, 1847 et 1848.

Il paraît que la paroisse de Sainte-Marie a tiré du trésor la somme de $800 pour chacune des années 1846 et 1847, et cette portion de l'allocation pour l'année 1848 est encore due à la dite paroisse. Il paraît en outre que le pétitionnaire a reçu sa proportion de l'allocation des années 1846 et 1847, quoique sa réclamation pour cette époque, ainsi qu'il est certifié, est encore due. Il paraît en outre qu'il a reçu la somme de $1010.71, qui lui est due pour ses services pour l'année 1848. Il paraît en outre que de l'appropriation de l'année 1847, il existe une balance de la somme de $241,70, et que le paiement de cette réclamation est basé sur de pareilles réclamations.

En conséquence et en présence de tous ces faits, le Comité est d'opinion que le pétitionnaire a droit à sa réclamation, qui ne devra pas excéder le montant qui aurait été tiré par la paroisse de Sainte-Marie, pour le paiement de telles réclamations, et à cet effet il rapporte un bill.

ORDRE SPECIAL DU JOUR.

Ce jour étant celui fixé pour prendre en considération le bill intitulé :

Acte supplémentaire à la Charte et aux différents actes relatifs à la Banque des Citoyens de la Louisiane, Sur motion, la lecture de ce bill, section par section est reprise, et ce bill passe.

Sur motion, le secretaire adjoint va y demander le concours de la Chambre.

Sur motion de M. McCay et après dispenses des règles, ce bill passe.

JEUDI, 9 février 1854.

M. Wickliffe présente la pétition du nommé Josiah Reams, vétéran de 1814 et 1815.

M. Rivers—Je demande le renvoi du mémoire au comité compétent.

M. Wickliffe—Je désire expliquer pourquoi je demande que la pétition soit mise immédiatement sous les yeux du Sénat. Le pétitionnaire était pensionnaire en vertu de l'acte de 1850. Il avait fait application pour sa pension en vertu de l'acte de 1852, mais avant qu'il eut fourni ses certificats, les fonds disponible avaient disparu en totalité.

La première section du bill est adoptée.

M. Defrees—M. le président, il y a une règle générale pour les pensionnaires, et je préfère que le cas soit renvoyé au comité.

M. Wickliffe—Mais il n'y a pas lieu à examen. Le citoyen dont il s'agit est pensionnaire en vertu de l'acte de 1850.

M. Defrees—Je retire mon opposition.

M. McMurdo—M. le president, je n'étais pas au Sénat quand la question s'est presentée, et je voudrais demander si les pièces à l'appui ont été fournies.

M. Wickliffe—Oui, monsieur.

M. Trudeau—M. le président, je voterai contre le bill et contre tout bill de même nature tant qu'un bill général n'aura pas été adopté.

M. Wickliffe—Il y a maintenant une loi générale.

Le bill est adopté.

M. Lacey introduit un acte pour l'amélioration du Bayou Manchac. Je contesterai, ici dit l'honorable membre, qu'il y ait nécessité de passer cet acte. Les paroisses de la Floride ont été très négligées, pendant qu'on n'oublirait pas les autres portions de l'Etat. Moyennant la faible somme demandée dans le bill, nous pouvons avoir une libre navigation sur un parcours de quatre-vingts milles dans la rivière Amite, et de quinze milles dans le bayou Manchac. Cela permetrrait aux habitants qui vivent sur les bords de ces cours d'eau d'expedier chaque semaine leur sucre, leur coton et tous leurs autres produits. J'ai la confiance que le Sénat ne voudra apporter aucun empêchement à cette amelioration, pour laquelle on ne demande que la faible somme de $3,500. L'ingénieur de l'Etat a dit qu'on avait commis une grande injustice dans cette affaire. Ne souffrez donc pas que la localité dont il s'agit soit plus longtemps privée des secours de l'Etat qui ont été si libéralement accordés aux autres sections du pays.

M. Rivers—Je ne voterai pas pour le bill jusqu'à ce qu'il ait été renvoyé devant le comité des améliorations intérieures et que nous ayons entendu le rapport régulier de ce comité.

M. Lacey—Les faits sont devant le Sénat. Le comité des améliorations intérieures en a pris connaissance, et je ne puis admettre que pour cette minime somme de $3,500 les membres de cette assemblée se départent de leur munificence ordinaire.

M. Rivers.—Mais si M. Lacey est sûr que le comité ne fera pas d'objections, pourquoi s'oppose-t-il à ce que l'affaire lui soit renvoyée. Cela n'occasionnerait qu'un délai d'un jour.

M. Trudeau. Je n'ai pas reçu beaucoup d'éclaircissemens des comités La somme est de faible importance, et je ne vois pas pourquoi on ne voterait pas dès à présent pour le bill.

M Kenner—M. le président j'ai visité les cours d'eau dont il s'agit. Ils sont situés dans mon district; et s'il y a quelque avantage notable à leur amélioration, mes constituants en sauront tirer parti. Mais je dois insister sur le renvoi du bill au comité. Il s'agit de travaux considérables. Il est question d'améliorations au cours d'eau sur la rivière Amite et le bayou Manchac, jusqu'à la plantation de M. Brown, sur le Mississipi. Ce que je demande, c'est un rapport qui nous rassure en nous affirmant que la somme demandée sera pour faire les travaux.

M. Lacey—Les travaux d'améliorations ne s'étendront pas jusqu'au fleuve. Des sondages ont été faits, et l'examen des lieux a démontré qu'il n'y a que des saillies à faire disparaître.

Digitized by Google

M. Moore.—Remarques que vous admettriez ainsi un principe nouveau. Nous avons maintenant un corps d'ingénieurs qui coûte à l'Etat $ 6000 et un matériel de bateaux de sondage et d'explorations de valeur d'environ $ 10,000, et si nous adoptons ce nouveau mode, faisons-le alors d'une manière générale et non pas pour un fait isolé, et, comme conséquence de ce nouveau système, abolissons le corps des ingéniuers. Il y eu une appropriation faite pour cette rivière il y a quelques années, et on n'en a plus guère entendu parler depuis.

M. Rivers.—J'espère que le sénateur de Bâton-Rouge n'interprètera mes paroles comme une opposition au bill Je demande seulement qu'il soit renvoyé au comité. Mais si le sénateur est d'accord avec M. Trudeau pour prétendre que les comites ne jettent aucune lumière sur les questions qui leur sont soumises, je n'insisterai pas sur le renvoi.

M. Trudeau.—M. le président, je suis maintenant en faveur du renvoi, parce que deux des sénateurs, dont les constituants sont intéressés à l'affaire, sont opposés l'un à l'autre.

Le bill est renvoyé eu comité des améliorations intérieures.

M. McCay, demande à introduire une résolutionconjointe, invitant le comité de salubrité à faire une enquête et à dresser un rapport sur les moyens pratiques d'acquérir l'hôpital Luzenberg et de le destiner spécialement aux personnes atteintes de maladies contagieuses, et à être dispensé des règles ordinaires.

M. Moore—Je m'oppose à ce que ce bill soit dispensé des règles.

M. McCay—Je ne demande qu'une résolution d'enquête, remarquez-le. Pour ma part, je serais d'avis qu'on achetât l'hôpital. Les maladies contagieuses, en s'introduisant dans notre hôpital, se répandent dans tout l'établissement. Si l'honorable M. Moore, après avoir réfléchi sur ma demande, persiste dans son opposition, je retirerai mon bill.

M. Moore—il y a deux mots dans ce bill auxquels je fais opposition, ce sont ceux-ci : les moyens pratiques. La chose sera très praticable si on a des milliers de piastres à dépenser.

M. Trudeau—Il vaudrait mieux remplacer ces mots par le mot «nécessité.»

M. McCay—Non. Prenez alors «l'utilité.»

La résolution est adoptée avec cette modification :

« Un acte pour pourvoir à la vacance des places de juges de District» ayant été passé:

M. Moore—M. le président, cette loi est inconstitutionnelle. La Constitution dit :

« Les juges des différentes Cours inférieures seront élus par les votants des Districts ou Paroisses.»

Passez par-dessus ce texte, si vous le pouvez.

M. Wickliffe—L'honorable membre demande, d'une manière passablement emphatique, de passer par dessus ce texte, si nous le pouvons. S'il veut bien prêter l'oreille, il entendra.

M. Moore—Très bien.

M. Wickliffe lit l'article de la Constitution. Vous voyez bien, dit-il, qu'il n'est nullement question dans cet article de la vacance de juges de Districts.

M. Moore—Au contraire, j'y vois que les juges «seront élus.» L'article que l'honorable membre vient de lire ne peut recevoir d'application que lorsqu'il y a vacance, et à moins qu'il n'y ait «dès à présent» vacance, le bill est évidemment inconstitutionnel.

Le Sénat ne prend pas cet acte en considération.

M. Trudeau appelle l'attention du Sénat sur « un acte donnant permission à certains esclaves de H. R W. Hill de rester dans l'Etat après leur émancipation par leur maître. »

M. Trudeau—M. le président, si j'ai bien compris, ce bill émancipe envfron 20 nègres dans mon District, et je désire être présent quand il sera discuté. Pour cette raison je demande qu'il soit porté à l'ordre du jour pour une date determinée.

M. Lacey—Je demanderai à l'honorable membre s'il entend prendre la responsabilité du bill de M. McMurdo en l'absence de ce dernier.

M. Trudeau—Il s'agit ici d'un bill dont l'effet se fera ressentir dans mon District

M. Lacey—Il n'est pas d'usage qu'un membre évoque un bill en l'absence du sénateur qui l'a introduit.

M. Trudeau—Il n'est pas absent ; il est sans doute aux alentours de la chambre du Sénat. Je dis d'ailleurs que je désire être ici quand on mettra ce bill en discussion, mais je désire, bien entendu, que l'honorable membre y soit aussi.

M. Wickliffe—Je demande le renvoi de la discussion à un jour donné. J'ai dix ou douze bills de la même nature, et si j'en appuie un, j'appuierai tous les autres.

M. Martel—M. le président, j'ai environ vingt-cinq bills du même genre, dont je demande l'adoption, si celui-ci est voté.

M. Trudeau—J'en ai dans mon pupitre environ trente-cinq.

La discussion du bill est renvoyée à un autre jour.

L'ordre du jour appelle la prise en considération d'un acte ayant pour but d'exempter des fonctions de jurés les clercs, ouvriers et employés à la Monnaie de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

La prise en considération est prononcée.

M. Trudeau—Je propose un amendement pour exempter des mêmes fonctions tous les officiers publics.

M. McCay—Je demande que l'amendement soit donné par écrit. Je désire savoir s'il exempte les officiers de toutes sortes, tels que généraux, colonels, etc., etc.

M. King—M. le président, je ferai remarquer que presque tous les officiers publics sont déjà exemptés des fonctions dont il s'agit.

Le bill est renvoyé à un comité.

LA RIVIERE AMITE.

M. Griffin—J'ai instructions du comité des améliorations intérieures de faire un rapport favorable au bill relatif au bayou Manchac et à la rivière Amite.

CAUTIONS DE WILLIAM K. STYLES.

Le président pro tem du Sénat soumet la communication suivante.

NLLE-ORLEANS, le 8 février 1854.

A l'honorable président et membre du Sénat de la Louisiane.

Messieurs,

L'acte de la dernière législature pour venir au secours des cautions de William K. Styles, étant un acte d'une nature privée, a été appelé à mon attention jusqu'à ce que j'y aie été appelé par la résolution de votre honorable corps à ce sujet. Immédiatement après la réception de votre résolution, je me suis mis en devoir de mettre à exécution les dispositions de cet acte, et ce matin même j'ai institué, par devant la 3me cour de district de la Nouvelle-Orléans, un procès pour presser la réclamation de l'Etat contre les diverses cautions. Aussitôt que les avis nécessaires seront donnés aux parties, l'affaire sera fixée. Ceci peut occasionner quelques délais, et tant que les parties sont nombreuses et que quelques-unes d'entr'elles sont mortes, il serait nécessaire de s'enquérir de leurs représentants légaux.

J'ai l'honneur d'être,

Votre obéissant serviteur,

Signé, B. J. TAPPAN,
Avocat de district.

RAPPORT DES COMITES.

M. King, au nom du comité des améliorations intérieures des terres marécageuses et des levées, présente les rapports suivants.

Le comité des améliorations à l'intérieur, des terres marécageuses et des levées auquel avait été référé un acte pour améliorer la navigation de l'Atchafalaya.

Le comité accepte le substitut suivant à la première section.

Il est décrété, &c; Que la navigation des rivières Atchafalaya et Courtableau, sera améliorée, à partir de la jonction de cette dernière rivière, avec l'ancien lit du fleuve Mississipi, jusqu'à l'embouchure de cette dernière, en remontant jusqu'à l'embouchure du Petit Diable; et une levée sera construite sur la rive sud de ce dernier, de manière à empêcher le courant d'y porter les bois de dérives de l'Atchafalaya, et qu'un passage de soixante pieds de large sera ouvert dans toute cette étendue.

Ainsi que l'amendement suivant, après le mot « requis », le dernier mot dans la seconde section d'y ajouter, n'excédant pas la somme de quatre mille piastres à la fois.

Le comité étant également divisé sur le mérite du bill, a requis le soussigné de faire un rapport contre le bill.

W. W. KING,
Rapporteur du comité.

Le comité des améliorations à l'intérieur, des terres marécageuses et des levées, auquel avait été référé l'acte pour assurer le droit de préemption aux occupants actuels et aux propriétaires riverains, pour toutes les terres marécageuses et submergées situées dans la profondeur et concédées par le gouvernement général à l'Etat, a l'honneur de rapporter que le comité accepte les amendements suivants :

1o A la 5me ligne de la 1re section, d'effacer les mots "quatre-vingt" et d'insérer les mots "quarante-deux."

2o A la 9me ligne de la 1re section, d'effacer les mots "deux sections", et d'insérer les mots "une section et demie".

3o A la 39me ligne de la 1re section, d'insérer après le mot "tems" les mots "à raison d'une piastre et demie par acre".

4o Après le mot "nul", le dernier mot de la dernière ligne de la première section, d'insérer les mots : "Bien entendu que tout propriétaire riverain qui négligerait d'entrer la terre dans le temps prescrit, ne pourra d'aucune autre manière, entrer ladite terre ou aucune partie d'icelle, avant ou dans les six mois qui suivront le temps dans lequel il devrait le faire".

Le comité a l'honneur de rapporter contre ledit bill.

Signé, W. W. KING,
Rapporteur.

M. Richardson appelle le bill pour venir au secours de Ivy F. Thompson;—il ajoute :

« Je dirai pour l'information du Sénat que M. Thompson a rendu des services comme avocat de district pro-tem par nomination de la Cour. Lorsqu'il a agi dans cette capacité dans la paroisse de Livingston il n'y avait pas d'avocat de District; lorsqu'il a agi dans la paroisse de Ste-Hélène, c'était en remplacement de l'avocat de District qui était malade alors et hors d'état de remplir les devoirs de sa place. Le but de ce bill est tout simplement de le rémunérer de sa peine. Y aurait-il quelque objection à cela ?

M. Taylor.—D'ordinaire les bills de cette nature sont référés au comité des réclamations. Je fais une motion à cet effet.

M. Richardson—Je ferai objection au renvoi à un comité et j'espère que le sénateur retirera sa motion. Le bill a déjà été examiné par un comité de la Chambre, un rapport favorable en a été fait et il a été adopté. Il n'y a donc pas lieu à tous les délais qu'occasionnerait le renvoi à un comité.

M. Taylor—Il importe peu que le bill ait été examiné dans l'autre Chambre. J'insiste sur ma motion.

Le bill passe.

Message à la Chambre.

Le secrétaire du Sénat va demander le concours de la Chambre aux bills suivants:

Acte pour venir au secours de Jonas Reames.

Acte pour pourvoir aux vacances qui surviendraient dans des places de juges de district.

M. Griffin, au nom du comité des améliorations à l'intérieur, auquel avait été référé l'acte pour pourvoir à la navigation du Bayou Manchac et à la rivière Amite, fait un rapport favorable.

Le secrétaire-adjoint rapporte à la Chambre que le président protem du Sénat a signé,

Un acte pour rendre plus efficace les dispositions d'un acte intitulé :

Acte pour améliorer et dessécher les terres marécageuses et inondées qui ont été données à l'Etat de la Louisiane par acte du Congrès, intitulé :

Acte pour aider l'Etat de la Louisiane à dessécher les terres marécageuses qui s'y trouvent, approuvé le 2 mars 1849.

Message de la Chambre.

Le messager spécial de la Chambre informe le Sénat que la Chambre persiste dans son amende au bill du Senat, intitulé :

Acte pour amender et décréter de nouveau l'art. 1,115 du code civil,

Et à cet effet il demande un comité de conférence.

Et que la Chambre a donné son concours aux bills et aux résolutions du Sénat.

Résolution relative à la concession des terres publiques à l'Etat de la Louisiane, pour l'usage des chemins de fer.

Résolution à l'effet de procurer la passassion d'une loi pour une poste journalière entre les villes de la Nouvelle-Orléans, de Bâton-Rouge et de Bayou-Sarah, et toutes les postes intermédiaires sur le fleuve Mississipi.

Et il demande le concours du Sénat aux bills suivants de la Chambre :

Acte pour autoriser M. C. Wilson à affranchir son esclave David.

Acte pour venir au secours des vétérants de 1814 et 1815.

Acte pour autoriser John Cousin, de la paroisse de St-Tammany, à affranchir l'esclave Frances et ses enfans.

Acte pour pourvoir à l'exécution des condamnés à mort dans la paroisse d'Orléans.

Acte pour venir au secours de Samuel Patterson, shérif de la paroisse de Livingston.

Acte pour venir au secours de H. M. Neal.

Résolution requérant nos sénateurs et nos représentants au Congrès, de faire tous leurs efforts à l'effet de procurer la passation des lois actuellement pendantes par devant le Congrès, ayant pour but de concéder les terres par le gouvernement général au chemin de fer de Vicksburg, de Shreveport et du Texas.

Et de rapporter comme enrôlé d'une manière incorrecte, le bill suivant du Sénat :

Acte pour changer l'époque des sessions des cours dans le 6me district judiciaire et de fixer des sessions de juri.

Bills présentés.

M. King obtient la permission de présenter, sans en avoir donné avis préalable, un acte pour amender un acte intitulé :

Acte concernant l'affranchissement des esclaves dans l'Etat, approuvé le 18 mars 1852.

Et un acte pour aider à la colonisation des personnes de couleur libre en Afrique.

Sur motion de M. King, et après dispense des règles, ces bills sont respectivement lus deux fois par leurs titres, et sont référés au comité judiciaire.

Sur motion, ce bill est lu une troisième fois et passé ainsi qu'il est amendé.

M. Taylor, sans en avoir donné avis au préalable, obtient la permission de présenter les bills suivants :

Acte pour autoriser les femmes mariées à contracter et à engager leurs biens paraphernaux et dotaux.

Acte pour abroger les articles 1430 et 1481 du code civil de l'Etat de la Louisiane, et pour abolir la légitime.

Sur motion du même membre, ces bills sont lus deux fois par leurs titres et sont référés au comité judiciaire.

LUNDI, 13 février 1854.

LE BAYOU MANCHAC ET LA RIVIERE AMITE.

M. Lacey—Si on n'y voit pas d'objections, je désirerais que le Sénat voulût bien dispenser des règles ordinaires la mise en discussion d'un bill fort important. Il s'agit d'améliorations à apporter à la navigation du Bayou Manchac et la Rivière Amite. La commission a fait sur ce bill un rapport favorable, et je crois que la majorité du Sénat est aussi en faveur de la proposition.

Le Sénat prononce la dispense demandée.

Voici la teneur de ce bill :

ACTE

Pour améliorer la navigation dans le Bayou Manchac et la Rivière Amite.

Sect. 1. Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane réunis en assemblée générale, Que Thos. Green Davidson, J. West McMain, Dr. F. M. Hereford, Cotton et George S. Lacey, sont nommés commissaires des travaux d'améliorations à faire pour faciliter la navigation dans le Bayou Manchac, depuis son embouchure jusqu'au débarcadère Hereford, et dans la rivière Amite depuis l'embouchure du Bayou Manchac jusqu'au ferry de M. Johnson, et aussi loin que les eaux de la rivière le permettront.

Sect. 2. Pour mettre les dits commissaires à même de faire les démarches qu'ils jugeront à propos de faire dans le but indiqué dans la 1re section du présent acte, la somme de $3,500 leur est allouée sur les fonds des améliorations intérieures, laquelle somme sera payée par le trésorier aux dits commissaires ou à leur ordre, sur un mandat de l'auditeur des comptes publics.

Sect. 3. Ce mandat de paiement ne sera délivré aux commissaires qu'après que ceux-ci auront fourni à l'Auditeur des comptes publics bonne et valable sécurité pour l'emploi de la dite somme au but ci-dessus assigné, c'est-à-dire à l'amélioration du bayou Manchac et de la rivière Amite.

Sect. 4. Cet acte aura plein et entier effet à dater du jour de son adoption.

M. Hodge—Je voudrais demander au sénateur de vouloir bien expliquer l'objet précis du bill.

M. Lacey—J'ai déjà donné toutes les explications nécessaires à ce sujet, quand le bill a été pris en considération par le Sénat, mais je crois que l'honorable membre n'était pas présent ce jour-là. Je vais donc tâcher de l'expliquer de nouveau. Le bill est, comme je l'ai dit, d'une très grande importance, car il s'agit d'améliorer la navigation sur un parcours de cent milles au moins. L'Ingénieur de l'Etat, dans son rapport, constate qu'une grande injustice a été faite à la paroisse de la Floride. Je cite textuellement ses expressions :

« J'avoue franchement que pendant la saison der-» nière la Floride a été entièrement négligée, et » n'a reçu aucun aide sur les ressources de l'Etat. » Il me semble que pour être juste envers cette pa-» roisse, il faudrait que, cette année, on lui donnât » quelque chose de plus que sa part dans les fonds » destinés aux travaux publics. »

Quand j'affirme que les travaux qui sont ordonnés par le bill proposé rendront navigables environ quinze milles du bayou Manchac et 80 milles de la rivière Amite, je suis sûr de ne rencontrer aucune objection, particulièrement si on réfléchit à l'injustice qui a été commise envers cette portion de l'Etat. Cette section n'a rien eu sur les fonds de l'Etat. Elle a vu les deniers publics employés pour l'amélioration de presque toutes les autres paroisses, et elle a souffert longtemps et en silence, malgré la nature pressante de ses besoins. Cette paroisse a besoin d'un packet régulier qui porte ses produits au marché. Cela serait d'un profit incalculable pour les planteurs et tendrait à stimuler et à développer l'industrie déjà florissante de cette portion de l'Etat.

Il vaut mieux que nous votions ce bill et que nous fassions l'appropriation demandée que de mettre l'Etat dans la nécessité d'entreprendre lui-même ces travaux. Je suis sûr que l'ouvrage sera, en fin de compte, fait à bien meilleur marché et beaucoup mieux. A l'appui de ce que j'avance, je dirai qu'il y a quelques années, l'Etat essaya de faire quelque chose pour ces contrées. Dans le cours des travaux, un grand nombre d'arbres furent abattus ou déracinés et jetés avec un amas de décombres dans le cours d'eau et en obstruèrent le lit, qui depuis n'a jamais été débarrassé. En négligeant de réparer ce dommage, l'Etat a commis une véritable injustice, dont il doit aujourd'hui indemniser cette localité, s'il veut se conformer aux règles communes de l'équité.

La 3me section du bill oblige les commissaires à fournir caution pour assurer le bon emploi des fonds qui leur seront versés. C'est pourquoi il ne peut pas y avoir le moindre danger que la somme puisse être détournée du but de l'allocation. Maintenant, mon sieur, il ne s'agit ici que d'une somme en elle-même fort minime. Elle est minime surtout si on considère l'importance de l'étendue des travaux dont elle doit aider l'accomplissement, et surtout si on la compare aux sommes considérables qui ont été allouées avec tant de prodigalité pour d'autres portions de l'Etat. J'espère que le Sénat adoptera le bill et fera ainsi justice à une section, dont les besoins et les droits ont été si longtemps oubliés. Jusqu'à ce jour, les deniers de l'Etat ont été plus particulièrement employés au profit de la partie Nord-Est de la Louisiane ou autres points. La section pour laquelle j'appelle votre justice n'a pas été secourue, et je demande aujourd'hui qu'une faible somme soit appropriée pour un travail qu'on peut considérer comme important et très avantageux au pays.

M. Hodge—Je ne suis pas préparé à voter pour ce bill, malgre tout ce que vient de dire en sa faveur, l'honorable sénateur d'Est-Bâton-Rouge. En premier lieu, je crois que la méthode proposée pour la confection du travail est mauvaise. C'est par l'Etat que ce travail doit être fait, sous la direction de l'Ingénieur de l'Etat. Je ne disconviens pas de ce que l'honorable membre a dit de l'injustice commise l'année dernière envers cette portion du pays. J'accepte parfaitement comme exactes, les paroles de l'Ingenieur de l'Etat sur ce point. Mais, mon impression est, que précédemment, cette localité a reçu de l'Etat, tout autant que les autres parties de la Louisiane.

Je ne prétends pas dire que des secours publics n'aient pas été accordés à la partie Nord-Ouest de la Louisiane, mais s'il en a été donné, je puis affirmer que rétultat de ces travaux n'a pas été bien merveilleux, car cette portion de l'Etat n'en a pas jusqu'à présent tiré un grand profit apparent. D'un autre côté, je ne me rappelle pas que l'ingénieur de l'Etat ait dit que les travaux faits dans la paroisse de la Foride ait eu des résultats dommageables. L'honorable membre admet que des travaux ont déjà été faits dans cette localité. L'ingénieur, dans son rapport, exprime son désir et son intention de les compléter. Je pense qu'il est justement l'officier compétent pour les terminer, et que nous n'avons pas à intervenir dans cette affaire. Par ces motifs je demande que l'Etat continue à être chargé des travaux et je fais opposition à ce qu'aucune appropriation soit faite pour cet objet. Je voterai certainement contre le bill.

M De Russy—Je voudrais inviter l'honorable membre qui a introduit ce bill à consentir plutôt à ce que la discussion en soit remise à un autre jour. La commission a fait un rapport défavorable sur cette motion, par le motif que les fonds des améliorations intérieures sont en ce moment trop épuisés pour qu'il puisse être prélevé maintenant sur cette caisse un pareil prélèvement, qu'il y avait beaucoup de demandes de cette nature et qu'il ne pouvait être donné satisfaction à toutes. Pour ma part, je ne considère que l'amélioration demandée par le bill sera d'un grand avantage pour une grande portion de l'Etat, et conséquemment doit être faite.

Mais il y a aussi d'autres demandes de la même nature, peut-être plus importantes encore, et auxquelles il doit être également fait droit. Le président de la commission n'est pas à son banc. Je crois que nous ferions mieux d'attendre son retour avant de voter sur ce bill.

M. Richardson—Ne viens-je pas d'entendre dire à l'honorable membre que la commission avait fait un rapport defavorable sur ce bill.

M. de Russy—Oui, monsieur.

M. Richardson— Je suis alors dans l'obligation de faire savoir à M. de Russy qu'il est dans une erreur complète. La commission a fait au contraire un rapport favorable sur la demande.

M de Russy—J'étais sous l'impression que la commission était divisée et que le président avait voté contre le bill.

M. Richardson—C'est une nouvelle erreur de la part de l'honorable membre. La commission, comme je l'ai dit déjà, s'est prononcée favorablement sur le projet. Le bill sur lequel elle a emis un jugement défavorable est celui présenté par le sénateur de St-Landry (M. Martel).

M. Hodge—Je demanderai pourquoi la commission a fait un rapport favorable sur l'un et défavorable sur l'autre.

M. Richardson—C'est à la commission qu'il faut vous adresser pour vous faire expliquer ce point.

M. Moore— Je viens demander qu'on dépose le bill sur le bureau pour figurer dans un autre ordre du jour. Je n'ai pas de doute que si le senat était au complet une grande majorité serait acquise au projet et qu'il serait adopté. Néanmoins, je n'aimerais pas à en voir precipiter le vote en ce moment.

M. Lacey—J'espère que le sénateur n'insistera pas sur sa motion. Il y a en ce moment au Sénat une majorité prononcée pour le bill, et j'aimerais mieux qu'on votât immédiatement. L'allocation demandée n'est pas élevée, et on peut l'accorder pour un but dont l'importance a été démontrée par le rapport favorable de la commission des améliorations intérieures.

M. Moore—La raison pour laquelle je fais cette motion est qu'il y a un bill de la même nature devant la commission, pour l'amélioration de l'Atchafalaya. Quelques membres de cette commission ont voté d'une manière différente sur les deux bills, chose que j'avoue ne pouvoir comprendre, attendu que les deux bills sont absolument identiques et qu'ils semblaient devoir être soumis à la même règle et subir le même destin. Il n'y a pas de raison pour que l'Atchafalaya soit mis hors la loi commune. Le bill à ce sujet avait été introduit longtemps auparavant celui dont s'occupe aujourd'hui le Sénat, et il a droit aussi à ne pas être mis en oubli. Si l'un des deux mérite une préférence, c'est certainement le dernier. Mais ce qui ne sera certainement pas admis par le Sénat, c'est l'adoption de l'un et le rejet de l'autre. Les motifs qui portent à accueillir le premier doivent nécessairement faire accepter le second, puisqu'il y a similitude. Vous ne pouvez pas, sans injustice, vous prononcer d'une façon pour l'un, et d'une autre façon pour l'autre. Quant à moi, je soutiens le bill qui nous est actuellement soumis, par la même raison qui me rend favorable à l'autre. Je les appuierai tous les deux et j'espère que le Sénat les votera l'un et l'autre.

M. Lacey—Je demanderai de nouveau la permission d'exprimer l'espoir que l'honorable membre ne persistera pas dans la motion, car je crois qu'elle serait la ruine de ce bill, Je suis moi-même partisan du bill de l'Atchafalaya auquel il prend un si vif intérêt, et je le soutiendrai de mon vote quand il sera soumis au Sénat. Je n'épargnerai rien pour assurer son passage, je le proclame dès à présent. Mais cela ne m'empêche pas de demander un vote immédiat sur le bill actuellement en discussion. Il doit être adopté dès à présent. Je ne vois aucune raison plausible d'en différer le vote. Et j'espère que l'honorable membre fera pour mon bill ce que je suis décidé à faire pour le sien.

Sur motion de M. Lacey, on procède à la lecture du bill.

La première section est adoptée.

Sur la seconde section, M. Hodge demande que l'on compte les voix pour et contre.

Se prononcent pour l'adoption :

Honorable R. C. Wickliffe, président temporaire, Messieurs Boatner, De Russy, Defreese, Evans, Hebert, Lacey, McCay, Munday, Martel, Moore, Pellerin, Ryan, et Rivers, en tout 17.

Et contre l'adoption :

M. Lawes est excusé.

Messieurs Dugue et Hodge. Total 2.

M. Moore—Je crois que l'honorable membre ferait mieux de consentir à la remise du vote général sur le bill. Il passerait indubitablement.

M. Lacey—Je m'oppose de nouveau à toute remise. Le moment me paraît au contraire très opportun pour le vote. Le bill est soumis au Sénat. C'est maintenant qu'il faut décider de son sort, l'accepter ou le rejeter, comme on voudra. Mais s'il est rejeté, que mes collègues prennent garde à leur bill de l'Atchafalaya.

M. Moore.—M. Lacey semble s'offenser de ce que j'ai demandé la remise du bill, quoique j'aie aussi mes dispositions favorables en ce qui le concerne. Je répète que je suis en faveur du bill. Je l'ai appuyé dans la commission, et je le soutiendrai encore quand le moment du vote sera venu. Mais je ne voudrais pas qu'on pressât ce vote, parce que je ne vois pas de motif pour qu'on le sépare de cet autre bill auquel je prends un si profond intérêt, et que mon ami est que le Sénat doit prononcer sur tous deux en même temps.

M. MacCay—Je demande que le bill soit mis à l'ordre du jour de demain.

Cette motion est rejetée.

Le Sénat n'étant pas en quorum, le sergent d'armes est envoyé à la recherche des membres absents.

Sur motion de M. McCay, le secrétaire fait l'appel nominal des sénateurs.

17 membres répondent à l'appel de leurs noms. Ce sont M. R. C. Wickliffe, président temporaire, au fauteuil, et MM. Boatner, De Russy, Defreese, Dupré, Evans, Hodge, Hebert, Lacey, Lawes, McCay, Munday, Martel, Moore, Pellerin, Ryan et Richardson

Sur motion de M. Moore de renvoyer la delibération à un autre jour, M. Lacey demande que l'on vote par oui et non.

Se prononcent pour le renvoi :

Le président R. C. Wickliffe, et MM. Dupré, Hodge, Lawes, McCay, Moore.—En tout, 6.

Et contre le renvoi :

MM. Boatner, de Russy, Defrees, Evans, Hébert, Lacey, Munday, Martel, Pellerin, Ryan et Richardson—En tout, 11.

En conséquence, la délibération sur le bill continue.

Sur motion de M. Larcey d'adopter la 2de section, M. Hodge demande le vote par oui et non.

Pendant qu'on procède à ce vote, le Sénat, sur le consentement de M. Lacey, décide que la suite de la délibération sur le bill sera renvoyée à demain et inscrite spécialement à l'ordre du jour.

L'ILE DE CUBE.

EDUCATION PUBLIQUE.

M. Evans—Conformément à l'avis préalable que j'en ai donné, j'introduirai ici un bill pour pourvoir à l'amélioration de notre système d'éducation publique. Ce qui m'a porté à présenter ce projet, ce sont les communications multiples que j'ai reçues sur la nécessité de fonder plusieurs collèges. Je n'ai pas d'espoir d'obtenir aucune appropriation spéciale pour fonder des collèges dans tel ou tels endroits déterminés; c'est pourquoi j'ai donné à ce bill la forme d'une loi générale. Je désirerais en donner lecture au Sénat, pour que mes collègues comprennent bien quelle sorte de résolution je demande; je demande qu'on le renvoie à la commission d'éducation publique.

Le bill est lu et renvoyé à la dite commission.

MARDI, 14 février 1854.

MERCREDI, 15 février 1854.

Le Bayou Manchac et la rivière Amite.

M. Lacey appelle la mise en discussion du bill intitulé :

« Acte pour améliorer la navigation sur le bayou Manchac et la rivière Amite. »

M. Hodge—Je suis opposé à ce bill, comme le sait l'hon. M. Lacey ; c'est pourquoi je ne suis pas d'avis qu'il soit appelé avant son tour regulier. Je n'aimerais pas à faire à ce bill une opposition qui pût paraître factieuse, mais étant opposé au bill, en principe, il est tout naturel que je ne lui accorde pas une dispense de faveur.

Le Sénat se prononce pour la suspension des règles.

M. Hodge—Puisque le bill a été dispensé des formalités et règles ordinaires, et que le Senat est appelé dès à present à délibérer sur la question, je demanderai à faire quelques remarques explicatives sur les raisons qui motivent mon opposition à ce bill. Et d'abord, la première chose que je combats, c'est cette facilité donnée aux commissaires de se faire donner, sur leur propre demande, l'appropriation de $3,500 sur le Trésor

En second lieu, le bill ne règle nullement la manière dont les travaux devront être faits, et laisse le tout au contraire à la libre disposition des commissaires. La seule restriction que je trouve dans cet acte, est que les commissaires devront fournir sécurité pour garantir que les fonds versés par le trésor seront employés au but que le bill a en vue d'atteindre.

Ainsi, d'une part, les commissaires peuvent se faire payer tout d'une fois la totalité de l'allocation, tandis que, d'un autre côté, le bill ne fixe aucun délai pour l'accomplissement ou l'achèvement des travaux. Il n'y a pas de délai spécifié, et cependant ils peuvent demander l'argent quand et comme bon leur semblera, sauf ensuite à l'employer, quand ils le trouveront à propos, au but dont il s'agit. Certes, il n'entre pas dans ma pensée de mettre ici en question le caractère des commissaires, ni de jeter le moindre doute sur leurs intentions. Ils peuvent être, au contraire, et sont très certainement, des hommes parfaitement honorables. Mais il n'en est pas moins vrai qu'aux termes de la loi qu'on vous propose de voter, ils peuvent toucher l'argent, et puis ensuite le conserver entre leurs mains aussi longtemps qu'ils le trouveront à leur convenance. C'est sous ce point de vue que le bill est sujet à opposition.

On peut faire à cet acte une autre objection encore. C'est qu'il crée un office jusqu'alors inconnu à la loi, et étranger au système adopté par l'Etat pour les améliorations interieures. Nous avons déjà un officier dont les fonctions spéciales sont justement de diriger les travaux de cette nature, et qui, sous tous les rapports, est l'homme le plus propre à la chose.

Ne donnons-nous pas à notre ingénieur d'Etat $3,500 par an pour exécuter précisément les travaux que le bill propose de transferer à des commissaires? N'avons-nous pas plusieurs steamboats et plus de cent nègres pour cette destination spéciale, et qui ne laissent pas de coûter à l'Etat des sommes considérables ? L'ingénieur de l'Etat n'est-il pas capable d'exécuter ce travail ? N'a-t-il pas déjà exprimé sa bonne volonté et son désir de le faire ? Sur quel motif plausible l'honorable membre se fonde-t-il donc pour demander que $3,500 soient diverties des fonds des améliorations intérieures, pour être placées entre les mains de parties irresponsables ? Puisque nous avons un officier dont la capacité n'est pas mise en question, et à qui nous payons de forts émoluments pour diriger nos améliorations intérieures, pourquoi donc ferions-nous une exception pour le cas qui nous est soumis ? L'Etat a déjà acheté des nègres et des steamboats ; utilisons les donc sous la direction de l'officier compétent.

La seule base sur laquelle, en apparence du moins, on semble s'appuyer pour faire la demande dont il s'agit, c'est la déclaration faite par l'ingénieur que « pendant la saison dernière il n'a pas été fait autant de travaux dans ce district que dans beaucoup d'autres. » Mais il ne faut pas oublier que cet officier a ajouté que son intention formelle était de faire le travail cet été. Les commissaires peuvent-ils le faire dans le même espace de temps ? Je pense qu'il leur en faudra beaucoup plus seulement pour faire faire les études et pour arrêter un plan des travaux à exécuter.

Maintenant, Messieurs, je voudrais appeler pour un moment l'attention du Sénat sur les effets de ce mode de legislation. Si je ne pouvais pas obtenir la passation d'un bill au moyen de son propre mérite, si ses qualités intrinsèques ne le recommandaient pas à la faveur du Sénat, je le dis hautement, je n'essaierais pas de peser sur la conscience de mes collègues et de les forcer à donner un vote par la menace de faire par mon opposition échouer d'autres mesures dont l'adoption leur semblerait utile.

Quand ce bill était devant le Sénat, l'autre jour, le senateur d'Est-Bâton-Rouge (M. Lacey) a dit, d'une façon toute menaçante, à un respectable sénateur assis à ma gauche, qu'il ne soutiendrait un bill auquel ce dernier prenait vif intérêt qu'à la condition que ce même sénateur (M. Moore) donnerait son appui au bill qui était alors devant le Sénat. C'est là messieurs, une tendance on ne peut plus déplorable. C'est faire qu'un bill qui sera trouvé bon en fasse adopter un qui serait trouvé mauvais, et c'est là un système qui tend à détruire l'impartialité de notre jugement et la rectitude de notre action. Pour ma part, je combattrai de tous mes efforts et je le signalerai hautement à l'opinion publique toutes les fois que l'occasion s'en présentera. Je demande à M. Lacey si c'est là une manière de procéder vraiment digne et loyale. N'a-t-il pas laissé voir la faiblesse de son bill et sa defectuosité quand il a menacé d'entraîner avec lui dans sa défaite le bill concernant les travaux d'améliorations à faire dans l'Atchafalaya ? Le sénateur qui est à ma gauche [M. Moore] desire obtenir une allocation de $15,000 pour l'amélioration de l'Atchafalaya. Je pourrais, avec autant de raison, demander une appropriation de $100,000 pour la Rivière Rouge. L'importance relative de cette rivière justifierait et au-delà une pareille demande. Je pro-l'honorable membre de méditer sur les conséquences de ce mode de législation. Cet amalgame et cette solidarité des votes ne pourraient qu'amener les plus funestes conséquences. C'est là une voie fausse et dans laquelle le Sénat ne souffrira pas qu'on essaie de l'engager.

Chaque bill doit être accepté ou rejeté en dehors de toute consideration étrangère et seulement sur l'appréciation de ses propres mérites ou de ses propres défectuosités. Ce n'est que de cette manière que nous pouvons espérer de voter des lois impartiales. J'ai eu avec l'ingénieur de l'Etat sur la matière qui nous occupe une conversation particulière. Il m'a positivement dit qu'il ferait les travaux cet été, et qu'il en ferait autant en quatre semaines que les commissaires en peuvent faire avec les $3,500 que le bill propose d'approprier. Il est vrai, comme l'a dit M. Lacey, que la somme demandée est peu considerable, mais c'est de petites sommes que se composent les grosses. Si nous accueillons ce bill, où nous arrêterons-nous? A quel résultat arriverons-nous? Qui peut dire combien de bills de la même nature nous serons forcés d'accueillir sous peine d'être accusés de partialite et de favoritisme? On nous dit que les travaux sont nécessaires, et que pour ce motif nous devons voter le bill. Mais, de cette façon, on peut, de tous les points de l'Etat, nous demander de semblables appropriations pour des travaux d'amélioration qu'on nous dira nécessaires.

Je répète, messieurs, que ce système, si nous y entrions une fois, nous conduirait aux plus fâcheux résultats. Je suis l'ennemi d'une pareille tendance, et je la combattrai sans cesse de tout mon pouvoir. Encore une fois, si l'importance et la nécessité des travaux étaient une consideration suffisante à elle seule pour l'adoption du bill, je pourrais, avec non moins de raison, demander $100,000 pour la Rivière Rouge, dont l'importance est bien autrement grande pour les intérêts de l'Etat.

Et chaque section aurait le même choix de venir demander des appropriations pour des besoins locaux. Et comment pourrions-nous les leur refuser, quand nous aurions établi le précédent par l'adoption de ce bill? Nous ne le pourrions pas. Force nous serait d'accueillir tous les bills de cette nature qui pourraient nous être présentés, et la conséquence d'un pareil mode de procéder serait l'annihilation de notre système d'améliorations intérieures et l'épuisement du Fonds qui leur est destiné. Nous pourrions alors, avec bien plus de raison et de logique, vendre nos bateaux et nos nègres, et remercier notre ingénieur, car ils nous deviendraient inutiles après que nous aurions épuisé le Fonds général en appropriations particulières.

Telle serait pourtant, messieurs, l'inévitable conséquence de notre imprudence, si nous avions le malheur de nous aventurer sur cette mer pleine de périls et de hasards où l'on veut nous pousser. J'appelle l'attention sérieuse du Sénat sur ces considérations. Croyez bien que je ne suis, en cette affaire, conduit par aucun esprit de jalousie locale. Tout au contraire, je désire sincèrement que toutes les parties de l'Etat soient améliorées avec une égale sollicitude de la part des officiers. Mais je demande que toutes ces améliorations soient faites de la manière la plus convenable, et pour cela il ne faut pas qu'elles soient exécutées tantôt d'une façon et tantôt d'une autre, mais il est nécessaire qu'elles soient toutes soumises à une méthode, à une règle, au système enfin que nous avons adopté comme nous paraissant le plus efficace et le plus praticable.

M. Lacey—J'avais espéré, M. le président, qu'un bill comme celui-ci, si juste quand on l'examine, et si important aux intérêts et à la prospérité d'une grande portion de l'Etat, aurait un droit assuré à la consideration du Sénat. Pour soutenir un pareil bill, il n'est pas besoin d'employer des moyens detournés. Le membre qui descend de cette tribune s'est tout-à-fait mépris sur mes intentions et a mal compris mes paroles, en supposant que je voulais avoir recours, pour faire accueillir le bill, à de semblables moyens. Encore une fois, j'espère qu'il s'est trompé aussi en supposant que pour être adopté, le bill eût besoin d'être soutenu par des moyens factices. Et je pense, messieurs les sénateurs, que pas une parole n'est sortie de ma bouche qui puisse justifier une telle accusation. L'honorable membre a très mal compris mes observations. J'ai dit que si quelques-uns de mes collègues désiraient l'adoption d'autres bills de la même nature que celui-ci, fondés sur le même principe et s'appuyant sur les mêmes motifs pour invoquer votre consideration, et qu'ils fissent opposition à ma demande, ils ne pouvaient pas raisonnablement s'attendre à ce que je donnâsse mon appui à des demandes du même genre. Et pourquoi n'aurais-je pas dit cela? Pourquoi viendrait-on me demander de soutenir des bills en tout semblables à celui-ci, après que le Sénat aurait décidé le principe par le rejet du mien? Si ces sénateurs me refusent même la faveur vulgaire de laisser discuter franchement mon bill devant le Sénat, pourquoi serais-je tenu envers eux à plus de courtoisie?

C'est là la seule argumentation que j'aie faite. Je ne cherche pas à rattacher ce bill à un autre. Je dis que le sénateur me comprend mieux maintenant, et je crois qu'il ne trouvera rien à reprendre à mes paroles si je lui dis que, quelque soit le résultat du vote du Sénat sur mon bill, la décision du Sénat n'aura aucun effet sur mon propre vote à l'egard de l'autre bill. J'avais espéré que mon bill passerait à la faveur de son propre mérite, qu'on le discuterait à fond et de bonne foi devant cette assemblée, et que le Sénat lui prêterait l'attention à laquelle son importance lui donne droit. Cette importance n'est-elle donc pas visible à première vue! N'est-elle donc pas éclatante aux yeux de tous ceux qui voudront réfléchir un moment sur le but que la proposition veut atteindre? Je demande si la nécessité du bill n'est pas assez clairement démontrée, quand je fais voir qu'il s'agit de rendre navigables plus de cent milles de parcours, qui sont en ce moment fermés à tous débouchés et à toutes communications, et que les travaux réglés par le bill doivent ouvrir les portes du marché à une population industrieuse et considérable! Les honorables membres du Sénat ne sont-ils pas convaincus de l'opportunité du bill quand ils voient, comme cela résulte clairement du rapport de l'ingénieur de l'Etat lui-même, que ce bill ne fait que demander justice pour une section de l'Etat qui n'a pas été traitée avec la même libéralité que toutes les autres? Je répète, Messieurs, que je n'ai nullement l'intention de faire adopter ce bill par des moyens autres que ceux que pourrait avouer l'homme le plus loyal et le plus sincère. Je ne veux pas favoriser son adoption par la menace de représailles.

Je répudie de pareilles influences. Confiant dans la seule force que ce bill tire de lui-même, je demande seulement que le Sénat le discute franchement et impartialement. J'en ai indiqué les avantages; j'ai démontré que son adoption ne serait qu'un acte de justice envers une section de l'Etat qui a été victime d'un abandon immérité. Je demande le passage de ce bill, en ne m'appuyant que sur la propre valeur qu'il tire de lui-même, et je répudie toute autre influence avec autant d'indignation que le sénateur de Caddo. Non, je n'ai pas l'intention de me servir de la menace comme d'un moyen d'appui, et ma conduite au moment de la discussion de toute autre mesure ne sera pas affectée par le sort de celle-ci.

Loin de moi toute pensée semblable. Je ne demande le vote du bill par le Sénat, que parce que je le crois bon par lui-même, intrinsèquement, et en dehors de toute consideration étrangère. J'espère qu'il sera adopté à une majorité suffisante pour qu'il soit envoyé à l'autre Chambre sous le patronage de notre approbation bien marquée. J'ai la confiance qu'à la Chambre des Représentants il trouvera une majorité aussi nombreuse qu'au sein même du Sénat. C'est une proposition bonne en elle-même, équitable, importante. Quand des considérations de bonne administration et d'equité se trouvent unies en faveur d'un bill, il doit necessairement passer. Je demande donc que nous le votions sans plus de retard.

M. Moore—Les observations qu'a fait entendre le sénateur de Caddo (M. Hodge), rendent nécessaire une explication de ma part, et j'ose espérer que le Sénat me fera la faveur de m'écouter pendant quelques instants. J'ai soutenu ce bill devant la commission, parce que j'étais convaincu que c'était la meilleure manière d'assurer l'accomplissement des travaux dont il s'agit dans ce bill. Je ne pouvais pas, en bonne conscience, y faire opposition quand j'en soutiens moi-même un, basé précisément sur le même principe, et relatif à une autre section de l'Etat, lequel est présenté par le sénateur de St-Landry (M. Dupré). Je sais que cette résolution intéresse une grande portion de l'Etat. Elle a pour but de régler l'amélioration d'un cours d'eau qui est la seule route qui relie au Mississipi les habitants d'une grande et productive section du pays.

Cette section a été entièrement négligée pendant ces dix dernières années. On n'a rien fait pour améliorer ce cours d'eau. En vain les habitants de cette portion du pays ont-ils attendu que l'ingénieur de l'Etat prit l'initiative dans cette affaire. Non seulement rien n'a été fait; mais il n'y a même rien qui indique que quelque chose doive être fait. Ce cours d'eau est comme je l'ai dit, la seule voie de communication qu'aient avec le Mississipi les habitants de cette portion de l'Etat. C'est le canal par lequel passent, pour être conduits au marché, tous les produits de St-Landry, des Avoyelles, de Calcasieu, de St-Martin et de plusieurs autres riches et florissantes paroisses.

Ces paroisses produisent, chaque année, plus de cent mille boucauts de sucre et environ quarante mille balles de coton. Pendant la saison des eaux basses, cette immense accumulation de produits est obligée de rester là, au grand dommage des habitants. C'est justement ce qui a lieu au moment où je vous parle. Les eaux sont très basses, et les planteurs sont réduits à l'expectative. L'ingénieur de l'Etat ne peut pas, même avec les fonds dont il dispose, arriver à un résultat suffisant. C'est pourquoi l'appropriation demandée doit être accordée. La même cause a motivé l'introduction du bill proposé par le sénateur de St-Landry (M. Dupré).

Je me crois en conséquence obligé de soutenir le bill maintenant en discussion, parce qu'il est fondé sur le même principe que l'autre. Je ferai remarquer aussi que je ne suis pas de ceux qui se laissent intimider par des menaces. Je ne me suis jamais laissé influencer par de pareils motifs, et je ne céderai jamais à de telles considérations. Je donnerai mon vote comme il convient à un sénateur de la Louisiane, c'est-à-dire, un vote dicté par d'honnêtes convictions.

M. Hodge—Si le Sénat veut me le permettre, je vais lui donner lecture du passage du rapport de l'ingénieur de l'Etat, auquel il a été fait allusion dans le cours de ces débats :

« J'avouerai franchement que pendant la session dernière, les paroisses des Florides ont été entièrement négligées et n'ont eu aucune part dans les secours de l'Etat. L'équité me semble demander que cette année elles reçoivent quelques choses de plus que leur part dans les travaux publics.

» A moins que les Chambres n'imposent une autre direction à mes travaux, je ferai faire des études de manière à bien savoir à quels endroits je puis faire travailler pour opérer le plus de bien dans le moins de temps, et alors je ferai faire les travaux au moment opportun. »

En addition à ceci, je ferai remarquer que je suis allé voir M. Morse, l'ingénieur de l'Etat, et que j'ai conféré avec lui sur cette affaire. Il m'a dit que dans quelques semaines il pourrait envoyer des bateaux sur les lieux et faire commencer les travaux, et de plus il a ajouté, comme j'ai déjà eu l'honneur de le dire au Sénat, que dans sa pensée, il croyait pouvoir faire exécuter autant dans cette saison que les commissaires en pourraient faire avec la totalité de l'appropriation de $3,500. Il est vrai que cette somme est prise sur les fonds des améliorations intérieures, mais n'oublions pas que l'ingénieur est l'homme chargé de faire l'emploi de ces fonds.

Le Sénat décide que le bill est admis à une seconde lecture.

M. Hodge—Je voudrais demander au sénateur d'Est-Bâton-Rouge (M. Lacey) s'il ne pense pas sérieusement que cet office soit entièrement inconnu à la constitution, et, si cela est vrai, pouvons-nous adopter ce bill et voter que l'argent de l'Etat soit mis dans la poche de M. Thomas Green Davidson, l'un des membres de l'autre Chambre ? Je pose simplement cette question pour connaître l'opinion de l'honorable membre sur ce sujet.

Au moment du vote définitif, le Sénat n'est pas en quorum.

M. Ryan demande et obtient la permission d'introduire un bill pour venir au secours de John R. Elizee, des Rapides, et de Marie F. Ledoux, sa femme.

M. Ryan—La raison pour laquelle je réclame la bienveillance du Sénat, pour l'introduction de ce bill dans cette forme, c'est qu'il est d'une nature entièrement locale. Il ne concerne uniquement que M. Elizee et sa femme. Le citoyen dont je parle est connu de beaucoup de membres du Sénat et est un de mes constituants. Le bill, après examen, sera certainement trouvé juste en tous points. Il se borne à donner aux parties un droit dont elles jouissaient avant leur mariage, celui de faire les conventions qu'elles jugeront à propos de faire au sujet de la communauté de gains et acquêts qui est établie par nos lois. On pourra dire qu'en passant ce bill nous faisons une exception à la loi générale de l'Etat et que ce serait une dérogation au système de politique intérieure. Mais on devra se rappeler qu'avant 1808 les parties avaient ce droit. Elles l'ont maintenant sous l'empire des lois d'Espagne, et dans les colonies où les lois de ce dernier pays sont en vigueur. Je ne vois donc aucune raison de refuser de faire droit à leur demande. Le caractère honorable du pétitionnaire et leur position distinguée dans notre société, nous sont un sûr garant qu'en leur octroyant ce qu'ils demandent nous ne pouvons tomber dans une erreur préjudiciable à qui que ce soit, ne céder à des motifs qui ne soient pas en tout point parfaitement honorables. J'espère que le Sénat accueillera favorablement ce bill. Il est d'un caractère tellement local et si limité dans son application que personne ne peut y trouver l'ombre d'une plaiute ou d'un reproche.

M. Hodge—Je demande le renvoi de ce bill à une commission judiciaire.

Le renvoi est prononcé.

M. Dupré demande et obtient la faculté d'introduire, sans autre avis préalable, un acte pour autoriser Donato Martin, exécuteur de Donato Martin, décédé, à émanciper certains esclaves.

M. Defrees—J'espère que l'hon. membre n'insistera pas sur sa demande d'un vote immédiat du bill. Le Sénat n'est pas au complet. Beaucoup de nos collègues ne sont pas à leurs bancs, et je préférerais que nous attendissions leur présence pour prendre une décision sur un bill de cette nature. Pour ma part, je voterai certainement contre ce bill, si on en demande l'adoption immédiate. L'introduction en est faite à un moment inopportun, pour ne rien dire de plus. Peut-être l'hon. membre regarde-t-il comme propice à son passage le moment où un grand nombre de siéges sont vacants, mais, lui et moi, nous différons d'opinion sur ce point. Je pense qu'il conviendra avec moi que ce serait peut-être manquer de justice envers ceux de nos collègues qui sont absents, que de choisir le moment où ils ne sont pas ici pour prendre une décision précipitée sur un bill exceptionnel. Nous sommes à peine en quorum, et je crois qu'en pareille circonstance nous devons éviter de voter sur des matières d'une certaine gravité. Il faut que le Sénat soit au complet pour qu'on puisse avoir l'expression véritable de son opinion. Je dois dire qu'en règle générale, je suis opposé à ce mode de législation. Il peut y avoir quelques cas rares où notre assentiment soit pour ainsi dire forcé, à raison de motifs graves commandant notre adhésion à première vue, mais je ne sache pas que celui-ci soit un de ces cas exceptionnels sur lesquels l'opinion soit unanime pour l'adoption. J'ose exprimer de nouveau l'espérance que l'hon membre voudra bien attendre un autre jour pour la mise en discussion de son bill.

M. McCay—Le sénateur de Jefferson [M. Trudeau] a, je crois, exprimé le vœu que tous les bills de cette nature fussent portés à un même ordre du jour pour une séance déterminée, par ce qu'il désirerait que la discussion s'établît d'une manière générale et qu'ainsi il fût décidé sur tous à la fois. Il a fait comprendre qu'il désirait ne pas être dans l'obligation de faire un discours séparé pour chaque bill en particulier, mais qu'il préférait que le Sénat les réunît en un faisceau pour ne faire qu'une seule et même délibération. Je crois, messieurs, que nous ne ferions que nous conformer aux lois d'une juste courtoisie en différant la discussion du bill de l'hon. M. Trudeau.

M. Ryan—Je désirerais savoir pourquoi nous devrions faire une exception pour ce cas particulier. Ce qui est bon pour l'un est bon pour l'autre. Nous avons établi un précédent, pourquoi ne pas nous y conformer ? Nous avons déjà voté d'autres bills de la même nature, pourquoi ne voterions-nous pas celui-ci ? Et pourquoi le sénateur vient-il ici prophétiser la défaite de ce bill, quand le Sénat vient, il y a quelques moments à peine, de voter un bill du même genre ? Dans le cours de cette session, nous en avons déjà passé plusieurs de la même nature ; pourquoi fermerions-nous la porte juste sur celui-ci ? Si l'hon. membre peut donner une bonne raison pour justifier son opposition à ce bill, peut-être m'amènera-t-il à voter avec lui. Je ne demande qu'à être convaincu. Je me suis toujours incliné devant la raison. S'il m'est démontré que le bill soit en réalité une exception à notre mode ordinaire de législation, je suis prêt à me joindre à M. McCay dans son opposition. Mais nous avons passé d'autres bills de ce même caractère, et jusqu'à plus ample informé, je demande que nous ne revenions pas sur le précédent que nous avons établi. Je ne prends aucun intérêt particulier à ce bill. Je ne connais pas les personnes pour l'avantage desquelles il est introduit. Mais je connais les respectables sénateurs dans le district desquels ces personnes demeurent et dont l'un a porté ce bill devant le Sénat. Je sais qu'ils ne voudraient pas demander quelque chose qui ne fût pas conforme au droit et à la raison.

M. Moore—Pour l'édification du Senat je dirai que je connais les personnes dans l'intérêt desquelles ce bill est introduit. Quoiqu'étant des personnes de couleur, elles jouissent d'une grande considération parmi les habitants les plus respectables de la localité qu'elles habitent. On les connaît dans toute la contrée et chacun les respecte.

M. Defreese—Le sénateur des Rapides, (M. Ryan), nous a présenté comme une raison suffisante pour déterminer l'adoption de ce bill, cette circonstance que le Senat a établi aujourd'hui un précédent en en votant d'autres d'un caractère identique. Je puis informer l'hon membre que pas un bill de cette nature n'a été voté par le Sénat avec mon concours ou ma participation aujourd'hui. Je lui dirai aussi que jamais je ne mettrai mon laissez-passer sur un pareil mode de législation. Je n'ai pas à m'occuper du caractère plus ou moins respectable des parties intéressées. Il est suffisant pour moi de savoir que les enfants sont des enfants de couleur. Par cette seule raison je voterai contre le bill. Ils sont les enfants d'un blanc, le fruit d'un commerce condamné tout à la fois par la morale et par la loi. Ils doivent porter la marque de la réprobation que la société a placée sur eux. Tant que nous n'aurons pas maintenu la sévérité de la loi dans toutes les affaires de ce genre, nous ne viendrons jamais à bout d'arrêter le flot d'immoralités, qui menace de saper les fondements de la société et toutes nos institutions.

Si nous cedons à des demandes de cette nature, l'immoralité ne fera qu'augmenter au lieu de diminuer. La loi doit réprouver et non pas encourager de pareilles tendances Si un homme cohabite avec sa propre esclave, s'il lui plaît de violer les lois de la décence et de la moralité, il doit se résigner à subir les conséquences de son action. Il n'a pas le droit de venir à nous pour nous demander de le sortir du dilemme où sa propre conduite l'aura enfermé. S'il a trouvé bon d'avoir des enfants en dehors de la loi sociale, eh bien qu'il en ait. Je ne veux pas me mêler de ce qu'il aura fait. S'il peut les envoyer dans un autre pays ou dans un autre Etat, où les lois, les institutions et les habitudes sociales leur permettent de prétendre à une position supérieure à celle qu'ils occupent ici, où ils puissent jouir de privilèges plus grands, où ils seront enfin relevés du stigmate dont les frappe nos institutions, qu'il les envoie là. Nous avons déjà trop de nègres libres ici. Des statistiques dignes de foi nous ont appris qu'il y en a 20,000 dans l'Etat de la Louisiane, et c'est un fait notoire que le nombre en va croissant d'année en année. Ils forment une classe de population dont la présence ne peut être que funeste à l'Etat, et nos efforts devraient plutôt tendre à diminuer ce chiffre déjà trop alarmant qu'à l'augmenter encore. Telle devrait être notre politique. Et nous sommes déjà appelés à reconnaître cette vérité par l'adoption d'une mesure dont le but sera de faire diminuer le nombre de nègres libres.

Nous avons devant nous un bill qui taxe chaque nègre libre dans l'Etat à la somme d'une piastre, dans le but de former un fonds destiné à la colonisation de la race africaine. Si l'un deux se refuse au paiement de la taxe, en vertu de ce bill être réduit en servitude pendant un temps limité. Ce bill est fortement appuyé par un grand nombre de sénateurs et son introduction est une preuve évidente de la conviction où ils sont du danger qu'il y a à souffrir une augmentation de la population de couleur libre. Cependant, chaque jour, nous agissons contre ce principe en passant des bills pour émanciper des esclaves et nous augmentons ainsi à tout propos le nombre de cette classe dont la présence parmi nous est considérée comme un danger imminent; de cette classe, qui, nous sommes sur le point de le déréter, doit être envoyée hors de l'Etat ou de nouveau réduite en servitude. Et parceque je suis opposé à cette contradiction que nous mettons chaque jour entre nos principes et nos actes, parceque je suis opposé à cette manière d'agir, on me demande d'expliquer les raisons de mon opposition. On veut savoir pourquoi je combats la résolution, on me dit avec beaucoup de sérieux que je n'ai pas le droit de prophétiser la défaite de ce bill, ou même de voter pour son rejet. Mais je réponds ici que je persiste toujours dans mes opposition à ces sortes de bills. Je suis fermement convaincu que nous ne devons pas encourager ce mode de législation Nous devons au contraire frapper de réprobation ceux qui violent ainsi les lois de la décence dans leur vie privée et se placent ainsi et placent leur innocente progéniture dans une si malheureuse position aux yeux du monde.

Aussi longtemps que nous voterons de semblables résolutions, ce genre d'immoralité ira toujours croissant et par notre législation nous ne ferons qu'accélérer les progrès du mal au lieu d'en diminuer les ravages, si, dans d'autres Etats ou pays, les gens de cette classe jouissent des droits de citoyens, qu'ils y aillent et s'élèvent à une position à laquelle ils ne sauraient prétendre ici.

Mais qu'on ne vienne pas nous demander de violer nos principes en encourageant le vice.

Si ces gens-là doivent être émancipés et bien qu'ils le soient, mais que défense leur soit faite de rester plus longtemps dans l'Etat. Notre politique doit être de les éloigner de notre pays et ce système est celui de nos lois existantes.

I. y a des cas pour lesquels on peut, sans inconvénient, établir une exception : ce sont, par exemple les cas où des esclaves auraient rendu d'éminents services à l'Etat, etc. Mais ces cas se présentent rarement. Je ne sache qu'il s'agisse ici d'un de ces cas exceptionnels.

En m'opposant au passage de ce bill et de tous autres du même genre, je ne fais que me conformer à mes convictions et à ma conscience, et accomplir mon devoir de sénateurs de la Louisiane.

M. Martel—J'espère qu'après que j'aurai donné quelques explications sur l'attention et la faveur particulières que mérite le cas qui nous est soumis, l'honorable membre de l'Ouachita (M. Defrees) ne persistera pas dans son opposition. Il y a quelques jours, un sénateur, maintenant absent, faisait remarquer, sous forme de plaisanterie, qu'il avait trente ou quarante bills de cette nature dans son pupitre. Je conviens qu'il y a eu déjà trop de bills d'émancipation introduits au Senat. Mais je puis dire, en toute sincérité, qu'il n'est pas un homme qui ait été plus constamment opposé à l'émancipation des esclaves que moi-même. J'ai voté contre le système en principe; et je suis d'accord avec l'honorable membre sur les effets du mal. Mais ma conscience me ferait un reproche, si je ne votais pas pour ce bill. Le vieillard, dont les enfants sont à émanciper, habitait depuis nombre d'années la section de l'Etat que je représente. Il a toujours été sincèrement attaché au pays et a donné un témoignage de son dévouement quand au moment de l'invasion anglaise, il s'est joint à nos pères pour repousser l'ennemi de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Quoiqu'homme de couleur, il a toujours été, comme l'a dit mon ami et collègue de St. Martin, respecté de tous ceux qui l'ont connu. Cet homme, le vieux Denato, à son lit de mort, a recommandé ses enfants à ses amis blancs, dans l'espérance que ceux-ci voudraient bien les protéger et assurer la conservation de leurs droits. Dans sa vieillesse il entra relations intimes avec une jeune mulâtresse, son esclave, et comme il était lui-même homme de couleur, l'action n'était pas aussi répréhensible. D'elle il eut plusieurs enfants. Il était naturel qu'il désirât les faire jouir du bénéfice et des privileges de la liberté. En conséquence, dans son testament, il exprima le vres qu'ils fussent émancipés, et s'en remit pour cela à ses amis blancs.

Outre ces enfants, il avait des rejetons légitimes. A ceux-ci il imposa la condition d'admettre ses enfants illégitimes au partage de son immense fortune. Je dois dire, en effet, ici, que le vieux Donato était l'un des hommes les plus riches de la Louisiane.

Il a toujours paye exactement les taxes sur ses nombreuses propriétés et était, sous tous les rapports, un homme fort honorable. Je suis opposé à l'émancipation des esclaves en général, parce que je considère en effet cette tendance comme fatale à nos institutions. Mais il s'agit ici de l'un de ces cas qui doivent faire exception. Comme je l'ai dit déjà, ma conscience me reprocherait de refuser ce bill. Le vieux Donato etait âgé d'environ cent ans quand il est mort, et pendant toute la durée de cette longue vie, il n'a cessé de jouir de la confiance et du respect de la société tout entière au milieu de laquelle il vivait. Le sénateur d'Ouachita, après mon explication, n'aura que bien peu d'égards pour l'appel que je fais à sa bienveillance, s'il ne consent pas à retirer son opposition. J'ai donné une explication que je considère comme satisfaisante, et si je ne me trompe sur le caractère de l'honorable membre, il la trouvera telle J'espère que le Sénat passera ce bill et accordera aux enfants de Donato la permission de rester dans l'Etat où ils sont nés, où ils ont déjà passé toute leur vie, et où ils sont entourés de toutes les relations qui rendent la vie agreable, ou du moins supportable. Je certifie à l'honorable membre que l'entière population de ma section non seulement sera satisfaite, mais encore sera on ne peut plus heureuse de voir réaliser les dernières volontes du vieux Donato.

M. Defrees—Ne viens-je pas d'entendre dire au sénateur de St-Landry que le père de ces enfants était lui-même un homme de couleur ?

M. Martel—C'est précisément ce que j'ai dit. Le vieux Donato était un homme de couleur qui était tenu en haute estime par tous ceux que l'ont connu. Il a été habitant de la Louisiane pendant 80 ans. Il a prêté la main à l'expulsion des Anglais de notre territoire, et n'a cessé de payer régulièrement les taxes sur des propriétés de la valeur d'au moins un demi million de dollars.

M. Defrees—Cette explication place la question sous un jour bien différent de celui sous lequel je l'avais envisagée. Je suppose que le Sénat a bien compris les motifs de mon opposition. J'étais sous l'impression que c'était là un de ces cas où le père est un blanc qui, par ce que j'appellerai une violation de sa dignité, a lui-même placé ses enfants dans une position malheureuse. En pareil cas, je ne voudrais nullement intervenir pour le tirer de ce mauvais pas, conséquence méritée de sa propre imprudence. Je ferai remarquer ici qu'en matière d'émancipation, je fais une distinction, que je crois juste et équitable, entre la position d'un père qui, étant lui-même homme de couleur, désire que ses enfants soient affranchis par testament, et celle d'un homme blanc qui, après avoir violé la loi par une union déshonnête, vient ensuite nous demander l'absolution de ses fautes.

Loin de moi la pensée de demander maintenant l'expulsion des enfants au nom desquels la pétition est faite, leur éloignement des lieux qui leur ont été rendus chers par toutes les relations de leur vie, du pays enfin où ils ont pris naissance et où ils ont eu leurs plus tendres affections. Je voterai pour le bill. C'est un des cas exemptionnels auxquels je faisais allusion dans les observations que j'ai présentées sur la matière. En conséquence des explications fournies par le sénateur d'Ouachita, je me sens donc obligé de retirer mon opposition.

Le bill est adopté.

LUNDI, 20 février.

Sur motion de M. Palfrey, le Sénat prend en considération le bill suivant :

Acte pour amender un acte intitulé : « Acte pour prévenir certains délits, approuvé le 6 avril 1813.

SECT. 1re Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en assemblée générale ; Que la quatrième section de l'acte auquel ceci est un amendement, qui est conçue en ces termes : « qu'après la passation de cet acte, nul ne pourra prendre possession d'une terre ou terrain, ou d'une maison ou une propriété d'un autre, s'il n'a pas acquis légalement ce droit, sans être coupable de malveillance, et sur conviction du fait, il sera passible d'une amende ou d'un emprisonnement, ou des deux peines, à la discrétion de la Cour, laquelle amende sera de cinquante piastres au moins, ou de mille piastres au plus, et l'emprisonnement sera de dix jours au moins et de six mois au plus, et le délinquant paiera en outre les frais de poursuite : Bien entendu cependant que cette punition ne pourra s'appliquer à celui qui aura eu une possession paisible et sans trouble pendant un an, » soit amendée et décretée de nouveau de manière à être conçue en ces termes, savoir : Qu'après la passation de cet acte, nul ne pourra prendre possession d'une terre ou terrain, ou d'une maison ou autre propriété d'une autre, s'il n'a pas acquis légalement ce droit, ou qui, avec connaissance de cause et avec malice, enlèverait, briserait ou détruirait de quelque manière que ce soit, l'entourage et les barrières du champ ou du lot de terre d'une autre personne, sera coupable de malveillance, et sur conviction du fait sera passible d'une amende ou d'un emprisonnement, ou de deux peines, à la discrétion de la Cour, laquelle amende ne sera pas moins de cinquante piastres, et n'excèdera pas mille piastres, et le dit emprisonnement ne sera pas moins de dix jours et n'excèdera pas six mois, et le délinquant paiera en outre les frais de poursuite. Bien entendu cependant que cette punition ne pourra s'appliquer à celui qui aura eu une possession paisible et sans trouble pendant un an. Et bien entendu aussi que le fait étant prouvé, et qu'il sera à la charge du défendeur, de prouver qu'il n'a pas agi avec malice.

M. Martel—Je fais la motion que le bill soit imprimé. C'est un des plus importants qui aient été devant le Sénat pendant cette session.

M. Palfrey—Je ne vois pas la necessité de ce délai. Il ne peut y avoir d'objection particulière à ce bill. Il a été referé à un comité, et un rapport favorable en a été fait. Je vais dire en quelques mots l'objet de ce bill. Déjà la loi pourvoit à la prise de possession illégale d'une maison ou d'une propriété. Ce bill a pour but d'empêcher la destruction des barrières, &c., &c., chose à laquelle la loi actuelle ne pourvoit pas. Ce but est certes excellent, et je ne doute pas qu'après un peu de réflection, le sénateur ne retire son opposition, ou plutôt qu'il ne retire la motion qu'il a faite d'imprimer le bill.

M Martel—Je désirerai entendre encore une fois lecture du bill. Il est possible qu'après je retire ma motion, Le secrétaire lit le bill.

M Martel—Je retire ma motion, mais je serai forcé de voter contre. Au premier coup d'œil, les personnes qui ne connaissent pas bien l'intérieur de notre pays et ses particularités curieuses pourraient croire que ce bill est très bon. Mais c'est là une grande erreur, ainsi que je crois pouvoir le prouver. Depuis longtemps il est d'usage que les personnes qui possèdent une grande fortune entourent des terres appartenant au gouvernement et de cette manière les personnes qui auraient pu s'établir sur ces terres en sont empêchées. Je connais une foule de cas de cette nature.

Et cependant ceux qui se seraient établis là, cette classe nombreuse de notre population a toutes mes sympathies. Ils devraient avoir le privilège de s'établir même sur les terres qui sont entourees de la sorte. C'est un privilège que la loi leur accorde et que personne n'a le droit de contester. Si nous autorisons semblable chose, si cela se fait aussi simplement, nous priverons la partie active, laborieuse de notre population des avantages des lois de préemption, non seulement des Etats-Unis mais encore de l'Etat de la Louisiane. Il est tellement d'usage que les personnes riches entourent ainsi les terres de l'Etat, qu'elles demandent même à cet égard, des privilèges à la Législature.

Quant à moi je suis d'avis que nous ne devons pas intervenir dans les droits que donnent les lois de préemption, chose que nous ferions indirectement si nous adoptions ce bill Déjà la loi est trop sévère à cet égard. L'Etat de la Louisiane est allé trop loin dans la punition de ceux qui cherchent à profiter du droit qu'ils ont de s'établir sur les terres du domaine public.

Les Etats-Unis n'ont jamais fait de lois aussi sévè

res que le sont celles de la Louisiane. Oui, notre loi pénale est beaucoup trop rigoureuse et je m'étonne qu'on ne songe pas plutôt à l'adoucir qu'à l'empirer encore. Nous avons vu que sous la loi actuelle on n'est même pas tenu de prouver son titre à une propriété qu'on dit avoir été violée. Supposez, par exemple qu'un homme s'établisse sur certaines terres qu'il croit être publiques et qui le sont après tout. Quelqu'un les a entourées. Il fait un affidavit contre celui qui s'y est établi, ainsi que nous venons de le dire, le fait arrêter et traduire devant une cour de justice. Le plaignant n'est même pas tenu de prouver sa propriété ; il lui suffit de prouver la possession. Celui dont la loi devrait respecter et protéger les droits n'a même pas celui de faire entendre sa défense. Lorsqu'il s'établit sur une terre réclamée par un individu qui n'y a pas le moindre titre, il est arrêté, traduit devant un grand jury. On ne s'enquiert pas des titres. C'est l'Etat qui poursuit et le malheureux accusé est forcé de payer des avocats, de faire cent et une autres dépenses que le plus souvent il est dans l'impossibilité de porter. Il ne lui est pas permis de faire voir que le plaignant n'a pas l'ombre même d'un titre en dehors du titre de possession de terres qui en réalité appartiennent au gouvernement. Pour moi, je crois qu'on doit plutôt mitiger la loi que de la rendre plus dure encore.

M. le président, je ne parle pas des suppositions, sur des conjectures, mais sur des faits qui sont à ma connaissance particulière.

M Ryan—Je désirerais que le secrétaire donnât encore lecture du bill. Je crois que le sénateur se méprend sur son objet.

Le secrétaire en donne lecture.

Je croyais que le sénateur se trompait. Les remarques tendant à obtenir protection pour le colon malheureux contre le riche. Le reste de son argumentation porte tout en faveur du bill.

Quels sont ces arguments ? Le sénateur dit que plusieurs personnes riches ont l'habitude d'entourer de barrières des terres qui appartiennent au gouvernement. Je désire que la loi soit moins sévère contre cette sorte d'empiètement commis par des personnes pauvres qui ont le droit de s'établir sur des terres publiques. Le bill dit que toutes les fois qu'une personne entrera sur les terres d'une autre personne, ou détruira ses barrières, elle sera passible d'une certaine peine précisée par le bill. Si la propriété ou les barrières appartiennent aux Etats-Unis, le contrevenant est également passible d'une certaine peine. De sorte que loin de tendre à opprimer le colon, le bill lui donne réellement plus de droits qu'il n'en possède maintenant parce qu'il empêche le riche de faire ce à quoi le sénateur à fait allusion dans le cours de ses remarques. De sorte, que si un individu pénètre sur la propriété d'un autre, soit qu'elle lui appartienne réellement ou qu'elle appartienne aux Etats-Unis, il sera passible de la peine imposée par la loi.

Ainsi donc les observations présentées par le sénateur militent plutôt en faveur du bill que contre lui. Prenons l'exemple cité par lui-même. Supposons qu'un colon s'établisse sur une terre appartenant aux Etats Unis et qu'une de ces personnes riches dont il a parle les ait entourées de barrières ; qu'il soit traduit en Cour ; dans ce cas tout ce qu'il a à faire c'est de déclarer que la dite terre ou les dites terres n'appartenaient pas au plaignant et que par conséquent il n'avait pas le droit de les entourer. Si les terres appartiennent aux Etats-Unis, l'argument du sénateur ne peut pas être applicable ; il n'est plus d'aucun poids, d'aucune portée. Si un individu entoure de barrières une terre publique, et s'il y mène un colon pour l'y établir, le colon peut l'evincer avec dépens parce qu'il peut alléguer qu'il avait pleinement le droit de s'établir sur ces terres, qu'elles n'appartenaient pas au plaignant et qu'il n'avait pas de titre sur lequel il pût se fonder pour intenter une action. Ce serait là le moyen le plus court et le plus naturel L'argument du sénateur ou plutôt sa longue homélie au sujet du pauvre et du riche ferait peut être très bien à une séance académique et serait une assez bonne harangue à prononcer devant une assemblée politique pendant une campagne électorale ; mais est fort mal placée au milieu d'un débat dans un corps comme celui-ci qu'on doit supposer être au-dessus de ces appels et ne point ignorer quel style convient à un sénateur. Oui, je le répète, ces appels sont fort déplacés devant le Senat.

M. Martel—Je regrette, M. le président, d'avoir à avouer que je ne me reconnais ni le génie politique ni les connaissances légales que possède à un degré si éminent le sénateur des Rapides, J'espère que personne ne m'attribue tant de presomption. Je dois dire cependant que le sénateur, dans les remarques qu'il vient de faire au Sénat, a défiguré un peu trop sans scrupule, non seulement ce que j'ai voulu dire, mais encore ce que j'ai dit réellement.

Je suis opposé aux principes de ce bill, et aussi longtemps que j'aurai droit à un siége dans cette enceinte je m'y opposerai de tout mon pouvoir. Je n'ai pas eu l'intention d'attaquer la classe entière des riches. Ceux qui, par leur industrie, par leur travail, réussissent à se faire une fortune ont droit à l'estime et à la considération de tous. C'est là ce que j'ai dit et ce que j'ai voulu dire.

Nulle part au monde il n'existe une semblable loi ; nulle part de semblables privilèges ne sont protégés par les lois pénales. J'ai vu des citoyens accusés comme je l'ai dit déjà et il leur était même refusé de faire entendre leur défense. Une affaire est portée devant une Cour ; l'accusé (ce cas est malheureusement très fréquent) n'est pas riche ; il ne peut payer des avocats ; il faut donc qu'il renonce à ses droits faute de pouvoir les faire valoir; parfois même on ajoute l'ironie à son injuste condamnation et on lui dit de se réjouir d'en être quitte à si bon marché. Je le répète, il n'est pas juste que les choses se passent ainsi et que le pauvre soit opprimé de la sorte par le riche. C'est là une violation du grand principe de l'égalité des droits, c'est là une injustice à laquelle je m'opposerai toujours. Elle opprime le pauvre en favorisant le riche.

Un satirique romain a dit avec raison :

" Nil habet infelix pauper durius in se "
" Quam quod ridiculos homines facit. "

Ce qui était vrai alors l'est également aujourd'hui. Le pauvre est encore à la merci du riche. Comme législateurs, nous devrions songer à changer cet état de choses, à écarter les épines et les ronces de la route que suivent si péniblement ces hommes laborieux.

Supposez qu'un de ces hommes actifs et industrieux qui s'établissent ainsi sur les terres publiques pour les cultiver, les fertiliser (quatter) prenne possession d'une terre appartenant au gouvernement et qu'une personne qui n'en avait pas le droit a entourée de barrières, quelle est la première mesure prise contre lui. Il y a des avocats ici qui le savent aussi bien que moi. La personne qui a entouré ces terres avec ou sans raison, avec ou sans titre, se présente devant un juge de paix et fait un affidavit contre le «squatter.» Ce magistrat n'a pas droit de décider des titres à la propriété. Il n'a pas à s'occuper de cette question. Le défendeur est alors traduit devant le grand jury qui ne peut entendre que le plaignant ; puis le défendeur a à comparaître devant une Cour de District où l'on exige de lui un fort cautionnement. Ceux qui ne peuvent payer un avocat pour les défendre ont peur de se présenter. Ils sentent que leur pauvreté les livre pieds et poings liés. Ils consentent donc à renoncer à leurs droits. Est-il rien de plus injuste, de plus odieux, rien qui doive plus affliger ceux qui pensent, qui réfléchissent ? Et voilà ce qu'amènerait tous les jours l'adoption de ce bill ! Aussi j'espère que le Sénat ne l'adoptera pas

M. Palfrey—Je ne partage pas l'opinion du sénateur qui vient de reprendre son siége. Ce bill ne consacrerait aucune injustice. Son seul objet est de protéger les personnes ou plutôt les propriétés contre les empiétements. Si un individu a un titre légal, ce bill ne le dépossède pas ; il n'a qu'à en faire preuve et il est déchargé. Nul n'a le droit d'abattre ou de brûler les barrières construites par un autre. La loi est muette à cet égard et c'est pour combler cette lacune, c'est pour remplir cette omission que le bill est proposé.

M Wickliffe—Je demande l'abrogation de toute cette section, où il est dit que le fait étant prouvé il sera à la charge du défenseur de prouver qu'il n'a pas agi avec malice.

M Martel—Je fais la motion que les titres soient examinés.

M Palfrey—Je fais la motion de déposer l'amendement sur le bureau.

Digitized by Google

L'amendement est déposé et le bill passe à sa troisième lecture.

LA RIVIERE AMITE ET LE BAYOU MANCHAC.

M Lacey—Je demande une suspension des règles afin que le Sénat puisse s'occuper du bill pour l'amélioration de la rivière Amite et du bayou Manchac. Le bill a déjà passé à sa troisième lecture par un vote de seize contre un. Je ne suppose pas qu'aucun sénateur s'oppose a son adoption.

M King—Je fais objection à la suspension des règles

Une de mes raisons est que la rivière qu'il est question d'améliorer se trouve dans le district d'un sénateur, M Kenner, qui est maintenant absent. Il a exprimé le désir d'être présent lorsque le bill serait pris. Une autre raison est que je suis opposé au bill.

Les règles sont suspendues et le bill est pris.

M King—Avec la permission du Sénat je vais motiver mon objection à ce bill. Je suis, comme je l'ai déjà dit dans mainte et mainte occasion, opposé à toute législation de cette nature. Nous apprenons par le rapport de l'Auditeur que le revenu annuel entier du fonds des améliorations intérieures ne s'élève qu'à $15,000, qui doivent être affectées aux améliorations intérieures dans tout l'Etat. Cela est à peine suffisant pour les dépenses courantes ordinaires.

Nous avons trois bateaux à vapeur dont les frais d'entretien etc., etc., sont nécessairement très grands; puis nous avons 106 nègres qu'il faut nourrir et entretenir; nous avons un ingénieur d'Etat auquel nous payons un salaire de $3,000, un assistant-ingénieur qui reçoit $2,000 et les dépenses casuelles du bureau sont de $1,000. Ces frais absorbent presque tout le revenu du fonds des Améliorations Intérieures. Si nous adoptons ce bill, demain il nous en sera présenté un autre de la même nature. Il y a d'autres rivières dans l'Etat qui sont beaucoup plus importantes que celle qui est désignée dans ce bill et partout les demandes seront de plus en plus fortes. Accéder une fois c'est s'engager à accéder toujours, à moins de vouloir commettre une injustice. Et si les choses vont ainsi où et quand nous arrêterons-nous ?

Que ferons-nous de nos nègres, que nous ne pourrons plus ni nourrir ni entretenir. Autant vaudrait les mettre de suite à l'encan et les vendre au plus haut enchérisseur. Et nos bateaux qu'en ferons-nous ? Ne pouvant plus payer les frais qu'ils nécessitent on-trois que ni moi, ni la Législature ne peuvent, ni ne doivent décider quelles rivières doivent être améliorées. Ce n'est pas ainsi que les particuliers dirigent leurs propres affaires. Ils ne construisent pas une maison sans savoir à l'avance quel en sera le coût. Pourquoi l'Etat agirait-il autrement ? Pourquoi ne se conformerait-il pas à ces règles ordinaires du bon sens que suivent les particuliers dans les affaires ordinaires ? Pour moi, je suis opposé à ce que l'on prenne de l'argent du fonds des améliorations intérieures pour l'appliquer à tel ou tel usage.

La rivière Amite n'est pas la plus importante de l'Etat et dans les campagnes nous en avons d'autres qui, plus que l'Amite, reclameraient notre attention immédiate.

M. Wickliffe—Je demande l'autorisation de dire quelques mots d'explication sur ce sujet. Je regrette de si sombres pressentiments tourmentent le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Il nous demande anxieusement ce que nous ferons de nos nègres et ce qui viendra de nos ingénieurs si nous adoptons le bill. J'espère bien, monsieur, qu'ils ne seront pas perdus pour cela. Je ne vois pas que ce bill doive leur être fatal. Il nous demande aussi si l'Amite est la rivière plus importante de l'Etat. Certes, elle n'est pas si grande, ainsi vaste que le Mississippi; elle n'est chargée des produits de tous les climats; mais sur ses bords résident des citoyens dignes et industrieux qui méritent bien quelque considération Il n'ont encore rien eu du fonds des améliorations interieures, n'ont pas participé aux avantages des travaux exécutés jusqu'à ce jour. Depuis des années ils souffrent dans un mauvais état de cette rivière toute pleine d'obstructions de toutes sortes.

Je ne dis pas que ce soit de la faute de l'ingénieur d'Etat. Je ne désire jeter aucun blâme sur lui; je sais que les travaux qu'il a eu à faire étaient nombreux, difficiles et que les ressources dont il disposait étaient très limitées; mais je défie qu'on me montre une seule amélioration qui ait jamais été faite dans cette section.

Le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans exprime aussi de vives appréhensions de voir s'épuiser le fonds des améliorations intérieures si ce bill est adopté. Mais qu'il consulte les faits, il verra que l'Etat doit au fonds des améliorations intérieures une somme considérable.

M. King—Le président du comité de finances dit que le trésor ne doit pas un sou au fonds des améliorations intérieures.

M. Wickliffe—Je sais que le sénateur prend le plus grand soin des finances; je crois cependant que je puis prouver qu'il s'est trompé. Je suis d'opinion que le sombre tableau de la Nouvelle-Orléans qu'il vient de tracer ne se réalisera pas si le bill est adopté, et pour moi j'espère qu'il le sera.

M. King—Je regrette d'avoir encore à abuser du temps et de la patience du Sénat, mais je crois devoir dire quelques mots en réponse. Je ne suis pas opposé à l'amélioration de la rivière Amite; je crois qu'elle devrait être améliorée, mais je suis opposé au système d'amélioration indiqué dans le bill. Je suis opposé à ce que l'on prenne de l'argent du fonds des améliorations intérieures. Si nous continuons de cette manière nous aurons bien vite épuisé le fonds et nous nous verrons enfin forcés de renoncer à notre système d'améliorations intérieures. Nous serons forcés de renvoyer notre ingénieur, d'abandonner nos bateaux, de vendre nos nègres. C'est ce à quoi nous arriverons infailliblement si nous continuons le système contenu dans le bill qui est devant le Sénat. Il n'est pas besoin d'être prophète pour le prédire; si l'amélioration de la rivière Amite est nécessaire qu'on y procède d'une manière régulière avec les ouvriers de l'Etat dirigés par les officiers compétents. Que l'ingénieur de l'Etat fasse les relevés nécessaires et qu'il décide du meilleur parti à prendre, De cette manière l'ouvrage sera fait régulièrement et la règle généralement suivie ne sera pas enfreinté.

M. Lacey—La tournure qu'a prise cette discussion m'engage à différer quelques observations qui, peut-être, auraient été inutiles et superflues après ce que vient de dire le sénateur d'Ouest-Feliciana. Il a dit avec raison que ce district n'a pas encore eu à se louer de l'Etat, et c'est en vain que l'on chercherait la trace d'une seule amélioration faite à la rivière Amite, si ce n'est à un seul point, et là même on ne trouverait rien que le bois et les matériaux avec lesquels les ouvriers de l'Etat ont obstrué le chenal. Non Monsieur, ce district n'a jamais rien eu du fonds des améliorations intérieures, et l'officier auquel aurait été confié un writ de recherche aurait à faire le retour suivant : Non est inventus. Je le répète, quoique ce district mérite, autant qu'aucun autre, la sollicitude de l'Etat, il n'en a encore rien reçu.

Le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans (M. King) croit que le fonds des améliorations intérieures doit être réservé pour des travaux de plus grande importance, et que si ces travaux sont faits ils doivent l'être par les ouvriers de l'Etat. Mais il en coûterait beaucoup plus pour envoyer là un des bateaux de l'Etat, que pour faire l'ouvrage entier de la manière indiquée dans le bill.

Je ne doute donc pas que le bill ne passe à une majorité aussi forte qu'à la Chambre des Représentants.

Le bill passe.

M. King appelle l'acte relatif à la suspension du jugement dans les affaires criminelles. Il dit :

Le but de ce bill est expliqué par le titre ; il est de détruire une absurdité qui existe malheureusement dans notre Code. Dans tous les autres Etats et même en Angleterre, cela n'existe pas, et un inculpé, un prisonnier n'a pas le droit, après qu'un verdict a été rendu, d'échapper à la loi en prenant une injonction à propos de quelque informalité légale.

Sur motion de M. Ryan, le bill est déposé.

Sur motion de M. Martel, le Sénat s'occupe du bill intitulé :

Acte pour améliorer la navigation du bayou Manchac

Sect. 1. Il est décrété, &c., Que la somme de quinze mille piastres est, par le présent, allouée à l'effet de faire enlever les empêchements à la navigation de la rivière de l'Atchafalaya, l'embouchure du bayou Courtableau, à un mille au-dessus du bayou, et pour la confection d'une levée sur la rive ouest du dit bayou, de son embouchure jusqu'à la rivière de l'Atcha-falaya, jusqu'au bayou Courtableau, ainsi que les commissaires qui sont nommés en vertu de cet acte, jugeront nécessaire.

Sect. 2. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que William Offat, de Washington; Walthall, Burton, William H. Nelson, C. S. Gordon, John J. Morgan, de l'Atchafalaya, sont, par le présent, nommés commissaires, ensemble avec l'ingénieur de l'Etat, et que la somme de quinze mille piastres qui a été payée des fonds affectés aux améliorations à l'intérieur, est, par le présent, allouée spécialement et sera payée au contracteur ou aux contracteurs, sur le mandat d'au moins quatre des dits commissaires en telle somme ou sommes qu'ils jugeront convenables.

Sect. 3. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que les dits commissaires devront affermer au rabais la confection du dit contrat, après avoir donné trentre jours d'avis dans deux gazettes, savoir: « le Courrier de la Louisiane » et « le Courrier des Opelousas, » du temps et du lieu de l'adjudication, la dite adjudication sera faite à la maison de Mme Robbin, sur la rivière Atchafalaya, le premier de mai prochain 1854, entre 10 heures du matin et 4 heures de l'après-midi.

Sect. 4. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Qu'un passage aussi droit que possible, ayant soixante pieds de large sur cinq pieds de profondeur, durant les eaux les plus basses, sera ouvert à travers toute cette partie de l'Atchafalaya, qui est maintenant obstruée par des radeaux, y compris le bayou Courtableau, en remontant à un mille du dit bayou, et qu'il sera établi une levée sur la rive occidentale du dit bayou, en remontant jusqu'à une distance qui sera déterminée par les commissaires.

Sect. 5. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que trois des dits commissaires formeront un quorum à l'effet d'affermer le dit contrat, et en cas que le dit quorum ne s'assemblerait pas le premier de mai sur les lieux ci-dessus mentionnés, alors et dans ce cas, les dits commissaires devront ajourner la dite adjudication jusqu'à ce qu'il y ait un quorum, et au cas qu'il n'y aurait pas un quorum le trois de mai 1854, alors le nombre des commissaires présents affermera le dit contrat, pourvu que le coût de la dite adjudication et de toutes les dépenses n'excède pas la somme de quinze mille piastres.

Sect. 6. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que les dits commissaires sont requis et autorisés d'exiger de l'adjudicataire du dit contrat, une obligation, avec caution, de la somme de cinq mille piastres, payable au gouverneur de l'Etat ou à ses successeurs en office, comme garantie de la fidèle exécution du dit contrat; la dite obligation sera fournie sur les lieux, le jour de l'adjudication, à défaut de quoi les dits commissaires feront une seconde adjudication le même jour ou ils pourront la renvoyer au jour suivant, et si aucune enchère n'avait lieu ce jour-là, les dits commissaires devront afficher de nouveau et affermer le dit contrat, ainsi qu'il est ci-dessus mentionné.

Sect. 7. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Qu'une majorité des dits commissaires présents à l'adjudication, sera nécessaire à l'effet d'approuver le cautionnement du contracteur, mais au moins quatre des dits commissaires devront être d'accord pour recevoir les dits travaux ou le contrat.

Sect. 8. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que les conditions du dit contrat, ainsi que ce qui s'y rattache, seront publiées tout au long dans les dits actes.

Sect. 9. Il est de plus decrété &c, En cas que le contracteur ne remplisse pas son contrat, il sera du devoir de l'avocat général ou de l'avocat de district, d'intenter par devant toute cour de jurisdiction compétente, un procès pour le recouvrement du dit cautionnement, le montant duquel sera déposé dans le trésor de l'Etat, au crédit de l'ingénieur de l'Etat, pour être appliqué par la suite, par les dits commissaires, à l'effet d'améliorer la navigation de la rivière de l'Atchafalaya.

Sect. 10. Il est de plus décrété &c, Que l'ingénieur de l'Etat est par le présent autorisé à faire publier ledit contrat, le, ou avant le quinze de mars prochain (1854), de la manière ci-dessus décrite.

Lequel acte, sur motion de M. Martel, est lu une seconde fois, section par section.

M. King—Je crois devoir présenter une observation. J'ai toujours blâmé le système d'affectations spéciales de cette nature et j'ai également blâmé cette manière de prendre de l'argent du fonds des améliorations intérieures, parce que si nous continuons de la sorte nous nous trouverons dans l'impossibilité de payer notre ingénieur et nous serons forcés de vendre nos bateaux et nos nègres. La rivière Atchafalaya est de grande importance et si les travaux doivent être faits, je désirerais que quelque chose fut réservé pour son amélioration. J'aimerais mieux voter pour ce bill que pour aucun autre de la même nature. Je désire que l'on sache bien que c'est là la seule raison pour laquelle je voterai en faveur de ce bill alors que je suis formellement opposé au système qu'il inaugure. Si nous devons faire ces travaux je voudrais que du moins on les appliquât le mieux possible.

Sur motion de M. Moore, la section suivante est insérée au lieu et place de la première et quatrième section.

Sect. 1. Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentants de l'Etat de la Louisiane, reunis en assemblée générale; que la navigation des rivières de l'Atchafalaya et de Courtableau, sera améliorée à la jonction de la première rivière avec l'ancien lit du fleuve Mississipi, jusqu'à l'embouchure de la dernière rivière, et en remontant jusqu'à la source du Petit Diable, et il sera construit une levée sur la rive sud de la dernière rivière, de manière à empêcher le passage du courant, qui y charie les bois de dérive de l'Atchafalaya, et il sera fait, à travers toute cette étendue, un passage de 60 pieds de large et libre de tous chicots.

M. Martel fait la motion d'adopter le dit substitut, et sur cette motion, M. Defrees demande l'appel nominal.

L'Hon. R. C. Wickliffe occupe le fauteuil,

MM. Dupré, Griffin, Hébert, King, Kittridge, Lauve, Lacey, Lawes, Martel, Moore, Palfrey, Pellerin, Ryan, Richardson, Taylor et Wickliffe—16 sénateurs votent dans l'affirmative.

Et MM. Defrees, Evans et McMurdo—3 sénateurs votent dans la négative.

En conséquence, la 1re section est adoptée au lieu et place des 1re et 2nde sections.

Sur motion de M. Moore les mots:

« N'excédant pas la somme de quatre mille piastres à la fois, » sont insérés à la fin de la seconde section.

La seconde section est adoptée ainsi qu'elle a été amendée.

La troisième section est lue et adoptée.

La cinquième section est lue et adoptée, au lieu et place de la quatrième section.

M. Defreese propose d'amender la sixième section du bill primitif, en insérant à la sixième ligne les mots « Quinze mille » au lieu et place des mots « cinq mille. »

Sur motion de M. Dupré, cet amendement est déposé sur le bureau.

Motion est faite d'adopter la sixième section au lieu et place de la cinquième section. Sur cette section, M. Defrees demande l'appel nominal.

L'Hon. R. C. Wickliffe occupe le fauteuil.

MM. Dupré, Evans, Griffin, Hebert, Kittridge, Lauve, Lacey, Lawes, Martel, Moore, Palfrey, Pellerin, Ryan, Richardson, Taylor, Scott et Wickliffe—17 sénateurs votent dans l'affirmative.

Et M. Defrees—1 sénateur vote dans la négative.

En conséquence, la sixième section est adoptée au lieu et place de la cinquième section.

Les septième, huitième et neuvième sections sont lues et adoptées au lieu et place des huitième, neuvième et dixième sections.

Sur motion de M. Martel, et après dispense des règles, ce bill est lu une troisième fois et le bill passe.

M. King—Je fais la motion de prendre en considération le bill pour aider à la colonisation en Afrique des personnes de couleur libres de cet Etat. Comme le Senat n'a rien devant lui maintenant, je pense que nous pouvons tout aussi bien en finir maintenant avec ce bill.

M. McMurdo—Le bill vient d'être imprimé et déposé sur le bureau des membres. Quelques sénateurs peuvent être au fait de la question, mais je suis persuadé que tous les sénateurs ne le sont pas. Il serait mieux, je crois, de mettre ce bill à l'ordre du jour pour une prochaine séance.

M. King—Le bill est long, il est vrai; cependant il est clair et pas d'une importance très-grande. Il n'a git tout simplement d'imposer une taxe sur les hommes de couleur libres, afin de composer un fonds pour envoyer en Afrique ceux qui désirent y aller.

M. McMurdo—Je suis au fait moi-même de la question. Je n'ai pas d'objection à ce que le Sénat s'occupe de ce bill.

M. Martel—Je fais de nouveau objection, si le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans retire la séance. Le bill vient d'être déposé sur le bureau des membres. Je le crois important, et mon avis est qu'il vaudrait mieux le mettre à l'ordre du jour pour une prochaine séance.

Message de la Chambre.

BUREAU DE L'EXECUTIF,
Bâton Rouge, le 15 février 1864.

Aux Président et Membres du Sénat,

J'ai l'honneur de vous transmettre les rapports ci-joints du bureau des administrateurs et du surintendant de l'institution pour les sourds—muets et les aveugles.

L'augmentation rapide du nombre d'élèves admis dans cet asile, et le grand nombre d'aveugles qui se trouvent maintenant dans l'Hôpital de Charité et qui doivent entrer dans la première institution, demandent que la Législature s'occupe sans délai à faire exécuter les travaux déjà commencés, en portant à cette institution l'assistance dont elle a besoin pour accomplir les faits charitables qu'elle a en vue.

En conséquence j'appellerai particulièrement l'assistance de votre honorable corps sur cette partie du rapport du bureau qui demande une allocation additionnelle pour construire des édifices, laquelle, je l'espère, sera accordée par vous.

[Signé] P. O. HEBERT.

MARDI, 21 fév. 1854.

Sur motion de M Griffin, le Sénat prend de nouveau en considération la résolution requérant nos Représentants et nos Sénateurs au Congrès, de faire tous leurs efforts pour obtenir du Gouvernement Fédéral, un hopital de marine, à Alexandrie.

M. RYAN. Je veux expliquer la nature de cette résolution. J'ai la conviction, qu'en raison de son titre, elle n'a pas été parfaitement comprise hier. La Rivière Rouge n'est certainement pas une mer intérieure, et on pourrait considérer comme incongru l'établissement d'un hopital de marine sur ses bords. Cependant, c'est un fait bien connu que le Gouvernement des Etats-Unis a établi des institutions appelées hopitaux de marine sur différents points du Mississipi et sur ses affluents. Il y en a un à Memphis, dans le Tennessee, un autre à Paducah, dans le Kentucky, un autre en face de la Nlle-Orléans, et il doit y en avoir encore à d'autres endroits. Ces établissements sont appelés hopitaux de marine. Le mot marine est un dérivé du mot latin mare, qui veut dire mer; et ces institutions sont des hopitaux de marine, quoiqu'il n'y ait pas une goutte d'eau salée auprès d'eux. Sur la Rivière Rouge, à raison du grand commerce qui se fait sur cet important cours d'eau, un établissement de ce genre ne serait pas moins nécessaire que sur le Mississipi lui-même. Il est absolument nécessaire que sur un si grand passage, il y ait quelque asile où l'on puisse recueillir les personnes malades et leur porter secours.

Il est nécessaire aussi d'avoir là un asile pour préserver les villes et les campagnes des ravages de l'épidémie qui est sujette à être importée des régions basses de l'Etat. C'est de cette manière que s'est introduite la fièvre jaune, l'été passé, et tout le monde sait quelles traces sinistres de son passage, elle a laissé derrière elle.

En fait, la campagne de la Rivière Rouge a souffert plus qu'aucune autre partie de l'Etat, en proportion de sa population. Ainsi, un hopital de marine, si on en établissait un dans cette contrée, joindrait aux avantages que procurent ordinairement de semblables établissements, l'inestimable bienfait de préserver le pays environnant des atteintes des épidémies, parce que, dès qu'une personne sentirait les premières attaques de la maladie, elle serait transportée dans cet hopital. De cette façon, toute communication serait interrompue entre le patient et la population, et, parconséquent, on n'aurait plus à craindre la contagion. Pour ces raisons, j'espère que le bill sera adopté.

M. KENNER. Pour ma part, je dois avouer que je ne vois aucune objection à ce bill. Il est vrai, comme l'a fait très bien remarquer l'hon. sénateur des Rapides, que la Rivière Rouge n'est pas une mer, mais je l'ai vue par moments avoir 40 miles de large et, conséquemment, présenter l'aspect d'une mer intérieure. A ces époques d'inondation, on pouvait naviguer sur la Rivière Rouge et dans toute la campagne environnante, sans apercevoir la terre d'aucun côté.

Celui qui eût vu cette rivière pour la première fois alors, certes, ne l'eût pas prise pour un des affluents du Mississipi, mais bien pour un immense lac. Au surplus, s'il fallait absolument trouver quelque analogie entre la Rivière Rouge et la mer, je dirais d'abord que cette rivière est extrêmement profonde par intervalles et roule des masses d'eau considérables; j'ajouterai qu'on trouve sur ses rives des sources d'eau salées et de vastes plaines de sel. Ainsi, pourquoi n'aurions nous pas un hopital de marine à Alexandrie? Il serait tout aussi à propos d'en avoir un là qu'à Memphis ou à Paducah. Mais, quelque pût être le résultat pratique de cet hopital, je crains fort qu'il n'existe jamais, et que nous ne perdions en ce moment notre temps et notre éloquence. Il est probable que cet établissement ne coûtera pas bien cher à l'Union, car, pour ma part, je ne crois pas que le Congrès fasse la moindre attention à notre requête.

M. KING. Je suis opposé à la résolution dans sa forme actuelle. Je pense, avec le sénateur de l'Ascension, que, même si nous votons le bill, le Congrès n'en fera pas grand cas. Mais, malgré cela, je ne voterai pas la proposition, s'il n'y est fait un amendement. Le mot marine venant du mot mer, il est nécessaire, si les Etats-Unis consentent à placer là un hopital de marine, qu'ils y envoient aussi des malades ayant été marins. Or, je doute qu'il y en ait beaucoup dans cette portion de la Louisiane. Si ce n'est pas ainsi qu'on l'entend, alors ce n'est pas un hopital de marine qu'on demande, c'est un hopital ordinaire comme il y en a dans tout l'intérieur.

M RYAN Je dirai à l'hon. sénateur que je suis moi-même quelque peu latiniste, et que je connais parfaitement l'étymologie du mot marine, qu'il vient d'expliquer au Sénat. C'est du reste ce que j'avais moi-même constaté, il y a quelques moments. Mais je pense que le Sénat m'a compris, et que je n'aurai pas besoin d'entrer dans de nouvelles explications. Je répète qu'on a déjà établi des hopitaux, dits de marine, sur les bords du Mississipi et sur d'autres rivières. De sorte que je ne comprends pas comment il y aurait inopportunité dans notre demande d'un établissement du même genre sur la Rivière Rouge. Un asile de cette nature est indispensable, et il est inutile de considérer à l'avance si le Congrès fera droit à notre requête. Nous ne perdrons toujours pas à essayer.

M. TRUDEAU. Je voterai contre la résolution précisément par les mêmes raisons qu'allègue pour l'appuyer le sénateur des Rapides. Je pense que si un hopital était créé, et qu'on y recueillît les personnes malades de l'épidémie, il y aurait beaucoup plus de danger que le mal se répandit au dehors que si l'hopital n'existait pas.

ORDRE DU JOUR.

Voici la teneur de ce bill.

ACTE

POUR POURVOIR A L'ENREGISTREMENT DES HYPOTHEQUES TACITES ET LEGALES.

Section 1ère — Il est décrété par le Sénat et par la Chambre des Représentants de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale.

Qu'aucune hypothèque légale ou tacite n'aura d'effet, à moins que preuve écrite ne soit inscrite dans le livre des hypothèques au domicile du débiteur de la manière et dans la forme prescrites pour les hypothèques conventionnelles et seulement pour la somme pour laquelle elle est inscrite.

Section 2. — Il est de plus décrété, &c, que preuve écrite, en ce qui regarde les mineurs, les interdits et les absents, sera le ou les bonds officiels de leur tuteur ou curateur, lequel devra être donné conformément aux lois existantes et à la 3me section de cet acte, et lorsqu'une propriété qui appartient en commun à un mineur et à son père ou à sa mère est adjugée au père ou à la mère, le jugement qui fait adjudication de la propriété, mentionnera le montant pour lequel la propriété est adjugée, et l'inscrira dans le livre des hypothèques, et le jugement, faisant l'adjudication de la propriété, sera comme nul et non avenu jusqu'à ce que ladite inscription ait été faite.

Section 3. — Il est de plus décrété, &c., qu'il sera du devoir des greffiers des différentes cours de cet Etat, d'exiger un bon de tous les tuteurs naturels, tuteurs testamentaires et autres, qui, par les lois existantes, sont exemptes de fournir un bon avec garantie pour le même montant qui serait exigé d'eux, s'ils étaient tenus de fournir caution, et il sera du devoir desdits greffiers de faire inscrire au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, au domicile du tuteur ou du curateur, lesdits bons ainsi que les bons des autres tuteurs ou curateurs de personnes interdites ou absentes, immédiatement après leur exécution, et avant d'administrer le serment d'office ou d'émettre des lettres de tutelle ou de curatelle, les frais devant être payés des biens du mineur, de l'interdit ou de l'absent.

Section 4. — Il est de plus décrété, &c., qu'il ne sera pas légal pour un tuteur-curateur, de prendre possession de ou de l'immiscer en aucune manière dans la propriété d'aucun mineur ou personne interdite, qui peut être acquise par héritage ou donation pendant la tutelle ou curatelle, jusqu'à ce qu'il ou qu'ils fait inventoriser ladite propriété, et qu'ils aient fourni un bon sur le montant de ladite propriété, et fait enregistrer ledit bon dans le bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, ainsi qu'il y est pourvu dans la section précédente, et aucun reçu ou quittance de propriété acquise ne sera valide ou d'aucun effet, à moins que le bon ne soit enregistré ainsi qu'il y est pourvu.

Section 5. — Il est de plus décrété, &c., que l'office de tous les tuteurs et curateurs dans cet Etat, expirera le premier jour de janvier 1854, à moins que, dans l'intervalle, lesdits tuteur ou curateur ne fasse enregistrer dans le bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, au domicile dudit tuteur ou curateur, son bon fourni ou devant être fourni, ainsi qu'il est pourvu plus haut, et qu'il ne le présente de nouveau au bureau du greffier, avec le certificat du conservateur des hypothèques, prouvant qu'il a été dûment enregistré.

Section 6. — Il est de plus décrété, &c., que la preuve écrite dont l'enregistrement est requis pour les femmes mariées, peut être le contrat de mariage, les actes de vente des biens de la femme, le reçu du mari pour les biens de sa femme, acquis par elle pendant le mariage, soit par héritage ou donation ou toute déclaration écrite ou mémorandum faits par le mari, la femme ou une tierce personne quelconque, indiquant le montant et l'origine du titre de l'hypothèque. Pourvu que la femme établisse ses demandes par preuves légales, et que les reçus du mari, les déclarations ou mémorandums auxquels il est fait allusion plus haut, soient reçus seulement pour prouver l'enregistrement, à moins qu'ils ne soient pas eux-mêmes des preuves légales ; et pourvu qu'il soit du devoir des parents, tuteurs et toutes autres personnes faisant des paiements ou des donations au mari, pour être remis à sa femme, de faire enregistrer, dans le bureau du conservateur des hypothèques les mois desdits paiements ou donations ; et aucun reçu ne sera valide ou d'aucun effet à moins qu'il ne soit enregistré ainsi qu'il vient d'être dit. Ces dispositions de cette section ne seront pas en vigueur, pour ceux qui peuvent s'être mariés antérieurement à la promulgation de cet acte, si ce n'est à partir du 1er janvier 1856.

Section 7. — Il est de plus décrété, &c., que les hypothèques en faveur des mineurs, des interdits, des absents et des femmes mariées, une fois enregistrées, resteront en vigueur sans l'enregistrement au bout de dix ans, à moins qu'elles ne soient concellées.

M. KING. Comme il y a plusieurs sénateurs qui n'étaient pas ici l'année passée quand le bill a été discuté, je me sens obligé de faire quelques remarques sur la question.

M. WICKLIFFE. Avant que M. King aille plus loin, je désirerais introduire un bill dont je présenterai quelques sections à la place du bill déjà présenté. Ce nouveau bill a été renvoyé au comité judiciaire, et, sans aucun doute, pris en haute considération par ce comité. C'était dû aux lumières d'un membre de l'autre Chambre, qui est on ne peut plus compétent pour faire ce projet de loi.

ACTE

Ordonnant l'inscription des hypothèques tacites, en faveur des mineurs et des femmes mariées.

Section 1. — Il est résolu par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentants de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale ;

Qu'à compter du 1er jour d'avril 1855, aucune hypothèque n'aura d'effet et d'existence contre les tiers de bonne foi qu'autant qu'elle sera dûment inscrite au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques. L'inscription faite, l'hypothèque frappera les propriétés territoriales, et les esclaves tant attachés à ces propriétés qu'indépendants de ces mêmes propriétés, mais habitant la paroisse où elles sont situées, et frappera également les autres esclaves dans la paroisse où le débiteur a son domicile ou sa résidence habituelle.

Section 2. — Résolu ; qu'il sera du devoir de tous notaires publics ou autres officiers, en exerçant les fonctions, de faire transcrire au bureau des hypothèques dans la paroisse où réside la partie contre laquelle l'hypothèque peut exister, tout acte passé devant eux et dans lequel, en vertu des lois existantes, une hypothèque légale est accordée en faveur de la femme, sur la propriété de son mari ; soit que ledit acte soit un contrat de mariage ou tout autre acte pouvant servir à indiquer les sommes d'argent ou autres biens ou valeurs que la femme peut avoir apportés par voie de douaire au moment du mariage ; soit enfin que ce soient des quittances ou autres actes servant à indiquer le montant des sommes ou les autres biens et valeurs reçus par elle ou par son mari pour son compte pendant le mariage ; que tous notaires publics ou personnes en exerçant les fonctions qui négligeront de se conformer aux prescriptions de cette section, quant à la transcription des actes plus haut men-tionnés, seront personnellement passibles envers la personne qui aura pu souffrir de ce défaut de transcription, de tous dommages et intérêts, et, de plus, seront considérés comme coupables de malversation dans l'exercice de leurs fonctions, et, en conséquence de ce, après instruction de l'affaire, destitués de leurs dites fonctions et condamnés à une amende et à un emprisonnement dont le montant et la durée sont à la discrétion du juge.

Section 3. — Résolu de plus ; que toutes les fois qu'une femme mariée recueillera par héritage ou par testament, des biens immeubles ou des sommes d'argent, il sera du devoir des exécuteurs, curateurs ou administrateurs qui recevront des biens ou valeurs, de retirer du mari une quittance authentique de l'argent ou des biens reçus, laquelle quittance sera transcrite au bureau des hypothèques dans la paroisse où le mari réside, s'il réside dans cet Etat, et formera hypothèque contre lui ; mais les biens ou l'argent ne seront délivrés au mari que lorsqu'il aura prêté serment que ladite quittance a été transcrite dans la paroisse où il réside et dans toutes les autres paroisses de l'Etat où il peut posséder d'autres immeubles : Résolu que cette section ne s'appliquera pas aux cas où la femme est séparée de biens d'avec son mari, et administre elle-même sa fortune ; et résolu encore qu'une quittance de ce genre ne prouvera la délivrance des fonds ou des biens au mari, que lorsque cette quittance sera endossée " payée" par la personne à qui le paiement ou la délivrance auront été faits, lequel endossement doit porter une date postérieure à la transcription.

Tout exécuteur testamentaire, curateur ou administrateur qui négligera d'accomplir le devoir qui lui est imposé par cette section, non seulement sera personnellement passible de tous dommages envers la personne qui aura souffert de sa négligence, mais encore sera destitué de ses fonctions, et, après conviction, sera condamné à une amende et à un emprisonnement à la discrétion de la Cour.

Il sera du devoir des clercs de Cours de justice, qui trouveront, dans les archives desdites Cours, des pièces constatant l'existence d'une hypothèque légale sur la propriété du mari en faveur de la femme, si ces pièces n'ont pas déjà été transcrites, de les faire transcrire au bureau des hypothèques, et faute de le faire d'ici au 1er avril 1854, au plus tard, ils seront responsables envers toute femme mariée des dommages qu'elle a pu souffrir par suite de cette négligence, et condamnés de plus à une amende de 100 piastres, dont moitié appartiendra à la personne poursuivante. Pour chaque transcription que les clercs des Cours auront ainsi fait faire, ils recevront un droit fixe de une piastre et demie, en dehors de ce qui pourra être dû et payé au conservateur des hypothèques pour cette même transcription.

Section 4. — Il est de plus résolu &c., que toutes les fois que le tuteur d'un mineur ou le curateur des biens d'un absent ou d'un interdit, aura été désigné par le juge ou par toute autre autorité compétente pour nommer les tuteurs et curateurs, le greffier de la Cour livrera à la personne ainsi désignée ou à son agent ou avocat, une copie de l'ordre de nomination, afin qu'elle puisse être transcrite au bureau des hypothèques, conformément à cet acte, ainsi que des lettres de curatelle qui ne seront délivrées qu'après que ledit ordre aura été enregistré, et après que la personne ainsi nommée à la tutelle ou à la curatelle, aura prêté et signé le serment suivant :

" Je (A. B) tuteur de l'enfant ou des enfants nommé ou nommés, ou curateur de — absent, ou de — interdit —, selon que le cas l'exige, jure solennellement (ou affirme, — si la personne a des scrupules de conscience à prêter un serment), que j'ai fait enregistrer au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, l'ordre de nomination qui m'a été donné, dans la paroisse où je réside et dans toutes les paroisses de cet Etat où je possède des propriétés foncières ;"

Lequel serment doit être enregistré par le greffier dans son bureau.

Rien dans cet acte n'empêchera les tuteurs de donner une hypothèque spéciale au lieu de l'hypothèque générale en faveur des mineurs à laquelle la loi pourvoit ; mais dans tous les cas de cette nature, chaque tuteur, avant d'entrer dans l'exercice de ses fonctions, au lieu de la dernière clause de la formule ci-dessus, sera tenu de prêter serment que ladite hypothèque a été enregistrée dans la paroisse ou les paroisses, suivant le cas, de cet Etat, dans laquelle lesdites propriétés, ainsi spécialement hypothéquées, sont situées.

Section 5. Résolu de plus, &c., que les fonctions de tous tuteurs et curateurs d'absents ou interdits, dans cet Etat, actuellement en exercice, cesseront de droit le premier juillet prochain, à moins que, dans l'intervalle, ces officiers n'aient fait transcrire leurs lettres originaires de tutelle ou de curatelle, ou une copie de ces mêmes lettres, ou un certificat du clerc indiquant la date de leur nomination dans la forme prescrite par la précédente section du présent acte, pour la transcription des ordres de nomination, et à moins qu'ils n'aient prêté le serment ordonné par cette même section, lequel serment devra être également transcrit. Lesdites lettres, une fois transcrites, donneront effet à l'hypothèque, à partir de la date de la nomination originaire du tuteur ou du curateur. Si le tuteur, au lieu d'une hypothèque générale sur tous ses biens, a donné, dans les formes déterminées par la loi, une hypothèque spéciale, il pourra continuer à agir à la condition d'affirmer par serment, dans le délai ci-dessus prescrit, que cette hypothèque spéciale a été transcrite de la manière indiquée dans la section qui précède.

Section 6. — Résolu de plus, &c., que, à partir dudit jour 1er juillet prochain, il sera du devoir de tous clercs des Cours de justice de cet Etat, excepté les clercs de la Cour Suprême, dans les archives desquelles Cours il se trouvera des pièces constatant la nomination de tuteurs ou de curateurs d'absents ou interdits, de feuilleter lesdites archives, et de, dans les 10 jours après le 1er juillet, faire une liste correcte de toutes lesdites tutelles ou curatelles dont ces archives feront mention ; laquelle liste désignera les noms des mineurs et des tuteurs curateurs, nommés antérieurement à cet acte, avec les dates de leurs nominations. La liste, ainsi achevée, sera conservée comme partie intérante des archives de la Cour.

Il sera en outre du devoir du clerc de faire trois copies de ladite liste, dont l'une sera tenue affichée à un endroit apparent dans son office, pendant l'espace de 40 jours ; une autre sera tenue affichée à la porte dans la salle d'audience de la maison de Cour pendant le même espace de temps ; et la 3me sera délivré au juge de sa Cour, ou de la Cour compétente en ces matières, immédiatement, si ladite Cour est en session, si non, au plus prochain terme de session de ladite Cour. Le clerc recevra une piastre de chaque tuteur ou curateur pour faire lesdites listes.

Il sera en outre du devoir desdits clercs, s'ils ont qualité pour cela, ou à leur défaut des juges ou autres autorités compétentes, de sortir ou faire sortir un avis, lequel sera notifié par le shérif dans la forme prescrite pour les citations à faire aux tuteurs ou curateurs qui ont omis de faire confirmer leur nomination. Cette notification leur enjoindra de comparaître dans les cinq jours devant lesdits clercs ou juges, ou autres autorités compétentes, afin d'avoir à se faire confirmer dans leurs fonctions, conformément aux prescriptions du présent acte. Pour ce, le shérif recevra la même indemnité que celle allouée par la loi pour les citations.

Faute par le shérif d'avoir fait ladite notification dans les cas où c'est lui qui doit la faire, ou d'en faire le retour dans les cinq jours qui suivent, non seulement il sera passible envers les mineurs et autres parties intéressées de tous dommages et dépens, mais encore il sera soumis à une amende de vingt piastres (qui appartiendra aux mineurs), par chaque cas où il manquera à ce devoir ; et si la notification ne peut pas être faite, le shérif devra retourner les pièces dans les vingt jours de la délivrance qui lui en aura été faite. La même pénalité et amende seront encourues par le shérif s'il manque à une seule des obligations qui lui sont imposées par le présent acte.

Si le tuteur ou curateur comparait dans le délai prescrit, et demande sa confirmation, il sera soumis aux formalités ordonnées par le présent acte, c'est-à-dire qu'il prêtera le serment voulu par la 4me section, et affirmera en outre qu'il a fait transcrire une copie de ses lettres originaires de tutelle ou curatelle, ou bien un certificat du clerc indiquant la date de sa nomination première, et que cette transcription a été faite tant dans la paroisse où il réside que dans toutes les paroisses de l'Etat où il possède des immeubles. Alors, ces lettres ou certificats ainsi transcrits, emporteront hypothèque sur la propriété, à compter du jour de la nomination primitive. Mais si le tuteur a donné une hypothèque spéciale, alors il devra simplement prêter serment que ladite hypothèque spéciale a été inscrite au bureau de la paroisse où est situé l'immeuble hypothéqué. L'inscription dont il est ici question, devra être faite dans les 40 jours qui suivront la demande de confirmation par le tuteur.

Si le tuteur ou curateur ne comparait pas dans le délai voulu, ou si, après sa comparution, il n'a pas rempli dans les 40 jours les formalités prescrites, le clerc, s'il en a le pouvoir, ou sinon, le juge, ou toute autre autorité compétente, procédera, selon le cas, à la nomination d'un autre tuteur ou curateur remplissant les conditions voulues par la loi, et méritant de remplir lesdites fonctions, et il sera du devoir du nouvel élu de s'adresser immédiatement au clerc pour avoir copie des lettres de tutelle ou curatelle originairement données au tuteur ou curateur déchu, ou un certificat constatant la date de la nomination originaire de son prédécesseur. Ces lettres ou certificat seront transcrits à sa vigilance, au bureau des hypothèques, à moins que ces pièces ne l'aient déjà été dans la paroisse où réside son prédécesseur, ou dans laquelle il résidait, s'il est mort, ainsi que dans toute autre paroisse de l'Etat dans les limites de laquelle il a quelque raison de croire que son prédécesseur possède ou possédait des immeubles ; et si son prédécesseur a donné une hypothèque spéciale qui n'a pas été transcrite, (au lieu de l'hypothèque générale), il sera de son devoir de faire transcrire cette hypothèque spéciale dans la paroisse ou les paroisses de cet Etat où sont situés les immeubles hypothéqués ; et de plus il sera encore de son devoir de faire transcrire de la même manière les pièces de toute tutelle ou curatelle antérieure, ou de toute autre hypothèque aussi antérieure, toutes lesquelles pièces ainsi transcrites, emporteront hypothèque sur les immeubles des tuteurs ou curateurs antérieurs, à compter de la date de leurs nominations respectives.

Pour toute négligence dans l'accomplissement des devoirs prescrits par la présente section, le tuteur ou curateur ainsi nommé, sera responsable envers les mineurs ou autres personnes intéressées, de tous dommages et dépens que cette négligence peut avoir occasionnés, et, de plus, sera soumis, dans le cas où le mineur aurait quelque perte à supporter, aux peines édictées par la loi criminelle contre les tuteurs qui détournent ou dissipent les valeurs dont ils sont chargés, et, après instruction du procès et conviction légale, sera condamné aux travaux forcés pendant un temps qui ne pourra excéder deux années.

Il sera encore du devoir de tout tuteur ou curateur nommé en vertu de cette section, d'intenter, s'il est nécessaire, une action contre tous tuteurs ou curateurs antérieurs, pour obtenir le recouvrement des sommes ou valeurs qui peuvent être par eux dues aux mineurs dont ils ont été tuteurs ou curateurs.

Résolu qu'à quelque époque que ce soit, avant que le tuteur nouvellement élu ait rempli les formalités voulues, il sera facultatif à la personne ayant pouvoir et qualité pour cela, de renommer le tuteur ou curateur originaire, si ce dernier fournissait la preuve qu'il n'a été coupable d'aucune négligence, et offrait de remplir les formalités prescrites par le présent acte. Le tuteur ou curateur qui négligera de remplir ces formalités, sera passible des dépens indiqués par cette section.

Section 7. — Résolu en outre, &c., que lorsqu'un tuteur ne réside pas ou cesse de résider dans la paroisse où il a été nommé dans l'origine, la notification ordonnée par la section précédente sera envoyée par le clerc au shérif de la paroisse où réside ledit tuteur ou curateur, et il sera alloué à ce dernier 20 jours pour faire sa comparution et sa demande de confirmation dans ses fonctions, et le shérif aura 40 jours pour faire le retour des pièces, mais sans néanmoins que le retour puisse excéder 20 jours après la notification.

Tout shérif qui manquera aux devoirs prescrits dans cette section, sera soumis aux pénalités portées contre cette omission par la section qui précède.

Section 8. — Résolu en outre, &c., que si un tuteur ou curateur nommé avant la promulgation de la présente loi, ne réside pas ou a cessé de résider dans la paroisse de sa nomination originaire, et que le lieu de sa nouvelle résidence soit inconnu, s'il ne comparait pas pour demander sa confirmation dans ses fonctions, dans les 40 jours après le 1er juillet prochain, il sera du devoir de l'autorité compétente de procéder à son remplacement, pourvu, bien entendu, qu'il soit constaté dans la procédure, pour la nomination nouvelle, que la résidence du tuteur ou curateur à remplacer, est inconnue.

Section 9. — Résolu en outre, &c., que si un tuteur ou curateur nommé à l'avenir, transporte son domicile hors de la paroisse dans laquelle il résidait au temps de sa nomination, il sera de son devoir, à moins qu'il n'ait donné une hypothèque spéciale au lieu d'une hypothèque générale, de faire immédiatement après son changement de domicile, transcrire au bureau des hypothèques de la paroisse où il aura pris domicile, les titres hypothécaires existant contre lui, soit comme tuteur, soit comme curateur, et il aura soin de remplir les mêmes formalités à chaque fois qu'il changera le lieu de sa résidence. Et dans le cas où, sans changer de domicile, un tuteur ou sa curateur acquerrait des propriétés foncières ou des esclaves dans une autre paroisse, postérieurement à sa nomination, il devra faire inscrire l'hypothèque légale au bureau de ladite paroisse. Pour toute négligence dans l'accomplissement de ce devoir, les tribunaux compétents devront le destituer de ses fonctions et le remplacer par un autre.

Ledit tuteur ou curateur sera de plus condamné à payer à la personne nommée à sa place, une somme qui ne pourra être inférieure à 100 piastres, ni supérieure à 1,000 piastres, de laquelle somme le recouvrement pourra être poursuivi devant tout tribunal compétent.

Si quelque perte ou dommage résultait pour le mineur ou pour l'absent ou interdit, de la négligence du tuteur ou curateur qui a changé de résidence ou qui a acquis des propriétés immobilières ou des esclaves depuis sa nomination, dans d'autres paroisses que celle de sa résidence, et de l'omission par ce dernier de l'inscription de l'hypothèque dans les paroisses où ces biens sont situés, non seulement ce tuteur ou curateur sera responsable envers le mineur ou l'absent ou l'interdit, de tous dépens, dommages et intérêts, mais encore il sera considéré comme coupable de dissipation, et, après conviction légale, condamné à une amende et à un emprisonnement laissés à la discrétion de la Cour.

Section 10. — Résolu de plus, &c., que toute autre personne qui prendra possession d'une propriété appartenant à un mineur qui n'a pas de tuteur et qui conservera ladite propriété sans en avoir donné connaissance au tribunal qui a compétence pour nommer des tuteurs et demandé la nomination soit de lui-même, soit de toute autre personne possédant les qualités requises et consentant à se charger de ladite tutelle, non seulement sera personnellement passible de tous dommages causés par ladite possession, mais encore sera considérée comme coupable de spoliation, et sera, après conviction, condamnée à une amende ou à un emprisonnement laissés à la discrétion du juge.

Section 11. — Résolu de plus, &c, qu'il sera du droit de toute personne, sous la seule condition d'avancer les frais, de demander la transcription à tel bureau d'hypothèque que de droit, de tout acte ou document tendant à indiquer l'existence d'une hypothèque légale, comme aussi de tous documents ou certificats qui, en vertu de la présente loi, sont considérés comme donnant lieu à une hypothèque légale, et il sera du devoir de tous les conservateurs des hypothèques, d'exiger ladite transcription à toute réquisition.

Section 12. — Résolu de plus, &c, que tout clerc d'une Cour de Justice de cet Etat qui n'aura pas accompli les devoirs que lui impose le présent acte, ou qui se sera rendu coupable d'une négligence volontaire, à cet égard, sera destitué de ses fonctions par le juge de la Cour dont il sera clerc, et, de plus, sera passible envers les mineurs, de tous dépens, dommages et intérêts. Il aura néanmoins le droit de former appel de ce jugement devant la Cour Suprême.

Section 13. — Résolu de plus, &c., que tout juge ou officier de justice qui aura méconnu les devoirs que lui impose la présente loi, sera considéré comme coupable de malversation dans ses fonctions, et pourra être destitué desdites fonctions par voie d'empêchement ou d'adresse.

Section 14. — Résolu de plus, &c., qu'il ne sera pas nécessaire, à l'avenir, de renouveler, après le laps de dix années, l'inscription des hypothèques légales en faveur des mineurs, des femmes mariées, des interdits ou des absents. L'inscription, une fois faite, conservera sa force et sa validité, jusqu'à l'extinction de l'hypothèque par paiement, prescription ou autrement.

Section 15. — Résolu de plus, &c., que toutes lois ou parties de lois contraires au présent acte, ou contradictoires avec ses dispositions, sont et demeurent abrogées.

Section 16. — Résolu enfin, &c., que l'Imprimeur de l'Etat est invité à publier, pour être distribués en forme de pamphlet, 5,000 exemplaires du présent Acte, dans le plus bref délai possible, après le passage dudit Acte. La distribution en sera faite comme suit : Une demi-douzaine à chaque clerc des Cours de District, un exemplaire à chaque officier public de l'Etat, et le reste, aux membres des deux branches de la présente Législature ; cette distribution sera faite avec affranchissement des droits de poste. L'imprimeur avancera les frais de cet affranchissement, et en portera le montant sur son bill contre l'Etat.

M. KING. Quand le bill a été introduit, je n'ai présenté aucune explication sur son caractère et son but. Je ne puis donc pas laisser arriver sous les yeux du Sénat, une question d'une importance aussi vitale, sans dire quelques mots à ce sujet. J'essaierai donc de donner un rapide aperçu des maux auxquels il est destiné à porter remède, et je conclurai par une histoire résumée du caractère et des opérations anticipées du bill lui-même.

Je tiens pour certain que ce bill sera reçu dans le pays avec une satisfaction universelle. Tout le monde trouvera que c'est un acte de haute justice et en même temps de bonne et sage administration, que de faire disparaître ces entraves qui s'opposent sans cesse à la libre transmission de la propriété. Sous l'empire du système actuel, pas de sécurité possible pour l'acquéreur de biens immeubles. Il est certain que certains droits doivent être protégés, mais doivent-ils l'être au détriment de tous les droits des tiers? Evidemment non. Une pareille doctrine conduirait au plus insupportable despotisme. Il y a longtemps que le commerce souffre de cet état de choses. Nous devons enfin mettre un terme à des obstacles qui s'opposent au libre développement de l'industrie. Car rien n'est plus funeste à son essor que les barrières jetées devant la libre circulation des capitaux. Or, la peur est la plus redoutable de ces barrières. Du moment où il n'y a pas sécurité pour le prêteur, il n'y a plus de prêt possible. Le mal que je vous signale, et auquel le bill doit porter remède, il n'était pas besoin de l'œil du juriste pour le découvrir. Toutes les classes de la société en ont trop souffert pour ne l'avoir pas dénoncé depuis longtemps à la sollicitude des Législateurs. Or ceci n'est pas une simple assertion que j'apporte devant cette assemblée. A l'appui de mon affirmation, je vais établir des faits et exposer quelques-uns des maux qu'engendre le système qui nous régit actuellement. Et d'abord, le nom même de la chose que nous voulons détruire n'est-il pas une première preuve de mes assertions? Une hypothèque tacite! Est-ce que ce nom n'a pas par lui-même quelque chose de sinistre et d'effrayant pour l'acheteur ou le prêteur sur hypothèques! Comment voulez-vous qu'il ait confiance? Au moment où il va verser son argent, ne sent-il pas un ennemi caché dans une embuscade, un ennemi toujours effrayant, parce qu'il est inconnu, un ennemi invisible retranché derrière ce nom ténébreux hypothèque tacite!

Mais derrière ce voile il y a tout pour le capitaliste ; il y a sa ruine et celle des siens. N'y a-t-il pas mille causes d'hypothèque tacite? Comment les connaître toutes? Comment savoir si un homme a eu n'a pas été tuteur, s'il a fait un juste emploi des capitaux dont il avait la garde? Ce n'est pas tout de savoir même si cet homme peut être frappé d'hypothèque légales. Mais quand à force de peines, de soins et de recherches, vous serez parvenu à connaître toute sa vie, et avoir la conviction que vous n'avez rien à craindre de son côté, serez-vous pleinement rassurés? Pas le moins du monde. Et les auteurs de cet homme? Ceux de qui il tient sa propriété, les connaissez-vous tous? Et ils peuvent être fort nombreux. Comment aller chercher dans un inextricable dédale de successions, dans la vie de propriétaires antérieurs qui, n'eussent-ils été propriétaires qu'un moment, ont pu, à leur insu même, être frappés d'hypothèques légales et tacites, comment dis-je, retrouver dans ce dédale le fil que vous cherchez? Et si ce fil se brise entre vos doigts, si vous le perdez un seul moment, il se peut que dans ce moment même il soit né une hypothèque tacite qui causera votre ruine! En vérité, cela ne se peut pas. Protégeons les faibles, rien de mieux. Mais ne ruinons pas dix forts pour assurer les droits d'un faible. Protégeons ouvertement, et non clandestinement. Dites à un tuteur, à un curateur, à un mari: L'hypothèque légale dont vous être frappé, vous la ferez inscrire, et vous y serez obligés sous peine de telle amende. Proportionnez l'amende à la fortune. Enfin, prenez vos sûretés, et frappez, mais frappez ouvertement. Que les tiers sachent à quoi s'en tenir.

On comprendra facilement que les principes qui doivent guider le législateur, sont ceux d'un sage équilibre entre les intérêts divergents qu'ils ont pour mission de concilier. De ce que les mineurs et les femmes mariées sont des êtres faibles vis-à-vis de la loi, et qui ont conséquemment droit à sa protection, il ne s'en suit pas qu'il faille leur sacrifier complètement les intérêts du commerce et de l'industrie. Le remède serait alors pire que le mal. Est-ce donc que nous vous demandions d'abolir l'hypothèque légale de ces mineurs? Nullement. Nous demandons qu'elle soit inscrite, c'est-à dire connue de tous, exposée à la face du soleil. Nous voulons qu'un tiers en prêtant de l'argent sur une propriété ou en mettant une enchère sur cette propriété, sache ce qu'il fait. Nous voulons qu'il sache si cette propriété est grevée d'hypothèques, ou si elle est libre de toute charge, parceque, dans le premier cas, le capitaliste peut être allèché par une croyance trompeuse, et engloutir son argent dans un abîme dont il ne connaît pas le fond; et, parceque dans le second cas, c'est-à-dire si la propriété n'est pas grevée, le capitaliste, dans le doute où il est tenu, n'offrira qu'un prix très médiocre ou prêtera son argent à un taux très élevé. Car, encore une fois, il a peur. Eh bien, conservez aux mineurs ce gage légal que la sagesse des premiers législateurs a eu raison de leur donner, mais inscrivez-le. Cherchez le moyen le plus efficace pour arriver à faire que cette inscription soit toujours faite. Punissez sévèrement toute négligence coupable. Mais il est du plus haut intérêt pour le pays que cette obscurité disparaisse. Si vous voulez appeler la confiance, il ne faut rien cacher.

Faut-il mettre sous les yeux du Sénat, le tableau du tort effectif que céla cause au commerce de notre pays? En Europe, il y a peu de temps de cela, on pouvait se procurer de l'argent sur hypothèque, à quatre pour cent par an: et aujourd'hui, à raison du désordre apporté dans l'industrie par les troubles politiques, on peut même en obtenir à trois pour cent par an. A New York, on peut en avoir, sur gage hypothécaire, à six pour cent par an. Il est avéré que, toutes choses égales, le capitaliste préfère le gage hypothécaire à tous les autres gages. Il le considère, à juste titre, comme le meilleur qui puisse lui être offert. C'est, qu'en effet, quels que soient les changements qui s'opèrent autour de nous, la terre seule, notre vieille et bonne mère, se tient toujours là, stable et immobile. On la retrouve toujours où on l'a laissée. Sous un bon système de lois, ce serait donc le meilleur gage qui fût.

Mais en est-il de même dans notre Etat? N'est-ce pas tout le contraire? Et d'où vient cette condition anormale et antinaturelle à laquelle nous sommes réduits? Est-ce qu'il n'est pas évident qu'il doit y avoir quelque vice dans notre code? Est-ce que chacun ne sent pas que c'est là que se cache le mal, et qu'il ne peut pas être ailleurs? Et bien, n'est-ce pas à nous de le découvrir et d'y porter immédiatement remède? Ce mal, nous en savons tous l'origine et la cause. Il prend sa source dans notre système d'hypothèques latentes. Sous l'empire de ce système, nous sommes arrivés à ce triste résultat, qu'au lieu d'être le meilleur de tous les gages, la propriété foncière en est chez nous le plus détestable. En Louisiane, la terre est, pratiquement parlant, un capital mort pour son propriétaire.

A la Nlle-Orléans, la propriété immobilière est inférieure au plus mauvais papier. Ce résultat, Messieurs, n'est pas dû à une cause naturelle. Il est l'effet d'une mauvaise législation.

Il y a d'autres maux encore qui sont dus à ce système d'hppathèques tacites. Tout ce système, je le répète, n'est qu'une grande trappe où viennent se prendre les innocents. Supposons, par exemple, qu'un homme achète une propriété. Il croit s'être bien assuré qu'elle n'est pas grevée. Il a demandé le certificat hypothécaire; ce certificat est négatif. Conséquemment, il se croit bien et dûment propriétaire. Il commence donc, s'il s'agit d'une maison, à faire faire des réparations; s'il s'agit d'une terre, il en fait renouveler la culture, il fait, en un mot, de grands frais d'amélioration. Et puis, un beau jour, il apprend qu'il existe sur la propriété une hypothèque légale, une hypothèque portant le nom abominable d'hypothèque tacite, c'est-à-dire traîtresse. Il se trouve ruiné.

On le voit donc, c'est déprécier la propriété que de permettre la durée d'un pareil système, et c'est en même temps tromper l'acheteur de bonne foi, qui a versé son argent en toute confiance; ou bien c'est empêcher que l'homme que des malheurs obligent à vendre à jour fixe, ne retire de sa propriété le prix qu'elle vaut réellement.

Il faut donc que ce système soit détruit. Il nous conduit aux abîmes.

Mais, disent les défenseurs de tout ce qui a le mérite de l'ancienneté, comment protégerons-nous les êtres faibles que la loi a voulu entourer de sa vigilance?

A cela je puis répondre: Et quelle garantie trouvez-vous dans le code qui nous régit? Ne voyons-nous pas tous les jours la femme renoncer volontairement à cet inappréciable gage de sécurité, devant les sollicitations d'un mari embarrassé dans ses affaires? N'est-ce pas ce qui arrive le plus fréquemment? Il faut, Messieurs, qu'un mari ait bien peu d'influence sur sa femme pour ne pas obtenir d'elle ce sacrifice volontaire. Il faut qu'il ait perdu toute son estime et même toute autorité sur elle. C'est donc un cas exceptionnel que protège la loi. Quant aux mineurs, n'arrive-t-il pas tous les jours qu'ils soient frustrés par des tuteurs trop habiles? Ainsi, malgré les sacrifices énormes que nous imposons à la société toute entière, malgré la ruine et le discrédit dont nous frappons notre commerce et notre industrie, nous arrivons à reconnaître que nous avons échoué dans nos efforts? Nous sommes forcés de nous incliner devant l'évidence de cette triste vérité, à savoir que les mineurs au profit desquels nous avions établi ce dispendieux échafaudage, n'en ont pas même profité! Ce but que vous invoquez, et dont vous vous armez pour nous combattre, vous ne l'atteignez pas! Votre système est trompeur. Il fait des promesses qu'il ne peut pas tenir. Tout le corps social souffre d'un despotisme très dur, et vous échouez dans vos efforts!

Digitized by Google

C'est qu'en effet, ce système des hypothèques occultes ne peut pas donner la protection que vous avez en vue. Il retire d'une main ce qu'il donne de l'autre. S'il conserve les droits mobiliers des mineurs, il déprécie leurs propriétés immobilières.

Chacun sait cela; aussi bien les adversaires du bill que ses partisans.

Et bien! puisque cela est démontré, puisque cela est clair, puisque l'expérience a tué à jamais ce système en portant ses vices à la connaissance de tous, pourquoi nous obstiner à le maintenir? Pourquoi maintenir debout, au prix de tant de sacrifices, ce monument du passé qui nous paraît un palais et qui n'est qu'une prison? Devons-nous, à ce point, nous prosterner devant le passé? N'y a-t-il de bon et de beau que ce qui nous vient de nos ancêtres? Le progrès n'est-il donc rien? Les leçons de l'expérience, devons-nous les fouler aux pieds? Et bien, Messieurs, ce système a fait son temps. Il pèse sur nous d'un poids insupportable; il nous écrase; il étouffe en nous la vie. Il faut nous relever enfin, et secouer cette oppression. Il faut rendre la liberté et le mouvement au commerce haletant, épuisé. Il faut conserver l'hypothèque légale, mais il faut la faire sortir de la nuit où elle se cache. Il faut la forcer à se montrer à la lumière du jour.

Faisons-le donc, car nous avons tout à gagner à ce changement. Nous pouvons remplacer le système qui nous opprime par un autre qui offre les mêmes avantages sans entraîner les mêmes inconvénients. Il y a des personnes qui sont toujours en adoration devant le passé. Conservateurs éternels, ils s'accrochent à des ruines, et ne s'aperçoivent pas que tout change autour d'eux. Qu'a donc ce vieux système de si sacré pour que nous n'osions pas y toucher? Nous a-t-il donc été apporté par les anges? Est-il le produit d'une inspiration d'en haut? Est-ce enfin la révélation de la parole de Dieu?

C'est une œuvre purement humaine, et que les hommes peuvent modifier à leur gré si la raison réclame cette modification, améliorer, si l'amélioration est possible, et enfin abroger si l'abrogation est nécessaire. Je crois le bill en ce moment soumis au Sénat, bien préférable à celui qui nous régit. Je crois même qu'il donne de plus de sûreté au mineur, parce que je suis d'avis qu'une hypothèque inscrite vaut mieux que mille hypothèques non inscrites. La non inscription de l'hypothèque peut être dans certains cas très préjudiciable à ce mineur. Un exemple le prouvera. Je suppose qu'un homme a acheté un nègre frappé d'une hypothèque légale non inscrite. S'il a quelque intention de frauder, quoi de plus aisé pour lui que de conduire le nègre hors des limites de l'Etat? Il n'y a que bien peu d'hommes qui, acquéreurs de bonne foi, et ayant payé leur prix, dans l'ignorance de cette hypothèque tacite, ne seraient pas pleinement justifiés pour avoir agi ainsi.

Je pourrais citer beaucoup d'autres cas du même genre; mais il serait inutile d'appeler sur eux l'attention de mes collègues, qui les auront présents à l'esprit, pour peu qu'ils réfléchissent sur ce sujet.

La bonne foi excuse tout. Et le mineur n'en est pas moins dépouillé. L'hypothèque inscrite, au contraire, ne se prête à aucune fraude et ne permet pas non plus à la bonne foi de s'égarer. L'avertissement est là, manifeste pour l'acquéreur, qui doit en tenir compte à ses risques et périls.

Et alors, que devient votre système d'hypothèques tacites? Où est donc cette protection si efficace et qui ne saurait être remplacée par aucune autre? Vous le voyez, Messieurs, tout cela aboutit à beaucoup de mal, et, en fin de compte, à très peu de bien.

Mais faisons maintenant l'historique du bill qui vous est soumis. Quand je fis, pour la première fois, partie du Sénat, j'étais vivement pénétré de l'importance du sujet et de la nécessité de modifier la loi existante. J'ai communiqué ma pensée à un membre distingué du barreau, aujourd'hui Sénateur au Congrès, et je m'éclaircis encore par la discussion, avant d'essayer de donner un corps à mes idées en les couchant sur le papier. Plus tard, je rédigeai un projet de résolution que je présentai à ce même jurisconsulte, et j'en envoyai copie à tous les légistes importants de l'Etat, demandant à chacun d'eux de vouloir bien m'adresser son opinion et d'y joindre ses propres observations sur les améliorations à apporter à ce projet. Je n'épargnai rien pour obtenir des éclaircissemens et des avis, et je mis à contribution les lumières de chacun. Quand le bill eût été introduit au Sénat, il fut renvoyé au comité judiciaire, devant lequel il s'établit une discussion critique très prolongée à son sujet; puis, amendé par ce comité, le bill revint devant le Sénat, qui le discuta et l'examina avec le plus grand soin. Cette nouvelle discussion le modifia encore quelque peu; enfin, il passa. Mais, arrivé devant la Chambre, il échoua. Pendant l'été qui suivit l'ajournement de la Législature, je tournai de nouveau mon attention sur ce sujet et je l'examinai de recherche avec la plus grande assiduité. Je consultai ceux de mes amis dont l'opinion me paraissait avoir quelque poids, et, après cette nouvelle étude, je rédigeai un bill semblable au premier dans l'ensemble, mais en différant cependant sur plusieurs points de détail.

Comme vous le voyez, Messieurs, ce bill n'est pas le mien seulement. Je n'en revendique pas la paternité exclusive. Il est l'œuvre de 40 ou 50 esprits différents et des plus éminents de cet Etat. Parmi ces hommes qui ont contribué de différentes manières à ce bill, je citerai spécialement M. Sh—t, un de nos honorables collègues, M. Lacey, le président distingué du comité judiciaire, et M. Benjamin, l'un de nos sénateurs au Congrès des Etats-Unis. Il a été rédigé avec soin et habileté, et renferme l'expression de la pensée de beaucoup d'hommes que le talent et l'expérience semblaient désigner principalement pour l'accomplissement d'une semblable tâche. La théorie générale du bill est que les hypothèques tacites doivent disparaître. Toutes les dispositions secondaires se relient à celle-là et s'y subordonnent. J'imagine qu'il n'y a personne ici ni ailleurs qui ne pense que les registres des hypothèques doivent montrer la position véritable de toutes les propriétés situées dans l'Etat. Il n'en est pas ainsi aujourd'hui. Le bill cherche à accomplir et à réaliser cette réforme. Certaines personnes diront que les mineurs, sous le nouveau système, pourront être victimes de la fraude; je ne le nie pas: mais je prétends qu'ils ne sont pas beaucoup à l'abri sous le système actuel. Si donc il y a égalité sur ce point entre les deux systèmes, il n'y a pas à hésiter entre les deux; car, sous tous les autres rapports, le nouveau régime hypothécaire que nous proposons de substituer à l'ancien, présente une incontestable supériorité. Les biens des mineurs doivent être protégés, assurément; mais pourquoi d'une manière spéciale? Que leurs biens soient protégés, mais comme ceux des autres personnes.

Chacun a les mêmes droits à la protection jalouse de la loi. Pas une classe de citoyens ne doit souffrir pour le bénéfice d'une autre classe. Sans doute, sous ce nouveau régime comme sous l'ancien, il y aura des abus commis, il y aura de la fraude

Mais quelle est la loi qui n'ait pas été violée? Y a-t-il une loi au monde qui n'ait jamais été enfreinte? N'avons-nous pas des lois très sévères contre l'assassinat? Cependant, on assassine. Faut-il, pour cela, supprimer la Loi? Remarquez qu'il ne faut jamais n'examiner une question que sous une seule face: Il faut la considérer sous tous les aspects. Il ne faut pas voir seulement les mineurs dans cette question. Il y a deux graves intérêts en jeu, tous les deux également respectables, l'intérêt des mineurs et l'intérêt des tiers. Si, pour assurer d'une manière absolue le premier de ces intérêts, il faut sacrifier aussi absolument le second, devra-t-on s'arrêter à ce moyen complètement injuste? Si les mineurs ne doivent pas être dépouillés, faut-il que les majeurs le soient? Pourquoi les mineurs seraient-ils placés dans cette position exceptionnelle? On leur accorde une hypothèque légale. Il est vrai que malgré la pénalité, on pourra se soustraire quelquefois à la loi, et ne pas faire inscrire l'hypothèque. Mais c'est là l'inconvénient de toutes les lois. Faut-il enchaîner la société toute entière, parceque quelques malfaiteurs peuvent être cachés dans son sein?

Non. Tout ce que peut faire le Législateur, c'est de prononcer une pénalité contre les fraudes comme contre le crime. Mais il se commettra toujours des fraudes et des crimes.

Nous vous soumettons aujourd'hui ce que nous croyons être un bon bill. C'est le résultat de longues études et de la plus mûre réflexion. C'est l'opinion des premiers jurisconsultes de l'Etat. Nous vous l'offrons comme un remède à un mal douloureux qui épuise la société, à un mal dont l'existence oppressive n'est contestée par personne, même par nos adversaires. Si le bill, tel que nous vous le présentons, laisse encore à désirer, si quelques amendements sont nécessaires pour le rendre meilleur encore, eh bien, qu'on les propose, qu'on les vote. Il est des amendements que moi-même je désire proposer, et qui peut être rendront le bill acceptable pour chacun. J'accepterai avec reconnaissance ceux qui pourront être proposés par mes collègues, de même que j'accueillerai avec bonheur tous les avis utiles qui pourront nous venir, de quelque part que ce soit. Mais enfin, Messieurs, faisons un pas, constatons un principe, sortons de cette ornière où nous sommes embourbés. Donnons au pays quelque chose qui ressemble à un progrès. Sans doute, il arrivera que nous ne serons pas tous d'accord sur chaque mot du bill, mais si nous sommes tous d'accord sur l'ensemble, nous pouvons, ce me semble, nous faire quelques concessions de détail.

M. Palfrey. Messieurs, à la dernière session de la Législature, quand un bill du même caractère que celui-ci, a été introduit devant le Sénat, j'ai pris part à la discussion qui s'y établit alors, et, quoique inaccoutumé à traiter des questions purement légales, j'ai cru de mon devoir de signaler les points de ce bill qui me paraissaient défectueux ou vicieux, de les combattre, et enfin d'essayer de faire adopter divers amendements à ce bill. J'ai eu la bonne fortune de voir accepter ces amendements par le Sénat d'alors, et ils ont passé avec le bill. Quelques autres, également proposés par moi, ont échoué devant la même assemblée. Quoique le bill, en ce moment soumis à nos délibérations, diffère en quelques points particuliers, mais d'importance secondaire, de celui présenté à la dernière session, cependant comme dans son ensemble il repose sur les mêmes principes et doit produire les mêmes effets désastreux, je me crois encore obligé, cette fois, malgré la conscience que j'ai de mon incompétence, et ma crainte de ne pas m'acquitter comme il faudrait d'une tâche aussi importante, je me crois obligé, dis-je, à commenter encore ce bill, à faire ressortir ce que j'appelle ses inconvénients, et à faire tous mes efforts pour empêcher son adoption. Tout au moins, si ce résultat est au dessus de mes forces, j'essaierai de faire accepter quelques amendements qui en diminuent la pernicieuse influence. J'espère, Messieurs, que dans cette difficile entreprise, je ne serai pas seul dans mon camp, et que, à mesure que la discussion s'avancera, des champions plus compétents et plus habiles, et que je vois à mes côtés, prendront part à la lutte, et donneront à la cause que je défends, l'appui de leur talent et des ressources que leur fournira une longue expérience et la pratique des lois.

Et, à ce propos, je ne puis m'empêcher de payer, en passant, un tribut de considération à un de nos anciens collègues, qui, à la dernière session, était au milieu de nous, et a opposé au bill auquel j'ai fait allusion, toute la vigueur de son talent et la rectitude de son esprit. Quoique ce ne soit peut-être pas régulier, je demanderai, Messieurs, qu'on veuille bien me permettre de profiter de cette occasion, la seule qui se soit encore présentée, de rendre témoignage à son caractère élevé et digne d'un homme chargé de défendre les intérêts publics. Tout le monde a compris que je veux parler de l'hon. Thomas C. Nicholls. De son siège au Sénat, le peuple de son district l'avait élevé, par vote unanime, jusqu'à un siège à la Cour. Ceux qui ont été ses compagnons de travail, ici, sur ces bancs, peuvent, comme moi, rendre hommage à son zèle pour le bien public, à l'urbanité et à l'aménité de ses manières, à sa candeur, au soin avec lequel, dans les discussions les plus chaudes, il évitait toutes personnalités disgracieuses, étranger qu'il était à l'âpreté et à la violence de l'esprit de parti. Mais on ne peut lui rendre pleinement justice, que lorsqu'on l'a connu dans sa vie privée, aussi bien que dans la sphère à laquelle il avait été appelé en quittant le Sénat. Dans l'exercice des hautes fonctions judiciaires auxquelles l'avaient élevé les suffrages unanimes de ses concitoyens, il s'est montré ferme, indépendant, impartial et éclairé. Son amour des immuables principes de la vérité et de la justice, avaient appelé la confiance sur ces décisions; et on le considérait autant comme un arbitre officieux que comme un juge. Quand il avait à décider sur des affaires criminelles, il savait allier les rigueurs de la justice avec les besoins de la clémence, et le châtiment, sans cesser d'être sévère, était cependant mitigé dans ce qu'il pouvait avoir de trop cruel.

Ce sénateur si éminent, ce magistrat si intègre, nous l'avons perdu jeune encore et dans la plénitude de ses hautes facultés. Il nous a quittés, pour comparaître lui-même devant un tribunal plus élevé que tous les tribunaux terrestres, et il y reçoit sans doute la récompense dûe à sa vie si noble et si pure.

Et maintenant, je reviens à la question hypothécaire, en priant de nouveau le Sénat de vouloir bien me pardonner cette digression en faveur d'un souvenir aussi respectable.

Je prétends donc que le bill actuellement devant le Sénat, en voulant prendre la place de la loi qui nous régit en ce moment, ne nous donnerait équivalent à ce qu'il veut détruire, en ce qui concerne la sécurité des mineurs et des femmes mariées. Selon moi, l'obligation d'inscrire les hypothèques légales est fatale aux intérêts des personnes dont il s'agit. Et cependant, Dieu me garde de faire à ce bill une opposition fanatique. Je ne suis pas si aveuglément attaché à un système particulier de législation, que je ne puisse apercevoir les mérites d'un autre système. Je l'avouerai, d'ailleurs, j'ai souvent eu à regretter les inconvénients que traîne après lui le présent système. J'ai vu avec peine la nécessité d'avoir recours à des hypothèques tacites. La plus légère réflexion fait comprendre que les intérêts de toutes les classes de la société doivent être protégés, aussi bien ceux des créanciers et des capitalistes, que ceux des mineurs et des femmes mariées.

Maintenant, lequel de ces droits devons-nous principalement protéger? le fort ou le faible? ceux qui sont en état de se protéger eux-mêmes en faisant des recherches et en s'assurant de l'état hypothécaire des immeubles qu'ils veulent acheter, ou sur lesquels ils veulent faire un prêt,—ou bien ceux qui sont incapables de rien faire pour se défendre contre la fraude?

Pour ma part, je n'éprouve pas la moindre hésitation à déclarer que, dans mon opinion, la loi doit accorder toute protection aux faibles, aux êtres incapables de se défendre par eux mêmes. Les défenseurs du bill nous ont uniformément déclaré que l'objet de ce bill est de convertir les hypothèques inconnues en hypothèques connues. Si en effet c'est là que se borne la portée du bill; s'il est vrai qu'on ne veuille que changer le caractère latent de l'hypothèque contre un caractère apparent, et si l'on est cependant prêt à conserver à l'hypothèque légale son effet général sur tous les biens présents et à venir du tuteur ou du mari, alors je n'ai pas d'objection. Mais, est-ce bien là ce qu'on veut? Je ne le pense pas. Le bill renferme certaine prescription qu'il ordonne aux tuteurs ou aux maris d'accomplir sous certaines peines. Mais supposons que des infractions à cette loi soient commises, (et les tentations ne seront que trop fréquentes), eh bien! vous appliquerez la peine. Mais cela rétablira-t-il le mineur ou la femme mariée dans ses droits? En aucune façon. Je crains bien que ce bill ne fournisse aucun moyen efficace de rendre inévitable l'inscription des hypothèques en faveur des mineurs et des femmes mariées, dans les paroisses autres que celles de la résidence du tuteur ou du mari, et sur les propriétés acquises à différentes époques depuis le mariage ou la tutelle. De sorte qu'en même temps que ce bill nous promet beaucoup, je crois qu'il tiendra fort peu; car il se trouvera sans effet dans ses principales dispositions.

On a prétendu que le système des hypothèques tacites est un obstacle à la prospérité de l'Etat, et plus particulièrement encore au développement commercial et industriel de la Nouvelle-Orléans. On a dit que ce régime produit un sentiment d'incertitude et de doute sur la validité des titres de propriété, qui éloigne les capitaux, empêche qu'ils ne soient employés en acquisition d'immeubles ou en prêts sur hypothèque, et que par conséquent il est une cause de décadence et de ruine. Mais si nous regardons autour de nous, ne pouvons-nous trouver d'autres causes à ce manque de prospérité et de développement, à cette défiance des capitaux, que celles qui ont été alléguées? Les lois qu'on veut détruire, comme étant la cause de tout ce mal, n'ont-elles donc pas toujours existé dans notre état? et cependant malgré leur existence l'Etat n'a-t-il pas, dans d'autres temps et d'autres circonstances, été florissant et prospère? Rappelez-vous ce qu'était la Louisiane jusqu'en 1837 ou 1836. Vit-on jamais développement plus rapide, prospérité plus grande, qu'à la Nouvelle-Orléans pendant de longues années avant l'époque que je viens de citer? Le déclin de la prospérité ne peut-il donc être attribué à d'autres cause qu'à l'existence de la loi hypothécaire qui est en vigueur depuis la formation du gouvernement?

Ne peut-on attribuer ce déclin, en premier lieu, à la construction de lignes de transport conduisant les produits de l'ouest à d'autres marchés que celui de la Nouvelle-Orléans; à l'insalubrité de la ville, et à l'indifférence manifeste de ses autorités en ce qui regarde l'amélioration des conditions sanitaires? Faut-il compter pour rien les énormes taxes, si propres à détourner les capitaux des propriétés foncières; et la dépression des produits de tous genres, les charges extraordinaires auxquelles ils sont assujettis, et la nécessité où se trouvent conséquemment les producteurs de les conduire par navires à d'autres marchés éloignés! Tout cela n'est-il rien à vos yeux?

Si ce décroissement de la prospérité de la ville avait réellement les causes que lui assignent les défenseurs du bill, est-ce que les intérêts de l'agriculture n'en seraient pas affectés, aussi bien que ceux de la ville? Assurément, oui. Or, à quoi doit-on attribuer la crise temporaire de l'Angleterre, si ce n'est à la dépression dans le prix de nos productions importantes? Il est déraisonnable de chercher bien loin une cause à cette souffrance toute passagère de l'agriculture, lorsque le motif en est si visible à tous les yeux. Est-ce que la valeur des propriétés territoriales ne va pas, au contraire, toujours croissant? Est-ce que cette augmentation de la valeur vénale de la terre ne marche pas assez rapidement pour démontrer qu'il y a progrès et prospérité, et pour annoncer une confiance raisonnée dans l'avenir?

Pour moi, messieurs, je ne crois pas que le temps d'arrêt qui a succédé au rapide développement de la Nouvelle-Orléans, doive être attribué à l'existence de la loi hypothécaire. Je crois qu'il y faut chercher des causes toutes différentes. Que la ville fasse nettoyer ses rues; qu'elle améliore sa condition sanitaire par des mesures sévères de salubrité; que son administration municipale apporte moins d'économie dans les détails qui intéressent la santé des citoyens et des étrangers; qu'on abaisse les taxes énormes sous lesquelles gémit la population de la ville; enfin, si l'on veut y conserver l'entrepôt des produits de l'intérieur et encourager les navires marchands à y apporter les produits du dehors, qu'on abaisse les droits de wharf et de port. Que les riches habitants de la ville construisent, au moyen de souscriptions, de nouveaux railroads; que les capitalistes ouvrent de nouveaux chemins au commerce et donnent de nouveaux encouragements à l'agriculture, et alors, vous verrez le commerce se relever et la prospérité renaître, sans qu'il soit nécessaire pour cela de sacrifier les intérêts des femmes mariées et des faibles orphelins sur l'autel des intérêts commerciaux et industriels.

Messieurs, au lieu d'attaquer la loi directement et avec des arguments de logique, on s'est plu à déverser le mépris, et, permettez-moi de le dire, la calomnie, sur cette loi hypothécaire que l'on voudrait renverser. On vous l'a peinte sous des traits hideux; on lui a jeté à la face les épithètes les plus outrageantes et les plus acerbes. On l'a traitée de loi de trahison, de loi faite pour encourager le dol et la fraude. On l'a comparée à un stylet espagnol, destiné à frapper dans l'ombre; enfin, on vous a fait apparaître à cette occasion mille visions fantastiques d'un caractère fort peu rassurant.

Eh bien, moi, messieurs, qui ne suis pas habitué aux figures du langage, et qui ne les recherche pas, si je voulais comparer à quelque chose cette loi qui a pour elle la sanction des âges et d'une sûre expérience, cette loi que nous ont transmise les profonds jurisconsultes de la grande époque romaine, et qui a été greffé sur notre code civil par les plus habiles jurisconsultes qu'ait jamais fait éclore la Louisiane, ah! certes, ce n'est pas à un stylet, à une arme traîtresse et faite seulement pour le meurtre et l'assassinat, que je voudrais la comparer; non, elle serait à mes yeux bien plutôt comme un bouclier d'airain, dont la puissance inoffensive et silencieuse couvre d'une protection efficace les faibles êtres qui sont hors d'état de se protéger eux-mêmes contre la fraude et la rapacité de leurs tuteurs infidèles.

A mon sens, c'est là une loi morale au premier chef. C'est la plus belle qu'ait pu produire la sagesse humaine; car elle est un frein mis à la cupidité des malhonnêtes gens; et nous avons la satisfaction de voir que si les enfants sont privés de la protection de parents qu'ils ont perdus, au moins ils trouvent dans la loi une seconde mère, qui leur assure la conservation de ces biens qu'avait ramassés pour eux une vie de travail et de privations. Je ne vois rien de plus désirable que la continuation de cet état de choses.

Toutefois, Messieurs, cela ne veut pas dire que je sois insensible aux inconvénients que cette loi entraîne après elle. Je sais qu'elle n'est pas parfaite; et je déclare que s'il était possible de faire disparaître les inconvénients sans diminuer la sécurité des mineurs et des femmes mariées, je verrais avec plaisir un pareil changement s'opérer dans la loi. Si donc, on peut me convaincre que les droits de ces personnes sont aussi efficacement protégés par l'hypothèque inscrite que par l'hypothèque latente, je suis prêt à retirer mon opposition. Mais c'est ce qui me paraît impossible. C'est pourquoi je persévère dans mon opposition.

Cependant, je serais bien aise qu'on essayât de concilier les deux systèmes; et, si la chose est possible, un comité nous le dira. Nommons, Messieurs, un comité à l'effet d'étudier cette question et de chercher un plan qui donne satisfaction à tous les intérêts.

Et quand ce comité l'aura trouvé, qu'il vienne le soumettre à l'Assemblée Générale; et, si le danger que j'ai signalé n'existe plus, alors, mais seulement alors, je voterai pour la réforme proposée.

M. Taudeau—Quoique je sois en faveur d'un système quelconque d'enregistrement de ces hypothèques que l'on nomme maintenant hypothèques tacites, je ne puis consentir à soutenir le bill sous sa forme actuelle et tel qu'il est présenté au Sénat. Car, Monsieur, en même temps qu'il éteint la garantie que la loi donne actuellement aux mineurs et aux femmes mariées, il ne présente aucun substitut valable. Le but de la loi est de protéger ces personnes que je viens de désigner, et rien ne saurait être plus juste, plus équitable, que la protection de leurs droits.

Ce bill peut être amendé, et de telle sorte, je crois, qu'il deviendra parfaitement acceptable. Il y a surtout une partie, un passage auxquels je suis opposé. C'est cette section qui laisse à l'option du tuteur d'enregistrer ou de ne pas enregistrer les hypothèques. Je vais lire cette section:

"Il est de plus décrété &c., Que toutes les fois que le tuteur de mineurs ou le curateur des biens d'un absent ou d'un interdit aura été désigné par le juge ou tout autre autorité compétente, pour nommer les tuteurs ou curateurs, le greffier de la cour délivrera à la personne ainsi désignée ou à son agent ou avocat, une copie de l'ordre de nomination afin qu'elle puisse être enregistrée dans le bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, conformément à cet acte; et les lettres de curatelle ne seront données qu'après que le dit ordre aura été enregistré, et après que la personne ainsi nommée comme tuteur ou curateur aura prêté et signé le serment suivant:

"Je (A. B.) tuteur de l'enfant ou des enfants nommé —— ou curateur de —— absent—ou de —— interdit, selon que le cas l'exige, jure solennellement (ou affirme, si la personne a des scrupules de conscience à prêter un serment) que j'ai fait enregistrer au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques l'ordre de nomination qui m'a été donné, dans la paroisse dans laquelle je réside et dans toutes les paroisses de cet Etat dans lesquelles je possède des propriétés foncières.

"Lequel serment doit être enregistré par le greffier dans son bureau.

Rien dans cet acte n'empêchera les tuteurs de donner une hypothèque spéciale au lieu de l'hypothèque générale en faveur des mineurs à laquelle la loi pourvoit; mais dans tous les cas de cette nature, chaque tuteur, avant d'entrer dans l'exercice de ses fonctions, au lieu de la dernière clause de la formule ci-dessus, sera requis de prêter serment que la dite hypothèque a été enregistrée dans la paroisse, ou les paroisses, suivant le cas, de cet Etat, dans laquelle la dite ou les dites propriétés ainsi spécialement hypothéquée ou hypothéquées sont situées."

Ainsi, comme on le voit, au lieu d'une hypothèque nous n'avons qu'un simple serment. Une personne peut obtenir des lettres de tutelle, ou de curatelle, soit qu'elle ait enregistré l'hypothèque ou qu'elle ne l'ait pas enregistrée. Tout ce qu'il est nécessaire qu'elle fasse c'est de prêter le serment à cet égard.

M. le Président, je ne voudrais pas que des droits aussi précieux que ceux des mineurs, des femmes mariées, des absents ou des interdits n'aient pour garantie qu'un simple serment qui peut être vrai ou faux, qu'un serment qu'un homme d'honneur observera sans doute, mais qu'un fripon violera sans scrupule. Je désire que les hypothèques soient enregistrées et que l'enregistrement soit une certitude. On désire substituer une hypothèque spéciale à l'hypothèque tacite ou générale. Le but serait atteint si nous faisions de cette clause une obligation. Au lieu du serment exigé par le bill, nous devons exiger que le certificat du conservateur des hypothèques soit produit en preuve du fait que l'enregistrement a été fait en son bureau. Si la personne n'a pas de propriétés suffisantes dans une paroisse, elle doit être tenue alors d'obtenir des certificats des conservateurs d'ypothèques, suffisants pour engager une valeur en propriétés plus forte d'un quart que la somme pour laquelle elles sont hypothéquées.

Je voterais en faveur du bill s'il contenait une clause semblable; mais tel qu'il est je m'y opposerai. J'espère que le Sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans verra lui-même la force de mon objection et qu'il admettra que le changement proposé par moi est convenable. Je voudrais que le bill soit référé à un comité, afin que ce changement puisse y être fait. D'autres modifications encore pourraient y être apportées, et si le comité conserve ce qu'il y a de bon et ajoute qui manque, le bill ne peut que devenir parfaitement acceptable.

M. Ryan—Je ne désire pas m'étendre longuement sur les mérites du bill, quoique je doive dire que je considère cette question comme de la plus grande importance pour les intérêts de l'Etat. Les opinions semblent bien partagées, bien contradictoires. Les uns soutiennent que ce bill détruira les sauvegardes dont la loi entoure maintenant les droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées; les autres disent au contraire que le système actuel gêne les opérations commerciales, diminue la valeur des propriétés et retarde la prospérité de l'Etat.

Pour moi, Monsieur, je suis en faveur de l'abolition des hypothèques tacites, ou plûtot je voudrais qu'on avisât au moyen de les rendre publiques. Fussé-je seul je voterais pour obtenir cela. Mais je ne dis pas que je puisse soutenir ce bill. En premier lieu il est tellement prolixe qu'on a peine à le bien comprendre. En second lieu mon opinion est qu'il rendra inefficaces ces lois qui sont maintenant la garantie des droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées. C'est là un grand mal. La protection de cette classe a toujours commandé l'attention de nos législateurs et a été la pensée dominante dans nos lois. Nous ne devrions pas renoncer à cette protection, quelque grands que pussent être d'ailleurs les avantages du bill. Je partage l'opinion du Sénateur qui vient de reprendre son siége (M. Trudeau), qu'il peut être fait un autre bill qui présente tous les avantages de celui-ci et n'en ait pas les inconvénients, les objections fatales auxquelles je viens de faire allusion. Les particularités de nos lois actuelles à cet égard mettent en opposition les droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées avec ceux de la communauté en général. Il suffit d'y réfléchir un seul instant. Notre but devrait être de concilier autant que possible ces intérêts adverses. Je voterai en faveur d'un bill qui, tout en débarrassant le commerce des entraves qui le gênent maintenant, protégera efficacement les droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées. Leurs droits, Monsieur, doivent être rendus plus sûrs et non affaiblis. La main de la loi doit toujours s'interposer entre eux et ceux qui voudraient leur faire tort.

On ne peut se dissimuler que de grands maux résultent du système actuel. Il a été mis en opération dans une bonne intention de la part de ceux qui l'ont créé; mais les résultats qu'il a produits sont tels qu'un changement est absolument indispensable. Sous ce système il résulte souvent des fraudes dans les achats, de sorte que ce qui était destiné à être une défense pour les uns a été un tort considérable pour les autres. Je le répète, je voterai en faveur d'un bill qui remédiera aux inconvénients de l'ancien système sans présenter les désavantages du bill actuel. Nous devons protéger les droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées de cet Etat, et rien, pas même les intérêts du commerce, ne devrait nous les faire abandonner.

Cela une fois obtenu, je ne vois pas quelle objection un sénateur peut avoir à rendre publiques les hypothèques qui sont maintenant tacites ou cachées. Je ne vois pas pourquoi nous n'adopterions pas un bill rendant publics les droits des mineurs de telle sorte que le monde entier pût en avoir connaissance. Pourquoi ne le ferions-nous pas? Comment pouvons-nous porter préjudice aux mineurs en rendant publics leurs droits? Au contraire, bien loin qu'ils aient à en souffrir, il arrivera, Monsieur, qu'ils en bénéficieront beaucoup. Les capitalistes sont prudents; ils désirent toujours savoir quels droits, hypothèques ou servitudes existent sur les propriétés qui leur sont offertes en vente. Ils font de strictes investigations à cet égard. Mais à quoi leur servent, à quoi aboutissent toutes leurs recherches? il peut exister sur la propriété une hypothèque tacite. Ils se rendent au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, et là ils ne trouvent aucune preuve, aucun indice d'une hypothèque semblable. Les années s'écoulent, et tout-à-coup, au milieu de leur sécurité trompeuse, une hypothèque tacite est dévoilée, une hypothèque dont ils étaient loin de soupçonner l'existence; la propriété est saisie et vendue, et le propriétaire de bonne foi, légitime, reste comme on dit vulgairement, "le bec dans l'eau."

C'est là un des inconvénients du système actuel; il est des plus nuisibles aux mineurs, parce qu'il tend à déprécier la valeur de leurs propriétés. C'est pourquoi nous devrions rendre publics ces droits et ne les plus laisser dans le mystère où ils sont plongés aujourd'hui.

Ainsi que je l'ai dit en commençant, je n'ai pas l'intention de faire un discours sur cette question. Je n'ai voulu que présenter le plus sommairement possible les objections qui se présentaient à mon esprit. Cette question est importante; elle a besoin d'être débattue et décidée avec calme et réflexion ainsi qu'il convient à un corps comme le Sénat. Je suis en faveur du principe général que le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans (M. King) a présenté dans le cours de ses observations; mais mon opinion est que le bill ne donne pas assez de garanties, assez de sécurité aux mineurs et aux femmes mariées. Je crois néanmoins qu'un bill peut être préparé qui obvie à ces inconvénients, et en conséquence j'appuie la motion qu'il soit référé au comité.

M. WICKLIFFE—Mon intention n'est pas d'infliger un discours à mes collègues ici présents; je ne désire pas abuser d'un temps précieux qui peut être beaucoup mieux employé autrement, d'autant plus que les discours que je vois prodiguer si libéralement promettent de nous tenir encore quelques semaines sur cette même question. Pourquoi ne pas prendre le bill section par section et le discuter? Je dois dire, M. le President, que je n'aborde qu'avec méfiance cette question, parce que j'en apprécie toute l'importance et que je sens quel calme, quelle réflexion mûre et sage doit présider à nos délibérations. Le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans (M. King) a dit que ce bill est le résultat des travaux de quarante des membres les plus éminents de notre Etat. Je ne prétends pas contredire ce fait qu'il avance, il me suffira d'appeler l'attention sur la première section. Elle est conçue comme suit:

"Section 1ère. Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentants de l'Etat de la Louisiane réunis en Assemblée Générale, Qu'à partir du 1er jour d'avril 1855, aucune hypothèque ne sera mise à exécution ou n'existera contre une tierce personne agissant de bonne foi, à moins que l'hypothèque ne soit dûment enregistrée au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques. Cet enregistrement sera fait de manière à porter les propriétés foncières et les esclaves qui y sont attachés dans la paroisse dans laquelle chaque propriété est située et à porter sur les esclaves dans la paroisse où le débiteur a son domicile ou sa résidence ordinaire."

Voilà tout d'abord, M. le Président, une contradiction, ou du moins, ce qui peut donner lieu plus tard à une contradiction. Qui doit décider la question de savoir si la dite tierce personne a été de bonne foi? Quel tribunal doit décider de cela? Comment pouvons-nous savoir, à moins d'une enquête, s'il y a eu bonne foi de sa part? et comment cette enquête peut-elle être faite si ce n'est par voie judiciaire? C'est là une difficulté sérieuse. Dire qu'une hypothèque ne sera mise à exécution, ni n'existera contre une tierce personne agissant de bonne foi, c'est donner lieu à des contestations à des lenteurs sans nombre. C'est là une question qui ne peut être détermtnée autrement que par une enquête légale.

Je saisis cette occasion de répéter que je ne doute pas que ce bill ne soit, ainsi que le sénateur l'a dit, le résultat des travaux de quarante des plus fortes têtes de l'Etat. J'ai la plus grande confiance dans le jugement du président distingué du comité judiciaire, et aussi dans celui de mon honorable ami qui l'année dernière présidait le comité des terres et levées. Je ne puis qu'exprimer l'espoir que les inconvénients que j'ai signalés dans le bill ne sont pas leur ouvrage.

Digitized by Google

J'appellerai maintenant l'attention du Sénat sur la 10me section. Elle est conçue comme suit :

"Section 10. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que toute personne qui prendra possession d'une propriété appartenant à un mineur qui n'a pas de tuteur et qui conservera la dite propriété pendant un espace de soixante jours, sans en avoir donné connaissance au tribunal qui a compétence pour nommer des tuteurs, et demandé la nomination soit de lui-même, soit d'aucune autre personne qui possède les qualités requises et consente à se charger de la dite tutelle, outre qu'elle sera passible personnellement de tous dommages causés par la dite possession, elle sera encore tenue comme coupable de spoliation, et après conviction, elle sera condamnée à une amende ou à un emprisonnement selon la décision du juge."

J'ose dire, M. le Président, que l'effet de cette section sera d'empêcher que personne ne prenne les qualifications requises pour être tuteur. Il doit en être nécessairement ainsi. Il peut se présenter des circonstances dans lesquelles il serait impossible à une personne de faire la déclaration nécessaire dans le temps spécifié, et alors le mineur perdrait l'avantage d'une tutelle ; car qui oserait se charger de la tutelle d'un mineur, lorsque dans le cas où il serait empêché de se présenter en cour dans les soixante jours, il serait soumis à une amende ou à un emprisonnement?

Mon collègue fait de la tête des signes de désapprobation. Croit-il toujours que ce bill est le résultat des travaux de quarante des plus fortes têtes de l'Etat? Supposons qu'une personne se rende auprès du juge et lui demande de faire la nomination ; supposons que personne ne puisse être trouvé qui veuille bien accepter, qu'arrivera-t-il? Il y a des moments où il pourrait être très difficile de trouver personne qui voulût accepter la nomination, et cependant ce bill empêcherait que personne voulût se charger de la propriété jusqu'à ce qu'un tuteur pût être trouvé, ou du moins, s'il le faisait, il s'exposerait à de très grands désagréments. Le sénateur nous a dit que le bill accorde une ample protection aux mineurs. Est-ce là ce qu'il nomme une ample protection? Cette section leur ôte toutes les sécurités que la loi leur accordait.

Les devoirs imposés aux greffiers des cours par ce bill sont d'une telle nature que pas un seul homme dans tout l'Etat ne pourrait les remplir dans le temps spécifié. Dans la paroisse d'Est Féliciana seulement l'ouvrage ne pourrait pas être fait en deux mois, et le bill dit qu'il doit être fait en dix jours. En outre il sera d'une impossibilité morale pour les notaires publics de remplir les devoirs exigés d'eux. Pour ces raisons je préfère le bill de la Chambre ; car il ne présente pas les objections que je viens de signaler.

M. KING—Je demande l'autorisation de dire quelques mots au sénateur qui a parlé le dernier. Lorsqu'il présentera le bill de la Chambre au lieu et place de celui que j'ai présenté, j'aurai quelques mots à dire. Je ne juge pas convenable d'en dire plus en ce moment. J'admets que quelques parties de ce bill ont besoin d'être amendées. Pour le moment, je me bornerai à quelques remarques sur le bill qui est maintenant devant nous, et je répondrai aux objections faites par le sénateur d'Ouest Féliciana, M. Wickliffe.

La première section du bill est conçue en ces termes (il lit la 1ère section).

M. le Président, rien ne saurait être plus clair, plus intelligible que cette section. Et cependant, que disent ceux qui sont opposés au bill? Tantôt ils s'écrient que les mineurs ne sont pas suffisamment protégés ; que même maintenant ils sont exposés à devenir la proie des fripons, et que nous allons leur enlever leur dernière sauvegarde. Eh bien, Monsieur, ils attaquent là un bill dont le but est de donner le plus de force possible aux droits des mineurs ; ils font objection à une section qui empêche précisément que l'on puisse frustrer les mineurs de ce qui est bien et légitimement à eux. Devant une semblable opposition ne doit-on pas supposer que ces messieurs sont animés bien plus du désir de tuer ce bill que du désir de sauvegarder les droits des mineurs?

D'après les dispositions de ce bill, si un tuteur néglige de faire l'enregistrement nécessaire, il est passible d'une forte peine. Ceux qui sont opposés au bill disent que cela ne sera pas une garantie dans tous les cas. Cela est vrai ; mais n'est-il pas également vrai que la loi sur le meurtre n'empêche pas qu'il ne s'en commette de temps à autre?

Supposez qu'un tuteur déshonnête manque de faire enregistrer l'hypothèque, dirons-nous pour cela qu'il retire les bénéfices de sa propre faute?

Non, Monsieur, et si mon vote peut quelque chose, je le donnerai contre semblable chose. J'apprécie trop bien les droits des mineurs, j'ai trop le sentiment de mon devoir comme sénateur pour ne pas lutter de toutes mes forces contre une semblable proposition. Lorsqu'il est prouvé que le tuteur a failli à son devoir, il ne devrait pas lui être permis de profiter de sa faute. Le but de cette section est d'empêcher ce résultat et d'assurer l'enregistrement de ces hypothèques. Et pourtant, le sénateur qui se donne comme l'apôtre, comme l'avocat des droits des mineurs, objecte à cette section.

M. WICKLIFFE—Le préopinant semble n'avoir pas compris la nature et le caractère de mon objection. Ce que j'ai dit, c'est que la première section en donnant lieu à des conflits, à des contradictions, contrecare l'effet du bill entier.

M. KING—Passons à la dixième section. (Il lit la 10ème section).

Et maintenant, M. le Président, effacez cette section, et toute la protection qu'elle donne aux mineurs est perdue, et il en résulte, quoi? je vous le demande. Cette section n'empêche pas qu'une personne puisse agir comme ami du mineur pendant l'espace de soixante jours. Si dans cet intervalle il se rend devant la cour, s'il déclare à qui appartient la propriété, s'il demande la nomination d'un tuteur, il prouve par là qu'il n'a aucunement l'intention de commettre une fraude, qu'il n'a aucune intention criminelle. Naturellement dans ce cas il n'est pas passible de la peine décrétée. Supprimez la section, quelle devient la position du mineur? Il est évident qu'une personne ayant de mauvaises intentions peut prendre une propriété, négliger de se faire qualifier comme tuteur, ou de donner aucune information en cour ; de la sorte, il garde à jamais la propriété. Le mineur n'aurait aucun recours. Il se verrait enlever les biens sans qu'il puisse jamais les reprendre. Voilà ce qui résulterait de la suppression de cette section.

M. le Président, il n'y a rien dans l'histoire de la discussion qui a eu lieu sur cette question qui m'ait autant frappé, pas même de voir quelques sénateurs se placer tour à tour dans des positions si différentes, si contradictoires. Tantôt on nous dit que la garantie en faveur des mineurs n'est pas assez grande, que les sauvegardes dont la loi les en-toure maintenant seront détruites par là ; que les mineurs seront laissés en proie aux fripponneries des tuteurs malhonnêtes ou incapables ; d'autres fois on nous dit, abandonnant ce premier terrain qui, je viens de le faire voir, n'est pas très solide, on nous dit qu'il faut défendre les droits des mineurs contre les attaques de ceux qui se disent leurs champions. Il en était de même l'année dernière lorsque la mesure a été discutée dans le Sénat ; c'était alors exactement comme aujourd'hui. J'espère qu'en dépit des efforts de l'opposition, le Sénat adoptera ce bill. Je n'ai pas dit que ce fût le meilleur bill qui pût être fait ou que l'on pût imaginer ; mais j'ai dit ce que je répète maintenant, que c'est le résultat des travaux de plusieurs des hommes les plus éminents de l'État, et je ne crois pas devoir ajouter que je suis loin d'avoir la moindre prétention de figurer parmi eux.

M. WICKLIFFE—Que le Sénat me pardonne de lui adresser encore une ou deux observations. Le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, M. King, demande quelle sera la position du mineur si nous supprimons la 10me section. Cette question, la fait-il sérieusement ? Ne sait-il pas, lui avocat, que si un individu prend possession d'une propriété, appartenant à un mineur, que s'il refuse ou omet de se faire qualifier, il y a contre lui par le fait seul de la loi une hypothèque tacite répondant du dommage qui pourrait avoir été causé ? Il me semble que c'est là une garantie suffisante. Mais quel est le but de la section dont nous nous occupons ? Elle déclare que si un individu prend possession d'une propriété appartenant à un mineur, et que s'il la retient soixante jours sans porter ce fait à la connaissance d'une cour, demandant la nomination d'un tuteur, il sera considéré comme coupable d'escroquerie et condamné soit à une amende soit à un emprisonnement, suivant le bon plaisir du juge. Je dis qu'une disposition semblable ne peut qu'être nuisible au mineur, dangereuse pour lui. Il y a des circonstances dans lesquelles un ami du mineur, quoiqu'il soit lui-même inéligible comme tuteur, peut consentir à prendre soin de la propriété et la gérer jusqu'à ce que la nomination d'un tuteur ait été faite. Il ne désirera certes pas le faire si dans le cas où il serait empêché pendant soixante jours de se rendre en cour, il doit être passible de peines telles que l'amende ou l'emprisonnement. Aux époques d'épidémie, combien de successions sont laissées ainsi dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, et alors peut-on espérer que dans le cours délai de soixante jours on puisse se rendre en cour et faire la déclaration voulue ? Cette section empêcherait qu'aucun ami voulût se charger des propriétés laissées ainsi : car le moindre oubli, la moindre négligence de sa part le rendraient passible de fortes peines. Est-ce là ce que le sénateur appelle protéger les mineurs ? Pour moi, je crois bien plûtôt que c'est le contraire.

M. LACEY—Lorsque le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, M. King, qui a présenté ce bill, a déclaré que c'était un des plus importants qui eussent encore été soumis au Sénat, j'ai répondu avec chaleur et cordialement à ses paroles. C'est en effet un bill qui réclame la plus sérieuse attention. De sa solution dépendent en quelque sorte les vastes intérêts commerciaux de notre Etat et les droits d'une grande partie de notre population. Pour moi j'appuierai le bill autant que me le permettra le sentiment de mes devoirs. Je regrette de ne pouvoir dans ce but aller aussi loin que je l'ai fait l'année dernière. Alors je l'ai soutenu avec le plus grand zèle sans prendre en considération ces objections constitutionnelles qui depuis se sont présentées à mon esprit. Comme président du comité judiciaire, j'ai encore défendu ce bill cette année ; mais je dois dire que dans le sein du comité il n'avait été élevé aucune objection constitutionnelle.

Je n'avais alors aucun doute au sujet du bill. Cependant, après avoir réfléchi mûrement sur cette question, après avoir examiné attentivement les deux bills, celui qu'a présenté le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, M. King, et celui qu'a présenté le sénateur d'Ouest Féliciana, M. Wickliffe, je n'ai pas le moindre doute que chacun d'eux contient une section qui est une violation de la Constitution. J'essaierai d'amender le bill à ce point de vue. Si je n'y réussis pas ; si le Sénat ne partage pas mon opinion à cet égard, s'il refuse de supprimer cette section du bill, je me soumettrai à sa décision et je donnerai mon vote dans le sens de la majorité. Avant d'aller plus loin, je vais essayer de développer mes idées sur l'inconstitutionalité de cette section à laquelle je viens de faire allusion. En consultant l'article 3298 du Code Civil on verra quels seraient les résultats produits par cette partie du bill. Qu'il me soit permis ici, qu'ayant en vue la haute importance de cette question, je n'hésiterai pas à occuper quelque temps l'attention du Sénat, aussi longtemps que je jugerai indispensable pour que le bill puisse être mûrement examiné. L'article 3298 du Code Civil est conçu en ces termes :

"Art. 3298. L'hypothèque existe indépendamment de toute inscription, en faveur des mineurs, des interdits et des absents, sur les biens de leurs tuteurs, curateurs et autres personnes sur les biens desquels la loi leur accorde une hypothèque tacite, soit générale, soit spéciale.

Quelle est la loi actuelle ? Quel est le statut inscrit dans le Code Civil comme une protection en faveur des mineurs, des interdits et des absents ? L'article du Code que je viens de vous lire est la réponse à ces questions. "Ils ont une hypothèque sur les biens de leurs tuteurs, curateurs et autres personnes sur les biens desquels la loi leur accorde une hypothèque tacite, indépendamment de toute inscription." Les formalités nécessaires dans tous les autres cas, ne le sont pas dans le cas qui nous occupe. Il est aisé de comprendre l'effet de cet article, mais il n'est pas aussi facile de trouver un moyen constitutionnel de nous en défaire. Il nous tout notre système de lois comme un monstre caché dans ses entrailles, toujours prêt à mordre et à déchirer. Il pèse d'un poids insupportable sur les intérêts commerciaux de notre Etat. C'est avec joie, Messieurs, que je verrais suggérer un moyen de nous en défaire, avec joie que je contribuerais à débarrasser notre Etat de ce seul résultant d'un système erronné, si cela était constitutionnellement possible. Examinons maintenant ce que propose le bill, et voyons s'il cadre aucunement avec cet article que je vous ai lu. Le bill ne propose ni plus ni moins que l'extinction totale des hypothèques tacites ; il dit qu'après le premier jour d'avril 1855, aucune hypothèque non inscrite ne pourra subsister. Le bill présenté par le sénateur d'Ouest Féliciana, M. Wickliffe, contient en substance la même disposition. Un de ces bills déclare qu'après le 1er avril 1855 il n'existera plus aucune hypothèque tacite ; l'autre n'indique pas l'époque à laquelle elles cesseront d'exister ; tous deux cependant déclarent qu'il n'existera pas d'autres hypothèques que les hypothèques inscrites. Le Code Civil accorde un certain droit à certaines parties. Un bill présenté par le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, M. King, enlève entièrement ce droit à partir du 1er jour d'avril 1855, et un bill présenté par le sénateur d'Ouest Féliciana, M. Wickliffe, l'enlève à partir du moment où le bill deviendra loi. Il ne saurait y avoir de doute possible sur le but de la loi actuelle et sur son effet légal. Elle concède un droit ; et ce droit, les deux bills ne le détruisent-ils pas ? La loi déclare expressément que l'hypothèque sera tacite et qu'elle existera sans qu'il soit besoin d'une inscription. Et le bill ne déclare-t il pas tout aussi expressément que l'hypothèque doit être publique et qu'elle n'aura d'effet qu'autant qu'elle aura été inscrite ? C'est donc une violation directe de la loi organique. Lisez l'article 109 de la Constitution, et vous verrez clairement, incontestablement, qu'il y a, comme je le dis, violation directe de la loi organique. Que dit cet article ?

"Il ne sera passé aucune loi ex post facto ni aucune loi portant atteinte à la validité des contrats ; nul ne sera privé de ses droits acquis si ce n'est pour cause d'utilité publique et moyennant une juste et préalable indemnité."

Je vois ici, dans cette enceinte, quelques uns de ceux qui ont rédigé cette Constitution, quelques honorables membres de la convention de 1844. Que pensent-ils de cette proposition ? La Constitution nous dit : "nul ne sera privé de ses droits acquis &c. &c." Aux termes de la Constitution ces droits sont des droits acquis et ce bill les éteint. Peut-on si l'on veut y réfléchir un seul instant n'être pas convaincu de cette incontestable vérité. Cette section du bill est en violation flagrante de la Constitution à laquelle nous avons solennellement juré de nous soumettre. Convaincu comme je le suis qu'il en est ainsi, je proposerai en temps opportun de supprimer cette section qui déclare que nulle hypothèque ne sera valable si elle n'a été inscrite. Je sais bien quelle réponse sera faite à mon argument : que la Législature a le droit de passer telles lois d'inscription ou d'enregistrement qu'elle juge nécessaires. C'est là ce que pourront dire ceux qui ne partagent pas mon opinion, et ils citeront l'affaire de Jackson vs. Camphire, décidée par la Cour Suprême des Etats-Unis. Mais si l'on veut aller plus au fond de la question, si on l'examine bien, on verra que cette opinion n'est pas soutenable. La décision n'a nullement été que les législatures d'Etat peuvent quand elles le jugent convenable rappeler une loi en vigueur et qui a déja donné lieu à certains droits acquis. Que l'on examine, que l'on étudie cette décision et l'on verra la vérité de ce que j'avance. Il s'agissait de la propriété d'une certaine portion de terre dans l'Etat de New York. La Législature de cet Etat avait passé une loi exigeant, pour qu'un titre fût parfait, que l'inscription ou l'enregistrement en eût été fait au préalable. La question de la constitutionalité de cet acte ayant été évoquée, la Cour Suprême rendit la décision suivante que je vais lire :

"La Cour n'est pas disposée à adopter ce raisonnement ou à considérer cette affaire comme reportant, à proprement parler, de la clause de la Constitution des Etats-Unis sur laquelle se fonde le plaignant. Le seul contrat passé par l'Etat est une concession faite à John Cornelius, ses héritiers ou ayant cause de la propriété en question ; la patente ne contient aucune convention de faire ou de ne pas faire de nouveaux actes relativement à cette propriété ; et nous ne croyons pas pouvoir dans ce cas en créer une par implication. Par cet acte l'Etat n'a pas diminué la force de la concession ; il n'essaye pas de reprendre la dite terre aux ayant cause de John Cornelius et de la donner à un autre qui ne la réclame pas en son nom ; l'avance même n'a pas ce résultat ; la concession reste en pleine vigueur ; la terre concédée reste en possession de celui à qui la concession a été faite, et l'Etat n'y élève aucun titre."

Suit la décision, dont le sénateur donne lecture.

En principe général, soutenu par la décision que je viens de citer, la Louisiane a incontestablement le droit de passer des lois d'inscription ou d'enregistrement pour faire preuve d'un acte dans les cas de simple concession pour l'enregistrement obligatoire de laquelle il est clair que la Législature a le droit de passer une loi. Il n'en est pas de même dans le cas où il existe déjà une loi concédant certains droits aux mineurs et aux femmes mariées. Ce sont là des droits acquis aux termes de la Constitution, et aucun acte législatif ne peut les en dépouiller. La décision de la Cour Suprême ne prête aucune force à la doctrine que ce pouvoir est entre nos mains. Elle ne fait que confirmer la nécessité de l'enregistrement pour la perfection d'un titre. Mais lorsqu'une loi pré-existante dit que cet enregistrement n'est pas nécessaire pour rendre valide une hypothèque et qu'une hypothèque a été établie en vertu de cette loi en faveur d'un mineur, soutiendra-t-on qu'un acte subséquent peut supprimer ou détruire des droits ainsi acquis ? Je le répète, lorsque le but est simplement de compléter un titre par l'enregistrement, l'acte peut-être constitutionnel ; mais lorsqu'il attaque des droits acquis en vertu d'une loi pré-existante, je ne crois pas qu'il puisse y avoir de doute sur son inconstitutionalité. La décision de la Cour Suprême des Etats-Unis dans l'affaire de Jackson vs. Camphire n'est pas applicable dans ce cas ; car les circonstances ne sont pas du tout analogues. Selon moi elle ne peut aucunement affecter la constitutionalité de ce bill. Néanmoins, et quelque ferme que soit ma conviction, mon esprit est toujours ouvert à la conviction, et si le Sénat juge, décide dans sa sagesse que je ne suis pas dans le vrai, je me soumettrai sans murmure à sa décision, quelle qu'elle soit, et je voterai en faveur du bill.

Cette section exceptée, le bill est excellent, aussi bon que pouvaient le faire non pas quarante seulement, mais cent, mais mille hommes de l'élite de la nation. Néanmoins, je soutiens que nous ne pouvons adopter une loi qui porte atteinte aux droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées de notre Etat ; et même si nous en avions le pouvoir, je doute fort qu'il fût d'une sage politique de l'exercer en pareille circonstance. Que les droits qu'ils ont acquis, que les priviléges que la loi leur assure leur soient conservés ; qu'ils soient considérés comme inviolables et sacrés, et qu'aucune loi nouvelle n'y touche. Efforçons-nous d'exiger l'inscription de ces hypothèques, mais n'abusons pas dans ce but de nos pouvoirs législatifs.

J'appellerai maintenant l'attention du Sénat sur les détails de ce bill et j'exprimerai mon opinion à ce sujet en commençant par déclarer qu'à part la section qui, comme je viens de le dire, est, dans mon opinion, inconstitutionnelle, tout le reste a mon entière approbation. La pénalité que le bill impose aux tuteurs et aux curateurs, dans le cas où ils négligeraient de se conformer aux dispositions de la loi, a soulevé quelque objection de la part d'un sénateur. Je dis, moi, et je soutiens que ce n'est que par une forte pénalité en cas d'omission que nous pouvons obtenir l'enregistrement des hypothèques. Le bill peut être appelé un bill de pénalité, mais c'est là sa force principale. C'est par ce seul moyen qu'il peut être rendu efficace. Peut-être aussi trouvera-t-on qu'il est long ; mais cela est de toute nécessité. La transition d'un ancien système à un système nouveau, surtout dans des questions aussi importantes, nécessite des détails nombreux et complexes qui ne peuvent être circonscrits dans les étroites limites d'un bill ordinaire. Sa longueur empêchera peut-être qu'il ne soit lu ; mais ce serait bien à tort, ce serait bien regrettable.

Je vais maintenant essayer de faire voir que ce bill n'est pas du tout un épouvantail ainsi qu'on l'a prétendu ; et pour cela il me faudra analyser en courant et le plus brièvement possible ses différentes dispositions. Le premier article traite particulièrement des femmes mariées. Je dois déclarer ici que dans toutes ses parties le bill est parfaitement clair. Ainsi que je l'ai déjà dit, la courtoisie, l'exquise galanterie qui distinguent l'honorable sénateur qui a présenté le bill l'ont décidé à donner en premier lieu toute son attention au sexe le plus faible, mais aussi le plus beau. Mais voyons le bill. Que décrète-t-il lorsque la femme a une hypothèque secrète ou tacite? Voici le texte :

Section 2· Résolu, Qu'il sera du devoir de tous notaires publics ou autres officiers exerçant les fonctions de notaire public, de faire inscrire au bureau de la conservation des hopothèques dans la paroisse où réside la partie contre laquelle il peut exister une hypothèque légale, tout acte passé devant lui et qui, en vertu des lois de cet Etat, donnerait lieu à une hypothèque légale en faveur de la femme sur les biens du mari, que ce soit un contrat de mariage ou tout autre acte servant à constater les sommet d'argent que la femme peut avoir apportées sous forme de donaire au moment du mariage, ou que ce soient des quittances ou toutes autres pièces indiquant d'une manière formelle les sommes d'argent ou autres valeurs reçues par la femme ou pour elle par son mari pendant le mariage ;

Que tout notaire ou toute personne exerçant les fonctions de notaire, qui aura négligé de se conformer aux prescriptions de la présente section en ce qui concerne la transcription des actes ci-dessus mentionnés, au bureau des hypothèques, sera personnellement responsable envers la personne qui aura pu souffrir de ce défaut de transcription, de tous dommages et intérêts, qu'il sera considéré comme coupable de malversation dans l'exercice de ses fonctions, et, en conséquence de ce, après instruction de l'affaire, destitué de ses dites fonctions et condamné à une amende et à un emprisonnement dont le montant et la durée seront à la discrétion de la cour."

On voit donc par là que le bill impose simplement aux notaires qui ont passé des actes comportant hypothèque légale de les faire transcrire afin de les rendre publics, et que cette obligation leur est imposée sous une pénalité en cas d'omission. Et pourquoi la loi ne commanderait-elle pas cela? pourquoi ne punirait-elle pas toute négligence à cet égard? C'est là un acte qu'il est facile d'accomplir, et le moyen proposé par le bill est le seul qui puisse assurer la publicité.

Ensuite le bill passe aux exécuteurs, curateurs, administrateurs et autres personnes par l'entremise desquelles peuvent être reçus les biens et les valeurs appartenant au mineur ou à la succession, et impose à ces dépositaires l'obligation de retirer du mari une quittance authentique de l'argent ou des valeurs, laquelle quittance sera transcrite au bureau des hypothèques et formera inscription contre le mari. Cette transcription aura lieu dans la paroisse où réside ce dernier et dans toutes les paroisses où il peut posséder quelques immeubles. Il y a aussi une pénalité prononcée contre tous exécuteurs testamentaires, curateurs ou administrateurs qui négligeront de se conformer aux prescriptions de la loi.

Enfin le bill dispose encore que les clercs des cours dans l'office desquels il peut exister quelque pièce concernant et indiquant une hypothèque légale en faveur de la femme, sur les biens de son mari, fera transcrire cette pièce au bureau des hypothèques.

N'est-ce pas très simple et très clair? Chacun ne peut-il pas comprendre cette loi à première lecture? Non seulement le texte est clair, mais ses prescriptions sont faciles à accomplir, et leur effet est sûr, si on s'y conforme. Les hypothèques doivent être inscrites dans la paroisse où la personne réside et dans toute autre paroisse où il peut posséder quelques immeubles. Aussitôt que l'inscription a eu lieu, elle prête le serment d'usage, et l'argent lui est alors versé. Est-ce que cela n'assure pas la publicité de ces hypothèques? Aussitôt que la quittance est transcrite et que le serment est prêté, l'argent est versé, mais non auparavant. Cela est excessivement simple. On ne saurait rien imaginer de plus simple.

Ainsi, j'ai fait voir, en premier lieu, quel sera, sous l'empire de ce bill, le devoir des notaires, et, en second lieu, quel sera celui des curateurs, exécuteurs testamentaires et administrateurs. Ceux-ci ne reçoivent l'argent ou les valeurs que lorsqu'un acte authentique aura été transcrit dans chaque paroisse de l'Etat où ils peuvent posséder quelque propriété foncière.

M. RYAN—Je voudrais faire une question à l'honnorable membre, La quatrième section du bill dit :

Section 4.—Il est de plus résolu &c., que toutes les fois que le tuteur d'un mineur ou le curateur des biens d'un absent ou d'un interdit, aura été désigné par le juge ou par toute autre autorité compétente pour nommer les tuteurs et curateurs, le greffier de la Cour livrera à la personne ainsi désignée ou à son agent ou avocat, une copie de l'ordre de nomination, afin qu'elle puisse être transcrite au bureau des hypotheques, conformément à cet acte, ainsi que des lettres de curatelle qui ne seront délivrées qu'après que le dit ordre aura été enregistré, et après que la personne ainsi nommée à la tutelle ou à la curatelle, aura prêté et signé le serment suivant :

"Je (A. B.) tuteur de l'enfant ou des enfants nommé ou nommés, ou curateur de — absent, ou de — interdit—, selon que le cas l'exige, jure solennellement (ou affirme,—si la personne a des scrupules de conscience à prêter un serment), que j'ai fait enregistrer au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, l'ordre de nomination qui m'a été donné, dans la paroisse où je réside et dans toutes les paroisses de cet Etat où je possède des propriétés foncières."

Lequel serment doit être enregistré par le greffier dans son bureau.

Rien dans cet acte n'empêchera les tuteurs de donner une hypothèque spéciale au lieu de l'hypothèque générale en faveur des mineurs à laquelle la loi pourvoit ; mais dans tous les cas de cette nature, chaque tuteur, avant d'entrer dans l'exercice de ses fonctions, au lieu de la dernière clause de la formule ci-dessus, sera tenu de prêter serment que la dite hypothèque a été enregistrée dans la paroisse ou les paroisses, suivant le cas, de cet Etat, dans laquelle les dites propriétés, ainsi spécialement hypothéquées, sont situées."

Je suppose que la personne soit complètement insolvable, et qu'elle prenne la fuite, où sera, dans ce cas, la sûreté des droits des mineurs?

M. LACEY—C'est là une question étrangère aux débats. Nous ne nous occupons pas ici de faire une loi qui garantisse les droits des mineurs. Tel n'est pas l'objet de ce bill. Ces droits sont déjà protégés. Le seul objet du bill que nous discutons est de rendre obligatoire l'inscription des hypothèques légales qui conservent ces mêmes droits. Je dis ici, une fois pour toutes, que nous ne cherchons pas ici à assurer les droits des mineurs. Retranchez la première section qui est inconstitutionnelle, et les droits dont on parle seront tout aussi bien garantis que sous l'empire du présent système hypothécaire. L'honorable membre demande quelle sera la garantie des mineurs, si le bill passe. Leur garantie sera dans la pénalité sévère que prononce la loi contre tous notaires, clercs, curateurs, tuteurs, &c., qui auront manqué de faire inscrire l'hypothèque légale qui leur aura été connue. Il me semble que ce n'est pas là une protection illusoire, mais au contraire bien efficace.

M. TRUDEAU—Le bill n'aura-t-il pas pour effet d'abolir entièrement les hypothèques tacites?

M. LAGUE—Je pense que ce serait au contraire l'effet inévitable des bills proposés. L'abolition serait immédiate aux termes de l'un des bills, et serait retardée seulement jusqu'à la fin d'avril 1855, aux termes de l'autre. Je le répète, je regarde cette portion du bill comme inconstitutionnelle, et c'est pourquoi j'en demande le retranchement.

Maintenant, analysons le bill. La première page ordonne l'inscription des hypothèques futures en faveur des femmes mariées. Mais ce bill serait imparfait s'il s'arrêtait là. Il est nécessaire qu'il ordonne également l'inscription des hypothéques déjà existantes. C'est précisément ce qu'il fait. Les clercs des cours ont ordre de classer les documents qui sont en leur possession et de faire inscrire toute hypothèque de cette nature. Ainsi, comme on le voit, le bill a prescrit la publicité des hypothèques déjà créées et de celles à venir. Puis, après s'être occupé des femmes mariées, le bill passe au chapitre des mineurs. Comment arrive-t-il à assurer l'inscription des hypothèques légales en faveur des mineurs, soit présentes, soit futures, c'est ce que je vais faire ressortir. Voici comment s'exprime à cet égard la section 4 du bill:

Section 4.—Il est de plus résolu &c, que toutes les fois que le tuteur d'un mineur ou le curateur des biens d'un absent ou d'un interdit, aura été désigné par le juge ou par toute autre autorité compétente pour nommer les tuteurs et curateurs, le greffier de la Cour livrera à la personne ainsi désignée ou à son agent ou avocat, une copie de l'ordre de nomination, afin qu'elle puisse être transcrite au bureau des hypothèques, conformément à cet acte, ainsi que les lettres de curatelle qui ne seront délivrées qu'après que le dit ordre aura été enregistré, et après que la personne ainsi nommée à la tutelle ou à la curatelle, aura prêté et signé le serment suivant:

"Je (A. B.) tuteur de l'enfant ou des enfants nommé ou nommés, ou curateur de — absent ou de — interdit—, selon que le cas l'exige, jure solennellement [ou affirme, — si la personne a des scrupules de conscience à prêter un serment], que j'ai fait enregistrer au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques, l'ordre de nomination qui m'a été donné, dans la paroisse où je réside et dans toutes les paroisses de cet Etat où je possède des propriétés foncières;

Lequel serment doit être enregistré par le greffier dans son bureau.

Rien dans cet acte n'empêchera les tuteurs de donner une hypothèbue spéciale au lieu de l'hypothèque générale en faveur des mineurs à laquelle la loi pourvoit; mais dans tous les cas de cette nature, chaque tuteur, avant d'entrer dans l'exercice de ses fonctions, au lieu de la dernière clause de la formule ci-dessus, sera tenu de prêter serment que la dite hypothèque a été enregistrée dans la paroisse ou les paroisses, suivant le cas, de cet Etat, dans laquelle les dites propriétés, ainsi spécialement hypothéquées, sont situées.

Quand toutes ces formalités sont accomplies; quand le tuteur a été nommé, quand le clerc a délivré copie de l'ordre de nomination à ce dernier ou à son conseil, quand cet ordre a été transmis au bureau des hypothèques, alors, et alors seulement, les lettres conférant l'exercice de la tutelle seront délivrées. Tout cela n'est-il pas tres simple? n'est-ce pas très facile à accomplir?

On pourra dire que toutes ces formalités entraînent beaucoup d'embarras, et sont, après tout, fort gênantes. Mais ne vaut-il pas beaucoup mieux s'y soumettre que de laisser le commerce écrasé sous un joug funeste, et les propriétés frappées de discrédit, comme il arrive aujourd'hui? Abolissons donc le système actuel. Rendons enfin publiques et faisons connaître à tous les hypothèques de toute nature qui peuvent grever une propriété. Quand un homme qui désire acheter un immeuble peut s,assurer par lui-même de l'état hypothécaire de cet objet, il ouvre les yeux et n'est pas exposé à être trompé.

La sixième section du bill ordonne que le premier jour de juillet, ou auparavant, il sera du devoir de tous clercs des Cours de Justice de l'Etat, (excepté toutefois les clercs de la Cour Suprême), de rechercher les pièces conservées dans les archives de leurs offices, pouvant concerner la nomination de tuteurs ou de curateurs à des personnes interdites aux biens d'individus absents, et de dresser au plus tard, dans les dix jours qui suivront le 1er juillet, une liste exacte de toutes ies dites tutelles ou curatelles dont les archives auront indiqué l'existence; laquelle liste contiendra les noms des mineurs et de leurs tuteurs et curateurs qui ont été nommés avant l'empire du nouveau bill, avec les dates de ces nominations.

La cinquième section déclare "que les fonctions de tous tuteurs ou curateurs d'absents ou interdits, actuellement en exercice, cesseront le premier jour de juillet prochain, à moins que, dans ces intervalles ils n'aient fait transcrire aux bureaux d'hypothèques indiqués par la loi, les lettres de tutelle à eux originairement données, etc."

Cela, la Législature a le droit de le faire.

La Législature a le droit incontestable de mettre fin à toutes tutelles et curatelles à un jour dit. Le bill, ensuite, dans la section 6, indique la manière dont ces tuteurs et curateurs devront être cités en justice pour recevoir, s'il y a lieu, de nouvelles lettres de nomination. J'ai lu au Sénat, la première partie de cette section. Les dispositions qui terminent cette première partie s'occupent de la manière dont les citations doivent être données aux tuteurs et aux curateurs, et réglent les pénalités qui doivent être prononcées pour négligence du shérif dans l'accomplissement de ses devoirs, ainsi que diverses autres formalités indispensables.

Telles sont à peu près les principales dispositions du bill. Elles sont extrêmement simples, et la seule objection qu'on puisse faire à ces dispositions, est dans la sévérité des peines prononcées contre la négligence des officiers chargés de faire faire l'inscription des hypothèques légales. Mais je ne puis pas m'arrêter à une pareille objection: elle est sans valeur à mes yeux, et je ne la trouve même pas raisonnable.

Ces pénalités sont absolument nécessaires pour rendre inévitable l'exécution de la loi. Sans cette conservation indispensable, il serait inutile d'espérer de pouvoir jamais atteindre le but proposé. On peut l'appuyer du nom de Bill Draconien, mais là seulement est la beauté, là seulement est sa force. Si vous enlevez la pénalité, que reste-t-il? un texte vain, un non-sens. Les lois, sans la conservation pénale, ne sont plus qu'un livre de morale. Il faut les imprimer à la suite de l'Evangile, et cesser de les insérer dans nos codes.

J'arrive maintenant à une ou deux objections au bill, faites par le sénateur d'Ouest Féliciana, M. Wickliffe. La première porte sur ce que les tuteurs sont obligés de fournir caution. A présent les tuteurs naturels ne sont pas requis de fournir aucune caution. Et pourquoi y seraient-ils contraints? Pourquoi imposerait-on à des parents, protecteurs naturels de leurs enfants, l'obligation de comparaître en cour, pour y fournir une caution de leur fidélité à remplir ces devoirs que la nature elle-même leur a imposés? Qu'avons nous besoin de modifier la loi actuelle sur ce point? La loi est-elle plus forte que la nature? Je crois, pour ma part, que l'obligation naturelle est assez forte, et que nous ne pouvons rien y ajouter sans anticiper sur les droits de la famille et porter atteinte à la dignité du père ou de la mère. Ne portons pas une main sacrilége sur ces liens sacrés; ne nous interposons pas entre le père de famille et ses enfants qu'avec respect et déférence; et, comme le dévot Musulman, ôtons nos sandales avant d'entrer dans le sanctuaire de la famille. Je ne vois aucune nécessité de modifier notre législation sur ce point.

Le bill de la Chambre dit que tous tuteurs seront tenus de fournir caution. Je vais montrer, par un seul exemple, quelles peuvent être les conséquences de cette disposition. Je suppose qu'un père de famille ayant un enfant en bas âge est appelé par le cours naturel des choses, à dire à ce monde terrestre un éternel adieu. Il descend dans la tombe, en laissant à son épouse affligée le soin du cher enfant, gage de leur union. Le père et mari n'est pas plûtôt couché dans la solitude du tombeau, que la mère, les yeux encore mouillés de pleurs, le cœur gros d'affliction, doit aller se présenter devant une cour et réclamer ses lettres de tutelle; et Shylock lui demandera caution? Mais alors que devient donc cette sainteté de l'amour maternel? que faites-vous donc de cette affection sublime que Dieu a mise au cœur des mères, et contre laquelle les obstacles sont impuissants? Ah! vous outragez la loi divine, ne le comprenez vous pas, en essayant de greffer sur nos lois un principe aussi manifestement contre-nature! Le tuteur naturel est celui que semble désigner la nature. En lui confirmant son titre, vous ne faites qu'obéir à une loi supérieure; qu'avez-vous donc besoin de lui demander caution? J'ose espérer, Messieurs, que vous n'adopterez pas un bill entaché d'une pareille monstruosité. Je ferai encore une autre objection à ce bill: c'est que plusieurs de ses dispositions ne sont sanctionnées par aucune pénalité et sont par conséquent sans efficacité. Remarquez au contraire que dans le bill proposé par le sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans, cette condition indispensable d'une bonne loi n'a pas été oubliée. Aussi le premier bill manquera-t-il le but qu'il se propose, tandis que le second est assuré de l'atteindre. J'ai pleine confiance dans les lumières du membre distingué de la Chambre, qui a évoqué le bill introduit par le sénateur d'Ouest Féliciana. Ses opinions et son jugement méritent qu'on en fasse cas; mais dans cette circonstance, il n'a pas fait preuve de cette sage prévoyance qui distingue si éminemment le bill du sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans. Ce sénateur a été assez bon pour faire une allusion trop flatteuse a mes faibles collaborations à ce bill. Je dois, pour rendre hommage à la vérité, déclarer que tout le mérite lui en revient.

Et ne croyez pas, parce que je demande le renversement de notre système d'hypothèques tacites, que je sois pour cela un ami des changements en législation, généralemant parlant. Ne croyez pas que je me plaise à jeter par terre les monuments qu'ont respectés nos pères. Tout au contraire, j'aime et je vénère ces nobles débris d'une antique civilisation, dont le souvenir domine si majestueusement les horizons du passé. Je suis plein d'admiration pour ces nobles jurisconsultes, amis de la vérité et de la justice, et osant les défendre au péril même de leur vie. Je ne saurais oublier celui d'entr'eux qui, sommé par Caracalla de trouver un moyen de l'excuser du meurtre de son père, lui répondit ces paroles mémorables: "Il est plus aisé de commettre un parricide que de le justifier".

Tous ces souvenirs sont gravés en mon cœur. Je sais d'ailleurs que ces sages éléments de législation ont pour eux la consécration de la longue expérience des siècles. A part les changements opérés dans les mœurs par les progrès de la civilisation, les principes généraux sont ce qu'il y a de plus pur et de plus vrai. J'aime donc, Messieurs, cette loi antique qui a consacré la société au milieu de l'ignorance de conquérants barbares, J'apprécie aussi à leur juste valeur les jurisconsultes qui ont si bien interprêté la loi romaine, soit en France, soit en Espagne, et en ont mis en harmonie toutes les parties éparses.

Je le répète, je ne suis point l'avocat du changement en matière législative, et je ne demande la réforme d'une loi qu'en cas d'absolue nécessité.

Et c'est ici le cas ou jamais.

Sous l'empire de notre système actuel d'hypothèques tacites, nous avons eu à déplorer les plus fatales conséquences. Les capitaux, sans production et mis, pour ainsi dire, au ban de la loi, ont cherché un autre écoulement. Le commerce est resté languissant, et les propriétés ont immensément diminué de valeur. Tels sont les maux déplorables qui apparaissent aux yeux de l'observateur le moins attentif. Nous devons y porter remède sans aucun retard. Il ne faut pas qu'il y ait rivalité et encore moins animosité entre les partisans de chacun des deux bills. Mûs par le même désir du bien public, et d'accord sur le principe général, ils doivent se faire des concessions réciproques et marcher en bonne et pleine intelligence. Prenons-les tous deux en considération, examinons-les avec soin, harmonisons leurs dispositions contradictoires, tâchons, s'il est possible, de les fondre tous deux en un seul bill, passons ensuite ce bill ainsi conçu, et envoyons-le à l'autre Chambre pour lui demander une adhésion que, j'en suis sûr, elle ne nous refusera pas si nous passons un bill qui, sans s'immiscer en aucune façon dans les droits des mineurs ce des femmes mariées, ordonne simplement la publicité des hypothèques légales créés à leur profit, l'autre Chambre ne pourra y faire aucune objection. Si elle en faisait, et bien alors, laissons-la supporter seule le poids de l'indignation populaire. Nous aurons fait notre devoir, et nous pourrons nous présenter devant nos Constituants le cœur pur et la conscience tranquille.

M. Moore. C'est avec une grande défiance que je me hasarde à risquer quelques observations sur un sujet qui vient d'être traité avec autant de science et de talent par ceux que nous avons entendus. Mais je ne puis me dispenser de soumettre au Sénat les sentiments et les réflexions qui me portent à être maintenant opposé aux bills qui nous sont présentés. Quand, pour la première fois, je pris connaissance du bill introduit devant le Sénat, je le croyais vraiment très bon et très opportun, mais depuis, un examen plus attentif de cette résolution m'a éclairé sur ses dispositions, et j'ai été, je l'avoue, effrayé de leur complication et des embarras énormes qui en doivent inévitablement surgir. En addition à ces difficultés, il est encore une autre objection qui en est, selon moi, la condamnation positive, c'est que les deux bills sont inconstitutionnels. Il ne peut y avoir doute à cet égard, dans l'esprit de personne. En essayant de renverser le système des hypothèques tacites, nous allons directement contre le texte et l'esprit de la Constitution. L'hon. sénateur d'Est-Bâton Rouge, M. Lacey, dit que si on peut le convaincre qu'il n'y ait pas là une inconstitutionnalité, il votera pour le bill, et, tout aussitôt, sans tenir compte du principe qu'il vient de poser, il vient présenter des arguments en faveur du même bill. Comment peut-il douter qu'il y ait là une violation de la Constitution? N'y a-t-il pas un article de la loi fondamentale, qui dit, en termes aussi clairs que possible, qu'il y aura des hypothèques tacites, et qui, en conséquence, créent ces mêmes hypothèques? N'y a-t-il pas un article de la Constitution, qui déclare que les droits acquis ne pourront pas être enlevés à ceux qui les possèdent? Si vous passez le bill, n'enlevez-vous pas des droits acquis? Pouvez-vous le faire? Tout le monde peut parfaitement comprendre et reconnaître que vous ne le pouvez pas. On n'a pas encore produit un seul argument qui tendit à détruire ce que je dis là. Nous avons une loi qui dit que quand la femme contracte mariage, aussitôt le versement du douaire entre les mains du mari, celui-ci est aussitôt frappée d'une hypothèque légale, non seulement sur ses propriétés actuelles, mais encore sur les biens à venir. Si donc maintenant, vous passez une loi déclarant que la femme perdra cette hypothèque, qu'elle tient déjà de la loi, est-ce que vous ne le dépouillez pas de droits acquis? Et quand bien même la chose ne serait pas inconstitutionnelle, est-ce qu'elle ne serait pas en opposition avec tous les principes de la justice. Je veux bien qu'il ne puisse plus être créé aucune hypothèque dispensée de la formalité de l'enregistrement ou plutôt de l'inscription; mais il ne faut pas pour cela fouler aux pieds les droits acquis. Quand vous réduisez à néant les hypothèques tacites, il semble qu'à vos yeux ce soit un acte qui ne puisse être préjudiciable à qui que ce soit. Je vous demande bien pardon. Sous l'hypothèque tacite se cache un droit réel déjà acquis, quoique non inscrite. Je le répète, je veux bien qu'on exige l'inscription de l'hypothèque à l'avenir, et qu'on oblige les clercs des cours à remplir cette formalité.

Le sénateur d'Est Bâton Rouge a présenté un argument en faveur du bill, et nous a fait voir la question sous un côté sentimental. Il nous a dit qu'il était inhumain de demander un titre contre un tuteur naturel. Pourquoi cela? Comment pourrez-vous alors rendre l'inscription obligatoire pour certains officiers publics, s'ils n'ont aucune pièce qui prouve l'hypothèque. Est-ce que le bill du Sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans, exempte les tuteurs naturels de la nécessité de fournir ce titre? Nullement. Examinez le bill, et vous verrez qu'il ne dit rien de cela. Supposons maintenant que les tuteurs naturels ne soient pas forcés de fournir un titre, quel serait le résultat de cette inscription, si non de ramener les choses au même état de doute et d'incertitude dont vous essayez en ce moment de les arracher. Voyons quel est l'objet du bill, et quels en seront les effets. Il semble avoir été introduit et rédigé pour le seul avantage et profit des prêteurs d'argent qui ont besoin de garanties plus faciles à vérifier que celles qu'ils ont en ce moment, sous l'empire de la loi qui nous régit. Ils n'aiment pas à aller jusques dans les paroisses des campagnes pour prendre la peine d'y examiner les archives de la Cour. Ce serait cependant très facile, mais ce serait pour eux trop de dérangement. Il leur faudrait se rendre dans la paroisse où demeure l'emprunteur et y vérifier s'il a jamais été tuteur, curateur ou administrateur, et, je le répète, ce serait trop de peine pour ces Messieurs. Il leur faut des affaires plus faciles. Il faut que pour ne pas les fatiguer, nous bouleversions l'antique recueil de nos lois. Cependant, la vérification serait aisée et sûre.

Presque chaque personne de la paroisse pourrait donner au prêteur les informations requises. Chaque habitant de la localité qui aurait rempli les fonctions de tuteur, curateur ou administrateur, est parfaitement connu, de sorte que c'est la chose du monde la plus facile que de s'en assurer. Je répète que ce bill semble avoir été fait dans l'intérêt exclusif des prêteurs d'argent, et dans le seul but de leur éviter quelque embarras ou désagrément. Dans la paroisse que j'habite, Messieurs, je mets en fait que chacun vous dira les noms de tous ceux qui peuvent être frappés d'hypothèques tacites. Je ne partage donc pas l'opinion du membre sur la question des titres à fournir par des tuteurs naturels. Je pense que toutes personnes exerçant l'une de ces fonctions judiciaires, doivent être forcées de fournir un titre. Il n'y a rien là qui soit contre nature. J'ai moi-même été tuteur naturel, et j'ai toujours été prêt à donner un titre. Tout honnête homme doit être prêt à le faire. Ce n'est pas là une dureté.

Et maintenant, Messieurs, je répète que nous ne pouvons pas réduire à néant des droits nés et acquis. Que les prêteurs d'argent se livrent à l'examen des titres. Qu'ils fassent le nécessaire pour assurer leur créance. Ils sont, Dieu merci, assez généralement fort habiles en ces matières. Et ne changeons pas pour eux un système que nous regretterions ensuite.

Le crédit, en thèse générale, est basé sur la confiance. Dans le commerce, dont on a tant parlé, ces sortes de vérifications ne sont pas en usage.

Le crédit ne s'occupe d'aucun des détails dont on parle. Il se donne généralement à des personnes dont on ne connaît aucunement la solvabilité réelle. Il se proportionne à des apparences extérieures, à l'allure de la personne, à son exactitude dans les paiements, à son entente des affaires, à l'importance de ses bénéfices présumés et à la nature de sa clientèle. En un mot, il est basé sur la confiance réciproque. Tout le monde connaît la loi telle qu'elle est aujourd'hui. Changez-la, et il s'écoulera plus d'un quart de siècle avant que votre nouvelle loi soit connue des masses. Par ce seul motif, elle serait déjà une injustice à l'égard des classes inférieures, c'est-à-dire de celles qui, absorbées dans un travail pénible, n'ont que très peu de temps à consacrer à l'étude des lois de leur pays. Il vaut mieux, après tout, que la loi soit un peu plus dure et qu'elle soit connue de tous.

On nous dit que, sous le système actuel, la Louisiane n'est pas prospère. Messieurs, je ne puis croire à cette assertion. J'ai débarqué à la Nlle-Orléans à une époque où elle ne comptait que 8,000 habitants, et depuis ce temps, j'ai vu cette ville grandir sans cesse, à ce point qu'elle renferme aujourd'hui 150,000 habitants, et est en possession du monopole du commerce de toute la vallée du Mississipi. C'est là, si je ne me trompe, une certaine prospérité.

Et durant tout ce temps, pendant que s'est opéré ce prodigieux développement, quelle était la loi hypothécaire qui nous gouvernait?

Nous avons eu des codes. Sous les deux législations le même système hypothécaire a été conservé. Quelle différence peut résulter pour la situation du commerce, de l'inscription ou de la non inscription des hypothèques légales? Comment la prospérité du commerce peut-elle en être affectée?

Cependant, je me prêterai volontiers au système d'inscription des hypothèques légales dont la création sera postérieure à notre bill, si le Sénat croit nécessaire de l'établir, quoique, à mes yeux, ce ne soit qu'un embarras rien de plus. Les gens qui nous viennent des Etats où les femmes n'ont aucun droit et n'ont à attendre aucune protection de la loi, viennent nous dire que notre pays est inhabitable, que les femmes y ont des droits positifs, et que c'est une indignité. Ce langage, ce sont les prêteurs d'argent qui le tiennent. Personne, dans les campagnes, ne désire le changement dont on nous a peint la nécessité en traits si ardents. Je fais le pari qu'il n'y a pas dans toute ma paroisse cinq personnes qui le désirent. En effet, chez nous, nous connaissons, d'une manière exacte et bien précise, sans pouvoir nous y tromper, tous les tuteurs et toutes les femmes mariées. Et il en est de même dans toutes les autres paroisses de la campagne. Si une personne désire acquérir une propriété, elle n'a qu'une chose bien simple à faire pour avoir un titre parfait, c'est d'obtenir de la femme une renonciation à ses droits. Nous sommes très bien comme nous sommes, et nous devons rester ainsi.

Ne nous occupons pas tant des préjugés et des opinions erronnées des personnes étrangères à notre Etat, et qui n'entendent pas bien nos lois, et conséquemment ne sont pas à même de bien apprécier la valeur et la portée. Les intérêts commerciaux de la Nlle-Orléans ne sont pas les seuls intérêts auxquels nous devions avoir égard. Nous ne devons pas non plus nous attacher exclusivement à l'opinion et aux vœux des personnes qui n'entendent pas nos lois et demandent des changements qui ne doivent profiter qu'à elles-mêmes.

Peut-être aurais-je quelques autres observations à ajouter à propos du bill ; mais, pour le moment, je me borne à en demander l'amendement de façon à faire qu'il ne soit applicable qu'aux hypothèques à venir. Cela, du moins, serait constitutionnel, tandis que la proposition d'anéantir des droits déjà existants, est manifestement inconstitutionnelle. Nous ne pouvons pas toucher à des droits acquis. L'argument du sénateur d'Est Baton Rouge, sur ce point, est sans réplique.

M. King. — Si l'hon. membre veut bien m'accorder quelques moments d'attention, je pense qu'il pourra puiser quelque satisfaction à sa demande dans les arguments que je vais lui présenter.

Selon moi, la prétendue inconstitutionnalité aperçue par le sénateur d'Est Bâton Rouge est une pure chimère, un leurre de son imagination.

L'hiver dernier, quand un bill semblable à celui-ci, a été introduit devant le Sénat, la matière a été élaborée avec le plus grand soin. Or, personne ne s'est levé de son siège pour dire que le bill fût inconstitutionnel. Le bill a passé devant le Sénat, mais a échoué dans l'autre Chambre. J'étais à la Chambre pendant le court débat qui s'est engagé sur ce sujet, et je puis dire que le bill a été rejeté avant même qu'il eût été à moitié lu et par conséquent, compris

Je vais maintenant expliquer la loi au point de vue constitutionnel, et dissiper les nuages que quelques membres se sont plus à jeter dans l'esprit des Sénateurs. Je donnerai mon opinion, mais je l'appuierai de celle de la plus haute autorité légale, je veux parler de l'opinion de la Cour Suprême des Etats-Unis, présidée par le chef de la justice, M. Marshall. Le bill introduit par le sénateur d'Est Feliciana, M. Wickliffe, ordonne l'abolition immédiate de toutes les hypothèques tacites. Je suis tout prêt à admettre qu'un bill qui règle leur destruction immédiate et complète, dans un seul et même instant, pourrait être regardé comme inconstitutionnel et même inique. Mais en même temps que je reconnais ce point, je rappellerai au Sénat un autre principe légal. C'est le droit indiscutable de chaque communauté, de passer telles ou telles lois d'enregistrement que bon lui semble, par des raisons de bonne administration intérieure. Tout ce que pourrait faire une Cour, si le cas était porté devant elle, ce serait de décider d'après l'intention de la Cour. Elle aurait à s'enquérir et à décider si la Législature a eu en vue d'enlever à des citoyens, des droits acquis, ou si elle n'a songé, au contraire, qu'à établir un bon système de gouvernement. Dans le premier cas, il y aurait inconstitutionnalité, dans le second la Législature aurait agi dans la plénitude de ses droits. C'est du moins l'avis qu'a exprimé sur ce sujet notre plus haute autorité légale, la Cour Suprême des Etats-Unis. Le sénateur d'Est Baton Rouge a cité une décision de ce tribunal, qu'il a cru être une justification de ses vues sur cette matière.

Je crois pouvoir prouver que ces déductions sont entièrement fausses.

Voici les circonstances de l'affaire : Un individu, du nom de Cornélius, vendit des terres d'abord à une personne, puis à une autre, ce qui, comme bien on en pense, donna lieu à des difficultés, à un procès. A cette époque (l'époque à laquelle eut lieu la vente), il n'y avait pas de loi d'enregistrement dans l'Etat de New-York, et, naturellement, les titres reposaient sur les principes généraux de la loi commune, qui établissent formellement que les titres les plus anciens sont les meilleurs. Cependant, l'Etat passa plus tard une loi dont le but était de faire connaître la condition de toutes les propriétés foncières, situées dans l'Etat, et qui enjoignait à chaque propriétaire de faire enregistrer ses propriétés. Le premier auquel le transfert avait été fait, négligea de se conformer à cette loi, mais le second ne fit pas de même et il fit l'enregistrement requis. Il devint ainsi le propriétaire absolu de ces terres, puisque le défaut de son titre se trouvait de la sorte effacé par l'enregistrement et par la négligence du premier acquéreur. L'affaire fut portée devant la Cour Suprême des Etats-Unis, qui décida que les Législatures avaient indubitablement le droit de passer des lois d'enregistrement, et que si quelqu'un négligeait de s'y conformer, ainsi que dans le cas précité, il perdrait son droit. Voyons dans quels termes s'exprime la Cour :

" Il est incontestablement au pouvoir des Législatures de l'Etat, de passer des actes d'enregistrement, par lesquels les titres du premier acquéreur peuvent être perdus, s'il ne fait pas enregistrer la propriété dans le délai fixé, et le pouvoir est le même, soit que le titre est daté avant ou après l'adoption de l'acte d'enregistrement. Quoique l'effet d'une telle loi est de rendre frauduleuse la première vente, de la rendre nulle devant une vente subséquente, elle ne détruit pas l'obligation des contrats; tel est également le pouvoir de passer des actes de limitation. Des considérations de la plus haute importance ont souvent nécessité l'adoption générale de lois de cette nature, et leur validité ne saurait être mise en doute. L'époque et le mode de leur mise en vigueur, les exceptions qui peuvent être faites, les actes à partir desquels comptera l'époque de la limitation, dépendent généralement des Législatures, et sont, suivant la nature des titres, la situation du pays et les circonstances qui y ont donné lieu. Il peut se présenter des cas dans lesquels les prescriptions d'une loi de cette nature soient si déraisonnables, qu'elles ne soient rien qu'un déni de justice et qu'elles nécessitent l'intervention d'une Cour ; mais tel n'est pas le cas actuel."

Outre ces lignes que je crois bien claires, bien formelles, je vais encore donner un exemple que vous fournit notre Etat. L'année dernière il n'y avait pas en Louisiane de limitation de jugement. Une fois le jugement obtenu, il était bon pour des milliers d'années. La dernière Législature passa une loi déclarant qu'un jugement qui ne serait pas inscrit de nouveau, deviendrait nul au bout de dix ans, et cela s'applique à tous les jugements, soit qu'ils existent déja, soit qu'ils n'aient pas encore été rendus. Cependant, lorsque ce bill fut adopté, s'éleva-t-il une tempête semblable à celle qu'on soulève aujourd'hui? S'est-on autant récrié au sujet des droits acquis qu'on l'a fait dans tout le cours de cette interminable discussion? A-t-on comme aujourd'hui entassé pendant huit heures, "remuant terre et cieux avec une parole, Wagram sur Marengo, Champ-Aubert sur Arcole, Pélion sur Ossa."

La Cour Suprême dit que nous avons le droit de passer des lois d'enregistrement; cela ne laisse plus de doutes sur la question de constitutionnalité. Le bill indique le 1er avril 1855 comme le jour à partir duquel l'enregistrement des hypothèques devra être fait, ou suivant la motion, de substituer à cette date, le 1er octobre. Si le Sénat juge cette époque plus convenable, j'y consens volontiers; mais, dans tous les cas, il est temps d'en finir avec ce système détestable qui nous écrase, qui nous ruine. Malgré ses défauts reconnus, ses effets désastreux, devons-nous continuer à le supporter? Nous est-il irrévocablement, fatalement imposé? Est-il attaché à nous comme le vieux de la montagne, à l'infortuné Simbad-le-Marin? Tous ceux qui ont parlé sur cette question, à l'exception du sénateur de Saint-Martin, M. Moore, ont reconnu, ont admis que le système actuel est détestable, et ce sénateur lui-même, cédant sans doute au courant de l'opinion publique, consent à ce que nous exigions à l'avenir l'enregistrement de toutes les hypothèques. Mais cette concession ne serait que de très peu d'effet, et avant qu'il en pût résulter aucun bien, toutes les femmes mariées seraient mortes, tous les mineurs auraient atteint leur majorité. Plusieurs sénateurs sont venus ici engagés à entreprendre l'abolition de ce système d'hypothèques tacites. Nos Constituants espèrent que nous remplirons cette promesse. Accepter la proposition du sénateur de St-Martin, ce serait leur donner des pierres quand ils demandent du pain, ce serait les bercer d'un espoir qui ne se réalisera pas.

Le sénateur a dit que le peuple ne désire pas ce changement. S'il est sincère dans cette opinion qu'il a émise, il sera donc disposé à ce qu'un appel soit fait au peuple. Adoptez donc le bill et soumettez-le ensuite à la sanction du peuple. Vous verrez qu'il ne s'élèvera pas une seule voix contre. On lit dans l'histoire qu'un empereur romain fut détrôné parce qu'il faisait afficher si haut ses lois que personne ne pouvait les lire: que dira-t-on de la Louisiane qui n'écrit même pas ses lois?

M. le Président, qu'il me soit permis de déclarer aussi que mes sympathies en faveur des mineurs et des femmes mariées, sont aussi vives, aussi sincères que celles d'aucun sénateur dans cette enceinte, et que je consentirais aussi peu qu'aucun d'eux, à faire ou à proposer quoique ce fût qui pût leur être préjudiciable.

Je soutiens que sous le régime du bill que j'ai eu l'honneur de présenter, les droits des mineurs seraient beaucoup plus en sureté que sous ce misérable système d'hypothèques tacites. Je suis opposé au substitut du sénateur d'Ouest Feliciana, et j'espère qu'il ne sera pas accepté.

Avant de terminer, qu'il me soit permis de dire un mot encore au sujet de la question de constitutionnalité. Si quelques sénateurs ne partagent pas avec moi l'opinion que toutes les objections sont de véritables chimères, que devons-nous faire alors? Renoncer aux immenses avantages que causerait l'adoption de ce bill? Oh non, je l'espère du moins. J'espère que le Sénat ne s'y résoudra pas et que le bill sera adopté.

JEUDI, 23 fevriér 1854.

LA RIVIERE ATCHAFALAYA.

M. Palfrey présente une résolution conjointe requérant nos Représentants et nos Sénateurs au Congrès de faire tous leurs efforts pour obtenir une appropriation qui devra être employée à donner au chenal de la rivière Atchafalaya une profondeur de douze pieds

M. Palfrey—Je désire soumettre quelques observations à l'appui de ce bill. On sait que le chemin de fer des Opelousas, ou plutôt la route du chemin de fer projeté passe à un certain endroit connu sous le nom de baie de Berwick qui est la voie de communication de la mer à la rivière Atchafalaya à travers une région riche et fertile. On désire rendre plus profond le chenal de la rivière qui est maintenant semé d'une foule d'obstacles de toute nature. La résolution n'a pas en vue une appropriation à faire par l'Etat, elle appelle simplement l'attention de nos Représentants et de nos Senateurs au Congrès sur cette question et les requiert b'obtenir, s'il est possible, du gouvernement fédéral, une appropriation dans ce but.

La résolution est adoptée.

M. Wickliffe évoque le bill pour venir au secours de Moses Lee.

M. Hodge—Je désirerais avoir quelques informations au sujet de ce bill avant de donner mon vote pour ou contre

M. Wickliffe—Je répondrai au Sénateur que M. Lee a droit à cette somme. Il s'est exactement conformé aux dispositions de l'acte de 1853. Il envoya ses papiers ici, mais ne pût être payé par la seule raison que l'appropriation du montant auquel il aurait eu droit d'apres cet acte. Il a été référé au comité judiciaire et a été l'objet d'un rapport favorable. J'espère qu'il sera adopté, car il n'a rien en vue qu'un acte de simple justice.

M. Hodge—Eh bien, Monsieur, je voterai contre ce bill, parce qu'il est d'une nature spéciale. S'il était d'une nature générale, je voterais pour. Mais ce n'est là qu'un sur mille des cas résultant de la loi de 1852, dans lesquels des personnes qui avaient droit à être payées ne l'ont pas été.

M. Wickliffe—Si l'acte de 1852 n'avait pas passé à la Législature, nous ne nous en trouverions que mieux. Je suis d'avis qu'aucune pension ne devrait être faite si ce n'est pour des raisons particulières de mérite ou de talent. Sous le régime des lois générales la preuve est toujours ex parte, et les moyens de juger bien des mérites d'une affaire sont beaucoup moindres, et des personnes qui n'ont que peu de titres peuvent obtenir paiement, quand d'autres qui devraient y avoir plus de droits n'y peuvent pas parvenir. Dans ces circonstances, l'appropriation entière avait été épuisée par des personnes résidant non loin du siége du gouvernement et qui pouvaient par consequent faire valoir immédiatement leurs titres.

M. Kenner—Je demanderai si M. Lee est un de ceux qui ont obtenu antérieurement des secours.

M. Wickliffe—Je l'ignore absolument.

Le bill est adopté.

QUARANTAINE.

M. Trudeau—Je demande l'autorisation de présenter, au nom de la commission sanitaire, le rapport rédigé par elle, et avant je lirai la réponse de la chambre de commerce de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans aux questions proposées par le comité.

Après avoir donné lecture de cette lettre, M. Trudeau présente le rapport suivant:

Rapport de la Majorité

Au Sénat et à la Chambre des Représentans.

Le comité étant convaincu que la Nouvelle-Orléans a toujours été le foyer de toutes les épidémies qui ont régné dans l'Etat, a cru devoir s'enquérir des moyens les plus efficaces pour protéger la ville ou la rendre plus salubre.

Digitized by Google

Protéger la ville, c'est protéger l'Etat. La première enquête du comité fut de savoir comment on pourrait prévenir l'importation des maladies par des navires étrangers. — Ce qui amena le comité à faire de grandes recherches quant aux avantages et aux inconvénients qui pourraient résulter d'un système de quarantaine. La position géographique de la Nouvelle-Orléans est toute particulière ; située à quatre-vingt-dix milles de la mer, on peut s'y rendre soit par la Balize, soit par les lacs ou par l'Atchafalaya. Protéger un de ces points sans garantir les autres, serait faire une dépense inutile. Ainsi il faudrait établir trois quarantaines pour empêcher ces maladies de s'introduire par mer.

Le comité craignait que si l'on établissait une quarantaine à la Balize seulement, le flot des émigrants qui se rendraient à la Nouvelle-Orléans, s'y rendraient par la Mobile, et qu'une grande quantité de marchandises se transporteraient par la même voie, au préjudice de la ville ; ce qui en même temps détruirait le système de quarantaine.

Le comité a conclu que si l'on adoptait ce système de quarantaine, il faudrait l'établir sur les lacs. Il serait inutile d'en établir une sur la baie de l'Atchafalaya, attendu qu'il n'y entre que de petits navires, durant les mois d'hiver, qui s'en retournent sans toucher à la ville.

Outre les difficultés qui existent quant à la position particulière de la Nouvelle-Orléans, des intérêts immenses seraient engagés. Fermez le port de la Nouvelle-Orléans, arrêtez le commerce ; quelles en seraient les conséquences ? Qu'on achève le chemin de fer de la Mobile et de l'Ohio, et vous verrez probablement les marchandises destinées pour le Sud-Ouest, arriver à leur destination par ce chemin, tandis que les produits de l'Ouest qui sont aujourd'hui presqu'exclusivement expédiés pour la Nouvelle-Orléans, seront expédiés par la voie de la Mobile, pour faire face aux lettres de change tirées sur l'Ouest.

D'autre part, le grand nombre des décès durant l'été dernier fait naître de telles craintes pour l'avenir et a jeté un tel discrédit sur la ville, que la Nouvelle-Orléans, qui sort à peine des fers dans lesquels l'avait jetée une mauvaise administration et l'apathie de ses citoyens, est maintenant menacée d'une émigration générale ; ce qui aurait lieu si les scènes dont nous avons été témoins l'été dernier venaient à se renouveler.

Bien pénétré de l'objet de sa mission, le comité n'a rien épargné pour arriver à connaître l'histoire de la dernière épidémie et de celles qui l'ont précédée.

Il a adressé une circulaire aux médecins de la Nlle-Orléans, leur soumettant une série de questions, et les invitant à y repondre le plus tôt possible. Il regrette de dire qu'il n'a pas trouvé chez eux l'assistance qu'il avait le droit d'attendre. Les seuls qui ont bien voulu donner au comite leur opinion sur ce sujet, sont messieurs les médecins Cartwright, McFarland, Cenas, Kenner, Ney et Copes. La Commission Sanitaire a procuré au comité des documents utiles. Elle lui a soumis le résultat de toutes ses recherches et de ses travaux, et elle a employé tous les moyens pour aider le comité à asseoir son opinion d'une manière satisfaisante.

Après avoir examiné cette masse de matières, lesquelles étaient basées d'opinions contradictoires, il a été très difficile au comité de résoudre la question. Il est admis que l'épidémie qui a regné l'année dernière est la fièvre jaune. Qu'il est probable que le premier cas qui s'est présenté a pris naissance dans la ville de la Nlle-Orléans. Que, dans des cas particuliers, elle ait changé de caractère, et ait produit des symptômes inconnus jusqu'alors ; que ceux-ci l'aient crue contagieuse, ceux-là l'aient déclarée pestilentielle, et qu'une troisième classe ait décidé qu'elle n'était ni contagieuse ni pestilentielle, sont des faits qu'on ne peut pas nier. Quant au comité, son opinion est, que si cette maladie s'est répandue par tout le pays et sur les plantations, contrairement à ses habitudes, c'est qu'elle était d'un caractère pestilentiel, ou, en d'autres termes moins scientifiques, mais plus clairs, c'est qu'elle se communiquait par la respiration d'un air impur. Et sans nous arrêter à la théorie habile du docteur Cartwright sur la production des (algua organisum) il nous suffit d'admettre que cet air vicié pout être importé, pour expliquer la rapide extension de la dernière épidémie jusqu'aux confins de l'Etat. Nous avons vu la maladie suivre invariablement le même cours ; s'étendre graduellement des bords du fleuve jusque dans l'intérieur. Nous avons vu que, toutes les fois qu'un cas s'est présenté dans une petite ville ou dans une famille, (excepté la ville de Donaldsonville dont la population était acclimatée) il y surgissait immédiatement d'autres cas. N'ayant pas de théorie à défendre, nous devons reconnaître que la maladie peut être importée. Que des personnes non-acclimatées aient soigné des malades sans être atteintes de la fièvre, cela n'établit pas la preuve que cette maladie n'est pas contagieuse ou pestilentielle. Ce ne sont que des exceptions à la règle générale. Et nous croyons qu'il faut qu'un individu exposé à la maladie la plus contagieuse, ait une certaine predisposition physique pour être atteint.

Nous avons dit que la fièvre jaune avait pris naissance à la Nouvelle-Orléans (bien que nous n'en sommes pas encore certains); on ne peut nier qu'elle ait changé de caractère sans que personne ait pu expliquer ce changement. Et si nous voulions trouver les causes qui ont amené ce changement dans le caractère de la maladie, nous n'avons qu'à nous référer à la dissertation habile du docteur Cartwright, approuvée par d'autres médecins. Ou la fièvre des navires (ship fever) transmet ses symptômes à la fièvre jaune, ou bien elle change de caractère. Le navire Northumberland, parti de Liverpool, arriva à la Nouvelle-Orléans au commencement de mai avec 480 émigrants; et nous avons été informés que ceux des émigrants qui étaient atteints de la maladie dite ship fever, en arrivant à la Balize avaient le teint des malades attaqués de la fièvre jaune. Nous sommes arrivés à la conclusion que les maladies peuvent changer de caractère, soit par des circonstances particulières, soit par des influences atmosphériques; que le caractère de la fièvre jaune ordinaire a subi un grand changement par la présence du Typhus, et a pris un caractère dangereux très peu de temps après l'arrivée du Northumberland. Que la fièvre jaune proprement dite ne peut être importée et s'étendre que l'extension d'une prédisposition atmosphérique de nature à engendrer cette maladie.

Le simple fait que, en 1802, l'amiral Gravina débarqua à Cadix avec 500 malades atteints de la fièvre jaune, sans que cette maladie eut attaqué d'autres personnes, serait une preuve concluante en faveur de notre opinion, si déjà elle n'était appuyée sur des opinions émises sur ce sujet par les écrivains les plus capables.

Mais si elle peut être créée par les influences atmosphériques, se repandrait-elle parmi notre population permanente sans être importée ? et dans ce cas ne s'éteindrait-elle pas lentement si elle n'était pas alimentée par d'autres influences ? L'été dernier deux mille émigrants périrent de cette maladie mais qu'une seule personne résidant à la Nouvelle-Orléans en fut atteinte, et il est certain que les personnes non acclimatées sont plus ou moins sujettes à cette maladie à son début, en proportion du temps de leur residence ici.

Si l'on admettait une bonne fois, que l'engendrement ou la propagation de cette fièvre dussent à être alimentée, où serait la difficulté d'empêcher l'introduction des emigrants, parmi nous, durant une certaine saison. Il est immoral et inhumain de les expedier pour ce port durant l'été, et pour leur propre sûreté aussi bien que pour la nôtre, on ne devrait pas leur permettre d'entrer dans notre port, car une mort certaine les attend. Forcez le capitaine d'un navire arrivant ici durant l'été, de débarquer ses passagers à la quarantaine avec des provisions nécessaires, ou maintenez en quarantaine les navires, jusqu'à ce que la saison des maladies soit passée, et l'émigration, pour ce port, durant l'été, cessera.

Si nous ne pouvons pas empêcher la fièvre jaune d'apparaître ici ; si c'est une maladie purement locale, le nettoiement de nos rues, le desséchement des marécages et toutes autres mesures sanitaires deviendraient inutiles. Cependant, nous pouvons l'empêcher de se répandre en la privant de ce caractère pestilentiel qu'elle avait pris en 1853. Nous ne nous souvenons pas que cette maladie ait jamais, avant l'été dernier, existé dans nos plantations ou se soit répandue dans nos campagnes. Nos propres observations, le témoignage de tous les anciens citoyens appuie l'assertion, que nos paroisses de l'intérieur (les villages exceptés) avant l'été dernier, ont toujours été à l'abri de cette maladie.

Si l'on admet que cette maladie n'a existé dans les campagnes que parce que les émigrants s'y sont répandus, cela prouverait que cette fièvre est contagieuse. Jamais auparavant les étrangers qui respiraient l'air pur dans nos campagnes n'en ont été atteints, ni n'ont-ils jamais communiqué la maladie, lorsqu'ils en portaient le germe avec eux.

Le navire Augusta arriva ici le 17 mai dernier, et il est admis que les dix ou douze premiers cas de fièvre jaune ont pris naissance parmi les hommes de son équipage. Peu de temps après l'arrivée de ce navire, deux autre cas se sont présentés dans une autre partie de la ville où il n'existait aucune communication avec ce navire. Cependant il se peut qu'on ait pris pour des cas de fièvre jaune, ceux qui provenaient d'autres causes. Votre comité ne dit pas que la maladie a été apportée par le navire Augusta, il ne fait que mentionner des faits, et il laisse aux autres le droit d'en tirer des conséquences.

La fièvre jaune n'est pas le seul fléau qui ait décimé notre population, la fièvre typhoïde, la picotte volante, la fièvre scarlatine, la rougeole, le choléra, ont souvent fait leur apparition parmi nous. Et il est aussi important d'empêcher les ravages de ces maladies que ceux de la fièvre jaune.

La quarantaine nous protégerait-elle contre ces maladies? l'expérience seule peut nous répondre. Elle n'a pas plus réussi contre le choléra en Europe que les cordons sanitaires.

Vouloir empêcher la propagation d'une maladie purement épidémique dans les campagnes qui sont limitrophes, où l'air impur peut être communiqué d'un point à un autre par chaque bouffée de vent, serait vouloir arrêter les nuages eux-mêmes dans leur course. Et il est très probable que nous obtiendrions ici les mêmes resultats dans des circonstances semblables. Mais cet air vicié peut-il parcourir des millions de milles qui nous séparent de l'Europe, sans être modifié, s'il n'est pas renfermé dans la cale mal aérée d'un navire, où il conservera sa malignité par sa propagation constante?

Le docteur Cartwright dit, que dans plus de cent occasions, on a arrêté les progrès du choléra sur les plantations, en transportant en plein air les nègres avec leurs vêtements. Ne pourrait-on pas obtenir les mêmes resultats en prenant ces precautions à l'égard des navires qui transportent des émigrants.

Le typhus, la rougeole et la picote volante sont reconnus comme des maladies pestilentielles, et on est presque convaincu qu'elles peuvent être propagées, si ce n'est par les malades qui en sont atteints, du moins par leurs lits et leurs vêtements empreints de leurs émanations impures renfermés dans la cale d'un navire où l'air pur pénètre à peine. Si la mortalité provient de ces causes seulement, le système que nous proposons doit prévaloir.

L'opinion des médecins à la Nouvelle-Orléans, ne doit pas nous guider, attendu que la plupart n'ont pas voulu s'occuper de ce sujet et que ceux qui ont bien voulu nous aider dans nos recherches ne s'accordent pas.

Bien qu'à l'étranger il n'y ait plus la même confiance dans le système de quarantaine, cependant lorsque nous voyons nos voisins de l'Est jouir sans interruption d'une bonne santé, maintenir un système considéré par d'autres comme étant condamné, nous devons croire qu'ils considèrent ce système comme avantageux et utile.

Les écrivains européens peuvent bien attaquer un système qui leur est inutile. L'émigration ne va pas ici chez eux, mais de chez eux ici. Ils n'ont besoin aucun réglement pour les mettre à l'abri des maladies qui prennent naissance à bord des navires mal rés, où des êtres humains sont tellement entassés, e l'air qu'ils respirent est bientôt privé de son orine, et vicié par les émanations de l'agglomération s individus; ils n'ont besoin d'aucune protection ntre les maladies qui règnent constamment dans les uges humides habités par leur population à moitié e et mourant de faim.

Nous ne sommes pas étonnés que leur faculté médile ait protesté contre une charge aussi inutile que pendieuse. Mais quelle difference ici! Notre doux mat, notre sol, nos institutions gratuites, nos bras ouverts aux opprimés du monde entier, sont des attraits plus qu'engageants. Des milliers d'émigrants arrivent dans notre port, et se dispersent dans toutes les directions; mais dans quel état arrivent-ils après une traversée de cinquante à soixante-dix jours, durant lesquels leur constitution a été minée par de mauvais alimens et l'air impur; les régistres de l'Hôpital de Charité, et les gardiens de nos cimetières seuls peuvent répondre s'ils n'apportent pas avec eux dans leurs vêtements salis, toutes les maladies qu'ils ont eues en mer, ou importées de chez eux, ils arrivent au moins à un état qui doit engendrer et propager toutes les maladies.

Qu'ils arrivent ici durant les jours humides du mois de décembre, sous l'influence médicinale des eaux du Mississippi, lorsqu'il existe quelques cas sporadiques de choléra parmi nous; ou qu'ils arrivent ici durant les journées chaudes du mois d'août, lorsque l'atmosphère est chargée d'une predisposition à la fièvre jaune, quelles en seraient les consequences? une épouvantable épidémie.

L'émigration est pour la Nouvelle-Orléans, ce que le Nil est pour les Egyptiens. Abandonné à son propre cours, c'est un torrent dont les eaux bourbeuses entrainent avec elles la mort et la destruction—bien dirigé, il fait naître la richesse et la prospérité.

Outre les raisons contenues dans ce rapport, votre comité croit que le désir d'une grande majorité de nos constituants merite considération.

Et si un système de quarantaine ne devait produire d'autres résultats que celui de rétablir la confiance et prouver à nos voisins notre ferme intention de remédier au mal, nous n'hesiterions pas à le recommander. Nous devons aux autres Etats avec lesquels nous sommes constamment en rapport d'affaires, en retour des produits qu'ils nous expédient, quelque chose de plus que des théories abstraites. Nous avons beaucoup de compétitions pour les riches denrées qui nous viennent de la vallée du Mississippi, et l'expérience nous a déjà démontré que notre marché n'est pas le seul où elles puisent être expédiés

L'avenir de la Nouvelle-Orléans est menacé, et plutôt que de fermer nos ports et croiser nos bras, nous préferons regarder le danger en face. De tous les côtés, les chemins de fer étendent leurs bras pour nous arracher nos riches moissons. Vienne une autre epidémie avant que la memoire de la dernière soit effacée, la Nouvelle-Orléans sera presque ruinée.

Les citoyens intelligents et expérimentée de la Nouvelle-Orléans devraient se joindre à nous, pour établir desréglements sanitaires propres à établir la reputation habituelle de salubrité.

D'après les documents qui accompagnent ce rapport, on verra que la Chambre de commerce, en réponse aux questions que nous lui avons adressées, a declaré et d'une manière positive, qu'une quarantaine n'entraverait nullement le commerce, qu'au contraire, elle serait d'un grand avantage pour la ville. Ce qui donne plus de force à notre opinion, et renverse toutes les objections au système que nous recommandons.

Dans peu de jours la commission sanitaire de la Nouvelle-Orléans présentera un rapport corroborant nos conclusions.

Votre comité recommande un système de quarantaine qui, tout en améliorant la salubrité publique de l'Etat ne mettra que peu d'entraves dans les opérations commerciales.

léans et de l'Etat, et pour prévenir la propagation des maladies épidemiques, nous abordons ce sujet avec grande défiance, fortement convaincus de l'importance de l'enquête et de l'étendue des recherches minutieuses propres à faire ressortir ses nombreux et différents aspects, de manière de pouvoir former une juste opinion de l'utilité ou de la prudence qu'il y aurait à établir des quarantaines.

A cette occasion, nous désirons exprimer notre reconnaissance, pour les renseignements, fournis par une longue expérience des profondes recherches qui ont rapport au sujet qui nous occupe, à la commission sanitaire et aux médecins de la Nouvelle-Orléans, qui les ont généreusement donnés a votre comité et aux soussignés personnellement.

Nous observerons aussi qu'en présentant un rapport pour servir de guide à la Législature, nous ne pensons pas qu'il soit ni convenable, ni utile d'entrer dans un long détail des theories de la profession médicale, sur les maladies épidémiques ; mais nous tacherons de tirer de justes conclusions de la nature des faits qui se r'attachent à l'origine et aux progrès de la fièvre jaune, du choléra, etc.

Cependant en nous livrant à cette enquête, notre premier objet serait de nous rendre compte de la nature et de l'origine (ou du moins les comprendre autant que notre raison le permet) pour asseoir une opinion quant à la nature et à l'origine des principaux désordres épidemiques, et quant aux lois qui gouvernent leur développement et leur contagion. Notre opinion sur cette branche de l'enquête fera ressortir l'avantage ou l'inutilité d'établir des quarantaines afin d'obtenir le résultat que nous avons en vue.

Nous pensons que bien peu de personnes nieront cette proposition, à savoir: que la cause ou le virus générateur de la plupart des épidemies auxquelles l'humanité est exposée et qui nous occupe dans cette enquête, existe et se développe dans l'atmosphère.

Nous pouvons aussi admettre comme une vérité résultant des observations et de l'experience, que la cause essentielle à l'extention ou à la propagation des maladies épidémiques est, qu'une certaine condition épidemico-atmospherique doit exister et existe en effet, produite probablement par des influences électriques ou météorologiques.

Nous avançons cette derniere proposition pour expliquer le développement des épidémies à certaines époques, sur une vaste étendue du pays, tandis que ces mêmes localités, dans des conditions atmosphériques semblables, échappent à la contagion.

Nous citerons pour exemple la Nouvelle-Orléans qui, pendant les six dernières années, malgré ses relations commerciales avec le monde entier, n'a eu aucune fièvre jaune, dite épidemique, pendant les cinq premières années, mais qui dans ce même espace de temps a eu à souffrir d'un choléra épidemique et à la fin de ce fléau, d'une fièvre jaune également épidémique.

Demandons-nous maintenant pourquoi, dans les mêmes circonstances et conditions atmosphériques, la Nouvelle-Orléans a pu échapper pendant une première période de cinq ans, à la fièvre-jaune épidemique, et être ravagée pendant la sixième année ? La seule reponse à cette question est celle que nous avons donnée plus haut.

Mais la question qui se présente maintenant est celle de savoir si ce qu'on pourrait appeler, faute d'une meilleure expression, une atmosphère épidemique, dispense de la nécessité de s'enquerir des causes purement locales necessaires à la propagation de la dernière épidémie ? Nullement. Car, soit que nous considerions comme un fait admis pour les besoins de l'enquête seulement, que le virus ou germe de la fièvre jaune n'est jamais suffisamment dégagé et concentré par l'action combinée prolongée de la chaleur et des miasmes sur les vegetaux en decomposition, de manière à produire la fièvre jaune, et dès lors la maladie n'est pas indigène, mais d'origine étrangère. Cependant, nous ne devons pas perdre de vue les vérités suivantes, savoir : premièrement, que la fièvre jaune ne se declare ou ne se propage pas dans une atmosphère pure. 2o. qu'en supposant qu'elle se declare ou se propage sous l'influence d'une ou de plusieurs causes, elle n'est pas moins due à la présence d'une atmosphère empoisonnée par l'action continuelle de la chaleur sur les matières végétales en décomposition ou même sur la terre nouvellement remuée, avec laquelle elles se trouvent combinées 3o. Que la fièvre-jaune épidemique, ainsi que le choléra, la grippe, &c, dépendant d'élements atmosphériques, quant à leur origine et à leur propagation, «ne sont point des maladies contagieuses,» dans le sens général du mot, c'est-à-dire une maladie qui dépend d'un certain germe, et est transmise d'une personne à une autre, avec les mêmes caractères. 4o. Que depuis un siècle, dans différentes localités, et à certaines époques, la fièvre-jaune PEUT-ETRE et A ETE indigène parmi nous dans na très grand nombre de cas observés.

C'est une vague idée assez généralement reçue parmi le peuple, qu'une maladie épidémique dans son invasion, portant une si grande malignité dans de vastes et différentes localités, doit être propagée par la contagion. Mais si cette idée est vraie, on découvrira que les moyens de propagor la cause de la maladie, sinon la cause elle-même « doit exister » et « existe » en effet au milieu de la population.

Ainsi que nous l'avons déjà observé, nous n'avons pas l'intention d'entrer dans des détails, mais nous tirerons des conclusions basées sur des observations de faits tendant à prouver ou à faire rejeter les principes de la contagion relativement à la fièvre jaune, au choléra, etc ; observations faites et recueillies par une grande majorité du corps medical dans le monde entier jusqu'à nos jours.

Nous donnerons ici quelques-unes de ces observations :

M. Gilkress, inspecteur-général des hôpitaux militaires en Angleterre, après mûrs examens du sujet qui nous occupe, est arrivé à la conclusion qu'aucune preuve satisfaisante n'a été produite dans aucun pays à l'appui de l'assertion que la fièvre jaune et le choléra sont des maladies contagieuses, mais que le contraire a été prouvé.

Le Bureau de Santé de Londres a dernièrement publié un document portant que, d'après les rapports reçus, la crainte de l'epidémie n'est d'aucune portée dans la pratique

En 1849, les administrateurs de l'hôpital de Guy à Londres, refusèrent d'y admettre des cholériques alors qu'ils étaient eux-mêmes entourés de malades et qu'ils mouraient de cette maladie, et cela par crainte de la contagion ; mais à présent cet établissement compte plus de cas de choléra qu'aucun autre hôpital dans cette ville, ayant reconnu que la maladie n'a aucun caractère contagieux.

Le Dr. Farlange, qui a acquis beaucoup d'expérience relativement à la fièvre jaune dans les Indes Occidentales, declare qu'aucun medecin dans nos contrées ne croit à la contagion de la fièvre jaune.— Nous voudrions maintenant au point où se présente naturellement la question savoir si la fièvre jaune, le choléra, etc, « ne sont point des maladies contagieuses » et exigeant « toujours » certains élements atmosphériques propres au pays pour tenir lieu de la cause propagatrice de ces épidémies : quels sont les moyens que nous devons adopter pour arriver plus sûrement à la préservation de la salubrité dans l'Etat ?

Nous répondrons sans hesitation : Eloignes toutes matières végétales en décomposition qui pourraient alterer la pureté de l'atmosphère dans toutes les localités : évitons de fouiller la terre en l'exposant à l'action continuelle de la chaleur combinée avec l'humidité.

La Nouvelle-Orléans, cette grande métropole de l'Etat, peut être citée pour prouver, ainsi que nous l'avons déjà dit plus haut, les effets salutaires de la propreté.

Quelle est la condition des rues, des ruisseaux, des cours et des logements de la classe pauvre de cette ville et de ses faubourgs ?

Les ruisseaux d'egout de la ville et de ses faubourgs sont comblés ou plutôt présentent dans un état de stagnation complète, toutes les immondices qu'une population de 150,000 âmes y jette journellement, et même des matières qui s'échappent des lieux d'aisance.

Un grand nombre des rues et des égouts des environs de la ville et de ses faubourgs ne sont point pavés, et de veritables bourbiers mêlés de matières végétales, dans lesquels on s'enfonce jusqu'aux genoux; la moitié des terrains de la ville et de ses faubourgs sont plus bas, de six à douze pouces, que les banquettes, et se trouvent inondés après de fortes pluies; et ces eaux mêlées à ces matières végétales dont nous venons de parler, forment des centaines de marais hermétiquement entourés de barrières de 8 pieds de haut et qui restent ainsi exposés jusqu'à ce qu'il soient absorbés par les rayons d'un soleil ardent et d'une chaleur de 120 degrés de Farenheit.

Nous demandons maintenant, peut-on espérer d'obtenir un air pur et salubre dans de tels circonstances ?

Lors même que toutes les connaissances chimiques du monde seraient mises en réquisition, on ne saurait imaginer un laboratoire plus ingenieux pour la fabrication d'un air impur destiné à détruire la vie de l'homme, que celui qui existe dans la Nouvelle-Orléans et ses faubourgs. Ajoutez à cela que la classe pauvre est condamnée à vivre dans des taudis bâtis au milieu de ces bourbiers infects qui mettraient en danger la vie des animaux immondes, et par la même raison doivent inévitablement engendrer des maladies et porter la mort dans l'espèce humaine.

Après cet aperçu des localités, nous nous demanderons comment on peut obtenir un air pur à la Nouvelle-Orleans et quels sont les moyens qu'on se propose ? Nous suggererons : 1o Que toutes les rues de la ville et de ses faubourgs devraient être pavées. 2o Que tous terrains situés dans la dite ville et ses faubourgs devraient être plus élevés que les banquettes, lesquelles devront être carrelées en briques placées sur du ciment hydraulique, surtout les terrains bâtis ou entourés. 3o Egouter complètement par des fosses tous les marais des derrières de la ville ; ne plus exposer les terres marécageuses à l'action des rayons du soleil en abattant les arbres (leurs protecteurs naturels) source de fièvres semblables à celles des marais Pontins près de Rome 4o Etablir une quantité suffisante de machines hydrauliques sur le bord du fleuve afin de laisser couler constamment une eau vive dans tous les ruisseaux de la ville et de ses faubourgs,à toutes les époques où la rivière est trop basse pour fournir de l'eau sans l'aide de pompes 5o Une amélioration dans la construction des logements destinés à la classe pauvre; avoir soin de bien les aérer, y construire un bon plancher à une certaine élévation du sol

Quand ces améliorations seront faites, la population de la Nouvelle-Orleans, désormais pleine de securité, pourra s'enorgueillir de sa salubrité et d'un air pur dont elle jouira, et ne craindra plus les épidémies auxquelles elle a été exposée jusqu'à présent.

Nous remarquerons ici de plus, que la population de la Nouvelle-Orléans n'a d'autre moyen d'esperer d'être à l'abri du fleau dont il est question qu'en adoptant les mesures que nous venons de suggérer.

Que nous sommes convaincus qu'aucuns reglements de quarantaine ne seront assez efficaces pour garantir la salubrité de la ville ou de l'Etat contre l'invasion des maladies epidemiques. Que le seul bien qu'on puisse retirer des reglements sanitaires serait la nomination d'un officier de santé dont le poste serait à la Balise, qui irait avec les pilotes au devant des navires pour les visiter et voir s'il existe à bord des cas de fièvre dite Ship Fever ou des cas de petite verole ; son examen se bornera à ces deux espèces de maladies serait constatée, faire nettoyer le navire, laver le corps ainsi que les hardes de tous ceux qui jouiraient d'une bonne sante, et les renvoyer ensuite satisfaits à leur destination. Quant aux malades, les retenir et leur fournir un abri aéré et peu coûteux jusqu'a ce que l'etat de leur santé leur permette de continuer leur voyage.

Nous croyons qu'on ne peut obtenir aucun avantage d'un système de quarantaine établi sur les principes les plus simples ou aussi complets, dans aucune autre localité. Et l'expédient que nous suggérons ne doit pas être considéré comme faisant partie d'un système de quarantaine quelconque, mais seulement comme un moyen d'empêcher le débarquement des maladies et d'émigrés mal propres dans des lieux mal aérés et déjà encombrées par la classe pauvre de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

VENTES DES TERRES DES ECOLES.

M. Lacoste demande que l'on s'occupe du bill suivant, intitulé :

Acte pour venir au secours d'Antoine Joseph Buras, de la paroisse Plaquemines.

Il est décreté par le Senat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en assemblée générale, qu'Antoine Joseph Buras, de la paroisse de Plaquemines, est, par le present acte, autorisé à acheter de l'Etat de la Louisiane, la section seize du TOWNSHIP (district) dix-neuf, sud, de la rangée (RANGE) seize, à l'est du fleuve Mississipi, dans la paroisse de Plaquemines, à un prix qui ne sera pas moins d'une piastre et vingt-cinq cents par acre, laquelle terre a été habitée et cultivée par le dit Buras avant l'arpentage des terres publiques.

M. Lacoste—C'est avec plaisir que j'expliquerai le but de ce bill. Ainsi que son titre l'indique, il a pour but de venir au secours d'Antoine Joseph Buras de la paroisse de Plaquemines. Cet homme est pauvre; il a une nombreuse famille à soutenir. Il a résidé sur les terres indiquées dans le bill pendant les cinquante dernières années et y a construit un petit cottage dans lequel il reside avec sa famille. Ce que le bill démande c'est l'autorisation pour cet homme d'acheter ces terres au minimum du prix c'est-à-dire à une piastre et vingt-cinq cents par acre. Je ne vois pas quelle objection on pourrait opposer à ce bill.

M. Morse—J'y vois de très fortes objections. Ce serait en quelque sorte révoquer un acte du Congrès. D'après une loi du Congrès chaque 16ème section de terre est concédée au township dans lequel il se trouve situe pour être appliqué à un but d'education publique et ne peut être vendu sans un vote préalable des résidents du dit township, autorisant la vente. Si cet homme réside sur ces terres il peut aussi bien que tout autre en payer le prix entier. Rien ne serait plus facile au Surintendant de l'éducation publique que d'ordonner une election par les votants du township, les résidents ne fussent-ils qu'au nombre de sept ils ont le droit de voter sur cette question. S'ils autorisent la vente de ces terres, c'est très bien. Mais du moins que ce soit fait regulièrement. Adopter ce bill serait révoquer virtuellement un acte du Congrès et commettre une violation des lois sur la question de l'education publique.

Mr. Lacoste. Lorsque j'aurai expliqué la position de cette famille, je ne doute pas que personne ne vote faveur du bill. Cette famille est très pauvre et n'a pour vivre que ses propres ressources. Le père a dix enfants dont il est le seul soutien. Nous devrons accéder à la demande ; ce serait un acte de bienfaisance dont aucun Senateur n'aura jamais à se répentir.

Mr. Munday. Je désirerais apprendre du comité sur l'education si son opinion est que cela peut se faire. Je le demande par ce qu'il se présente un cas absolument semblable dans ma paroisse.

L'annee dernière la Legislature a passé une loi mettant à l'encan certaines portions des terres des écoles. Le Sherif va bientôt procéder à la vente conformément à la loi. C'est là un précédent. Je désirerais qu'on accedat à la demande du vieillard qui nous occupe si nous pouvons le faire avec justice autrement je ne vois pas pourquoi nous adopterions le bill.

Une motion est faite de déposer le bill sur le bureau.

Mr. Martel. Je demande la lecture du bill.

Lecture est faite du bill.

La motion de déposer le bill sur le bureau est perdue.

Mr. Munday. Ainsi que je l'ai déja dit je désirerais qu'on accédat à la demande de ce vieillard ; mais je voudrais présenter un amendement d'abord, décrétant que le vote des residants du township soit pris avant que la vente n'ait lieu.

Mr. Lacoste. C'est le veritable moyen de tuer le bill. Les votants auraient trop de peine pour rien.

Mr. Moore. Ces terres sont concedées par le congrès pour être appliquées à l'education publique. La concession n'est faite que dans ce but. C'est un fonds qui nous est confie dans un but spécial, nous n'aurons pas le droit de nous en servir dans un but que n'autorisent aucunement les dispositions de l'acte du congrès qui créée cette allocation ou cette concession.

Pouvons nous comme sénateurs, acceder a semblable proposition. Nous n'avons pas le moindre droit de le faire. Ces terres nous sont données en quelque sorte en dépot. Vous avez autant de droit de prendre de l'argent dans ma propre poche que d'en prendre de ce fonds qui a une destination spéciale Ce fonds, nous ne l'avons qu'à titre de dépot ; nous n'avons pas le droit de disposer d'aucune de ces terres pour qui que ce soit au monde et je m'étonne qu'on ait pu le penser un seul instant.

Digitized by Google

Mr. Lacoste. J'accepte l'amendement du sénateur d'Est-Feliciana.

Mr. Munday fait la motion d'ajouter à la fin dudit bill le proviso suivant :

Bien entendu qu'avant d'émettre le droit de préemtion, la majorité des votants du district (township) y donneront leur consentement.

Sur motion de M. Lacoste, d'adopter le bill ainsi qu'il est amendé.

M Hodge demande l'appel nominal.

L'hon. W. W. Farmer occupe le fauteil.

MM. Lacoste, Lacey, Munday et Wickliffe, 4 sénateurs, votent dans l'affirmative.

Et MM. Braud, Defreese, Evans, Hodge, King, Kenner, Kittridge, Lauve, Lawe, Macmurdo, Martel, Moore, Palfrey, Taylor et Trudeau, 15 sénateurs votent dans la négative.

M Martel—Si je comprends bien la loi du Congrès elle est comme suit : — Lorsque l'on désire vendre quelqu'une de ces terres appartenant aux Ecoles, l'opinion des votants du township dans lequel ces terres se trouvent situées doit être pris S'ils autorisent la vente, celle-ci se fait à un crédit de un, deux ou trois ans. Telle est la loi. Maintenant, je le demande, Monsieur, pourquoi ferions-nous ce qui nous est propose dans le bill et cela au profit d'un seul individu ? Ce serait un précédent très-dangereux. La terre peut valoir cinquante fois plus que le prix auquel il est question de la vendre ; pourquoi priver alors de cette somme le fonds des Ecoles publiques ? Est-ce dans un but d'intérêt public ? J'y consentirais. Mais non, c'est pour un seul individu. La Législature n'a pas le droit d'étendre si loin sa charite ; le Congrès n'a accordé qu'aux résidents de chaque township le droit d'en disposer. Il leur a concédé ces terres pour être par eux affectées a l'education publique. La Législature peut-elle ou veut-elle les priver de leurs droits ? Si l'on etudie avec soin la Constitution, on verra que nous ne le pouvons pas. Je suis opposé au but que le bill se propose

M Moore—Je demanderai l'appel nominal sur l'adoption de ce bill. Nous verrons qui votera pour ou contre

M. Munday fait la motion d'ajouter à la fin dudit bill le proviso suivant :

Bien entendu qu'avant d'émettre le droit de préemption, la majorité des votants du district [township] y donneront leur consentement.

Sur motion de M. Lacoste, d'adopter le bill ainsi qu'il est amendé,

M Hodge demande l'appel nominal.

MM. Lacoste, Lacey, Munday et Wickliffe, 4 sénateurs, totent dans l'affirmative.

Et MM Braud, Defreese, Evans, Hodge, King, Kenner, Kittridge, Lauve, Lawes, Macmurdo, Martel, Moore, Palfrey, Tayler et Trudeau, 15 senateurs, votent dans la negative.

En consequence, le bill et le proviso sont rejetés.

EMANCIPATION D'UN MINEUR.

M. Wickliffe sans en avoir donne avis au préalable, obtient la permission de presenter un acte pour émanciper la mineure Mary S. Saunders, épouse d Andrew S Herron.

M Trudeau—Je fais objection à l'adoption de ce bill. J'ai deja cité la loi a ce sujet, et j'ai fait voir comment le même resultat peut être obtenu en s'adressant aux tribunaux de l'Etat. Je ne vois pas pourquoi le Sénat perdrait son temps à s'occuper de ces demandes et petitions, lorsqu'il existe un autre moyen de regler ces questions. Cela devrait être fait par une assemblée de famille, ainsi que la loi le decrète Je ne suis pas opposé particulièrement à ce bill plus qu'à aucun autre bill de cette nature, Je suis oppose à tous en général. J'espère que le bill ne sera pas adopte.

M. Wickliffe—Dans mon opinion, le plus grand des humbugs existant sous le régime de nos lois actuelles est celui là, les assemblées de famille Je dois dire que pendant le temps qu'il a fallu au sénateur pour formuler son objection, le bill aurait pu être adopté. Le sénateur dit que l'émancipation peut être obtenue devant une assemblée de famille ; personne n'ignore cela; mais ce bill a été présenté à la requête de la dame et de sa famille, afin qu'elle put passer des titres à sa sœur et regler avec elle ses affaires pendant qu'elle est ici. Pour moi je ne saurais voir d'objection à l'adoption de ce bill. J'espère que par galanterie au moins le sénateur retirera son opposition.

Le bill est adopté.

Bill pour l'enregistrement des hypothèques tacites.

Section 1. Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en assemblée générale, Qu'à dater du premier jour d'avril 1855, aucune hypothèque ne pourra être mise en force ou exister en faveur d'un tiers agissant de bonne foi, à moins que la dite hypothèque ne soit enregistrée au bureau du Conservateur des Hypothèques. Cet enregistrement sera fait dans le but de grever la terre et les esclaves qui y sont employés, dans la paroisse où la propriété est située, et de grever les autres esclaves qui se trouvent dans la paroisse où le tuteur a son domicile ou sa résidence.

M Wickliffe offre la première section du bill de la Chambre comme substitut à la première section qui précède.

Acte pour pourvoir à l'enregistrement des hypothèques légales et tacites.

Section 1. Il est décreté par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane réunis en assemblée générale, Qu'aucune hypothèque légale ou tacite n'aura d'effet à moins que la preuve écrite ne soit enregistrée dans le registre des hypothèques, de la même manière et dans la même forme prescrite pour l'enregistrement des hypothèques conventionnelles et pour la somme seulement pour laquelle inscription aurait été faite.

M. Hodge—Je fais la motion de déposer le tout sur le bureau.

M Trudeau— Ce serait là terminer un peu cavalièrement une question qui est cependant de la plus grande importance.

M. Hodge—Je ne fais pas cette motion pour mettre fin à la discussion. Si quelque sénateur désire prononcer un discours, je retirerai ma motion afin qu'il puisse le faire à son aise. Je n'avais en vue que d'obtenir un vote d'épreuve.

La motion est perdue.

M. Lacey— Je fais la motion de déposer sur le bureau la première section du substitut sujette à l'appel.

M Wickliffe— D'après les règles parlementaires le sénateur a-t-il le droit de faire cette motion? Elle équivaut à déposer indéfiniment sur le bureau.

M. Lacey—Ce n'est pas ce que je veux.

La motion l'emporte.

M. Hodge— Je fais encore maintenant la motion de déposer sur le bureau la première section du bill qui est devant le Senat.

Cette motion est rejetée.

M. Trudeau— Je proposerai maintenant un substitut à la première section.

Section 1. Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane réunis en assemblée générale, Que toutes les femmes mariées, qui ont des hypothèques tacites sur les propriétés de leur mari, soit pour la réception ou l'aliénation de leurs biens dotaux ou paraphernaux et qui négligeraient d'en faire faire l'enregistrement au bureau des hypothèques, des differentes paroisses où sont situées les dites propriétes, le 1er avril 1855, ou avant cette époque, elles ne seront pas admises à faire valoir leurs droits aux dites hypothèques contre les tiers agissant de bonne foi. Pourvu que toutes les hypothèques contre les tuteurs, les curateurs des personnes absentes ou interdites qui n'auraient pas été enregistrées le 1er octobre 1855 seront nulles contre les tiers de bonne foi

Mon but est de parer de la sorte à l'objection de constitutionalité. Je partage l'opinion du sénateur d'Est-Bâton-Rouge et du sénateur de St-Martin quand ils disent que le bill(le substitut) est inconstitutionnel tel qu'il est à présent, parce qu'il ne spécifie pas l'époque où il commencera à avoir effet. La Législature peut passer une loi requérant l'inscription de ces hypothèques ; mais il faut rendre cette inscription obligatoire dans un temps donné. Mon amendement rend cette inscription nécessaire dans un délai spécifié, et si elle n'est pas faite dans ce délai, les droits qu'elle est appelée à garantir sont éteints. Il ne s'applique pas aux mineurs, parce qu'ils ont des droits acquis, mais seulement aux femmes mariées La Législature a également le droit de déclarer vacantes, après un certain temps, les fonctions de tous tuteurs, curateurs, administrateurs, etc. Cela n'est pas inconstitutionnel. L'objection faite par le sénateur d'Est-Bâton-Rouge (M. Lacey) est le seul point sur lequel on s'appuie pour considérer le bill comme inconstitutionnel. J'offre l'amendement à l'effet d'aller audevant de ces objections. Je crois qu'en effet il est un remède aux inconvenients signalés.

M. Ryan— L'amendement peut être bon, mais la raison qu'on donne pour le justifier me paraît sans valeur. Je ne veux pas discuter ce point quant à présent, quoique je croie être en mesure d'établir la vérité de la position que je défends. Mais que je le puisse ou non, là n'est pas la question. L'honorable membre dit qu'il exempte les mineurs de l'obligation et des rigueurs de son amendement, parce qu'ils ont des droits acquis, et il fait l'application aux femmes mariées, parce qu'elles n'ont pas de droits acquis. Par cet amendement, les femmes mariées perdront leurs droits, à moins que ces droits hypothécaires n'aient été inscrits dans un temps donné. Je voudrais demander si la femme mariée n'a pas de droits acquis tout aussi bien que le mineur ? Supposons qu'elle ait $200,000 dans les mains de son mari, son droit d'action contre celui-ci n'est-il pas un droit acquis ? Le fait que les mineurs et les femmes mariées sont sous ce rapport sur un pied exactement semblable, ce fait, dis-je, est hors de toute contestation. Les mineurs ont des droits acquis sur les propriétés de leurs tuteurs, et les femmes mariées ont le même droit sur celles de leurs maris. Dans l'un comme dans l'autre cas les droits sont des droits acquis. Si le bill est inconstitutionnel parce qu'il attaque les droits des mineurs, l'amendement ne l'est pas moins, attendu qu'il porte atteinte aux droits des femmes mariées. C'est, je le repète, c'est en vain que vous prétendez établir une distinction entre des droits tout à fait identiques, distinction que vous énoncez d'ailleurs, sans essayer de la prouver, quoique l'étrangeté de l'affirmation semble mériter au moins une démonstration. Les femmes ont des droits tout aussi sacrés que les mineurs ; comme ceux-ci, elles sont, aux yeux de la loi, dans une sorte d'état de minorité, et votre distinction ne saurait nullement se justifier. En vérité, je voudrais qu'on produisît seulement un argument en explication de cette proposition si nouvelle.

Je suis tout à fait favorable à la loi qui protégera les droits des mineurs, mais je mets les droits des femmes mariées sur la même ligne et je demande pour elles la même protection que pour les mineurs, jusqu'à plus ample informé.

Pour ma part, je ne pense pas que le bill soit inconstitutionnel, et je donnerai, en temps opportun, mes raisons de cette opinion. J'ai seulement fait ces quelques remarques pour faire voir que les motifs allégués par l'hon. sénateur de Jefferson, M Trudeau, sont sans fondement ; que les femmes mariées, pendant qu'elles sont sous la tutelle de leur mari, ont les mêmes droits que les mineurs et ont un droit égal à la protection de la loi. C'est là la raison pour laquelle la loi est et doit être la même pour ces deux classes de mineurs.

Comment pouvoir établir une différence entre l'une et l'autre ? C'est ce que je ne puis comprendre. Je puis être dans l'erreur, et si j'y suis en effet, je désire au moins qu'on essaie de me faire voir en quoi et comment je me trompe.

—M Trudeau—L'hon. membre n'a pas bien compris ma pensee. J'ai dit que la première section est inconstitutionnelle, parce qu'elle n'exige pas d'une manière impérative que les hypothèques soient investies dans un certain délai spécifié. Cela a pour conséquence d'anéantir ces droits tout d'un coup et de porter atteinte à des droits acquis, cela est inconstitutionnel.

La Législature a le droit de déclarer que certains droits sont prescrits à défaut de leur inscription dans un temps qu'elle doit spécifier. C'est là tout ce qu'elle peut faire. Mais elle ne saurait aller au delà. En donnant un temps voulu, elle n'apporte plus qu'une condition à accomplir, condition dont l'inaccomplissement entraîne la déchéance. Chacun peut alors conserver son droit en se conformant à la loi. Mais prononcer la déchéance sans avoir donné le temps d'accomplir la condition, c'est là ce que ne peut faire le Législateur. Les mineurs, je le répète, ne sont pas dans la même position que les femmes mariées.

Il existe entre ces deux catégories de mineurs une grande différence, en fait. Le bill déclare qu'après un certain délai la tutelle sera déclarée vacante. Cela n'est pas inconstitutionnel. Tous les droits existants sont conservés par le bill, si la condition prescrite par la loi est accomplie. Le bill dit seulement qu'après un temps donné les fonctions de tuteur seront declarees vacantes et qu'une nouvelle sécurité sera donnée.

Personne ne peut dire qu'il y a là inconstitutionnalité. Mais avec les femmes mariées, le cas est différent, en ce que le bill ne leur accorde pas le même délai qu'aux mineurs, et prononce la déchéance sans avoir donné le temps d'accomplir la condition.

M. Lacoste—Nous sommes ici pour protéger les droits des femmes et des enfants, et non pas pour les détruire. La loi existante est bonne, car elle remplit parfaitement ce double but. Le seul effet du changement proposé serait de profiter à messieurs les avocats. Sans contredit, ils feraient beaucoup d'argent, tandis que les femmes et les orphelins seraient livrés sans défense à leur rapacité. Il vaut mieux déposer le bill sur la table. S'il est soumis à nos délibérations, je voterai certainement contre.

M. Moore—Je viens prier le Sénat de vouloir bien écouter les quelques reflexions que j'ai à lui soumettre sur ce sujet. L'amendement prête le flanc à l'une des objections que j'ai faites contre le bill. Le bill originaire a été rédigé avec beaucoup de soin et de talent. Il faut au moins lui rendre cette justice. Quant à l'autre, je crois qu'il ne peut être plus simple. Par le substitut du sénateur d'Ouest-Feliciana, il est ordonné, que l'hypothèque devra être inscrite dans chaque paroisse où la personne a des propriétés et de plus au lieu de son domicile. Le premier est simple, le second est complexe. Si nous adoptons le bill simple, l'enregistrement devra seulement être fait au domicile du mari. Mais en vertu de ce bill, un homme pourrait avoir un certificat de vente de propriete, et alors quel recours resterait-il ?

Nos statuts sont pleins de dispositions en faveur du marchand et des classes laborieuses. Un senateur nous a dit que le travail n'est pas protégé dans cet Etat. Je soutiens, moi, que le travail est mieux protégé dans la Louisiane qu'il ne l'est dans aucun autre Etat de l'Union. Le marchand a un titre et une action contre le planteur et sur sa récolte, pour le prix des marchandises qu'il lui fournit. C'est là une hypothèque tacite. Cependant on n'en a encore rien dit. Nous ne nous plaignons pas de cette hypothèque latente, parce qu'elle est établie en faveur des classes commerçantes. Je le répète, Messieurs, nulle part ailleurs le travailleur n'est aussi bien protégé que dans la Louisiane. S'il travaille dans une ferme, il a son privilége. Or, ce privilége n'est autre chose qu'une hypothèque tacite.

S'il bâtit une maison, il a encore son privilége Ce sont là, je le répète, des hypothèques tacites. Cependant je ne sache pas que personne ait encore formulé contr'elles la moindre accusation. L'ouvrier qui contribue pour la plus petite chose à la construction d'une maison, a son privilége, remarques le bien, et ce privilége existe independamment de l'inscription. Sans doute il vaudrait mieux, je suis le premier à en convenir, que toutes les hypothèques fûssent inscrites. Cependant ce bill est si complexe, qu'il prête encore beaucoup plus à la fraude que ne l'a jamais fait le système qui nous régit aujourd'hui. Un homme peut recevoir l'argent sur sa parole, puis s'en aller ensuite dans une paroisse éloignée et l'employer à l'achat d'une terre.

Il se procure alors un certificat du conservateur des hypothèques, constatant qu'il n'y a pas d'hypotheque sur sa terre. Le mineur se trouve ainsi dépouillé de ses droits, et n'a plus aucun recours. Ainsi on verra par là que ce bill se prête beaucoup plus à la fraude que le système sous lequel nous vivons. Il est impossible, comme on l'a fait remarquer avec raison, de faire une loi qu'on ne parvienne parfois à éluder. Il y a toujours quelque endroit faible que peut entamer l'esprit d'entreprise, quelque joint par où passent la ruse et la mauvaise foi. Mais ne vaut-il pas mieux laisser aux prêteurs d'argent le soin de veiller à la conservation de leurs intérêts que de livrer le mineur à de pareils embarras ? La loi doit prendre le faible sous sa garde. Le fort peut se défendre lui-même Les prêteurs d'argent seront assez vigilants, croyez le bien, pour découvrir tout ce qui pourrait affecter leurs intérêts. Ils se garderont bien de prêter leur argent avant de s'être procuré, au préalable, la renonciation de la femme à ses droits hypothécaires

Je suis opposé à l'amendement, parce que je crois qu'au lieu d'améliorer le bill, il le rend moins acceptable encore. En vérité, tout imparfait qu'est le bill, je le préférerais encore de beaucoup à l'amendement. Mais, messieurs, à mon avis, nous ferions beaucoup mieux de nous en tenir à ce que nous avons. Je suis un vieillard. Il se peut que je ne voie pas très-clair à ces questions difficiles; mais mon opinion est que sous le bill qu'on nous propose, nous serons beaucoup plus exposés à la fraude que nous ne le sommes aujourd'hui.

M. King—Si j'ai bien compris ce que vient dire l'honorable M. Moore, il votera pour un bill qui ne rendrait l'inscription obligatoire qu'au domicile du tuteur ?

M. Moore—Oui, pourvu que ce bill ne s'applique qu'aux hypothèques futures.

M. King—C'est là entre nous une grande différence d'opinions. La proposition de l'honorable M. Moore voudrait, nous faire vivre longtemps encore sous ce beau système de la loi espagnole, qui pèse si lourdement sur les contrées qu'elle régit, et qui appelle si manifestement une réforme, mêlée qu'elle se trouve à nos institutions républicaines.

L'honorable membre et moi, nous voyons la question sous un jour bien différent. Il dit que le bill a pour principal objet de favoriser les prêteurs d'argent Je dis, moi, que tout au contraire, il est conçu dans l'intérêt des emprunteurs. Pourquoi ne pourrons-nous pas obtenir d'argent ici sur nos propriétés, à d'aussi bonnes conditions qu'à New-York ? La raison en est manifeste, – notre garantie ne vaut rien, parce que le titre n'est pas sûr. C'est selon moi, bien mal envisager une question que de n'en voir qu'une seule face. Un contrat est ordinairement fait pour le bénéfice des deux parties contractantes. Si cela est vrai, le contrat de prêt est aussi avantageux à l'emprunteur qu'au prêteur. Je dirai plus l'intérêt du capital ici n'est qu'un intérêt particulier Celui de l'emprunteur, au contraire, est une sorte d'intérêt général; car l'argent emprunté par lui est destiné à quelque travail, à quelqu'entreprise, dont profite la société Supposez le capital tout-à-fait retiré du pays, et voyez ce qu'il restera d'industrie et de commerce. Favoriser le capital, c'est donc bien plutôt protéger la société que ce n'est protéger le capitaliste Comment voulez-vous qu'un homme ordinaire puisse avoir quelque confiance dans le gage de la propriété, quand M. Rosélius. lui-même, tout versé qu'il est dans ces matières hypothécaires, a perdu une somme considérable par l'effet d'une hypothèque tacite dont l'existence avait échappé à son investigation.

Il faut que l'inscription soit faite dans chaque paroisse, et non pas seulement au lieu du domicile, car outre qu'il se peut que le tuteur n'ait pas de propriété dans la paroisse de son domicile, la question du domicile elle-même est une des plus incertaines de notre jurisprudence, et elle a donné lieu à de nombreuses controverses, sur lesquelles il a souvent été fort difficile de décider. Ainsi, deux embarras se présentent. Trouver d'abord le domicile, et puis ce domicile une fois découvert, arriver fort souvent à apprendre qu'il n'existe pas de propriétés appartenant au tuteur dans la paroisse de ce domicile. D'un autre côté, il se pourra qu'il en ait pour des millions dans d'autres paroisses, et cependant l'hypothèque ne les atteindra pas Tous les sénateurs qui m'entendent, apprécieront ce que produirait un pareil bill.

L'honorable membre parle des priviléges des artisans, des engagés et des marchands. Il paraît oublier qu'il y a un article du code qui ordonne que tous les priviléges excédant 500 piastres devront être inscrits. La section du bill originaire est presque semblable. Elle fait spécifiquement ce que celle-ci fait négativement.

M. Lacey—Je m'oppose à l'amendement par la même raison qui a motivé mon opposition au bill originaire. Je le crois destiné à détruire les droits des mineurs et des femmes mariées. Sur un pareil sujet, je ne puis consentir à aucune transaction. Ces droits doivent être inviolables et inviolés. Je veux bien seulement qu'ils soient inscrits pour le bénéfice des tiers. Mais l'amendement va trop loin, quand il dit que, faute d'avoir été inscrits, ces droits seront sans force et sans effets.

C'est là ce que je considère comme une violation de la loi fondamentale de l'Etat ; et si ce n'est pas une violation de la Constitution, tout au moins est-ce une mesure entièrement politique. Si je pouvais obtenir l'assentiment du Sénat, je ferais disparaître du bill originaire toute cette partie comprise depuis la première ligne jusqu'à la sixième, ainsi conçue :

» SECTION 1RE.—Décrété par le Sénat et la Cham-
» bre des Représentants de la Louisiane, réunis en
» assemblée générale ; Qu'à partir du 1er avril 1855
» aucune hypothèque ne pourra avoir effet contre
» une tierce personne de bonne foi, à moins d'avoir
» été dûment inscrite au bureau du Conservateur
» des Hypothèques. »

Je voudrais faire disparaître cette portion du bill ; si je réussis, qu'arrivera-t-il ? L'hypothèque conservera sa force exactement comme aujourd'hui ; aucun droit ne sera offensé, ce qui ne nous empêchera nullement de prendre les mesures nécessaires pour arriver à rendre l'inscription de cette hypothèque obligatoire. Remarquez l'inconséquence du bill. Il ordonne l'inscription. Mais à qui impose-t-il l'obligation de la faire faire ? Aux tuteurs, aux maris et à certains officiers publics. Qui punit-il pour l'oubli de ce droit. Il en punit, messieurs, la femme et le mineur, c'est-à-dire ceux qu'il faudrait défendre de la fraude, ceux qui sont innocents du fait de la non-inscription, ceux contre qui l'omission aura été faite

Ce raisonnement me paraît clair ; cependant, si le Sénat est d'une opinion contraire, je me rangerai à l'opinion général et je voterai pour le bill tel qu'il est présenté.

Je le répète, en temps opportun, je demanderai la suppression de cette partie du bill qui, à mes yeux, touche à des droits acquis et sacrés, et viole conséquemment la loi fondamentale de l'Etat. Maintenant quant à la question de savoir si nous prendrons des mesures pour forcer l'inscription de toutes les hypothèques, ce n'est plus qu'une question de règlement et non de principes. Je suis en faveur d'une telle mesure, mais je ne veux pas prendre le bill comme on le présente. Respectons les droits acquis. Ne touchons pas à l'hypothèque légale en elle-même, mais exigeons en l'inscription et prenons des mesures efficaces pour arriver à ce but. C'est là le principal objet que nous devons nous proposer.

Ainsi, encore une fois et pour me résumer, je veux qu'on respecte l'hypothèque, mais je suis d'avis que de tacite elle devienne apparente. Proposez-nous un bill dans ce sens et je voterai avec vous.

M. Hodge présente sur la première section du bill original un amendement ordonnant que tous les tuteurs seront requis d'avoir à faire inscrire les lettres de tutelle au bureau du Conservateur des Hypothèques dans les différentes paroisses où ils peuvent avoir des propriétés et imposant aux clercs des cours de justice où ces lettres sont délivrées, d'en adresser copie, dans les cinq jours, au Conservateur des Hypothèques, qui devra les transcrire sur ses registres.— Aux termes de cet amendement tout recorder ou clerc qui aura négligé d'accomplir ce devoir, sera responsable de tous dommages qui peuvent avoir été causés par cette négligence.

M. King—C'est la loi d'aujourd'hui. Les clercs des cours de justice, sous le régime actuel, sont obligés de délivrer les lettres de tutelle. J'ai déjà discuté ce sujet pleinement et je pense avoir établi chaque point qui nous divise, de sorte que je ne me sens pas le courage de recommencer un pareil examen. Je ferai cependant quelques remarques. Le sénateur de St-Martin et le sénateur d'Est Bâton Rouge désirent que le bill ne soit applicable qu'aux hypothèques non encore existantes. Tel qu'il est, le bill met un terme au système des hypothèques tacites après un temps spécifié et raisonnable. Leur opinion est de ne pas toucher aux hypothèques existantes et de faire que le bill n'ait d'effet que sur celles à venir. Mais comment ne voient-ils pas que c'est là nous rejeter à une époque tout à fait indéterminée et fort éloignée de nous, car pour que les tiers puissent trouver quelque sécurité dans le gage hypothécaire ou dans la propriété, il faudra attendre que toutes les femmes mariées soient mortes et que tous les mineurs aient atteint leur majorité. En vérité, ce serait, en quelque sorte, priver la génération présente du bénéfice de la loi, et cela pour l'interêt très douteux de quelques personnes privilégiées, dont les droits peuvent être, après tout, conservés par la simple formalité de l'inscription.

Cependant, comme il vaut mieux accepter une demie réforme que de s'endormir à tout jamais dans le mal, si je ne puis obtenir mieux, je me réfugierai en dernier ressort dans le camp de des timides réformateurs.

M. Hodge—Je n'ai pas encore pris la parole sur ce bill. Je veux dire quelques mots pour expliquer pourquoi je suis en faveur de l'amendement. A la dernière session, je me trouvais parmi les opposants à cette mesure, par la raison que je ne voulais pas qu'il fut porté la moindre atteinte aux droits d'aucune classe de notre population. Maintenant, j'ai la conviction que ces droits ne sont nullement atteints par ce bill. Et si je ne vote pas pour le bill lui-même, ce n'est pas que je le considère comme inconstitutionnel. Non, je le crois parfaitement en harmonie avec la Constitution; c'était déjà mon opinion à la dernière session ainsi que j'ai eu occasion de le dire. Mais on se fait remarquer avec beaucoup de raison que la Législature adopterait là une mesure tout à fait impolitique, si elle portait la main sur les droits de ceux qui sont incapables de se proteger eux-mêmes, et cela dans le but de venir au secours de ceux qui n'ont pas besoin de l'assistance de la loi. Le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans (M. King) disait ce matin que notre present système dérive de la loi espagnole; et qu'il n'est pas consistant avec nos libres institutions commerciales. Maintenant, messieurs, j'ose dire que si nous abolissons les hypothèques tacites, nous placerons les mineurs non seulement dans une position pire que celle où ils étaient auparavant, mais encore dans une position pire que ne l'est celle des mineurs dans aucun autre Etat de l'Union. Même avec ce cerbère farouche, qu'on appelle le système des hypothèques tacites, les mineurs sont moins efficacement protégés chez nous que partout ailleurs, aux Etats-Unis. On a beau se recrier contre ce genre d'hypothèques, dans une longue carrière des affaires, j'ai vu très peu d'individus qui aient eu à en souffrir, tandis qu'au contraire j'ai souvent vu et tous les sénateurs ici présens n'auront certainement pas manqué d'avoir vu une foule de cas où les mineurs ont été dépouillés Et cependant vous voulez leur enlever la seule protection qu'leur reste. Comment pouvez-vous penser qu'un mineur, dans sa première enfance, puisse veiller à ce que l'inscription soit faite ; et, comme on l'a fort bien fait remarquer, c'est eux que vous puniriez de la négligence d'un autre ! Compter sur le tuteur pour que cette inscription soit faite, c'est folie. Comment croire qu'il prendra la moindre peine pour aller faire grever sa propriété ? c'est contre nature Si vous voulez que l'homme execute la loi, tâchez qu'elle soit dans son intérêt. Si elle est contraire à ses interêts ce n'est pas lui qui doit être chargé de la mettre en pratique, car il y a tout à parier qu'il se soustraira autant qu'il le pourra à cette obligation. Est-ce qu'un voleur va se dénoncer lui-même ? non. Qui le dénonce ? ceux qui ont interêt à le faire, c'est à dire les autres citoyens. Tâchons, messieurs, de faire des lois qui ne soient pas contre nature. Pour ma part, je n'ai jamais connu un seul tuteur qui eût accompli tous ses devoirs à la lettre. L'hon. membre dit qu'on pourrait charger le juge de district de veiller à l'observation de la loi. Mais qui s'assurera que le juge fasse son devoir ? La seule personne intéressée à le savoir, c'est le mineur ; comment le saura-t-il ?

Mon amendement fait porter ce devoir sur le clerc, et le rend responsable de toute negligence. Il est passible de tous dommages interêts pour tout le mal qu'a pu occasionner cette négligence. Je ne suppose pas, je ne peux pas supposer que le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, malgré l'opposition qu'il fait aux interêts des mineurs, ait cependant l'intention qu'ils soient victimes de la fraude. Mais il a pris une telle détermination de renverser la loi existante, qu'entraîne par son fanatisme, il semble ne plus tenir compte d'aucune des conséquences fâcheuses que ce renversement pourrait entraîner. Il semble n'avoir d'autre vue que d'ajouter un nouveau lustre à son nom, en obtenant un succès là où tant d'autres ont échoué avant lui. Car jusqu'ici tous les efforts tentés dans le même sens, malgré la tenacité et le talent même de leurs auteurs, ont été infructueux, tant est grand le respect que la population louisianaise porte aux êtres faibles et sans défense.

Mais, pour revenir à l'amendement, les promoteurs du bill soutiendront-ils qu'aucun clerc d'une cour de justice voudra prendre la responsabilité de tenir copie de toutes les nominations aux tutelles, curatelles, etc., quand la moindre omission, même involontaire, peut entraîner contr'eux des conséquences aussi terribles. Il ne serait pas raisonnable de supposer que, si le tuteur est seul chargé de faire faire l'inscription, il fera tout son possible pour dépouiller le mineur, et pourra même s'entendre avec le clerc pour arriver à ses fins. Cela s'est toujours fait et ne manquera pas de se faire encore. La politique de notre Législature doit être de protéger ceux qui sont hors d'état de se protéger eux-mêmes. Le faible a des droits à nos sympathies Le fort est parfaitement capable de se défendre contre les périls qui peuvent menacer sa fortune. Nous devons faire des lois en faveur des pauvres ; quant au second, il n'a pas les mêmes droits à notre sollicitude.

Je ne dirai rien de la question de constitutionnalité de cette affaire. Je ne vois pas dutout en quoi le créancier peut avoir à souffrir de la non inscription de l'hypothèque. Je ne connais pas un seul cas où un honnête creancier ait réellement souffert des hypothèques tacites. Il est aisé de savoir qu'elles existent, quand on veut prendre la peine de faire des recherches. Mais si vous voulez forcer un homme à envoyer ses lettres de tutelle au conservateur des hypothèques, pour les faire transcrire, pourquoi n'est-il pas aussi aisé d'imposer cette obligation aux clercs de Cours. Cela serait juste et aussi très aisé dans les paroisses de la campagne, et même dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, parce que là toutes les affaires de succession sont faites à la même Cour. Dans les paroisses de la campagne, il serait tout aussi facile de transcrire le titre hypothécaire au bureau du clerc qu'au bureau du conservateur des hypothèques.

En premier lieu, on pourrait s'assurer si le tuteur a donné un bond (bound).

Ce bond, une fois transcris, opérerait comme une hypothèque. D'abord, il est certain que le bond doit être fait, avant de pouvoir être transcrit. Je voudrais obliger les tuteurs naturels à donner un bond aussi bien que les autres tuteurs. Quand il y a des femmes mariées dans l'affaire, je confesse que la question présente beaucoup de difficultés. Mais si l'honorable membre cesse d'attaquer le système, je veux alors que toutes ces hypothèques tacites soient abolies. Quand un homme prend la position et assume la responsabilité d'un mari, il est naturel de supposer qu'il a assez d'interêt à la prospérite des affaires communes, pour bien administrer les biens de sa femme.

M Ryan—Messieurs, dans le cours de ces débats, on a beaucoup parlé du bond qui doit être fourni. Maintenant Messieurs, qu'elle est la signification de ce mot bond ? Le bond à donner par un tuteur est différent de celui d'un administrateur. Un bond n'opère pas comme une hypothèque spéciale. Si je suis tuteur d'un mineur possédant $150,000 en terres, esclaves et autres valeurs, je donne un bond seulement pour les valeurs mobilières.

Supposons qu'un mineur a des valeurs mobilières pour $35,000, des biens immeubles pour $115,000, je donne un bond seulement pour $35,000. J'ai entendu qu'on parlait d'un bond comme de l'inscription d'une hypothèque.

Pourquoi ne doit-on transcrire que l'acte de nomination à la tutelle, et rien de plus ! Parce que le bond, n'etant donné que pour une partie de la fortune, la partie mobilière, il ne saurait y avoir rien de complet dans la transcription de ce bond. Voici, Messieurs, la loi contenue dans l'article 330 du Code.

« Tout tuteur, excepté le père et la mère, donneront au juge qui l'a nommé ou confirmé dans ses fonctions, une sécurité bonne et suffisante comme gage de la bonne foi de son administration.

Digitized by Google

» Cette sécurité devra être égale au montant des créances, argent et autres valeurs mobilières constatées dans l'inventaire, et le juge y ajoutera même telle autre somme qu'il jugera convenable, pour garantir le mineure contre tous dommages ou pertes que pourrait occasionner à celui-ci la negligence ou la mauvaise administration du tuteur.»

Le bond du tuteur est donc seulement donné pour le montant des créances, de l'argent et des valeurs mobilières se trouvant dans la fortune du mineur Quand il s'agit d'un administrateur, le bond est donné non seulement pour le montant des valeurs mobilières mais pour la totalite de la fortune, plus un quart en sus. Ainsi, un administrateur d'une propriété valant $1000,000 donne un bond pour $125,000. Telle est la loi. On ne saurait dire le contraire. Je ne pretends pas dire que le tuteur ne soit pas obligé de donner un bond, mais simplement que ce bond n'est pas suffisant pour servir de base à l'hypothèque.

Le mineur, au lieu d'avoir une hypothèque pour le montant de tous ses biens, n'est temoin que pour partie. J'accepte le montant du bond dans le cas dû. C'est bien différent du cas des administrateurs comme je viens de l'etablir. La raison de cette distinction est que le tuteur n'est pas obligé d'administrer les terres et les esclaves. Il peut les louer.

La loi considère comme propriété mobilière tout ce qui n'est pas propriété réelle. Les chevaux, les mulets, le betail, &c., sont des biens mobiliers par nature; mais dans beaucoup de cas ils sont immeubles par destination, et alors le tuteur n'est pas appelé à donner un bond pour leur valeur. Ainsi, il ne donne aucun bond pour le stock attaché à une plantation Il donne un bond seulement pour les effets que la loi déclare mobiliers Y aurait-il quelqu'avantage à transcrire ce bond au bureau des hypothèques ? Si je me trompe dans ce que je dis, que les avocats ici présens redressent une erreur. Je dis, messieurs, que ce bond ne donnerait pas une sécurité suffisante. Il n'opère pas comme une hypothèque. Il n'y a d'hypothèque que celle qui résulte de la nomination même du tuteur et prend naissance ipso facto aussitôt après cette nomination. Cette hypothèque est illimitée et frappe la propriété du tuteur pour garantir le mineur contre toutes les conséquences d'une mauvaise administration. Maintenant, si l'honorable membre désire proposer un amendement qui ferait voter l'hypothèque seulement du jour où le tuteur reçoit l'argent ou les valeurs mobilières, il ne ferait que demander une chose en elle-même très désirable. Supposons que je suis tuteur d'un mineur. Je puis ne pas recevoir d'argent pendant vingt ans, mais je puis vendre des propriétés aujourd'hui, et le mineur a une hypothèque dessus, quoique je ne lui doive pas un écut C'est là un mal qu'il faudrait faire disparaître. Si nous nous proposons d'être utile aux mineurs il faut, pour être justes, comment par ne pas nuire sans utilité aux intérêts des tuteurs

M. Hodge—L'amendement a pour but de faire transcrire le bond, de manière qu'il ne puisse être détruit et que les droits du mineur ne puissent en souffrir.

M. Ryan—Mais, que fait le bond avec la question qui nous occupe? Quel résultat aura-t-on obtenu quand on aura transmis le bond? Le bond n'est pas ce qui peut donner naissance à l'hypothèque C'est la nomination seule qui la crée à l'instant même. Le bond, d'un autre côté, ne peut pas non plus servir de base à connaitre le montant de l'hypothèque car, comme je l'ai dit, le bond est partiel, tandis que l'hypothèque doit être générale. Il y a là une erreur évidente, et qui entrainerait plus tard une fausse interprétation de la loi. Il pourrait arriver qu'un jour on croit que l'hypothèque, au lieu d'être générale et limitée, n'est plus qu'une hypothèque restreinte et illimitée. Ce serait un tort grave porté aux mineurs.

M. Trudeau—La question se complique tellement, qu'elle est à peine compréhensible. En premier lieu, nous avons le bill originaire, introduit par le Sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans. M. King, puis le substitut introduit par le sénateur de Ouest-Féliciana, (M. Wickliffe), puis enfin, en addition à ces deux bills, de nombreux amendements dont l'un, je crois, est devant le Sénat. Je voudrais ramener la discussion sur un terrain moins vague et moins général et la circonscrire dans les limites de la section particulière qui est en ce moment soumise à notre examen.

La discussion a pris de telles proportions qu'elle devient extrêmement fatigante. Nous n'avançons pas. A propos de chaque point de détail, on trouve bon de rentrer toujours dans la discussion générale, d'opposer des principes déjà exposés nombre de fois par les orateurs qui ont précédé Le bill a 16 sections, songez-y. Au train dont nous allons, il nous faudra six mois pour en finir. Je prie le Sénat de faire que les discours des orateurs se bornent au point en discussion, et ne s'étendent plus à l'ensemble. Quand on en sera à la 4me section, je proposerai un amendement qui, j'en suis sûr, rendra le bill acceptable pour tous. Pour ce qui est de l'amendement maintenant en discussion, j'y suis opposé, parce qu'il aurait pour effet de nous laisser pendant trente ans encore esclaves au detestable régime actuellement en vigueur. Que nos enfants fassent des lois pour eux, nous, faisons-en pour nous.

L'amendement de M. Hodge est déposé sur la table.

M. Lacey—Je demande qu'on supprime la première section du bill.

La motion est adoptée.

M. Wickliffe—Je demande une décision de bill par le comité, et à ce que nous ne discutions que sur un bill qui aura, au prealable, son assentiment.

M. King—Ce bill a obtenu l'adhésion de tous les membres du comité. Je ne vois pas d'espérance qu'on puisse obtenir mieux qu'un vote unanime.

M. Wickliffe—Il n'en serait peut-être pas de même à présent.

M. King—Mais alors il n'y aurait plus de fin. Il faut que nous en terminions, si le Senat veut enfin adopter le bill, qu'il le passe; si non, rejetez-le immediatement.

M. Lacey—Je demande que la motion soit déposée sur la table.—Adopté.

M. Hodge—Je demande qu'il dépose de même le reste du bill.

M. Lacey—Je demande le vote par OUI et par NON.

M. King—J'appuie la motion de déposer le bill sur la table. Nous lui avons coupé la tête, nous pouvons maintenant parfaitement bien brûler le reste.

Cette motion est adoptée.

M. King prévient le Senat que demain il proposera une nouvelle prise en consideration.

BILLS ET RESOLUTIONS PRESENTÉS.

Sur motion de M. Moore, et après dispenses des règles, ces bills sont lus deux fois et le premier acte est renvoyé au comité des réclamations, et le dernier acte est référé au comité des améliorations à l'intérieur des terres marécageuses et des levées

M. McMurdo presente une pétition des exécuteurs testamentaires de feu Alexandre Gordon.

M. Lacey, sans en avoir donné avis au préalable, obtient la permission de présenter le bill suivant, intitulé :

Acte pour pourvoir aux améliorations à faire à la terre qui entoure le Capitole.

Sur motion, ce bill est déposé sur le bureau sujet à l'appel.

M. Moore obtient la permission de présenter les bills suivants :

Acte pour venir au secours de Ferjus Fusillier.

Acte pour pourvoir à l'ouverture d'un passage pour empêcher l'inondation de Lafourche, pour améliorer les terres submergées et inondees, et de les préserver pour une certaine époque.

RAPPORTS DES COMITÉS.

M Griffin, au nom du comite des améliorations à l'intérieur, &c, auquel avait été référé l'acte pour venir au secours de James H. Barbin, Francis B. Barbin, Fabius Ricord, de la paroisse des Avoyelles et de Charles Pitt, de la paroisse d'Orléans, fait un rapport favorable.

Sur motion de M. Griffin, et après dispense des règles, ce bill subit ses differentes lectures et passe.

M. Braud, au nom du comité de commerce et d'agriculture, auquel avait eté réfere un acte pour nommer des peseurs de coton et de sucre pour la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, fait le rapport suivant lequel est lu :

Le comité de commerce et d'agriculture auquel a été référé un bill intitulé :

Acte pour nommer des peseurs de sucre et de coton dans et pour la paroisse de la Nlle-Orléans, a l'honneur de rapporter : Qu'ils ont examiné avec soin les différentes dispositions du dit acte, lequel embrasse un changment radical du système actuel, pour l'achat et la vente des sucres et des cotons, qui est d'une grande importance, pour ceux dont les intérêts sont immédiatement intéressés.

En vertu de cet acte, le gouverneur est autorisé à nommer, de l'avis et avec le consentement du Sénat, douze peseurs des sucres et des cotons pour la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, qui resteront en fonctions deux années, lesquels fourniront caution de la somme de $5,000 pour la fidèle exécution de leurs devoirs ; et les dits peseurs, ainsi nommés, auront le pouvoir de nommer un ou plusieurs députés, afin de les aider et de les assister dans l'exécution de leurs devoirs, chaque peseur sera responsable de la conduite fidèles des dits députés.

L'importance des intérêts qui seront affectés par les dispositions de ce bill, requiert la considération sérieuse de la Législature, et l'Etat ne devrait pas s'immiscer dans les usages établis par le commerce, jusqu'à ce qu'il soit prouve que le système actuel de la disposition des sucres et des cotons, dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, n'est pas équitable, tant à l'acquéreur qu'au vendeur.

Le comité n'a encore rien vu pour l'induire à invoquer l'aide de l'Etat, afin de choisir des officiers publics dans le but de remplir un devoir, qui est maintenant rempli par des peseurs choisis par ceux dont les intérêts sont directement intéressés.

Le comité est d'opinion que la passation de cet acte créerait un monopole de la plus odieuse nature, en tant que ce pouvoir de nommer serait exercé par les douze inspecteurs nommés par le gouverneur, chacun desquels aurait le droit de nommer un ou plusieurs députés, et le nombre total des personnes ainsi choisies auraient à peser 1,600,000 balles de coton, et 1,500,000 boucauts de sucre, reçus annuellement à la Nouvelle-Orléans, lesquels ne seraient pas moins de cent en nombre.

Mais, à part cette objection, votre comité ne voit aucune raison plausible pour laquelle il ne serait pas laissé aux parties interessées dans l'achat et la vente des sucres et des cotons à la Nouvelle-Orleans, le droit de choisir leurs propres agents, afin de peser, comme cela se pratique dans les autres parties de l'Etat. Si les dispositions de ce bill sont applicables à la ville seulement, pourquoi, par la même raison, ne le seraient-elles pas à tout l'Etat ? Une grande partie de la récolte des sucres, même la moitié est pesée, vendue et livrée sur l'habitation. Si le système de pesage à la Nouvelle-Orléans est defectueux, il importe, autant à l'acquéreur qu'au vendeur, d'avoir de justes poids des sucres vendus sur l'habitation. Ces deux moyens de livrer le même article tendraient à jeter de la discorde dans l'une ou l'autre des parties contractantes.

Dans le système actuel de la vente des sucres et des cotons, le facteur est l'agent direct de l'habitant, et il est à presumer qu'il prend le même interêt en choisissant un peseur capable qu'en vendant la denrée à un prix plus avantageux. La responsabilité directe du peseur envers le facteur, et de ce dernier envers l'habitant, est, dans l'opinion de votre comité, plus précise, lorsque le peseur est choisi par le facteur, que s'il serait nommé par l'Etat.

Toute négligence de la part du peseur tendrait à le priver de son emploi, tandis que tout recours serait sans efforts lorsqu'il serait nommé par l'Etat.

Le bill pourvoit de plus que chaque boucaut de sucre et chaque balle de coton seraient marqués du nom du peseur et avec le poids brut, etc Ces formalités ne tendraient qu'à embarrasser l'achat et la vente de ces deux articles et à en retarder la livraison.— Il est douteux si la moitié de la quantité, soit de sucre ou de coton, pourrait être livrée avec la même facilité que sous le système actuel, l'encombrement de ces articles sur la levée et dans les presses à coton pendant une grande partie de la saison des affaires, de tels inconvéniens seraient de nature à effecter sérieusement le trafic de ces denrées.

En somme, votre comité considère les diverses dispositions de ce bill comme autant d'entraves au commerce de l'Etat, au lieu de laisser une compétition bien disposée, tant pour ce qui concerne la nature des services à rendre, que pour la compensation.

En consequence, le comité rapporte contrairement à l'adoption du bill qu'on lui a soumis et demande à être déchargé de la considération ultérieure du sujet.

Respectueusement,

(Signe) J. A. BRAUD, Président.
A. B. LAUVE.

M. Lacey, au nom du comité des edifices publics, fait le rapport suivant:

A l'honorable W. W. Farmer, lieutenant-gouverneur et président du Sénat.

Le comité des édifices publics auquel a été référée la résolution réunie relativement aux améliorations à faire au terrain sur lequel la maison d'Etat est bâtie, et aux changements à faire au plafond de la Chambre des Représentants, a l'honneur de rapporter,

Digitized by Google

Que le comité de votre honorable corps s'est réuni à celui de la Chambre, dans le but de prendre en considération la resolution ci-dessus, et l'opinion unanime des deux comités réunis, est: Que le terrain de la maison d'Etat devrait être entoure convenablement avec un grillage en fer sur des fondations en briques, recouvertes de granit; que la terre soit bien nivellée, que des arbres et des arbustes y soient plantés, et que d'autres améliorations y soient faites; que la banquette autour du Capitole soit briquetée et recouverte de ciment et flanquée de pierres, et que les deux passages du Capitole aux deux portes d'entrée soient couverts de coquilles, avec une couche de ciment. Le comité réuni est aussi d'opinion unanime, qu'il n'est pas convenable de faire aucun changement au plafond de la Chambre des Représentants, et que la petite maison, où loge le sergent d'armes de la Chambre, soit enlevée.

Et le comité de votre honorable corps rapporte, en outre, au Sénat, que le comité réuni a autorisé son rapporteur à inviter la commission des propositions pour le prix, le plan et le devis des travaux à faire, et a autorisé le paiement de $250 pour les dits plans et devis qui pourraient être adoptés par le comité, pourvu que les dits plans et les spécifications soient délivrés le, ou avant jeudi le 9 fevrier 1854; que le dit jour plusieurs plans, devis, etc., furent soumis au comite, et après mûres deliberations, il a eté unanimement résolu que les plans et devis, proposés par Charles Ritter, soient adoptés par le comite, lesquels plans et devis ont été présentes au comité de la Chambre des Représentants, où la résolution a pris naissance.

Votre comité représente de plus à votre honorable corps, que, d'après les devis proposés par le dit Ritter, le coût du travail, recommandé par votre comité, serait ainsi qu'il suit, savoir:

1,600 pieds grillage en fer, avec fondations en briques, recouverte de granit,	$ 13,498 40
Banquettes, degrés, pentes, pavages, bordures de pavage, &c.,	4,331 84
Améliorations au terrain, confection des degrés, des banquettes et plantation d'arbres,	3,800 00
Montant total,	$ 21,630 24

Tout ce qui précède contient un aperçu le moins coûteux soumis à votre comité.

Votre comité ne peut clore son rapport sans représenter à votre honorable corps, qu'en M Ritter, le comité a trouvé une personne ayant toutes les qualités requises, non seulement pour faire lesdits plans, spécifications et devis qui sont requis par le comité, mais encore de les mettre à exécution; et votre comité n'hésiterait pas d'exprimer comme son opinion, qu'il serait plus avantageux à l'Etat d'accepter la proposition dudit Ritter, de faire lesdits travaux au prix ci-dessus mentionné dans le rapport ci-annexé. Votre comité croyant avoir pleinement rempli sa mission, en vertu de la résolution des deux Chambres, demande à être déchargé de toutes considérations ultérieures à ce sujet et recommande respectueusement à votre honorable corps l'adoption de la résolution annexée à ce rapport, et la passation du bill qui l'accompagne.

Le tout vous est respectueusement soumis.

Signé, GEO. S. LACEY.
M. BOATNER.

Résolu que la somme de deux cent vingt-cinq piastres soit payée à Ritter ou à son ordre, du fonds des dépenses casuelles du Sénat, pour plans, spécifications et devis, par lui fournis au comité réuni des deux Chambres, laquelle ensemble avec un même montant qui devra être payé du fonds des dépenses contingentes de la Chambre, forme la somme convenue qui doit être payée audit Charles Ritter par ledit comité.

Sur motion de M Lacey, le rapport et la résolution sont adoptés.

Le Comité des Améliorations à l'Intérieur, des terres marécageuses et inondées, auquel avait été référé l'acte pour pourvoir aux améliorations à l'intérieur de l'Etat, et pour la confection des levées et des desèchements nécessaires, et pour le desséchement des terres marécageuses et inondées, appartenant à l'Etat, a l'honneur de rapporter que le Comité accepte les amendements suivants:

Dans la section 5, à la seconde ligne, d'effacer le mot "quatre" et d'insérer le mot "trois," et à la cinquième ligne de la même section, d'ajouter après les mots "comptes" les mots "en proportions égales du fonds des améliorations à l'intérieur, et du fonds des terres marécageuses, à l'effet de le payer si ces fonds le permettent, et au cas du contraire, il pourra être payé d'un desdits fonds qui aurait le montant requis." A la 12me section, dans la 20me ligne, d'insérer après les mots districts, "toute la paroisse des Avoyelles inclusivement." A la 14me section, dans la 8me ligne, d'effacer les mots "trois mille", et d'insérer au lieu et place "deux mille cinq cents", et à la 20me section, à la 17me ligne, d'ajouter après le mot "section", ce qui suit :

Section 21. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que lorsqu'il n'y aura plus au Trésor une somme suffisante appartenant au fonds des terres marécageuses, à l'effet de mettre l'Ingénieur de l Etat à même de construire telles levées, et de faire tels desséchements qu'il croira nécessaires, pour mettre en exécution les dispositions de ce bill, il sera autorisé à publier que les contrats seront payables en certificats de terre. Bien entendu que le coût des levées n'excèdera pas 20 sous par yarde cube, payable en terres, à raison d'une piastre et vingt-cinq sous par acre, et lorsque le travail sera terminé, le certificat sera émis par l'Ingénieur Civil pour des subdivisions légales de terres, et pour être pris sur les terres publiques, cédées par le Congrès à l'Etat, afin d'aider à dessécher les terres marécageuses et inondées qui ont été arpentées et qui sont sujettes à être entrées. Le Register des Terres Publiques est, par le présent, autorisé a permettre aux porteurs de pareils certificats, d'entrer la terre de la même maniere que si l'argent avait été payé. Lesdits contrats devront être faits d'après les dispositions de ce bill, relativement a l'exécution des contrats pour la construction des travaux publics, et que les parties intéressées seront soumises aux mêmes obligations, et seront sujettes aux mêmes pénalités.

Une majorité du comité est en faveur d'effacer la section 23 du bill primitif.

A l'Hon. W. W. Farmer, Lieutenant Gouverneur et Président du Sénat.

Les soussignés, membres du Comité Judiciaire du Sénat, auquel avait été référée la pétition de J. H. Maddox, et le rapport du Comité des Réclamations, demandant l'opinion du comité sur la légalité de la réclamation faite par ledit Maddox, ont l'honneur de rapporter qu'il a été impossible au comité, tout en s'occupant de la légalité de la réclamation, de ne pas prendre en considération des faits qui y avaient rapport; la décision du comité, sur la légalité ou la non légalité, dépendait presque de l'existence ou de la non existence de certains faits; et le comité s'est vu forcé par des circonstances qu'il ne pouvait pas empêcher, de faire un examen qu'il n'avait pas l'intention de faire à l'époque où la pétition et le rapport susdits ont été renvoyés au comité.

La première question qui occupât le comité fut l'Etat; pouvait-il faire un contrat avec un individu? L'opinion du comité était que lorsque l'Etat s'obligeait envers un individu, il se dévêtissait, en tant que les diverses transactions avaient rapport avec cet arrangement, de sa souveraineté et prenait le caractère et la position d'un simple citoyen.

Ses pouvoirs, ses privilèges et ses prérogatives, en tant qu'ils avaient rapport à la transaction, n'existaient plus, et l'Etat était placé au même niveau que la partie opposée, et était réduit a la position d'un individu qui pouvait et avait contracté. Cette opinion était fortement supportée par la décision dans le 4me. vol. des rapports de Gell et Johnston, Etat du Maryland.—Canal vs. Compagnie de Chemin de Fer, dans laquelle est établie la doctrine "qu'un Etat ou le Gouvernement Général en sa capacité de souverain, peut contracter avec un individu. Le comité partageant cette opinion, rapporte, sans hésiter, au Sénat, que l'Etat de la Louisiane pourrait passer un contrat avec un particulier."

Un contrat a-t-il été fait et passé entre l'Etat de la Louisiane d'une part, et le pétitionnaire, Joseph H. Maddox, d'autre part?

A la session de la Convention de 1852, laquelle représentait l'Etat, le réclamant fut nommé imprimeur, (page 5) ; et le caractère et le prix de son travail furent fixés, ainsi qu'on peut le voir en se référant au rapport du comité spécial, page 20, du journal de la convention. La quantité a été établie par les résolutions adoptées postérieurement; une d'elles, le 20 juillet 1852, page 50, ordonnant à l'imprimeur de la Convention, d'imprimer 1000 exemplaires des Débats en anglais et 500 en français—Et l'autre résolution adoptée le 31 juillet 1852, page 86, ordonnant l'impression de 1,000 exemplaires des Débats en anglais et 500 en français, en outre du nombre déjà ordonnée:" Ces faits établissent que l'Etat a fait choix de M. Maddox, comme imprimeur de la Convention, et démontrent le caractère, la quantité et le prix du travail qui lui a été ordonné par la Convention; le travail commencé, fait voir l'entreprise du pétitionnaire de l'exécution aux conditions stipulées. Ces deux positions réunies, font voir, d'après les principes qui ont été établis par l'Etat lui-même pour guider les autres, qu'un contrat a été fait et passé entre l'Etat et Mr. Maddox.

Un contrat consiste d'une proposition et de son acceptation ; et le contrat est complet par l'acceptation de la personne à laquelle il est proposé. Il n'est besoin d'aucun mot technique pour l'établir ou le définir. Le bon sens seul est nécessaire et l'opération, dans des cas semblables à celui-ci, peut être établie sur preuves légales. (Code Civil, 1791, 1794.)

Le comité a décidé que l'Etat de la Louisiane pouvait passer un contrat avec le pétitionnaire, et qu'il a légalement et positivement contracté avec le pétitionnaire, pour imprimer 2,000 exemplaires des débats en anglais, et 1,000 en français aux conditions suivantes: pour 200 exemplaires en forme de livres, en français et en anglais, et imprimés en mignonne, et composés des matières publiées dans le journal, les pages devant contenir 81 lignes, y compris le titre, la ligne en blanc sous le titre et la ligne au bas de la page; le livre devant être cousu et relié de la même manière que les livres de lois, à $2 50 la page; et pour chaque 200 exemplaires, après les 200 premiers, $2 par page; et le comité ayant examiné ce sujet et fixé sa décision sur ce point, s'est occupé des autres points, savoir:

Le réclamant, M. Joseph H. Maddox, a-t-il été toujours prêt à remplir les devoirs qui lui étaient imposés concernant l'impression des débats et leur insertion dans la gazette quotidienne et hebdomadaire; l'Etat n'a-t il pas manqué à remplir les conditions stipulées pour sa part; et si M. Maddox a été prêt à remplir sa part du contrat et que l'Etat a manqué de remplir la sienne, l'Etat lui doit il une indemnité?

Le premier témoignage dont le comité s'est occupé, est l'affidavit du pétitionnaire dans lequel il dit: Qu'afin d'être toujours prêt à exécuter son contrat avec l'Etat, il lui a été impossible de s'occuper d'autres ouvrages, qu'il a entendu fort longtemps, et qu'il n'a pu, par conséquent, faire usage des lettres d'imprimerie.

Le second témoignage est celui de Thadeus D. Vanhoon, qui dit sous serment: Que l'imprimeur commença l'impression et la publication des Débats de la Convention et continua l'impression de ses débats tant qu'ils ont été fournis par le rapporteur Edwards; qu'il s'est souvent présenté à Mr. Edwards pour obtenir le manuscrit des rapports; mais il n'a pu rien obtenir après les premières pages."

Le comité s'occupe ensuite du témoignage écrit de L. Graham, dans lequel il dit: "quelques feuilles des rapports ont été fournies à l'imprimerie par Mr. Edwards, le rapporteur de la Convention, elles ont été composées et tirées immédiatement; après quoi, nous ne pûmes en obtenir d'autres du rapporteur; nous fûmes obligés de tenir les caractères prêts, en l'attendant, et nous ne pûmes employer les caractères à d'autres ouvrages."

Au commencement de la session de la Législature de 1853, M. McCay presenta au Sénat une résolution ordonnant au bibliothécaire d'écrire au rapporteur de la dernière Convention, à l'effet d'obtenir les raisons qui ont empêché de rapporter et de publier les débats de la Convention. En vertu de cette résolution, le bibliothécaire écrivit, sous la date du 7 mai, 1853, une lettre à Mr. Edwards, le rapporteur, et reçut la réponse du rapporteur, le 13 juin 1853. Dans sa reponse, Mr. Edwards dit: "qu'aussitôt que je le pourrai, ou que j'aurai recouvré assez de force pour écrire une page sans perdre entierement le sujet, je recommencerai a à ecrire les débats et les continuerai jusqu'a la fin."

Peu de temps après avoir écrit cette réponse, le rapporteur mourut sans avoir laissé un manuscrit des débats.

Conformément aux faits établis, le réclamant a exprimé son désir de faire le travail qu'il n'a pu exécuter par la faute du rapporteur. Les preuves, dans cette affaire, ont convaincu le comité de la bonne foi de la part de Maddox, et il n'a aucun doute que l'Etat, par sa Convention, ou plutôt par son officier, le rapporteur de cette convention a été coupable d'omissions, de négligence et délais, et qu'il a été clairement mis en demeure par l'imprimeur Maddox. Alors surgit la question: "le réclamant ayant été prêt à remplir sa part du contrat, et l'Etat ayant manqué de remplir la sienne, le premier a-t-il droit à une indemnité?

La Législature de l'Etat de la Louisiane, dans l'article No. 1,924 du Code Civil, déclare que "l'obligation du contrat s'étendant à tout ce qui en est la suite, la partie qui le viole doit, comme suite de son obligation, le paiement des dommages que l'autre partie souffre par sa faute," et comme le comité n'a pu découvrir aucune bonne raison, pourquoi l'Etat ne serait pas sujet à la règle qu'il a établi lui-même pour le gouvernement de ses citoyens, il a conclu qu'il ne serait que juste que l'Etat soit tenu de payer tous les dommages ou les pertes qui ont été occasionnées par sa négligence; et cette conclusion n'est non seulement pas arbitraire, mais elle est appuyée sur des autorités, soit législatives, soit judiciaires. [6 vol. des rapports du New Hampshire, page 494, Materston vs. Mayor; 7 vol. Hill, rapporteur de New York] Dans la dernière affaire, la question des dommages a été ainsi discutée, et le droit d'indemnité bien établi, c'est-à-dire en tant qu'il a rapport aux individus.

Judd vs. Comstack—rapports de New York, page 411.

L'histoire de ce procès est comme suit;

James Jones et Edward Jones, intentèrent un procès à Judd, devant la Cour de première instance, dans le comté de Cataragus, pour recouvrer le paiement de travaux exécutés par eux. Le défendeur avait passé un contrat avec l'Etat, pour achever des parties du canal de la vallée de Genesee. Il passa un autre contrat avec les demandeurs pour exécuter une partie du même travail. Les travaux sur le canal, y compris ceux que le demandeur devaient exécuter, furent arrêtés par les commissaires du Canal, avant qu'ils eussent exécuté leur entreprise et ils ne l'ont jamais achevée. La Législature décréta "l'acte pour maintenir le credit de l'Etat" qui mit fin au contrat originaire passé entre le défendeur et l'Etat. L'accomplissement de la condition requise étant devenue impossible par l'opération de la loi, la Cour décida que les demandeurs avaient droit à une indemnité, attendu que la non exécution du contrat ne venait pas d'eux.

Subséquemment, la Législature remboursa à Judd, les dommages qu'il avait payés aux défendeurs dans cette affaire.

Ensemble, le comité prit en considération quelques précédents remarquables établis sous le gouvernement fédéral. D'après un contrat passé avec le département de la guerre, Nimrod Farrow et autres, s'obligèrent à construire une certaine fortification sur l'île Dauphine. Les contracteurs commencèrent les travaux; ils préparèrent tout pour l'exécution de leur contrat. L'allocation nécessaire ne fut pas votée par le Congrès, on suspendit les travaux, et les contracteurs furent congédiés. Pour ce manquement de la part du gouvernement fédéral, les contracteurs réclamèrent le prix entier fixé dans le contrat. Par un acte du Congrès, la réclamation fut renvoyée à un commissaire chargé de s'enquérir du montant des bénéfices qu'auraient faits les contracteurs, si les travaux avaient été achevés. Le commissaire, H. Swann, avocat habile, décida que les contracteurs avaient droit à la somme entière. Ce jugement fut approuvé par le Congrès. Nimrod Farrow et Cie, en vertu de ce jugement, reçurent comme bé-néfices plus de 70,000 piastres, en considération de la violation du contrat de la part du Gouvernement Fédéral. Voy. Rapp de la C. des R., seconde session, 25e Congrès, document 56. Aussi, une autre affaire où le Gouvernement Fédéral négligea de désigner l'endroit où devait être construite la fortification. Dans cette affaire, le commissaire décida qu'il serait juste et raisonnable qu'on allouât les bénéfices que les contracteurs auraient pu faire par l'emploi de leurs ouvriers.

Une autre.—Blair et Rives, furent, en 1840, élus imprimeurs de la Chambre des Représentants des Etats-Unis. Il devint nécessaire, durant le recès de publier un résumé de recensement.

Mr. Webster pensant que ce travail ne devait pas être compris dans le contrat de Blair et Rives, comme imprimeurs de la Chambre des Représentants, en donna l'impression à Thomas Allen, éditeur alors du Madisonian. Blair et Rives protestèrent contre l'exercice de ce pouvoir de la part de Mr. Webster, et prétendirent être les imprimeurs qui devaient faire l'ouvrage, et ils réclamèrent au Congrès la compensation en entier, comme s'ils avaient fait tout le travail. On leur accorda leur réclamation. Nous pouvons aussi vous référer au rapport fait au Congrès pour allouer des dommages, lorsque le gouvernement a négligé de remplir ses contrats, &c., &c., voyez 2de session, 22e Congres, vol. 1, Document No 1. Voyez dans le juriste américain, octobre 1833, article 3, page 251, la dissertation habile concernant l'exécution d'un contrat par le Gouvernement, dans laquelle la doctrine est reconnue que le Gouvernement est responsable des dommages ou du montant des bénéfices, toutes les fois que, par sa faute ou par celle de ses officiers, un contrat est violé.

Le comité ne croit pas devoir terminer ce rapport sans faire mention des détails de l'affaire qui a rapport aux Indiens Chickasaw. Par le traité de Pontotac, le 20 avril 1836, les Indiens Chickasaw consentirent à se retirer à l'ouest de la rivière Mississippi, et le Gouvernement Général s'engagea à leur fournir tous les moyens de le faire. Pour mettre à exécution cette obligation, un contrat fut passé avec le capitaine Buckner. Lorsque les Chickasaws s'assemblèrent à Memphis, il n'y en eût que 300 qui voulurent se rendre à leur destination par les bateaux. Le reste de la tribu refusa de le faire, et se rendit par terre jusqu'au pays qui leur était destiné, à l'ouest du Mississippi. Pour tous les Indiens qui se rendirent par terre, le capitaine Buckner réclama le même prix de transport que s'ils se fussent embarqués dans les bateaux, et pour ce, on lui alloua la somme de $37,749. C'est à dire qu'on le paya pour transporter sur des bateaux, des Indiens qui avaient voyagé par terre.

Ces faits et ces autorités étant soumis au comité, il n'a pu refuser d'admettre que le réclamant a droit à une indemnité, et, en outre, il doit dire que le montant de cette indemnité ne doit pas être moindre de celui des dommages qu'a souffert M. Maddox, et du montant des bénéfices qu'il aurait faits si le travail avait été achevé.

Le comité ne s'est pas cru autorisé à examiner le montant de la réclamation, et afin que cette question et d'autres qui constituent l'affaire en litige, soient examinés avec soin, le comité demande à votre honorable corps, d'adopter la résolution qui suit.

Le tout vous est respectueusement soumis.

Résolu que le Comité des Réclamations soit requis de s'enquérir du montant que Joseph H. Maddox a droit d'exiger de l'Etat, sur sa réclamation: et qu'il soit aussi requis de s'assurer si la somme de $3,010, reçue par ledit Maddox, en vertu d'un acte de la dernière Législature, n'a pas été reçue par lui comme paiement en entier de toutes ses réclamations contre l'Etat, pour avoir imprimé les Débats et les avoir publiées dans sa gazette quotidienne et hebdomadaire.

Sur motion de Mr. Lacey, le Sénat ordonne l'impression de ce rapport à 100 exemplaires.

Mr. King, au nom du même comité, présente le rapport suivant de la minorité.

A l'Hon. W. W. Farmer, Lieut.-Gouverneur et Président du Sénat.

Je, soussigné, membre du Comité Judiciaire auquel avait été référé la légalité de la réclamation de Joseph H. Maddox, contre l'Etat, en sa capacité d'imprimeur de la Convention, ai l'honneur de présenter le rapport suivant.

L'histoire de cette réclamation est comprise par nous, en voici les faits:

Lorsque la Convention de l'Etat s'est assemblée en 1852, pour former une constitution, elle a résolu d'élire un imprimeur de la Convention. A cette élection qui a eu lieu subséquemment, le prétendant a été élu imprimeur de la Convention. La Convention a aussi élu un rapporteur à l'effet de rapporter leurs débats. Le rapporteur est mort avant d'avoir complété ses rapports. Pendant la session de la dernière Législature, Mr. Maddox a présenté sa réclamation pour imprimer telles parties des Débats qui lui ont été fournies par le rapporteur, et a été payé pour cet ouvrage par une allocation d'environ $3,010. Il avait déjà été payé pour d'autres impressions de la Convention faites par lui.

A la session actuelle de la Législature, il vient devant nous, et il presse une réclamation qui, dans notre opinion, s'élèvera à plus de 15,000 piastres, à titre de compensation, laquelle est basée sur les considérations suivantes.

Il allègue que le rapporteur de la Convention est mort sans lui avoir fourni les Débats de ce corps. Il allègue en outre que si le rapporteur lui avait fourni les Débats pour l'impression, il aurait probablement fait le montant de bénéfice.

Il allégue aussi qu'à l'effet de se préparer à imprimer l'ouvrage de la Convention, il lui a été nécessaire d'avoir recours à des dépenses considérables dans l'achat des caractères requis pour l'exécution de ce travail. Et, à cet effet, il soutient qu'il a droit à être indemnisé

Toute question de loi doit être déterminée en se référant à quelque état de faits. Dans l'opinion de votre comité, les soussignés pensent que les faits de cette enquête, savoir: la légalité de ladite réclamation.

Sous de pareilles circonstances, l'opinion des soussignés est que par l'effet de son élection, Mr. Maddox est devenu officier public de la Convention. Ses devoirs étaient d'imprimer telles matières qui lui seraient fournies par la Convention.

Le principe, en tant que cela concerne la souveraineté de l'Etat, que les officiers publics n'ont aucuns droits acquis soit dans la teneur de leurs places ou des devoirs qui leur sont imposés, a été depuis trop longtemps déterminé, autant par autorité légale que par la pratique de tout gouvernement, pour être mis aujourd'hui en controverse. Pour illustrer ce principe, nous n'avons seulement qu'à nous référer à l'histoire de la Louisiane. A l'époque de l'exécution du traité de cession, les officiers Espagnols et Français agissant sous l'autorité de leurs souverains, ont cédé leurs emplois et le Gouvernement aux officiers des Etats-Unis. Les juges nommés à vie et les autres officiers du gouvernement territorial, ont de même résigné leurs fonctions à l'époque de l'admission de la Louisiane dans l'Union. Les juges nommés à vie, sous l'empire de la Constitution de 1812, et les autres officiers dont la teneur des places n'était pas fixée, ont abandonné leurs places à l'époque de l'organisation du Gouvernement, sous l'empire de la Constitution de 1845. Plus récemment, nous avons vu que le Gouverneur de l'Etat, les juges de nos Cours, et plusieurs autres officiers qui n'avaient pas fini leurs termes, ont abandonné leurs places à leurs successeurs, sous l'empire de la Constitution de 1852. Aucun n'aurait probablement abandonné leurs places, s'il n'avait été admis qu'ils avaient un droit acquis à leurs places, lorsqu'il a été prouvé que même le pouvoir souverain ne pourrait les troubler. La teneur d'une place est toujours sujette à la volonté souveraine du Gouvernement, lorsqu'elle est exprimée légitimement.

La loi est également certaine en tant qu'elle concerne les devoirs d'une place. Le pouvoir souverain peut les augmenter ou les diminuer, sans que, dans aucun cas, ils aient droit soit à une augmentation dans le salaire, ou à des dommages pour la diminution de l'ouvrage. Si l'officier public croit lésé par le changement, il a toujours un moyen de montrer son mécontentement, savoir celui de résigner. C'est un principe de loi bien établi dans ce pays, que tout officier civil peut résigner à volonté, et ni le Président des Etats-Unis, ni aucune autre autorité de ce Gouvernement, peut le forcer à agir contre sa volonté.

Tel étant le principe établi de la loi, il nous reste à en appliquer les mérites au cas de Mr. Maddox.

La Convention étant une réunion du peuple de l'Etat, dans leur plus haute souveraineté, avait indubitablement le droit de le destituer à son gré, sans lui donner le droit à une réclamation légale quelconque contre l'Etat. Son droit, soit d'augmenter ou de diminuer ses devoirs, a été également certain.

Les officiers publics n'ont aucun droit de se plaindre de l'exercice de ce pouvoir, car ils sont présumés connaître les incidents qui accompagnent l'acceptation de cette place. Mr. Maddox par l'acceptation de cette place, s'est engagé à faire toutes les impressions que la Convention lui donnerait. S'il ne pouvait pas remplir cette obligation, il devait résigner. S'il a imprimé les matières qui lui ont été fournies, il avait une réclamation contre l'Etat pour la compensation stipulée.

Si une telle réclamation existait contre une personne, il aurait un droit légal de le recouvrer et pourrait en forcer le recouvrement devant les Cours de Justice. Au-delà de cette position, il n'avait aucun droit légal quelconque. L'idée qu'il a un droit legal de recouvrer de l'Etat ce qu'il aurait fait, si la Convention lui avait donné plus d'ouvrage, est, dans notre opinion, ridicule.

Tout officier de l'Etat peut forcer la réclamation d'une compensation additionnelle, pour des services de même nature, particulièrement lorsque ses émoluments dépendent de frais de bureaux. Car la plus grande partie d'entre eux pourrait dire, avec beaucoup de raison, qu'ils auraient pu faire plus d'ouvrage et auraient pu avoir plus d'argent si l'Etat leur avait donné plus à faire.

Nous nous proposons d'examiner brièvement la réclamation de M. Maddox.

Tout individu qui postule une place, donne au public la garantie qu'il peut remplir les devoirs de la place qu'il demande.

Les compétiteurs de Mr. Maddox à cette place, se sont sans doute représentés, et probablement étaient compétents à remplir cette position. Que Mr. Maddox ait dépensé un sous ou un million, afin de se préparer à remplir son obligation, est un objet dans lequel l'Etat n'a aucun intérêt quelconque. S'il n'était pas content et s'il n'était pas préparé à remplir les devoirs de cette place, il n'aurait pas dû l'accepter. Il aurait dû laisser le champ libre à un autre qui, probablement aurait été satisfait de l'avoir et en aurait rempli les devoirs. En conséquence, et à cette occasion, il n'a aucun sujet de réclamation équitable.

Tant qu'à sa réclamation pour ce qu'il aurait fait si la Convention lui avait fourni plus d'ouvrage, il pourrait, avec la même raison, demander des profits qu'il aurait pu faire en imprimant de nouveau tous les livres de la bibliothèque. D'après ce même principe, notre imprimeur, à cette session, pourrait réclamer à titre de profits qu'il aurait pu faire sur tous les documents qu'il pourrait croire que nous aurions dû publier, mais aussi pour les documents qu'il calculerait que nous aurions dû publier. Une telle position, nous croyons indigne de réfutation ultérieure.

Le pétitionnaire, dans son mémoire, nous a référé à plusieurs autorités légales. Après mûre considération, nous croyons, et il est évident, qu'elles ne peuvent être appliqués à sa cause.

La plus grande partie des autorités auxquelles nous avons été référés, nous représentent des circonstances où l'Etat avait fait un contrat spécial avec un individu.

Il n'y a aucun doute que le souverain peut faire un contrat spécial ; et lorsque ce contrat est fait, il est sous l'obligation morale qui pourrait lier un individu sous les mêmes circonstances. Mais nous avons déjà démontré que cela n'est pas applicable relativement à l'Etat et à un officier public.

Un officier public est toujours sous le contrôle de l'autorité souveraine, et il n'y a aucun contrat, soit quant à la teneur, aux devoirs ou aux émoluments de sa place, et il ne peut se plaindre légalement du pouvoir que l'autorité peut exercer. Les faits, dans ce cas, et la théorie de notre mode de gouvernement, ne justifient pas l'existence d'un contrat.

Le cas de Blair et Rives n'est pas applicable à ce cas. Ils étaient les imprimeurs légaux du Congrès. Le secrétaire des Etats-Unis a donné à un autre individu l'impression de ce qu'ils avaient par droit. En agissant ainsi, le secrétaire d'Etat a agi en opposition à la loi, et les a privés d'un ouvrage et des profits auxquels ils avaient droit légalement.

M Maddox ne se plaint pas que l'impression à laquelle il avait droit a été donnée à un autre. A l'effet de rendre les deux cas analogues, il aurait dû démontrer que le secrétaire de la Convention ou quelque autre officier subordonné de ce corps, aurait donné l'ouvrage auquel il avait droit à quelque autre personne, et que celui qui a reçu ces faveurs illégales a profité avantageusement des droits auxquels l'imprimeur de la Convention avait légalement droit. M Maddox ne présente aucune allégation de ce genre. Le cas n'est pas analogue et l'autorité n'est pas applicable.

Pour terminer, notre opinion est que la réclamation de M Maddox n'est fondée ni en loi ni en équité, et qu'elle n'est soutenue ni par la justice, ni par aucun précédent.

Signé, W. W. KING.

LUNDI, 27 février 1854.

Lecture est donnée du journal du Sénat.

Mr Moore—Messieurs, avant que le clerc porte les bills à l'autre Chambre, je crois qu'il est de mon devoir de demander une nouvelle prise en considération du bill que j'ai introduit l'autre jour pour rapporter (abroger) une certaine section d'un certain acte concernant les terres publiques. J'étais dans une sorte de fanatisme à l'époque, au sujet d'un bill que j'avais introduit et qui avait pour but de faire retirer de la vente une certaine portion de terres publiques. Depuis, je me suis aperçu que l'effet de ce bill serait d'arrêter la vente de toutes les terres. Je n'avais pas cette intention. J'avais été induit en erreur par les observations des personnes qui m'entouraient. Je suis toujours disposé à rectifier une erreur, quand je m'aperçois que je me suis trompé

Le vote est reconsidéré, et le bill est déposé sur la table indéfiniment.

Bill concernant les ventes judiciaires.

Mr King, membre de la majorité du comité spécial chargé d'examiner le bill ayant pour but de régler les ventes judiciaires des biens des successions dans la paroisse d'Orléans, lit un rapport accompagné d'un bill.

Mr Kenner—Je veux faire une remarque qui m'est personnelle au sujet du bill sur lequel le comité a fait un rapport. On se rappellera que, sur ma motion, le bill originaire introduit par le Sénateur de la Nelle-Orléans, (Mr King,) a été renvoyé à un comité spécial. Le président du Sénat m'a fait l'honneur de me nommer membre de ce comité. Il y a de cela trois ou quatre semaines. Je désire établir maintenant, pour l'édification du Sénat, que jamais le président de ce comité ne m'a dit, ni personne, quand une réunion aurait lieu. Tout a été tenu secret, et la première fois que j'en ai entendu parler, ça été par le rapport du comité. J'étais extrêmement désireux de prendre part aux délibérations de ce comité Je désirais y provoquer certaines enquêtes que je croyais importantes et même nécessaires à une complète élucidation du sujet, et j'avais aussi le désir de prévenir un contre-rapport. Je dis ceci avec tout le respect dû au comité Je ne voudrais pas qu'on pût m'accuser d'un manque de courtoisie; mais je considère qu'il est de mon devoir d'établir les faits de la cause pendante devant le Sénat, sauf à laisser ensuite les membres de cette assemblée tirer d'eux mêmes les conséquences.

Mr King—Je dois dire, messieurs, que je vois avec le plus grand regret que l'honorable Mr Kenner puisse se sentir blessé de l'action du comité; mais j'avoue que je ne comprends pas bien comment il peut se trouver ainsi personnellement offensé. Depuis la date de la nomination du comité, jusqu'au moment où je parle, je ne pense pas qu'une seule fois il ait été possible de réunir tous les membres. Vendredi dernier, le comité fut invité à se réunir; et si l'honorable membre eût été présent ici, il aurait certainement été informé du fait, et je puis dire en toute sécurité, que rien n'eût pu nous faire plus de plaisir que sa présence au sein du comité. Je ne saurais pas plus que l'honorable Mr Kenner, me rendre coupable de la moindre discourtoisie envers qui que ce soit, et je crois savoir comme lui-même le degré de considération que nous tous ici présents, nous nous devons les uns aux autres. Mais enfin il fallait bien que le comité se réunit à un moment quelconque. La session tirait à sa fin; il se trouvait ce jour-là un plus grand nombre de membres présents que de coutume, et j'ai pensé que le moment était favorable pour provoquer la réunion du comité. Je n'ai pas trop vu la nécessité de différer la réunion, puisqu'un nouveau délai aurait eu pour résultat probable d'avoir un moins grand nombre de membres présents.

Mr McCay—Comme le Sénateur de l'Ascension [Mr Kenner] semble désireux de faire un rapport pour avoir ses vues sur le bill insérées au journal, je demande qu'on porte la discussion du bill à l'ordre du jour de mercredi prochain, en laissant à Mr Kenner le loisir de faire un rapport.

Mr Rivers—Je demande que le bill soit de nouveau renvoyé au comité.

Mr Kenner—Je ferai observer, en réponse aux observations du Sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, (Mr King,) que le comité a existé pendant plusieurs semaines, et qu'aucune réunion n'a été provoquée, quoique j'aie été très assidu aux séances pendant longtemps. J'ai rencontré l'honorable membre jeudi dernier, et je lui ai dit mon intention de m'absenter, de manière à ce qu'il fut prévenu que je ne serais pas ici pendant quelques jours. Il paraît qu'il en aurait voulu prendre avantage, et que pour cette raison il a convoqué le comité pendant mon absence.

Mr McCay—Je ne vois pas d'objection à la motion du Sénateur de Concordia. Je pense que nous devons donner au Sénateur de l'Ascension la faculté de pouvoir provoquer ces importants interrogatoires J'appuie la motion de renvoyer le bill au même comité.

Cette motion est adoptée, et le bill est de nouveau renvoyé au comité.

Collecte des Taxes.

Mr Macmurdo lit un rapport favorable sur le bill ayant pour but de venir au secours du Shérif de la paroisse de St. Landry, et s'exprime ensuite en ces termes:

Je vais exposer les raisons de ce rapport. La paroisse de St Landry est de plusieurs années en arrière pour ses retours de taxes à l'office de l'Auditeur. Le nouveau Shérif veut bien prendre sur lui-même la charge de la collecte des taxes pour ces années en retard; mais pour être en état de faire cette collecte, il demande qu'on recule le délai dans lequel il est obligé de faire ses retours.—Le Comité des Finances a pensé non-seulement que la demande est raisonnable, mais encore que l'offre de cet officier public est avantageuse à l'Etat, et que conséquemment il y a lieu d'octroyer au Shérif le délai qu'il réclame.

Le bill est adopté.

Bons de Chemin de Fer.

Mr Macmurdo évoque le bill suivant, ayant pour but d'autoriser la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans à émettre des bons en faveur du Chemin de Fer Jackson, de la Nouvelle-Orléans et du Nord, et de celui des Opelousas. Ces bons seraient, par ce bill, substitués aux taxes.

Suit la teneur du bill.

ACTE

Pour pourvoir à la souscription au stock du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, de Jackson et du Nord, et au stock du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, des Opelousas et de l'Ouest, par la Nelle-Orléans.

Section 1. Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale; Que le Conseil de Ville de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans sera autorisé à souscrire au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle Orléans, de Jackson et du Nord pour une somme qui n'excèdera pas deux millions de piastres, et aussi à souscrire au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, des Opelousas et de l'Ouest, pour une somme qui n'excèdera pas un million cinq cent mille piastres.

Sec. 2. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que toute ordonnance autorisant ces souscriptions devra contenir les dispositions suivantes, savoir:

1o. Un état des actions, en nombre et en somme, pour lesquelles la ville souscrit.

Digitized by Google

2o. Que la souscription de la ville sera faite par le Maire et sera payable en bons de la ville, de mille piastres chaque, échéant dans vingt ans, portant interêt au taux de six pour cent par an, avec des coupons d'intérêts y attachés, payables semi-annuellement à la Nouvelle Orléans ou a New-York, selon que la compagnie qui les recevra, le jugera convenable, transférables par l'endossement du Président et du Secrétaire de ladite Compagnie, et convertibles en actions de ladite Compagnie, à l'option du porteur, en tout temps dans les dix années de leur date.

3o. Qu'une taxe spéciale sur les propriétés foncières et les esclaves sera prélevée en janvier de chaque année, pour payer les intérêts annuels sur lesdits bons, spécifiant le taux de ladite taxe, laquelle sera perçue en même temps et de la même manière que le sera la taxe pour payer l'emprunt de la ville consolidée ; et toutes les ordonnances, résolutions ou autres actes passés par ledit Conseil après le premier janvier de chaque année, [excepté l'ordonnance pour imposer ladite taxe pour l'emprunt de la ville consolidée] seront nuls et de nul effet, si ledit Conseil n'a pas passé avant une résolution imposant une taxe spéciale pour payer les intérêts sur lesdits bons émis en faveur desdites compagnies de chemins de fer y nommées. Bien entendu qu'aucune taxe ne pourra être imposée, pour payer les intérêts sur lesdits bons, après que la ville aura reçu, sur ses actions dans lesdites compagnies, le dividende de six pour cent par an, comme il est ci-après stipulé ; lesquels dividendes seront affectés par la ville au paiement des intérêts. Et bien entendu de plus, que lorsque les dividendes sur les actions de la ville dans lesdites compagnies de chemins de fer s'élèveront à plus de six pour cent par an, l'excédant, après avoir payé les intérêts, sera affecté au rachat des bons émis par la ville, en vertu de cet acte ; il est bien entendu que lorsque les dividendes sur les actions de la ville dans lesdits chemins seront moindres de six pour cent par an, une taxe pour payer les intérêts sera prélevée pour la différence seulement qui existera entre le montant du dividende annuel et le montant des intérêts annuels.

4o. Qu'aussitôt après le décret de l'ordonnance autorisant la souscription et qu'elle sera sanctionnée par les votans de la ville, ainsi qu'il est ci-après prévu, le Maire ordonnera d'émettre des bons en faveur de chacune desdites compagnies de chemins de fer, pour la proportion de la souscription de la ville, égale à la proportion qui aura été exigée par le bureau des directeurs desdites compagnies de chemins de fer respectivement, sur les souscriptions des actionnaires individuels dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans; et par la suite il ordonnera d'émettre des bons en faveur de chacune desdites compagnies pour la même proportion qui aura été exigée des actionnaires individuels, en vertu de tout appel subséquent desdits bureaux.

5o. L'abrogation de l'ordonnance du Conseil de Ville de la Nelle-Orléans, approuvée le 13 mai 1852, intitulée ordonnance pour pourvoir à la souscription par la ville de la Nelle-Orléans au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nelle-Orléans, des Opelousas et de l'Ouest, et de l'ordonnance approuvée le 17 mai 1852.intitulée: Ordonnance pour pourvoir à la souscription par la ville de la Nelle-Orléans au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nelle-Orléans, de Jackson et du Nord. Bien entendu que l'abrogation desdites ordonnances ne pourra être interprêtée de manière à décharger la ville de la responsabilité de la perception et du remboursement auxdites compagnies de chemins de fer, de cette portion de la taxe de chemin de fer, imposée en vertu desdites ordonnances, pour l'année 1853, qui n'a pas encore été perçue et remboursée auxdites compagnies.

Sec 3. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que les bons émis par la ville en faveur des compagnies de chemins de fer seront reçus par elles au pair ; et lesdites compagnies de chemins de fer émettront en échange, en faveur de la ville, des certificats d'actions pour un montant égal au montant des bons reçus par elles ; et ces certificats d'actions desdites compagnies, ainsi émis en faveur de la ville de la Nelle-Orléans, resteront toujours en garantie pour le rachat desdits bons ; Bien entendu cependant, que tout porteur desdits bons qui désirera les convertir en actions au fonds capital de la compagnie du chemin de fer en faveur de laquelle ils ont été emis, en s'adressant au trésorier de ladite ville, et en lui rendant les bons qu'il veu convertir, recevra dudit trésorier un transfert des actions représentées par les bons rendus, et lesdits bons seront immédiatement cancellés.

Sec. 4. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Qu'aucune ordonnance décrétée par le Conseil de Ville, conformément à cet acte, ne sera valide ou ne pourra être exécutée avant d'avoir été approuvée ou ratifiée à une élection qui devra être tenue à cet effet par ordre du Conseil de Ville, par une majorité des votans de la ville qui, en vertu des lois existantes, ont le droit de voter aux élections de ville. Ladite élection aura lieu dans les quinze jours qui suivront le décret de ladite ordonnance—sera precedée d'un avis public, durant six jours, publié par le Maire dans deux ou plus des gazettes de la ville, et sera, sous tous les rapports, [excepté dans des cas autrement prévus dans cet acte,] conduite de la manière qui est prescrite par la loi pour les élections de ville. Bien entendu que si le Conseil de Ville refuse de souscrire au fonds capital desdites compagnies de chemins de fer y nommées, de la manière qui est établie dans cet acte, ledit Conseil pourra à toute époque subséquente et aussi souvent qu'il le jugera convenable, à des intervalles de deux mois au moins, reprendre en considération la question, et si l'ordonnance, après qu'elle aura été décrétée par le Conseil, est rejetée par le vote d'une majorité des votans dûment qualifiés de la ville, à la première fois que ladite ordonnance lear aura été soumise pour être ratifié, le Conseil pourra, à toute époque subséquente, à des intervalles de deux mois au moins, et aussi souvent qu'il le jugera convenable, soumettre de nouveau la question aux votans, de la même manière qu'à la première élection.

Sec. 5. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Qu'aucune ordonnance décrétée par le Conseil, en vertu de cet acte, ne sera soumise à la ratification des votans qui ont le droit de voter aux élections de ville, avant que les bureaux des directeurs desdites compagnies n'aient donné avis, par écrit, au Maire, de leur acceptation de ladite ordonnance. Bien entendu que leur acceptation de l'ordonnance, avant qu'elle n'ait été soumise à la ratification des votans de la ville, sera nulle et de nul effet, dans le cas où l'ordonnance serait rejetée par lesdits votans.

Sec. 6. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que tous les bons qui peuvent avoir été émis par l'une ou l'autre desdites compagnies de chemins de fer et garantis par la taxe des chemins de fer, pour les années 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857 ou 1858, imposée en vertu de l'ordonnance du Conseil, mentionnée dans la seconde section de cet acte, et approuvée les 13 et 17 mai 1852, seront cancellés par la compagnie qui les aura émis, avant que ladite compagnie ne puisse recevoir de la ville aucun des bons qui doivent, en vertu de cet acte, lui être dé-livrés pour la souscription au fonds capital de ladite compagnie ; et si la compagnie le préfère, elle pourra déposer dans la Banque de l'Etat de la Louisiane, le montant en argent nécessaire pour payer lesdits bons ainsi garantis par la taxe de chemins de fer, et les intérêts sur lesdits bons jusqu'à leur échéance ; et lorsque les bons garantis par la taxe de chemins de fer, cancellés par la compagnie, et un certificat du caissier de ladite banque, faisant voir le montant de l'argent spécialement déposé pour le rachat des bons avec les intérêts sur iceux jusqu'à leur échéance, garantis par la taxe des chemins de fer, et non encore cancellés, seront exhibés au Maire, celui-ci, s'il est satisfait que tous les bons de la compagnie, garantis par la taxe du chemin de fer, ont été cancellés et qu'un dépôt a été fait de la manière prévue par cet acte, pour le rachat de ceux qui n'ont pas encore été cancellés, délivrera les bons de la ville à ladite compagnie qui y aura droit, pour le montant de la souscription de la ville.

Sec. 7. Il est de plus décrété, &c. ; Que le Conseil de Ville devra, dans le mois de mai de chaque année, élire collectivement trois citoyens de la ville de la Nelle-Orléans comme directeurs de la Compagnie du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, de Jackson et du Nord, et trois autres citoyens de ladite ville comme directeurs de la Compagnie du Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, des Opelousas et de l'Ouest, lesquels resteront en place pendant un an, ou jusqu'à ce que leurs successeurs soient élus ; Bien entendu qu'aucun membre de l'un ou l'autre Conseil de ladite ville ou officier de la corporation ne sera éligible comme directeur ; et bien entendu de plus, qu'en convertissant en actions un tiers des bons émis par la ville en faveur desdites compagnies, le Conseil de Ville ne pourra élire que deux directeurs dans chacune desdites compagnies. Lorsque les deux tiers desdits bons auront été convertis, le Conseil n'élira qu'un directeur ; et lorsque tous les bons auront été convertis, le Conseil ne pourra plus élire de directeurs.

Sec. 8. Il est de plus décrété, &c. ; Que cet acte sera en force à dater de sa passation.

Mr Evans—Je n'ai pas eu de copie du bill, et par conséquent je ne puis pas dire que je le comprends en son entier. Si j'entends bien sa disposition, je voterai contre. Quand le bill passera, la ville émettra des bons, et le peuple subira des taxes pour en payer l'intérêt plus tôt que sous la dernière loi. Il est déjà taxé très lourdement pour raison de chemins de fer, et il n'y a pas de nécessité d'élever sans cesse des taxes.

Mr Macmurdo—L'honorable membre me semble être dans l'erreur quant aux effets de ce bill. Il n'impose pas, comme ce Sénateur le suppose, une taxe additionnelle, et il n'augmente pas non plus le chiffre des souscriptions de l'Etat. L'objet du bill est simplement de substituer des bons ayant un long espace de temps à courir, à la taxe indirecte qui est maintenant imposée.

Mr Evans—Mais ce bill élève plus promptement le chiffre à payer. Par exemple, aussitôt que ces bons sont émis par la ville en faveur de la compagnie, l'Etat devient souscripteur pour un cinquième de la somme. Ainsi, je ne me trompe pas en disant que cela arrive plus tôt que cela n'arriverait en conservant la loi existante, en vertu de laquelle une certaine somme est imposée chaque année au moyen de taxes.

Mr Macmurdo—Cela est vrai jusqu'à un certain point. Mais l'honorable membre doit se rappeler que tout ceci n'augmente pas le chiffre à tirer des coffres du trésor de l'Etat. L'Etat émet des bons ayant quarante ans à courir. C'est là la méthode qui a été adoptée.

Le Secrétaire donne lecture du bill.

3me Section.—Mr Defreese—Je ne comprends pas cette section. Je n'aimerais pas à voter contre le bill ou contre une section quelconque de ce bill ; il me semble que cette section sera la cause de quelque perte pour l'Etat. J'aimerais à voir l'honorable membre l'expliquer clairement.

Mr Macmurdo—Je ne vois pas comment l'effet auquel Mr Defreese fait allusion, pourrait être produit.

Mr Defreese—L'Etat ne souffrira-t-il pas de la dépréciation de ses valeurs après l'émission de ces bons ?

Mr Macmurdo—Il y a lieu de penser que la sécurité sera de nature à le rendre équivalent à un stock de six pour cent. Je ne vois rien qui puisse motiver l'appréhension de l'honorable Sénateur.

4me Section

Mr Defreese—Sous l'empire de cette loi, qui défrayera les dépenses de ces nombreux votes ?

M Wickliffe—Je propose d'effacer le mot "deux" et de le remplacer par le mot " trois " Cela sera assez souvent pour ces élections. Je suis opposé à ce qu'on lasse la patience du peuple en l'appelant si souvent à voter. Le bill peut être impopulaire, il peut être rejeté par le peuple de la Nouvelle-Orléans, et nous irions le faire voter de nouveau, voter sans cesse !

Mr Macmurdo—Il ne peut pas y avoir de doute sur l'action favorable du peuple de la Nouvelle-Orléans, sur cette proposition. L'intervalle qui séparera les élections est fixé à deux mois, à raison de la nécessité d'une prompte action de la part des compagnies de chemins de fer, si, par hasard, un Conseil venait à y faire opposition et à refuser de soumettre la question au peuple, un autre Conseil pourrait peut-être être disposé à le faire.

Mr Evans—Le bill donne au peuple de la Nelle-Orléans le pouvoir de régler l'action de l'Etat, en plaçant dans ses mains le pouvoir de décider quand les bons seront émis par l'Etat.

Mr Macmurdo—L'honorable Sénateur se trompe sur ce point ; l'Etat est déjà souscripteur.

Mr Evans—Mais si cette proposition est adoptée par le peuple de la Nelle-Orléans, l'Etat sera forcé d'émettre ses bons plus tôt qu'il ne le ferait, s'il en était autrement.

Mr Macmurdo—Cela ne fait aucune différence. Que les bons soient issus maintenant ou l'année prochaine, l'échéance arrive et ils n'en seront pas moins payés à la même époque.

Mr Kenner—Je voudrais faire remarquer au Sénateur de West Féliciana (Mr Wickliffe) que le Conseil Commun de la Nelle-Orléans représente le peuple de cette ville, dont il est l'élu. Sans aucun doute, ils ne voudront pas fatiguer leurs constituants sans nécessité. Les craintes de l'honorable Sénateur sont plus imaginaires que réelles.

Mr Palfrey—Avant d'aller plus loin dans la lecture du bill, je désirerais être renseigné sur un point que, pour le moment, je n'entends pas parfaitement. Comment les propriétaires pourront-ils disposer des droits ou actions qu'ils acquerront par le paiement même des taxes, en vertu de la présente loi.

L'acte de 1852 dit :

Section 4. Il est de plus décrété, &c. ; Que si une souscription est faite en vertu du présent acte, le capital ainsi souscrit n'appartiendra pas à la paroisse et ne sera pas administré par elle ni par la corporation municipale par l'intermédiaire de laquelle les souscriptions auront été faites ; ce capital appartiendra aux personnes qui auront acquitté les taxes ; et le récépissé donnera à chaque payeur de taxes, droit à un certificat qui sera transférable par délivrance de la corporation qui aura fait la souscription, pour une somme égale au montant des taxes payées. Toutefois ledit Juri de Police ou ladite corporation municipale aura le pouvoir de requérir des Shérifs ou Collecteurs de Taxes telle sécurité qu'ils jugeront nécessaire.

Digitized by Google

Les payeurs de taxes qui ont déjà payé, ont droit à un nombre d'actions proportionné aux sommes qu'ils ont versées Par le bill, le droit à ces actions doit être limité à la ville seulement. J'aimerais à être renseigné sur ce point, et il ne faudra que peu de mots pour me satisfaire.

Mr Macmurdo—Les personnes dont parle Mr Palfrey continueront à garder le titre qui leur aura été donné. La ville prendra le reste comme il est réglé par le bill. La 6me section décide la manière dont les actions déjà acquises peuvent être rachetées. Cette section est ainsi conçue :

Sec. 6. Il est de plus décrété, &c ; Que tous les bons qui peuvent avoir été émis par l'une ou l'autre desdites compagnies de chemins de fer et garantis par la taxe des chemins de fer, pour les années 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857 ou 1858, imposés en vertu de l'ordonnance du Conseil, mentionnée dans la seconde section de cet acte, et approuvée les 13 et 17 mai 1852, seront cancellés par la compagnie qui les aura émis, avant que ladite compagnie ne puisse recevoir de la ville aucun des bons qui doivent, en vertu de cet acte, lui être délivrés pour la souscription au fonds capital de ladite compagnie ; et si la compagnie le préfère, elle pourra déposer dans la Banque de l'Etat de la Louisiane, le montant en argent nécessaire pour payer lesdits bons ainsi garantis par la taxe de chemins de fer, et les intérêts sur lesdits bons jusqu'a leur échéance ; et lorsque les bons garantis par la taxe de chemins de fer, cancellés par la compagnie, et un certificat du caissier de ladite banque faisant voir le montant de l'argent spécialement déposé pour le rachat des bons avec les intérêts sur iceux jusqu'à leur échéance, garantis par la taxe des chemins de fer, et non encore cancellés, seront exhibés au Maire, celui-ci, s'il est satisfait que tous les bons de la compagnie, garantis par la taxe du chemin de fer, ont été cancellés et qu'un dépôt a été fait de la manière prévue par cet acte, pour le rachat de ceux qui n'ont pas encore été cancellés, délivrera les bons de la ville à ladite compagnie qui y aura droit, pour le montant de la souscription de la ville.

Mr Moore—Si j'entends bien le sens de cette section, il s'en suivrait que la ville aurait le droit de reprendre à tous individus les actions qui leur sont déja acquises.

Mr Macmurdo—Pas du tout. Ils continuent à conserver leurs actions, s'ils le préfèrent.

Mr Wickliffe — Je demanderai qu'on insère une disposition ordonnant que les livres des compagnies soient ouverts en tout temps à l'inspection du Conseil Commun de la ville de la Nelle-Orléans.

Mr Moore—Par les chartes des compagnies, tout propriétaire d'actions a ce droit dès à present.

Mr Macmurdo—Je dois dire que je n'aime pas à me trouver en opposition avec le membre de West Féliciana (Mr Wickliffe) ; mais je me sens obligé de prendre l'avis du Sénat pour lui demander si la motion ne doit pas être déposée sur la table Par les chartes des compagnies, comme l'a Sénateur de St. Martin (Mr Moore) l'a fait justement observer, chaque possesseur d'actions à ce droit dès à présent.

Mr Wickliffe—J'ai lu dans les journaux de la ville qu'il y a longtemps déja, le Conseil de la Nouvelle-Orléans a nommé un comité pour remplir un devoir de cette nature, mais que la compagnie a refusé de donner au comité la permission d'examiner les livres, disant que la ville n'était pas propriétaire d'actions et n'avait pas d'intérêt dans l'affaire. Par ce bill, la ville devient propriétaire d'actions, mais la compagnie peut encore chercher ici une autre fin de non recevoir, en alleguant que ce n'est là que la substitution d'une forme à une autre, et que, par conséquent, la ville, considé ée dans son ensemble, n'a pas d'intérêt La compagnie peut ainsi tourner autour de la question et se refuser à nos désirs.

Mr Macmurdo—Chacun sait, pour peu qu'il ait suivi les faits à cette epoque, pourquoi cette demande a été refusée par la compagnie. La ville n'était pas dutout souscripteur, et par conséquent n'avait pas le droit de faire une semblable demande. La compagnie a admis, dans les termes les plus larges, le droit de tout propriétaire d'actions a examiner les livres. Pas un citoyen ayant payé la taxe, et par conséquent devenu propriétaire d'actions, n'a été refusé s'il s'était présenté.

Mr Moore—Comme je l'ai dit déjà, tout propriétaire d'actions, dans la compagnie, a le droit d'examiner les livres. Par l'effet de ce bill, la ville elle-même devient propriétaire d'actions ; et certainement elle aurait le droit de faire, par l'intermédiaire du Conseil, procéder à un examen de ce genre.

Mr Wickliffe—Qui représente les individus détenteurs d'actions ? On a dit que le Conseil les représente. S'ils ont le droit, individuellement, d'examiner les livres, pourquoi n'auraient-ils pas le pouvoir de déléguer ce droit au Conseil qui les représente, et quelle raison valable peut-on donner du refus de la compagnie ? Je crois que si le peuple s'était réuni et avait nommé une délégation pour faire cet examen, la compagnie aurait de même refusé. Je veux que le peuple, en toute occasion, ait le droit de contrôle, de manière qu'il puisse s'assurer si les choses se passent bien. Si le peuple souscrit une somme considérable, il doit au moins avoir le privilege de s'assurer si son argent est bien dépensé.

Mr King—Il me semble que l'amendement du Sénateur de West Féliciana (Mr Wickliffe) n'aura d'autre effet que celui produit par la loi déjà existante. L'honorable membre a certainement raison en principe. Ce qu'il demande est d'accord avec la justice. Il est équitable que tous les propriétaires d'actions aient le droit d'examiner les livres de la compagnie. Mais est-il nécessaire d'encombrer le bill d'amendements qui ne font que reproduire la loi déjà existante ? L'honorable membre ne voit pas que si un amendement est adopté, le bill peut en éprouver du retard et même être en péril On doit se rappeler que si le bill est amendé, il faudra qu'il retourne à l'autre Chambre, et comme la session est avancée, ce délai pourrait mettre la passation du bill en danger. La compagnie est obligée de montrer en tout temps ses livres à ceux qui prouvent leur qualité de détenteurs d'actions. Si elle refuse, il est aisé de la forcer à s'exécuter.

Le bill est adopté sans l'amendement.

Colonisation.

L'ordre du jour appelle la discussion sur le bill dont la teneur suit :

ACTE

Pour aider à la colonisation en Afrique, des personnes de couleur de cet Etat.

Section 1. Il décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale ; Que Son Excellence le Gouverneur de cet Etat, le Secrétaire d'Etat et l'Auditeur des Comptes Publics et leurs successeurs, sont et demeurent constitués sous le nom de "Bureau de Colonisation," deux desquels formeront un quorum.

Que ledit Bureau est par le présent autorisé à recevoir des donations et des legs, et le montant de toutes les taxes qui pourront être imposées dans cet Etat pour cette colonisation, et à affecter les fonds ainsi reçus au transport sur la côte d'Afrique, des nègres libres qui doivent, en vertu de la loi, être transportés, et des autres qui voudront être transportés.

Que ledit Bureau pourra poursuivre et être poursuivi devant toute Cour de cet Etat. Il devra faire un rapport de toutes ses délibérations à chaque réunion de l'Assemblée Générale, faisant savoir le montant des sommes reçues et dépensées, ainsi que les noms, la résidence, l'âge, le sexe de chacune des personnes de couleur qui auront été transportées en Afrique, en vertu de cet acte.

Sec 2. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Qu'une taxe annuelle d'une piastres est et demeure par le présent imposée à chaque personne de couleur âgée de vingt-un ans et plus, qui se trouve dans cet Etat; cette taxe sera assise, perçue et versée dans le trésor par les mêmes officiers, et de la même manière que le sont les autres taxes d'Etat; et il sera du devoir des Collecteurs de Taxes de percevoir ladite taxe, et ils recevront pour ce service une commission de cinq pour cent sur le montant total perçu. Il sera tenu un compte dans les livres du Trésorier et de l'Auditeur des Comptes Publics, de toutes les sommes d'argent imposées et reçues en vertu de cet acte; lesquelles formeront pour toujours un fonds distinct.

Et tout nègre libre qui refusera de payer ladite taxe sera poursuivi, par le Collecteur, de la même manière que le sont les autres contribuables délinquants; et si le délinquant n'a pas de propriété, il sera légal, après que le jugement aura été rendu, de lancer un ordre pour arrêter et emprisonner ledit délinquant; et il sera mis à l'enchère au rabais, pour être loué, au dehors, à celui qui aura payé ladite taxe et les frais, et qui aura offert de louer les services dudit nègre pour le temps le plus court.

Sec. 3. Il est de plus decrété, &c.; Que toutes les fois que ledit Bureau, sur la production du reçu de l'armateur ou autrement, sera convaincu qu'un nègre libre a été transporté de cet Etat en Afrique, ou a été embarqué pour cette destination, par la Société de Colonisation, ledit Bureau devra émettre un mandat de cent piastres sur le Tresorier, payable à l'agent reconnu de la Société de Colonisation, pour chaque nègre libre ainsi transporté et pour pourvoir à la subsistance dudit nègre libre durant un temps limité en Afrique; lequel mandat sera payé sur demande par le Trésorier; bien entendu que le montant total payé ne devra jamais excéder le montant alloué par cet acte

Sec. 4. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que la somme de dix mille piastres du fonds créé par cet acte, est et demeure affectée à l'exécution du projet ci-dessus mentionné

Sec. 5. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que cet acte sera en force à dater de sa passation.

Mr Martel—Je demande que le bill entier soit déposé sur la table.

Je voudrais constater que je m'oppose à ce bill par le motif que je le considère comme inconstitutionnel. Je demanderai l'inscription au journal des oui et des non, dans le but de mettre en évidence le sentiment du Sénat au sujet de cette question de constitutionnalité. Je m'appuie sur l'article 30 de notre loi fondamentale, lequel article dit:

"Tous bills pour imposer des taxes seront votés d'abord par la Chambre; mais le Sénat pourra y proposer des amendements comme aux autres bills, pourvu toutefois qu'il n'introduise rien de nouveau sous forme d'amendement."

Mr King—Je demande qu'on efface toute cette partie de la seconde section qui existe après les mots "payeurs de taxes," à la 7me ligne. Je fais cette motion afin de sauver le bill, car je crois qu'il pourrait ne pas être adopté par l'autre Chambre dans la présente forme.

Mr Kenner—Nous ne devons pas agir sous l'influence de pareilles considérations. Votons pour ce que nous croyons raisonnable, sans nous préoccuper de ce que pourra faire ou ne pas faire la Chambre. Courons la chance de trouver cette seconde assemblée dans les mêmes dispositions que nous. Je crois que c'est là le meilleur plan de conduite.—Agissons selon nos propres convictions du juste et de l'injuste, de ce qui est convenable et de ce qui ne l'est pas.

Mr Ryan—Je voudrais informer l'honorable membre que, pour ma part, je ne me laisse influencer par aucun motif de ce genre, et que je suis personnellement en faveur de cette suppression. Un exemple expliquera mes motifs pour agir ainsi. Supposons le cas d'un nègre libre, trop vieux peut-être ou trop infirme pour travailler pour gagner sa vie, et par conséquent obligé de vivre de charité. Le vendra-t-on ou le louera-t-on, au cas où il ne pourrait pas payer la taxe? Je crois qu'il faudrait dans ce cas faire une exception.

Mr Moore—Je donnerai mes raisons pour désirer de conserver cette partie du bill dont on demande la suppression. On sait parfaitement bien qu'il y a deux classes de nègres libres parmi nous: les résidents et les immigrants. Les derniers sont ceux que nous devons atteindre; ceux qui viennent ici seulement dans l'hiver, et n'y restent que quelques mois, durant lesquels ils répandent les plus fatales et les plus pernicieuses doctrines, non-seulement chez les nègres de leur classe, mais encore parmi nos propres esclaves. Ce sont eux que la loi doit atteindre, et que nous ne pouvons atteindre d'aucune autre façon que celle indiquée par le bill.

Mr Rivers—Il est très vrai, comme l'a dit l'honorable membre, que la classe immigrante est celle que nous devons atteindre, car les doctrines qu'ils répandent autour de nous sont on ne peut plus dangereuses et ne sont pas même inférieures en atrocité à celles que renferme l'infâme livre de Mme Stowe. Il faut absolument mettre la main sur ces gens indignes, et les vendre ou les louer, s'ils ne paient pas la taxe.

L'amendement est rejeté et le bill est adopté à la 3me lecture.

Education Littéraire.

La discussion porte sur le bill dont la teneur suit:

Acte pour l'avancement de l'éducation littéraire.

Section 1 Résolu par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale; Que si les citoyens d'une paroisse quelconque de l'Etat parviennent à réunir par voie de souscription ou autrement, la somme de $8,000 ou plus, en argent comptant, dans le but de construire et de doter un collège soit pour garçons soit pour filles, et s'ils produisent à l'Auditeur des Comptes Publics le certificat du Juri de Police, constatant le fait, alors l'Auditeur émettra son warrant en faveur d'un tel établissement, jusqu'à concurrence d'un tiers de la somme ainsi recueillie par souscription, lequel tiers sera ajouté à la somme principale et destiné au même but. Toutefois, l'Etat ne contribuera à ces frais d'établissement que pour un seul collège par chaque paroisse.

Sec. 2. Résolu de plus, &c.; Que, dans le cas où plusieurs emplacements seraient proposés pour l'établissement d'un collège de ce genre, et où les citoyens de la paroisse ne pourraient pas s'entendre, le Juri de Police donnera son certificat, et l'Auditeur des Comptes Publics donnera son warrant en faveur de celui des deux emplacements proposés, pour lequel aura été donné le plus d'argent.

Digitized by Google

Si chaque paroisse de l'Etat veut profiter de ce bill, cela prendra au moins cent mille piastres du Fonds des Ecoles Publiques.

Mr Defreese—Je ne pense pas que cette somme doive être prise sur le Fonds des Ecoles.

Mr Marmurdo—Cela serait plus fâcheux encore, car alors elle serait prise sur le Fonds Général.

Mr Evans—Je pense que l'Etat ne pourrait employer son argent à un meilleur usage. C'est une somme en vérité très minime, si on la compare aux immenses bienfaits qu'il est raisonnable d'en attendre. Les Chambres votent l'argent par centaines de mille piastres pour canaux, chemins de fer et entreprises de ce genre, et elles hésiteraient à voter une somme aussi insignifiante pour un but aussi désirable et aussi important pour l'avenir du pays. Je crois, pour ma part, que la cause de l'éducation publique a au moins autant d'importance que celle des railroads et des travaux publics. Je crois que le peuple de la Louisiane a autant besoin d'éducation que de constructions.

M. Defreese.—Je suis tout autant que le sénateur de Claiborne, en faveur de l'éducation publique, et je ne verrais pas avec moins de plaisir que lui-même se multiplier les établissemens tendant à répandre la haute instruction dans notre pays. Mais je crois que nous devrions commencer par augmenter le nombre de nos écoles communales. Ce dernier système doit d'abord ne laisser rien à désirer avant que nous songions à des établissements pour des études plus élevées. Très peu de paroisses, j'en suis convaincu à l'avance, voudront profiter des avantages offerts par ce bill. Ensuite, il y aura cet inconvénient que les paroisses pauvres seront taxées aussi lourdement que celles qui pourront profiter du bill. Je préférerai qu'on fit une loi qui profitât à toutes les paroisses. C'est la raison pour laquelle je viens de proposer l'amendement. Si les deniers publics sont dépensés pour l'éducation du peuple, il est, à mon avis, préférable que des écoles soient établies avec une modique allocation de mille piastres. Cela vaudra toujours mieux que de n'en pas avoir du tout.

Le sénateur de Claiborne pense que le présent bill mérite autant la faveur populaire que les entreprises de canaux, chemins de fer, &c. &c. Je pense, moi, qu'il se trompe grandement. L'éducation du peuple est sans doute d'une haute importance, mais seulement dans les degrés élémentaires. Passé la limite du besoin pour l'intelligence des affaires ordinaires de la vie, il n'en est plus ainsi. Je soutiens que les chemins de fer vaudront plus de bien à l'Etat que toute la science du grec et du latin. Il ne faut pas oublier que les canaux et les chemins de fer portent la richesse dans le pays en élevant la valeur des propriétés à une distance de 30 milles de chaque côté de la ligne où ils passent.

Le mérite du bill proposé est loin, comme on le voit, d'atteindre à de semblables proportions.

Loin de moi la pensée de déprécier l'éducation J'en sens autant que qui que ce soit ici, le besoin et l'importance. J'aimerais à voir un collége dans chaque paroisse, si toutes pouvaient en fonder et en entretenir un Mais, qu'on remarque bien une chose, il y a fort peu de paroisses qui puissent recueillir une somme de $8000, dans ce but. D'abord, il en est qui sont tellement pauvres ou déjà tellement surchargées de taxes de toutes sortes et sous toutes les formes, qu'elles ne pourraient plus guère se saigner encore plus en souffrir. D'autres plus riches, sont livrées à des troubles intérieurs, à des querelles de prééminence pour telle ou telle ville. Ces rivalités entraînent d'inévitables désordres et empêchent le bien qu'on pourrait attendre d'efforts communs et dirigés vers un même but. Mais, en supposant même qu'elles parviennent à réunir les $8000, nécessaires pour obtenir l'assistance de l'Etat, qui profiterait de ces hautes écoles d'éducation ? Est ce tout le monde ? Non, ce seraient seulement les classes assez riches pour pouvoir y envoyer leurs enfans. Et, je vous le demande, est ce juste ? Devons-nous détourner les deniers des fonds des écoles publiques pour l'appliquer à des institutions particulières. Vous comprenez tous que non. Le fonds commun appartient à tous. Il ne doit donc être employé que dans l'intérêt de tous. Eh bien ! vous faites précisément le contraire sans en avoir sans doute aperçu les conséquences, vous prenez des fonds des pauvres pour augmenter le bien-être des riches. Ainsi peut se résumer la loi que vous voulez faire L'Etat, c'est tout le monde. Quand l'Etat encourage un établissement quelconque, ce ne peut être qu'un établissement d'intérêt général et dont tout le peuple profite. Autrement ce ne serait plus que la création d'un privilège, et cela ne saurait s'harmoniser avec nos principes républicains. L'éducation élevée est sans doute digne d'attention, mais moins cependant que l'éducation élémentaire, car celle-ci est pour tous, tandis que la première n'est que pour quelques uns. Il y aura toujours assez de familles riches pour que la haute éducation se perpétue parmi nous, et que nous ayons assez d'enfants instruits pour emplir plus tard les cadres des professions appelées libérales

Je suis désolé de faire opposition à une mesure émanant de mon honoré ami, mais les raisons que je viens d'exposer me font un devoir de cette opposition. Pour me résumer, je dirai donc: Il ne suffit pas qu'une mesure soit utile, pour que nous la votions. Il faut encore que son utilité soit plus grande que celle des autres mesures qui réclament aussi notre sollicitude.

Comme nos moyens d'exécution ne nous permettent pas d'exécuter tout ce qui est utile, nous sommes donc obligés à un choix, et les plus indispensables doivent passer les premiers. En second lieu, l'argent public ne doit être employé qu'à des œuvres d'intérêt général. Tout emploi des deniers de l'Etat au profit d'institutions particulières n'est que la constitution d'un privilège.

Par ces motifs, je voterai contre le bill.

M. Evans.—L'argumentation de l'honorable membre tend à rejeter à un plan secondaire la grande question de l'éducation publique De ses raisons de détail qu'il nous a données, je remarque celles-ci: L'honorable membre prétend qu'il y aura beaucoup de paroisses ou trop pauvres pour pouvoir réunir les fonds, ou trop troublées par les rivalités intestines pour s'entendre sur le choix d'un emplacement. Je réponds en deux mots à ces deux objections. Les paroisses trop pauvres auront la ressource d'envoyer leurs enfants au collége de la paroisse voisine, si celle ci est plus riche et a pu en fonder un. Quand aux querelles d'emplacement, le bill a prévu le cas, et a donné à l'Auditeur des Comptes Publics, le pouvoir de trancher la question d'après une base certaine.

M. McCay.—Le raisonnement de l'honorable M. Defreese, quoique juste en principe, n'est cependant pas rigoureusement vrai en pratique. S'il est vrai que les fonds publics ne doivent être employés qu'à des œuvres d'utilité générale, il n'est pas toujours vrai que ce principe ne soit susceptible d'aucune exception. Il n'a jamais existé de peuples qui n'aient eu des institutions destinées à faire fleurir les lettres et les arts Paris possède un Conservatoire de Musique, une Ecole des Beaux Arts, où se forment les grands musiciens et les grands peintres ; des Universités d'où sortent les savants qui répandent ensuite l'instruction autour d'eux. Il en est de même en Angleterre, en Allemagne, et dans le monde entier. Je ne crois pas qu'on puisse nous citer une époque de l'histoire où ces institutions toutes spéciales n'aient pas existé chez les nations florissantes. Il n'est pas nécessaire que le peuple entier devienne savant dans le sens le plus étendu du mot; l'institution peut ne servir en apparence qu'à quelques uns et cependant être d'une utilité générale au fond. Ainsi, de même qu'un professeur suffit à l'enseignement de cent enfans, de même ainsi il suffit que dans un état un certain nombre de citoyens possèdent une haute éducation. C'est par eux que se font nos livres, nos journaux, nos lois, ce sont eux qui éclairent la masse, épurent le goût et entretiennent parmi nous le sens du beau et du juste. Le reflet de la science d'un seul suffit quelquefois, pour éclairer tout un peuple. Créons des écoles élémentaires en aussi grand nombre que nous pourrons ; mais ne négligeons pas ces grandes institutions qui ont existé en tout temps et dans tous les pays et ont été la cause de leur gloire et de leur prospérité.

M. Palfrey propose un amendement qui, dit l'honorable membre, doit rendre la section un peu plus claire sans en altérer en rien le sens.

L'amendement est adopté.

M. Defreese —Je demanderai qu'au lieu de $8000, on mette le chiffre $3,000. Je ne voudrais pas faire une opposition déraisonnable à ce bill, mais je voudrais qu'au moins toutes les paroisses puissent tirer avantage du bill.

M. Moore.—Je voterai contre le bill. Voici pourquoi: Nos taxes sont aujourd'hui tellement élevées que nous payons à l'heure qu'il est trois fois autant qu'en 1845, et nos propriétés sont bien loin d'avoir augmenté de valeur dans la même proportion. Ce n'est pourtant pas que je sois opposé à l'encouragement de l'instruction publique. Tout au contraire. Mais je remarque que nos écoles sont fort mal dirigées, pour la plupart. Il est des paroisses qui n'en ont pas du tout, et dans d'autres les deniers publics sont distribués à des institutions qui n'instruisent nullement les enfants. Il y a gaspillage partout, et il n'y a surveillance nulle part. Tantôt ce sont de bons instituteurs qui, après avoir laborieusement accompli leur tâche, ne peuvent parvenir à se faire régler leurs comptes; et tantôt ce sont des instituteurs négligents, paresseux ou ignorants, qui reçoivent des avances et disparaissent ensuite. Toute votre attention, Messieurs, doit se porter sur les écoles primaires. C'est là vraiment ce qu'il y a d'urgent et d'important. Les destinées du pays, son bonheur, sa liberté en dépendent. Chaque citoyen étant appelé par son vote a décider du sort du pays, il importe que tous soient suffisamment éclairés pour ne pas compromettre son avenir. L'ignorance pourrait avoir des résultats funestes dans les élections. Quant aux institutions dont on a parlé, eh bien nous n'en sommes pas totalement privés. Il ne manque pas d'établissements de haute éducation dans l'Etat. Certaines villes même en regorgent, et en vérité, il serait presque ridicule, de vouloir fonder un collége dans chacune de nos paroisses. Elles ne sont pas assez populeuses pour que cela soit nécessaire. Il y a des collèges privés dans tous les principaux points de la Louisiane. C'est là que les familles riches doivent envoyer leurs enfants. Il n'est pas besoin pour cela de rien distraire du trésor public qui est, comme on l'a dit, le fonds des pauvres. C'est à leur profit que les deniers de l'Etat doivent être dépensés. Messieurs, je suis un de ceux qui ont souffert de l'absence d'écoles primaires. Je suis arrivé dans cet Etat à l'âge de 13 ans, et faute d'écoles, j'ai été privé de toute éducation depuis cette époque. J'ai dû m'instruire moi-même. Je ne verrai donc qu'avec peine employer à des institutions privilegiées e. d'une utilité contestable, les deniers du pauvre.

Je voterai contre le bill.

M. Rivers —Pour moi, je n'ai pas d'objection à faire à ce bill, pourvu qu'il ne puisse suivre en rien aux écoles primaires. Je proposerai un amendement pour faire suite à l'autre amendement déjà proposé. Par cet amendement, l'Etat ne pourrait pas être obligé de contribuer au-delà du tiers de $8000 Je demande en outre que le sujet entier soit renvoyé au Comité de l'Education Publique.

M. Martel.—Je demande que l'amendement du sénateur de St. Martin, soit déposé sur la table.

M. Rivers.—Je demande de nouveau le renvoi au comité.

Le nouveau renvoi du bill avec ces amendemens est prononcé.

Motions en arrêt de jugement.

On met en discussion le bill pour prévenir les motions en arrêt de jugement, après le prononcé d'un verdict.

M. Wickliffe.—Je suis opposé à ce bill. Je suis opposé à ce qu'on prive le criminel de la loi commune.

M King.—Ceci, messieurs, n'est pas un sujet de vulgaire importance, mais bien un de ceux qui réclament notre plus sérieuse attention. Nous savons tous que l'un des expédients auquels recourt le plus communément le criminel, pour échapper au châtiment qui est prononcé contre lui, c'est un arrêt de jugement après sa condamnation, basé sur quelque erreur ou omission qui se serait glissée dans l'indictment. Dès que le verdict est rendu, l'avocat jette un coup-d'œil sur l indictment, trouve quelque lacune ; et dit: "mon client ne peut pas être condamné en vertu de cet indictment." Il fait alors une motion en arrêt de jugement; et il en résulte que le criminel échappe à la justice, qui demeure ainsi impuissante. Dans plusieurs des Etats de l'Union, il n'en est pas ainsi. L'accusé est forcé de faire ses objections à l'indictment avant le procès. L'hon. M. Wickliffe dit qu'il ne veut pas qu'on enlève au criminel aucune de ses prérogatives Je demande, moi, tout au contraire, que nous fassions tout ce qu'il faut pour prévenir le crime, et pour le punir. Je veux que le criminel reçoive le juste châtiment de sa violation de la loi. En Angleterre même, le pays où est né la loi commune, cet absurde système a été aboli. Je voudrais constater ici ce qui, sans aucun doute, est à la connaissance de tous, c'est-à-dire que notre Constitution s'oppose à ce qu'une même personne soit traduite deux fois en jugement pour la même affaire, non bis in idem, de façon que si après un verdict rendu, le criminel parvient à s'échapper, il n'y a plus aucun moyen de le traduire en justice. Une fois déchargé sur une motion en arrêt de jugement, il est libre et aucune poursuite ne peut être menée contre lui. Cette absurde anomalie doit disparaître de notre jurisprudence, comme elle a déjà disparu de la jurisprudence de l'Angleterre. Nos lois ne doivent pas être conçues de façon à protéger le criminel, mais au contraire de manière à prévenir le crime ou à le châtier. Si la doctrine opposée est vraie, nous ferons mieux d'abolir de suite notre loi criminelle, et de permettre de commettre le crime avec impunité. J'ai souvent entendu des personnes exprimer leurs sympathies pour les criminels. Pour moi, messieurs, je porte mes sympathies ailleurs. C'est un sentiment faux, anormal, dangereux, etc., que la raison réprouve, aussi bien que la justice. Si vos sympathies sont pour le criminel, qu'éprouverez-vous donc pour la victime? Tout crime ne sert qu'à encourager le crime. Je ne vois jamais qu'avec regret un criminel échapper à la justice; et je ne comprends les prétendus dangers qu'on nous signale et dont on nous menace si nous abolissons ces prérogatives du criminel, dans lesquelles je ne vois, moi, que de frivoles prétextes qui seront aux ennemis de la société comme un rempart contre les atteintes de la justice. J'oserai dire que dans notre pays, où tant de criminels échappent au glaive de la loi, il n'est peut-être pas un cas sur mille où un accusé soit condamné injustement.

Digitized by Google

Et voudrait-on persister à soutenir que parce que dans l'indictment un t ou un i aura été oublié, il faudra annuler le procès et renvoyer le criminel? En vérité, il faut en finir avec ces absurdes fictions. Lorsque l'identité est constatée par les faits, cessons de soumettre notre conduite à l'influence de pareilles futilités.

M. Wickliffe.—L'honorable membre semble croire que je désire voir le crime impuni. Il est dans une grande erreur. Il a mal compris ma pensée. Je désire autant que lui-même voir le criminel recevoir son châtiment; mais en même temps je ne veux pas qu'un homme soit mis hors la loi commune. Cette loi est une loi d'humanité et de justice. En même temps que nous devons être très sévère sur le fond, nous devons être très attentif sur la forme. Qu'on n'oublie pas ce principe sacré en matière criminelle. "Qu'une erreur doit profiter à l'accusé." C'est qu'en effet le prévenu n'est un criminel qu'après la condamnation; jusque là, il a droit à toute la protection de la loi, et s'il y a une erreur il vaut mieux cent fois qu'elle tourne contre l'Etat que contre l'accusé. C'est à l'avocat de district à ne pas se tromper. S'il est ignorant ou négligent, qui doit en souffrir? L'Etat, non le prévenu. Telle est la loi. Elle est claire, positive, intelligible. Que l'avocat de district, que l'officier de l'Etat accomplisse son devoir, conformément à la loi, et alors le criminel ne pourra pas échapper sous un pareil prétexte.

M. King.—Ou je ne comprends pas bien l'honorable Mr. Wickliffe, ou bien il n'attaque pas le bill avec toute la franchise, et qu'il me permette de le dire, toute la bonne foi que nous devons apporter dans la discussion des lois. De deux choses l'une, ou le crime doit être puni ou il doit être commis avec impunité. S'il doit être puni, prenez des mesures pour que le criminel ne vienne pas après la condamnation, insulter à la loi, et se moquer d'elle. Bien loin de vouloir enlever à l'accusé une seule des garanties que la loi commune de l'humanité lui accorde, je ne veux pas le moins du monde qu'on touche à une seule de ces prérogatives. Seulement, je veux introduire de la logique dans le procès des criminels. Je ne veux pas qu'on en fasse une moquerie. Je veux que tout le monde soit forcé de les prendre au sérieux. En conséquence, je désire qu'on mette de l'ordre dans ce désordre. Je ne veux pas que douze jurés soient dérangés de leurs travaux ordinaires pour qu'après un procès qui aura duré quelquefois plusieurs jours, un misérable criminel vienne dire en riant, à ses juges: "An! on a oublié un i dans l'indictment, je ne puis pas être condamné." Je veux ou qu'on cesse de rendre la justice, ou qu'on ne la rende pas en vain. Je ne demande donc qu'à intervertir l'ordre qui, bien à tort, est actuellement observée. Ainsi, au lieu de permettre au condamné de faire ses observations sur l'indictment, après le jugement, je demande qu'on l'oblige à les faire avant le procès. Ai-je tort? N'est-ce pas manquer de franchise, ou se mal rendre compte des choses que de prétendre le contraire? Est-il nécessaire que treize personnes soient ainsi dérangées de leurs travaux sans avoir s'ils font une chose utile et valable? Est-ce lorsqu'on est en mer qu'on s'assure si le navire est solide? Messieurs, je ne demande ici que l'application d'une loi que chaque homme observe dans la conduite de ses propres affaires. Il y aurait folie à s'en écarter. Et je m'arrête ici, car j'ai honte en quelque sorte de plaider aussi longtemps une cause si évidente, de prouver une vérité si banale. De deux choses l'une, je le répète, ou punissons le crime, ou abrogeons la loi pénale.

M. McCay.—Je crois qu'il serait à propos de ne pas nous presser de voter le bill, et d'en remettre la discussion à un autre temps. Il s'agit ici de l'une de ces questions de haute importance qui, comme on l'a fait observer, réclament notre plus sérieuse attention. Pour ma part, je ne vois jamais sans inquiétude, apporter des changements à la loi commune. Et dans le cas qui nous occupe, je crois que mon collègue n'a pas donné le sens précis de la loi. Il semble imaginer que l'omission d'un i ou d'un t suffit pour vicier un indictment. C'est une erreur. La procédure est la même dans les affaires civiles. Dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, les trois quarts des criminels sont jugés sans avoir même un conseil, et ce n'est que par l'intervention de quelque ami qu'un petit nombre de témoins à décharge sont entendus en sa faveur. La Cour, il est vrai, dans ces cas, nomme un avocat d'office, pour les défendre; et quoique ce soit souvent un aspirant avocat, désireux de profiter de la première occasion de se distinguer, comme il est complètement ignorant de toutes les circonstances de la cause, il ne peut absolument rien faire en faveur de son client; et on conçoit parfaitement qu'on ne puisse pas l'obliger à parcourir à la hâte, l'indictment sans avoir sous la main aucun des moyens de confrontation, et de lui demander instantanément s'il n'a pas quelques observations à faire sur cet indictment. N'ayant absolument pas le temps d'examiner ce papier avant le jugement, il le lit avec attention après le jugement. C'est son droit, et rien n'est plus naturel. Toucher à ce droit, c'est en realité changer la position de l'accusé, déjà souvent assez malheureux de n'avoir pas le moyen de payer une défense. On dira que très fréquemment, le criminel échappe à la justice, les mains pleines de sang. Je n'en disconviens pas; mais ne vaut-il pas mieux voir acquitter un coupable que punir un innocent?

M. King.—La motion en arrêt de jugement n'est jamais faite qu'après la lecture du verdict. Maintenant, messieurs, je le répète, il n'arrive pas une fois sur mille qu'un innocent soit condamné par un jury, tandis qu'au contraire il n'arrive que trop souvent que des misérables échappent à la justice. Je soutiens que la loi accorde déjà trop de latitude, et que nous ne devons pas souffrir que les criminels échappent pour quelqu'insignifiante formalité omise par la négligence d'un avocat de district. Ce qu'on a à dire sur l'indictment on peut tout aussi bien le dire après. Ce que j'ai dit de l'omission d'un t ou d'un i semble avoir été pris à la lettre par mes collègues, tandis que je le disais taphoriquement ; mais j'ai la confiance que la Sénat m'aura mieux compris.

Quant aux erreurs réelles qui peuvent s'être glissées dans l'indictment, c'est avant le procès qu'on doit les signaler, et non après.

L'impression du bill est ordonnée par le Sénat.

MARDI, 28 Février, 1854.

CHEMIN DE FER DE LA MOBILE.

M. MACMURDO.—M. le Président, je désirerais que le bill rapporté par le comité des améliorations intérieures, et qui autorise la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans à souscrire au fonds capital de la compagnie du chemin de fer de Pontchartrain, soit mis à l'ordre spécial du jour pour vendredi prochain.

Cette motion est adoptée.

M Rivers présente une résolution requérant le comité sur les élections de prendre des informations et de présenter un rapport sur la question de savoir si M Martel, sénateur de St. Landry et de Calcasieu, avait à l'époque de son élection, ou s'il a maintenant, une commission de notaire public.

Cette résolution est adoptée.

CAUTIONS DE LECKIE.

M Macmurdo, du comité de finances, présente un rapport et dit :

Je vais dire quelques mots d'explication au sujet de ce bill. Il paraît que M Leckie, autrefois shérif de la paroisse des Rapides, était concussionnaire d'une somme de $9,000 et qu'il s'est sauvé en Californie. Il en résulta naturellement que les personnes qui avaient signé son bon comme endosseurs, devinrent responsables pour le montant de la somme soustraite par lui Un de ces messieurs, qui est aujourd'hui membre du Sénat, présenta une résolution requérant que l'on s'enquît au juste de la somme soustraite par Leckie.

Il paraît que celui-ci avait payé en argent au bureau de l'auditeur une somme dont il n'avait pas été crédité. Le montant se trouvait contenu dans une lettre à M. J E Layet, alors commis de l'auditeur et qui est mort depuis. Il doit être tenu compte de cela aux cautions.

Le comité résolut de déduire ce montant et de présenter un bill pour la différence que les cautions sont prêtes à payer. Peut-il y avoir à cela la moindre objection? Je ne le crois pas;—le rapport du comité a été unanime.

Le bill est adopté.

ASILE DES MARINS (Seamen's Home).

M. Macmurdo—

Je tiens à la main un mémoire dont la forme est quelque peu en dehors des règles et que je demande l'autorisation de lire au Sénat. C'est comme une lettre qui m'est adressée et qui demande que l'Association de l'Asile des Marins (Seamen's Home Association) de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, soit exemptée de taxes.

Ce mémoire est référé au comité de finances.

Fonds des Ecoles Publiques dans les paroisses Union et DeSoto.

Un bill déterminant l'emploi du fonds des écoles publiques dans les paroisses Union et DeSoto est pris en considération.

M. Wickliffe—Avant que le bill ne passe je désirerais obtenir quelques informations.

M Defreese—Le bill a été présenté par le représentant de la paroisse Union à la Chambre. Je ne saurais donner moi-même des informations très précises, ce représentant m'ayant seulement demandé de le présenter. Autant que je crois comprendre, il est destiné à déterminer l'emploi du fonds des écoles publiques dans ce district.

M Wickliffe—Je ne désire pas intervenir dans les questions de législation spéciale, surtout lorsqu'aucun principe général de loi ne se trouve violé. Mais le bill proposé serait je crois une violation du genre de celle dont je viens de parler, violation faite à l'avantage d'une seule paroisse.

Sous le régime de la loi générale de l'Etat, le recensement est fait sous la surveillance du surintendant ou par son ordre. (je veux dire ici surintendant de l'éducation publique). L'Etat est divisé en districts d'écoles et le surintendant répartit les sommes conformément au montant qui est dû à chacun. Ce bill dépouille le surintendant du pouvoir qu'il a maintenant de partager l'argent, et le confère au juri de police d'une certaine paroisse. Si nous établissons un système d'éducation publique, c'est incontestablement celui que nous considérons le meilleur, le mieux adapté aux besoins du peuple. Restons-y fidèles alors S'il est défectueux, amendons-le; si nous ne pouvons le conserver, amendons la Constitution et abolissons-le entièrement; mais ne faisons pas cette exception spéciale en faveur d'une paroisse en particulier. Je suis opposé à toute législation de cette nature; en conséquence, je suis opposé au bill.

M Defreese—J'ai examiné ce bill et je n'y vois rien à quoi on puisse faire objection. Sa nature est purement locale, et il n'affecte en aucune manière aucune autre partie de l'Etat.

Le bill est référé au comité sur l'éducation.

Bill amendant l'article 1546 du Code Civil.

Le bill amendant l'article 1546 du Code Civil est pris en considération.

M King—Je demanderai un seul instant d'attention de la part du Sénat dans le but d'expliquer la nature et le but de ce bill. C'est au sujet des donations entre vifs. Sous la loi actuelle la naissance d'un enfant au donateur révoque ipsofacto toutes donations qu'il aurait pu faire antérieurement. Il est facile de comprendre combien cela doit être non seulement injuste mais préjudiciable aux personnes qui ont accepté de bonne foi les donations qui leur étaient faites, et l'on ne peut s'expliquer ni comprendre les raisons pour lesquelles cette disposition de la loi a été établie et pourquoi elle serait maintenue. Je connais particulièrement moi-même des exemples de cas dans lesquels il est résulté de cette loi un tort considérable aux personnes qui avaient ainsi accepté des donations. J'en citerai un:

Un homme riche avait une sœur à laquelle, avant son mariage, il fit une donation de $30,000. Plus tard cet homme se maria; sa femme eut un enfant, et conséquemment la donation qu'il avait faite antérieurement à sa sœur fut révoquée sans qu'il eût même connaissance de cet article du code qui rendait nulle sa donation. Que l'on consulte cet article; que chacun le lise lui-même. Il dit:

"Article 1546. Les donations entre vifs sont sujettes à être révoquées par les causes suivantes:

1o. Par l'ingratitude du donataire.

2o. Par le non accomplissement des conditions casuelles qui en suspendaient la consommation.

3o. Par la non exécution des conditions imposées au donataire.

4o. Par la survenance d'enfants du donateur.

5o. Par le retour conventionnel ou légal."

On voit donc que la révocation résulte du simple fait de survenance d'enfants du donateur. Cette révocation a lieu quoique les biens se trouvent entre les mains des tierces personnes, Il en résulte que les titres à ces propriétés-là sont tellement peu sûrs, du moins autant qu'il existe quelque possibilité que le donateur ait des héritiers, que l'on peut à peine compter dessus. Il y a bien des cas dans lesquels l'effet de cette loi peut être désastreux. Je connais un homme qui a donné de fortes sommes d'argent à différentes institutions charitables. Supposons qu'il se marie et qu'il devienne père, ces institutions peuvent avoir à souffrir beaucoup, si elles ne sont pas tout à fait détruites. Cette loi est absurde ; elle empêche qu'un homme puisse disposer ainsi qu'il l'entend de sa propriété, lorsqu'il n'a pas d'heritiers. C'est là un jeu d'enfants, en vérité, et nous devrions le faire disparaître de notre code. Lorsqu'un homme donne une chose, cette chose ne devrait plus lui revenir pour une raison ou pour une autre. Mais notre loi dit que dans certains cas éventuels, ce qu'un homme a donné doit lui revenir, soit qu'il le veuille, soit qu'il ne le veuille pas, nolens volens.

Digitized by Google

M Moore—Je n'ai pas d'objection à l'amendement. J'ai toujours pensé que cette loi était peu sage.

Ce bill est adopté.

Collége de la Nlle-Orléans.

Le bill pour incorporer le collége de la Nlle-Orléans est mis en discussion.

M King—Comme c'est le premier bill de cette nature qui ait paru devant la Chambre cette session, je saisirai cette occasion d'exprimer mes vues sur ce sujet. Et d'abord, je dirai qu'en principe je suis opposé à ces sortes de bills, d'autant plus qu'il existe déja une loi générale qui a régle cette matière et en vertu de laquelle une corporation peut être formée Pour deux piastres et demie, les parties qui s'adressent à nous peuvent obtenir chez un notaire une charte tout aussi bonne que celle que nous pouvons leur donner. Je demanderai donc de quelle utilité il est que nous passions cet acte d'incorporation, quand la chose peut être faite aussi bien par un notaire, sans que la Chambre ait besoin de se détourner de ses travaux pour cela. Il n'y a pas la moindre nécessité d'encombrer de décrets de ce genre notre livre de lois. C'est non-seulement inutile, mais encore très dispendieux Avec ce que coûtera à l'Etat le temps employé à cela par la Législature et l'impression du décret, on pourrait payer cent chartes de ce genre par les moyens indiqués par la loi.

Si je fais ces remarques, ce n'est pas, d'ailleurs, que je sois animé du moindre sentiment hostile à ces sortes d'institutions. Tout au contraire, je trouve les noms de beaucoup de mes amis personnels, et ceux d'autres hommes très recommandables et que je considère hautement, au bas de la demande qui nous est soumise. Mais quelque disposé que je puisse être à accueillir avec faveur tout ce qui peut venir de ces personnes respectables, je ne puis m'empêcher d'exprimer ici mon opinion à ce sujet. Je crois, en cela, ne faire que mon devoir.

M Lacey—Messieurs, je ne partage pas l'opinion de l'hon. M King. Je suis au contraire tout à fait en faveur du bill qu'on nous propose. Il s'agit d'incorporer un etablissement d'instruction dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans Je suis étonné de l'opposition que M King fait au bill, surtout à raison du mot qu'il met en avant. Vous avez entendu l'hon. membre alléguer la dépense que causera le vote et l'impression du bill. Mettrons-nous, Messieurs, une aussi faible consideration en balance avec les avantages inappreciables que donnera au pays une maison d'éducation? En vérité, Messieurs, je ne comprends guère qu'on parle d'une dépense aussi minime. Pour ma part, je suis plein de respect pour les noms honorables que je vois au bas de la demande, et je suis tout prêt à voter favorablement.

M Moore—Je ne comprends pas bien ce qu'vient de dire l'hon M Lacey. Comme président du comité judiciaire, il doit savoir mieux que personne que nous avons une loi générale sur la matière. En prenant la parole apres M King, il n'a nullement répondu à ses observations. M King n'a pas dit qu'il fallût se priver d'une maison d'éducation. Il s'est borné à faire remarquer que l'incorporation pouvait être faite par un notaire public aussi bien que par nous, et que c'est même là la voie indiquée par la loi. En répondant d'une manière générale, et en nous parlant de l'utilité de l'éducation, M Lacey n'a nullement réfuté l'objection. Elle subsiste donc dans son entier. C'est pourquoi, partageant l'avis de M King, je voterai contre le bill.

Le bill est adopté.

Améliorations Intérieures

Sur motion de M King, le Sénat passe à la discussion du bill suivant, concernant les améliorations intérieures :

ACTE

Toute vacance dans le dit emploi sera remplie, pour le terme non achevé, par une nomination du Gouverneur, avec l'avis et le consentement du Sénat, si ce corps est en session. Si le Sénat n'est pas en session, alors le Gouverneur pourra nommer une personne pour remplir la place jusqu'à la prochaine session du Sénat.

Il les pourvoiera de ce qui leur est necessaire, comme nourriture, vêtements, soins médicaux, et telles autres choses qui pourront être jugées nécessaires ou utiles. Sec. 9. Il est de plus decrete, &c, Qu'afin que l'ingénieur civil puisse tenir son bureau toujours ouvert, il sera autorisé à employer un ingénieur pour l'assister dans l'exercice de ses fonctions, lequel ingénieur recevra un salaire de dix-huit cents piastres par an pendant le temps qu'il est employé, payable par quartier sur mandat et certificat le l'ingénieur civil, approuvé par l'auditeur des comptes publics.

Il sera de plus du devoir du dit ingénieur, de tenir dans son bureau des livres sujets en tout temps à l'examen des autorités publiques de l'Etat, le Gouverneur, le trésorier, l'auditeur des comptes publics et l'avocat-général, lesquels livres devront présenter, dans la forme la plus simple possible, les transactions pécuniaires du bureau et un tableau détaillé des recettes et dépenses. Les dits livres et tous autres documents et archives du bureau devront être transmis à son successeur. Il gardera aussi dans son bureau une liasse des plans, relevés, tracés, &c, de travaux publics d'améliorations intérieures construits par l'Etat.

Sec. 10. Il est de plus décrété &c, Que l'ingénieur civil de l'Etat consacrera tout son temps aux devoirs de sa place; qu'il n'aura pas le droit de toucher d'autres appointements de sa place que ceux que la loi lui accorde, et qu'il ne lui sera pas également permis d'intenter procès pour ou de recevoir aucune compensation pour services professionels ou autres exécutés par lui pendant la durée de ses fonctions.

Sec. 11. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que le dit Ingenieur Civil de l'Etat aura sous sa surveillance et son contrô e tous les travaux exécutés par l'Etat, dans le but d'améliorer les terres inondées et marécageuses, pour les préserver de l'inondation, et qu'il appliquera les fonds provenant de la vente des terres concédées dans le but ci-dessus, de la manière et aux lieux qu'il jugera le plus utiles et le plus convenables.

Sec. 12. Il est de plus décrété &c, Que pour l'accomplissement du but que proposent les actes du Congrès concédant des terres à l'Etat pour aider au dessèchement des terres marécageuses qui s'y trouvent et pour les préserver de l'inondation, l'Etat sera divisé en quatre (4) districts de terres et de dessèchement comme suit :

Le premier district comprendra toute cette partie de l'Etat située au sud du trente-unième degré de latitude nord et à l'est du fleuve Mississippi.

Le second district comprendra toute cette partie de l'Etat située au sud du trente-unième degré de latitude nord et à l'ouest du fleuve Mississippi.

Le troisième district comprendra toute cette partie de l'Etat située entre la frontière occidentale des paroisses de Catahoula, Caldwell, Washita et Union, et le fleuve Mississippi.

Le quatrième district comprendra tout le reste de l'Etat non compris dans les autres districts.

Sec. 13. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que les fonds provenant de la vente des dites terres marécageuses ou inondées seront affectés et divisés entre les différents districts créés par la section précédente, comme suit :

Au premier district
Au second district
Au troisième district

conformément à la proportion du fonds alloué à chacun.

Sec. 14. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Qu'afin que le dit Ingénieur Civil puisse pousser avec vigueur les travaux de dessèchement et de construction de levées, il sera autorisé à employer un assistant-ingénieur pour chacun des districts ci-dessus toutes les fois que dans son opinion cette assistance sera nécessaire; les dits assistant ingénieurs seront payés mensuellement ou par quartiers, au taux de trois mille piastres par an pendant le temps qu'ils seront en service actif, sur le mandat de l'Ingénieur Civil de l'Etat et sur un certificat de lui attestant que le dit assistant-ingénieur a été réellement occupé aux dits travaux et qu'il a bien et dûment gagné l'argent demandé pour le paiement de son salaire. Il aura le pouvoir de renvoyer les dits assistants-ingénieurs toutes les fois qu'il le jugera convenable, et il sera de son devoir de les renvoyer toutes les fois qu'ils ne seront pas réellement et activement employés aux travaux publics ci-dessus décrits. Les dits assistants-ingénieurs pendant le temps qu'ils seront ainsi employés, ne s'occuperont d'aucune autre chose; mais ils consacreront tout leur temps et toute leur attention aux devoirs de la place qu'ils remplissent. Ils n'auront pas le droit de demander ou de recevoir des appointements pour aucuns autres services personnels ou professionnels rendus par eux pendant leur terme d'office.

Sec. 15. Il est de plus décrété &c, Que le dit Ingénieur Civil de l'Etat aura le pouvoir d'employer, toutes les fois qu'il pensera que l'intérêt public l'exige, telle autre assistance qu'il jugera nécessaire. En agissant ainsi il sera de son devoir de chercher à obtenir la dite assistance au plus bas prix possible. Cette dite assistance devra être payée sur le mandat du dit Ingénieur Civil, certifiant que ces personnes ont réellement rendu les services sur lesquels est basée la réclamation et qui leur donne justement droit à la compensation demandée. L'Ingénieur Civil ne continuera personne au service si ce n'est lorsque les services sont absolument nécessaires.

Sec. 16. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que les deux fonds savoir: le fonds des améliorations intérieures et le fonds provenant de la vente des terres marécageuses et inondées concédées par le Congrès à l'Etat, seront toujours tenus séparés et distincts L'ingénieur civil mettra toujours les services rendus au débit du fonds pour lequel ils ont été faits, et spécifiera toujours dans ses mandats de quels fonds ils doivent être payés.

Sec. 17. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que tous travaux entrepris pour la réalisation du but cité dans les sections précédentes, seront donnés par l'ingénieur civil de l'Etat au plus bas offrant après trente jours d'annonce dans le journal de l'Etat et dans un ou plusieurs journaux publiés dans la paroisse dans laquelle les travaux se font, où s'il ne se publie pas de journaux dans la dite paroisse, par des avis imprimés affichés au siége de la justice dans la dite paroisse et dans au moins trois autres lieux publics dans ladite paroisse. Ces travaux devront être donnés à un prix stipulé par varde cubique. Les soumissions devront être faites par écrit et sous enveloppe cachetée, laquelle ne devra être ouverte qu'en présence d'un juge de paix ou de trois autres personnes, propriétaires de terres dans la paroisse, et après que le temps prescrit se sera écoulé. Les avis doivent indiquer aux soumissionnaires la forme et la manière dans laquelle les soumissions doivent être faites, spécifier les travaux à faire, le temps après lequel ils doivent être achevés, et le temps et le lieu de l'ouverture des lettres de soumissions; bien entendu que l'ingénieur civil peut rejeter toutes les soumissions s'il ne les croit pas raisonnables.

Sec. 18. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que l'ingénieur civil exigera de toute personne, raison sociale, corporation ou corps politique qui entreprendrait aucun des travaux proposés dans cet acte pour le dessèchement des terres ou pour les mettre à l'abri de l'inondation, un bond avec bonne garantie, payable à l'Etat de la Louisiane, répondant de la fidèle exécution des travaux et suffisant en valeur pour assurer l'achèvement des dits travaux. Le dit bond, s'il est forfait, devra être mis en cour et l'affaire poursuivie par l'avocat de district ou par tout autre officier compétent de l'Etat, lequel recevra dix pour cent sur la somme collectée sur le bond qui, après qu'il aura été payé au trésor, devra être mis au crédit du fonds des terres marécageuses.

Sec. 19. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que si la personne ou les personnes, la corporation ou le corps politique auxquels l'ouvrage aura été adjugé ne se conforment pas aux dispositions de la section précédente, le contrat sera de nouveau annoncé par avis public par l'ingénieur civil dans la paroisse dans laquelle l'ouvrage doit être fait, pendant dix jours ou plus, s'il pense qu'un temps plus long peut être alloué, et après qu'il aura reçu de nouvelles soumissions il pourra adjuger le contrat au plus bas offrant, refusant toute soumission du soumissionnaire qui s'est refusé la première fois, mais comprenant toutes les autres soumissions faites à la première vente, et il continuera de la sorte à redonner avis public jusqu'à ce que quelqu'un prenne le contrat et se conforme à la loi. Après l'adjudication d'un contrat, l'ingénieur civil notifiera immédiatement le contractant, si celui-ci se trouve au lieu désigné par lui dans son avertissement, (ou à l'agent nommé par le contractant) que le contrat est accepté. Chaque contractant doit se trouver soit personnellement, soit par un agent, au temps et au lieu désignés pour l'ouverture des soumissions, à moins que l'ingénieur ne pense pouvoir l'en dispenser. L'ingénieur civil peut, s'il pense que les offres ne sont pas raisonnables ou exorbitantes, les rejeter toutes et refuser d'adjuger le contrat.

Sec. 20. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que tous les contrats pour la construction de levées ou autres travaux qui peuvent se subdiviser seront adjugés par sections n'excédant pas la valeur de $5000, de telle sorte que les planteurs ou autres puissent prendre une portion des dits travaux. Mais si après que toutes les soumissions ont été reçues l'ingénieur civil juge convenable d'accepter une soumission pour l'ouvrage entier, ou une soumission embrassant plus d'une section, il pourra le faire quoique le prix puisse être plus élevé que la moindre soumission faite pour une section séparée. Si le montant des offres pour les différentes sections séparées du contrat est moindre que le montant d'aucune des offres soit pour l'ouvrage entier soit pour plusieurs sections de l'ouvrage, et si les soumissionnaires sont tous prêts à se conformer à la loi en fournissant les sécurités suffisantes pour l'accomplissement du contrat, alors l'ingénieur civil adjugera les contrats aux soumissionnaires pour les sections séparées.

Sec. 21. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que les dispositions des sections précédentes relativement à la vente des contrats, ne seront pas considérées comme applicables dans les cas soudains ou urgents, tels que crevasses ou autres accidents de cette sorte. Dans ces cas, l'ingénieur civil peut contracter, selon qu'il le juge nécessaire, pour tel ou tel montant; bien entendu qu'il considère que ces frais sont de nécessité indispensable et peuvent ou doivent être portés au débit du fonds des terres marécageuses.

Sec. 22 Il est de plus décrété, &c, Qu'il sera du devoir du dit ingénieur civil de déterminer la localité, l'étendue, les dimensions des levées ou desséchements nécessaires pour protéger et dessécher les terres marécageuses ou inondées appartenant à l'Etat; pourvu que, lorsque objection sera faite par le propriétaire de la terre où la levée doit être faite quant au lieu où la dite levée devra être construite, la dite localité devra être déterminée par le dit ingénieur civil, conjointement avec quatre des propriétaires les plus proches résidants, ou en l'absence ou incapacité d'aucun des dits propriétaires par le fait qu'ils sont soit mineurs, soit femmes, ou pour toute autre raison, avec quatre propriétaires les plus proches résidants et qui seront consentants à agir lorsque le lieu, la localité de la dite levée ou autre ouvrage public aura été une fois déterminé de cette manière, le propriétaire de la terre sur laquelle elle doit être faite ne pourra pas arrêter ou entraver en aucune manière tous travaux ainsi entrepris après qu'ils auront été commencés.

Sec. 23. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que toutes les fois que l'ingénieur civil aura résolu de faire ou de réparer aucune levée conformément aux dispositions de ce bill, la personne ou les personnes, la corporation ou le corps politique tenu par la loi de faire ou de réparer la dite levée sera tenu de payer la moitié des frais, lesquels, quand ils auront été collectés, seront versés au trésor de l'Etat et portés au crédit du fonds des terres marécageuses En cas de poursuite judiciaire, l'avocat de district ou tout autre officier de l'Etat chargé de la dite poursuite, aura droit à dix pour cent sur le montant collecté. Toute personne ou corps ainsi tenu d payer une moitié du prix de la construction de la dite levée, aura le droit de payer cette dite quotité en travaux, lesquels seront appreciés en pieds cubes au même taux auquel le contrat aura été adjugé; mais cette option ne doit être facultative qu'avant que le contrat soit adjugé ou avant que l'entrepreneur ait fourni son bond. La personne ou le corps qui voudra se prévaloir de ce droit devra accomplir le travail aux époques et lieux désignés par l'ingénieur civil, et, faute de se conformer à cette prescription, le privilége dont il est question ci-dessus sera perdu, et la partie qui aura ainsi été trouvée en défaut sera responsable envers l Etat et les particuliers de tous dommages qui résulteraient de leur fait. Toute personne ou personnes et toute corporation pourra s'exempter du paiement d'une moitié du prix de la levée, ainsi qu'il est spécifié ci-dessus, en abandonnant à l'Etat, par acte notarié, ou par toute autre déclaration écrite, la totalité de la pièce de terre qu'il ou qu'ils possède ou possèdent et sur laquelle la levée devra être construite. Il sera fait de la terre ainsi abandonnée telle disposition que la loi pourra prescrire par la suite au bénéfice et au crédit du fonds des terres marécageuses.

Sec. 24. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que l'ingénieur civil pourra être destitué par impeachment ou par adresse, sur conviction de malversation, fraude ou corruption; pour lesquelles il pourra être poursuivi par acte d'accusation, il sera passible d'amende à la discrétion de la Cour et de prison simple ou au pénitentiaire pour au moins un an. Il devra être ipso facto destitué de ses fonctions, et le Gouverneur devra lui nommer un remplaçant.

Sec. 25. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que l'ingénieur civil devra présenter annuellement, dans la première semaine de chaque session législative, un rapport complet de ses recettes et dépenses et de ses faits et gestes relativement aux affaires de son bureau; le tout accompagné des suggestions et recommendations qu'il croira utiles ou importantes pour le peuple de l'Etat.

Sec. 26. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que cet acte restera en vigueur jusqu'à ce que le bureau des Travaux Publics décrété par la Constitution de l'Etat entre en fonctions.

Sec. 27. Il est de plus décrété, &c, Que l'acte approuvé le 30 avril 1853, intitulé "acte pour utiliser et dessécher les terres marécageuses ou inondées concédées à l'Etat de la Louisiane par l'acte du Congrès intitulé acte pour aider l'Etat de la Louisiane à dessécher les terres marécageuses qui s'y trouvent, approuvé le 2 mars, 1849", devra être considéré comme révoqué et remplacé par le présent acte aussitôt que l'ingénieur civil de l'Etat, désigné par cet acte, sera entré en fonctions.

M King—Afin que mes collègues puissent bien comprendre le but et la portée de ce bill et comme nous n'étions pas tous présents quand il a été introduit pour la première fois, et que par conséquent quelques uns d'entre nous n'ont pas encore examiné la question, je demande à donner quelques mots d'explication au sujet du but que le bill se propose d'atteindre, et à indiquer les raisons qui ont déterminé sa forme actuelle.

En premier lieu, le bill a eu vue d'établir un système d'améliorations intérieures, qui soit tout à la fois économique et efficace. Ce double but est hautement désirable. Jusqu'à ce jour, on l'a remarqué, les dépenses ont été très grandes, en même temps que faute d'une combinaison bien entendue, ces dépenses n'ont produit aucun avantage marqué. Toutefois, quand je dis que les dépenses ont été élevées, je ne parle qu'en comparaison des résultats.

Car je m'empresserai de corriger ici une erreur qui tend à se propager dans l'esprit public. On s'exagère généralement beaucoup le montant des fonds des terres marécageuses et aussi de celui des améliorations intérieures, ainsi que les revenus qu'on en peut raisonnablement attendre. On s'est fait beaucoup d'illusions à cet égard, illusions qui seront nécessairement déçues.

Les retours contenus dans le rapport du trésorier à la Législature, démontrent que la totalité du revenu du fonds des améliorations intérieures pour cette année n'a été que de $15,000.

On avait aussi beaucoup compté sur le fonds des terres marécageuses, et sur les millions que devrait produire la vente de ces terres. Mais on a été désappointé également de ce côté. Le plus grand revenu annuel que l'on puisse raisonnablement attendre de ce fonds, suivant les meilleures autorités, ne dépasse pas $75,000. Les citoyens, trompés par les évaluations extravagantes faites à ce sujet, attendent nécessairement que nous ferons construire partout des levées et réparer celles existant déjà, avec cette faible somme de $75,000 par an. Il importe de désabuser le public. Nos ressources sont beaucoup trop minimes pour que nous puissions accomplir de grands travaux. C'est pourquoi il faut nous mettre à l'œuvre, accomplir des réformes devenues évidemment nécessaires, et faire de l'argent dont nous pouvons disposer le meilleur emploi possible. Pour cela, il faut commencer par diminuer les innombrables salaires que nous payons à des officiers dont un grand nombre sont parfaitement inutiles. C'est ce que propose le bill.

Le revenu des deux fonds s'élève, comme je viens de l'établir, à $70,000. Pour l'administration du fonds des améliorations intérieures nous avons un ingénieur qui reçoit $3,500 par an, un assistant à qui nous donnons $3,500. Ajoutez à cela les dépenses imprévues qui s'élèvent à environ

Digitized by Google

$1,000 chaque année, et vous aurez une dépense de $8,000 pour l'administration d'un revenu de $75,000. En addition à cela nous avons encore à payer le salaire des capitaines de nos bateaux, les dépenses occasionnées par les voyages et courses de ces bateaux et les frais d'écritures. On se rappellera aussi que tous ces employés sont payés pour l'année, tandis qu'effectivement ils ne travaillent qu'une très petite portion de l'année. On comprendra par ce simple exposé à combien d'inutiles dépenses est soumis le fonds déjà si minime des améliorations intérieures, et après cette énumération on se demande en vérité quelle est la somme qui reste pour être appliquée en travaux réels. Par ce bill nous proposons de réduire ces dépenses de manière à réaliser une économie d'environ 6 à 8000 piastres par an.

J'arrive maintenant au fonds des terres marécageuses. Par le système établi en vertu de l'acte de l'année passée, nous avons trois commissaires pour ce fonds. Si nous continuons ce système, nous en aurons quatre, car il deviendra nécessaire de diviser le 3me district. Ainsi nous aurons quatre commissaires à $1,500 chacun, ce qui fait un total de $6 000 pour les quatre, et quatre ingénieurs à $3,000 chacun, ce qui donne $12,000; de sorte que, si on ajoute au salaire des commissaires le salaire des ingénieurs, on trouve un total de $18,000. Remarquez qu'il ne s'agit encore ici que de salaires. Maintenant, nous avons quantité d'autres dépenses accessoires, comme frais de voyages, dépenses d'hôtel, toutes choses qui sont enregistrées avec soin et portées au compte comme dépenses accidentelles. Ces sortes de dépenses ne s'élèvent pas à moins de $5,000 par an. Nous sommes donc à $23,000. Ainsi, voilà une somme de $23,000 dépensée en salaires seulement, pour l'administration d'un fonds de $75,000. Mais ces salaires sont-ils au moins pour quelque travail fait? Pas de tout. Ce n'est encore là que le commencement. Vous payez $23.000, non pas pour l'accomplissement de certains travaux faits, mais seulement pour savoir comment vous dépenserez les 52,000 autres.

Ainsi, avant qu'on ait remué une pelletée de terre, fait un pouce de levée, nettoyé un pied de bayou, ou desséché un acre de terre, avant qu'rien n'ait été commencé, vous avez déjà dépensé $23,000 sur vos $75,000.

Est-ce là, Messieurs, le système que vous encouragerez par vos votes? Vous avez $15,000 à dépenser d'une part, et 75,000 de l'autre; sur le premier fonds vous dépensez $12.000 pour savoir comment seront employés les 3,000 autres, et sur le second vous commencez par donner $25.000 pour qu'on vous dise quel devra être l'emploi des 50,000 autres.

L'esprit se révolte à la vue de pareilles dilapidations, et en vérité on se demande comment un régime aussi détestable a pu prendre naissance au sein d'une assemblée délibérante. N'est-il pas évident pour tous que le premier venu, pour peu que ce fût un homme d'un bon sens ordinaire, pourrait dire l'emploi à faire des fonds dont il s'agit, et cela sans consacrer à ce travail plus d'un dixième de son temps. Je propose donc, Messieurs, par ce bill, de réunir les deux fonds à administrer, et de les placer sous la même direction, afin de réduire les frais d'administration qui menacent de dévorer le peu qui a échappé jusqu'ici. Je propose qu'un seul homme responsable soit placé à la tête du système, et ait le contrôle de toutes ses opérations. De tous les systèmes d'administration, celui qui, à mon sens, est le meilleur, c'est celui où un seul homme a la haute main sur toutes les affaires. Je ne suis pas partisan des bureaux de travaux publics. Je crois que cette réunion d'hommes est plutôt nuisible qu'utile. La divergence d'opinions, la rivalité, l'indolence de quelques uns, tout cela ne produit que des embarras, et peu de travail effectif. Pour rendre un système fort, que faut-il? la responsabilité. Eh bien, la responsabilité disparaît quand elle se divise. Elle n'a réellement d'effet que lorsqu'elle porte sur un seul individu. Ceci est évident et n'a pas besoin de grands développements pour être compris de tous. Quand plusieurs personnes sont chargées d'un même travail, tout le monde sait avec quelle lenteur ce travail s'accomplit. Les réunions sont difficiles. Il manque toujours quelqu'un; à une seconde réunion, il arrivera que les membres qui auront préparé le travail la première fois seront justement absents, et que ceux qui auront été la seconde fois fidèles au rendez-vous, ignorant ce qui s'est passé à la précédente réunion, ne sauront que faire, ou détruiront ce qui avait été fait. D'un autre côté, on compte les uns sur les autres, et rien ne se termine. Si quelque faute grave a été commise, chacun prétend s'en laver les mains et y être resté complétement étranger. Le public ne sachant réellement à qui s'en prendre, ne peut pas punir, et on peut ainsi braver l'opinion. Il n'en est pas de même quand une seule personne est à la tête d'une opération. Chacun sait où prendre le coupable, en cas de malversation, et l'attention de la personne responsable est d'autant plus grande qu'elle sait parfaitement qu'il lui sera impossible d'échapper à la vindicte publique, s'il manque à son devoir. De tous les systèmes proposés, celui des comités ou bureaux est le plus détestable par les raisons que je viens de donner, et par beaucoup d'autres encore, qu'il serait trop long d'énumérer.

Par le bill que j'ai introduit, je propose de réunir les deux fonds sous la même direction, et de donner la responsabilité du tout à un seul homme. Je crois que ce plan est à la fois le plus fort et le plus économique. C'est celui qui donnera le plus de travail et le moins de dépenses. Il est d'une grande simplicité, et nous procurera une économie annuelle de 25,000 à $30,000, ce qui n'est pas à dédaigner. Je pense que cette économie, dûe seulement à un simple changement de mécanisme, doit mériter l'attention de l'Assemblée. Nous ne sommes pas ici pour gaspiller les deniers publics, mais bien pour en diriger l'emploi de la manière la plus profitable à tous. Qu'avons-nous besoin de dissiper tout cet argent à salarier des officiers inutiles et dont la présence ne fait qu'embarrasser l'administration? Si nos fonds étaient bien administrés, la Louisiane pourrait en tirer un grand avantage. La navigation, rendue plus facile, accroîtrait la prospérité du pays; les levées, mieux entretenues, mettraient les propriétaires à l'abri de l'inondation; les desséchements des marais amélioreraient l'état sanitaire du pays et rendraient à l'agriculture une quantité considérable de terres aujourd'hui perdues pour le pays. Rappelons nous que le fonds des terres marécageuses n'est entre nos mains qu'un dépôt sacré que nous a confié le Gouvernement des Etats-Unis pour un meilleur emploi que celui que nous en faisons. En vérité, si ce Gouvernement savait l'usage que nous faisons de ce dépôt; s'il savait que nous dépensons $25,000 pour savoir comment en dépenser 50,000, il rougirait certainement de nous avoir confié une telle administration; car un enfant s'en tirerait mieux que nous. Ne violons pas plus longtemps notre mandat en permettant qu'une pareille dilapidation soit continuée. Effaçons de notre budget tous ces salaires inutiles, et avec l'argent que nous y économiserons, construisons des levées, desséchons des marais, faisons enfin un travail utile.

Je crois avoir expliqué au Sénat l'objet de ce bill, de manière à le rendre intelligible pour tous et à en faire comprendre la haute importance. Je ne prétends pas que ce bill soit parfait, mais je crois qu'il réalisera l'économie dont j'ai parlé, et donnera plus de vigueur au travail. Il est possible qu'il prête à des objections dans quelques uns de ses détails. S'il en est ainsi, il sera facile de les amender.

M. DeRussy—En prenant la parole pour faire quelques remarques en réponse aux observations qui ont été présentées par le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, je dois commencer par dire que je n'ai pas encore eu le temps d'examiner attentivement le bill qui a été introduit par notre honorable collègue, et pour lequel il invoque si chaleureusement l'appui du Sénat. Je dois dire premièrement que mon impression est défavorable au bill. M. King a commencé son discours par la critique la plus amère du système existant, et il l'a terminé de la même manière, de façon, sans doute, à rendre le sien plus acceptable. En examinant le bill présenté par M King, je trouve qu'il propose la nomination d'un ingénieur civil et d'un assistant-ingénieur. De quelle utilité, s'il vous plaît, peut être cet assistant-ingénieur? N'est-il là que pour assister l'ingénieur dans la dépense de l'argent, c'est-à-dire pour la doubler? Car enfin, si ce n'est pas là son utilité, qu'on nous la montre. On a dit qu'un homme suffirait et n'aurait même à travailler que la moitié du temps. Comment un homme qui n'est occupé que la moitié de son temps, a-t-il besoin d'être aidé dans son travail? Nous avons maintenant des ingénieurs et des commissaires. Si l'hon membre a réellement le désir d'économiser, c'est ici le lieu d'économiser en fondant les deux emplois en un seul. Que le commissaire et l'ingénieur ne soient qu'un seul et même officier; que l'ingénieur soit le commissaire, et le commissaire, l'ingénieur. C'est là un point d'économie. Par cette réunion des deux fonctions, nous pouvons économiser une bonne somme d'argent. Le bill propose un ingénieur civil, à l'election du peuple. Maintenant, Messieurs, je demande si un ingénieur électif ne serait pas un homme à esprit de localité. Il y aurait certainement plusieurs candidats favoris dans chaque localité. La Nlle Orléans en présenterait certainement un ou deux, et il en serait de même des autres parties de l'Etat Mais on ne pourrait prendre l'ingénieur que dans un endroit seulement. Et quels seraient ses sentiments? Il serait certainement porté à favoriser ceux qui l'auraient appuyé et élu, et, selon toute probabilité, s'il agissait sous l'influence de ces causes qui font mouvoir les hommes en général, il ferait tout son possible pour les satisfaire, et peut être au détriment des autres Ainsi, il pourrait favoriser une portion de l'Etat et négliger le reste. Je regarde ce système comme inadmissible.

Le bill propose ensuite de joindre deux départements qui existent maintenant, c'est à dire le département des améliorations intérieures et celui des terres marécageuses, et l'hon. membre nous informe que cette reunion produira une centralisation de comptes qui donnera au système encore plus de force et de sécurité. Je dois dire que je diffère d'opinion avec lui sur ce point. Je pense que rien ne pourrait, au contraire, produire plus d'incertitude et donner moins de garantie que la combinaison qui consiste à réunir dans la même personne les fonctions de receveur et celles de payeur. Il serait impossible à l'hon. M King de nous citer l'exemple d'un seul système dans lequel ces fonctions soient unies, qui ait produit de bons effets. Tout au contraire, l'expérience nous enseigne qu'il faut bien se garder de confondre ces deux qualités dans une même personne.

Le bill dit encore que l'ingénieur à être élu par le peuple devra être un citoyen résidant dans l'Etat, et qu'il devra donner une caution de $50-000.

Il y a Messieurs, un grand nombre d'hommes pauvres qui peuvent être d'excellents ingénieurs, et qui seraient ainsi mis hors d'état d'occuper ces fonctions. parce qu'ils ne pourraient pas fournir la caution demandée.

Ensuite, je ne vois pas non plus pourquoi nous nous priverions des services des hommes éclairés des autres pays. Qui donc souffrira de cette restriction, si ce n'est nous? Je comprendrais, à la rigueur, qu'un étranger nous refusât ses services; mais que nous les refusions, nous, quand c'est à nous qu'ils doivent profiter, c'est ce que je ne puis comprendre.

Enfin, je contesterai le principe émis par l'hon. M King au sujet de la responsabilité. Je dirai que pour ma part, j'ai été accoutumé à penser d'une manière tout opposée Les paiements sont généralement faits sur des mandats, et un compte mensuel est rendu pour montrer quelle balance reste en main, et quelle somme a été dépensée.

L'année dernière, j'eus un mandat à tirer pour le reglement de la direction de nos améliorations intérieures, mais il ne fut pas accepté par la Législature. Je n'ai pas insisté pour faire accepter mes vues par des esprits mal disposés, et je n'ai pas reproduit mon bill cette année. Mais d'un autre côté, je ne puis me joindre à l'hon. membre contre le système actuellement en vigueur Je ne vois pas du tout pourquoi nous rougirions d'un système qui jusqu'à ce jour a donné tous les résultats qu'on devait raisonnablement attendre d'une bonne administration, et que, dans tous les cas, on peut amender dans quelques unes de ses parties, si besoin est Et à tout prendre, ce système est de beaucoup préferable, selon moi, à celui que nous propose l'hon. M King. Je crois que si je voulais prendre à tâche de le critiquer dans tous ses détails, il ne me serait pas difficile de démontrer qu'il est vicieux dans chacune de ses sections. Il est loin d'abord de réaliser cette grande economie que nous a tant vantée le sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans. L'économie consiste à atteindre le but au meilleur marché possible. C'est ce que ne fait pas le bill.

L'hon. membre prétend que nous sommes sur le point d'établir un quatrième district. Il est certain que nous le ferons, si nous en trouvons l'occasion ; et c'est ce que fait M King lui-même dans son bill. Si nous avons assez de terre pour demander une nouvelle division en quatre districts, nous devons nous résigner à la dépense que cette division rendra nécessaire.

En concluant, je demanderai que le bill soit déposé sur la table, et qu'le sujet ne soit repris que quand un autre bill aura été présenté.

M Ryan—Est-ce qu'un autre bill a été proposé?

M D. Russy—Oui, un autre bill a été présenté au comité, et je declare que je le trouve bien préférable à celui-ci. C'est le système actuel modifié.

M Ryan,—Je demande que ce bill soit mis à l'ordre du jour de demain.

M King—Je demanderai à l'hon. M Ryan de vouloir bien retirer sa motion pour un moment. Je désirerais prendre l'avis du Sénat au sujet du mérite du présent système et de celui proposé par M King. Il s'agirait pour le Sénat de se prononcer simplement entre le système d'administration par un seul homme ou par un bureau de commissaires.

Le meilleur moyen d'arriver au but que se propose l'hon. membre, c'est d'attendre le vote du Sénat sur le bill. De cette façon, il saura quel système préfère cette Assemblée. Le bill est d'une nature trop importante pour être ainsi renvoyé de délai en délai. Ces lenteurs et ces renvois ne peuvent produire rien de bon. Si le Sénat veut enterrer ce bill, qu'il le fasse ouvertement et non pas sous le voile des délais. La remise perpétuelle est l'instrument le plus traître au moyen duquel on puisse assassiner un bill. Je ne dirai que peu de mots à l'égard des objections soulevées par le sénateur de Natchitoches. Une des principales, si je ne me trompe, est basée sur l'existence et l'introduction prochaine d'un nouveau bill que ce sénateur préfère au mien.

M DeRussy—Oui, il sera présenté incessamment un autre bill de la même nature.

M King—Ce n'est pas une raison pour attendre.

M Moore—Je suppose que le sénateur de Natchitoches a fait allusion à un bill que j'ai introduit dans le comité, et qui est resté devant lui pendant longtemps.

M King—Cela est vrai. Le bill dont parle l'honorable membre a été pendant quelque temps devant le comité. Mais j'entends dire à M Moore qu'il ne désirait pas qu'on fît un rapport à ce sujet, attendu qu'il avait l'intention de voter sur le présent bill. Celui dont on parle avait, je crois, été rédigé en toute hâte et ne portait remède qu'à l'un des inconvénients du système actuel des terres marécageuses, sans amender ce système dans toutes ses parties.

Mais je dois dire que je n'aurais qu'avec beaucoup de répugnance entrepris un pareil travail, si je n'avais pas cru qu'on pût découvrir un meilleur système que celui actuellement en activité. Si donc, il est possible de trouver quelque chose de mieux que ce qui existe, je crois n'avoir pas besoin d'exprimer cette vérité banale "que pour trouver il faut chercher", et que pour avoir un bon bill, il faut commencer par en introduire un. Dans celui qui est en discussion devant le Sénat, j'ai essayé de combiner l'économie avec la rigueur d'action, et d'introduire ces deux changements dans le système des améliorations intérieures. Ayant ainsi accompli ce que j'ai regardé comme mon devoir, je crois qu'il n'est pas déraisonnable de demander qu'un vote soit pris sur ce sujet aussi promptement que possible.

Une autre objection a été faite à mon bill par M DeRussy contre cette disposition qui veut que l'ingénieur soit citoyen de l'Etat. M DeRussy nous a parlé des services dont l'Etat se prive volontairement et gratuitement. Il nous a dit qu'un étranger pouvait être plus éclairé, plus habile, plus compétent; cela peut être en effet. Mais l'hon. membre a oublié qu'il ne s'agit pas seulement d'habileté. Il s'agit de fonctions extrêmement délicates sous tous les rapports. Cet ingénieur est l'homme chargé du maniement des fonds. C'est lui qui ordonne et qui paye. C'est par ses mains que passera tout l'argent. Voilà pourquoi j'ai désiré que cet ingénieur fût un citoyen de l'Etat.

L'objection faite par le sénateur à propos de l'ingénieur devrait selon moi s'appliquer aussi bien, à une seule exception près, à tous les autres officiers de l'Etat. Pourquoi chercher ailleurs que dans votre Etat un Ingénieur? N'en avons-nous pas un bon nombre intelligents, experimentés et capables, qui accepteraient la place? Mais non, il faut chercher un ingénieur dans un autre Etat, peut-être dans un autre monde. Le sénateur fait aussi objection à ce que l'on demande des sécurités. Cela me semble fort en contradiction avec la déclaration qu'a faite déjà le sénateur, que le bill n'exigeait pas des garanties pécuniaires suffisantes. Laissez-moi le demander encore: pouvons-nous confier de si vastes, de si immenses intérêts à un étranger qui ne connaît pas nos lois, qui ne connaît pas nos intérêts, et peut-être même ne s'en soucie aucunement? Nous avons assez d'hommes de talent dans notre Etat pour être dispensés d'en aller chercher ailleurs.

Une autre objection faite par le Sénateur est, que l'ingénieur, lorsqu'il sera élu, sera choisi dans telle ou telle localité. Mais quel système peut obvier à cela? S'il est nommé au lieu d'être élu, ne sera-t-il pas aussi bien de telle ou telle localité? Et celui qui le nommera ne sera-t-il pas lui-même de telle ou telle localité? Donc, s'il est soumis à des influences sectionnelles, à des partialités dans un cas, il le sera aussi bien dans l'autre. Le sénateur est lui-même un ingénieur de grand talent; il est du nord de l'Etat; s'il était nommé, le fait qu'il est du nord, au lieu d'être du sud, de l'est ou de l'ouest de l'Etat diminuerait-il en aucune manière son talent, son aptitude à remplir les devoirs de la place?

Je n'ignore pas, M le Président, que beaucoup de personnes sont opposées à ce qu'on laisse au peuple l'élection des officiers publics; mais jamais je n'aurais soupçonné que l'opposition vînt du lieu d'où elle sort aujourd'hui; qu'elle vînt de membres d'un parti dont un des articles de foi est la confiance dans l'intelligence du peuple. Le Président des Etats-Unis est élu par le peuple; il en est de même du Gouverneur de l'Etat et de ses principaux officiers, des juges de nos cours et de l'officier qui préside avec tant de dignité à nos délibérations. Nous mêmes, ne sommes-nous pas élus par le peuple? Et l'on veut nous dire que le peuple ne peut pas élire un ingénieur civil. Mais quelles qualifications extraordinaires, quels rares talents sont donc nécessaires pour cet emploi, que le peuple ne puisse pas faire l'élection? Faut-il qu'une auréole à son front le désigne aux suffrages, et faut-il que les mages venus de l'Orient viennent brûler à ses pieds l'encens et la myrrhe.

Pour moi, M le Président, je suis d'avis que le peuple peut faire un choix très judiciaire, et je crois qu'il a tout autant le droit d'élire l'ingénieur qu'aucun autre des officiers de l'Etat. Je ne crois pas que nous devions continuer un système qui est impraticable et qui n'amène pas d'autre résultat que des dépenses énormes, un système sous lequel tout le mal fait n'est attribuable à personne en particulier.

M DeRussy—Je réclamerai encore pour quelques instants seulement l'attention du Sénat pendant que je réponds à quelques unes des observations du préopinant, le sénateur de la Nlle-Orléans. Le bill présenté par lui décrète que l'ingénieur fournira un bond, et il semble croire que cela est un point très important, quoiqu'il dise lui-même que ce bond a été réduit de $50,000 à $25,000. Il ne faut pas perdre de vue que l'ingénieur aura le contrôle de tous les fonds des terres marécageuses et des améliorations intérieures; qu'il aura le droit et le pouvoir de payer toutes les sommes dues pour quelques travaux que ce soit. Le bond requis semble être de que que importance; mais si nous considérons qu'il n'est que de $25,000, nous voyons qu'il est bien loin d'être satisfaisant. Cet officier aura le contrôle peut-être de $1,000,000, et son cautionnement ne sera que de $25,000. Que signifie un cautionnement de cette valeur?

Autre chose encore, la manière dont l'ingénieur devra être choisi. Le sénateur insiste pour qu'il soit élu par le peuple, et à ce sujet il a fait un long discours sur le droit du peuple de choisir ses propres officiers. Ces discours-là font de l'effet aux polls un jour d'élection; mais au Sénat ils ne signifient et ne prouvent rien; ces discours-là n'ont aucune portée sur les esprits raisonnables. Pour moi je ne crains pas de prendre cette position. Je dis et je répète que le peuple n'a pas encore le droit d'élire un ingénieur; il ne l'aura que si ce bill passe. Bien plus, je crois que le peuple n'attachera pas très grande importance à l'exercice de ce droit dont le sénateur fait tant de bruit; je pense bien, au contraire, qu'il n'a et n'aura jamais aucun désir de se mêler de choses auxquelles il n'entend rien. Je suis persuadé que dans la partie de l'Etat que je représente, le peuple n'a pas le moindre désir de faire cette élection, ou s'il l'a, c'est que je suis grandement dans l'erreur. Si cet officier est élu par le peuple, il sera, sans le moindre doute, exposé à des préjugés, à des influences sectionnelles. Il n'aura pas les mêmes attentions, les mêmes prévenances pour ceux qui ont fait opposition à son élection que pour ceux qui l'auront favorisée. Ce résultat est infaillible, inévitable.

M. le Président, si des considérations d'économie ont présidé à la rédaction de ce bill, je pense, moi, que l'économie peut être obtenue d'une manière beaucoup plus simple en abolissant tout simplement quelques uns des emplois publics inutiles ou superflus. Le sénateur nous dit que le revenu du fonds des améliorations intérieures est de $75,000. Je demanderai s'il est nécessaire que deux officiers dépensent conjointement ce revenu. Si nous avons un bon ingénieur et qu'il soit bien payé, qu'avons-nous besoin d'un assistant ingénieur? Lorsque j'étais ici l'année dernière nous n'avions pas d'assistant-ingénieur, et je ne vois pas du tout que la loi nous autorise à en nommer un. En organisant les quatre districts de terres, ce qui, selon moi, sera nécessaire, je regrette de voir qu'il en résultera une augmentation du salaire du commissaire et de l'ingénieur; car aussi bien que le sénateur de la Nile-Orléans, je suis en faveur de l'économie. Quant aux frais de voyage auxquels le sénateur a fait allusion, je suppose qu'il admettra que les voyages sont nécessaires et qu'ils nécessiteront des frais. L'ingénieur ne sera-t-il pas, d'après ce bill, forcé de faire des voyages? et ces voyages n'occasionneront-ils pas des frais? S'il ne le fait pas, il ne pourra remplir son devoir. Si l'on tient tant à l'économie, un moyen bien facile d'y arriver serait, comme je l'ai déja dit, de fondre en une seule place les places du commissaire et de l'ingénieur.

Le sénateur a jugé convenable d'attaquer violemment le système actuel et de le dénoncer comme impraticable. Je ne partage pas son opinion sur ce point; je crois qu'en somme ce système est très bon; qu'il n'a besoin que de quelques légers amendements. L'année dernière il a fait beaucoup plus de bien que je ne pensais. Bien des travaux ont été faits déjà, et une besogne suffisante a été tracée pour toute l'année prochaine. Pourquoi en changer alors? Où est la nécessité de le faire? Si nous voulons à toute force faire un changement, eh bien, prenons notre temps, consultons-nous bien, sauvegardons surtout l'intérêt public, ne mettons pas ainsi tout d'abord le feu aux poudres; établissons un système qui puisse être permanent, et non un système qu'il faudra amender, refondre peut-être à la prochaine session. Dans tous les cas, je dois le dire, je préfère de beaucoup le système actuel à celui qu'on voudrait lui substituer.

M. Moore—Je crois devoir donner quelques explications sur la position que j'occupe relativement à ce bill. Je n'ai cependant pas l'intention de prononcer un long discours, ni de prendre une part bien active à la discussion. Je le crois d'autant plus nécessaire, qu'il a été fait allusion au bill que j'ai présenté au commencement de la session. Je réclame donc pour quelques instants seulement l'indulgence du Sénat. Comme le sénateur de la Nile Orléans, M. King, avait préparé avec le plus grand soin son bill, je consentis, par courtoisie envers lui, à mettre de côté le mien jusqu'à ce que le sien fût présenté. Je crois qu'on accordait généralement que le bill de la dernière session avait besoin d'amendements. Il était à certains égards impraticable, inintelligible même. Convaincu de ces défectuosités, j'entrepris de préparer un bill qui pût y porter remède. Je dois déclarer ici que selon moi le système actuel ne veut pas le Bureau des Travaux Publics ainsi que l'avait en vue la Constitution. Je crois que l'Etat devrait être divisé en districts et que les commissaires devraient être nommés par le peuple ainsi que le voulait la Constitution; que ces commissaires devraient recevoir, non pas un salaire annuel, mais un per diem pour le temps pendant lequel ils seraient en service actif; que sous leur surveillance un ingénieur et des ingénieurs devraient diriger les travaux. Mais ce qu'a décidé l'autre Chambre me convainquit qu'il serait inutile de rédiger un bill conformément à ces données et aux vues de la Constitution. Alors je me posai cette question: fallait-il laisser subsister le système actuel tel qu'il est avec toutes ses imperfections, tous ses défauts, ou l'amender de telle sorte qu'il répondît mieux à ce qu'on en attend? Il me semblait évident que le fonds des améliorations intérieures ne pourrait durer que peu de temps encore; que ce fonds serait bientôt épuisé. Il faudrait donc alors attribuer aux commissaires les fonctions de l'ingénieur ou à l'ingénieur celles des commissaires. Pour cette raison je considérai ce bill comme très économique. Le département de l'ingénieur des améliorations intérieures coûte en salaires &c, &c, $15,000. Les dépenses des Terres Marécageuses, au taux de l'année dernière, s'élèveraient à $16,000, ce qui ferait un total de dépense annuelle de $31,000. Sous l'empire de ce bill, le total des salaires, dépenses courantes &c, &c, est porté à $20,000. Mais les $21,000 du système actuel seront probablement augmentées d'environ $5,000, rendues nécessaires par la création d'un nouveau district additionnel qui, nous dit-on, est absolument indispensable. Ces dépenses se trouveraient donc portées à environ $36,000, ce qui certes établit un contraste frappant avec l'autre bill.

Maintenant, M. le Président, mon opinion est que si notre intention est bien arrêtée de détruire, ou du moins de mettre de côté cet article de la Constitution qui décrète l'établissement d'un Bureau de Travaux Publics, nous devons adopter à sa place le système le plus économique, sans qui joint à l'efficacité l'économie si désirée. Je partage l'opinion émise par le sénateur de la Nile-Orléans relativement à l'inopportunité de dépenser de fortes sommes d'argent en salaires inutiles, et je crois que le système actuel coûtera, rien que de cette manière $36,000 par an.

Ainsi que je l'ai dit déjà, je préfère le Bureau des Travaux Publics ainsi qu'il est décrété par la Constitution. Sous ce système, l'ancien bureau des travaux publics a coûté seulement $1,600 par an, et il était composé de neuf membres. Le tait alloué qu'environ $100 de dépenses casuelles; c'est tout ce qui était jugé nécessaire, et cependant, ce bureau a exécuté de grands travaux. Si nous révoquions l'article de la Constitution auquel j'ai fait allusion, adoptons du moins un système qui présente des avantages réels, Le bill qui est maintenant devant le Sénat offre sans contredit le plan le plus économique et en même temps le plus efficace pour l'emploi du fonds des améliorations intérieures, quoique néanmoins il peut y être fait plus d'une objection.

M Wickliffe—La proposition du sénateur de Concordia (M Rivers) a toute mon approbation. Si je la comprends bien, elle est comme suit: il propose de présenter une résolution ayant pour but d'éprouver le sentiment du Sénat quant aux mérites relatifs du système actuel et du système proposé par le bill du sénateur de la Nlle Orléans, (M King).

Maintenant, M le Président, quant à la question d'économie, à laquelle le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans attache tant d'importance, je crois que ce projet est bien plus acceptable que celui qui est contenu dans sa proposition.

Qu'on examine attentivement ce bill et l'on verra que mis en pratique il donnera lieu à plus de frais, à plus de dépenses que le système actuel, qu'il a tant attaqué pour des raisons d'économie, disait-il. Prenons pour exemple un seul article, une seule section: n'y a-t-il pas une qui alloue $4,000 aux dépenses casuelles?

M King—Cette section a été effacée.

M Wickliffe—Je prends le bill tel qu'il est. J'ignore entièrement quels amendements le comité y a faits. Le bill dont je parle est celui qui nous a été soumis. D'après ce bill, l'assistant-ingénieur doit toucher un salaire de $1,800 et les autres un salaire de $2.500. Ainsi les salaires réunis s'élèveraient tout d'abord a $7,000; puis, les vêtements nécessaires aux travailleurs, la nourriture, tout cela doit être fourni, et sont ce des frais nuls? De plus, ne faudra-t-il pas des ouvriers additionnels? Du reste, je n'approuve pas qu'on donne tant de pouvoirs à un seul homme. Le Sénateur objecte que la responsabilité étant plus grande, sera mieux sentie. Une responsabilité! mais envers qui? Envers personne. Le sénateur sait très bien que cette responsabilité sur laquelle il insiste avec tant d'emphase n'est rien qu'une chimère.

Mais passons à d'autres sections du bill; par exemple à la 14me. Que dit-elle? Je vais en donner lecture:

Section 14. Il est de plus décrété &c, Qu'afin que le dit ingénieur civil puisse pousser avec vigueur les travaux de desséchement et de construction de levées, il sera autorisé à employer un assistant-ingénieur pour chacun des districts ci-dessus désignés toutes les fois que, dans son opinion, cette assistance sera nécessaire; les dits assistants-ingénieurs seront payés mensuellement ou par quartiers au taux de $3,000 par an pendant le temps qu'ils seront en service actif, sur le mandat de l'ingénieur civil de l'Etat et sur un certificat de lui, attestant que le dit assistant-ingénieur a réellement été occupé aux dits travaux et qu'il a bien et dûment gagné l'argent demandé pour le paiement de son salaire. Il aura le pouvoir de renvoyer les dits assistants-ingénieurs toutes les fois qu'il le jugera convenable, et il sera de son devoir de les renvoyer toutes les fois qu'ils ne sont pas réellement et activement employés aux travaux publics ci dessus décrits. Les dits assistants-ingénieurs, pendant le temps qu'ils seront ainsi employés, ne s'occuperont d'aucune autre chose, mais ils consacreront tout leur temps et toute leur attention aux devoirs de la place qu'ils remplissent. Ils n'auront pas le droit de demander ou de recevoir des appointements pour aucun autre service personnel ou professionnel rendu par eux pendant leur terme d'office.

Par cette section, les assistants-ingénieurs de chaque district peuvent être nommés pour chacun d'eux; mais ils ne seront payés que pour le temps pendant lequel ils auront réellement été en activité, au taux de $3 000 par an. Nous savons tous, M. le Président, qu'on ne peut obtenir les services d'un ingénieur compétent à moins de $3,000 par an, et même ce prix est très minime. La raison en est évidente. D'abord, un ingénieur doit être un homme d éducation; de plus, il doit avoir une longue expérience de sa profession. Il y a déjà bien des demandes sans doute; mais les appliquants demandent bien plus que la somme stipulée, plus de $3,000

La section dont nous nous occupons dit aussi que les ingénieurs doivent donner tout leur temps à l'exercice de leurs fonctions comme officiers de l'Etat; cela donnera lieu, en moyenne, à une dépense additionnelle d'au moins $12,000; car, je le répète, il est moralement impossible d'obtenir un bon ingénieur à moins de $3,000 par an.

Puis vient la 15me section. Si le Sénat le permet, je la soumettrai fragment par fragment à sa considération, et j'appellerai son attention sur ce qui, selon moi, est en opposition avec les idées d'économie sur lesquelles on a tant appuyé, sur les idées de parsimonie même, si nous nous arrêtons à la signification précise des articles sur lesquels le sénateur a longuement et fréquemment insisté.

Le secrétaire donne lecture de la 15me section.

Y a-t-il là rien qui commande l'attention? ne faut-il pas seulement une minute, une seconde de réflexion pour se convaincre que c'est toujours le même cercle vicieux dans lequel on se meut? que c'est la même arène autour de laquelle on tourne, le même corral dans lequel le vacchero s'agite et se fatigue son lasso à la main?

M le Président, je termine ici en déclarant que, quoiqu'il puisse être dit, et quoiqu'on ait pu dire, ce bill ne réalise aucune des conditions que nous cherchons, que nous demandons.

M Moore—Ma pensée n'est pas bien interprêtée et les chiffres que j'ai cités sont mal représentés.

M King—Je n'ai cité que le chiffre exact que le sénateur avait dit: $21,000.

M Wickliffe—Tout cela est oiseux. Il y a déjà trop longtemps que le Sénat est occupé de cette interminable question. Arrivons à une solution.

On parle de responsabilité! Mais voyons donc ce que dit le bill dans les sections 7 et 8:

Sec 7. Il est de plus décrété, &c. Qu'il nommera et démettra de leurs fonctions les officiers et les personnes que la loi autorise à être employés aux travaux d'améliorations intérieures faits par l'Etat.

Il emploiera, à la charge du fonds appropriés aux améliorations intérieures, des capitaines et des équipages de navires, des surintendants d'ouvrages speciaux, des ouvriers, toutes les fois que, dans son opinion, ce sera nécessaire. Le salaire des dits employés devra être au plus bas prix possible, mais il ne conservera jamais en fonctions les dites personnes plus longtemps qu'il ne faudra pour l'achèvement des dits travaux publics. Le salaire des dits employés devra être payé sur le mandat de l'ingénieur civil, et sur un certificat de lui déclarant que les travaux ont été faits et que la somme est bien et justement due, le tout approuvé par l'auditeur des comptes publics.

Sec. 8. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que le bureau de l'ingénieur civil sera tenu au siege du gouvernement et que des appartements convenables à cette fin lui seront assignés dans la maison d'Etat, et que le bureau de l'Ingénieur de l'Etat, tel qu'il existait antérieurement, sera aboli et remplacé par celui de l'Ingénieur Civil, dès que celui-ci entrera dans l'exercice de ses fonctions.

Ne sont-elles pas en opposition directe avec tout ce que l'on demande avec tant d'insistance? Ne sont elles pas en opposition directe avec les idées émises par tous ceux qui insistent tant et tant sur l'économie, la simplicité, la clarté, la facilité du système d'améliorations intérieures?

M. Ryan.—Ce bill me paraît avoir une grande importance pour le bien général de l'Etat, et je représente une section qui est aussi profondément intéressée à cette question que toute autre section de la Louisiane. En donnant mon vote, je m'efforcerai de bannir tout sentiment qui ne serait pas celui du bien public. Je ne me laisserai pas aller à parler des fautes des autres, et je ne chercherai pas non plus à fortifier une cause en accusant d'autres personnes ou d'autres bills; car ce n'est pas, à mes yeux, un argument contre ce bill ni contre tout autre. Je ne sais pas un mot de l'histoire de l'expédition Ricker. Mais je crois qu'il est indigne d'un sénateur de citer ce qui a été fait pour ou contre cette mesure comme un argument pour ou contre ce bill. Quand bien même un sénateur se serait trompé sur cette question, quand bien même il aurait été coupable d'inconséquence, ce ne serait pas une raison pour que nous ayons à nous reporter à l'attitude particulière de tel ou tel membre, dans telle ou telle question, lorsque cette question n'a aucun rapport avec celle qui se débat devant nous. Pour ma part, messieurs, je veux rester étranger à de telles considérations et ne voir que les mérites intrinsèques du bill. Parceque le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans peut avoir eu tort dans une circonstance donnée, il ne s'en suit pas qu'il doive nécessairement se tromper maintenant. Cela ne fait pas question pour moi, et il en doit être de même pour tous mes collègues. La discussion doit porter, et porter uniquement sur l'administration d'un certain fonds et sur les pouvoirs administratifs confiés à certains officiers Maintenant, messieurs, je crois que la législation de la dernière session était radicalement erronnée. Je respecte les sénateurs qui ont participé au passage du bill, et je crois qu'ils ont été poussés a ce vote par les meilleurs motifs ; mais je suis obligé de déclarer que leur travail est défectueux et peu en harmonie avec les exigences de la situation. C'est pourquoi je suis d'avis qu'un changement radical doit être opéré. L'intention du Congrès en passant la loi en vertu de laquelle les terres marécageuses ont été données à l'Etat, était de faire profiter toute la population de la Louisiane aux bienfaits de cette donation. Si, à l'époque on eût passé une loi défendant la vente de ces terres jusqu'à ce qu'elles eussent été améliorées et par là rendues cultivables et par conséquent d'une plus grande valeur, nous en aurions vu les excellents effets Si nous avions adopté le plan de réclamer les terres, et qu'ensuite nous les eussions mises en vente, nous aurions reçu des sommes énormes en retour, notre trésor se serait empli et nous aurions pu payer les dettes de l'Etat. Alors, les intentions du donateur seraient remplies. Mais la dernière législature a cru à propos d'adopter une marche différente, une marche qui est tout à fait en désaccord avec les désirs et les intentions des donateurs. Je suis opposé à la motion qui a été faite par le sénateur de Concordia. Je préférerais que le bill fût renvoyé à demain, et qu'on prît une décision définitive.

C'est là un sujet assez important pour ne pas être mis aux voix avant que nous soyons assez nombreux pour décider ; et aussi pour ne pas être précipité. Il est nécessaire que les esprits se calment et se concilient, afin qu'il y ait de l'harmonie dans le vote. C'est un devoir confié à notre honneur, de faire exécuter les volontés du Congrès et les conditions sous lesquelles il a fait la donation à l'Etat. Pour arriver à ce but, nous devons nous entendre à l'amiable, et éviter toute aigreur dans la discussion.

Un juge impartial trouverait certainement qu'il y a de bonnes raisons des deux côtés ; et que ni l'un ni l'autre des deux camps n'a entièrement tort ni complètement raison. Laissons-nous donc conduire à une conclusion par les chemins que nous a ouverts la discussion. Prenons aux deux parties ce que chacun peut avoir de bon. Ni l'un ni l'autre système n'est parfait, car la perfection n'appartient pas à la nature de l'homme. Bornons-nous à faire le meilleur bill qu'il nous sera possible ; et laissez-moi vous dire ici que personne n'est plus antipathique que moi aux semblants de démagogie, qui n'est qu'une flatterie hypocrite adressée aux plus basses passions de la multitude. Sans doute, je désire de voir le peuple en pleine possession de ses droits légitimes ; mais je n'abaisserai jamais ma dignité jusqu'à flatter la populace. Je n'ai pas à me reprocher d'avoir jamais dérogé à cette règle de conduite. J'espère donc que dans cette auguste assemblée de sénateurs réunie ici pour donner au pays des lois qui assurent sa gloire et sa prospérité, je n'entendrai plus cette accusation de flatterie de la populace. Si le bill introduit par le sénateur de la Nouvelle Orléans est bon, adoptons le. Je ne suppose pas qu'il puisse y avoir aucune objection de quelque valeur à l'élection d'un Ingénieur par le peuple. On peut bien parler d'influences locales et de partialités ; mais le pouvoir exécutif, si on lui laisse le pouvoir de faire lui-même cette nomination, n'est-il donc pas également susceptible de céder aussi à des influences du même genre, ne peut-il pas aussi céder aux sollicitations de ses amis et de ses favoris; et ne vaut-il pas mieux que l'élection soit faite par le peuple, qui, lui, est moins sujet à se tromper? Laissons donc l'élection au peuple, c'est-à-dire à ceux dont cet officier doit protéger les intérêts; et ne vous en remettez pas à un Gouverneur qui, rarement, est en état de connaître par lui-même, la personne qu'il nomme, mais s'abandonne aux influences des conseillers secrets et irresponsables qui l'entourent.

M. Moore.—Je désire rectifier une erreur qui s'est glissée dans les calculs présentés dans cette discussion. En faisant mon estimation des dépenses, j'avais raisonné dans la pensée qu'il y aurait quatre districts, et par conséquent deux assistants ingénieurs. Il se trouve que je me suis trompé, et que j'ai fait conséquemment une erreur de $4,000.

En examinant le rapport de l'Ingénieur de l'Etat, je remarque que durant l'année dernière il a dépensé $10,600. Cependant dans les deux cas, les frais relatifs seraient les mêmes. Les dépenses se trouvant réduites des deux parts, la comparaison en faveur du bill serait de $13,000 au lieu de $15 000.

M. Defreese.—Je pense, messieurs, qu'il faut en finir avec ce bill. Si on a des objections à y faire sur quelques points, examinons le section par section, et amendons le là où il a besoin d'être amendé, au lieu de l'abandonner dans les cartons. Pour ma part, je ne m'oppose pas à l'élection de l'Ingénieur par le peuple. Appelez comme vous voudrez cette mesure, je la crois juste. Je pense qu'il faut qu'on doit s'en rapporter au peuple. Le fondement de nos institutions est précisément cette doctrine qui consiste à placer dans le peuple toute capacité pour élire ses officiers. C'est lui qui profite de l'élection ou qui en souffre S'il choisit des agents indignes ou incapables, c'est sur lui que le dommage retombe.

C'est donc lui qui est le meilleur arbitre. On peut donner à ces principes le nom de doctrines démagogiques, je veux bien m'exposer aux risques de cette accusation, ce ne sera pas sur une semblable objection que je me départirai d'une conviction raisonnée. Le principe de l'élection populaire a toujours été contesté par ceux qui se méfient du peuple et qui en ont peur. On n'a pas craint de dire dans l'origine que si le peuple était libre de choisir ses propres officiers, il serait les plus mauvais choix. L'innovation fut cependant faite, et l'expérience a donné tort à ces esprits méfiants et timides. Le peuple a-t-il perdu à ce changement? Tout au contraire, le résultat n'a-t-il pas pleinement justifié les espérances des amis des droits du peuple? Et pourquoi adopterions-nous une marche différente en ce qui regarde l'Ingénieur? Il est vrai qu'un Ingénieur doit posséder certaines qualités spéciales; mais le bill n'est pas muet à cet égard Il s'explique et déclare que l'officier à élire par le peuple, devra être un Ingénieur praticien.

Personne ne serait éligible s'il n'avait cette qualité. Personne ne pourrait se porter candidat à cette fonction, avec quelque espoir de succès Mais si un homme compétent se met sur les rangs est-ce que par hasard ce serait lui faire perdre quelque chose de sa capacité que d'ajouter à ses qualités celle de l'élection par le peuple Si le peuple est toujours dirigé par des motifs impurs, si le peuple est ce qu'on essaie de nous le faire voir, alors il faut aller droit au but; il faut le priver de ce droit d'élire ses officiers; car dans les mains d'un être déraisonnable ou malfaisant, ce droit est une arme dangereuse. Mais, si au contraire, nous nous rappelons que l'honnêteté est le principe qui domine la communauté, nous ne pouvons pas douter de l'attitude du peuple à choisir des officiers compétents. L'honorable sénateur des Rapides avait raison de dire que le peuple n'est pas seul susceptible d'agir sous de mauvaises influences. Ces mêmes influences peuvent agir sur toutes les autres personnes à qui vous confierez le pouvoir de nommer à ces fonctions. Si le pouvoir exécutif est investi du droit de nommer l'Ingénieur, nous dira-t-on que sa haute position le met à l'abri des faiblesses inhérentes à la nature humaine; que seul dans tout l'Etat il n'a pas d'amis qu'il veuille favoriser, ou d'ennemis dont il veuille tirer vengeance? Si les officiers publics sont seuls exempts des faiblesses humaines, alors je suis d'accord avec mes opposants, il faut s'en remettre à eux de la nomination des fonctionnaires. Mais si ce n'est là qu'une vaine déclamation, s'il est vrai, au contraire, qu'un homme soit plus facile à émouvoir que des masses, et qu'il s'abandonne plus facilement qu'elles à des sentiments égoïstes, alors comment hésiter entre lui et le peuple? On a dit que l'Ingénieur devait être un homme d'une éducation distinguée et d'une grande habileté; qu'il ne fallait pas qu'il fût inférieur à la position qu'il aspirait à occuper. Messieurs, je ne désire pas de voir en fonctions un homme si fort élevé au-dessus de ses concitoyens, dans la crainte qu'il ne voulût plus se mêler familièrement avec eux sur le pied d'égalité; et d'un autre côté, je ne pense pas non plus que le peuple se respecte assez peu pour exiger d'un homme, avant de lui donner son appui, qu'il descende de sa dignité au point de le flatter bassement; je crois même que si un candidat s'abaissait ainsi devant lui, loin de savourer un indigne encens, le peuple le rejetterait dans les bas-fonds de l'obscurité. Peu m'importe à présent que l'expression d'une telle opinion vous paraisse démagogique; peu m'importe que vous l'appeliez "flatterie de la populace," ou que vous la stigmatisiez de tel nom que vous jugerez à propos de choisir.

Il est une autre face de la discussion, à laquelle je désirerais faire allusion. On a dit beaucoup de choses à propos de la responsabilité. Maintenant, messieurs, je ne crois pas que la responsabilité soit diminuée par la concentration. Je ne crois pas que la responsabilité soit plus grande quand elle tombe sur un seul que quand elle repose sur un grand nombre. Les mêmes arguments employés contre le favoritisme local peuvent s'appliquer aussi bien à une personne qu'à quatre personnes. Je ne pense pas que l'Ingénieur, parce qu'il serait élu par le peuple, se laissât influencer par l'esprit de favoritisme local plus que ne le ferait un Ingénieur nommé par l'Exécutif. Je suis convaincu, au contraire, qu'aussitôt après son élection, il oublierait qu'il a résidé dans une section particulière de l'Etat, et agirait avec impartialité. Et s'il désirait conserver ses fonctions, ce serait en effet la seule conduite qu'il aurait à tenir. Car, comment pourrait-il espérer de conserver sa position s'il favorisait ses voisins immédiats? Il ne le pourrait, vous le savez fort bien, qu'en conciliant les intérêts de l'Etat entier S'il arrivait qu'en effet il déployât quelque partialité, ce serait alors une partialité éclairée, une partialité commandée par la nécessité.

Le bill, messieurs, a de plus, l'avantage d'apporter une notable économie dans l'administration de nos travaux d'améliorations intérieures On a dit qu'il conférait un pouvoir trop grand à un homme en plaçant dans ses mains la libre disposition d'une somme immense; qu'il n'y a pas une responsabilité suffisante; que l'Ingénieur n'est pas assez entouré de moyens de restriction, qu'il peut dissiper l'argent, ou être influencé, dans l'usage qu'il en fera, par d'indignes sentiments s'il n'est pas un honnête homme. Je répète que je ne comprends pas pourquoi un homme serait plus exposé à de pareilles influences que quatre. On oublie, d'ailleurs, qu'il devra fournir une caution, et je suis d'avis, pour ma part, que cette caution soit plutôt augmentée que diminuée.

Tel qu'il est, le bill est bien préférable au système actuel ou à tout autre système requérant un plus grand nombre de fonctionnaires. Et quand à ce qui est de la prétendue partialité causée par l'esprit local, je ne veux l'attribuer qu'à la chaleur de la polémique. Cet argument est tombé sous la main, et on l'a prise sans en examiner la valeur. L'Ingénieur doit être élu par le peuple, et le serment qu'il aura à prêter est prescrit par le bill. Le peuple louisianais voudrait-il élire un homme qui serait disposé à violer son serment solennel? Je ne le crois pas.

Il est un autre point qu'on a encore attaqué dans le bill, et que je suis prêt à défendre. C'est cette disposition qui déclare que l'Ingénieur doit être citoyen de l'Etat. Remarquez que le bill ne demande pas d'où il vient, ni où il est né. Peu nous importe qu'il ait reçu le jour sur ce sol républicain ou sur la terre opprimée de l'Europe: Non, ce n'est pas là ce que nous demandons Il peut être né en Chine, cela nous est bien indifférent. S'il est capable, il sera éligible. Mais ce que nous voulons, c'est que le Gouverneur ou le peuple ne puis-se pas choisir, pour l'élever à cette fonction, un homme dont les sentiments, les vues, les tendances, les sympathies, les intérêts, ne soient pas identiques avec les intérêts de l'Etat. Je ne m'arrêterai pas plus longtemps sur ce sujet ; je craindrai de fatiguer le Sénat par de plus longs développements. Je réitère seulement au Sénat le désir que j'aurais de le voir passer à l'examen du bill section par section, afin qu'il puisse être amendé, puis adopté, s'il y a lieu ; car, pour moi, je considère que le système apporté par le bill est beaucoup plus conforme aux intérêts de l'Etat que celui qui nous régit.

M. De Russy.—Messieurs, afin d'élairer le Sénat sur un point de quelque importance, et qui paraît être resté entouré d'une certaine obscurité; je demanderai la permission de relire ici la quatrième section du bill. Elle est ainsi conçue:

Sec. 4. Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que nul ne sera éligible à la place d'Ingénieur Civil de l'Etat, s'il n'est, à l'époque de son élection, votant légal dans les élections des officiers de l'Etat, s'il ne possède pas la théorie et la pratique comme ingénieur civil, et s'il est prévaricateur

On voit par l'examen de ce texte que le bill oblige l'Ingénieur à être pourvu de certaines qualités qui y sont spécifiées.

Ces qualités sont essentiellement nécessaires ; mais qui donc, je vous le demande, sera le juge de la question de savoir s'il les a ou ne les a pas? Qui décidera s'il est ou non bon ingénieur? C'est fort bien de nous dire que le bill exige que l'Ingénieur soit versé dans sa profession ; mais tout le monde comprend que ce n'est là qu'une vaine exigence quand il n'y a personne qui soit juge du fait jusqu'à ce que l'officier en fonctions ait fait voir son incapacité par ses actions, et alors quel remède y aurait-il si on démontrait qu'il n'a pas les qualités voulues par la loi? J'admets que le département de l'Ingénieur demande une reforme. Personne ne peut nier cela, et je suis le premier à le reconnaître. Le rapport de l'Ingénieur d'Etat montre qu'il a maintenant en mains autant de travaux qu'il en pourra executer en dix ans. Mais pouvez vous remédier à ce mal en le chargeant, en addition à ses propres devoirs, des travaux incidents qui appartiennent à l'administration du fonds des terres marécageuses? Chacun reconnaîtra l'absurdité d'une telle proposition. Je crois que l'Ingénieur d'Etat a fait de son mieux et selon les circonstances. Je ne désire pas l'accuser d'avoir manqué d'énergie. Mais il est impossible, avec un revenu de $15,000 seulement, et les faibles ressources dont il dispose, il est impossible, dis-je, qu'il fasse beaucoup de travaux. Il est donc évident pour moi, que ce département a besoin d'une réorganisation. Nous avons ici devant nous des propositions pour l'appropriation de différentes sommes qu'on voudrait employer à l'exécution de travaux à faire par l'Ingénieur de l'Etat. Cependant on vient nous dire que nous avons diminué ses embarras en faisant reposer sur lui tous les travaux du fonds des terres marécageuses. Mais une réorganisation complète et praticable ne peut pas se faire en un jour. C'est là un sujet trop important pour être traité légèrement. Passons encore cette année comme cela, et l'année prochaine avec un peu plus d'expérience acquise nous ferons quelque chose de plus avantageux et de plus certain. Ce bill, je regrette de le dire, ne remplit pas l'objet qu'il se propose. Si nous l'adoptons, les résultats n'en pourront être que malheureux. Le présent système n'est pas en lui-même un mauvais système, quoiqu'il ait besoin d'être amendé ou modifié. Nous l'avons expérimenté pendant un an, et jusqu'à ce que nous trouvions que que chose d'evidemment supérieur, nous devons le conserver, car, en somme, il a passablement fonctionné Bornons-nous donc à des amendements et modifications et nous agirons plus prudemment qu en le démolissant tout d'un coup pour faire une expérience nouvelle. Je demande donc que le bill soit déposé sur la table, pour être appelé plus tard.

M. King.—Je dois dire que j'espère que la motion de l'honorable membre ne prévaudra pas J'ai donné tous mes soins a la rédaction de ce bill, et il a été mal compris sur plusieurs points particuliers par les opposants Rien donc de plus franc et de plus loyal que de vouloir bien accorder un moment d'attention aux défenseurs du bill, afin qu'ils puissent en rétablir le véritable sens, et le faire voir sous son vrai jour. Le sénateur de Natchitoches, a fait un appel en faveur du présent système, en disant que nous ne l'avons pas encore assez expérimenté, et que nous devons le laisser fonctionner encore pendant un an. Si le système est bon, il faut le continuer, mais s'il est mauvais, changeons-le. Je ne connais pas de moyen terme. Si nous devons l'abolir à la fin de l'année prochaine, abolissons le plutôt tout de suite Les raisons pour lesquelles vous répudierez le système l'année prochaine, existent dès à present. On a objecté qu'en vertu de ce bill l'Ingénieur serait pris dans quelque localité particulière et que par conséquent il serait exposé à se laisser aller à des influences locales. Mais, messieurs, quand bien même votre objection serait fondée avez vous donc oublié ou omis de mentionner que le bill divise en même temps l'Etat en quatre districts, et que l'argent approprié pour chaque district devra être dépensé dans l'intérêt exclusif de ce district. Ainsi, il y aura moins d'influences à craindre sous l'empire de ce bill que dans le système actuel, et que dans aucun des systèmes qui ont été proposés Evidemment chacun des commissaires sera désireux de favoriser son propre district. Cela est tout naturel, mais n'offrira aucun danger par suite de la sage émotion introduite par le bill

On a aussi prétendu que le bill donne trop de pouvoir à l'Ingénieur. Ce pouvoir, si redoutable, qui a éveillé tant de sombres inquiétudes dans l'âme de certains sénateurs, consiste à régler la dépense de l'appropriation faite par la Législature, et conséquemment sous la surveillance de celle-ci, d'une somme d'environ soixante mille piastres par an.

On a représenté cette simple mission comme la dernière limite d'un pouvoir despotique, et à la seule pensée du bill, les opposants semblent avoir tremblé pour leurs fortunes. Le bill ne fait l'appropriation d'un cent ; il se borne à définir les devoirs inhérents à la fonction Quand une loi crée une fonction, il faut bien qu'elle dise en quoi consistera le devoir du fonctionnaire. C'est ce que fait le bill, et cependant cette simple définition est représentée comme l'établissement d'une monstrueuse tyrannie. Une accusation est d'abord faite sans preuves, puis d'autres s'en emparent et la répètent avec emphase sans s'en rendre compte, absolument comme on fait d'une monnaie qu'on accepte et qu'on remet dans la circulation sans s'être aperçu qu'elle est fausse. Cela n'arrive que trop fréquemment. Le poète satirique de l'ancienne Rome a dit ces paroles mémorables, que nous traduisons librement.

"Dis blanc, ton ennemi te fera dire noir."

Il est aisé de crier au chien enragé ; mais alors malheur à l'infortunée victime. On nous dit que le bill occasionnerait plus de dépenses que le présent système, quoiqu'il ne veuille qu'un officier au lieu de cinq. On nous dit encore que cinq coûteront moins qu'un. Par le bill, messieurs, il n'y aura plus que deux officiers salariés, l'Ingénieur et un assistant pour tenir les livres. Le bill est très rigide et s'explique très clairement sur la manière dont les travaux seront faits. Ils ne pourront plus être faits qu'à la tâche, et quand le travail sera terminé, alors seulement l'employé pourra être déchargé. Cette précaution, à elle seule, sauvera une somme considérable, et le Trésor n'aura plus à payer une bande de fonctionnaires.

Laissez-moi vous lire la section du bill qui renferme cette disposition.

Sect. 7. Il est de plus décrété, etc., Qu'il nommera et démettra de leurs fonctions les officiers et les personnes que la loi autorise à être employés aux travaux d'améliorations intérieures faits par l'Etat.

Il emploiera, à la charge du fonds approprié aux améliorations intérieures, des capitaines et des équipages de navires, des surintendants d'ouvrages spéciaux, des ouvriers toutes les fois que, dans son opinion, ce sera nécessaire. Le salaire des dits employés devra être au plus bas prix possible, mais il ne conservera jamais en fonctions lesdites personnes plus longtemps qu'il ne faudra pour l'achèvement des dits travaux publics. Le salaire des dits employés devra être payé sur le mandat de l'ingénieur civil et sur un certificat de lui déclarant que les travaux ont été faits et que la somme est bien et justement due, le tout approuvé par l'Auditeur des Comptes Publics.

Quand un ingénieur est employé, on exige de lui un certificat du même genre, et quand son travail est fait, on lui donne décharge. Nous payons pour le travail qui est fait, et quand il est fait De cette manière, nous n'avons plus cette foule de parasites qui mangent et sucent notre substance.

Je crois avoir répondu à toutes les objections faites contre le bill. Je crois les avoir complètement détruites. Le bill est aussi économique que possible. Le sénateur de St. Martin, vous a démontré que sous l'empire du système actuel $30,000 sur $90,000 étaient dépensées en frais d'administration. Il serait donc inutile et superflu de rien ajouter pour vous convaincre de la nécessité où nous sommes d'apporter une réforme économique dans ce département. Qui aura soin des deniers de l'Etat et de leur bon emploi, si ce n'est nous! Nous ne sommes pas venus ici pour faire de vains discours, mais pour réformer les abus. Où pouvez vous trouver un abus plus criant que celui-ci? Un tiers de la somme à dépenser dans un département si important pour l'Etat, est employé en frais d'administration. Cela ne saurait se tolérer plus longtemps. L'Etat perd annuellement $25,000 uniquement pour savoir comment il en dépensera $50,000. A-t on vu chose plus ridicule et plus pitoyable? Je ne fatiguerai donc pas le Sénat par de plus longs développements. La question doit être jugée dans son esprit Mais il est une disposition du bill, qui n'a pas satisfait le sénateur de Ouest Féliciana, c'est celle qui exige que l'Ingénieur soit un officier de l'Etat Mais, messieurs, je ne vois rien là que de très naturel Est-ce que ce n'est pas la loi commune? Est-ce que cette condition n'est pas exigée pour tous les officiers de l'Etat. Pourquoi faisons nous une exception pour ce cas particulier?

Je rappellerai en finissant l'importance du bill, la necessité de le voter sans délai, afin qu'il puisse être adopté par la Chambre basse avant l'ajournement de la Législature. Je crois que le Senat est en faveur du bill, et je serais heureux qu'on votât immédiatement.

Le Sénat décide que le bill ne sera pas déposé, et en conséquence la discussion continue :

Lecture est ensuite donnée de la résolution du sénateur de la paroisse de Concordia.

M Kenner.—Je demande qu'on insère les mots "conformément aux prescriptions de la Constitution."

M. Rivers.—J'accepte l'amendement.

M. Lacey —Si j'entends bien la résolution, elle a en vue d'établir un Bureau des Travaux Publics, conforme à celui dont parle la Constitution. Je voterai contre la proposition, ou plutôt j'en demanderai le dépôt provisoire. Je ne suis pas d'avis qu'on établisse un bureau de cette nature.

M. King.—L'effet de la proposition serait, par une voie indirecte, de tuer le bill. L'honorable membre veut charger au comité de faire un travail que jamais il ne fera, et qu'il lui est impossible de faire. La Chambre basse a, par un vote de 64 sur 65, abolir le bureau dont il s'agit ici. Maintenant, la proposition de rétablir ce bureau n'a d'autre but que de tuer indirectement le bill. L'effet serait pire à cette session qu'à la dernière. Nous devons agir sur ce bill immédiatement. Il est impossible qu'on le renvoie de nouveau à un comité, quel comité serait, je le répète, incapable de faire le travail qu'on réclamerait de lui. Quand je songe à la majorité qui a aboli ce bureau dans la Chambre, je ne puis voir dans la proposition d'autre intention que celle de tuer le bill.

M Wickliffe.—Je demande qu'on rejette l'amendement du sénateur de Concordia.

M. Kenner.—En offrant cet amendement, je veux simplement détruire le présent système qui est tout à la fois inefficace et inconstitutionnel, et que j'ai, d'ailleurs, combattu l'année dernière aussi vigoureusement que cette année. Je suis satisfait de penser que si j'avais pu ramener à mon opinion, la majorité du Sénat, il n'aurait jamais passé. Je suis heureux aussi de voir que le sénateur de la Nouvelle Orléans a fini par se ranger à mon opinion. Si le Sénat n'adopte pas la résolution, je voterai les principaux passages du bill introduit par le sénateur de la Nouvelle Orléans. Je considère le système actuel comme inefficace, et si je ne craignai d'abuser des moments du Sénat, j'entreprendrais de le prouver. Mais je n'ai pas le désir de tuer le bill: Au contraire, je compte le soutenir de mon vote.

Bills Présentés.

M. Rivers présente la résolution suivante:

Résolu que ce bill soit référé de nouveau au Comité des Améliorations à l'Intérieur, avec instruction de rapporter un acte pour amender un acte pour dessécher les terres marécageuses et inondées de manière à le rendre plus efficace et pour pourvoir à la formation d'un quatrième district de terre et un commissaire indépendant des autres.

M. Martel, sans en avoir donné avis au préalable, obtient la permission de présenter un bill intitulé :

Acte pour ratifier le cautionnement fourni par le shérif de la paroisse de St. Landry dans sa capacité officielle

M. Lacey présente la pétition de John Rowe, pour affranchir certains esclaves, et la pétition de Frances Marion, veuve de Francis Marion, g. c. l. pour l'affranchissement de son esclave Jerry.

Sur motion et après dispense des règles, le Sénat se dispense de la lecture de ces pétitions, et elles sont référées au Comité Judiciaire.

Sur motion de M. McCay, le Sénat s'occupe des bills suivants de la Chambre.

Acte pour amender et décréter de nouveau la 3e et la 30e sections d'un acte intitulé:

Digitized by Google

Acte pour pourvoir à l'assessement et la collection des taxes de cet Etat.

Et un acte pour amender la 10me section d'un acte pour organiser les Cours de District à la Nlle.-Orléans.

Sur motion de M. Lacey, le Sénat s'occupe du bill intitulé :

Acte pour pourvoir à la révision des lois de l'Etat, d'une nature générale.

M. Lawes obtient la permission de présenter un bill intitulé :

Acte pour déterminer les devoirs de notaires publics.

Message de la Chambre.

Le messager spécial de la Chambre vient demander le concours du Sénat aux bills suivants:

Acte pour le déboursé du fonds des écoles publiques dans les paroisses de l'Union et DeSoto.

Acte requérant un relevé des terres affectées aux écoles avant d'être vendues, et d'en régler la vente.

Acte pour amender un acte relatif aux avocats de district, approuvé le 29 mai 1846.

Acte pour établir les limites de la paroisse de Sabine et pour légaliser certains actes faits dans l'incertitude de la limite.

Acte pour protéger les marchands ou les vendeurs des produits de l'agriculture de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

Rapports des Comités.

M. Macmurdo, au nom du Comité de Finance, auquel a été référé un bill intitulé :

Acte pour venir au secours de Charles S. Leckie, Collecteur des Taxes d'Etat de la paroisse des Rapides pour l'année de 1850, fait un rapport favorable.

M. King, au nom du Comité des Améliorations à l'Intérieur, des terres marécageuses et des levées, présente le rapport suivant:

A l'Hon. W. W. Farmer, Lieutenant-Gouverneur et Président du Sénat

Le Comité des Améliorations à l'Intérieur, des terres innondées et des levées, auquel a été référé l'acte pour autoriser la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans à souscrire au fonds capital de la compagnie du Chemin de fer de Pontchartrain, à l'effet d'aider la dite compagnie à construire un chemin de fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans à la Mobile, à l'honneur de rapporter:

Le comité accepte les amendements suivants: à la 2de section, au second paragraphe, à la 19me ligne, d'effacer les mots "taxe spéiale sur propriétés et esclaves", et d'insérer au lieu et place les mots "taxe spéciale"; dans la 3me section, à la 9me ligne, d'effacer le mot "résolution" et d'insérer au lieu et place "ordonnance"; dans la 5me section, à la 32me ligne, d'effacer les mots "et aussi souvent qu'ils le jugeront convenable" et d'insérer au lieu et place les mots "dans les deux ans qui suivront la passation de ce bill"; dans la 5me section, à la 33me ligne, d'effacer le mot "deux" et d'insérer le mot "six"; dans la 6me section, à la 6me ligne, d'ajouter immédiatement après le mot "compagnie" les mots "après avoir été dûment autorisé par le vote des actionnaires pris conformément aux dispositions de la charte"; dans la 7me section, d'effacer la phrase qui commence par le mot "trois" à la 5me ligne, jusqu'au mot "compagnie" dans la 7me ligne, "trois citoyens de la Nouvelle-Orléans en qualité de directeurs de la dite compagnie du chemin de fer de Pontchartrain" et d'insérer "trois des sept directeurs accordés par la loi à la dite compagnie du chemin de fer de Pontchartrain, qui seront citoyens de la Nlle-Orléans."

Le comité a l'honneur de rapporter, par l'entremise de leur rapporteur, en faveur du dit bill.

W. W. KING.

Sur motion de M. Macmurdo, ce bill est mis à l'ordre spéciale du jour pour vendredi, le 3 mars, 1854.

Mr. Lawes, au nom du Comité Spécial, auquel a été référé un bill intitulé acte pour établir un bureau médical d'examen et pour empêcher l'empirisme dans la profession médicale, fait un rapport favorable au dit bill.

Sur motion du même membre, le Sénat ordonne l'impression du dit bill, et il est mis à l'ordre spécial du jour pour jeudi le 2 mars 1854.

M. Boatner, au nom bu comité des réclamations, auquel avait été référé un bill intitulé :

Acte pour venir au secours de Stephen Van Wickle,

Fait le rapport suivant:

A l'Honorable W. W. Farmer, Lieutenant-Gouverneur et Président du Sénat.

Le comité auquel a été référé un acte intitulé: Acte pour venir au secours de Stephen Van Wickle, de la paroisse de la Pointe Coupée, ainsi qu'une pétition du dit Van Wickle,

A l'honneur de rapporter qu'après avoir examiné l'affaire, et d'après les témoignages qui nous ont été donnés par le pétitionnaire, ainsi que ceux obtenus par le comité. il ne peut voir aucune raison pour soutenir la réclamation du pétitionnaire. Il est vrai que l'ouverture du Raccourci fait en 1848 a été bien injurieuse à beaucoup de nos concitoyens néanmoins, le comité est d'opinion que la loi en vertu de laquelle ce travail a été fait, a été passée dans la ferme croyance qu'elle serait bien avantageuse à une grande partie des habitants de la basse Louisiane, entr'autres le pétitionnaire, et si le résultat proposé par cette loi avait été avantageux, Stephen Van Wickle en aurait recueilli les bénéfices sans payer un sous à l'Etat. Contrairement aux dispositions de la Législature et à l'opinion de nos meilleurs ingénieurs, l'ouverture du Raccourci a été prouvé injurieuse aux habitants pour l'avantage de quels elle avait été faite, et sous l'empire de telles circonstances, votre comité croit qu'il est de leur devoir, en bons citoyens, de ce soumettre à la perte.

Le cas actuel devant le comité n'est fondé ni par la loi ni par l'équite. Il a été prouvé au comité que la terre decrite dans la pétition et dont la perte est alléguée éboulait même avant l'année 1848.

Et pour se servir du langage de plusieurs personnes qui sont bien informées des faits de ce cas, "un bateau a vapeur ne pouvait pas atterer deux fois dans le même endroit dans deux occasions différentes"; que la terre n'a jamais été considérée d'aucune valeur; qu'elle avait été abandonnée par le propriétaire, et qu'elle aurait éboulé tout aussi bien si le Raccourci n'eût jamais été fait.

Votre comité considère que l'admission de cette réclamation n'aurait d'autre but que d'établir un précédent légal qui ouvrirait la porte à des réclamations probablement plus justes que la présente, et dessecherait le Trésor de l'Etat pour plusieurs années, et prenant l'affaire de quelque côté qu'elle se présente, le comité se voit obligé de rapporter contre la réclamation du pétitionnaire.

Votre comité ne peut terminer ce rapport sans remercier les personnes qui les ont aidé dans l'examen de cette question ennuyeuse et embarrassante.

(Signé) M. BOATNER,
Rapporteur du Comité des Réclamations.

MERCREDI 1er mars 1854.

Acte concernant le recouvrement des amendes prononcées en matière criminelle dans tout l'Etat (excepté dans les paroisses d'Orléans et de Jefferson)

L'ordre du jour appelle la discussion du bill dont l'intitulé précède, et dont suit la teneur.

Le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentans de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale, ont décrété ce qui suit :

Section 1. Les différents Avocats de District, dans tout l'Etat, (excepté dans les paroisses d'Orléans et de Jefferson,) auront qualité pour demander et recevoir un tiers de toutes les sommes qui pourront être collectées sur les amendes et confiscations prononcées en matière criminelle par toute Cour de justice de cet Etat, et les deux autres tiers seront payés au trésor de la paroisse pour être employés à venir en aide à cette paroisse dans les frais de poursuites criminelles et pour les autres dépenses ordinaires, déduction faite, toutefois, du taut pour cent accordé par la loi au Shérif pour l'encaissement et la remise desdites sommes.

Sec 2 Tou es lois ou parties de lois contraires aux dispositions précédentes sont et demeurent abrogées.

Mr Palfrey—Je demande qu'on efface tout ce qui suit le mot " paroisse," à la 13me ligne de la 1re section, et qu'on insère apres le mot "sommes," les mots ainsi retranchés.

Les deux amendements sont adoptés.

Mr Moore—Je fais opposition à ce bill.

Mr Ryan—Il y a déjà une loi qui donne aux Avocats de Districts certaines remises pour la poursuite de certaines affaires. Je ne trouve pas qu'il soit bon d'exciter la cupidité de nos Avocats de District. La Chambre a passé un bill qui augmente leurs salaires, et je ne vois pas pourquoi nous leur donnerions davantage, par la voie des amendes

Mr Munday—Le bénéfice du bill n'est pas là assurément; mais il est dans l'activité que cette mesure donnera aux Avocats de District, qui mettront plus de diligence à poursuivre le recouvrement des amendes qu'ils ne le font maintenant. Je ne puis pas dire, si un individu viole la loi, et si je vois l'Avocat de District poursuivre le délinquant conformément au serment qu'il en a fait, je ne puis pas dire que celui-ci fait acte de cupidité.

Mr Ryan—Ils ont maintenant dix pour cent.

Mr Munday—Peu importe. Ce qu'il y a de certain, c'est qu'ils sont très-mal payés. L'effet du bill sera d'augmenter leur vigilance avec leur paie. Quand des jeunes gens de bonne famille et de talent remplissent ces fonctions, ils ont droit à être payés suffisamment, et il importe qu'ils le soient

Mr Trudeau—Voici ce que dit le bill: " Excepté dans les paroisse d'Orléans et de Jefferson." Je voudrais savoir pourquoi la paroisse Jefferson est exceptée

Mr Munday—J'ai cru que la paroisse Jefferson comprenait la ville de Lafayette.

Mr Trudeau—Non, monsieur. Je demanderai au Comite Judiciaire pourquoi la paroisse Jefferson a été laissée de côté. Lafayette fait maintenant partie de la paroisse d'Orleans, et il n'y a pas de raison pour que la paroisse Jefferson soit traitée autrement que les autres paroisses de la campagne.

Mr Munday—Je n'ai pas d'objection à faire à la proposition de mettre la paroisse Jefferson au rang des autres paroisses.

L'amendement est adopté, et le bill ainsi modifié est ensuite voté par le Sénat Réclamation de J. H. Maddox.

Mr Lacey, du Comité Judiciaire, évoque le bill dont la teneur suit :

Résolu, Que le Comité des Reclamations s'assurera du chiffre exact que Joseph H. Maddox a droit de réclamer de l'Etat, et vérifiera aussi si la somme de $3,000, reçue par lui en vertu d'une allocation faite par la dernière Législature, ne lui a pas été payée pour solde de toutes créances contre l'Etat, ayant pour cause l'impression des debats législatifs et leur publication dans le journal quotidien et hebdomadaire.

Mr Taylor—Le sujet a déjà été porté devant le Comité des Réclamations, dont les membres n'ont pas pu parvenir à s'entendre pour le réglement de cette affaire. Il n'y a pas de probabilité qu'ils soient plus à même de s'entendre aujourd'hui Je crois qu'il serait plus simple de porter directement la question devant le Sénat une bonne fois.

Mr Lacey—Je dirai qu'il s'agit ici d'une question nouvelle, celle de savoir si l'imprimeur a reçu ou non une certaine somme d'argent, l'année dernière, pour solde de toutes réclamations. L'opinion de quelques Sénateurs est que ce paiement a été fait de cette manière, c'est une simple question de vérification C'est un fait dont l'investigation appartient nécessairement au Comité.

Mr Taylor—L'investigation a été faite sur le tout par le comité. Mr Maddox n'a pas reçu cette somme pour solde de tous comptes mais seulement pour le prix d'un certain travail déjà fait. Le comité n'a pu s'accorder sur aucun chiffre.

Mr King—Je désirerais appeler l'attention du Sénat sur la portée de la résolution. Elle dit que le Comité des Réclamations sera requis de s'assurer du chiffre qui peut être dû par l'Etat à Joseph H. Maddox, et à vérifier si une certaine somme à lui payée l'an passé, n'a pas été reçue par lui pour solde de tous comptes avec l'Etat. On voit par là que le Sénat est saisi de la question tout entière. La resolution semble poser en principe et accepter comme chose certaine qu'il est dû une certaine somme à Mr Maddox; de sorte que si nous adoptons cette résolution, nous serons déchus du droit de faire ensuite aucune opposition. Je dirais tout d'abord que la réclamation ne me paraît pas fondée. Je ne crois pas qu'il soit rien dû par l'Etat à Mr Maddox, pour les causes qu'il énonce. Et si nous passons cette résolution, nous ferons acte de reconnaissance d'une dette quelconque, et nous serons, comme je le disais tout à l'heure, déchus du droit de faire ensuite aucune opposition.

Mr Rivers—J'avoue que j'ignorais que la resolution pût avoir un semblable effet Elle contient deux propositions, la première, que le comité s'enquière de ce qui est dû à Mr Maddox, la seconde, s'il n'a pas déjà été payé. S'il n'est rien dû, le comité le dira dans son rapport. Mais quelque soit l'avis du comité, il n'en faudra pas moins que le Sénat prononce.

Mr King—Je demande qu'on rédige ainsi le commencement de la résolution : " Résolu que le Comité des Réclamations s'assurera du chiffre exact que, dans son opinion, Joseph, &c "

Mr Rivers—Je ne m'oppose certainement pas à l'amendement, quoique cela veuille dire absolument la même chose. Je demanderais à Mr King s'il pense que le comité voudrait faire un rapport qui fût en désaccord avec son opinion.

Mr Moore—Le comité pourrait recueillir les témoignages sur ce point, tandis qu'il serait fort peu convenable que le Sénat tout entier perdît son temps à cette enquête Le comité fera son rapport sur le résultat de cette investigation. Quant à présent, je ne sais absolument rien au sujet de cette réclamation, et je serais fort embarrassé de savoir comment voter jusqu'à plus ample informé.

Mr Trudeau—Je ne vois pas de raison pour renvoyer cette affaire au Comité des Réclamations. Le Sénateur de St. Charles (Mr Taylor) nous a déjà dit que le comité n'avait pas pu s'accorder sur un chiffre, et qu'il y avait probabilité qu'il ne le pourrait pas davantage maintenant.

M. Taylor—Après m'être consulté avec plusieurs membres du Comité des Réclamations, je suis décidé à retirer mon opposition au renvoi.

L'amendement de Mr King est adopté, et la résolution est ensuite votée.

Déplacement du Siège du Gouvernement.

Mr Ryan introduit un bill pour prendre le vote du peuple de l'Etat sur la question de savoir s'il y a lieu de déplacer le siège du Gouvernement, pour le transporter de Baton Rouge à la Nouvelle Orléans.

Mr Trudeau—Je demande que le bill soit renvoyé à un comité spécial composé de cinq membres

Mr Kenner—C'est un bill local ; j'en demande le renvoi au Comité Judiciaire.

Mr Ryan—Ce n'est pas du tout une question locale, ni un amendement à la Constitution. Il s'agit tout simplement dans ce bill de prendre le sens du peuple à la prochaine élection générale, alors qu'il ne coûterait pas un sou de le faire. Il est des personnes qui pensent que le siège du Gouvernement doit être déplacé ; il en est qui pensent le contraire. Je désire qu'on prenne l'avis du peuple sur cette matière.

Mr Kenner—Je puis me tromper en considérant cette question comme purement locale ; mais c'est certainement une question constitutionnelle. Elle tend à faire indirectement ce que notre collègue ne peut pas faire directement ; c'est-à-dire qu'elle aura pour effet d'amender la Constitution. Je crois que ma motion de renvoyer l'affaire à l'un des comités existants, doit avoir la préférence.

M. King.—Je ne connais pas de règle qui autorise cette preference.

M. Moore.—Ce toujours été la règle des assemblées parlementaires dont j'ai fait partie, et j'ai été membre d'un grand nombre de ces assemblées.

M. Trudeau.—Il n'y a pas de doute que nous nous trouverions très bien d'avoir un rapport du comité, mais pour entendre l'opinion de chacun de ses membres quand le bill viendra devant le Sénat.

Je demande le dépôt de la motion sur la table.

M. Ryan.—Il n'est pas ici question d'opinion constitutionnelle. Le bill dont il s'agit n'a rien à faire avec la Constitution.

La motion de déposer sur la table est rejetée.

Le bill est ensuite renvoyée au Comité Judiciaire.

M Ryan.—Je demande que le comité soit invité à faire son rapport lundi prochain.

M Lacey —Je ferai remarquer que le Comité Judiciaire a environ vingt-cinq bills devant lui, dont quelques-uns sont beaucoup plus importants que celui-ci et demandent aussi à être promptement examinés.

M. Ryan.—M. Lacey a voté le renvoi au comité, et comme il en est le Président, il aurait dû savoir avant de voter, si ce comité avait ou non le temps de faire son rapport.

Cependant, je retire ma motion.

ORDRE DU JOUR.

Bill des Améliorations Intérieures.

La résolution de M. Rivers est appelée.

M Kenner.—Je crois qu'il y a à l'ordre du jour spécial pour aujourd'hui, le bill ayant pour objet d'abroger l'article de la Constitution, qui ordonne l'établissement d'un Bureau des Travaux Publics Comme c'est l'opinion de certains membres que cet article doit être abrogé, je demande que nous délibérions sur ce bill, afin que le Sénat ne soit pas arrêté dans le vote du bill principal, par des objections constitutionnelles.

M. King.—J'appuie la motion.

M. Lacoste.—Je demande que M. Shaw, le dernier sénateur de Carroll, soit invité à prendre un siège dans cette enceinte pendant les débats sur ce bill.

La motion est adoptée à l'unanimité.

Le Bureau des Travaux Publics.

M Moore.—Je demande à donner quelques explications au sujet de l'opposition que je fais au rappel de l'article de la Constitution ordonnant la création d'un Bureau des Travaux Publics Je ferai d'abord la motion que ce bill soit déposé sur la table. Je ne partage pas l'avis de quelques-uns de nos collègues sur les mérites originels du bill. Je regarde le plan proposé par la Constitution comme étant le meilleur que nous puissions adopter. Le système adopté par la dernière Législature, laissant intact le département des améliorations intérieures et requérant la nomination de commissaires des terres marécageuses, n'était qu'une imitation du texte de la Constitution. En premier lieu, il n'y a, dans ce système, que trois districts, au lieu de quatre que veut la loi organique. C'est maintenant l'opinion générale qu'il doit y avoir quatre districts Il y a quelque différence d'opinion sur la question de savoir si nous avons en ce moment, le pouvoir de faire la reforme proposée par le bill.

La Constitution dit explicitement qu'il y aura un Bureau des Travaux Publics et indique la manière dont les membres seront choisis, c'est-à-dire par le vote populaire de chaque district. Puis on, elle dit que ce Bureau peut être aboli par un vote des trois cinquièmes des membres élus à la Législature. Maintenant, messieurs, je demanderai comment nous pouvons abolir un Bureau qui n'a pas d'existence ; car la Législature n'a pas encore, en établissant le Bureau, rempli les ordres de la Constitution. Nous ne pouvons pas davantage, par acte de la Législature, réviser ou altérer la Constitution. Nous n'avons ni le droit ni le pouvoir de le faire sans un vote du peuple. Il ne doit y avoir aucune différence entre les Commissaires du Bureau des Terres Marécageuses et le Bureau Constitutionnel. Il y a maintenant deux départements; mais si on se conformait à la Constitution, le tout devrait être placé sous la surveillance des dits commissaires. Je considère que l'économie est essentiellement nécessaire pour régler cette affaire. Il faut que nous arrivions là ou bien que nous échouions complètement

Le capital à employer aux travaux n'est pas assez important pour qu'on le divise en deux départements séparés. Il faut absolument réunir les deux fonds en un seul. Alors, qui nous empêche d'obéir à la Constitution? La dernière Législature a pensé qu'il était nécessaire d'avoir des commissaires pour les terres marécageuses ou un Bureau de Travaux Publics. La question paraît être simplement de savoir si les membres de ce Bureau seront nommés par le Gouverneur ou élus par le peuple.

Pour ma part, j'ai pleine confiance au peuple. Je pense qu'il est aussi capable d'élire ses propres officiers que tel ou tel personnage en fonction. Nous avons élu nos juges, ceux qui doivent rendre la justice et appliquer nos lois Le peuple s'en trouve-t-il plus mal? Vous exigez que le commissaire soit un citoyen résidant dans le district pour lequel il sera choisi, mais vous ne voulez pas laisser au peuple le pouvoir de l'élire. Mais pourquoi le peuple n'aurait-il pas son contrôle dans cette affaire? Ceci n'est pas notre affaire. La Législature n'a rien à faire là. Nous avons été élus pour faire des lois, non pour administrer ce fonds. J'ai pleine confiance dans le Gouvernement et dans le Sénat; mais je pense que nous devons donner au peuple le droit d'être ses propres officiers.

Dans le cours de ma vie, j'ai été souvent battu dans les élections populaires, mais je n'ai jamais perdu pour cela confiance dans l'intelligence du peuple. Les démagogues peuvent parfois le corrompre dans les grandes villes, mais je crois que l'expérience et la réflexion les ramènent toujours au droit chemin. Dans la campagne, et je le dis avec plaisir, le peuple ne veut jamais rien que d'honnête. La passion peut bien pour un moment l'emporter, mais la raison l'éclaire bien vite, et redresse son premier jugement.

Ces fonds, qui nous ont été donnés par la munificence du Congrès, peuvent; avec une bonne administration, faire beaucoup de bien; mais s'ils sont mal administrées, il n'en faut attendre aucun avantage sérieux. En 1842, le Congrès a donné à l'Etat, 500,000 acres de terre à prendre où nous voudrions dans l'Etat. De cette donation, l'Etat a déjà tiré quelque profit, mais non pas un profit en rapport avec celui qu'on en devait attendre. Et pourquoi cela? La réponse est facile. Le revenu a été, en grande partie, gaspillé en salaires, au lieu d'être employé en travaux utiles. Il est manifeste que le système est mauvais. Et quel meilleur plan peut-on adopter que le système des districts constitutionnels Chaque membre connaîtra les besoins de son propre district. Quand ils se réuniront chacun dira quels sont les endroits où les travaux d'améliorations sont le plus urgents. Il faut construire telle levée, creuser tel canal, débarrasser tel bayou, et alors on pourra vraiment obtenir de bons résultats, à très peu de frais. Y a-t-il quelqu'un qui dise qu'il ne s'en rapportera pas pour ces travaux à un homme élu par le peuple à cet effet? Y a-t-il un membre du parti démocrate qui proclame qu'il ne veut pas se fier au peuple? Pour moi, messieurs, je suis un démocrate de la vieille école, non pas de la nouvelle. J'ai été l'un des membres du vieux parti républicain, et je n'ai jamais abandonné ses doctrines. Je me suis rangé sous le drapeau whig en 1832, parce que j'ai vu dans ce parti le successeur légitime du parti républicain. Les soi-disant démocrates, au contraire, ont pris les doctrines des anciens fédéralistes. En fait, leurs tendances ont une grande ressemblance entr'elles, si elles ne sont pas tout à fait identiques. La grande différence entre les fédéralistes et les républicains, était que les fédéralistes désiraient augmenter le pouvoir de l'Exécutif, tandis que les républicains s'opposaient à cet accroissement de prérogatives. Trouvant les opinions des démocrates plus conformes à leurs goûts, à la dissolution de la vieille organisation, un grand nombre de fédéralistes se joignirent au parti démocrate. Je n'ai rien à dire contre la masse des démocrates. Je les crois honnêtes et sincères dans leurs opinions; mais ils sont abusés par un nom. Depuis 1832, je n'ai pas cessé d'être un bon whig, et je crois que le parti whig est le vrai parti démocrate.

Telles sont, messieurs, les raisons qui me portent à croire que ces commissaires doivent être élus par le peuple. Je pense que chacun d'eux doit refléter les désirs et les opinions du peuple qui l'a élu. Si l'article de la Constitution, actuellement en discussion, est rappelé, je m'unirai de tout cœur à ceux qui veulent amender le présent système. Je donnerai mon appui à toute mesure qui tendra à utiliser d'une manière plus avantageuse le grand fonds qui a été donné à l'Etat par le Congrès.

Si vous trouvez le système de l'ingénieur, tel que le propose le sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, le meilleur de tous, adoptez le. Si, au contraire, vous pensez que le système constitutionnel des quatre districts soit meilleurs, donnez lui la préférence. Mais je dirai que, pour moi, je ne suis pas en faveur du rappel de ces articles Je crois qu'on peut faire un bill convenable en les maintenant et en les respectant. Je crois que nous ne pouvons pas abolir un système qui n'existe pas. Quand il existera, nous pourrons l'abolir, mais comment pourrions nous le renverser s'il n'est pas encore debout.

Je demande le dépôt du bill jusqu'à nouvel ordre.

M. Kenner.—Je dirai, pour l'édification de quelques membres, qu'un bill abolissant le Bureau des Travaux Publics a été adopté par la Chambre basse. Il y a quelques doutes sur la question de savoir si nous possédons en ce moment le pouvoir constitutionnel de prononcer cette abolition. Pour connaître l'opinion du Sénat sur ce point, le sénateur de St. Martin a demandé le dépôt sur la table. Ceux d'entre nous qui sont en faveur de l'abolition de ces articles voteront "non." Ceux qui sont contre la proposition voteront "oui" Nous pouvons alors, par le compte des votes, voir si la majorité est en faveur de l'abolition du Bureau.

La motion de dépôt est rejetée.

M. King.—Je demande maintenant l'adoption du bill ; mais en premier lieu, je vais lire les articles de la Constitution.

En voici la teneur:

ART. 130. Il sera créé un Bureau des Travaux Publics, lequel sera composé de quatre commissaires. L'Etat sera divisé par la Législature en quatre districts, contenant autant que possible un nombre égal de votants, et il sera élu un commissaire dans chaque district pour le terme de quatre ans ; mais des premiers élus, deux qui seront désignés par le sort, ne resteront en fonctions que deux ans.

ART 131. L'Assemblée Générale à la première session après l'adoption de cette constitution, réglera l'élection des commissaires, fixera le montant de leurs indemnités, et organisera le Bureau. Les premiers commissaires élus s'assembleront à un certain jour déterminé par la loi et décideront, par la voie du sort, lesquels resteront en fonctions pendant deux ans seulement.

ART 132. Les commissaires exerceront une surveillance attentive et fidèle sur tous les travaux publics dans lesquels l'Etat peut être intéressé, à l'exception de ceux faits par les compagnies par action. Ils communiqueront, de temps en temps, à l'Assemblée Générale leurs vues concernant les dits travaux, et recommanderont les mesures qui leur paraîtront nécessaires, afin d'assurer le meilleur emploi possible des terres marécageuses concédées à l'Etat par le Gouvernement Fédéral. Ils nommeront tous les officiers engagés dans les travaux publics, et rempliront tous les autres devoirs prescrits par la loi

ART. 133 Les commissaires pourront être destitués par le vote concurrent de la majorité de tous les membres élus aux deux chambres ; mais la cause de cette destitution sera constatée au journal de chaque chambre.

ART 134. L'Assemblée Générale aura le pouvoir d'abolir ledit bureau, si, dans son opinion, ce bureau est inutile. Mais elle ne pourra prononcer cette abolition que par un vote des trois cinquièmes de tous les Membres élus de chaque chambre.

Digitized by Google

M. Boatner.—Avant de voter, je désire savoir si nous abolissons un Bureau de Travaux Publics qui n'existe pas. Cet article de la Constitution dit seulement qu'on pourra abolir un bureau déjà existant. Mais nous ne pouvons pas abolir un bureau qui n'existe pas.

M. Kenner—Il y a un bureau. Les membres n'en ont pas été élus; mais cela n'empêche pas le bureau d'exister. La Constitution dit qu'il y aura un Gouverneur, un Secrétaire d'Etat, &c. Ceci est simplement le langage constitutionnel. Il n'a pas une signification future, mais une signification actuelle. Il établit ces offices. La constitution elle-même établit le bureau en disant qu'il y en aura un Quant à nous, notre fonction n'est pas de le créer, mais simplement d'en élire les membres.

M. Rivers.—Par ce bill, prenez garde que nous amendons la Constitution. Si nous organisions le bureau, notre décision ne serait plus qu'une loi ordinaire, qu'une simple majorité pourrait rappeler.

M. Wickliff.—Dire que la Législature doit d'abord établir le bureau avant de l'abolir, est une absurdité. Il est ridicule de prétendre que nous devons établir le bureau uniquement pour avoir le plaisir de l'abolir. Si nous passons ce bill, nous ne prenons pas le chemin que nous indique la Constitution. Ce serait une singulière prétention que de soutenir que nous devons établir le bureau pour le détruire ensuite, lorsque par un simple vote des trois cinquièmes, nous pouvons arriver constitutionnellement au but en effaçant ces articles de la loi organique.

M McCay—La question a été discutée à fond l'année dernière, et je persévère dans l'opinion que j'ay is alors. Il est evident pour moi que les auteurs de la Constitution ont voulu que le bureau fut essayé Le langage de cet instrument est explicite. Il dit :

"Il y aura un Bureau des Travaux Publics," et ensuite il s'explique sur la manière dont le bureau sera élu et impose à la Législature le devoir de l'organiser. Nous avons le pouvoir de l'abolir par un vote des trois cinquièmes, alors seulement que l'experience nous aura démontré qu'il n'est plus necessaire. Mais pour savoir s'il est nécessaire ou non, il faut d'abord l'essayer, et c'est ce que nous ne pouvons pas sans l'avoir établi et organisé Cela me parait tres clair. Quand nous trouverons qu'il n'est plus utile, alors nous pourrons l'abolir Il existe une distinction sur laquelle le sénateur de Concordia, (M Rivers) a appelé l'attention. Le langage du bill abroge ces articles de la Constitution. Maintenant, messieurs, je n'ai appris l'art de faire ou d'amender des constitutions ; mais je ne crois pas qu'un vote de la Législature puisse abolir une partie de la Constitution.

La manière dont on peut l'amender est indiquée dans la loi organique elle-même. On a prétendu que nous pouvons abolir le Bureau par un vote des trois cinquièmes. Mais avant tout, il nous est ordonné de faire l'experience de la chose. L'année dernière, nous eûmes la pensée de ne pas tenir compte des ordres de la Constitution, et moi-même je vota. pour ce que je considérais comme le meilleur système, je veux parler de l'acte des terres marécageuses, aujourd'hui en vigueur, et que déjà nous nous efforçons d'amender. Mais je repète que je considère qu'il est de notre devoir d'obéir aux injonctions de la Constitution, en organisant le Bureau des Travaux Publics. Alors, si nous ne sommes pas contents de la manière dont il aura opéré, nous pourrons l'abolir. Mais nous ne le pouvons pas maintenant, parce qu'il n'a pas d'existence, et qu'alors il nous faudrait rappeler l'article de la Constitution, ce qui n'est pas en notre pouvoir.

M Rivers—Je demande à dire un mot.

Si la Législature établit le bureau maintenant, à la prochaine session, elle peut rappeler la loi par une simple majorité. Mais la Constitution parle d'un vote des trois cinquièmes, c'est donc qu'elle a eu en vue le rappel d'un des articles constitutionels. Sans cela, cette précaution de la Constitution serait sans objet, et ne se comprendrait pas. Ces articles, au contraire, ont voulu faire une exception à la règle commune des amendements à la Constitution. C'est pourquoi ils donnent à vingt membres du Sénat et à un nombre proportionnel de membres de la Chambre, le droit de faire l'amendement.

M Boatner.—Je ne veux pas abuser des moments du Sénat, mais je ne puis m'empêcher d'exprimer mon étonnement de la distinction faite par le sénateur de l'Ascension, (M. Kenner.) On veut faire dire à la Constitution, "il y a," au lieu de "il y aura." Je dirai avec M. McCay que je ne suis pas familier avec l'art de faire ou d'amender des Constitutions. C'est pourquoi je ne fais pas profession d'être versé dans les mystères de l'langage constitutionnel. Si les mots "il y aura" signifient reellement" il y a," alors le bureau existe. Mais qui sait rien de ce bureau idéal? La Constitution dit : que nous devons l'établir, et nous n'avons pas le pouvoir d'abroger la Constitution, ni la moindre partie de cet instrument. Nous avons seulement le pouvoir de l'amender, en observant certaines formes. Que le sénateur qui a introduit le bill établisse d'abord le bureau, au désir des articles 130, 131, 132 et 133 de la Constitution, et alors je voterai pour le bill. Mais je pense que nous n'avons pas le droit d'abolir un bureau avant qu'il existe. Chacun sait qu'à l'heure qu'il est il n'y a pas de bureau existant. Le Gouverneur n'est pas Gouverneur tant qu'il n'a pas été élu. Il en est de même du Secrétaire d'Etat. Jusqu'à leur élection, ils n'ont qu'une existence idéale. Un membre a fait remarquer qu'établir le bureau avant de l'abolir, ce serait bâtir un monument sur le sable pour le renverser ensuite. Je répète que nous ne pouvons pas détruire avant d'avoir construit. Cependant, si le bill a simplement pour but d'abolir le bureau, sans affecter la Constitution, je voterai en sa faveur.

M. Rivers.—Je ferai à notre collègue une question. Pour organiser le bureau, faut-il une majorité des trois cinquièmes ou une "simple majorité."

M. Boatner.—Une simple majorité.

M. Rivers.—Alors il suffirait de même d'une simple majorité pour rappeler la loi.

M. Boatner.—Pas du tout. La Constitution dit trois cinquièmes.

M. Rivers—Mais c'est une simple loi.

M. Boatner.—La Constitution est au-dessus de la loi.

M Wickliffe.—Si nous abolissons simplement le bureau, que deviendront les articles 130, 131, 132 et 133 de la Constitution?

M. Boatner—Le bureau est aboli, mais les articles restent.

M. Wickliffe.—Pas du tout. Si les articles restent debout, il y aura donc une continuelle violation de la Constitution. Aussi longtemps que nous n'établirons pas le bureau, nous serons constamment en révolte contre la Constitution.

M. King.—Afin de lever les scrupules du sénateur de Caldwell, et afin de le rassurer sur son vote, je demande que le bill de la Chambre soit déposé sur la table, et que nous mettions en déadopté le bill du Sénat, qui a été rédigé d'après ses délibérations.

M. Boatner.—Je voterai pour ce bill, par suite de la définition qu'a faite de la Constitution le sénateur de l'Ascension.

M. Kenner.—Je n'ai pas seulement le désir d'avoir le vote de M. Boatner, mais je désire aussi qu'il ne lui reste aucun doute dans l'esprit. La Constitution dit que le Gouvernement de la Louisiane sera divisé en trois départements, l'Exécutif, le Législatif et le Judiciaire. Cela diffère-t-il de la signification qu'aurait cette phrase si elle était ainsi conçue : Le Gouvernement de la Louisiane est divisé en trois départements. Nullement. Le sens est exactement le même. On voit par là, que quand la Constitution a été votée, la forme du futur avait la signification du présent. C'est là le langage dont se servent toutes les constitutions.

M. Lacey.—Je crois qu'il y a une distinction à faire entre "abolir le bureau" et "rappeler les articles de la Constitution." Nous n'avons pas le pouvoir de rappeler ces articles, et d'un autre côté nous avons le pouvoir d'abolir le bureau. Ce pouvoir nous a été distinctement conféré. C'est pourquoi je préférerais prendre le bill du Sénat et déposer sur la table le bill de la Chambre jusqu'à nouvel ordre.

M. Palfrey.—Je ferai une question au sénateur de l'Ascension, (M. Kenner.) Il présidait les délibérations de la Convention qui a fait la Constitution, et comme c'est un homme d'une grande capacité, en même temps que doué d'un grand esprit d'observation, je pense qu'il pourrait nous dire au juste quelle était la véritable pensée de la Convention à cette époque? Je demanderai donc à cet honorable membre quel aurait été l'effet de l'article, si la Constitution avait dit que la Législature, par un vote des trois cinquièmes, aurait le pouvoir de rappeler ces articles? Quel en aurait été l'effet, alors? Je le demande à notre collègue.

M. Kenner.—Je répondrai de mon mieux à l'honorable membre. L'effet serait précisément le même qu'aujourd'hui. Il n'y aurait pas la moindre différence. Si M. Palfrey est satisfait de cette explication, j'espère du moins qu'il votera avec nous et que nous aurons ainsi un vote de plus.

M. Palfrey.—Je suis fâché de le dire, mais je ne partage pas l'opinion de M. Kenner. J'étais aussi membre de la Convention, et de plus membre du comité qui a fait le rapport sur cet article, et mon impression est directement inverse.

M. Trudeau.—Cette question paraît être plus compliquée que nous ne l'avions supposé d'abord. Je crois qu'il est difficile d'abolir un bureau qui n'existe pas et que nous n'avons pas encore établi. Nous n'en avons pas encore fait l'essai, nous ne savons pas s'il fonctionnera bien ou mal. Je ne suis pas satisfait de la définition du sénateur de l'Ascension, qui consiste à dire que le futur a été employé pour le présent. Je crois que la Constitution a entendu que nous étions obligés d'organiser le bureau.

Le bill de la Chambre est déposé sur la table, pour être évoqué par qui de droit.

M. Kenner.—Maintenant, que ferez-vous? Si vous ne rappelez pas ces articles, que va-t-il en advenir? Nous sommes forcés ou d'organiser le bureau ou de rappeler ces articles. C'est un fait digne de remarque, que le sénateur qui refuse maintenant de rappeler ces articles était, l'année dernière, l'un de ceux qui ont combattu le plus vivement la proposition d'établir le bureau dont la création est ordonnée par la Constitution. Le sénateur de Morehouse, à cette époque, (M. Todd) introduisit un bill établissant le bureau au désir de la Constitution, et presque tous les membres de l'autre côté de la Chambre ont voté contre.

M. Lacey.—Le sénateur de l'Ascension, a parfaitement raison. Nous devons faire l'une des deux choses dont il parle, et nous ne pouvons pas rester, comme Mahomet dans son cercueil, suspendu entre le ciel et la terre.

M. Trudeau.—Nous ne pouvons nier que la Constitution exige que la chose soit faite. Si la dernière Législature a refusé d'obéir au mandat de la Constitution, ce n'est pas une raison pour que nous retombions dans la même erreur maintenant. Ce n'est pas une raison pour que les nouveaux législateurs passent par le même chemin où se sont perdus leurs devanciers. Je n'ai pas assez longtemps vécu de la vie politique, pour être en état de me hasarder à donner aux mots une signification autre que celle qu'on m'a appris à leur donner.

Le bill est adopté après la 3me lecture.

Sur motion de Mr. King, le bill des Améliorations Intérieures est mis en discussion.

La question est de savoir s'il faut effacer l'amendement de M. Kenner à la résolution de M. Rivers.

L'amendement est déposé sur la table.

Il est fait une motion pour le dépôt de la résolution elle-même.

M. Lacey.—Je suis sous l'impression que la réclamation faite est juste. Il est bon, selon moi, de placer l'administration de fonds des terres marécageuses dans le département des améliorations intérieures. Je pense que ce nouveau plan est sage et économique. Cependant comme je n'aime pas cette tendance des législatures de remanier sans cesse l'ouvrage des législatures antérieures, souvent même avant que l'expérience ait eu le temps de se faire, je désire donner au système actuel une dernière chance de salut. J'en demande le renvoi à un comité. De cette manière, au moins, nous montrerons quelque respect pour l'œuvre de nos devanciers.

M. King.—L'hon. M. Lacey admet que le bill est ajusté en principe.

M. Lacey.—Non pas le bill, mais le plan.

M. King.—Très bien. Alors M. Lacey admet que le plan est juste. Mais parce que la Législature, l'année dernière, a passé un mauvais bill, nous devons le garder jusqu'à ce que nous ayons vu comment il fonctionne. Si le système est mauvais maintenant, il continuera à être mauvais. Je pense que nous traitons les commissaires avec assez de courtoisie quand nous les laissons en fonctions pendant un an. Ils ont le temps de dépenser tout l'argent disponible, et j'espère qu'ils le dépenseraient bien. L'an prochain, il n'y aura que $50 000 à $60,000, tandisque, cette année, il y en a $200,000. Les maintenir plus longtemps en place, ce serait nous exposer à de justes reproches, parcequ'alors les salaires seraient pris sur une somme déjà trop minime. Je voudrai qu'on prît enfin un parti. Il ne me semble pas convenable que, par une fausse délicatesse envers des officiers que nous avons déjà traités avec assez de courtoisie, nous nous privions volontairement des avantages d'une réforme nécessaire.

Une motion de dépôt sur la table est faite et rejetée

M. King.—Je demande à ce qu'on efface tout ce qui suit les mots "le bill sera de nouveau renvoyée au Comité des Améliorations Intérieures.

M. Wickliffe.—Je m'oppose à l'amendement.

M. King. Je ne comprends pas cette opposition.

Digitized by Google

M. Wickliffe.—Si je comprends bien Mr. King. il ne veut pas que la lumière se fasse.

M. King.—Je m'oppose à ce qu'on perde un temps précieux.

M. Wickliffe—Fort bien. Mais le Sénat aimera mieux entendre un rapport éclairé, qui empêch la discussion de s'égarer, et par conséquent épargne au contraire, les moments du Sénat.

M. King.—Je vais dire pourquoi je ne voudrai pas que le bill fût renvoyé encore au comité. Je pense que chaque membre du Sénat doit être responsable, et non pas laisser le travail et presque la responsabilité à quelques membres en particulier. Pour ma part, je puis dire que je n'ai pas l'intention de préparer des bills qu'on remaniera avant leur présentation au Sénat. Si quelques sénateurs entendent la rédaction du bill autrement, qu'ils en fassent un eux-mêmes et le présentent. Je n'y fais aucune objection. Maintenant, messieurs, quel est le sens de cette résolution? Veut elle dire qu'il faut faire un nouveau rapport? La meilleure marche à suivre, selon moi, est de faire venir les deux bills à la fois devant le Sénat. Mais de cette manière, on fait échouer un bill d'une façon indirecte ; on ne vote pas, et nous ne pouvons arriver à connaître l'opinion du Sénat. Je veux parfaitement bien que les deux bills viennent à la fois devant le Sénat. Tout ce que je demande, c'est un vote franc et loyal. Je ne désire rien de plus. Mais je ne puis pas être forcé à rédiger des bills pour l'usage d'autres sénateurs.

M. Wickliffe—Je suis étonné de la position que prend l'honorable M. King, en prétendant que le Sénat n'a pas le droit de renvoyer ses bills à un comité. Comme président du Comité des Améliorations Intérieures, il n'est qu'une créature du Sénat, et s'il refuse d'obéir aux instructions de l'Assemblée, le Sénat peut prendre des mesures en conséquence. L'honorable membre dit qu'il n'a pas voté sur les mérites du bill. On a voté franchement sur la résolution, et je pense que c'est là un vote sur les mérites du bill. Si M King refuse de se rendre à l'invitation du Sénat, je suis sûr que d'autres membres du comité rempliront la tâche desirée. La résolution enjoint au comité d'organiser le Bureau des Travaux Publics. Maintenant, quelle est la position prise par M. King? Pourquoi le Sénat n'aurait-il plus le droit de lui dicter ses volontés? C'est là de sa part une erreur profonde Aussi longtemps qu'il sera président du comité, nous avons le droit de lui donner des instructions. Je regrette que l'honorable membre ait pris une pareille position. Comme président du Comité des Améliorations Intérieures, il devrait se faire une plus juste idée des droits du Sénat.

M. Rivers.—Mon objet, en offrant cette résolution, était d'éprouver si le Sénat préfère le système d'un seul homme ou celui de la division par districts. Le Sénat s'est prononcé distinctement pour le système des districts. Notre collègue nous demande ce que, par suite de ce vote, il adviendra de son bill. Il ne peut pas être renvoyé une seconde fois au comité, et si, revenant sur sa première pensée, le Sénat veut le reprendre, il le peut. La seule nécessité serait, pour le comité, de présenter, dans un nouveau rapport, un bill qui fût d'accord avec la résolution. Je dirai ici que le droit d'instruction a, jusqu'à présent, été reconnu sans difficulté, et j'espère que l'honorable M King, ne refusera de le reconnaître encore aujourd'hui.

M. King.—Pour me faire bien comprendre, je dirai que je suis consentant à prendre la résolution dans la forme suivante, savoir: "Que le comité sera requis de présenter un bill."

M. Wickliffe.—Quand le rapport aura été fait, et que le bill aura été mis d'accord avec [illegible] tion du Sénat, l'honorable membre pourra [illegible] dre son bill et le présenter comme substitut. Il n'y a pas d'objection à faire à cela; car ce sera parfaitement régulier.

M. Moore.—En ma qualité de membre du comité, je me rendrai à l'invitation du Sénat. Le Sénat a incontestablement le droit d'enjoindre à tel ou tel comité de faire un rapport sur les questions qu'il lui désigne, et je respecterai toujours ce droit. Je n'essaierai jamais de mettre mon opinion en travers de celle du Sénat.

M King.—Je suis parfaitement de l'avis de M. Moore. Aussi ai-je été mal compris. Ce que je soutiens, c'est qu'il n'appartient à aucun sénateur de m'obliger à rédiger des bills pour lui. Je puis le faire à titre de service; mais le Sénat n'a pas le droit de me faire faire ce travail.

L'amendement est adopté.

Le Sénat adopte ensuite la résolution.

SEANCE DE JEUDI 2 Mars 1854.

AUGMENTATION DU SALAIRE DU GREFFIER DE LA PREMIERE COUR DE DISTRICT.

Mr McCay appelle le bill augmentant le salaire du Greffier de la Première Cour de District.

Mr King,

Il y a plusieurs objections à ce bill, et je ne puis qu'exprimer l'espoir que j'ai qu'il ne sera pas adopté. Un candidat à une place, on doit bien le présumer, doit en connaître la valeur et les émoluments ; il a les yeux tout grands ouverts. Il n'y a pas pour lui à s'y méprendre. C'est de son propre gré qu'il devient candidat ; s'il se trouve désappointé, qu'il donne sa démission, mais qu'il ne demande pas une augmentation de salaire. Il ne doit pas se présenter devant la Législature en vue d'obtenir des secours auxquels il n'a par droit. S'il occupe cette place c'est qu'il a été plus heureux que beaucoup d'autres candidats. Je sais bien aussi qu'il ait obtenu la place quoique je ne doute pas que si ce n'avait pas été lui c'aurait été un autre non moins capable de l'occuper. Je le répète, si la place ne lui convient pas qu'il la laisse, mais qu'il ne vienne pas demander que l'on augmente son salaire. Il savait ce qu'était ce salaire lorsqu'il s'est porté candidat ; il n'a donc pas le droit de se plaindre. Sa réussite a empêché celle d'autres candidats qui, maintenant s'estimeraient fort heureux d'avoir la place au salaire qu'elle donne aujourd'hui. Si nous augmentons les appointements de l'un des greffiers, nous devons augmenter ceux de tous les autres.

Mr McCay,

Ce bill a passé à la Chambre à une forte majorité ; et la son indispensable nécessité a été prouvée. Je ne partage pas l'opinion du sénateur que nous devrions augmenter les salaires de tous les greffiers sans distinction aucune ; mais je crois, que dans tous les cas, nous devrions donner des salaires correspondants aux devoirs de la place et à la responsabilité qu'elle crée. Le salaire du Greffier de la Première Cour de District, tel qu'il est maintenant fixé par la loi, est de $4000, et j'apprends que quelques uns des autres greffiers ont beaucoup plus, quoique leur tâche ne soit ni plus ardue, ni plus difficile. Les dépenses du bureau pour papiers, encre, plumes, encre, etc etc., sont de $[illegible] et il paye à ses députés $2800, ce qui lui laisse $1200 pour lui, ce qui est à peine suffisant pour soutenir une famille en ville, et est, dans tous les cas, est fort peu en proportion avec les devoirs de la place. La responsabilité qu'entraîne cette place

Digitized by Google

est aussi grande que celle d'aucun autre de l'Etat; car, outre les dépenses dont j'ai déjà parlé, il y a un grand nombre de bons forfaits qui restent à sa charge. Ainsi que je l'ai dit déjà, je ne suis pas disposé à augmenter sans raison, sans discernement, les salaires des officiers publics, mais je crois que nous devons proportionner les salaires au travail des places.

Mr Rivers,

Comment le salaire est-il payé maintenant?

Mr McCay,

Des amendes et forfaitures.

Mr Munday,

Il m'est toujours désagréable de m'opposer à un bill qui vient à nous avec l'approbation préalable de l'autre Chambre. Mais mon respect pour les opinions et les décisions de cette assemblée ne peut cependant passer sur ce que je crois être l'intérêt de l'Etat. Je ne vois pas la raison pour laquelle on paierait ainsi des salaires aussi élevés aux officiers publics qui ont leur bureau à la Nouvelle-Orléans, lorsque ceux des campagnes ne reçoivent qu'une maigre, qu'une chétive pitance en comparaison. Ce ne peut pas être parce que la vie est beaucoup plus cher à la Nouvelle-Orléans que dans les campagnes. Ce qui est nécessaire en ville ne l'est pas moins à la compagne, et cette grande différence dont on parle tant est toute imaginaire. A la Nouvelle-Orléans, la vie est presque aussi bon marché qu'à Bâton Rouge; et cependant un greffier vient nous demander un salaire plus élevé que s'il était juge Pourquoi paierions-nous tant nos greffiers à la Nouvelle-Orléans? Dans les campagnes, chacun suit les préceptes de l'Evangile, ce livre divin où il est dit: que chacun doit vivre à la sueur de son front; et là, chacun se tient pour satisfait, d'obtenir un salaire proportionné à son travail.

A la Nouvelle-Orléans, au contraire, on a l'habitude de puiser ferme dans les coffres du trésor public. Un planteur possédant vingt nègres ne ferait pas autant dans une année que de que recevrait le Greffier de la Première Cour de District. Il y a quelques semaines, le Capitol était encombré d'une foule de jeunes gens venus de la Nouvelle-Orléans comme pour une corée, au lieu de chercher à s'employer dans la ville où ils résident. Le sénateur qui vient de se faire entendre sur cette question, nous dit que le Greffier de la Première Cour paie à ses députés $1800 par an. C'est là beaucoup trop. A la campagne, nous trouvons des greffiers qui consentent à être toujours au bureau, moyennant qu'ils soient payés; et j'ose le dire, il y a bien des districts dans les campagnes où le travail est presque aussi lourd, presque aussi difficile que dans les Cours de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

En ville, il n'y a pas autant d'appels qu'à la campagne, et cela réduit de beaucoup la besogne. Je ne doute pas que les Greffiers n'y aient beaucoup à faire, mais aussi les Greffiers sont bien payés.

Mr King,

Je vais lire de la page 282, des actes de la dernière législature:

No. 326 Il est décrété, etc. etc., Que les sommes suivantes sont et demeurent par le présent, affectées aux objets suivants pour l'année commençant le 1er avril 1853 et finissant le 31 mars 1854.

Pour le salaire du Greffier de la Première Cour de District de la Nouvelle-Orléans, la somme de $4000.

On verra par là, que le salaire du Greffier de la Première Cour de District de la Nouvelle-Orléans, est fixé à $4000. Quoique la loi dise que cette somme doit être payée du montant des amendes et forfaitures, lorsque nous voyons que la Législature a affecté la somme nécessaire, nous devons supposer, nous devons être persuadés que le Greffier n'a pas à se préoccuper ou à souffrir des bons. Il est probable qu'il a touché le montant entier de son salaire du fonds approprié du trésor de l'Etat. La présomption naturelle est que lorsqu'un officier public peut obtenir le paiement de son salaire du trésor de l'Etat, il ne se donnera pas très grande peine pour percevoir les amendes et forfaitures.

Mais $4000 ne sont pas le seul montant que ce Greffier puisse recevoir. Il est investi du privilège de percevoir des émoluments pour les papiers de naturalisation qu'il délivre, et cela constitue un privilége important. Si je ne me trompe pas il a droit aussi à un pour cent sur les bons forfaits, sur les bons d'appel et sur les licences de mariage. Il y a aussi, je crois, d'autres privilèges que je ne me rappelle pas maintenant.

Maintenant, pour revenir aux dépenses que mon collègue de la Nouvelle-Orléans a dit être nécessaires, je ne vois pas comment on peut dépenser $1000 par an en papèteries et fournitures de bureau. Le journal peut être acheté pour dix ou douze piastres; le livre des sub-pœna pour environ autant, et une rame de papier par mois peut suffire amplement à tout le reste. Je crois que $75 par an seraient très suffisantes. Le titulaire actuel détruit beaucoup la place avant de l'obtenir, d'autres aussi la désireraient; mais il a eu l'avantage sur eux. Il aurait probablement été très satisfait du salaire attaché à la place. Dans ce bienheureux pays c'est un privilège qu'a tout citoyen de ne pas rester en place s'il désire. S'il s'en fatigue, si elle l'ennuie, si elle ne lui convient plus, il peut donner sa démission. Rien ne peut l'empêcher de le faire; et nous, nous trouverons facilement des hommes capables pour lui succéder.

Mr Rivers,

Que paie-t-on sur une licence de mariage?

Mr King,

La loi n'établit pas de prix fixe.

Mr Ryan,

Quelques mots suffiront pour expliquer les raisons pour lesquelles je voterai le bill. Le sénateur de la Nouvelle Orléans nous a dit qu'il y a beaucoup d'hommes compétents qui accepteraient la place avec le salaire qu'elle donne maintenant. Cela peut être; mais là n'est pas la question. Il a parlé aussi des dépenses de fournitures de bureau. Quoique des personnes bien informées m'assurent et me prouvent que ces dépenses là sont très fortes, je ne désire pas discuter ce point maintenant. Il me semble qu'on a entièrement laissé de côté la question principale. Elle est toute comme suit:

La somme proposée serait-elle judicieusement dépensée pour se procurer les services d'un homme ordinaire, de capacités ordinaires, pour remplir les devoirs de la place? Le sénateur d'Est Feliciana, Mr Munday, nous a dit qu'il ne peut comprendre pourquoi on donnerait de si forts salaires à la Nouvelle-Orléans, puisque les frais de nourriture, logement, etc. etc., y sont à peu près les mêmes qu'à la campagne—que les prix y sont les mêmes. Il a établi ensuite tout au long, la différence entre les besoins réels et les besoins imaginaires. J'admets que la différence soit très grande, immense, mais en quoi cela touche-t-il à la question que nous occupe? On doit, de toute nécessité et en toute justice établir une proportion convenable entre les appointements d'une place et le travail qu'elle occasionne, la responsabilité qu'elle entraîne. C'est surtout pour la place de Greffier de la Première Cour de District que cela devrait être fait. Il ne suffi pas que nous lui donnions assez pour payer sa nourriture et son logement, nous lui devons encore quelque chose de plus pour son talent. J'admets aussi qu'un homme doit se tenir satisfait d'une place qu'il a obtenue quand elle était demandée par d'autres également capables de la remplir et qui se seraient contentés du salaire actuel. Mais si la somme payée n'est pas proportionnelle aux services rendus, à la responsabilité encourue, nous devons donner plus. Le salaire de ce Greffier est maintenant limité par la loi, à la somme de $4000 De cette somme il doit payer deux greffiers à $900 par an, ce qui fait un total de $1800, il doit faire d'autres dépenses qui s'élèvent en tout à environ $1000. Il lui reste donc $1200. Ce n'est pas assez et la somme que le bill propose n'est pas du tout exorbitante.

Le sénateur a essayé de tracer un parallèle ou plutôt d'établir une comparaison peu impartiale entre les salaires de la ville et ceux des campagnes. Il n'y a pas la moindre analogie entre les deux choses. En ville, les Cours restent ouvertes toute l'année et les employés sont par conséquent, occupés continuellement. Dans les campagnes au contraire, ils ne sont occupés qu'une partie du temps Voyons maintenant ce que reçoit réellement le Greffier de la Première Cour de District. Mettons de côté les $1800 payées à des députés; prenons une moyenne entre $75, montant estimatif des dépenses nécessaires, selon le sénateur de la Nlle.-Orléans, et $1000, montant estimatif des mêmes dépenses, d'après Mr Scully, laquelle moyenne est de $537 50c, ce qui fait un total de $2,337 50c et déduisons ce montant de $4000, il reste $1,662 50c. Il y a bien certainement une foule de gens incapables, de nullités, de loafers, qui voudraient accepter cette place à ce prix Mais nous ne voulons pas de ces gens-là. Il nous faut des hommes intelligents et capables, des hommes qui nous feraient honneur et pas honte. Je ne suis pas du tout disposé à dépenser d'une manière extravagante l'argent du trésor; mais je ne saurais non plus consentir à ce que les salaires soient réduits si bas, que personne ne veuille plus accepter nos emplois, personne si ce n'est des hommes complètement intelligents et incapables. Réduire ainsi les salaires des places c'est en réduire le caractere. Il n'y aura plus de différence alors entre l'homme de talent et de mérite et la plus fieffée nullité. Nous devons cependant l'établir, cette différence ; elle est la seule qui devrait exister pour nous. Ce n'est pas tant du salaire qu'il s'agit, mais bien du moyen de se procurer des hommes capables pour remplir nos emplois.

C'est à cause de ce que je viens de dire, que je voterai en faveur de ce bill. Je crois que le Greffier ne reçoit pas assez. Que l'on n'oublie pas que cette Cour n'a pas juridiction civile comme toutes les autres, ce qui est un tres grand désavantage pour le Greffier; et cependant sa place est la plus difficile, la plus ardue, celle qui entraîne le plus de responsabilité. Pour ces raisons, je le répète, je voterai en faveur du bill.

Mr Munday,

Je demanderai au sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, Mr King, si celui qui occupait la place avant Mr Scully était une nullité, un loafer, et cependant il aurait désiré conserver la place.

Mr King,

Sans doute, il désirait conserver la place, puisqu'il a été candidat devant le peuple et qu'il n'a pas été élu. Il s'est retiré alors, emportant l'estime et la considération de tous ceux qui s'étaient trouvés en rapports avec lui.

Mr Munday.

Il y a des hommes qui parfois, se donnent comme tellement idolâtres du peuple qu'ils l'appellent "cher peuple," "très cher peuple;" qu'ils voudraient tout lui confier; mais quand il s'agit de salaires ils disent que ce très cher peuple n'élira que des canailles ou des loafers.

Mr Ryan,

Le peuple n'y peut rien. Les hommes capables ne courraient pas et il faut que quelqu'un soit nommé.

Mr Munday,

Le sénateur ne dira pas, je l'espère, que le titulaire actuel est un loafer. Il savait ce que donnait la place lorsqu'il l'a demandée. Il vient à nous maintenant et nous demande d'augmenter ses appointements. S'il n'obtient pas cela de nous, il est loafer d'après l'argument du sénateur. Est-ce raisonnable cela? Y a-t-il quelque logique dans cette manière d'argumenter? Mon opinion est, que nous devons être très prudents en fait de salaires. Les devoirs de cette place ont toujours été bien remplis à la Nouvelle Orléans, et c'est la première fois que nous entendons formuler des plaintes au sujet de l'insuffisance du salaire. Il semble que les hommes en place à la Nouvelle-Orléans, aient pris depuis quelque temps de la manie de se faire donner des salaires exorbitants. Ils viennent à nous sans cesse nous disant: donnez! donnez! donnez! Je le répète, nous devrions être économes des fonds de l'Etat, et nous ne devrions pas le prodiguer en salaires si déraisonnablement élevés.

Mr Lacey,

Je ne tiens pas à honneur de me faire surnommer le Cerbère du trésor public, et en conséquence je ne voterai pas sur cette question seulement parce qu'il est question d'argent que nous devons donner ou refuser sans considérer si la demande est juste ou si elle ne l'est pas. Je prends pour base de ma détermination les faits et les chiffres qui nous sont presentés, et pour ces faits et chiffres je prendrai pour autorité, le sénateur lui-même, car je ne vois pas que nous en puissions trouver une meilleure.

Le salaire maintenant accordé par la loi au Greffier de la Première Cour de District est de $4000 par an; de ces $4000 les dépenses du bureau doivent être payées. Ces dépenses, d'après ce qu'on vient de nous dire, s'élèvent à $1800 par an pour deux députés et $1000 pour fournitures de bureau, etc. etc., ce qui laisse $1200 pour le Greffier et sa famille. Ainsi que le sénateur des Rapides l'a dit avec raison, c'est là une bien faible somme, une bien maigre pitance comme rémunération des devoirs rudes et désagréables qu'impose cette place dont la responsabilité est si grande. Le titulaire doit être un homme capable et non une nullité pouvant à peine remplir les fonctions exigées de lui. Je considère ce bill comme juste en lui-même et même si j'étais le Cerbère du tresor, je voterais pour son adoption. Je vote en faveur des salaires que je crois justes et convenables sans m'inquiéter si la somme est forte ou faible. Ma conduite au sujet d'une question de cette nature, est guidée par la justice et non par des considérations de parcimonie. Je n'ai pas d'objection non plus à ce qu'on taxe le peuple pour le paiement de ce que je juge être des dépenses justes et nécessaires, et je suis persuadé que mes constituants ne feront jamais objection à cela. Leur opinion, je n'en doute pas, est la même que la mienne.

Pour ces raisons, je voterai en faveur du bill.

Mr King,

Il y a la principalement il semble, une question de faits. L'ex titulaire, Mr Rousseau, a longtemps occupé la place depuis l'organisation des Cours en vertu de la Constitution de 1845. Il n'avait qu'un seul député, et cependant tous les devoirs de la place étaient fidèlement remplis. Si nous augmentous le salaire de la place, le Greffier pourra employer un autre député à $900 par an et ne plus rien faire lui-même.

Mr Moore,

Il y a deux bonnes raisons qui militent contre ce bill. La première est que cet officier savait ce que pouvait donner la place lorsqu'il l'a demandée et obtenue ; il le savait lorsqu'il a prêté le serment; il a donc formellement accepté le salaire. Il est officier de l'Etat, élu par le peuple; il a un contrat avec l'Etat pour l'exécution d'une certaine obligation à un salaire convenu. Si ce bill avait pour but de diminuer au lieu d'augmenter le salaire de cet officier je m'y opposerais comme je m'oppose maintenant à celui qui nous est présenté.

Cet officier a passé un contrat avec l'Etat, et les deux parties doivent en remplir scrupuleusement les conditions. Accéder à cette demande, serait tout simplement accorder une gratification—et avons-nous ce droit ? pouvons-nous gratifier un officier qui a accepté une place à un salaire fixé? Quel droit avons-nous de taxer le peuple dans un tel but. Je le répète il y a un contrat, contrat aussi obligatoire que s'il avait été écrit et signé par les deux parties. Je m'oppose à tout amendement à ce contrat soit qu'il ait pour but d'augmenter, soit de diminuer le salaire aussi longtemps que le greffier sera en place. Si un nouvel officier devait être élu, nous pourrions convenablement augmenter ou diminuer le salaire ; mais nous ne pouvons le faire lorsque celui qui a accepté la place alors qu'il savait très bien le salaire qui y était attaché, continue dans l'exercice de ses fonctions.

A la dernière session de la Législature, nous avons emprunté $75,000, et tout doit nous porter à croire qu'avant la fin de l'année, nous serons à court. Si nous ne pouvons pas nous procurer un officier compétent au salaire actuel augmentons le alors ; mais adhérons du moins autant que possible aux termes du contrat qui a été passé.

Mr McCay,

Mon collègue de la Nouvelle Orléans, Mr King, est dans l'erreur sur une des allégations qu'il a faites. Il a dit que l'ex greffier, Mr Rousseau, n'avait qu'un seul député. C'est une erreur; Mr Rousseau avait deux députés, Mr Serré et Mr Trépagnier.

Mr King,

Il n'a eu deux députés que plus tard. Pendant quelque temps il n'en a eu qu'un.

Le vote est pris sur la première section du bill et et elle est rejetée.

Mr King,

Je fais la motion de reconsidérer le vote qui vient d'être pris.

Mr Rivers,

Je demande que cette motion soit déposée sur le bureau.

Cette dernière motion est perdue.

La motion de reconsidération est adoptée, et le bill est mis à l'ordre du jour pour mercredi prochain.

Bill pour le paiement du Conservateur des Hypothèques de Jefferson.

Le bill pour rémunérer le Conservateur des Hypothèques de Jefferson, de certain travail exécuté par lui, est pris en considération.

Mr Trudeau,

J'ai quelques observations à présenter relativement à ce bill.

Durant cette session, le Conservateur des Hypothèques de la paroisse de Jefferson, me pria de présenter pour lui, un bill ayant pour but et devant avoir pour résultat de lui faire avoir une somme considérable d'argent.

Je refusai de le faire.

Par l'entremise de quelques-uns de ses amis de la Chambre des Représentants, il parvint à l'y faire présenter et adopter. Je ne crois pas que ce soit là une juste réclamation. Il est cependant du devoir de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans de pourvoir au paiement demandé. Je désirerais savoir si elle est disposée à payer $1 25 pour chaque transcript d'hypothèque. Cette somme me semble exorbitante. La loi fait un devoir, une obligation au Conservateur des Hypothèques, de fournir des transcripts de toutes les hypothèques de l'ancienne ville de Lafayette, consignées ou enregistrées depuis dix ans. Le nombre en est considérable. Les sénateurs de la Nouvelle-Orléans sont-ils disposés à imposer à la ville qu'ils représentent, l'énorme somme que nécessiterait le paiement de ces réclamations au prix proposé dans le bill?

Je fais la motion de déposer indéfiniment le bill sur le bureau.

Mr McCay,

Le sénateur de Jefferson adopte, il me semble, une ligne étrange de conduite. S'il désire que les sénateurs de la Nouvelle Orléans examinent et étendent le bill, il devrait du moins leur laisser la même chance qu'il a eue. Je suis opposé au bill tel qu'il me semble être à une première lecture rapide, mais cela n'est pas une raison pour que nous ne l'examinions pas et n'épargnions de le réduire si la somme semble trop forte. Avant aujourd'hui, je n'ai jamais entendu parler de ce bill ; il en est de même de mon collègue.

Mr King,

Je demande du temps pour l'examiner à loisir.

Mr Trudeau,

Le sénateur devrait l'avoir compris rien qu'en l'entendant lire. Il pourvoit au paiement de $1 00 au petitionnaire pour chaque hypothèque, et 25c. pour le transcript de chaque transfert d'hypotheque.

Mr McCay,

Je crois cette somme trop forte; nous devons cependant donner quelque chose.

La motion de déposer sur le bureau est perdue.

Le bill est référé au Comité Judiciaire.

Enrôlements des Assesseurs.

Le bill pourvoyant à la compensation des assesseurs de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, est pris en considération.

Mr Trudeau,

Je désirerais avoir quelques détails au sujet de ce bill.

Mr McCay,

Je puis satisfaire au désir du sénateur.

La loi établit un bureau d'assesseurs dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orleans Lorsque la ville de Lafayette a été annexée à la Nouvelle-Orleans, la loi n'a pas pourvu à l'adjonction de l'assesseur de cette ville au bureau des assesseurs de la Nelle Orléans. Il n'est pas, comme les autres, assesseur de la ville de la Nouvelle Orléans; il n'est assesseur que du Quatrième District et est élu séparément. Le bill a pour but de remedier à cet oubli et de classer cet assesseur dans le bureau des assesseurs de la Nlle.-Orléans. Le bill a encore un autre but ; la ville ne paie rien maintenant pour les tableaux d'assessement Cette tâche est cependant lourde et difficile. Le bill décrète qu'ils recevront le même salaire pour les tableaux d'assessement de la ville que pour ceux de l'Etat.

Le bill passe.

ORDRE SPECIAL DU JOUR.

Ce jour étant celui fixé pour la prise en considération du mémoire de J. H Maddox, lecture est donné du rapport de Mr Lacey, Président du Comité, parlant au nom de la majorité, ainsi que de celui de la minorité présenté par Mr. King.

Mr Boatner,

Les rapports qui viennent d'être lus ont été présentés hier. Le rapport de la majorité était accompagné d'une résolution qui m'a été présentée comme Président du Comité des Réclamations. Le Comité a eu une réunion ce matin ; mais n'a pu arriver à une conclusion, à cause de l'absence du sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, Mr Macmurdo, Président du Comité par lequel, l'année dernière, la somme de $3,000 avait été allouée. A cause de cela, la prise en considération de cette question a été unanimement ajournée.

Mr Ryan,

Il me semble qu'il y a déjà assez longtemps que cette question occupe le Sénat sans que rien de décisif ait encore été fait. Le mémoire de Mr Maddox, lorsqu'il a été présenté pour la première fois, a été référée au Comité des Réclamations; il a été ensuite référé au Comité Judiciaire, puis référé de nouveau au Comité des Réclamations, afin que celui-ci s'assurât du montant exact dû. Je désire savoir maintenant ce que l'on fera si l'absence de Mr Macmurdo se prolonge.

Mr McCay,

Je suggérerai de mettre cette question à l'ordre spécial du jour pour lundi prochain.

Mr King,

Je désirerais entendre lecture du bill—je le crois de la plus grande importance.

Le secrétaire en donne lecture.

Je fais la motion de le référer au Comité des Réclamations attendu que je considère que cela est de la plus grande importance.

Mr Lacey,

Je crois préférable de le mettre à l'ordre spécial du jour pour lundi prochain.

Cette dernière motion est adoptée.

Bill pour étendre le privilège du vendeur.

Mr Hodge évoque le bill suivant:

Acte pour protéger les négociants ou vendeurs de produits agricoles dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

Mr Lacey,

Si c'est le désir du Sénat de prendre maintenant en considération ce bill je n'ai pas d'objection; mais je dois dire que j'y suis opposé. Je crois qu'il gênera et embarrassera le commerce dans la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Accorder un privilége sur la marchandise vendable sera, selon moi, jeter des obstacles sérieux sur le chemin des opérations commerciales.

Une discussion s'élève, mais le Président y met fin en déclarant qu'elle n'est pas à l'ordre.

Le bill est pris et subit une lecture.

Mr McCay,

Je pense que le bill pourrait très bien être déposé provisoirement sur le bureau. Il n'est pas besoin de l'adopter si à la hâte. Peut-être le soutiendrai-je moi-même si j'avais le temps de l'examiner attentivement.

Mr Kenner,

Je pense qu'aucun sénateur ne niera que le principe de ce bill ne soit parfaitement correct.

Mr McCay,

Pour moi, je considère que ces priviléges sont une chose odieuse. Je consentirais volontiers à ce qu'on les abolisse tous.

Je ne désire faire aucun obstacle à l'adoption de ce bill. C'est pourquoi je ne m'occuperai ni de la suspension des règles, ni de la discussion ; en un mot je ne ferai aucune espèce d'opposition. Je voterai seulement contre le bill et demanderai l'appel nominal sur son adoption.

Mr Kenner,

Je suis bien aise que notre honorable collègue ait demandé la consultation des oui et des non. Je suis heureux que mon vote en faveur de la mesure soit enregistré. Je veux essayer de donner un historique du bill. Toute personne tant soit peu familière avec la manière dont sont conduites les affaires commerciales à la Nouvelle-Orléans, comprendra la nécessité de ce bill. Au moment même où un article, coton ou sucre, est pesé, il est considéré comme délivré, et le vendeur perd aussitôt son privilége. Il a à peine le temps de faire saisir la propriété, que déjà elle est hors de la portée de sa main. Tout ce que nous voulons, c'est que l'objet vendu reste cinq à six jours, sous la protection de ce privilège. Il ne saurait y avoir rien d'injuste à cela, rien qui puisse arrêter les transactions commerciales. Cette mesure est réclamée par les cultivateurs comme un simple acte de justice; et quoiqu'il semble que lorsqu'un planteur demande quelque chose, il doive avoir toujours tort, cette même mesure serait un bienfait pour le commerce de la Nouvelle-Orléans. C'est la première proposition qui ait été introduite à cette session dans l'intérêt des planteurs. Elle est juste et nécessaire, et j'espère qu'elle sera prise en considération par le Sénat.

La dispense des règles est accordée, et le bill est adopté.

L'ordre du jour appelle la lecture et la discussion du bill dont la teneur suit :

Acte pour établir un Bureau Médical d'Examinateurs dans l'Etat et pour l'étendue de la Louisiane, dans le but de faire disparaître les empiriques de la profession médicale.

Le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentants de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale, ont décrété ce qui suit :

Section 1re. A dater du 1er avril 1854, nul n'aura le droit de pratiquer la médecine ni d'exercer la profession d'apothicaire dans aucune partie de la Louisiane, sans avoir préalablement subi un examen dans la ville de la Nouvelle Orléans, et avoir obtenu un certificat, qui lui sera délivré par le Bureau Médical dont il sera ci-après parlé, et dans les formes ci-dessous prescrites.

Sect. 2me. La Faculté de Médecine de la Louisiane est et demeure constituée en Bureau d'Examinateurs, dont le devoir sera d'examiner les personnes qui demanderont une licence pour exercer la profession de médecin ou d'apothicaire.

Sect. 3me. Tout individu qui entendra pratiquer la médecine ou exercer la profession d'apothicaire dans cet Etat, présentera au doyen de la Faculté de Médecine, une pétition dans laquelle il exposera son intention, et le désir qu'il a d'accomplir les formalités prescrites par la loi. Le doyen devra soumettre la demande au Bureau, lequel, dans les trois jours de l'application, ou à toute autre époque précisée par le requérant, sera tenu de l'examiner ; et si ledit Bureau est satisfait des réponses des candidats, il donnera à celui-ci un certificat d'admission, signé des membres du Bureau ou de la majorité d'entr'eux, et contresigné par le doyen de la Faculté. Ce certificat portera le sceau de la Faculté. Les individus ainsi admis feront enregister leurs certificats à l'office du clerc de la paroisse dans laquelle il entend pratiquer, afin d'y référer si besoin est ; et il sera du devoir du clerc de chaque Cour de District, à la fin de chaque session, de dresser une liste des noms de tous les médecins dont les licences auront été enregistrées dans son office, et de la présenter au juge, lequel sera tenu de la remettre au Grand Jury, en le chargeant de vérifier s'il n'y a pas dans ceroisse quelque individu pratiquant la médecine en contravention à la présente loi, et dont le nom ne serait pas sur la liste.

Sect. 4me. Le Bureau présentement constitué se réunira à une époque rapprochée du passage de cette loi, sous la présidence du doyen, et prendra les mesures nécessaires pour en faciliter l'exécution, et en appliquer toutes les dispositions.

Sect. 5me. Tout candidat qui aura été gradué ou aura obtenu un diplôme de médecin dans l'une des Facultés ou Universités reconnues par la Faculté de la Louisiane, sera, sur la production de ses pièces, et si d'ailleurs sa moralité est reconnue, en droit de réclamer le certificat ou la licence susmentionnés.

Sect. 6me. Si un individu pratique la médecine ou exerce la profession d'apothicaire en contravention à cet acte, ledit individu encourra une amende qui n'excèdera pas cent piastres pour la première contravention, et en cas de récidive, il sera condamné à une amende dont le montant est laissé à la discrétion de la Cour, mais sans excéder cependant deux cents piastres, et à un emprisonnement aussi à la discrétion du juge, mais qui ne pourra pas excéder un an. Il sera du devoir des avocats généraux et des avocats de district dans toute l'étendue de l'Etat, de poursuivre les contraventions de cette nature, dans les formes usitées pour les autres procédures criminelles, et toutes les amendes collectées en vertu du présent acte seront versées au Trésor de la Paroisse, où la collection en aura été faite, pour être employées par lesdites paroisses à des œuvres de bienfaisance.

Il est entendu que rien de ce qui est prescrit par le présent acte ne pourra s'appliquer aux habitants ou planteurs de la campagne, qui, sur la demande de quelques voisins malades, leur donneraient quelques secours ou leur administreraient quelque médecine.

Il est entendu encore que rien, dans le présent acte, ne pourra empêcher une personne résidant hors de la paroisse et de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, de vendre des médecines qui auraient été achetées chez un apothicaire légal, et auraient été préparées par ledit apothicaire.

Enfin, il est expliqué que rien, dans cet acte, ne pourra s'appliquer aux médecins et apothicaires exerçant actuellement leurs professions sous le bénéfice des lois existant avant l'acte du 10 mars 1852.

Sect. 7me. Le Bureau des Examinateurs aura droit d'exiger de chaque candidat la somme de vingt piastres, pour être employée selon que le Bureau jugera convenable. Ceux des candidats qui demanderont un certificat en vertu de la section 5 du présent acte, ne seront soumis qu'à un droit de dix piastres.

Sect. 8me. Toutes lois ou portions de lois contraires au présent acte, sont et demeurent abrogées.

Mr Lawes,

Il ne serait pas convenable qu'après avoir introduit ce bill, je le visse arriver devant le Sénat pour y être approuvé ou rejeté, sans expliquer sa nature et les vues dans lesquelles je l'ai conçu et présenté. Je remplirai donc ce devoir aussi brièvement que possible. Il est bien notoire que la Faculté Médicale, telle qu'elle est constituée, est un corps organisé, établi par l'acte de 1853. Elle a été instituée dans le but d'instruire les jeunes gens qui se destinent à la médecine. Plusieurs des autres Etats ont adopté le même système et en ont reconnu les avantages. La loi requérait tout individu pratiquant la médecine ou exerçant la profession de pharmacien, d'avoir un certificat du Bureau établi à la Nouvelle-Orléans. Ce Bureau était présidé par le Maire de la ville, et se réunissait chaque fois qu'une demande d'admission était faite.

Depuis lors, le Bureau s'est dissous par la mort de presque tous les membres qui le composaient originairement. Un bureau composé d'un petit nombre de membres fut établi aux Opélousas, et la même cause amena la même dissolution de ce dernier bureau. Une personne qui désirait pratiquer la médecine était positivement obligée de se rendre à la Nouvelle-Orléans, et de parcourir toutes les rues de la ville pour parvenir à trouver deux ou trois des membres de l'ancien bureau, afin d'obtenir d'eux un certificat.

Le Bill soumis au Sénat a pour objet, entr'autres, de remédier aux maux résultant de l'établissement de ces bureaux. Il donne ce pouvoir à la Faculté Médicale, qui en doit être en effet la dépositaire légitime ; à la Faculté qui est à la tête de l'Université. Par ces moyens la réputation et l'utilité de l'institution ne pourraient que s'accroître, et il est de la plus haute importance que la réputation de notre Faculté Médicale soit égale à celle de tout autre corps de cette nature dans les Etats-Unis.

Ce bill transfère le pouvoir d'accorder les certificats, d'un corps idéal et intangible, qui n'est jamais au complet quand on a besoin de ses services, à un corps organisé, composé d'hommes distingués parmi les membres de la profession, et présidé par un doyen. De cette manière, il sera facile à l'aspirant de se procurer ce qu'auparavant il ne pouvait obtenir qu'en voyageant à travers tout l'Etat, et encore en courant le risque d'être désappointé, enfin de compte.

La première section a pour objet de remédier à ce mal. J'appellerai maintenant l'attention sur les autres sections.

La seconde transporte tous les pouvoirs de l'ancien Bureau à la Faculté de Médecine de la Louisiane. La troisième indique la manière dont l'aspirant s'y prendra. Il devra s'adresser au doyen, qui, alors assemblera la Faculté, dans le but d'examiner l'aspirant. S'il est trouvé capable, il recevra un certificat ou diplôme qui lui donnera le droit d'exercer la médecine dans toute l'étendue de la Louisiane. Je voudrais appeler l'attention du Sénat sur cette partie du bill, attendu qu'elle doit être très efficace contre le mal dont nous nous plaignons. Par la négligence des membres du dernier Bureau, ou l'impossibilité de les réunir, il est souvent arrivé que des aspirants ont vu retarder leur examen de plusieurs mois, ce qui les entraînait à des dépenses considérables en même temps qu'à une grande perte de temps. Quelquefois même, ils ont dû revenir deux ou trois fois dans une année, et cela sans avoir pu obtenir ce qu'ils demandaient.

Le bill impose à la Faculté, l'obligation d'examiner l'aspirant dans les trois jours de son application. C'est là, comme on le voit, un remède aux abus du passé.

La cinquième section est conçue dans un esprit libéral à l'égard des Universités comme celle de la Nouvelle-Orléans. La charte de cette institution donne aux gradués le droit de pratiquer par toute la Louisiane. Cette section donne le même privilège aux applicants qui peuvent produire un certificat émanant d'un autre Etat. La Faculté est obligée de donner un diplôme à ces sectes d'aspirants, sur la simple présentation de son certificat.

Les pénalités édictées par le bill sont sévères. Mais elles sont considérées comme nécessaires pour atteindre le but que se propose le bill et lui donner plus de force et de pouvoir.

Digitized by Google

Il y a dans le bill une clause qui donne à tous les médecins et apothicaires, aujourd'hui exerçant légalement, le droit de continuer à exercer sans nouvelle application. On voit par là que le bill ne touche pas aux droits acquis, et qu'il n'y est nullement question, comme quelques personnes l'ont insinué dans des conversations particulières, d'obliger tous les médecins de cet Etat, à se rendre à la Nouvelle-Orléans, pour s'y procurer un nouveau diplôme. Il ne s'agit de rien de tout cela, et pour s'en convaincre il suffit de lire le bill. Jamais son auteur n'a eu cette pensée, et il est impossible que le texte, si torturé qu'il soit, puisse se prêter à une pareille interprétation.

Le droit à payer, comme on le verra, n'est pas une taxe, mais bien la juste compensation des dépenses qu'entraîneraient nécessairement l'examen et la délivrance du diplôme, etc. Ce droit, au surplus, est tellement minime, que pour un homme qui se destine à une profession quelconque, il serait à peine digne d'attention. Le bill est d'une importance vitale. Il tend à retirer la profession médicale dans l'Etat de la Louisiane, de la condition dégradée où elle se trouve à présent rabaissée, au point que c'est à peine si aujourd'hui on doit lui donner le nom de profession. En ce qui regarde la profession de légiste, le cas est différent. Nous l'entourons de toute la surveillance qui peut l'élever et la protéger, et nous requérons du candidat une éducation sérieuse et un examen devant la Cour Suprême ou la Faculté de l'Université. Je suis fier de pouvoir dire que j'appartiens à cette noble profession; cependant l'amour de la vérité m'oblige de reconnaître que la profession de légiste n'est pas aussi importante que la profession de médecin.

Cependant, nous faisons tout pour la loi, et nous laissons la médecine ouverte à tous les charlatans de l'Etat et du dehors. Il n'y a pas un Etat dans l'Union, où la profession de médecin ne soit mieux protégée. Je ne suis même pas si dans les codes des autres Etats il serait possible de découvrir une loi pareille à celle passée par la Législature de la Louisiane en 1852.

Tout, dans les lois de nos voisins, montre la sollicitude du législateur à protéger la profession de médecin contre l'envahissement des empiriques. Elles exigent un examen sévère, qui ne peut être soutenu qu'après des études sérieuses. Nous faisons précisément le contraire; aussi la conséquence est que nous sommes inondés de charlatans. Comme dans les autres Etats, il y a des lois contraires, ils se réfugient tous ici, en vue d'arracher quelques piastres à la misère du peuple.

Mr Lacey,

Le principe du bill a ma pleine approbation. Il est en effet de la plus haute nécessité de relever la Faculté Médicale de notre Etat. Mais je m'oppose au monopole que le bill propose d'établir. Il y a dans l'Etat beaucoup de gens qui croient au système homéopathique, tandis que d'autres au contraire, ont foi dans l'hydropathie. Il en est qui regardent le Thomsonianisme comme une panacée universelle, pendant qu'il est au contraire, des esprits entêtés qui ne veulent croire à rien de tout cela. Cependant, toute personne désirant pratiquer est requise de se procurer un certificat de la Faculté de la Nouvelle-Orléans, qui est composée exclusivement de médecins appartenant à cette école appelée allopathique.

Maintenant, Messieurs, si je désire prendre les petits grains que renferment les bouteilles microscopiques de l'homœpathe, pourquoi n'aurais-je pas le droit de le faire?

Si j'ai la conviction que cette dose infinitésimale ne possède plus de vertu curative que de plus fortes potions, pourquoi me forcerait-on à avaler ces dernières? De quel droit soumettre à une amende et un emprisonnement le pauvre docteur qui aurait eu le malheur de se conformer à mes désirs? Pourquoi, messieurs, si c'est ma fantaisie, ne pourrais je pas prendre ces petites pilules de mon collègue et ami de Concordia, et pourquoi aurait-il par là le glorieux, mais injuste privilège d'être seul à pouvoir les prendre. Je ne voterai pas pour un pareil bill, et le sénateur qui l'a introduit, n'en a pas, je présume, compris la portée.

Mr Trudeau,

Je demanderai à l'honorable membre qui vient de parler le dernier, s'il veut laisser les portes de la profession médicale ouvertes à l'envahissement de toutes les espèces de charlatans. Est-ce qu'il leur demandera la preuve de leurs études, de leurs connaissances médicales, avant de leur confier le droit de remplir un ministère aussi important dans la société. Est-ce qu'il voudra laisser le peuple, généralement ignorant de tout cela, dans les ténèbres à cet égard, exposé à la plus cruelle incertitude, et le mettre dans l'impossibilité absolue, quand il appelle un médecin, de savoir s'il a à faire à un homme sérieux ou à un empirique?

Mr Lacey,

La loi actuelle exige un certificat. Et je demanderai à mon tour, au sénateur qui m'a interpellé, s'il entend réellement me priver du droit d'employer un homme capable pour médecin, si c'est mon plaisir de le choisir. Assurément, il ne peut pas avoir une pareille prétention.

Mr Rivers,

Quelques observations suffiront, je pense, pour faire voir la défectuosité du bill. La première section requérant toute personne qui désire pratiquer la médecine, d'aller à la Nouvelle-Orléans, et de se procurer un certificat du Bureau des Examinateurs; lequel Bureau, nous dit la première section, sera composé des membres de l'Université de la Louisiane. Quel peut être l'objet de cette disposition, si ce n'est de réduire tous les systèmes médicaux à celui établi par cette Faculté? La loi de 1852, qui, je crois, a été combattue par le sénateur des Rapides, lequel était alors membre de la Chambre, est ainsi conçue:

(Il lit la loi.)

Cela comprend tout ce qu'il faut. L'aspirant doit être gradué, et avoir un diplôme de quelque institution médicale. Cela est certainement suffisant pour arrêter l'impulsion. Pourquoi l'honorable membre n'en est-il pas satisfait? D'où vient qu'il ne trouve pas la protection suffisante? Je vais lui dire pourquoi il ne s'en accommode pas. La raison s'en trouve clairement indiquée dans la section 5me, laquelle est ainsi conçue:

"Tout aspirant, qui serait gradué et aurait obtenu le diplôme de docteur en médecine dans une autre Faculté ou Université reconnue par la Faculté de l'Etat, sur la simple production de ses pièces justificatives, accompagnée d'ailleurs de la preuve d'un caractère moral, aura droit à un certificat ou licence de la Faculté de l'Etat."

Quel sera, messieurs, l'effet de cette clause? Pourquoi empêcher un homme d'obtenir un certificat s'il ne vient pas de quelqu'une de ces vieilles facultés décrépites? Parce que la Faculté Médicale de la Nouvelle-Orléans, ne veut pas reconnaître d'autres médecins ou d'autres universités que ceux qui appartiennent à la secte particulière.

Mr Ryan,

Peut être ne suis-je aussi avancé dans mes idées que quelques-uns de mes collègues, et je suis peut-être, par conséquent, en arrière de mon siècle.

Que la section 11me de l'acte approuvé le 29 mars 1846 et intitulé :

Acte pourvoyant à la mise à exécution du système judiciaire soit et est par la présente, amendé et décrété de nouveau de telle sorte que la teneur en soit comme suit, savoir :

Que pas moins de trente jours avant la première séance de chaque terme de juri des Cours de District des différentes paroisses, après que cet acte aura été mis en vigueur, la paroisse d'Orléans exceptée, le Shérif, les Greffiers de la Cour de District et le Recorder de paroisse ainsi que trois propriétaires s'assembleront à la maison de cour de leurs paroisses respectives et choisiront des tableaux d'assesseurs, les noms de chaque personne qui, conformément aux lois de cet Etat, sont tenues de servir comme jurés et en dresseront une liste laquelle sera enregistrée dans le bureau du Greffier de la Cour de District. Lesdits officiers et propriétaires de terres feront écrire sur bulletins séparés, de papier de dimensions uniformes, le nom de chacune des personnes ainsi choisies et placés sur la liste ci des us, lesquels bulletins se ont déposés dans une boîte destinée à cet usage, et après qu'ils auront été bien agités, bien mêlés, un des dits officiers sous la surveillance des autres et des propriétaires fonciers qui se trouveront présents, tireront pas moins de quarante huit bulletins et le Greffier de la Cour de District, à mesure que les bulletins seront tirés et les noms lus, enregistreront ces derniers sur une liste pour recours et déposeront les bulletins ainsi tirés dans une boîte séparée.

Le Greffier de la Cour de District, en rédigeant le venire facias des noms ainsi tirés, désignera les dix huit premiers pour le Grand Jury et les autres pour le petit juri, et le Shérif les sommera d'avoir à servir pendant le terme suivant de la Cour :

En composant les juris pour les termes suivants de la Cour, des bulletins seront tirés de la même manière de la boîte contenant le reste de la liste jusqu'à ce que les noms soient épuisés, alors une nouvelle liste sera formée de la manière prévue par cet acte, laquelle liste contiendra additionnellement les noms des personnes qui auront pu devenir citoyens et peuvent servir comme jurés et mettra de côté les noms de ceux qui, pour une cause quelconque, peuvent être devenus inéligibles.

Après chaque tirage, les boîtes contenant les bulletins seront fermées à clé, scellées et gardées par les greffiers et ne seront ouvertes que sur l'ordre de ceux qui devront présider au prochain tirage, lorsqu'ils se seront assemblés à cet effet.

Dans le cas où aucun des dits officiers qui, en vertu du présent acte, sont tenus de se trouver présents au tirage des noms des jurés, serait absent, ou pour une cause quelconque ne pourrait assister ou servir comme tel, la place ou les places de toutes personnes ainsi absentes ou incapables, sera remplie par un ou plusieurs juges de paix de la paroisse.

Dans les paroisses où, d'après la loi, les sessions de la Cour s'étendent au-delà d'une semaine, un nombre additionnel de vingt-quatre jurés sera tiré, lesquels jurés seront sommés de comparaître et de servir dans le petit jury pendant la seconde semaine, un nombre égal pour la troisième ou la quatrième semaine ; mais lorsque la durée du terme n'est pas prescrite par la loi, le juri sommé pour la quatrième semaine sera tenu d'être en disponibilité à la Cour pour remplir leurs devoirs de jurés, jusqu'à ce qu'ils aient été congédiés par la Cour, pourvu que nul ne soit requis de servir comme juré régulier à deux sessions consécutives de la Cour. Lorsqu'un juré, choisi d'après les dispositions de cet acte aura été mis de côté par la Cour pour une cause quelconque ; il sera du devoir du Greffier de la Cour de District d'en donner immédiatement avis aux autres officiers compétents qui, avec le nombre requis de propriétaires fonciers, procèderont au tirage d'une nouvelle liste de jurés conformément aux dispositions et avec toutes les formalités ci après requises; lesquels dits jurés seront tenus de se présenter dans les trente jours requis et accordés en ce cas; et ladite Cour ne pourra ajourner que de jour en jour jusqu'à ce que ledit jury soit assemblé, pourvu que ladite session ne soit pas prolongée de telle sorte qu'elle intervienne dans les sessions régulières de cette Cour dans une autre paroisse. Toutes objections faites pour cause de défaut ou informalité qui peut s'être glissé soit dans la formation, soit dans le tirage, soit dans la convocation des dits jurés conformément aux dispositions de cet acte ou pour toute autre défaut ou informalité quelconques dans la composition des dits jurys devront être presentée le premier jour de la session des Cours de District et pas après.

Sect 3 Il est de plus décrété, &c., Que cette loi entrera en vigueur à partir du second lundi de juillet 1854.

Différents amendements sont proposés.

Mr Hodge,

Je fais la motion d'insérer deux jours au lieu de trente. Il est possible qu'une session extraordinaire soit convoquée dans cet intervalle.

Mr Palfrey,

Je fais la motion de déposer sur le bureau, tous les amendements.

Mr Trudeau,

Je fais la motion d'excepter la paroisse de Jefferson

Je fais cette motion parce que, d'ordinaire, la même législation s'applique à Jefferson et à la Nouvelle-Orléans.

Mr Hodge,

Je fais la motion d'excepter aussi la paroisse de Caddo.

Mr King,

La raison pour laquelle on excepterait la paroisse de Jefferson avec la Nouvelle-Orléans, ne se présente plus maintenant. Cela se faisait parce que la ville de Lafayette, aujourd'hui Quatrième District de la Nouvelle-Orléans, formait la plus grande partie de la paroisse. Depuis l'annexion de Lafayette à la Nouvelle-Orléans, la raison de semblable exception n'existe plus.

Mr Trudeau,

La population de Jefferson, je veux dire la population urbaine est plus grande aujourd'hui qu'elle ne l'était lorsque Lafayette a été annexée. Elle couvre Jefferson City, Carrollton et Gretna qui sont des villes en voie rapide de prospérité.

Mr Hodge,

Je vais dire les raisons pour lesquelles je désire que la paroisse de Caddo soit exceptée. Sans vouloir me montrer discourtois envers le sénateur de Jefferson, je dois dire que je ne vois pas de raison pour excepter sa paroisse comme la mienne. Un acte a été passé en 1852, et ses dispositions sont à peu près les mêmes que celles de ce bill qui est donc parfaitement inutile, du moins en ce qui concerne la paroisse de Caddo.

Mr King,

La raison que donne le sénateur n'est pas bonne. Il est bien préférable d'avoir une législation uniforme, que différents systèmes pour les différentes paroisses.

Mr Hodge,

Le sénateur comprend quelquefois et défend les intérêts de la Nouvelle-Orléans; qu'il me permette à mon tour de comprendre et de défendre ceux de ma paroisse. J'ai dit que nous avions dans la paroisse de Caddo, un système parfaitement satisfaisant et qui ne diffère que très peu du bill qui nous est maintenant présenté. Je n'ai pas encore eu le loisir de l'étudier assez bien pour pouvoir affirmer qu'il est exactement le même. Je ne puis même pas dire si aucune des parties du bill est exactement la même chose que l'acte de 1852, et par conséquent je ne saurais dire si ce bill conviendrait aussi bien au peuple de Caddo. Il est parfaitement satisfait maintenant de l'acte qui est en vigueur.

Pourquoi changer alors? Je rappellerai au sénateur de la Nouvelle-Orléans, que le système du tirage n'est pas uniforme dans tout l'Etat. Des actes spéciaux ont été passés pour différentes paroisses. Il y en a un pour la paroisse de Caddo, un je crois pour la paroisse d'Ouest Féliciana. Ces actes ont été passés pour répondre aux besoins et aux désirs des habitants de ces paroisses. Il serait injuste de faire maintenant un changement lorsqu'il n'est pas nécessaire, de les priver d'un système auquel ils sont habitués pour leur en imposer un autre qui pourrait ne pas convenir.

Mr King,

Je ne dirai que peu de mots en réponse au sénateur. Je n'ai pas l'habitude d'intervenir dans la législation désignée pour les campagnes seulement, mais je suis forcé de voter. J'ai présenté les observations que j'ai faites et contre lesquelles s'élève le sénateur, à la requête d'un sénateur de la campagne. J'apprends que le juge lui-même de la paroisse Caddo, est en faveur de ce bill. Je crois qu'il est nécessaire que nous adoptions un système uniforme surtout sur ce point; et c'est cette nécessité qui devrait décider le sénateur à accepter ce bill.

Mr Hodge,

Je vais lire une section de l'acte qui est maintenant en vigueur. (Il lit) Cela me semble bien meilleur que le système proposé dans le bill. La 3me section décrète: (Il lit la section.) "Que le tirage pour le grand jury se fait d'abord; les quinze premiers noms tirés composent le grand jury, et le reste est partagé en trois catégories égales, dont les membres doivent servir pendant les trois sessions.

Mr Martel,

Je partage l'opinion émise sur ce sujet par le sénateur de Caddo, et pour les mêmes raisons que lui, je demanderai une exception en faveur des paroisses de St. Landry et Calcasieu. Mon devoir envers mes constituants me commande de le faire. Dans ces paroisses, le Shérif a de longues courses à faire pour convoquer les jurés. Il a à parcourir plus de cent milles S'il doit recommencer cette tâche à chaque session de la Cour, il n'y pourra vraiment pas tenir, ou bien il aurait à sommer de comparaître plus de cent jurés à la fois. Je me vois donc forcé de faire la motion que le sénateur de Caddo et de voter dans le même sens que lui.

Mr Munday,

Pour la même raison je voterai dans le même sens que mes collègues. Lorsque nous avons des actes spéciaux qui répondent pleinement à ce que nous demandons, pourquoi nous imposer un changement inutile? En temps opportun, je ferai la motion d'excepter les paroisses d'Est et Ouest Féliciana. Ces paroisses ont été les premières à diviser les devoirs des jurés. Leur système est excellent et le peuple en est satisfait. J'espère que le Sénat ne les contraindra pas à accepter un système qui peut ne pas les convenir aussi bien.

Les devoirs sont maintenant répartis. Les fermiers, les planteurs, les ouvriers ne sont pas arrachés à leurs occupations plus de temps qu'il n'est absolument nécessaire.

Mr Hodge,

Je fais la motion de déposer le bill sur le bureau, sujet à l'appel.

Cette motion est adoptée.

Le bill pour venir au secours de———est pris en considération.

Mr McCay,

Ce bill a été ajourné quelque temps parce que l'on pensait que le sénateur de Natchitoches, Mr. de Russy, en savait quelque chose. Mais il s'est trouvé cependant qu'il n'en savait que peu de chose ou même qu'il n'en savait rien. Je me rendis donc auprès du Trésorier d'Etat, (Mr. Greneaux) qui me dit qu'il connaissait tous les faits relatifs à ce bill.

Il paraît que le docteur MacManus, après avoir tué un homme s'enfuit au Missouri. Une proclamation fut lancée contre lui par le Gouverneur de la Louisiane. Il fut arrêté, ramené en Louisiane et livré aux autorités. Son procès se fit et il fut acquitté. Il revint à Ste. Geneviève, où il fut tué plus tard dans une émeute. Celui qui est allé à Ste. Geneviève, qui l'a arrêté et l'a ramené en Louisiane, a certainement droit à une rémunération de la peine qu'il s'est donnée.

Mr Munday,

Je désirerais savoir si le pétitionnaire a un agent chargé de sa réclamation. On me dit que le Dr.

Mais j'ai été élevé dans la croyance que l'éducation était la première condition pour l'exercice d'une profession libérale. J'ai été instruit à croire qu'il était de la plus haute importance qu'un homme se destinant à une profession aussi délicate et aussi élevée, se pénétrât de la grandeur et de l'austérité de ses devoirs En 1852, le sénateur de Concordia, qui était alors un des membres influents et distingués de la Chambre Représentative, comme il est aujourd'hui l'un des plus marquants de celle-ci, contribua au passage de l'acte qui est la loi d'aujourd'hui. Je l'ai combattu, comme il l'a très bien remarqué ; mais mon opposition fut sans effet devant son influence. Je serais parfaitement consentant à ouvrir les portes des professions se rattachant à la pratique des lois, à tous ceux qui le désireraient. Car il n'en pourrait résulter aucun mal. Un pauvre avocat n'aurait pas de clientelle, et personne ne souffrirait de son ignorance. Mais je ne veux pas permettre au premier charlatan venu, de prendre le titre de médecin, sous le prétexte qu'il serait homœpathe, hydropathe, Thompsonien, ou quelqu'autre chose encore. Il faut nécessairement qu'il y ait un moyen de juger le degré de capacité d'un homme qui a la prétention d'exercer la médecine. Il peut se faire qu'il ait une excellente manière de se présenter, un caractère insinuant, et même qu'il ait beaucoup de connaissances en d'autres matières, et qu'avec tout cela il soit parfaitement ignorant de la science médicale. Il peut faire beaucoup de mal dans la société et mettre en danger la vie de ceux qui seront assez aveugles pour se fier à sa prétendue habileté. Prenez pour exemple le cas d'un homme qui s'en irait trouver les habitants éloignés, qui vivent dans l'isolement et retirés de tout centr de population, et qui dirait à ces gens simples : Je suis docteur, j'ai découvert une méthode infaillible pour guérir toutes les maladies? Que diriez-vous si, trompés par la parole séduisante et mensongère de cet imposteur, ils se livraient à lui, et se faisaient bel et bien envoyer dans la tombe? Eh mon Dieu ! Ce cas, ce n'est pas dans mon imanigation que je le trouve. Il n'est malheureusement que trop fréquent. Et il se représentera aussi longtemps que nous ne ferons pas sentinelle autour de la profession médicale.

La science et la médecine ne peut être que le résultat d'études sérieuses et profondes. La spéculation commerciale n'a rien à y voir, et toutes les panacées que nous annoncent les trompettes de la presse ne constituent pas la vraie science médicale. Pour ma part, je désire appuyer l'ancien système, car il est le produit de tout ce que la patience, l'étude et l'expérience des savants de tous les âges a amassé de trésors. Je pense, en un mot, qu'un aspirant à la profession de médecin, doit être forcé d'une manière quelconque de passer par ces études du passé. Quand je serai sur mon lit de mort, j'ai besoin de savoir, d'être certain que je n'ai pas été envoyé dans l'autre monde par quelqu'ivrogne charlatan. J'étais opposé à ce système actuel, quand il a été présenté en 1852, et habilement défendu par le sénateur de Concordia. Il peut être vrai que les nouveaux systèmes vaillent mieux que les miens, mais jusqu'à ce soit parfaitement établi, je préférerai les anciens. Nous ne devons patroner ni encourager ces nouvelles et dangereuses théories qui tendent à ébranler la dignité de la profession médicale et à la faire tomber dans un complet discrédit.

Mr Tradeau,

Je partage l'opinion du sénateur de Concordia. Un diplôme entre les mains d'un médecin n'est rien autre chose qu'une preuve qu'il a suivi un certain cours d'éducation médical. Une fois cela fait, il peut adopter et suivre le système qui lui convient. Plusieurs, après avoir suivi les leçons d'un professeur dans un certain système en adoptent un autre dans leur pratique. Il ne saurait y avoir d'objection à cela; mais il est nécessaire qu'ils sachent quelque peu d'anatomie, quelque peu de chirurgie. Ils doivent être versés dans la chimie et les sciences qui en découlent. Un médecin accompli doit du reste, posseder toutes ces sciences. Pour cette raison, il est donc necessaire que nous ayions la garantie qu'il les a étudiées, la preuve qu'il s'y est appliqué et qu'il les possède.

Mr. Rivers,

La loi telle qu'elle existe dit : que le médecin doit avoir un certificat de quelque collège médical bien connu.

Mr Lawes,

Mais il n'y a pas de preuves de la validité du certificat. Il peut être faux. Le bill pourvoit à ce cas.

Mr Rivers,

Le bill dit que le médecin doit être reconnu par la Faculté du Collége Médical. Mais si je désire moi, être traité par un médecin homœpathe, hydropate, allopathe ou autre?

Il y a des gens qui croient que les pilules Hahnemanniènes ne valent rien parce qu'elles sont trop petites. J'en ai fait l'essai et je sais à quoi m'en tenir à leur sujet Je puis dire que quelque soit l'effet qu'elles produisent, du moins elles ne tuent pas ; et c'est là plus que les allopathes ne peuvent dire de leurs médecines.

Mr Wickliffe,

J'étais membre du Sénat en 1852, lorsque la loi actuelle a été adoptée et je ne regrette pas de l'avoir soutenue de tout mon pouvoir. Dans le cours de ma vie j'ai fait l'expérience de différents systèmes de médecine et je puis dire sincèrement que je suis un témoignage vivant de l'excellence du système Thompsonnien. J'ai essayé de tous les anciens systèmes sans en obtenir aucun soulagement et j'ai eu enfin, en dernière cause, recours au Thompsonianisme, après aboir ingurgité des gallons de médecines et avoir parcouru des vingtaines de milles pour chercher la santé.

Quel droit à la Législature de dire que je ne devrai pas employer tel ou tel médecin en qui j'ai confiance? Le bill ne dit pas que la Législature aura ce pouvoir ; mais implicitement il le donne à entendre.

Il me semble Mr le Président, qu'il importe peu que je meure entre les mains d'un excellent médecin ou entre les mains de celles d'un charlatan. L'effet est le même. Mais, je le demande, y a-t-il plus de charlatans aujourd'hui en Louisiane qu'il n'y en avait avant 1852? Mon opinion est que non. Je crois qu'il y a tout autant de charlatanisme dans le secundum artem. Une anecdote expliquera ma pensée.

J'ai connu dans le Kentucky, un médecin distingué du nom de Caldwell. C'était ce qu'on appelle un homme de science; il jouissait d'une tres grande réputation dans cette partie du pays. Une de ces particularités était de trouver une raison scientifique à tout. Un des beaux esprits de l'endroit voulut s'amuser de lui à ce sujet. Rencontrant le docteur dans la rue, il lui dit qu'un phénomène extraordinaire avait eu lieu et qu'il désirait en avoir l'explication scientifique ; ce phénomène, disait-il, était la naissance d'un enfant tout noir d'un côté. Le docteur promit de s'occuper de cela et quelques jours après, il publia dans un des journaux, un article dans lequel il démontrait par des raisons scientifiques que ce phénomène était possible et en expliquait les causes et le principe Cet article était remarquablement bien fait, comme style et comme fonds.

Le bel esprit en question avait omis de lui dire que l'autre côte de l'enfant était noir aussi.

Voilà un specimen de ce que font les médecins à diplômes sans nombre.

Le bill devrait être intitulé :

Bill pour venir au secours de Faculté Médicale de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans Que n'avons nous pas fait pour cette Faculté? Nous avons fait, je crois, tout ce qu'elle mérite, plus même, beaucoup plus. Nous avons fait des appropriations de milliers de piastres, au soutien du Collége Medical et pour l'achat de figurines de cire et autres futilités de ce genre. Et malgré tout cela il y a, je crois, plus de humbugs, plus de charlatans dans le corps des médecins reguliers qu'il n'y en a peut-être ailleurs. Nous nous souvenons tous que pendant la désastreuse épidémie de l'année dernière, les médecins ordinaires ont échoué partout complètement. Ils n'ont réussi nulle part à arrêter le fléau Le docteur Stone lui-même, qui compte parmi les meilleurs, parut de la Nile. Orléans, en déclarant que sa science et son talent s'y perdaient. Si un homme emploie un médecin, c'est à lui qu'appartient le blame s'il arrive quelque malheur et s'il meurt entre les mains d'un charlatan, la faute n'en est à personne qu'à lui. On ne doit pas forcer un homme à employer un médecin qu'il n'aime pas ; nous ne devons pas non plus le forcer à employer un médecin recommandé par la Faculte Médicale de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Que chacun ait toute latitude d'employer un homeopathe, ou un hydropathe ou un allopathe, selon qu'il lui convient.

Le bill est déposé sur le bureau.

Les Chûtes de la Rivière Rouge.

Mr King fait la motion que l'on s'occupe du bill intitulé :

Acte pour compléter les améliorations aux chûtes de la rivière Rouge à Alexandrie, lequel, ainsi que le rapport des commissaires, rapporté par Mr DeRussy, au nom du Comité des Améliorations à l'Intérieur, sont lus.

Sur motion, le susdit bill est mis à l'ordre du jour pour lundi, le 3 mars, 1854.

Aux honorables membres du Sénat et de la Chambre des Representants de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale à Bâton Rouge.

Les soussignés en leur qualité de commissaires, nommés en vertu d'un acte de la Législature de l'Etat de la Louisiane, intitulé :

Acte pour améliorer la navigation de la rivière Rouge aux chûtes d'Alexandrie, approuvé le 22 mars 1852, et chargés de la direction et de la surveillance de ces travaux, ont l'honneur de vous exposer que la somme de vingt mille piastres, allouée par ledit acte est insuffisante pour achever ces travaux qu'on a en vue, et qu'il est nécessaire que vous affectiez à cet effet une somme additionnelle de quinze mille piastres.

Les raisons qui nous portent à vous faire cette demande sont tirées du rapport du Col. L. G. De Russy, l'ingenieur de la direction, dans lequel il est dit que les travaux à faire afin d'avoir un chenal parfaitement navigable, tant sous le rapport de la largeur que de la profondeur, a été, après mûr examen, reconnu beaucoup plus considerable et difficile qu'on l'avait d'abord cru d'après un plan de Geo. T. Dunbar, ci-devant ingénieur de l'Etat, le seul document auquel on a pu avoir recours et dans lequel il est dit que les opérations de Messrs. Maillefort et Radcloff, avec lesquels vos commissaires avaient fait des arrangements nécessaires pour l'exécution des dites améliorations, quoique couronnés de succès en ce sens qu'ils démontrent, au delà du doute, la possibilité de la mise en opération de ces améliorations ont été entravées et retardées par la dernière épidémie, la désorganisation temporaire de la direction, par suite de la mort lamentable de notre rapporteur Thomas J. Hickman, des Rapides, l'état continuel des eaux basses et plusieurs autres circonstances que nous nous abstiendrons de mentionner, mais dont le concours tendait à retarder leurs opérations à exercer la limite des dépenses que l'on s'était proposé de faire.

Le tout vous est respectueusement soumis.

[Signé] P. S HICKMAN, J. W. BUTLER. } Commissaires.

à construire et à entretenir un chemin de fer aboutissant à la Mobile, dans l'Etat de l'Alabama, après autorisation obtenue des Etats de l'Alabama et du Mississippi ; et attendu que ladite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, pour la mise à exécution de cette entreprise, d'après une convention et conformément aux chartes de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans et de la Mobile, compagnie qui a reçu des chartes des législatures des Etats de l'Alabama et du Mississippi, dans le but de construire un chemin de fer de la Mobile aux limites de la Louisiane, dans la direction de la Nouvelle-Orléans, est pleinement autorisée et a tout pouvoir de construire et d'entretenir un chemin de fer à travers les états du Mississippi et de de l'Alabama jusqu'à la Mobile, et attendu que la ville de la Mobile a, en prêtant son crédit à la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Mobile et Girard, assuré le prolongement d'un Chemin de Fer de la Mobile à Columbus en Géorgie, complétant de la sorte, par voie ferrée, les communications entre la ville de Mobile et l'Etat du Maine et les Canadas ; et attendu que le chemin de fer projeté entre la Nouvelle Orléans et la Mobile, une fois achevé, se reliera au moyen du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain au Grand Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans, des Opélousas et de l'Ouest, lequel cherche à s'étendre à travers l'Etat du Texas et à se prolonger jusqu'aux rivages de l'Océan Pacifique, ce qui établirait une grande route longeant la mer et s'étendant de l'Océan Atlantique a l'Océan Pacifique, en passant par la ville de la Nouvelle Orléans ; et attendu que les Etats de l'Alabama, du Mississippi et de la Louisiane ont, en vue de l'immense importance de ce projet, adopté des résolutions requérant leurs sénateurs et représentants au Congrès d'obtenir des donations de terres publiques pour aider à la construction du dit chemin de fer de la Nouvelle-Orléans et de la Mobile; et attendu que, en considération des faits sus-relatés et en considération de l'importance spéciale pour l'Etat de la Louisiane et la ville de la Nouvelle Orléans, que ledit Chemin de Fer entre la Nouvelle-Orléans et la Mobile soit achevé sans delai; et attendu qu'il est à désirer que la ville de la Nouvelle Orléans rivalise avec les autres en aidant à la construction de ce chemin qui confondrait ses intérêts avec ceux des extrémités de l'Union, en conséquence

Section 1. Il est décrété par le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentants de l'Etat de la Louisiane, réunis en Assemblée Générale ; que le Conseil de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans aura le droit de souscrire au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, pour un million cinq cent mille piastres, pourvu que le dépôt de la dite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer ne soit pas établi au-dessus de la rue du Canal.

Sec 2. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que toute ordonnance autorisant cette souscription, devra contenir les dispositions suivantes:

1o. Que la souscription de la ville au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, sera faite par le Maire et dans trente ans de leur date, portant intérêt à raison de six pour cent par an, avec des coupons d'intérêt y attachés, payables semi-annuellement à la Nouvelle-Orléans ou a New York : lesquels bons pourront être transférés par l'endossement du Président et du Secrétaire de ladite Compagnie, et pourront être convertis en actions de ladite Compagnie, à toute époque, dans les cinq ans de leur date, conformément aux réglements que le Président et les Directeurs jugeront nécessaires d'adopter, et qui seront approuvés par les parties intéressées.

2o. Qu'une taxe sur toute espèce de propriété, d'occupations, de métiers ou de professions taxables, maintenant dans ladite ville, sera prélevée en janvier de chaque année, pour payer les intérêts annuels sur lesdits bons, spécifiant le taux de ladite taxe, laquelle sera perçue en même temps et de la même manière que la taxe de la dette consolidée de ladite ville.

3o. Que les bons de la ville émis en paiement de la souscription de la ville au fonds capital de ladite Compagnie, seront émis et reçus au pair; à l'effet de garantir le paiement intégral desdits bons à leur échéance, les actions de ladite Compagnie resteront pour toujours engagées pour le rachat desdits bons dans la proportion de dix actions, pour chaque bon de la somme de mille piastres.

Sec 3. Il est de plus décrété, &c.: Que toutes les ordonnances, les résolutions ou tous autres actes passés par ledit Conseil, après le premier janvier de chaque année, excepté l'ordonnance pour imposer ladite taxe de la dette consolidée et l'ordonnance pour imposer une taxe spéciale pour le paiement des intérêts annuels sur les bons émis par la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans pour la souscription au fonds capital des autres Compagnies de chemin de fer dans l'Etat, seront nuls et de nul effet si ledit Conseil de Ville n'a pas adopté, au préalable, une résolution prélevant une taxe spéciale pour payer les intérêts sur lesdits bons ; bien entendu qu'il ne sera prélevé aucune taxe pour le paiement des intérêts sur lesdits bons, après que les dividendes de six pour cent par an auront été payés sur les actions de la ville dans la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, comme il est dit ci-après; lesquels dividendes devront être affectés par la ville au paiement des intérêts ; et bien entendu de plus, que toutes les fois que les dividendes sur les actions de la ville dans ladite Compagnie, s'élèveront à plus de six pour cent par an, l'excédant, après que les intérêts auront été payés comme il est dit ci-dessus, sera affecté par ladite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, au rachat des bons de la ville, émis en vertu de cet acte; il est bien entendu que toutes les fois que la ville recevra sur ses actions dans la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, un dividende moindre de six pour cent, une taxe sera prélevée pour la différence seulement qui existera entre le montant dudit dividende annuel et le montant de l'intérêt annuel ; bien entendu aussi que les revenus nets de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer actuel seront divisés, comme précédemment, parmi les actionnaires actuels, jusqu'a ce que le Chemin de Fer de la Nouvelle Orléans a Mobile soit achevé.

Sec 4. Il est de plus decrété, &c ; Qu'aussitôt que l'ordonnance autorisant la souscription pour les actions susdites, sera adoptée et approuvée par les électeurs de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, comme il est dit ci-après, le Maire ordonnera l'émission des bons en faveur de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, pour le montant de ladite souscription, après qu'il aura reçu de ladite Compagnie des certificats pour quinze mille actions au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, de cent piastres chaque, payés en plein ; et sur ce, le Maire de la ville sera autorisé, et il devra signer devant le Secrétaire de ladite Compagnie, lequel est autorisé à recevoir et exécuter ledit acte, un acte donnant un gage desdites actions, dans la proportion de dix actions pour chaque bon de mille piastres.

Sec 5 Il est de plus décrété, &c.; qu'aucune ordonnance passée par le Conseil de Ville en vertu de cet acte, ne sera valide ni ne pourra être mise en vigueur avant d'avoir été approuvée et ratifiée, à une élection qui sera tenue a cet effet, en vertu d'un ordre du Conseil de Ville, par la majorité des citoyens de ladite ville, ayant le droit de voter; laquelle élection devra être tenue dans les quinze jours qui suivront l'adoption de l'ordonnance, sera précédée d'un avis donné par le Maire et publié dans la gazette choisie par le Conseil de Ville, et sera sous tous les rapports, excepté dans les cas prévus dans cet acte, conduite de la même manière que sont conduites les élections de ville en vertu de la loi; et à ladite élection, les votes seront donnés comme suit: Ceux qui approuveront l'ordonnance, inscriront ou feront inscrire sur leurs bulletins les mots suivants: "En faveur de la taxe pour aider à la construction d'un chemin de fer jusqu'à la Mobile," et ceux qui désapprouveront ladite ordonnance inscriront ou feront inscrire sur leurs bulletins les mots: "Contre la taxe pour aider à la construction d'un chemin de fer jusqu'à Mobile;" bien entendu que si le Conseil de Ville refuse de souscrire au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer y nommé de la manière prescrite dans cet acte, ledit Conseil pourra, à toute époque subséquente, aussi souvent que ledit Conseil le jugera convenable, à des intervalles de deux mois au moins, reprendre en considération la question; et si l'ordonnance, après qu'elle aura adoptée définitivement par le Conseil, est rejetée par la majorité des citoyens de ladite ville, ayant le droit de voter, la première fois qu'elle sera soumise à leur approbation, le Conseil pourra, à toute époque, durant les deux années qui suivront le décret de cet acte, et à des intervalles de six mois au moins, soumettre la question aux votants de ladite ville de la même manière qu'à la première élection.

Sec 7. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que dans le mois de Janvier de chaque année, ou à telle époque que les autres actionnaires de ladite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer, éliront leurs Directeurs, ledit Conseil de Ville élira collectivement, pour représenter la ville, trois Directeurs sur les sept qui sont alloués, en vertu de la loi, à ladite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain; lesquels devront être citoyens de la ville de la Nlle-Orléans, et resteront en fonctions pendant un an et jusqu'à ce que leurs successeurs aient été élus. Bien entendu qu'aucun membre de l'un ou l'autre Conseil, ou officier de la corporation, ne sera éligible comme Directeur; et bien entendu de plus, qu'après que des bons pour une somme de cinq cent mille piastres auront été convertis en actions par les porteurs d'iceux, la ville ne pourra élire que deux; et qu'après que des bons pour cinq cent mille piastres de plus auront été convertis en actions, la ville ne pourra élire qu'un Directeur; et qu'après que, tous les bons auront été convertis en actions, la ville n'élira aucun Directeur.

Sec. 8. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que ladite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain aura le droit, en tout temps, en rendant au Trésorier de la Ville tout bon ou bons émis en vertu de cet acte, d'exiger de la ville un transfert d'actions de ladite Compagnie de Chemin de Fer, pour un montant égal; lesquelles actions, après que les bons auront été émis, comme il est dit ci-dessus, seront transférées par le Maire de la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, à ladite Compagnie, qui pourra les vendre ou en disposer autrement, et lesdits bons ainsi rendus à la ville, seront immédiatement cancellés en présence du Maire et du Président ou Secrétaire de ladite Compagnie.

Sec. 9. Il est de plus décrété, &c.; Que cet acte aura force de loi à dater de sa passation.

Mr Moore,

Je fais la motion d'effacer le préambule. Il n'est personne qui ne sache quels bienfaits résulteront de la construction de ce chemin.

Mr Macmurdo,

La Compagnie a cru qu'il était de quelque importance; cependant je n'ai pas d'objection à ce qu'il soit supprimé.

La motion est adoptée.

Mr Macmurdo,

Je fais la motion d'adopter la première section.

Mr Trudeau,

Je désirerais entendre quelques observations favorables au bill.

Mr Macmurdo,

C'est un bill présenté au nom des citoyens de la Nouvelle-Orléans. Il a été référé au Comité Judiciaire et examiné par lui. Il y a certains amendements qui sont nécessaires et qui seront présentés en temps et lieu. Le bill ne demande rien à l'Etat; il autorise simplement la ville de la Nlle-Orléans à souscrire au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, afin de l'aider dans la construction d'un chemin de fer allant à la Mobile, aux mêmes conditions que les souscriptions faites aux autres compagnies de chemins de fer. Il n'est pas nécessaire de s'arrêter longuement à expliquer l'urgence de cette entreprise et sa grande utilité pour ceux qui voyagent. C'est à la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans à juger de cela par elle-même. Tout ce que je dirai c'est que ce chemin paiera et au-delà ces frais, lorsqu'une fois il sera achevé. Le peuple de la Nouvelle-Orléans a le plus grand intérêt à ce qu'il soit achevé le plus tôt possible. Jusqu'aujourd'hui les communications n'ont eu lieu qu'au moyen de bateaux à vapeur qui ont réalisé une immense fortune. Ce chemin de fer quadruplerait au moins les affaires et le voyage se ferait en quelques heures au lieu d'une journée entière.

Mr Hodge,

Je ne désire pas faire obstacle à l'adoption de ce bill; mais je dois faire remarquer qu'il vient d'être mis sur le bureau des membres et qu'ils n'ont pu avoir le temps de l'examiner, de l'étudier. Jusqu'aujourd'hui, il n'a été qu'entre les mains de l'imprimeur.

Mr Moore,

Le bill a été entre les mains du Comité Judiciaire qui l'a examiné. On l'a trouvé semblable en tout aux autres bills rédigés dans le même but.

Lorsque j'ai fait la motion de supprimer le préambule ce n'était pas par hostilité envers le bill, mais parce que je considérais toute cette partie comme inutile.

Mr Trudeau,

Ma seule objection était que je n'avais pas lu le bill et que, par conséquent, je ne savais rien à son sujet. S'il en doit être décidé maintenant, je m'abstiendrai de voter. Je désire entendre lecture du bill et avoir le temps de l'étudier. Cela n'est que très juste. Si je ne me trompe ce bill pourvoit

MacManus est revenu tranquillement, et qu'il n'a pas fallu lui mettre des fers.

Mr Lacey,

Mr Lacroix est l'agent, il m'a confié la réclamation.

Mr DeRussy,

Je crois pouvoir dire les faits qui se rattachent au retour de cet homme, (le Dr. McManus) du Missouri. Il n'est pas revenu avec des fers. Il est revenu paisiblement et on ne le considérait pas du tout comme dangereux.

Mr Hodge,

Je pensais d'abord voter en faveur de ce bill; puis j'ai réfléchi que le réclamant pouvait avoir été payé de ce service par quelque parent ou ami du défunt qui aurait eu quelque p que ou quelque haine contre le Dr. McManus. Si réellement le Dr. avait été coupable du crime hideux dont il était accusé, le Gouverneur aurait offert une récompense pour son appréhension. Puis, j'ai réfléchi que peut-être de la sorte nous paierions un homme qui a commis une injustice, car le Dr. a été acquitté ensuite. Si je pensais que cet homme a agi dans un but désintéressé et pour que la loi fut exécutée, je voterais peut-être en faveur du bill, quoique à tout bien considérer, le fait que le Dr. a été acquitté, me ferait hésiter longtemps. Mais je n'ai pas de raison de croire que les motifs aient été tels et par conséquent, je ne pense pas, que l'Etat lui ait aucune obligation.

Mr Boatner raconte les faits.

Mr Hodge,

Cela ne prouve pas l'intention. Les parents du défunt se sont sans doute rendus auprès du Gouverneur et ont obtenu de lui, qu'il fit une réquisition. Le Gouverneur du Missouri était donc tenu de lancer une proclamation pour l'arrestation de l'accusé. Mais cela n'avait rien à faire avec la culpabilité ou l'innocence du prévenu, ni avec l'intention de celui qui a fait l'arrestation.

Mr Boatner,

Le Sénateur voudrait que nous prouvions ce qui n'est pas susceptible de preuves. Cet homme a agi par autorité; c'est là tout ce que nous avons besoin de savoir.

Mr Moore,

Y a-t-il aucune loi relative aux cas de cette nature?

Mr Boatner,

Tout dernièrement, nous avons payé $500 pour l'arrestation d'un meurtrier à Louisville, à celui qui l'a ramené dans cet Etat.

Mr Hodge,

Le sénateur commet une erreur en n'établissant pas de différence par le fait que dans le cas qui nous occupe, le prévenu a été acquitté. Il a été décidé qu'il n'avait pas violé les lois.

J'apprends du sénateur de Natchitoches, que la raison pour laquelle il a été ramené dans l'Etat est qu'il avait des ennemis dans le Missouri, lesquels voulaient se débarrasser de lui, non parce qu'il avait des ennemis dans le Missouri, lesquels voulaient se débarrasser de lui, mais parce qu'ils ne l'aimaient pas.

Mr Lacey,

Le sénateur de Natchitoches, sait-il donc quelque chose au sujet de cette affaire?

Mr DeRussy,

Cet homme avait eu des querelles dans le Missouri, il en était résulté des inimitiés de la part de personnes qui, nécessairement, désiraient se débarrasser de lui. Ils avaient entendu parler du mandat d'arrêt décerné contre lui; ils jugèrent que l'occasion était bonne pour mettre à exécution leur projet. Je ne crois pas que le pétitionnaire eut aucune animosité contre lui, mais son caractère ferme et énergique l'a fait choisir pour remplir cette mission. En partant du Missouri, il dit à l'accusé que s'il promettait de ne rien tenter, il ne le garotterait pas, qu'il n'userait envers lui d'aucune violence. Ils descendirent le fleuve comme deux amis.

Tels sont les faits qui sont à ma connaissance. Ils débarquèrent à environ cinquante yardes de ma demeure. Je ne puis donc pas me tromper à cet égard.

Mr Palfrey,

Selon moi, lorsque le Gouverneur lance une proclamation contre quelqu'un, l'Etat doit payer les frais faits par celui qui a opéré l'arrestation.

Mr Munday,

Je me rappelle l'affaire d'un meurtrier qui s'était enfui au Texas. Il fut suivi par une troupe d'hommes qui eurent à faire bien du chemin, à éprouver bien des fatigues avant de parvenir à leur but. L'Etat leur donna $500 à partager entre eux. Je trouve que la somme proposée dans le bill est trop considérable.

Mr Richardson,

Je fais la motion d'effacer le chiffre $500.

Adopté.

Mr Martel,

Afin d'expliquer mon vote sur ce bill, je me verrai dans la nécessité de raconter des faits connus de tous les Louisianais qui ont résidé sur les frontières du Texas. Plusieurs personnes accusées de meurtre et arrêtées comme telles se sont sauvées en traversant la rivière Sabine qui devenait ainsi comme une barrière derrière laquelle ils défiaient la justice. J'ai été au Texas et rencontrant un de ces criminels j'ai demandé à différentes personnes: "Savez-vous que cet homme est un meurtrier? et ils m'ont répondu "oui." Quand je leur ai demandé pourquoi ils ne l'arrêtaient pas et ne le livraient pas au juste châtiment qu'il méritait, ajoutant qu'ils seraient récompensés, ils m'ont répondu en riant: "Croyez-vous que nous prendrions cette peine et que nous nous exposerions à ces risques là pour quelques centaines de piastres C'est pour cette raison que dans quelques parties de notre Etat, sur les frontières du Texas, il n'y a pas eu de sécurité pour la vie des habitants puisque les criminels n'avaient qu'à passer sur les frontières pour être à l'abri de toutes poursuites, de toute arrestation. Pour moi, je ne vois pas qu'il y ait lieu à tant de discussions sur cette question. Dans ce cas, deux gouverneurs ont lancé des proclamations, l'accusé a été arrêté et amené devant la justice, et cependant nous chicanons et ne pouvons nous décider à payer à celui qui l'a arrêté, les frais qu'il a dû faire pour opérer l'arrestation. C'est faire de la justice une question de piastres et de sous. Si nous persistons à agir ainsi, ce sera presque commettre un déni de justice. Les crimes seraient commis avec impunité et l'on se rirait des officiers de justice. Combien de criminels ont ainsi échappé à la loi en passant la rivière Sabine et sont restés là en liberté; tranquilles, heureux, seulement parce que nul ne pouvait avoir intérêt à les arrêter. Quand vous le voudrez, vous pourrez les voir sur la frontière. Demandez aux voisins: "Savez-vous que cet homme est un assassin, un meurtrier, un voleur, un faussaire? Ils vous répondent: "Oui, nous le savons. Demandez-leur pourquoi ils ne les livrent pas à la justice, ils vous diront qu'ils n'ont aucun intérêt à le faire. Ils ne brillent pas par le désintéressement, comme bien vous devez penser. Ils ne se donneraient pas la peine de poursuivre et d'arrêter un homme; ils ne perdraient pas leur temps et n'encourraient pas des dépenses et des fatigues seulement par amour de la justice et des lois.

Digitized by Google

Je me souviens d'un criminel du nom de Mitchell, qui fut poursuivi à travers plusieurs Etats et arrêté enfin après bien de la peine et bien des fatigues. On paya à celui qui l'avait arrêté $300 seulement. C'est honteux. Dans un pareil cas, je consentirais à accorder mille piastres. L'argent ainsi appliqué n'est pas de l'argent perdu.

Oui, dans des cas pareils, je voudrais qu'on payât grandement, libéralement, et alors nous verrions les criminels arrêtés. Mais, comment ira-t-on se mettre à la poursuite d'un homme qui a violé les lois, si après qu'on aura rempli son devoir, si l'on demande à être récompensé on vous répond : L'accusé que vous avez arrêté, a-t-il été condamné?

L'argent ainsi placé, je le dis encore, n'est pas de l'argent perdu ; il assure le règne des lois et de la justice.

Je fais la motion d'insérer le chiffre $100 au lieu de $500.

Sur motion, l'amendement est déposé sur le bureau.

Mr Hodge,

Je fais la motion de déposer indéfiniment le tout sur le bureau.

Cette motion est rejetée.

Mr Ryan,

Le Gouverneur n'a-t-il pas à sa disposition un fonds spécial destiné à cet usage?

Mr Hodge,

La coutume établie est comme suit :

Le Gouverneur a à sa disposition un fonds spécial considérable. Lorsqu'une arrestation est faite celui qui l'a opérée s'adresse au Gouverneur qui le paie. La probabilité est que la réclamation a été déjà présentée au Gouverneur alors en fonctions, et lui qui connaissait les faits, a refusé de la payer. Je ne suis pas opposé au paiement de ces dépenses. Je partage l'opinion du sénateur de St. Landry, que des considérations de haute politique requièrent ce paiement. Ce service est important pour l'Etat et doit être rémunéré ; mais en même temps nous devons être justes et conséquents avec nous mêmes. Si le Gouverneur déclare que cette réclamation est bonne et qu'elle n'a pas été payée parce que le fonds spécial était épuisé, je voterai volontiers pour qu'elle soit accordée.

Mr de Russy,

Le fonds n'est-il pas spécialement destiné aux récompenses?

Mr King,

Je crois qu'il n'existe pas de semblables restrictions.

Mr Lacey,

Le fonds n'est pas destiné à cet usage. Le président pro temp., (Mr Wickliffe) qui a une grande expérience de ces choses-là, n'a, je suis sûr, jamais vu ce fonds appliqué de la sorte.

Mr Munday,

Il se peut qu'il soit affecté aux récompenses de ceux qui ont appréhendé des criminels &c. &c. Mais cela est bien différent, cet homme n'a jamais espéré recevoir une récompense. Il a tout simplement voulu emmener un homme que ses ennemis regardaient comme dangereux ; et ils avaient imaginé ce moyen de s'en débarrasser.

Mr Boatner,

Cet homme, quoiqu'il ne fut pas citoyen de la Louisiane, agissait dans l'intérêt de cet Etat et de ses lois. On nous dit qu'il ne doit rien recevoir parce que le prévenu a été acquitté. Il n'en a pas moins cependant rendu le service : il n'en a pas moins rempli le devoir. Il n'a pas à se préoccuper si le prévenu a été condamné ou acquitté ; cela ne le regarde pas. Il ne tenait pas à lui qu'il en fut autrement. J'espère que le Sénat envisagera cette question au même point de vue que moi.

Je fais la motion d'insérer $475 au lieu de $500.

Mr Trudeau,

Nous devrions ou payer $500 ou ne rien payer du tout. Je présenterai une résolution autorisant le Gouverneur à payer $500 si, dans son opinion, cette réclamation est due. C'est ainsi que cette question doit être résolue.

Mr Hodge,

Je renouvelle ma motion de déposer le tout indéfiniment sur le bureau.

Cette motion est rejetée.

Mr Clifton,

Je fais la motion d'insérer $300.

Mr Trudeau renouvelle aussi la motion.

Elle est rejetée.

Mr Hodge,

Je vais dire comment j'ai cru comprendre toute cette affaire. Le sénateur de Natchitoches dit qu'il sait que cet homme a été ramené paisiblement; qu'il n'a fait aucune résistance. Celui qui l'a arrêté n'a donc eu d'autre peine que d'aller au Missouri et d'en revenir.

Il paraît que ce Dr. McManus avait des ennemis qui le persécutaient. Ils désiraient se débarrasser de lui et employèrent dans ce but le réclamant actuel. Cette tâche n'était pas lourde ainsi que je l'ai dit plus haut ; le prisonnier ne fit aucune résistance, il vint paisiblement avec la conscience, sans doute, de son innocence du crime dont on l'accusait. Il fut jugé et acquitté. Un jury composé de ses concitoyens, déclara qu'il n'avait pas violé les lois de la Louisiane.

On voit donc que ce n'était qu'un homme persécuté. Si les sénateurs veulent faire gratuitement un présent à celui qui l'a arrêté, qu'ils le fassent. Pour moi, je ne saurais prêter les mains à cela.

Mr Pabrey,

Je ne demande pas à revenir sur ce qui a été fait; je ne demande pas d'explications. S'il a été persécuté il ne paraît pas qui l'ait été par ces hommes.

L'amendement insérant $300 est adopté, et le bill subit sa troisième lecture.

Bill pour venir au secours de —— Toy.

Mr Clifton évoque le bill pour venir au secours de —— Toy.

Mr Hodge,

Je fais la motion que le bill soit référé.

Mr Clifton,

Je ne vois pas pour qu'elle raison le bill serait référé. C'est la main de Dieu seule qui a empêché cet homme de remplir son devoir. Il est ici maintenant, il a besoin d'un règlement de compte et les commissaires désirent terminer avec lui.

Après quelques autres remarques de Mr Clifton, le bill passe.

ORDRE SPECIAL DU JOUR.

Souscription par la ville au Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain.

Sur motion de Mr Macmurdo, le bill suivant est pris en considération.

Acte pour autoriser la ville de la Nouvelle Orléans à souscrire au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Potchartrain, à l'effet d'aider ladite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, à construire un Chemin de Fer de la Nelle.-Orléans à la Mobile.

PREAMBULE.

Attendu que la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain a, en vertu d'un acte de la Législature, approuvé le 28 avril 1853, été autorisée à la souscription par la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, pour une somme d'un million cinq cents mille piastres Il peut être avantageux à la ville de même qu'il peut ne l'être pas du tout. Mais, je veux m'en assurer par moi-même, et ne pas voter les yeux fermés.

Digitized by Google

Mr Hodge,

Si je ne me trompe, il y est question de soumettre cette question à la décision du peuple. Je ne suis pas prêt maintenant à voter sur ce point ; je désire exprimer mes vues, car, je considère que la discussion est encore ouverte et que l'importance de ce bill est telle qu'il exige une étude réfléchie.

Ce point n'est pas encore décidé malgré que la Cour Suprême ait donné des décisions à cet égard.

Je crois donc n'être pas déraisonnable en demandant un peu de temps avant que ce bill ne soit adopté ou rejeté. Du temps, un peu de temps, c'est tout ce que je demande. Si je suis forcé de voter maintenant, peut-être le ferai-je dans un sens que plus tard je regretterais.

Mr King,

Le bill n'est qu'à la seconde lecture. Depuis quelques jours il a été à l'ordre du jour, depuis une semaine je crois. Je regrette que mon collègue n'en ait pas pris lecture. Cependant, je dois dire, que s'il l'avait essayé, je crois qu'il l'aurait pu. Je sais pertinemment qu'il ne contient aucune clause à laquelle on puisse faire de sérieuses objections. Il permet seulement au peuple de la Nelle-Orléans d'en décider ainsi qu'il jugera le plus convenable, le plus favorable à ses intérêts.

Mr Hodge,

Les remarques du sénateur me semblent injustes. Il est vrai que je pourrais être plus diligent, plus actif que je ne le suis dans certaines circonstances; mais dans celle-ci, je ne crois pas avoir été coupable de la moindre négligence. Je ne connais pas un seul sénateur qui l'ait lu. Il a été présenté lundi et référé immédiatement au comité, dont le sénateur est membre. Il a donc eu une occasion qui ne s'est pas présentée pour les autres sénateurs moins heureux que lui. Tous, nous le voyons maintenant pour la première fois, nous ne le connaissons pas, nous ne l'avons pas étudié ; nous n'avons jamais eu de copies imprimées du bill. S'il subit sa troisième lecture, il ne sera plus possible d'y introduire des amendements à moins qu'il ne soit référé de nouveau.

Je regrette que le sénateur ait ramené un principe que je croyais désormais banni de cette assemblée.

Du reste, ce bill n'est pas tellement local que mon collègue se l'imagine et semble vouloir nous le donner à entendre. Il s'y trouve des questions importantes, des principes graves à discuter. La question de savoir si une partie de la population peut imposer à l'autre, des charges pour la souscription à une entreprise qui a été désavouée par cette seconde partie est grave, sérieuse, importante, et demande à être discutée avec patience, avec attention. avec réflexion.

J'espère qu'on ne passera pas ce bill de la sorte, qu'on ne nous l'imposera pas sur l'heure et sans nous laisser une seconde de réflexion. Je le répète, je ne suis pas opposé au bill ; je désire seulement l'examiner, l'étudier Je demande le temps de me préparer pour exprimer ensuite mon opinion et mes idées. Cette demande me semble bien juste et bien raisonnable.

Les Chûtes à Alexandrie.

Le bill allouant $15,000 pour faire disparaître les chûtes d'Alexandrie, est prise en considération.

Mr Hodge,

Si je considérais cette mesure comme un don gratuit, je n'hésiterais pas à y refuser mon vote Mais ce n'est pas une allocation de cette espèce elle est au contraire de la plus stricte nécessité, L'acte de 1852, a approprié $20,000 à cet objet. Un contrat a été fait avec deux messieurs de New-York, qui sont arrivés sur les lieux et ont commencé leurs travaux. J'apprends de bonne source qu'ils ont réussi à faire disparaître la chûte supérieure, ce qui facilite déja beaucoup la navigation de la rivière. Une nouvelle allocation est nécessaire pour compléter cet ouvrage. Pour prouver que je suis conséquent avec moi-même en défendant ce bill, je ferai observer que cet acte et le bill de 1852, n'ont aucune analogie avec l'appropriation pour le bayou Manchac, que j'ai considéré comme très injuste, à l'époque où elle a été adoptée. L'Ingénieur de l'Etat ne pouvait pas exécuter ce travail, il n'a jamais eu à sa disposition, les moyens et les appareils nécessaires pour les conduire à bonne fin. Cette affaire n'a donc aucun rapport avec celle qui nous occupe. La rivière Rouge est d'ailleurs, après le Mississippi, la riviere la plus importante de notre Etat.

Mr Macmurdo,

Et d'où l'honorable membre compte-t-il tirer la somme requise?

Mr Hodge,

Du fonds général

Mr Macmurdo,

Le fonds général ne peut pas la payer. Elle n'est pas comprise dans le devis proposé pour le bureau de l'Auditeur. Comme représentant les finances de l'Etat, je crois qu'il est de mon devoir de donner ce renseignement à mes collègues afin qu'on puisse voter en toute connaissance de cause.

Une allocation a été faite à cet effet, il y a deux ans et le montant n'en a été payé qu'il y a quelques semaines, alors que le temps était sur le point d'expirer.

Mr DeRussy,

Je demande à établir en peu de mots le véritable état de la question. Les ingénieurs qui sont chargés de ces travaux sont arrivés de New York à une époque où l'état de la rivière ne permettait pas de faire les relevés nécessaires. Il y avait pourtant un relevé fait par Mr Dunbar et les ingénieurs de New York l'ont pris pour base de leur contrat Ils se sont mis à l'œuvre et ils ont déjà enlevé une partie considérable du banc inférieur, opération qui a été très dispendieuse, beaucoup plus coûteuse du moins que l'on ne l'avait cru. Le roc sur lequel il fallait agir est très dur et très difficile à faire sauter, ce qui a rendu les opérations fort difficiles. La conséquence est que l'allocation se trouve épuisée. Si les fonds manquent pour achever cet ouvrage, l'allocation précédente aura été tout à fait inutile et l'argent qu'on a dépensé aura été littéralement jeté à l'eau. Les frais de transport sont maintenant énormes et je crois que tout le monde conviendra de l'utilité, de la nécessité même de cette allocation additionnelle.

L'importance qu'on attache à cette entreprise n'est nullement exagérée et l'avantage qui en résultera pour le commerce de la Nouvelle-Orléans est incalculable. Lorsque les eaux sont basses, ces chûtes interrompent toutes les communications. Les négociants de la Nouvelle-Orléans attendent en ce moment, des produits qui, depuis longtemps, sont prêts à être expédiés et sur lesquels ils ont, depuis longtemps, fait des avances

Les frais de transport atteignent un chiffre qui équivaut presque à une prohibition de commerce.

Digitized by Google

Le coton coûte $7 par balle avant d'avoir franchi les chûtes, et même dans ce sens, il est exposé à être détruit ou au moins fortement endommagé. L'état ne peut pas s'occuper d'une entreprise plus avantageuse, plus nécessaire, plus utile que celle qui nous est soumise en ce moment. Elle a une importance toute particulière pour la Nouvelle-Orléans, et l'intérêt de cette ville réclame hautement qu'elle soit menée à bonne fin.

Mr Macmurdo,

Je ferai observer à l'honorable préopinant que si le bill est adopté, nous devrons imposer une nouvelle taxe pour les améliorations intérieures. Les contributions sont déjà fort élevées et elles suffisent à peine à nos besoins.

Mr DeRussy,

L'honorable membre n'est pas juste. Le fonds des améliorations intérieures a été aboli. A la dernière session, j'ai demandé à mes collègues, de conserver ce fonds, mais il a été aboli et gaspillé pour des fins auxquelles il n'était pas destiné. Il a été gaspillé de la façon la plus honteuse, mais ce n'est pas une raison pour que l'entreprise qui nous occupe en souffre.

Le bill est adopté.

LUNDI, 6 Mars 1854.

L'ordre du jour rappelle la lecture du bill suivant.

Acte pour autoriser la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans à souscrire au fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, afin de mettre cette Compagnie à même de construire un chemin de fer d'Orléans à Mobile.

PREAMBULE.

Attendu que la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain, en vertu d'un acte de la Législature, approuvé le 28 avril 1853, a été autorisée à construire et à entretenir un chemin de fer allant à la Mobile, dans l'Alabama, sous la condition d'obtenir l'autorisation des états de l'Alabama et du Mississipi ; et attendu que ladite Compagnie, en poursuivant son entreprise, a été conformément aux chartes de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Mobile et de la Nouvelle Orléans, compagnie autorisée par les législatures des états de l'Alabama et du Mississippi, à construire un chemin de fer allant de Mobile à la ligne de la Louisiane, dans la direction de la Nouvelle-Orléans, est autorisée à construire et à entretenir un chemin de fer passant à travers les états du Mississipi et de l'Alabama ; et attendu encore que la ville de la Mobile a, en prêtant son crédit à la Compagnie de la Mobile et de Girard, assuré l'entretien d'un rail-road de la Mobile à Columbus, (Georgie) lequel par conséquent, complètera la voie de communication par rail-roads entre la ville de Mobile et l'Etat du Maine et le Canada; et attendu que le chemin de fer désigné d'Orléans à Mobile, quand il sera achevé, formera, en venant se relier au chemin de fer de Pontchartrain, le complément d'une ligne de fer entre la Mobile, la Nouvelle Orléans, les Opélousas, et le Grand Chemin de Fer de l'Ouest, lequel doit un jour pénétrer jusqu'aux rives du Pacifique en passant par le Texas; et que par ce moyen les deux océans se trouveront reliés l'un à l'autre par une ligne de chemins de fer qui traversera la Nouvelle Orléans.

Attendu que les différents états de l'Alabama, du Mississipi et de la Louisiane ont, en vue de l'importance générale de ce chemin, passé des résolutions conjointes, enjoignant à leurs sénateurs et représentants au Congrès de faire tous leurs efforts pour obtenir des concessions de terres publiques pour aider à la construction des chemins de fer dont il s'agit.

Attendu qu'en considération des actes ci-dessus, et en considération de l'importance particulière qu'il y a pour l'Etat de la Louisiane et pour la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans, à ce que ce chemin soit achevé sans délai.

Attendu enfin qu'il est désirable que la ville de la Nouvelle-Orléans se montre digne des villes voisines en aidant, comme elles, à la construction de cette ligne, qui doit la mettre en rapport direct avec les diverses extrémités de l'Union.

Par ces motifs, le Sénat et la Chambre des Représentants de l'Etat de la Louisiane en Assemblée Générale, ont décrété ce qui suit:

Section 1ère. Le conseil communal de la ville de la Nouvelle Orléans est autorisé à souscrire au fonds de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer Pontchartrain, pour la somme de un million cinq cent mille piastres.

Sec. 2me. Toute ordonnance qui autorisera une pareille souscription contiendra les dispositions suivantes:

1o. Cette souscription de la ville sera faite par le Maire, et sera payable en bons de la ville de mille piastres chacun, lesquels auront trente ans à courir et porteront intérêt à six pour cent par an, avec coupon détaillé pour ledit intérêt. Cet intérêt sera payable par semestre à la Nelle-Orléans ou à New York. Ces bons seront transmissibles par l'endossement du Président et du Secrétaire de ladite Compagnie, et ils pourront être convertis en actions de ladite Compagnie, à quelque époque que ce soit, pourvu que ce ne soit pas avant quinze ans de la date de leur création, et sous les règles que peuvent établir le Président et la Direction, avec l'agrément des parties intéressées.

2o. Une taxe spéciale sera levée en janvier de chaque année, et le montant en sera calculé de manière à suffire à payer l'intérêt annuel des dits bons. Elle sera collectée à la même époque et de la même manière que la taxe du prêt consolidé de adite ville.

3o. Les bons de la ville émis pour le fonds de la Compagnie, seront mis en circulation et reçus au pair contre des actions de la Compagnie ; et afin d'assurer le plein et entier remboursement, à l'échéance des dits bons, les actions de ladite Compagnie seront affectées à la garantie du rachat des dits bons.

Sec. 3me. Toutes ordonnances, résolutions ou autres actes, passés par ledit Conseil, après le premier janvier de chaque année, seront nulles et sans avenues, à l'exception d'une ordonnance pour imposer la taxe du prêt consolidé, et d'une ordonnance pour imposer une taxe pour le paiement de l'intérêt général des bons créés par la ville de la Nlle-Orléans, pour faire face à sa souscription aux actions des autres compagnies de chemins de fer dans l'Etat ; et ce à moins qu'une résolution n'ait été passée auparavant, laquelle ordonnât la levée d'une taxe spéciale pour le paiement de l'intérêt des dits bons.

Il est entendu qu'il ne sera levé aucune taxe pour le paiement des intérêts des dits bons après le paiement du dividende de six pour cent par an, sur les actions de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer Pontchartrain, déposés entre les mains de la ville, comme il sera ci-après réglé, lequel dividende sera appliqué par la ville au paiement de l'intérêt ; et il est entendu en outre que s'il arrive que les dividendes des actions du dit chemin de fer, possédés par la ville s'élèvent à plus de six pour cent par an, l'excédant sera, après le paiement de l'intérêt dont il vient d'être parlé, appliqué par la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain au rachat des bons de la ville créés en vertu du présent acte, étant expliqué que quand les dividendes seront de moins de six pour cent, il sera levé une taxe pour la différence seulement entre le montant du dividende annuel et le montant de l'intérêt annuel.

Il est entendu enfin que le net produit du Chemin de Pontchartrain actuellement existant, sera partagé entre les présents actionnaires du dit chemin, jusqu'à l'achèvement du chemin de Mobile.

Sec. 4me Immédiatement après le passage de l'ordonnance autorisant la souscription au fonds susdit, et son approbation par les votans de la Nlle-Orléans, comme il sera dit ci-après, le Maire fera créer des bons pour la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain pour le montant de ladite souscription, sur le reçu des certificats que lui fournira cette Compagnie pour quinze mille parts du dit fonds capital de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer Pontchartrain, de cent piastres chaque, entièrement libérée; et dès lors le Maire est autorisé à exécuter devant le Secretaire de ladite Compagnie, qui est par-illement autorisé à le recevoir et à l'exécuter, un gage du dit fonds dans le montant de dix parts pour chaque bon de mille piastres.

Sec. 5me. Aucune ordonnance passée par le Conseil Communal en conformité avec cet acte, ne sera valide et n'aura d'effet, à moins d'avoir été approuvée et ratifiée, à une élection qui se tiendra dans ce but sur l'ordre du dit Conseil, par le vote de la majorité des électeurs de la ville.

Ladite élection aura lieu dans les quinze jours qui suivront la date de l'ordonnance. Elle sera précédée d'un avertissement rendu public pendant dix jours, au moyen de l'insertion que le Maire en fera faire dans le journal choisi par le Conseil, et elle sera, sous tous les rapports, à moins qu'il ne soit autrement réglé par les présentes, tenue et conduite dans les formes prescrites par la loi pour les élections de la ville, et à ladite élection, le vote sera pris de la manière suivante: Ceux qui approuvent l'ordonnance inscriront ou feront inscrire sur leurs bulletins de vote, les mots ci après: "Pour aider à la construction d'un chemin de fer allant à la Mobile" ; et ceux qui désapprouveront ladite ordonnance, inscriront sur leur bulletin: "Contre l'aide demandée pour la construction d'un chemin de fer allant à la Mobile"; il est entendu que si le Conseil Communal refuse de souscrire au Fonds de la Compagnie ci-dessus nommée, de la manière indiquée au présent acte, il lui sera facultatif, à toute époque qui suivra, et aussi souvent qu'il le jugera à propos, mais toutefois à des intervalles qui ne pourront être de moins de deux mois, de prendre de nouveau la question en considération; et s'il arrivait qu'après avoir été finalement adoptée par le Conseil, la mesure fût repoussée par le peuple, à une première épreuve, le Conseil pourra, à toute époque subséquente, mais toutefois à des intervalles qui ne pourront être de moins de deux mois, consulter de nouveau la volonté du peuple en provoquant une nouvelle élection dans les mêmes formes que pour la première.

Sec. 6me. Aucune ordonnance du Conseil Communal en conformité au présent acte, ne sera soumise à la ratification du peuple de la Nouvelle-Orléans, avant que le Bureau des Directeurs de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain n'ait notifié au Maire, et par écrit, son consentement à l'exécution de ladite ordonnance, et son acceptation.

Il est entendu que l'acceptation de cette ordonnance par le Bureau avant qu'elle ait été ratifiée par le peuple de la ville, sera nulle et non avenue, en cas de rejet par le vote public.

Sec. 7me. Dans le mois de janvier de chaque année ou à l'époque à laquelle les autres actionnaires du Chemin de Fer de Pontchartrain éliront leurs directeurs, le Conseil Communal élira, au scrutin de ballotage, trois directeurs de ladite Compagnie du Chemin de Fer Pontchartrain, pour représenter les actions de la ville. Ces directeurs seront en fonctions pendant un an, ou jusqu'à l'élection de leurs successeurs.

Il est entendu qu'aucun membre de l'un des bureaux du Conseil, comme aucun officier de la corporation ne sera éligible aux fonctions de directeur; il est entendu en outre, que lors de la conversion des bons en actions jusqu'à concurrence de cinq cent mille piastres, la ville n'élira plus que deux directeurs ; que lors de la conversion du surplus des dits bons, la ville n'en élira plus aucun.

Sec. 8. Il sera facultatif à la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer Pontchartrain, à telle époque que bon lui semblera, en remettant au Trésorier de la Ville, un ou plusieurs des bons émis en vertu du présent acte, de demander en échange l'équivalent en actions de la Compagnie du Chemin de Fer Pontchartrain ; lesquelles actions, sur la remise des bons, comme on vient de le dire, seront transférées par le Maire de la Nouvelle-Orléans à ladite Compagnie, pour par elle en disposer comme bon lui semblera ; et les bons ainsi rendus à la ville seront immédiatement cancellés en présence du Maire et du Président ou Secrétaire de ladite Compagnie.

Sec. 9. Le présent acte aura force de loi à compter de la date de son adoption par la Législature.

Motion est faite d'adopter la première section.

Mr. Hodge,

Je désire que mes remarques sur cette question soient rapportées correctement. Cette question est grave et compliquée et elle mérite que nous y consacrions toute notre attention.

La disposition de ce bill qui me semble soulever le plus d'objections est que le pouvoir d'imposer la taxe est soumis au peuple de la Nouvelle-Orléans.

C'est la première fois que je suis appelé à exprimer une opinion sur ce principe législatif. J'étais absent lorsque la même question fut débattue à propos d'un autre bill. C'est une question très grave que de savoir si la Législature peut accorder des pouvoirs législatifs au peuple de la Nlle.-Orléans. Je trouve dans la Constitution que le pouvoir législatif est donné à l'Exécutif, au Sénat et à la Chambre des Représentants, et je n'y vois pas que la Législature soit autorisée à partager ou transférer ses pouvoirs législatifs. Je crois que le principe qui propose de soumettre la question de la taxe au peuple de la Nouvelle-Orléans, est anti-républicain. La doctrine démocratique veut que le peuple exerce son autorité par ses représentants et non par lui-même; il ne peut-être représenté que lorsque les représentants reçoivent un mandat à cet effet, et je regarde comme inconstitutionnel d'accorder au peuple, ainsi que le fait ce bill, le devoir de taxer, qui est un pouvoir législatif. Quel sera le résultat de l'adoption de ce principe évasif que rien n'autorise. Il suffira pour faire triompher une mesure, que ceux qui la présentent la fassent soumettre. Mais en admettant même qu'il soit juste et convenable d'accorder ces pouvoirs au peuple de la Nouvelle-Orléans, je doute fort qu'aucune autorité constitutionnelle nous y autorise. L'article 109 de la Constitution dit :

"La Législature aura le pouvoir de venir en aide aux compagnies ou aux associations d'individus, formées dans le but unique d'exécuter des travaux d'améliorations intérieures, situés en tout ou en partie dans l'Etat, mais seulement jusqu'à concurrence d'un cinquième du capital de ces compagnies, soit en souscrivant au capital, soit en leur faisant un prêt ou en émettant des bons, etc.

Je crois que la Législature a parfaitement le droit de décréter que la ville de la Nelle-Orléans sera actionnaire, dans les limites de la Constitution et quiconque le nie, nie la doctrine qu'il défend. Si la Législature n'a pas le droit d'agir dans cette question, elle ne peut pas accorder ce droit au peuple. Il serait absurde et inconséquent de rendre au peuple un droit que nous ne posséderions pas nous-mêmes Je n'ai pas l'intention de discuter ce bill en détail. Je veux seulement appeler l'attention du Senat sur la clause de la Constitution qui déclare que la taxe sera uniforme. Ce bill contient une disposition tout à fait contraire et porte atteinte à un des premiers principes du gouvernement répvblicain.

Mr. Macmurdo,

Cette question constitutionnelle a été discutée mille et mille fois. Il a été décidé par les plus hautes cours du pays, que le peuple a le pouvoir de se taxer lui-même.

Mr. Wickliffe,

Avant de donner mon vote, je désirerais examiner les votes des sénateurs sur cette question, en de précédentes occasions. Je regrette que le sénateur de Caddo,ne se soit pas levé pour voter avec moi, quand j'ai soutenu la même question avec les mêmes arguments. Je ne crois pas que la Législature ait le pouvoir de déléguer à une portion du peuple, le pouvoir de s'imposer elle-même.
